Having seen and consider d this Alphabetical Dictionary of the Greek and Latin Antiquities, we cannot but approve of the same, and recommend it to all those who desire perfectly to underfland the Classic Authors, and the Ancient Historians.

August 1. 1700.

Matt. Shortyng, D. D. Master of Merchant-Taylors-School, London-

Rob. Uvedale, L.L.D.

Tho. Walker, L. L. D. Master of the Charter-House-School, London.

Sam. Mountfort, A. M. Master of the Grammar-School, in Christ-Hospital, Lond.

A COMPLETE DICTIONARY

Greek and Roman Antiquities;

Explaining the Obscure PLACES in Classic Authors, and Ancient Historians,

Relating to the

Religion, Mythology, Hiftory, Geography and Chronology

Ancient GREEKS and ROMANS:

Their SACRED and PROPHANE

Rites and Customs; Laws, Polity,

Arts and Engines of WAR: Alfo an ACCOUNT of Their

Navigations, Arts and Sciences,

The INVENTOR Sof them:

WITH THE Lives and Opinions of their Philosophers.

Compiled Originally in FRENCH, at the Command of the French KING, for the Use of the DAUPHIN, the Dukes of BURGUNDY, ANIOU and BERRY : By Monsieur DANET.

Made Engl'ish, with the Addition of very Ufeful MAPPS.

Printed for John Micholion, at the King's Arms, in Little Britain; Cho. Memberough, at the Golden Ball, in St. Paul's Church-yard; and John Bulloro: And Sold by R. Marker, under the Royal-Exchange ; and 18. Tooke, at the Temple-Gase, in Fleet-firees: MD CC.

DES DIG T H

PREFACE.

HE Greek and Roman Antiquities lying dispersed in somany large and chargeable Volumes, are almost lost to those who have not either Money to procure, or Leisure to peruse them; and the sem Compendium's which have been made, being either very impersect, or so immethodical, that it required a great deal of Time to be tolerably informed concerning any particular Antiquity: Our Author thought it very necessary to digest that sort of Learning Alphabetically, that by that means it might be more readily consulted, and the Authors in both Languages better understood.

His Design is very extensive, and comprehends both the Ancient Greek and Roman Religion, Mythology, History, Chronology and Geography; Sacred and Prophane Rites and Customs; their Laws, the Opinions of their most famous Philosophers; their Polity, Architecture, Art of War, Warlike Engines and Navigation; the Lives of Men Illustrious for Arms and Arts, &c. All which, with vast Industry and Judgment, he has collected from the Ancients themselves, and the best of the Moderns, well attested Medals, Inscriptions, Statues, Relievo's and Basso-Relievo's.

The Necessity of a Work of this Nature will be very evident to those who please to consider a few Instances, of a great many which might be produced. Every Scholar knows that Volumen is derived from volvo, to roll up, and that Volumen it self signifies a Book; but, perhaps, does not know, that before the Use of Paper, Men wrote on the Skins of Beasts, or Bark of Trees lengthwise, which they rolled up as fast as they sinish a their Lines; whence evolvere Librum signified, to read a Book, because the Manuscript being rolled up, it was impossible to read it without unrolling it.

Likewise how could that Expression of Horace, ad Umbilicum ducere. Opus, be understood to finish a Work, if we did not know that the Romans used to roll up these Skins or Bark when written upon, and join them together at both Ends with Two Bosses of Horn or Ivory, each like a Navel, which occasion'd that of Statius?

Binis umbilicis decoratus Liber.

Jec . 30

The PREFACE.

Also another of the same Author;

Multaque pars mei, Vitabit Libitinam.

is very much illucidated, when we know that Libitina was the Goddess which presided over Funerals.

Who again can well apprehend that other of Horace, Sat. 1k. Lib. 1.

Divina mota anus Urna.

without being inform'd, that in this place Hotace speaks of Divination, by the Urm and Lots, which was perform'd by throwing several Letters and entire Words into the Urn, which being well mix'd, what Chance produc'd by the Ranging of the Balots, compos'd the Divination and Answer?

Cicero calls the Letter A, litera salutaris, because the Judges used it in publick Sentences, causing it to be inserted on the Balots, which they three into the Urn, to express their Absolving the Person accused, for the single Letter A signify'd Absolvo.

Thus it appears, of what Importance it is to be acquainted with the Mythology and Antiquities of the Greeks and Romans, confidering there are innumerable Difficulties which cannot be conquered, and Beauties which may be pass'd over and lest, without a competent Knowledge of them.

Our AUTHOR having gain'd a sufficient Reputation by his former Distionary, and being by the Illustrious Duke of Montausier, Governour to the Dauphin, thought very capable of Compiling this WORK, for the Use of his Royal Pupil, and his Sons the Dukes of Burgundy, Anjou and Berry: The TRANSLATOR had rather leave his Performance to the Judgment of the Learned, than anticipate the Reader by saying any thing in its Praise. He cou'd have wish'd he had found the Original illustrated with those Mapps, which were absolutely necessary to be added, and has only this to say, that Care has been taken to have them performed after the best Originals, and improved by the best Information that cou'd be procur'd.

The TRANSLATOR is sensible, that some Faults have escaped Correction, but since they are merely Typographical, 'sis hoped, they won't injure the Sence of the AUTHOR.

DICTIONARY

OF THE

Greek and Roman Antiquities.

Alphabet in all Languages. The Hebrews call it Aleph, and the Greeks Alphe, but our Nation as the Latins, call it fimply A. Of all the Vowels it is the most open and simple, and that which is most easily pronounced, being the first articulate Sound which Nature puts forth at the crying or finiling of Infants. It is often used to express the Passions of our Mind, as in case of Admiration, Joy or Grief, and to render the Expression more vehement, we sometimes prefix or subjoin the Letter b to it, and say be or ab. When this Letter makes a whole Syllable the Children call it A by it felf A.

The Antients diftinguished exactly in their

Pronunciation when this Syllable or Letter A was long, and in their Writing they did often repeat this Vowel, to fignific that it was a long Syllable; which Usage, as Quintilian testifies, continued till the time of Attins: fometimes they inferted the Letter b between the double s, to render the Pronunciation more vehement. as in Abala for Ala, or Aala, and fometimes by firiking out the first s, they made it Mals : But afterwards, for shortness sake, they only drew a fmall Line at the top of the Vowel, to shew that it was long, thus a.

This Letter A does often fignifie an intire Word in the ancient Marbles, A. Aulus, A. Augustus, A. Ager, A. Aiunt, Oc. When it is doubled it denotes Augusti: and when it is tripled it fignifies Auro, Argento, Ere. When it occurs after the word Miles, it denotes that he was Young, as Ifidore affirms.

This Letter A was also used by the Ancients as a numeral Letter which fignified 500, as may be feen in Valersus Probus. There are some ancient Verses related by Baronius and others, without; sometimes Augmentation, from and

Is the first Letter of the | which describe the Letters signifying Numbers, whereof this is the first.

Poffidet A numeros quingentos ordine retto. When a streight Line was drawn above the A. it fignified 5000.

In the Tryal of Criminal Causes at Rome, an Adrawh upon the Balots which were given to the Judges, and thrown into an Urn, fignified the whole Word Absolve, or, I absolve the Person accused: whence Cicero calls A a faving Letter, Litera falutaris, because it was the fign of difmiffing the Accused with Absolution. This we learn from Asconius Pedianus in his Commentary upon Cicero's Orations. The Judges (fays that learned Interpreter) cast one Balot into the Urn, upon which was engraven or drawn the Letter A, to fignifie, I absolve the Perfor accused; another upon which was the Letter C, to denote Condemno; and a third marked with the Letters N and L, Non Liquet, to order. That the Matter Should be further enquired into; for the Judges hereby testified than the Cause was not sufficiently plain, and that they could not decide it while it remain'd fo; which they fometimes expressed, viva voce, by this word Amplius, as we may plainly fee from this Paffage of Cicere, Caufam pro Publicania dixit Calius: Consules, re audità, amplius de Consilii sententia pronunciarunt ; Calius pleaded for the Publicans, the Confuls, after they had heard him, by the Advice of the Senate, pronounc'd. Let this Matter be further inquir'd inte.

In the Affemblies of the Romans, where the People gave Suffrage upon Scrutiny, by Balots mark'd with the Letter A, it fignified Antique. and Abrege, Or I reject the Law proposed, I abre-gate that which is now in force.

ALPHA is likewise the first Letter of the Greek Alphabet, which in Composition denotes fometimes Privation, and comes from dreemuch : and fometimes Union, from aus, together. It was used for the most past for a Letter of Order to denote the First, and of Number to fignifie One; but when it was a Numeral Letter, a little Stroke or an Acute Accent was drawn above it thus 'A, to distinguish it from the A which was a Letter of Order.

Alpha and Omega in the Divine Writings fignifie the Beginning and the End, and therefore the Hieroglyphic of God is marked with these two Letters, A and Q, as if you fhould fay, that God is the Beginning and End of all things; and fo God himfelf fays in the Revelations, am Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and the End. Thus Virgil having a mind to bestow a singular Encomium upon Augusta, by an Excuss of Flattery, tells him,

A te principium, tibi definet.

These three Characters were anciently engraven upon the Tombs of the Catholicks, to diftinguish them from the Arism: for the Name of JESUS CHRIST was fignified. as he himfelf fays in the Gofpel, by thefe two Letters, A which is the first of the Greek Alphabet, and & which is the last of it; Ego fum Alpha & Omega, principlum & finis : and from bence he proves that he was truly God as well as his Father, which the Arrian deny'd. They are also to be mer with in the Letters Patents of Christian Princes, and on the Collars of Slaves.

Aphs mark'd with a spiritus ofper, and an acute Accest A, is also safed for the Pronouns es and fus, in Homer and others: but with a Spiritus afper and a tircumflen Accens R. it fignifies the fame with 8we, abi, as may be feen in the Poet Thescritur. Alpha with a Spiritus lenis and a circumflex Accent A, is an Interjection of one who is in some trouble, which moves him to complain or admire; but when it is doubled with a fairitus lenie and a circamfien Acsent, it is an Interjection of one who is in a mighty Consternation, being under some great Affliction; if it be doubled and mark'd with a Biritus lenis and a grove Accent A; it is an Interjection of one who is transported with Joy, or she agreeable Surprise of something very plea-

ABAZ, is a Greek Word, from whose Genitive acare, the Lather have formed their Word Abacus, which has many Significations: for it fignifies fometimes an ABC, fometimes a Table of Numbers for casting up Accompts, which was of Brais, and called by the Ancients The Table of Pythagoras. It fignified alfo the Figures of Numbers, and the Arithmetical Charafters, which were drawn upon a Table cofey in Sat. 1. va. 131.

Nec qui Abaco numeros & fello in pulvere metae.

It fignifies also a Capbeard, which the Balians call Credenza, upon which were plac'd in order the Pots, Glasses, and the Dessert of a Feast, viz, the Salads and Sweet-meats, and on which the Carver cut out the several forts of Meat, and ferv'd up some part of them in Plates to each of the Guests. In Furuvius, and all those who have treated of Architecture, Abucus is nothing else but the four-four'd Table which makes the Capital at the top of a Column, and which, in the Corinthian Order of work, reprefents that kind of Square Tile which covers a Basket or Pannier when it feems encompais'd with Leaves, but in the Commbian Commolite. or the Modern lantch Order, which was taken from the Temple of Concord, and other ancient Temples, it was dug and cut inwards.

ABADDIR (a Term of Mythology) is the Name of a Stone which Saturn swallow'd, according to the Fable, instead of Sepiter : for he knowing that the Fates had decreed he should be dethroned by one of his Children, eat them all up to preferve himfelf from them, till fuch time as Ops his Wife put a trick upon him, and made him swallow this Stone instead of Jupiter whom the had a mind to fave. Prifcien and tildere in their Gloffes make mention of it, and Papias testifies that this word does sometimes fignifie a God. And indeed, fince that Ab-addir is as much as to fay Pater magnificat.

AB-ADDIRES is the Name of certain Gods. St. Aufilm, writing to Maximus of Medours, fays, that the Carthagintans had fome Gods call'd Anaderes, whose Priests were named Baccaddires : In Sacerdetibus Raccaddires, & in Numinibus Ab-addires. Thus the Gods Ab-ailfires of the Carthaginians, were without doubt that's whom the Greeks and Lasins fornetimes called. Magnet, petentes, feleffes Deos.

ABALIENARE, (a Term of Raman Law,) to make a pure and fumple Sale to a Remas Citizen of the Goods which were called Res mancupii or mancipli, which were Effares firoate in Rome or forme place of Italy, and confifted in Lands of Inheritance, in Slaves and Cattel. This Sale or Allenation was not valid but between Roman Citizens, and for the Payment a certain Ceremony was observed. with a Balance and Money in hand, or elfe the Seller was to transfer and fenounce his Right before a Judge, as we learn from Cicers in his Topicks, Abalienatio ejus rei que mancifii erat, aut traditie alteri nexu, aut in jure ceffie.

ABATON, a Greek word which fignifies ver'd with Dust or fmall Sand, according to a Building fo very high that no Man can come the Testimony of Martinus Capelle, and of Per- at it, and which is inaccessible. We have a tine piece of Antiquity concerning this fort of Building in Viscousius I. S. s. 2. The Rhodious 1 and a mournful Tone, and the whole City was being vanquish'd by Queen Artemisia the Wife of Maufolus, the Story fays, that the erected a Trophy in the City of Rhodes with two Statues of Brais, whereof one represented Rhodes, and the other was her own Image, which imprinted on the Front of that which represented the Ciry the Marks of Slavery. A long time after the Rhodians, who fcrupled the demolishing of thefe Statues, because it was not lawful to deftroy fuch Statues as were dedicated in any place, confulted how they might hinder the View of them, by railing a very high Building round about them, after the manner of the Greek, who call'd it dearer.

ABAZEA or ABAZEIA, ancient Ceremonies inflituted by Dionysius the Son of Caprins King of Afia; fo called from the Greek word actor, which fignifies filent, because these Peasts were observ'd with a profound Silence. Cieero (peaks of them in his third Book

Of the Nature of the Gods.

ABDERA, a City of Thrace, fo called from one Abderus a Favorite of Hercules, who was torn in pieces by the Horses of Diemedes. Herewer reveng'd the Death of his Friend, canfing his own Horfes to eat him up, and then beating out their Brains with his Club: he built also this City in his honour, which he called from his Name. It was afterwards called Claumena, because the Claumenians who came from Affa into Thrace, enlarged it very much. It is now called Pelifyle, according to Sophian, and was the place where Pretageras the Sophist, and Democritus the great Laugher were born. Near to this Place is a Lake called Biffonie, in which nothing will fwim, and the Paflures round about it, make the Horses mad that feed in them.

ABDERITAE of ABDERITANI. The Inhabitants of Abders in Thrace, who were efloemed stupid and dull because of the Grossness of the Air in which they breath'd, from whence comes that Expression of Martial, Abderitana pellera plebis baber, i. e. You are a flupid Post: in which place he speaks to a certain Criminal, who was pardoned upon condition, that in a full Theatre he would represent upon himfelf the Action of Metins Scavels, who burn'd his Hand, with a Stoical Confrancy, in the prefence of King Perfense, to punish himfelf because he had not kill'd him, but miss'd his Aim by striking one of his Courtiers in-flead of him. The Natives of Abders, says Lucian, were formerly tormented with a burning Fever, which ceased on the seventh day, either by a Sweat or by Lofs of Blood; and, which is very flrange, all that were feiz'd with it repeated Tragedies, and particularly the Andreweds of Enripides, with a grave Air full of these Tragedians, who started up on a fudden, and running to and fro in frightful and horrid Difguifes, cry'd out, O Lave, the Tyrant of the Gods and Men, and in this mad Frolick acted the rest of Perseu's Part in a very melancholy manner. The Original of this Mifchief was the Actor Archelaus, who being in mighty Vogue, had afted this Tragedy with much Applause in the hottest time of Summers for by this means it came to pass, that many upon their return from the Theatre went to bed, and the next day fell to imitating him, having their Heads still full of those tragical and bombast Terms they had heard the day be-

ABDICARE, (a Term of the Region Law) to Abdicate a Son is to abandon him. to turn him out of your House, to refuse to own him for your Son; it is also a common Phrase. abdicare Magistratum, or se Magistratu, to renounce the Office of a Magistrate, to lay it down, to abandon it, either before the time prescribed, for some private Reason, or for fome Defect that happened in the Election, or at last after the time is expir'd for the discharge of that Office. We read also in the Law, Abdidieare fe flats fue, to renounce his Condition. to become a Slave, and be degraded from the Privileges of a Raman Citizen, when any one was abandon'd to his Creditors, not being able to make them Satisfaction.

ABDICERE, (a Term of Roman Law) which fignifies to debar any one of his Demands and Pretentions, or not to allow them. And in this Sonfe 'tis faid, Abdicere windiciam or windisias, i. e. Not to allow one the possession of the thing which is controverted : on the contrary, dicere & addicere windicias, is to grant and allow them the Pollellion of that which is con-tefted.

Abdicere is also an Augural Term, and signifies to difapprove, to reject a Delign or Enterprise, not to favour it. For understanding this piece of Antiquity, we must know, that the Remov never undertook any thing of confequence, till they had first consulted the Will of the Gods by the mediation of the Augurs; who, for this end, consider'd the flying and finging of the Birds, their manner of eating and drinking, and according to the Rules and Observations of this Augural Science they approv'd or disapprov'd of any Delign : and anfwer'd these who consulted them. Id aver abdicunt, the Gods difapprove this Defign, whose Will has been manifested to us by the Birds which we have observed.

ABIGEI and ABACTORES, (in the Law) are the Smales of Cattle, who carry away whole Flocks, or at least a great part of between the words Farer and Abatteres ; for the former, fay they, are those who steal only a Sheep or two, whereas the Abatteres are thole who carry off a whole Flock, or the greatest part of it.

ABIRE This Word, besides the Signisications I have already given of it in my Latin and French Dictionary, has also some other relating to the Roman Law, as Abire ab emptione, to fall off from a Bargain, to break it, to refuse to hold it: fo in Cicero we find, Res abiit à Sempronio, Sempronius fail'd in this Affair, it flipt out of his hands.

Abire, a Term of Imprecation, as may appear from these Passages of the Comic Poets, Abi in malam rem, Abi in crucem, or in maximum magnum malum, Go in an ill hour, Go hang your felf, Go to the Devil. The Word Abire is also us'd in the Form of granting Liberty to Slaves, as Abite que voler, que lubet, nihil te morer, or, Liber efte atque abito quo voles, or, Tu vero abeas, neque te quisquam meratur : I make you free, go now whither you will, no body detains you, you may go where you please. It is also used in the Law after this manner, Abiit dies attionis, the Time of Profecution in this Caufe is over, or, according to the common Phrase of the Court, There's an end of this Suit, it is quite out of doors, and cannot be brought on again. ABJUDICARE, (a Term of Law) to take away fomething from a Person by a Sentence, to declare that it does not belong to ABJURARE Creditum, or, Si quid creditum eft, to deny a Depositum or Pledge in a Court of Justice, to make oath that there was no fuch thing left with me. Plantus fays. Quique in jure abjurant pecuniam, who deny in Court that the Money was left in their hands.

ABLUERE fe, (a Term of Religion us'd in the ancient Sacrifices) to wash and purifie our felves before we offer Sacrifice. The Remans look'd upon it as a part of Religious Worthip, to wash their Hands and Feet, sometimes she Head, and oftentimes the whole Body, when they were to facrifice to their Gods. And therefore Virgil brings in Eness telling Anchifer, that he could not discharge his Duty to his Houshold-Gods, till he was purified in some running Water, because he was defiled with Blood and Slaughter, at the Sacking of Trey, Donec me flumine vivo abluero. We read alfo in the fame Poet, that Dide, having a mind to facrifice to the Infernal-Gods, told her Sifter, that the must first wash and purific her felf in running Water,

Dic corpus properet fluviali fhargere lympha. The People and Affiftants were also purified them. The Lawyers do put a great difference | with a Water which was called Luftral, according to the Practice of Eness at the Funerals of Milenus in Virgil, for he tells us that he fprinkl'd Luftral Water three times upon his Companions with an Olive-branch,

Idem ter focios pura circumtulit unda

Spargens rore levi & rame felicis eliva. They us'd fometimes a sprinkling Instrument to throw that Lustral Water, which they esteemed holy, because the Link or Torch which had been used at a Sacrifice was extinguished in it. It was their Custom also to place, at the Entrance into their Temples, Veffels made of Marble triumphant (as Du Choul calls it) fill'd with Water, wherewith they wash'd themselves. A Custom which, without doubt, they learn'd from the Jews, since we read in Scripture, that Solomon plac'd at the Entry into the Temple, which he erected to the true God, a great Laver, which the Holv Text calls a Ses of Brafi, where the Priests wash'd themselves before they offer'd Sacrifice, having before-hand fanctified the Water by throwing into it the Ashes of the Victim that was flain in Sacrifice.

A BO LERE, (a Term of the Roman Law) to abelifh, to annihilate, to reduce to nothing, to destroy a thing after such a manner that nothing remains, not fo much as the Remembrance of it. And according to this Notion of the Word is the Phrase Abslere crimen, to abolifh a Crime, and Abolers nomina reerum, to rafe or expunge the Names of the accused out of the Table or Register, to strike them out of the Lift of the Prisoners.

ABOLITIO, Abolition, the Remission of a Crime. Amnesty is a general Abolition of all that has been committed during a Civil War, or in any popular Commotion. This Abelities was granted after three different manners: Either by the Prince on a day of Triumph, and for some remarkable Victory obtained by the Commonwealth; or elfe it was granted by the Magistrate, when the Accuser desisted from his Profecution before him; or laftly, it was granted to the Accused after the Death of the Accuser.

ABOLLA, a kind of Purple Garment doubled, which was very large, had many Plaits, and was adorned with great Buttons. which the Romans were to defend themselves from Cold and the Injuries of the Weather. This Garment was used by Military Men, Perfons of Quality, and even by Philosophers, as the Verses of Martial and Javenal do plainly prove. We read in Suetonius, That the Emperour Caligula was much offended with King Prolomy for appearing at the Theatre with this double Garment of Purple, which attracted the Eyes of all the Spectators towards him.

Abouninantes.

- ABOMINANTES, (a Term of Execration) Those who abber any bad Presage, and pray the Gods to prevent its falling upon their Heads. They made use of certain Latin Expressions frequent in the Comic-Poets and others. Quod Dii omen avertant; quod ego abeminor ; procul omen abefto ; procul fit omen ; procul hec evertant fate. Quod Dii probibeant; Dii meliera : Dii melius : & Dii melius duint, for dent. Which God forbid, which I pray the Gods to remove far from us, and to turn away from falling upon our Heads; which Mischief may it never come upon us; which may the Gods preferve us from. ABORIGINES, a very antient People of Italy, about whose Original there are four principal Opinions: the first is that of Aurelius Vitter who calls them Aberigines, as who should say Aberrigines, i.e. Vagabonds, wherein he disowns that Division made by Berelus of Janigenes and Aberigines, and affirms on the contrary, that these Aberigines were wandring and vagabond Scythians. who came and fettled in that part of Italy. Nevertheless, against this first Opinion it may be faid, that if these Aborigines had been Scythians, they would never have employed the Greeks against the Scythians, but, on the contrary, would have made use of them as safe Auxiliaries to aid them against the Natives of the Country, and against the Greeks, who were lately come thither. S. Jerom and Denis of Halicarnaffus think, that they were call'd Aborigines, as who should say ablque origine, without beginning; or rather as being the first Natives of the Mountains, from these Tuscan and Armenian words, according to the Talmuds; for Ab fignifies a Father, ori a Cavern or hollow place, and Jo fignifies a Race or Posterity, as who should say, Men born in Caverus. Some think that Chamafenus, alias third with the Letters Nand L, to respite Judg-Cham, the Son of Nosh, who was the Saturn of the Egyptians, having gather'd together divers wandring and vagabond People, conducted them into that part of Italy which at prefent is call'd Romania. and at that time was call'd Latium. Titus Livius and Dionysius Halicarnasseus affert, that the first Aborigines came from Arcadia into Italy, under the conduct of Oenstrus the Son of Lycam, and that they learn'd the Letters of the Alphabet from Evander, who was then King of it. Genebrard, one very well vers'd in Rabbinical Learning, thinks that the Aborigines were a People driven by Joshua out of the Land of Canaan, who crofs d over the Mediterranean Sea, and came and dwelt in Italy, where they had for King Sabatius or Saturn, who was fet over them by James, and reign'd there Thirteen Years: They were banish'd beyond the Tyber, on account of the corruption of their Manners: But as to Janua, he fettled on this fide of the River, upon a Hill which he call'd Imiculum.

ABROGARE, (in the Roman Law) to Abrogate, make void, annul, to bring into difuse any Law or Custom. This word has reference to these other words, regere, coc. when they are spoken of Laws whose Confirmation was demanded of the People. First, Regabatur Lex. a Law was proposed to the People for their Approbation, which they gave in these Terms: Uti rogas, I approve it, Be it fo as is requir'd; 2ly, Abrogabatur, it was abrogated. 2ly, Deregabatur, fomething was taken away from it. Sometimes, Subregabatur, fome Claufe was added to it. And laftly, Obversbatur, fome Exception or Limitation was put to it. Lex aur regatur, i. e. fertur : aut abregatur, i. e. prior lex tollitur : aut derogatur, i. e. pars prima tollitur : aut subregatur. i. c. adjicitur aliquid prime levi : aut obregatur, i. c. mutare aliquid ex prima lege. Ulp. in Leg. 1. D. ad Leg. Aquil. And Cicero. 1.2. of Ep. to Atticus : Si quid in hac regatione scriptum eft, qued per legem Claudiam promulgare, abrogare. derogare, obrogare, fine fraude fus non licest. And again, in lib. 3. of the Republick : Hinc legi nec obrogari fas eft, nec derogari ex hac aliquid licet. neque tota deregari peteft, 'It was not lawful to change this Law, or take any thing from it. neither could it be wholly abrogated ABSOLVERE, (in the Roman Law) to absolve a Person accus'd, to acquit him of a Crime or any Accusation laid against him, to difmis him with Absolution. The ordinary method in these Cases was this: After the Caufe of the accus'd had been pleaded on both fides, the Pretor us'd the word Diserunt, i. e. the Advocates have faid; and then three Balots were distributed to each Judg, one mark'd with the Letter A, to absolve the accus'd, another with the Letter C, to condemn him, and a ment till further information. There was often alfo a fourth, which Suetonius calls Takula remissionis, which was a pardon for a Crime whereof the accus'd was found guilty. In a Suit concerning a forg'd Will (fays the fame Historian) all the Witnesses who had sign a it is being declar'd guilty by the Lex Cornelis, not only two Balots were given to the Judges for absolving or condemning the accus'd, but a third also for pardoning the Crime in those who had been furpriz'd or drawn in to fign it by fraud or mistake. Cum de testamento falfi ageretur, emnesque signateres Lege Cornelia tenereneur, non tantum duas tabellas absolutoriam & condennatoriam fimul cognoscentibus dedit, sed tertiam quaque que ignosceretur its, ques fraude ad fignandum vel errore inductor constituffer. The Judges having receiv'd these Balots, took an Oath, that they would judg according to their Confcience. without Partiality to either fide, either for Love or Hatred: After which Oath, they threw one of the Balous into the Um, according as their ! Judgment was, either for absolving or condemning the Perty accus'd. If the accus'd was condemn'd, the Judy gave his fentence in thefe words, Videtur facille: The Crime is proved. he is attained and convicted of it; and conchided his Sentence in thefe Words, I lider, lise of palon, expedi virgar, when the Criminal was not condemn'd to death; But if the Crime was capital, then he used these words. I Litter. collige monus, copus obnubito, infelici arbeni fu amelite, less age. Go.Litter, feine the Criminal, cover his Face, and hang him up, by versue of the Sentence new pronounc'd against him : But if she Person secus'd happen'd to be Abfole'd, the Judg pronounc'd Sentence upon him thus, Videtur von facifie, or Nibil in se damnationis dignum invenia, OE, Nan invenie in co cau-(am : which fixpression was us'd by Pilate, being a Remoy, in his Answer to the lews, who had a mind to force him to put lofus to death, whom he had declar'd to be innecent.

lus, (according to Parquine,) the Son of Etfing of Golebes. Tis faid, this his Sifter Medes, when the fled from her Father's House with Jafon, whem the lavel, tore the Body of her Brother Affren in pieces, and featter'd there up and down in the way, on purpose to hinder her Father from purfining after her, by meeting with those fad Remains of his Son. which he was oblig'd to gather up, as Citere tells us in his Oration pro Lage Manilia, Us Medan illa en putte profigife duttur, quam pra-dicent in fuga fratris fui membra, in its locis quà fe paraus perfequeretur diffperviffe, at corum colle-Sie dispersa, marerque patrius celevitatum perso-quendi retandaret. Palerius Raccu, Lib. VIII. Angunent. Says, That it was not her Father Friendfhip; and the Offices of a civil Life, and Eseline who went after her, but that he fent his Som Alfertag with a Naval Force to purfue her. and that coming up with her at the mouth of the Danube, when John and the were upon the point of Marriage, he broke off the Match by threatning to burn them both, together with cheir Ship.

ABSYRTUS, otherwife call'd Leig-

Ani novus incaptes impediit bymenaes, Turbavitque tores, & facra calcutia rupit.

Grahmuthinks that Etefan commanded Abfyrtusto go after his Sifter and fetch her back again ; but that he following after her, by a mischance fell into the River Phase, and was drowned, and true; but if it flink to the bottom, the Oath that his Body was afterwards cast by the Waves spon the little Islands which are call'd from his Name Abspride: But Phiny on the contrary tells us, that he was kill'd on the Coasts of Dalmetie, where thefe little Islands are firuare. which from his Name are call'd Absprides. Abfreider Graite dilla à fratre Medea ibi interfetto, seemes Abfurts : lib. 3. cap. 2. Let us fee how Mygians selectes this Story: Eteffen, fays he, be ing inform'd that his Daughter Mides and John had fled away from him, he fent his Son Abfrom in a Ship after them, who purfu'd them as far as the Adviatic Sea along the Coasts of Schounia, and found them out at the House of King Alcinous. At their first meeting they were seady to go to blows, but the King interpor'd his Authority, and offer'd them his Mediation, which they accepted of. The King refolv'd to reftore Media to her Father. provided that Taken had not yet enjoy'd her: But Jajm being inform'd of this by the Queen. to whom the King had entrufted this Secret. enjoy'd her that night, and by this means obtain'd Medes for his Wife. Abfyrtus fearing the Anger of his Father, continu'd ftill to purfue after them, when they retird into the Country of Arger; but Tolon at laft, by killing him. was deliver'd from any further purfuit. There are some Authors who say, that it was his own Sifter who cruelly tore him in pieces.

ACA

ACADEMIA, the Academy, a place built near to Athens, and planted with Trees by one Academus, according to Diagner Laertius, or according to others, by Calmus a Phanisian, and the Restorer of Police Learning among the Greeks. In this place Plate taught his Difciples Philosophy, who from thence were call'd Acedemics.

Atque inter stivas Academi quarere verum. id eft. To enquire after Truth in the Academy at the School of the Divine Plate. Citere call d one of his Country-Houfes by this Name, where he planted Groves, and made very pleafant Walks, for entertainment of his Friends with Discourses upon Philosophical Subjects, such as these, Concerning the Nature of the God; Of particularly his Academical Treatifes, fo call'd from the place where they were composed. In process of time all places, where Youth were taught the Liberal Arts and Sciences, or other Exercifes, were call'd by this Name.

ACADINA, a Fountain in Cilicia near the Lake of Delss confecrated to Caffer and Parlast. The truth and fincerity of an Oath was prov'd by the Water of this Pountain; for the Oath was written upon a Table and caff into this Fountain, and if the Table did fwim above the Water, it was a fign that the Oath was was judg'd falle.

Latin Brancha-urften, fo call'd, because its Leaves resemble Bears Feer; and in Greek drong because one kind of it is prickly like a Thiftle. There are two kinds of Acanthus. one which grows wild, and is full of Prickles. and another which grows in Gardens, which out Prickles. The Greek Sculptors adorn'd their Works with the Figure of the latter, as the Gothic did with that of the former, which bears Prickles; which they represented not only in their Capitals, but also in their other Ornaments. The occasion of their so doing, according to the relation of Vitravias, was this. A young Woman in Corinth happening to dye when the was just upon the point of Marriage, her Nurse laid upon her Tomb, in a Casket. forme Veffels which the had priz'd in her lifetime; and because they lay open to the Weather, to preferve them from walting too fall. the cover'd the Casket with a Tile : But this happening by chance to lye upon the root of an Aconthu , it so happen'd that in the Spring-time, when the Leaves began to shoot forth, the Casket which lay upon the middle of the root, was encompass'd with the Leaves of the Plant growing up about the fides of it, till meeting with the Tile that cover'd it at top, their extremities were forci-bly bent into fpiral Lines, like a Skrew. Callimachus, the Sculptor, passing by this Tomb. observed how the growing Leaves encompassed this Casket, and represented the manner of it in those Pillars which he afterwards made at Gerinth.

ACANTHUS, "Ages 3 G. Bearsfoot, in

A C C

ACARON, the God of Flies, See Acceren and Acher.

ACCA LAURENTIA, the Wife of Faufinlas, who was Shepherd to Numitor, and the Nurse of Remus and Romalus : This latter in gratitude erected an Altar to her after her death, and appointed a Feast, which he call'd Leurentalia, which was celebrated in the Month of April, according to Varre, or in the Month of December, according to Ovid, Lib. III. Faft. Platarch attributes this Festival in the Month of December to another Acca, who was a famous Courtezan, and had amass'd great Riches by her lewd Practices; for the at her death left the People of Rome her Heirs, who in grateful acknowledgment of the Favour, confectated Plays and a Festival to her Memory. Macrebin tells us, that Ace Laurentia, who ferv'd as Nurie to Romulus and Remus, was this fame prostitute Whore, which gave occasion to the Fable. That a Wolf nurs'd them the Latins using the word Lups for a debauch'd Woman. She married afterwards a very rich Man, who gave her vast heaps of Wealth, all which she left to the People of Rome, who therefore beflow'd great Honours upon her. This Relation appears to be true, which Macrobius had extracted from fome antient Authors.

ACCARON, the God of Flies, according to Pliny 1: 10. c. 28. Paufanias relates in his Elegiacks, That Hercules facrificing one day

Fingil calls mellis, becamfe it is foft, and with- to Olympias, was much annoy'd with Flies, but that having invok'd Jupiter, appeile, of the Fly-Chafer, he was deliver'd from them, thefe Infects flying all away to the other fide of the River Alabeut. From that time the Elems continually offer'd the fame Sacrifice to Juniter the Ply-Driver, to obtain of him the fame Favour. See Acher.

ACCEDERE and ACCESSIO. (in the Raman Law) regard a thing which tho separated from the Bulk or Gross of any Estate, Commodity, &c. yet of right beare taken off a House to be laid on again, are an Accessory when the House is to be fold. Tegala que detratta funt ut reponerentur, adibus accedunt, Leg. 18. de Afrion, Empti & Venditi. The Cask which contains the Wine that is leftfor a Legacy, is an Accessory to a Legacy, and not a Legacy. Vala, accessio legata penus, non legata funt, Log. 4. de Pen. Log. ACCENSUS, an Officer of the Roman. Magistrates, and of the Military Men.

ACCENSI Permiss, Officers of the Raman Magistrates, with of the Confuls, Decemvirs. Practors, or Proconfuls and Governours of the Provinces of the Republick . They were taken out of the number of the Enfranchis'd, and their Function was rather laborious than honourable, as Gicere testifies in a Letter to his Brother Quintar, Proconful Of Alia, Accenfus eo etiam numero, que eum Majeres noftri effe voluerunt, qued bec non in beneficii loco, fed in laboris aut maneris, non semere nife liberiis deserbant, quibus non multo secus quam ser-wis imperabant. They walk'd before the Magistrates, and received their Orders, which they executed. Their chief Bufiness was so call the People together to Affemblies : and from this part of their Office, fays Varro, they were called Accenf ab acciendo. The Form ufed by the Magistrates for calling any to a Meeting, was this, Foce ad concionem owner Quirites huc ad me. Summon, call an Affembly of the People, cause them to meet together immediately. The Accensus cry'd, Omnes Quirites ite ad contionem, Go to the Affembly, Gentlemen Citizens. Their Office was also to affift the Preter, when he fat on the Bench, and to give him notice with a load Voice every three hours what a Clock it was, as, for inflance that it was ninea Clock in the Morning, that it was Noon. and that it was the ninth Hour or three a Clock after Noon. Accenfus inc. amubat boram effe tertiam, meridiem er nenam. For three a Clock. among the Romans was the ninth hour, as nine a Clock was the third hour : because they did not begin to reckon the first Hour of the day. till x a clock in the Morning; fo that the third hour was nine a Clock, according to us. a Clock in the Afternoon.

ACCENSI, in the Roman Armies, according to the opinion of Feftus, were the fupernumerary Souldiers, who ferv'd to fill the places of those who died, or were disabled to fight by any Wound they had received. Accenft dicebantur, quia in locum mortuorum militum subite Subrogantur, ita dicti quia ad ceusum adjiciebantur. Ascenius Pedianus affigns them a Station in the Roman Militia, like that of our Serjeants, Corporals, or Trumpeters. Accensus nomen eft ordinis in militia, ut nunc dicitur Princeps, aut Commentarienfis, aut Cornicularius. Titus Livius informs us, that Troops were made of these Accensi, that they were plac'd at the Rear of the Army, because no great matter was expe-Sted either from their Experience or their Courage. Tertium vexillum ducebat minima fiducia

ACCENTUS, an Accent, fignifies a certain Mark which is fet over Syllables, to make them be pronounced with a stronger or weaker Voice. The Greeks were more curious Observers of the Accents than the Moderns. Cardinal Perron fays, that the Hebrews call'd the Accents Guffut, which is as much as to fay, the Sawce of Pronunciation. There are three forts of Accents, the Acute, the Grave, and the Circumflex ". The Jews have Accents of Grammar, Rhetorick and Musick. The Accent of Mufick is an Inflexion or Modification of the Voice or Word, to express the Passions or Affections either naturally or artificially. Mr. Christian Hennin, a Hollander, wrote a Differtation to flew, that the Greek Tongue ought not to be pronounced according to the Accents; wherein he fays, that they were invented only to make some Distinction of Words; that Books were formerly written without any fuch Distinction, as if they were only one Word, that no Accents are to be feen in Manuscripts which are above 800 years old; that none are found in the Pandects of Florence, which were written about the time of Justinian; that they were not commonly used till about the tenth Century, or in the time of Barbarism, and then they were taken to be the Rule of Pronunciation; that there is no use of Accents in most Nations, neither in Chaldes nor Syria, nor among the Sclavenians, Mesceviter, or Bulgarians, nor was among the antient Danes, Germans or Dutch, and that they were unknown to all Antiquity. He believes that they were an Invention of the Arabidus, which was perfected by Alchalit, about the Death of Mahomet. He adds, that the Mafforetes of Tiberias, about the middle of the fixth Century adopted this Invention, and introduced it into the Bible with the Vowels, in the time of Justinian; and that and their minth hour of the day was our three | he who perfected the Accents, was Rabbi Jada Ben David Ching, a Native of Fez, in the eleventh Century; and that they were first used among the Greeks, only in favour of Strangers, and to facilitate the Pronunciation of Verfe.

ACCEPTILATIO, (a Term of the Roman Law) Acceptilation. A Discharge which is given without receiving of Money: a Declaration which is made in favour of the Debtor, that no more shall be demanded of him. that the Debt is fatisfied and forgiven, and he is acquirted of it. The manner of doing this was by a certain Form of Words used by both Parties, Qued ege promisi facisne, or habesne acceptum? faid the Debtor ; Do you acknowledg that you have received that which I promised you? Are you fatisfied, do you acquit me of it? the Creditor answered, habes or facis, I confels I have received it, I discharge you of it. But this was anciently used only in Obligations contracted by word of mouth.

ACCEPTUM, a Receipt. Tabula acce. pti & expensi, a Book of Receipts and Disburfements. Ratio accepti, an Accompt of Re-

ACCEPTO ferre, (in the Law) to hold for received, to write Received upon the Book. Accepte & acceptum ferre, accepto & acceptum facere, to confess that 'tis received. Expensum ferre, to write down what is disbursed. to keep an Accompt of what is laid out and expended.

ACCIA or ATTIA. Accia the Mother of Caius Offevius Cafar, furnamed Auguflus. Suetonius relates, in the Life of this Prince, that Accia his Mother having gone one night. with other Reman Dames, to folemnize a Feast of Apollo in his Temple, she fell alleep there, and thought in her fleep, that she faw a Serpent creep under her, which foon after difappear'd: when the awoke, having a mind to wash and purific her felf, she perceiv'd upon her Belly the Track of a Serpent, which could never be obliterated, and upon the account of this Mark the was obliged for ever after to forbear the publick Baths. She became afterwards big with Child, and was brought to bed, at the end of ten Months, of Cafar Augustus, making the World believe, that she had conceived by Apollo. Augustus also gloried in it, that he was his Son ; and Torrentine mentions a Silver Medal of this Emperour, upon the Reverse whereof was feen the Figure of . spolls holding a Harp in his hand, with these words, Cafar Divi Filius, Cafar the Son of the God Apollo.

A CCIPIO, (being spoken of a Law) to receive, approve and hold fit: as Regationem accipere, to accept a Law proposed. Accipio Omen, I take or hold this for a good Omen.

ACC ACCIPITER, any Bird of Prey in general, as an Hawk, &c. Ovid informs us, that an Hawk was a Bird of ill Omen, because it was very carnivorous.

Odimus accipitrem quia semper vivit in armis. But the same Bird was a good Omen in Marriage, according to Pliny, because it never eats the Hearts of other Birds, which gives us to understand, that no Differences, in a married state, between Husband and Wife ought to go fo far as the Heart; and Care was also taken, in the Sacrifices for Marriages, that the Gall of the Animals which were flain, should be raken our.

ACCIUS, a Latin Poet, who wrote Tragedies in a very harsh style, according to Cicero. He was of an illustrious Family, being descended of two Confuls, Macrinus and Soranus. Decius Brutus held him in great efleem, took great pleafure in adorning the Temples with this Poets Verses, and erected a Statue to him in the Temple of the Muses.

ACCIUS Navins, one of the most celebrated Augurs, who liv'd in the time of Tarquinius Priscus: He opposed the Design which that King had of adding new Centuries of the Roman People, to those which were already established by Romulus, representing to him, that he ought first to consult the Will of the Gods by the Flight of Birds. Tarquin, in raillery, bid him confult them, to know whether his present Design was feasible or no: Accius I would know, replied the King, whether you can cut that Stone with this Razor which was whetted upon it: The Augur immediately took the Stone and cut it in two with the Razor. This wonderful Action gained great Credit and Authority to the Augurs in the following Times; and the King caused a Statue to be erected to Accius in the place of their Affemhis Hand the Stone which he had cut, to perperuate to Posterity the Memory of this A-ACCLAMATIO, Acclamation, a loud Expression of Joy, the Applause given to Perfons and Things, a practice used upon several Occasions. The Romans never failed to use thefe Acclamations, which included their Prayers and Wishes for the Welfare of their Emperours, when they bestowed upon them any Largesses for some Victory obtain'd over the Enemies of the Empire.

These Acclamations were often expressed by one word, feliciter; or by many,

Di tibi dent quicquid, Princeps Trajane merevis, Et rata perpetud, que tribuere, velint. Or in these words, Augeat imperium nostri ducis, augeat annos. Many other Forms to this purpose may be seen in Brissonius de Formulis.

The Senate in like manner made Acclamations to the Emperours, either at their accession to the Throne, or in Acknowledgment of fome Favours they had received from them. which they very often inferted into their publick Registers, or caused to be engraven on Plates of Brass, or Tables of Marble. They frequently deified their Emperours, and choice their Magistrates by sudden Acclamations, of which I shall relate some Examples.

Aurelius Victor informs us, that Divine Honours were decreed to the Emperour Pertinar, after his Death, and that the whole Senate rais'd great Acclamations in his favour : Acclamatum eft, Pertinace imperante, Securi vinimus, neminem timuimus, Patri pie, Patri Senatus, Patri benerum omnium; We liv'd in perfect Security under Pertinax, cry'd the Senate, we fear'd no People. Pertinax was to us a Father full of Tenderness, the Father of the Senate, the Father of all good Men. Trebellius Pollio relates the Acclamations which were made at the Election of Valerianus to the Office of Cenfor: Acclamatum eft, Valerianus in tota vita sua fuit Censor, prudens Senator, modeftus Senator, amicus bonorum, inimicus tyrannorum, hoftis criminum, hoftis vitierum. Hunc Censorem omnes, hunc imitari volumus. Primus genere, nobilis Sanguine, emendatus vita, dottrina clarus, meribus fingularis, exemplum antiquitatis: Thefe Acclamations were made, Valerianus was did it, and brought him back word that it was. | a just Censor during his whole Life, a prudent and a modest Senator, a Friend to good Men, an Enemy to Tyrants, an Enemy to Crimes and Vices. We have all chosen him to be our Cenfor, he is illustrious for his Nobility, regular in his Life and Conversation, commendable for his Instructions, and an Example of Antiquity. The fame thing happened at the Election of Tacitus to the Empire; for after the blies, having his Head cover'd, and holding in | first, who gave sentence for him, proclaim'd him Emperour, the whole Senate cry'd with a loud Shout, Omnes, Omnes : And this good old Man endeavouring to excuse himself upon the account of his great Age, which render'd him unfit to bear the Weight of the Empire, they fhouted again and cry'd, Caput imperare, non pedes ; Animum tuum, non corpus eligimus, Tacite Auguste ; Dii te servent ; It belongs to the Head to rule and not to the Feet ; we chuse your Mind and not your Body , O Tacitus Augustus, the Gods preserve you long. In the Armies the Roman Souldiers did often chuse the Emperours and their Generals by fudden Acclamations, without waiting either for the Order of the Senate or the Confent of the People; as happen'd at the Election of the Emperour Prebus: for the Colonels having exhorted the Souldiers to chuse for Emperour a Man of Pro- I In eating they lay along on their fides, having bity, probum; all on a fudden they made a great Noise with confus d Voices, which proclaimed Probus to be Emperour, Probe Imperator, Die te fervent. These Acclamations were also us'd at Shows in the Theatres when they pleased the People's Humour, as it happen'd at the new Comedy of Pacuvius, Qui clamores fape tetà cavea exauditi funt in M. Pacuvii neva fabu a; The like Acclamations were often heard over all the Pit, when the new Play of Pacuvius was acted.

As the Romans were accustom'd to make these Acclamations to testifie their Joy and fignifie their Satisfaction. So they were a so sometimes us'd in Imprecations, to express their Indignation, as they did after the Death of the Emperour Commodus: Let this Enemy of his Country, cry'd they, be despoil'd of all Honour, let this Parricide, this Gladiator be cut in pieces in the place where Gladiators are laid up, when flain or wounded : Hoffi patrie honores detrabantur, parricida, gladiator in Spoliario laniesur, &c.

ACCO, the Name of a foolish and ridiculous Woman, who pleas'd her felf with fpeaking to her own Image in a Looking-glass, and made a flew of refuting that which flee most passionarly defired ; from whence dual-Course is used for Pretending to refuse, for Diftimulation and Difguife. ACCUMBERE, to lie upon Couches for eating, to fit down, to feat your felf at Table, as the Greeks did, and in imitation of them the Romans. For at the beginning the Romans did eat fitting at a Table as we do, before the Grecian Luxury and Softness had corrupted them, as may appear from this Verfe Perpetuis feliti patres confiftere menfis.

But afterwards they were wont to eat after the fashion of the Greeks. For this end, in a lofty Hall a Table was fix'd, of a round or oval Figure, which the richer fort made of fome preclous Wood, adorn'd with Plates of Gold and Silver, or rather inlaid with fome pieces refembling Mother of Pearl: this Table was matter, which represented the figures of divers Animals: round about it were plac'd two or threeCouches, from whence it was call'd Biclinium and Triclinium: these Conveniencies for leaning at Table were cover'd with richer or meaner Stuffs, according to the Quality of the Perthey might lye more foft and eafily upon them. They did commonly place no more than three apon a Couch, and to lay a greater number upon it, was accounted a fign of fordid Avarice, as Horace tells us.

Sapè tribus ledis, videas canare quaternos.

their Heads rais'd up with Pillows: He who fill'd the middle place was in that which is most honourable, as we learn from Virgil, - Aulais jam se regina superbis

Aurea composuit sponda, mediamque locavit. He who was at the head held the fecond place. and the third was at the lower end, or in the last place. They went into a Bath before they plac'd themselves at Table, and chang'd their Cloths, putting on a Garment which they called Veftis canatoria, and putting off their Shoes that they might not dirty the Beds. They bound about their Heads Fillets of Wool, to prevent the Distempers of the Head, which the Fumes of Meat and Wine might cause: for which reason they used afterwards Garlands of Flowers. Their Women did not eat lying after this manner, fuch a Posture being esteem'd indecent and immodest in them, except at a Debauch, where they appear'd without any Shame or Modesty; yet in an antient Marble which is at Rome, we find the figure of a Woman lying at a Table upon a Bed as her Husband does; and Virgil also seems to attest this. when he represents Dide lying at Table at a Feast which she made upon the Arrival of Ænear, unless he means that she was already fmitten with Love with her new Guest.

ACCUSARE, (in the Law) to Accuse, to draw up or lay an Acculation, or Process. The antient Lawyers put a difference between thefe three words Postulare, Deferre and Accusare : for first leave was desired to lay an Action against one, and this was called Poftulare and Poftulatio : after this he against whom the Action was laid was brought before the Judg, which was call'd Deferre and nominis Delatio; and laftly the Acculation was drawn up, accufabatur.

The Accuser was obliged by the Law to sign his Accufation, at the head of which he plac'd the Name of the Conful, which fignified the Year, when the Romans reckon'd Years by their Confuls: he fet down also the Day, the Hour, and the Judg before whom he intended to profecute his Accufation. We learn from Tacitus supported with Feet of Ivery, or some other that the Accusers had two days given them to make their Complaint in, and the Accused three days to make his Defence; and that fix days were allow'd between them both to prepare themselves. From the very moment that any Person was accused of a Capital Crime that deserved Death he was stript of all his Marks of fons, and adern'd with Quilts and Pillows that Honour, and appear'd in a careless Habit: he was obliged to give Sureties that he would appear in Court when there was occasion, which if he did not, he was laid up in Prison to secure his Person. The Libel being drawn, the Accused was summoned to appear at three Market-days, in trinundinum; and he always came attended with his Neighbours and Friends | Success, the their own Negligence was the on who were concerned for him, and threw themfelves at the feet of the Magistrates and People to beg favour for him in case he were found guilty. If the Accused refus'd to appear, he was fummoned with the Sound of a Trumper before his House or Castle, and after the time allow'd was expir'd, he was condemn'd for Contumacy. The Accuser had two hours wherein to speak against the Accused, and three hours were granted to the Accused to make his Defence, which was measured by an Hout-glass of Water, called Cloffera, of which I shall give an account in its proper place; which made a Greek Orator fay to the Judg, when he had a mind to fignifie to him the Goodness of his Caufe, That he would beftow part of his Water on his Adversary, i. e. of his Time, which the Lex Pompeia, made by Pompey in his third Confulthip, allowed him for his Defence. If the Accufed was found guilty, Sentence was pronounced against him in these words, Videtur fecifie, i. e. he is attainted and convicted of baving committed the Crime: If, on the contrary, he was found not guilty, he was then declared innocent in thefe teims, Videtur non feciffe, i. e. he is cleared from all Suspicion of Guils. All thefe Circumstances which were observed in Accufations, are related by Cicero and Tacitus. But if it appeared by the Event, that the Accuser was a Calumniator, i. e. that he had faifly acvaricator, i. e. that he had betrav'd his Cause, to make way for the Criminal to escape and obrain Absolution; or at least, that he had defifted from and given over Profecution withand without a lawful Caufe, then he was fentenced by the Magistrate to suffer the same Punithment which the guilty Person deserv'd.

used in the Church of Rome at this day. An Incent-Box for burning Perfumes upon the Alrars of the Gods, and before the dead Bodies. The Rich, fays Horace, offer'd Boxes full of the finest Perfumes to their false Deities,

Et plenå supplex veneratur Acerra. grains of Incense into the Fire that burnt upon the Altars.

Seaman who was very careless, and always ar- Bellowing of a Bull. And because this River tributed the bad Success of his Voyages to the destroy'd all the Country round about by its Moon; from whence comes the Latin Proverb, frequent Inundations, Hercules confin'd it with-Accessed Lung, to signific a lazy and negligent in its Channel by cutting a Stream from it, fort of People, who always throw off the which is the Horn that he pluck'd off, and

ly Caufe of it.

ACETABULUM, a fmall antient Measure, which contained about the fourth part of an Hemine, being about two ounces and an half of either liquid or dry things, as Pline explains it towards the end of his twelfth book. This Measure held a Cup and an half, and anfwers to our Quartern; but is now more in use among Druggists and Apothecaries than Victuallers, both for Liquids and Solids.

It was also a kind of Spice-Box, which contained all forts of Spices, whereof the Antients used to make their Sauces, to season their Victuals together with Vinegar and Veriuice: It was made in the form of a Pyramid, and had feveral Drawers, wherein were put different forts of Spices, as Pepper, Nutmegs, &c.

ACHELOUS, a River whose Springhead rifes on Mount Pindus in Theffaly, and from thence croffes over Acarnania, which it separates from Etolia, and then dividing it felf into two Streams, it runs into the Gulph of Corinth. This River was called Thear, according to Stephanus, and afterwards Achelous, from one Achelous who came from Theffaly to inhabit in these parts, with Alemen the Son of Amphiarau, who kill'd his Mother Eryphile: (he is commonly called Afpri, and according to others Catochi.) He was, according to the Posts, the Son of the Ocean and the Earth, or of Thesis, cufed the other Party; or that he was a Pre- as Servins would have it, who makes him the Father of the Syrens. He wrestled with Hereules for the fair Deionira, whom her Father OEmis King of Calydon would not beltow in marriage upon any Man but him who was victorious in out the Leave of the Magistrate or the Prince, this kind of Exercise: Achelous, finding himself too weak, was put to his shifts, and changed himself sometimes into a Serpent, and sometimes into a Bull; but this avail'd him nothing. ACERRA, a little Por which held the for Hercules overcame him and pluck'd off one Incense and Perfumes for Sacrifices, such as are of his Horns, which the Naiades rook up, and now made in the form of a fmall Boat, and are having fill'd it with Fruits and Flowers they call'd it Cornucepia; the Horn of Plenty. He therefore being confounded with this Defeat. for shame hid his Head, that had lost a Horn. under the Waters of the River Theas. which ever fince bear his Name.

Strabo, lib. 10. interprets this Fable allegori-And the Poor, according to Lucian, were ex- cally, and fays, That Achelous is faid to be cufed for making a Bow, and throwing fome | changed into a Serpent, upon the account of the Course of that River, which is winding like a Serpent; and into a Bull, because the ACESSEUS, the Name of a certain Noise which the Waters make refembles the Blame from themselves, in case of any bad that became the Horn of Plenty, by reason of the Fertility of that Earth which was enrich'd for a long time after by the fat flime it left behind.

Virgil takes the Waters of the River Achelous for Water in general, in this Verse in the first Book of his Georgicks, Poculaque inventis Acheleia miscuit uvis.

Which gives fufficient ground to suppose, that Scaliger did not without reason affirm, That the Latin word Aqua came from a word like it in the antient Greek Language, from which the River Achelous took its name, viz. Aque and Aufr, lavare. Maximus Tyrius the Philosopher mentions also a Contest between this River and Hercules, who pluck'd off from it one Horn. whereof the Nymphs made theliHorn of Plenty, having fill'd it with Fruits and Flowers. Serwiss explaining this Verse of Virgil.

Corniger Helperidum fluvius regnater aquarum. fays. That the Floods were painted with Horns because of their winding Course, which twines about the Land like a Serpent. Thus the River Achelous was represented with Horns as well as the Po, whereof Virgil Speaks. Diedorus Siculus gives an account how this River falling down at first from Mount Pindus, ran over the Rocks and made a great Devastation in the Country whereupon Hercules opened a more large and united Channel, and so well water'd one Field with it that it became very fruitful. This is the Meaning of the Fable, and what Ovid has express'd in describing the Horn of Plenty,

Dum tenet, infregit : truncâque à fronte revellit. Naïades hoc pomis & odore flore repletum Sacrarunt, divefque mes bons copis cornu eft. Metamorph, lib. 9.

ACHERON or ACHERUNS, according to Plautus, a River of Hell, which Homer places in the Country of the Cimmerians, thinking that Country to be Hell; being a day's Journey from Circe, which is a Mountain in the Country of the Latins. Circe fpeaking to Uliffer when he embark'd in the Country of the Cimmerians, Navem quidem illic siftite in Oceane profundorum verticum. Ipfe autem in Plutonis eas demum obscuram, ubi in Acherentem fluunt, & Cocytus qui Stygie aque est emenatio. Servius explaining these words of Virgil, Tenebrofa palus Acheronte refufo, foems to confirm what Homer fays, and to place these dark Cavities and Rivers of Hell in the Country of Ita'y. All Geographers place the River Acheron in Epirus, which joins to Arcadia. Greeks was nothing but an Imitation of the Funerals of the Egyptians: For thus he discourses about them, Pratum verò & habitationem Defun-Borum confictam, effe locum juxta paludem Acheru-

Acherusiam paludem deportata in cryptie illic sitie depenunt; The Field which the Souls of the dead inhabit, is a place joining to the Morais of Acherula near the City of Memphis, whither the Egyptians carry the Bodies of the dead to inter them. Which gave occasion to the Fable, that the Souls of the dead pass'd the River Acheron in a Boat. This River is encompass'd on all fides with high Mountains, fo that the Sun never thines upon it: and this gave occafion to the Name of Acherm, which is deriv'd from the Greek words, an play, or from and pbo, i. e. the River of Anguish and Pain, or at . leaft obe to espenit geat, to be deprived of Joy and Pleasure, forasmuch as the Sun, which is the Father of Nature, never shines there. The Poets make this River the Son of Titan and the Earth, and fay that he was banished to Hell by

Jupiter for furnishing the Titans with Water in the War against the Gods. ACHILLES the Son of Peleur and Thetis: he was a very magnanimous Grecian Prince. whom his Mother dipt in the Waters of Styn while he was very young, and by this means made him invulnerable in all parts of his Body but his Heel, by which the held him when the dipt him. She caused him to be educated by Chiron the Centaur, a Man very skilful in the Noble Arts, as in Medicine, Musick and Drawing the Bow, who instructed him in these Sciences and Exercises with great Care, and fedhim only with Honey and the Marrow of Lyons and Boars, to make him the more flour and formidable. Themis, whom his Mother confulted about the Destiny of young Achilles, having forerold that he should be kill'd in the War which the Greeks were to undertake against the Trojans, to revenge the Rape of Helen by Paris the Son of King Priam, the address'd her felf to Nepsune, conjuring him to fink the Boat that carried that Princess; but this being deny'd, because the Decree of Destiny was inviolable, the refolv'd to fend him, under the Difguife of a Girl, into the Isle of Seyre, to the Court of King Lycomedes, that he might there be educated with his Daughters, and by this means be stoln away from the Greeks, and hindred from going to that Fatal War. While he fojourn'd there he became very intimate with the young Deidama, the King's Daughter, infomuch that fhe became big with child, and was brought to bed of a Son, who was call'd Pyrrhus, from the diffruited Name of Achilles who was called. Diodorus Siculus shews, that the Hell of the Pyrrhs by reason of his Hair, which was of a shining red colour. Nevertheless he was discover'd by Ulyffes and Diomedes, who landed on the Isle of Seyre in the habit of Merchants, and having exposed the Merchandize they had fiam : Plerasque enim & maximas Agyptiorum fu- brought with them to Sale at the King's Court. nerationes iftic veragi, dum cadavera per amnem which were nothing but Trinkets for Women with fome Arms: Abilles, the under his Difguife, never concern'd himfelf about the Trinkets, but presently seized upon the Arms, and thereby discover'd himself, and follow'd Ulysses to the War of Troy. Thetis his Mother feeing this fatal Necessity, obtain'd of Vulcan a Suit of Armour for him, so excellently temper'd that it was impenetrable. He fignalized himfelf at out of indignation against Agamemnon for robbing him of his Mistress Brifeis, he retir'd from the Grecian Camp, and laid down his Arms. which he would never take up again till the Death of his Friend Patroclus, who was kill'd by Heller, which did fo fenfibly touch him. that he return'd to the Camp, and reveng'd the death of his Friend upon Heller, by killing him and dragging his dead Body about the Walls of Troy; but he, falling in love with Polixine the Daughter of Priam, and having demanded her for his Wife, was treacherously flain by Paris with an Arrow shot at his Heel, which was the only place of his Body wherein he was mortal. Divine Honours were decreed to him after his Death to be performed upon his Tomb, and in obedience to the Oracle of Dodona, the Theffalians offer'd there every year a Sacrifice of two Bulls, one white and the other black, which they brought from their own Country, whither also they took care to bring Wood from Mount Pelion, and Water from the River Specchius, together with Garlands made of Flowers, which were called immortal because they never faded. Philostratus on the Picture of Achilles, and Quintus Calaber in lib. 3 of his Paralipomena, do not agree to all the Circumstances in the History of Achilles here related. The common Opinion is. That he was educated in the Island of Serro with the Daughters of King Lycomedes, which is the Sentiment of Hyginus. But Philostratus thinks that he was fent by his Father against the Island of Scyre, to revenge the Death of Thefens, whom Lycomedes had cruelly put to death. Paulanias in his Attica is of the fame Opinion, for he tells us, That Sopre was taken by Achilles, as well as the King Lycomedes, Quintus Calaber maintains that Apollo kill'd Achilles with an Arrow; Apollo, fays he, being angry at the infolent Answer which Achilles gave him, drew a Bow and shot him in the Heel with an Arrow, of which Wound he died: And Hyginus tells us, that Apollo, to give him this Wound, assumed the shape of Paris.

ACI

ACHOR, otherwise call'd Myagris or Myodes, the God of Flies, to whom the Greeks and Cyremiam facrific'd, to drive away the Flies which annoy'd them, and infected their Country. S. Gregory Naziauzen in his first Invective against miter, a People of Judea, made an Idol of him, Fruit. The Symptoms of this Poyfon are thefe whom they call'd Beelzebuth, i. e. the God of Flies. Pliny relates, that Hercules had been very much annoy'd by these Insects at Olympia. but after he had facrific'd to Jupiter, under the Name of 'Auton G., or, the Fly chafing God, they flew all away over the River Alphaus, and never annoy'd him more, nor any of those who facrific'd to him in the Temples built for him the Siege of Trey by many brave Exploits; but after he was plac'd among the number of the Gods : For Solinus tells us, that no Flies nor Dogs could ever enter into a Chappel built to Hercules at Rame by Offavoius Herennius.

ACIDALIA, an Epithet given to Venus, the Goddess of Love, because she was the cause of great Uneafiness and Vexation to those who were in Love. Some think that she was also fo call'd from a Fountain of that Name, wherein the Three Graces, which always attended her, us'd to bath themselves.

ACILIA, the Name of a very illustrious Roman Family, from which was descended the generous Conful Acilius Glabrie, to whom the People of Rome erected a Statue cover'd with Leaves of Gold, for having defeated the Army of Antiochus in the narrow passage of Tempe, and made a great flaughter of the Afiaticks. This Conful erected a Statue on horseback of pure Gold, which he plac'd in the Temple of Piety. and confecrated to the Memory of his Father. whose Effigies it was. This was the first Statue of that precious Metal that was ever feen at Rome, from the time of its first foundation.

ACINACES, a kind of Cutlass or Scimetre us'd among the Perfians.

ACNUA, a lort of Measure for Land, among the antient Measurers call'd otherwise Attus quadratus, which was a Square, whereof each fide was 26 foot long. which contain'd, as Authors tell us, the moiety of a Jugarum, or, of the Acre of the Latines. Voffins fays, that it is plainly read Acrus in the Manuscripts, yet he would have it read Acres, to give credit to his own Etymology, which derives it from the word ... argue or axwe, which is a Measure of twelve feer, as he himfelf tells us; he adds afterwards, that axwa fignifi'd also a Measure of 26 feer. but this he does not prove.

ACONITUM, Wolvesbane, an Herb very venomous, whereof there are many kinds, 'tis faid that its Name comes from Acone, a City of Bithynia, round about which it grows in great abundance. The Poets feign, that this Herb forung up from the Froth which the Dog Cerberus cast forth when Hercules drag'd him by force out of Hell; for which reason, great quantities of it are found near to Heracke of Pontus, where is the Cavern by which Hercules descended thither. 'Tis faid, that all its Venom is in Julian, calls him Accoron, because the Accaro- its Root; for there is no hurt in its Leaves or the Stomach, causes frequent breaking of wind backwards. Nevertheless the Antients us'd it as a Medicin against the biting of a Scorpion, the burning heat whereof, the bare touch of Wolvesbane did presently extinguish.

ACONTIUS, a young Man of the Isle of Ces. who coming one day to Delos to the Sacrifice of Diana, fell in love with the fair Cydippe; but fearing a Denyal, if he should defire her in Marriage, upon the account of the inequality of his Birth and Fortune, he contriv'd this Stratagem to win her; he wrote these two Verfues upon an Apple, Juro tibi fane per myftica facra Diana.

Me tibi venturam comitem [ponfamque futuram and then threw the Apple at the Feet of Cydippe, who taking it up, read thefe Verfes, and bound herfelf to the Oath which was upon it. Whereupon every time she had a mind to marry. she was presently taken dangerously sick, which fhe interpreted to be a just Punishment for the Violation of her Faith, and therefore to appeale Diana, the married Acontius.

ACRATES, the Genius or Demon of the Bacabantes, whose Mouth only was represented in Figures, as Poulanies tells us.

ACRISIUS, the last King of the Argiver, and the Brother of Pratus, to whom he succeeded, according to Eufebius. He understanding by the Oracle that he was to be kill'd by a Son of his Daughter Dance, faut her up in a Tower of Brais, to preferve himfelf from this Mischief. But Jupiter falling in love with this unfortunate Princels, found a way to come at her; for he changing himfelf into a shower of Gold, unaccountably pass'd through the Tiles of the House, and she was found with child of a Son, who was call'd Perfew. Acrifine being inform'd of this, caus'd his Daughter, with her Child, to be float up in a Cheft, and commanded them both to be cast into the Sea: The Cheft fwimming for fome time upon the Water, was at last thrown up upon the life of Sociebe, where Polydestes reign'd, who receiv'd them graciously, and fell in love with Dance : But the refuting to agree to his love, and yield herfelf up to his passion, he resolv'd at last to and in Buildings, the Turrets or Battlements force her; and the better to cover his Delign, he remov'd her Son Perfew a great way off, and fent him to the Gorgenes, with an Order to bring back to him the Head of Medula, that he might make a Present of it to his Mistress Hippedamia, hoping that Perfess would be kill'd in this Enterprize, and then he should be in a condition to prevail with his Mother to condescend to his Delires. But things fell out quite otherwife than he imagin'd; for Rerfew by good luck return'd fafe from this Expedition, brought back the Head of Medufa, and was married in

Te makes the Eyes water very much, oppresses his Voyage to Andromeda, whom he deliver'd from the Sea-Monster, which was just ready to devour her. He returning to Argo with his new-married Spoule, to prefent her before Acrifiu, his Grandfather, found him celebrating Funeral-Games: whereupon he having a mind to exercise himself with throwing a Bar of Iron. it happen'd unluckily that the Bar hit against Acrifius's his Leg, and gave him a Wound. whereof he died in some days after; and thus the Oracle was fulfill'd.

ACROBATES, a fort of Dancers upon the Rope. We learn from Boulanger, in his Treatife of Dancers on the Rope, that there were Four forts of 'em: The First were those who vaulted about a Rope, as a Wheel turns about its Axeltree, and hang'd upon it by the Feet or the Neck. Nicephorus Gregora fays, that in his time these Dancers vaulting about a Rope were to be seen at Constantinople. The Second fort of them were those who flew from a high place down to the ground upon a Rope, which fupported their Breast, their Arms and Legs being extended. Of these Manilius Nicetas, and Vopifeut speak in the Life of Carmus. The Third fort were those who are mention'd by the same Manilius, who run upon a floping Rope, or came down it. from a higher to a lower place. The Fourth fort were those who not only walk'd upon a diffended Rope, but jump'd high, and cut Capers upon it as a Dancer would do upon the ground at the found of a Flute: And of this kind Sympefius is to be understood.

ACROSTOLIUM, a kind of Ornament for a Ship, made in the form of a Hook, which was plac'd at the end of the Stem or Stern: To these may be compar'd those polish'd and sharp pieces of Iron resembling the Neck of a Duck, which the Venetiams use at the Stem of their Gondoles. It may also be that Ornament of a Stern, which they call'd Anserculus, a little Goofe, whereof Bayfius gives us the Figure like the Head of a Goofe.

ACROTERIA, anesticue, the extremities of any thing: This word in Greek fignifies generally any extreme part; fuch as are in Animals, the Nofe, the Ears, and the Fingers: of Houses, and the little Pedestals on which Statues were plac'd, and which were scituate at the middle, and the two Extremities of a Frontispiece, or the Statues of Earth or Copper, which were plac'd on the top of Temples to adorn 'em; in Ships, this word fignifies the Beaks, which are call'd Roftra; they are also Promontories, or high places which are feen afar

ACTA, which has in the Genitive Alla. Cicero and Virgil use this word, speaking of a Meadow pleasant for its greenness; and Vollius thinks that it must only be us'd in speaking of | mies Ships; he increas'd also the Pomp of the Sicily, as these two Authors did.

ACTA PUBLICA, the Records or publick Registers, wherein were written what concern'd publick Affairs, to preferve the Memory of 'em. fet down what passes every day.

ACTA CONSISTORII, the Edits, the Declarations of the Council of State of the Emperors, which were express'd in these Terms: IMPERAT. DIOCLESIANUS ET MAXI-

MIANUS A. A. 'IN CONSISTORIO DIXERUNT: DECURIONUM FILII NON DEBENT BESTIIS OBJICI.

The August Emperors Dioclesian and Maximian. in Council declar'd; That the Children of the Decurions ought not to be exposed to wild Beafls in the Amphitheatre.

The Senate and Soldiers fwore often, either through Flattery or by Compulsion upon the Edicts of the Emperors. Tacitus tells us, that Ners raz'd the Name of Apidius Meru'a out of the Register of the Senators, because he would not fwear upon the Acts of the Emperor Augustus.

ACTEIUS, one of the fix envious and malign Demons, whom the Greeks call Telchines. who bewitch Men out of their fense, and of whom fabulous Antiquity would make us believe, that they sprinkle the Earth with the infernal Stygian Water, from whence arose Peflience, Famin, and other publick Calamiries.

ACT EON, the Son of Arifleus, and Automore the Daughter of Cadmus, who was brought up in the School of Chirm the Centaur. He was a great lover of Hunting, and continually follow'd this Sport One day as he was purfuing a Hart, he fpy'd Diana bathing her felf with her Nymphs: But the Goddels enrag'd to be feen in that condition, threw Water upon him. which chang'd him into a Hart, and afterwards he was torn in pieces by his own Dogs. Paulanias mentions a Fountain of Aftern near Mgara, on the fide whereof the Hunter was wont often 177. 9. to repose himself when he was tyred with the Chafe; and there it was that he faw Diana bathing her felf.

Platarch mentions another Aftern, the Son of Meliflus, a Corinthian, who was carryed away by force, and whom his Friends tore in pieces while they endeavour'd to recover him out of the hands of his Kidnappers.

ACTIACA VICTORIA, the Atliac Victory which Jugustus obtain'd over Mark Antony near the Party, and drugs him before a Court of Justice, the Promontory and City of Allium. This with a great Noise on both sides. The Verses pre-Prince to perperuate the Memory of that Vi- ceding these discover that he had fail'd to ap-Ctory to Posterity, built the City Nicopolis, i. e. the City of Victory; he adorn'd with great ration. But because this kind of Proceeding Magnificence the old Temple of Apollo, where-folemn Games, call'd Ladi Alliaci, which were celebrated every fifth Year in Honor of this God, after the manner of the Olympic Games: Stephens would have 'em observ'd every Third ACTA DIURNA, a Diurnal, wherein is Year, and thinks they confifted of a Race by Sea and Land, and Wreftling.

ACTIUM, a City and Promontory of Epirus. a place famous for the Defeat of Anteny and all the Forces of the East, by Cafar-Augustus, who built there a new City, call'd Nicepelis, i. e. the City of Victory.

ACTIO, (in the Law) an Action in a Court of Justice, a Process entred either by the Prosecutor or the Defendant. There were many Formalities observ'd in judicial Actions that were commenc'd against any Person: First, A Petition must be presented to the Judg, to have leave to bring the Person before him : The Judg anfwer'd this Petition by writing at the bottom of it, Attimem do, I give leave to bring him : On the contrary, he wrote Actionen non de, when he deny'd the Petition. All Actions. especially Civil and Pecuniary, commenc'd after the Petition was prefented, by a Citation or fummoning the Party, which is call'd in Law Vocatio in jus, and in jus vocare. This was antiently done viva vote by the Party himfelf. who meeting him against whom he intended to bring his Action, declared his Intention to him, and commanded him immediately to go before a Magistrate and make his Defence : if he would not go willingly, he might force and drag him along against his will, unless he gave Security to appear at a day agreed upon : but if he fail'd to appear at the day appointed, then the Plaintiff, whenfoever he met him, might take him along with him by force, calling any By-flanders to bear witness, by asking them, Vis anteftari, who prefently turn'd their Ear towards him, in token of their Confent to do it. This Horace expresses in these Verses in his Satyr against the Impertinent, lib. r. Sa-- Cafu venit obvius illi

Adver arius. Et quò tu, turpi fime? magna Exclamat voce : Et licet unteffari. Ego verò

Oppone auriculam: rapit in jus; clamer utring; By chance, fays Horace, be meets bis Adverfary, and crys to him with a loud voice. Whither art then flying, thou infamous Fellow? and then addreffing himself to me, he prays me to bear witness, whereupon I turn my Ear to him; and then be feines upon; pear at the day and hour appointed by the Ciwas attended with fome fort of Outrage and in he dedicated the Beaks or Roftra of the Ene- Violence, therefore Persons of Honour who were advanced to any Dignity, were not thus to be fummoned into Court without defiring express leave of the Magistrate by a Petition. as we have remarked before. Afterwards this manner of proceeding was changed, and that other introduced of fummoning the Parry by a Sergeant and a Writ, per Libellum, which they call in Law Libellum Conventionis, a Writ of Summons. This Writ was to contain the Pretenfions of the Profecutor, that the other Party being made acquainted with them, might either resolve to satisfie them, or else come prepar'd to defend himfelf. And fo the Summons was to express the Cause of Action, i. e. to contain the Complaint of the Profecutor, which they called edere Actionem.

ACTOR (upon the Theatre) an Affor; one who acts a Part, and represents some Perfon in a Tragedy or Comedy. In former times many Regulations were made about their Salary, and for punishing those who indule'd themselves in too great a Liberty. The chief of them, as Tacitus tays, were these, That a Senator could not visit them at their Houses, nor a Roman Knight walk with them in the Street ; That they could not act but upon a publick Theatre. The Senate had a mind to give the Prater a Power of chastifing the Actors with Rods: But Haterius Agripps, the Tribune of the People, oppos'd it, and by his Opposition gain'd the point: because Augustus had declar'd the Actors violate his Orders.

ACTOR, (in the Law) He who has an Action against another, he who prosecutes another in a Court of Judicature.

ACTOR, the Name of one of Hercules's Companions in the War against the Amazans. He was married to the Nymph Egina, the Mistress of Jupiter, by whom he had Menetius, who was the Father of Patreclus, who from thence was call'd Attorides.

ACTUARIOLUM and ACTUARIUM NAVIGIUM, a Brigantine, a little Veffel at Sea, very light for failing or rowing.

ACTUARIUS, a Netary or Scribe, Who in former times wrote very swiftly at the Bar the Pleadings of the Advocates, and for that Abbreviations to fignifie a whole word.

ACTUARII PALI, Stakes, which were fet up in a piece of Ground of twenty fix feet, which was the Length of one of the fides of the Measure for Land, which the Latins call'd

Attus quadratus.

ACTUM EST (a Phrase antiently used in the Comick Poets) 'Tis done, there is no Re-cannot be helpt.

ACTUM AGIS, Tis loft labour, this is to begin a thing after 'tis done withal.

ACTUS, a piece of Ground of 120 feet. There were three forts of this Meafure : Attus minimus, the least, which contained 120 feet in Length, and four only in Breadth; the fecond which they call Affus quadratus, a Square. had 120 feet every way; and the third was a double Square, being 240 feet long, and 120 broad, which made an Acre of Ground, or as much as a Yoke of Oxen could plough in a day.

ACTUS, on At; the name of certain Divisions which are made in Dramatic Poems. to give some Respite to the Actors and Spectators. Comedies fometimes confifted of three Acts, but generally of five.

ADAD, the Worship which was given to Adad, i. e. to the Sun, was eafily transfer'd to Adad the King of Spris, and the Founder of many Temples dedicated to the Sun in the City of Damas, as Josephus tells us. Some think that the Prophet Isaish speaks of this Worship of the Sun under the name of Ached: for the Hebrew word Achad is the same with the Chaldee Adad, and it fignifies unicus, i. c. One.

only, which agrees to the Sun.

ADDICERE, (a Term of the Roman Law) to adjudge a piece of Land, or an Inheritance to any person. Licetur Ebutius, deterrentur emptores partim gratia, partim pretio, funexempt from whipping, and Tiberius would not | dus addictor Ebutio ; Æbutius bid money, the Buyers were hindred by Favour and Money, whereupon the Land was adjudg'd to Æbutius for the Price he had offer'd. The Custom was then, as it is at this day, not to adjudge a piece of Land to any Person upon the first Offers that are made, but to prescribe a certain time for admitting Buyers to come in, which being expir'd, the thing was adjudg'd for the Price that was offer'd. And upon this account 'tis commonly faid at this day, Tis adjudg'd, faving the eighth or fifteenth day, i. e. provided that in eight or fifteen days no more is offer'd. Ille fundus centumq:efto tibi emptus, fi quis intra Calendas Januarias proximas meliorem conditionem non fecerit. quo res à domino abeat ; This Land shall be yours for an hundred Crowns, provided another do not end used Cyphers, or fingle Letters, or certain give more for it before the first day of January. ADDICERE, (an Augural Term) to approve, to authorize an Enterprize. After the Augurs had confulted the Will of the Gods by the Flying of Birds, if the Signs were favourable, they answer'd thus, Id addicunt aves. the Gods favour this Enterprize. Cum omnium Sace lorum exaugurationes admitterent aves, in Termini fano non addixere ; The Birds having approv'd the Prophanation of all the other Temples, did not ACTUM NE AGAS, 'Tis done withal, it approve of this Prophamation in the Chappel of the God Terminus.

ADDICTIO

ADDICTIO, a Judgment for deliver- | (a Term belonging to Sacrifices) to burn Ining the Goods of the Debtor into the hands of his Creditor, when he had not fatisfied him according to the Sentence of the Prater, who condemn'd him to pay the Debt : for then the Judg, by a fecond Sentence, deliver'd over him and all his Family into the hands of his Creditor.

ADEONA, an antient Deity, worship'd by the Romans, as St. Auftin tells us, the enabled People to walk, ADIGERE ARBITRUM, or Arbitrium or ad Arbitrum, and ad Arbitrium, (Forms of Speech which were used by the antient Lawyers) to constrain, to force, to oblige one to submit to Arbitrators. They used also to fay, Adigere aliquem in sua verbs per jusjurandum, to oblige a Perlan to take his Oath.

ADJICIALIS COENA and ADJICIALES EPULÆ, a folemn Banquet or Feast which the Romans made at the Confectation of their Pentifices, or on a Day of Publick Rejoicing.

ADDIR, Pater Magnificus, this Word is often attributed to God : even the Philistines

Egypt with many Plagues.

ADMETUS, a King of Theffals, who entertain'd Apollo, when he was driven out of Meaven by Jupiter, to take care of his Flocks. In acknowledgment of this Favour, he affifted Admetus in his Amours with Alceftis, Daughter to King Pelias, who refolv'd never to bestow her in marriage but to one who should have a Chariot drawn by two disproportion'd Animals. Apelle therefore furnish'd him with a Lyon and a Bear to draw the Chariot wherein he was to carry off Alcestis. This God obtained also of the Parce, or three fatal Sifters, that he should die by Proxy, and fo, when he fell dangerously ill, his Wife died in his flead. But Hercules, going down to Hell, brought her back again, and restor'd her to her Husband : or Proferpins her felf restor'd her to Life again. being mov'd by the Complaints of Admetus for loting her.

ADMISSIVE AVES, Birds of a happy Omen, which approv'd of an Enterprize : on the contrary, they were called Arcule Aves, when they discouraged and disapprov'd it.

ADOD, Philo Bibles, explaining the Theology of Sanchoniathm, fays, that Adad is the King of Gods, "AANS G. Banadis Sin. The Kings of Syria Mum'd this Name: for Josephus recites the words of Nicelas of Damafcus the Historian, when he mentions Adad King of Syria and Damascus. Josephus also fays, that Adad King of Syria, and Hazael his Son, received Divine Honours for adorning the City of Damascus with magnificent Temples. See Adad. ADOLERE and ADOLERE THURA cense upon the Altars of the Gods, to pay them Divine Honours.

ADOLESCENS, and ADULESCENS. young Man, who is not yet past the age of growing. They commonly reckon'd this Age from twelve years to twenty five for Boys, and to twenty one for Girls. But if we confider the Use of this word among the Antients, we shall find that they used indifferently the word Adelescens and Juvenis, for such as were not yet forty five years old. Cicere lib. 2. ep. 2. calls Carse adelescens, who was more than thirty years old. In lib. 2. de Oratere, he fays, that there were fome Works of Lucius Craffus which he wrote in his Youth, & es ipfa adolescentem seripta reliquisse. Sallust calls Cafar adolescentulum; when he obtained the Pontificate, and he was then at least thirty five years of age. Valerius Maximus calls Scipio Æmilianus admedum adolescentem. who was more than thirty four years old. And laftly, Gicero calls Brutas and Caffus adolescentes, in the year of their Prætorship, i. e. in the fortieth year of their age. All which Pafthemselves gave him this Name for smiting sages plainly prove, that it was not only in Writing that this word was afed for one fo far advanced in years.

ADONIS, the Fair Admis, born of the incestuous Conjunction of Cinarus King of Cyprus and his own Daughter Myrrhs. Vonus and Proferring fell both in love with Admis, and the former descended often upon Mount Libanus to fee him, but Proferpine transported him into Hell: but afterwards, being mov'd by the Tears of Venue, the gave him to her for one half of the Year, and the other half he remain'd in Hell. The Worship of Admis and Venus his Mother, fays Macrobias, was very antient and famous among the Affrians or Caldeans, who were the first Astrologers in the World, and from them it passed to the Phanicians. Admis is the Sun, who during the fix fuperiour Signs of the Summer is with Venus, i. e. in that Hemifphere of the Earth which we inhabit ; and, during the other fix inferiour Signs of the Winter, is with Proferpine, i. e. in the inferiour Hemisphere of the Earth which is inhabited by our Antipodes. Thefe are the Physical Reasons of the Earth's alternative Sadness and Joy, according as the Sun retires from it in Winter, as if it fell into the hands of Death or Proferpins: or approaches nearer to it during the Summer, as if Proferning had restored it to Venus. When the Poets feign'd that a wild Boar gave Adonis his Deaths-wound, they defign'd by that to represent the Rigor of the Winter. Ammianus Marcellinus fays, that the Mysteries of Adonis represented the Corn. which is hid fix months under ground, before the time of Harvest approaches; wherein he docs only transfer the Mysteries of the Sun to the Corn, which is a Symbol of it. St. Cpril, Archbishop of Alexandria, relates at large, in his Commentaries upon Haush, the History or Fable of the Greek Boers about Admis; That Ginarus being paffonately manneur'd with the Charms of his Daughter Myrrha, had a Son by her of extracrdinary Beauty, called Adonis, with whom the lasciraione Venus fell in love; but Mars, being jealous of ber, transformed himfelf into a Bear, and kill'd Adonis at a Hunting Chace. Wheremon Vemus descended into Hell to fetch him back again. but Proferpina would not releafe bim : Yet at laft, being moved with Compassion for her Tears, they a alternatively for one half of the Year. This is the accasion of the Grief and Joy that appear at the Reflivals of Adonis. This Father adds. That it was this fort of Uncleanness which the Jews imitated, of which Exclaiel frenks when be fan, the Women lamented Thammus, which is Adonis, Exponitur mitem Thommus, Adonis ; And that the Letters and Meffengers mentioned by Ifaiah, are nothing elfe but the Letters and Meffengers which the Ginies of Egypt fent interchangeably to one another, tagive metice that Adonis was found again : Quod ubi illa famina Veneris amica, and cum Epiftela vaganiffent, perinde at ft reperson fulfet à l'enere Admis, helium ponobant.

ADONIA SACRA, the Mysteries and Secrifices of Admis, which were celebrated every year at Byblis, in the great Temple of Hemus: for in this Country, fays Lucien, in his Des Spris, he was kill'd by a Boar, and in memory of this Misfortune every year a publick Mourning was observed, at which the People beat themselves, and lamented, (and celebrate his Funerals as if he had been dead, tho on the next day his Refurrection was folemnized, because, they say he slew into Heaven,) they shave their Heads as the Egypeians do at the death of their Ox Apis. The Women, who will not be flav'd, are forc'd to proftitute themselves a whole day to Strangers, and the Money they get by that Debauch is confecrated to the Goddess. There is also another wonderful thing in this Country, a River, which goes by the Name of Adonis and descends from Libenss into the Sea, changes its colour at certain times, and dyes the Sea as red as Blood; which is look'd upon as a Miracle, this being the time which is dedicated to the Celebration of the Mysteries of Admir, because 'tis believ'd that then he was wounded in the Forest of Li-banus. ADOPTARE, to Adopt, to take a Stranger, and incorporate him into your Family, to take him for your Son, to delign him for your taken from that of his own Father. 'Twas a. Custom to pur the Children who were adopted under a Mantle or Gown, fays Furetiere in his Diftionary, as if they would thereby represent that they were the proper Children of those who had adopted them. And from thence came the Cultom of putting Natural Children under an Umbrella when they are legitimated at a Marriage.

A DO

ADOPTIO, Adoption, an act by which any one is adopted. The Custom of Adopting was very common among the Reman, yet it was not practis'd, but for certain Caufes express'd in the Laws, and with certain Formalities usual in fuch Cases. He that would adopt any Perfon, was to have no Children of his own, or to be past the Age of getting any. In the Infancy of the Republick he was to address himself to the Pontifices, that he might have leave according to Law. This Right of the High-Priests lasted but a little while, and after that application made to the People to obtain it, in the presence of his Father who was to be adopted, to whom the Question was put, Whether he would abandon his Son, together with the full extent of his paternal Authority, and furrender up the power of Life and Death over him, which Question was call'd Adregatio. The ufual Form upon fuch occasions was this; Velitis jubeatis, ati L. Valerius Licio Titio tam lege jureque filius fibi fiet, quam fi ex co patre matreque familiae ejus natus effet, utique et vita necifque in cum potestas fiet uti pariundo filio eft. Hoc ita, ut dini, its wes, quirites rege. In the last Age of the Republick, when it was just expiring, Adoptions were made by the Sovereign Authority of the Emperors, who granted that Privilege even to Women who had no Children, by their Letters of Concession, the words whereof were thefe : Queniam in felatium amifferum tuerum filierum cupis privignum tuum vicem legitime fobolis obtinere, annuimus votis tuis, & eum perinde atque ex te progenitum ad vicem naturalis legitimique filii habere permittimus, Imper. Dioclesianus & Maximianus A. A. "Since, for your comfort. " under the Loss of your Children, you desire " to adopt your Son-in-Law, we grant your " Request, and permit you to take him for your " natural and lawful Son. Adoptions also were practis'd in their last Wills, either as for Name or Goods ; In ima cera C. Offavium etiam in familiam numenque adoptavit; "He adopted into "his Family, and to bear his Name C. Offavius " in the last page of his Will. Titus Livius, tells us, that Gecilius adopted Atticus when he was dying by his last Will, Gecilius moriens testamento Atticum adoptavit. Those who were adopted affum'd the Name and Sir-Heir. He who was adopted was enter'd under Name of him who adopted them, and to dethe Paternal Power of the Adopter, and was a note their Family and Birth, they added only they were descended; or the Sirname of their privateFamily, with this difference nevertheless, fays Lipfius, that if they us'd this Sirname, they made an Adjective of it: As for instance, M. Junius Brutus being adopted by 2. Servilius Capio Agale, he assum'd all these Names, and retain'd only the Sirname of his own Family, calling himfelf 2 Servilius Capio Agalo Brutus. Offavius, on the contrary, retain'd the Name of his House, and chang'd it into an Adjective, calling himfelf C. Julius Cefar Offavianus, which vet did not hinder but they might retain the Sirname which they had affum'd, as Atticus did, who being adopted by 2. Cecilius, was Sirnam'd Q. Cacilius Pomponianus Atticus, or acquire a new one by their brave Exploits, as Offavius did . who was afterwards firnam'd Augustus. 'Tis with reference to this Rule of Adoption, that we must understand what Suetonius says of Tiberius, That be being adopted by M. Gallius. a Senator, took possession of his Goods, but would not assume his Name, because he was a contrary Party to Augustus. Tacitus, Lib. XV. Cap. 8. of his Amals, tells us of the feign'd Adoptions which were condemn'd by the Senate : A pernicious Cuftom, fays he, was introduc'd, of making many feign'd Adoptions, when the time drew near of chusing Magistrates, and dividing the Provinces among them by Let ; for when they had obtain'd their Offices and Employments, they emancipated those whom they had adopted : Whereupon the Perfons aggriev'd came and made their complaint to the Senate, alledging the Law of Nature, and the trouble of Education against these short and fraudulent Adoptions : And therefore it was ordain'd, That for the future no regard should be had to thele Adoptions, either in Offices or in Successions to an Inberitance.

ADO

ADOR, or ADUS, a kind of Corn which was ninally offer'd to the Gods at their Sacrifices. The word comes from 'Asie, srifts, changing the f into &, as from Oeds, comes Deus ; or from the word ed, whence it came to pass, that they faid formerly Edor for Ador, according to Festus, or lastly from adure, because it was roasted.

ADOREA, the Goods of this World, in Planfus and Varro ; Glery, Houser, and Riches, in Solinus and Apuleius; a Prefent which was made to Soldiers when they were victorious, according to Pliny; and Victory it felf and Triumph, according to this Verse of Horace, Lib. 4. Od. 4. Ille dies qui primus alma risit Adorea.

a Day celebrated upon the account of the first Victory obtain'd by the Romans over Hannibal.

ADORARE, to adore; a kind of Worthip which the Romans gave to their Deities, by putting their Hand to their Mouth and kiffing it, as we learn from Pliny, Adorare, manum ad or admovere. The Romans ador'd their Gods at the end the Name of the Family from which | both standing and kneeling, with their Heads cover'd : and after they had turn'd to the right hand and gone round about their Statues and Altars, they profrated themselves before them. and lifted up their Hand to their Mouth and kifs'd ir. Saturn was the only God whom they ador'd with an uncover'd Head, that being a Custom which they learned from the Greek; which gave occasion to Festus to fay, Lucem facere Saturno facrificantes, i. e. capita detegere, to uncover the Head when they facrifice to him. And we are inform'd by Apuleius, in his Saturnalia, that it was accounted a strange Custom to facrifice to this God with a bare Head, Hine eff quod ex instituto peregrino, buic deo sacrum aperto capite faciunt: For 'tis certain that the Romans did never facrifice to their Gods, but with their Head cover'd, and their Face veil'd, for fear lest in this principal Action of Religion, they should either be diverted by the fight of an Enemy, or distracted by some Objects, or inter-rupted by some sinister Omen. This we learn from Virgil, Lib. 3. Eneid. V. 403. "For " when your Ships are come into the Harbour, fays the Sibyl to him, and you have erected Altars by the River fide to facrifice to the Gods, cover your Head and your Face with a purple Veil, for fear lest in the time of facrificing, you fhould be interrupted by the the presence of some Enemy: Remember always to adore the Gods after this manner, and command your Posterity to observe the fame wav. Quin ubi transmissa steterint trans equera classes, Es positis aris jam vota in littere selves ; Purpureo velare comas adopertus amilia: Ne qua inter fancios ignes in honore Deorum. Hoftilis facies occurrat, & emina turbet. Hunc focii morem facrorum, hunc ipfe teneto, Hac westri maneaut in religione nepotes.

Aurelius Victor also tells us the same in his Abridgment of the Remen History, where speaking of Eneas, he relates, That this Trojan Prince facrificing by the Sea-fide, perceiv'd the Navy of the Grecians approaching, wherein was Ulyffer, and fearing left the fight of his Enemy should disturb him in this Action, he cover d his Face, and so ended his Sacrifice, without one minutes interruption.

In the Second place, The Romans turn'd to the Right Hand round about the Statues of their Gods, and their Altars. Plautus, in his Curculie, makes Phadromus fay, Quo me vertam nescio? I know not to which side to turn me. Palimirus answer'd him, playing upon the word, Si deos Salutas, dextro verfum cenfeo, " If you "mean to adore the Gods, I advise you to "turn to the Right; alluding tothe Cuftom of the Romans, of turning to the Right when they worthip their Gods. Pliny confirms the fame thing; "When we adore the Gods, fays " he, we carry our Hand to our Mouth, and we turn round about the Altar, In aderande dextram ad ofculum referimus, totumque corpus circumagimus. In the following Times they prostrated themselves before their Gods, which is the most humble manner of adoring them. Titus Livius, speaking of the Carthaginian Ambaffadors, tells us, That when they arriv'd at the Roman Camp, and came into the General's Tent, they prostrated themselves at his Feet. in the posture of those who adore the Gods, More adorantium procubuerunt; from whence come these Latin Phrases, Advolvi aris, Procumbere ad aras, "To proftrate themselves at "the feet of the Altars. The proud and haughry Emperors exacted the like Adorations from those who came to make their Reverence to them; but the wife and modest Emperors rejected this kind of Adoration, as did the Emperor Alexander, by the relation of Lampridius as well as Maximianus, who faid, " God forbid that any one should adore me, " by proftrating himfelf before me; Dii probibeant ut quifquam ingenverum pedibus meis ofcu-

ADORATI IMBRES, Sen. Diffributions, The Largesses which the Emperor gave to the People of Rome, which descended like a Shower of Gold, for which they returned Thanks, by Adoration and very submissive bowing before them.

ADRIANUS, furnam'd Elim. Adrian whom Trajan adopted, and who was the Son of Elius Adrian his Coufin-German. At his accession to the Empire, being willing to gain the good Will of the Senate, took a folemn Oath, That he would not punish any of that Body, but by a Sentence of their own. He remitted all the Arrears of Taxes and Revenues which were due from private Persons either to himself or the publick Treasury of the Empire. He burnt publickly the Bonds of some private Men to the value of Two Millions of Gold. He persecuted the Christians outragionsly, until Quadratu and Ariftider, two Christian Philosophers, allay'd the Fierceness of his Rage, by their Apologies written in Favour of the Christians, which prevail'd so far with him, that he wrote to the Governours, forbidding them to munish the Christians for their Religion. The Jews, in his time, shook off the Yoak of the Remans, under the Conduct of a notable Impostor, call'd Barchechebas, i. e. the Son of a Star, who call'd himself the Star of Jacob, foretold in the Scriptures, who was to deliver their Nation. The Cause of this Revolt was the Temple of Jupiter, which Adrian had caus'd to be built overagainst the Ruins of Whether he would submit to it? See Arregathe Temple of Jernfalem. Adrian having no- tie and Arregare. tice of it, fent fome Troops to Rufus the Governour of Spria, wherewith he defeated the Rebels in many Battels: Those who remain'd after the Defeat, were fold as Slaves at a very mean rate, and were never fuffer'd to return again to Jerusalem, whose Name Adrian chang'd. and call'd it Elia Capitolina. He caus'd alfo, fays Eufebius, to be plac'd in bas relief, upon the Gate of Bethlehem, the Figure of a Swine. which was an Animal that was most abhorr'd by that Nation, either to fignifie the Impurity of this People, or to denote that they were now fubject to the Yoak of the Remans, who had a Swine for one of their military Signs; or lastly, to shew the Contempt he had for their Religion. The Emperor being not yet farisfied with this mark of Slavery, built also a Temple in Honour of Venus on Mount Calvary. and another to Jupiter in the place from whence our Saviour ascended, and a Third to Adonis in Bethlehem, where the Son of God was born. which continued there until the time of the Emperor Constantine. Adrian was feiz'd with a Bloody-Flux, whereof he dyed with intolerable Pain, after he had reign'd Twenty Years and Eleven Months. He was a Prince endow'd with excellent Qualities both of Mind and Body; he affected much the Reputation of being learned, and Writing well. The Books of his Life which he publish'd under the Name of Phlegen his freed Man, do plainly prove this. Photies fays, that he had feen Declamations of his making, whose style was easie and agreeable. A little before he gave up the Ghoft, he compos'd some Verses, wherein he address'd himself to his Soul, and speaks of its Departure: He wrote also a long Letter against the Physicians, whom he accuses of having hasten'd his Death. By the knowledg he had of Aftrology. he has left us a Journal of all things which were to happen unto him, being besides mightily addicted to the Superstitions of Magick. The Senate were upon the point of abrogating all that he had done, and hindering him to be rank'd among the Gods; but Antoninus, his Successor. prevented it, and built him a Temple at Puteoli. founded a College of Priests to facrifice to him. and appointed Games to be observ'd every Fifth Year in Honour of him. ADROGATIO, and ADROGARE.

(Terms of the Roman Law) Interrogation, a Demand made in the presence of the People for Adoptions. It was ask'd of the Father of him who was to be adopted, Whether he confented that his Son should pass under the Power of another to be his Son, and of him who was to adopt him? Whether he confented to do it? An wellet eum quem adoptaturus effet, justum sibi fi-lium esfe? And of the Son, An id fieri pateretur?

ADSERERE aliquem manu, To fet one Adoptions, to affume the Name of the Famiat liberty, To give him his liberty. It was one of the antient ways of granting liberty to Slaves. To take him by the hand and fav. Hunc manu affero, or Liberali causa manu affere, & affero manu in libertatem, I declare him free.

ADTESTATA fulgura, Redoubled Thunder, which feems by the redoubling of the noife, to confirm the good or bad Presages that were made from ir.

ADVELITATIO, (in a Fight) aSkirmish, the action of shooting off an Arrow, or throwing a Javelin to begin a Battel.

ADVENTITIA bons, Windfals, Goods that come to us besides our expectation, Fructus pradiorum adventitii, Fines, Leafes, or two Fifths of an Estate paid by the Tenants.

ADVERSARIA, Papers, or Table-Books, in which a thing was hastily fet down for a help to the Memory, which was afterwards to be written fairly. A Memorandum, or Stone-Book, a Paper-Journal. This word was deriv'd from adverte, because things are noted down in it, to put us in mind of em; or rather, ab adversa pagina, wherein were written the Ditburfments, as the Receipts were written on the backfide. But if the Disbursments and Receipts were found to be equal, this was call'd Utramque paginam facere, or perjure among the Romans; the contrary was call'd Reliquari, to be behind-hand.

ADULTERIUM, the Crime of Adultery, which was always detested by the generality of Mankind, and even by those People that were most barbarous. The Greeks, as well as the Romans, enacted severe Penalties against those who were guilty of it, as Herace informs us in his Book De Arte Poetica, v. 400.

- fuit hat sapientia quandam Concubitu probibere vago, dare jura maritis, Oppida moliri, leges incidere ligno.

Ne quis fur effet, neu latro, ne quis adulter. Solon, the wife Law-giver of the Lacedemonians. would have a Woman taken in Adultery to be punish'd, by stripping her of all the Ornaments that belong to her Quality, by banishing her from all religious Assemblies, and from the Society of Ladies of Honour. The Thurians or- to death, as we learn from holy Writ. The dain'd, by an express Law, That the Persons who should be found guilty of this Vice, shou'd be personated upon the Theatre, that so they might be expos'd to publick Infamy.

Laws, call'd the Lex Julia, which was made by Wife ber felf, the Fault was parden'd, and neither imagin'd, being deceiv'd by the word Julia : fince 'tis evident, that Offevius, who was furnam'd Augustus, having been adopted by the testament of his Great Uncle, was afterwards quenti demino non refifterunt. call'd Julius Cafar, according to the custom of lies of the adoptive Fathers. This Law enacted very severe Penalties against Adulterers, condemning 'em to be fin'd, and to be banish'd into some defart Island; to be scourg'd, and to be made Eunuchs, as we may perceive by these Verses of Horace, Sat. 2. lib. 1.

His fe pracipitem tello dedit : ille flavellis Ad mortem eafus ; fugiens hic decidit acrem Pradonum in turbam : dedit bic pro corpere num-

Hunc perminxerunt Galenes : quin etiam illud Accidit, ut cuidam tefter, candamque salacem Demeteret ferrum.-

One, finding himself surprized in the Att of Adul-tery, threw bimself headlong from the House-top; another was whipt to death; another bought his Purdon ; the other was pifi'd upon by the most abjett Slaves ; and laftly one was made an Eunuch Lucian, in the Death of Peregrinus, tells us,

That this Philosopher, being taken in Adultery, was forc'd to throw himfelf from the Top of a House down to the Ground, with a Radish at his back, after he had been severely beaten. The Laws declare Adulterers infamous, and incapable of giving any Testimony in a Court of Judicature. The Athenian Laws allow'd the Father of the Woman, the Hufband, and even the Brother, to kill a Man taken in Adultery, with Impunity. Upon this Subject we have a very eloquent Discourse of Lyfias, which is extant. Tacitus gives us an Account, that Æmilia Lepida, being accus'd of Adultery, was condemned to the Punishment of being interdicted Fire and Water, which was a kind of Banishment. The same Author informs us also, that Augustus called the Adulteries of Princesses trayterous and facrilegious Crimes. Tacitas further tells us, that Adultery was very rare among the German, and when it was discover'd, it was immediately punish'd: The Husband shav'd his Wife, and having ftript her in presence of his Neighbours, he drove her out of his House, beating her with a Stick, and thus led her about in Difgrace through the whole City. By the Law of God. a Woman taken in Adultery was to be flon'd Reman Laws did not grant any one Liberty to kill an Adulterer, but only the Father of the Woman : But if the Husband was fo far transported by his just Resembnest to revenge the Difgrace by We have a famous Law among the Reman killing him who had debauch'd his Wife, or oven his Augustus, and not by Julius Cafar, as some have he nor his Slaves were punish'd as Murtherers : Si Maritus in adulterio deprebensam uxorem ocidat. quia ignoscitur ei, non tantum mariti, sed etiam uxoris servos pana liberari, si justum dolorem excaprovide the Expenses of the Law 70 thinds were to plead a Caule, which were called Ora1875.

ADVOCATI, are also the Witnesses which are fetch'd to be Spectators of a ching.
Estiman can armatis juigle pheribus, can detecttis prepauti so verifie Carimann, fays Ciere, Ebuttus cann thirter with many armat Mm, and Cacinna appear'd with a fmall number of Witmeffes. ADVOCATUS, in Quintilian and Tactine is an Advecate who pleads Caufes, and defends the Widow and Fatherless. Let us see what Tacitus says of Advocates, in the eleventh Book of his Annals, Of all the Villanies which were committed with Impunity, there was none more common than that of Advocates, who betray their Clients for Maney : for an illustrious Roman Knight named Samius, after be had given ten thoufand Crowns to Suillius to undertake his Defence, run himself through the Body with a Sword, in his prefence and at his House, after be underftood that be had betray'd him : which occasioned all the Senators ananimonfly to demand, That the Lex Cynica might be reflor'd, and that the Advecates for the future (bould be forbidden to take Prefents or Money. But Smillius and others being concern'd in point of Interest, oppor'd this Advice; against whom Silius maintain'd it, and fbew'd, by the Example of antient Oraters, that they propos'd to themselves no other end of their Labour and Study but Honour and Reputation : He alleg'd, that we muft not defile the most noble of all Professions with filthy Lucre, mer make a Trade of Eloquence ; that Fidelity was always to be fulpelled when it was bought ; and that this would fement Discord and prolong Suits, if they were made gainful to Advocates, as Difeafes are to Physicians; that they fould fet before themselves, for a Pattern, Alinius and Mellala, and thefe later Oraters Arruntius and Rieruinus, who arriv'd at the greatest Dignities without taking any Fee for their Eloquence. This Advice was unanimously received, and the Senators were just ready to condemn all those of Bribery, who should be convicted of taking any Money, when Suillius, Coffutianus, and others encumpali'd the Emperour to beg his Pardon; and after he had fignify'd the Grant of it, they profecuted their Defence after this manner; They represented, that there was no Advocate fo wain as to premife bimfelf eternal Fame, as the Remard of his Labours; that they fought by this means on y to maintain their Credit and their Family; and that it was the Interest of the Publick. that Min should have some to defend them ; that, after all, their Elequence had cost them femething, and while they took pains about the Affairs of another they could not mind their own ; that no body proposed to bimfalf an amprofitable Buploment, sand a fruitlefs Professon ; that it was cally for Alinius and Meffala, being curach'd with the Spoils of the Civil Wars, and for Eferuinus and Arruntius. being Heirs to great Families, to make Honour and Glory she end of all their Pains and Study ; but withal, there wanted not Examples of Orators who bad received Benefit by their Studies, and that all the World knew that Curio and Claudius took great Sums for pleading; that, after all, there was no other Gate but this by which the People could enter into Dignities, and that by taking away the Reward of Learning, it would in time be wholly negletted. The Emperour being moved by these Reasons, altho they were rather profitable than honourable, permitted Advocates to take Money in a Caufe, as far as the Sum of two hundred and fifty Crowns; and order'd that thefe who took more fould be punifo'd as guilty of Bribery.

ADV

ADVOCARE, (in the Law) to pray any one of his Kinfolks and Friends to affift him in his Affairs with their Prefence, Advice and Credit, and to furnith him with means to defend himfelf. The Perfon thus requested waited upon the Judges at their Houses, to solicite them, and was prefent at the Trya.

A DY TUM, a hone, a Secret Place, a Retirement in the Temples of the Pagans, where Oracles were given, into which none but the Priests were admitted. It was the Sanchury of the Temples.

Ifque adytis hat Triftia ditta reportat. Virgil. Æneid. 11. v. 115.

A, was in old times written and pronounc'd as A and E feparately, and fometimes as A and D, and at this day is pronounc'd as a finale R. It was also written AI, and afterwards A: Mufai for Mufa, Kaifar for Cafar. Juliai for Julia. and in other the like Inftances : from whence it came to pass that in some words the A remain'd alone, as Aque ab Equando, fays St. Ifdere. It cannot be deny'd but upon the Corruption of the Language Æ was pronounced as a fingle E, whence an E was often put for an A., as Eger for Eger, Etas for Etas, Es alienum for As alienum : and fometimes, on the contrary, an TE was put for a fingle E, as Aweratus for Evecatus, and the like, whereof the old Gloffes are full : and for this Reason Bede in his Orthography puts Ager among the Words that were written with a fingle E.

EACUS, the Son of Jupite and Egins, the Daughter of the River Mopes. Jupiter fearing left June thould differed the Pattion for Egins, transported her Inte the Idea of Delto, and had by her this Son called Leaus: Bilt June having differed the Intrigue, convey'd: a Serpent into a Fountain of which the Feople ulrank, which so possesses in the Head of the Patting of the Patting of the Idea of Idea o filf denriv'd of Inhabitants, pray'd to Jupiter. that he would turn an heap of Ants into fo many Men: which Jupiter granted him, and these Men were called Myrmidons, because wieung fignifies an Ant; and the Ifle was call'd Egina, as we learn from Pausanias in his Corinthiaca. Eacus had for his Sons Peleus who was the Father of Achilles, and Telamon the Father of Aiax, Lucian, in his Dialogue Of Mourning. speaking of Hell, At first after your Descent, you meet with a Gate of Adamant, which is kept by Bacus, the Confin-german' of Pluto. And in another place he brings him in faying, That he return'd from thence for fear lest fome Death Bould elcase bim. This is certain, that he makes him one of the Porters of Hell, in company with Gerberne, who was a Dog with three Heads. Yer Quid, lib. 13. Metamorph. makes him one of the Judges of Hell, rogether with Minos and Rhadementhus, upon the account of his Wifdom and Integrity, Æscus huic pater est, qui Jura silentibus illic Reddit.

ÆDEPOL, See Ædes.

EDES in the fingular, or ÆDES in the plural number. Very thinks that it was tude for Adu, quid eas place pade adirent; but fince it was formerly written Adu; it feems rather to come from the Grak ATE; an old Word, which is to be met with in Finder and Eufablism, and fignifies the finm with Ædet.

ÆDES, in the fingular number, is commonly taken for an Holy Place, a Temple : and Ader, in the plural number, for an Houle, altho this Rule is not without Exception. When the word is used for an Holy Place, 'tis commonly join'd with some other word which determines it to that Senfe, as Ades Sacra, Ades Sacra, Edes Jovis, Edes Pacis, Edes Deorum, the Temple of Jupiter, the Temple of Peace, the Temple of the Gods. If no fuch word be join'd to it, tis commonly to be understood of a Prophene Place, altho in strictness of Language, Ædes Sacra and Templum were two different things, for Templum was a place dedicated by the Augurs, and deligned by them for fome private Use, but not consecrated; whereas Edes Sacra was an Holy Place, and confecrated to fome Deiry, but not founded by the Augurs. But if this Place was dedicated by the Augurs, and confecrated to fome Deity, it was called Templum and Edes Sacra. And for this Reason doubtless we find these words confounded by Cicero and others, and used one for the other : for the Temple of Vertue and Honour, which Cicero called Templum, was called by Aurelius Victor Edicula, by Titus Livius Edes and Cella, and Pliny only Edes; unless they meant hereby to flew that the Romans us'd their words indifferently. Another remarkable Difference betwirt Adar and Templam is this, their Templam was built upon an high Place to which Men afcended by many Steps, having a large compais of Ground about it, which afforded an unbounded Prospect; Ades, on the contrary, was built in a low Place, the Entrance was without any Ascent, and it was encompassed with Houses.

ATD LES, in the fingular number, is a Hasle in general, whether publick or private, in the City or the Country: yet according to exact Propriety of Speech, Eds: was used for Hasle in the City, and Fills for those in the Country. Neverthelefs, in the Numbring of the People made by the Censur, Villa were called.

The Remans, till the time of Pyrrbus, i. c. for more than four hundred Years, had their Houses built after a very plain fashion. They were made like a Terras, cover'd with Slates and Stram, according to the Testimony of Varra-Scandulis robufteis & ftramente tetta. But in affter-ages the Magnificence of their Buildings grew to fuch an Excels, that the Author of the Preface to Vitruvius fays, the House of a private Perfon was found to amount to near fifty Millions: and an Adile caused to be built, in less than a year's time, a Theatre, which had three hundred and fixty Pillars, whereof the lowermost, which were of Marble, were farty feet high; those in the middle were of Brafs, and thefe in the third rank were of Cryfial. 'tis faid alfo that this Theatre was adorn'd with three thousand Statues of Brass; and, after all, that this so magnificent Building was to serve only for sin-

We shall elsewhere give an account of the Magnificence of their publick Building.

The Pomp and Accommodations of the Reman Houses were remarkable for their Height. the great number of Apartments they had for Summer and Winter, for divers Ornaments of Atchitecture used about them, as well as for the Beauty and scarceness of the Marerials of which the Bulk of the Building confifted. They raised their Houses to such a monstrous Height, that to prevent the Ruine of many Houses, Augustus confin'd their Height to seventy feet, and New to fixty only. The Orator Ariftides confidering this excellive Height, fays, That if one fould take alunder all the Rafa ters of their Houses, and range them in order one. beside another, they would cover all Italy from Tiber as far as the Ionian Sea. Thefe Houses had many Partitions confifting of feveral Apartments, which made them to be taken for for many Towns. Tie a ftrange thing, fays Valerius Maximus upon this occasion, that the Grandees of Rome thought their Houses were confin'd within too. narrow bounds, the they were of as large extent as the Inheritance of Cincinnatus : Anguste fe habitare credune, quorum domme tautum patet, quantum Cincinnati rura patuerunt. Seneca adds, That they built Courts as large as Towns, and Houses as high as Mountains. Ovid informs us, That Vedeius Pollio having left, as a Legacy by his Last Will, to Augustus, a very magnificent and sumptuous House; this wife Prince, who then discharg'd the Office of Cenfor, thought that the exceffive Magnificence of this flately Houle was a bad Example, and therefore cous'd it to be demolished. After this Livia built in the Same place a Temple, which fbe dedicated to Conjugal Concord. We scarce read any thing elfe in the Hiftorians and Poets but Invectives against the Houses of the Grandees of Rome, which had coop'd up the Country Farmers within a very narrow compass, which took up whole Countries, and enclosed Canals of Water, round and four-fquased, of very large extent upon the great Lakes of Italy's whereas in former times, the Houses of private Men were small, and the Republick great, all fumptuous Buildings were referv'd for the publick Conveniencies of Cities, or the Adorning of Temples. This is what Herace tells us in these Verses.

ÆDE

Jam pauco aratro jugura regia Males relinguest: sudique latius Extenta vufenum Lucrino Stagna lacu, platanufque calebi Sama tavo. — Non ita Romali Praferiptum, de intenfi Catonum Aulpiciis, veteranuque norma. Privatus illa casfue eras brovas Communes maganum — oppida publico Suntas jubentes, de Dorram Campla no deterare (ano. Templa nova deterare (ano.

Od. 15. lib. 11. This Poet elsewhere blames one of his Friends, who had reason to apprehend the approach of Death, and yet was still projecting to build Works of Marble : The his whole Thoughts ought to be employ'd upon Death and the Grave, yet the Earth was not large enough for his Defigns, and he undertook to turn back the Sea, to make may for his Buildings; he drove away his Neighbours, whose Lands were added to his own, instead of thinking in bow few days he himself flould be laid in a Grave. which would take up no more room than thele he had driven sway from their Possessions. The same Complaints we may make at this day, of the greateft part of the Grandees, who enlarge their own Lands at the expence of private Men :

Non obur, neque aureum
Mad renides in domo lacunar—
Tu seam marmera
Lacas sub ipsum fumus: & sepuleri
immuner struis domo:
Marisque Baise obstrepentia urges Summovere listora, Parimi lessubs: egatinente ripa.

Quid qued usque proximos Revellis agri terminos? & ultra Limites clientium Salis avarus?

Saiu avarus ;
— Quid ultrà tendis? Æqua tellas Pauperi recluditur;

Regumque pueris, &c.
Od. 18. lib. 11.

MEDEPOL, as if one should say, per Addem Pellucis, By the Temple and Deiry of Pollux a an Oath of the antient Romani, common both to Men and Women. This God was the Protector of the Romani, who built him a Temple

ÆDICULA RIDICULI, the Chappel of the God of Joy and Laughter, built at two miles distance from Rome, without the Gate Capena. The Occasion of the Building of it was this : Hannibal, after the Battel of Canna, came and belieged Rome, on that lide where was the Gate Capena; but being forced to raife the Siege with great Difgrace, because of the Inundations and Storms which happen'd at that time; the Romans, upon this Occasion. rais'd a very loud Laughter, and therefore they built a little Oratory, under the Name of the God of Foy and Laughter. 'Tis true they were not the first who built a Temple to him : for Plutarch tells us, in the Life of Lycurgus, the Lacedemonians rear'd up a Statue to this Deity, and the Inhabitants of Hypers in Theffely facrificed to him every year. Paufanias also makes mention of a God called 3the MANTO, the God of Laughter. The Romans kept a Feast to him every year, during which they did nothing but laugh and play childish Tricks.

ÆDILES, Reman Magistrates, who had the over-feeing of Buildings, both holy and prophane, and of Bashs and Aquadusts. There were three forts of Edilar; the Edilar of the People, who were called Edilar Pichici, or Minera Edilar; the Edilar Octuber, or Majores Edilar; and the Edilar of the Corn, call'd Edilar Grealer.

The Ædiles of the Commonalty, or fuch as were taken from among the People, were two in number, and officiated the same time with the Tribunes of the People: for these latter Magiftrates forefeeing that they should be embarrass'd with the multitude of Affairs, defired of the Senate that they would allow them some Officers, with whom they might intrust matters of leffer moment, for which they should be accountable to them. This the Senate was forc'd to grant them, and they were chosen every year, in the same Assembly, with the Tribunes. This Office of the Ædiles included feveral Functions, which render'd it considerable in process of time. Besides the Care of Buildings, both publick and private, facred and prophane, they took care also that they should be built in due proportion, and in a fa Consulfhip for the People, and the Patricians ftreight Line, without fuffering any of them | 2 Preter of their own Order . the Senate to jet forth beyond the work, into the Streets and publick Places. And it was chiefly upon the account of this part of their Office that they were called Ædiler, according to the Opinion of Varro, Edilis qui facras Edes O privatas procuraret, dictus. In the fecond place, they took care of the Streets, the High-ways and publick places, of keeping up the Bridges and Banks, of cleanling the Streets and Sinks, and lastly, of providing for Aquedusts and publick Works, about which they made Edicts called Editiones, Edilitia. Thirdly, the taking care of Weights and Measures was part also of their Duty: they deftroy'd falle Weights and Meafures, and laid great Fines on those that used them: they conficated Commodities which were found to be decay'd, and threw fuch as were naught into the River Tiber: which made Plantus fay in his Rudens, Ita folet Neptunus, quamvis fastidiosus Ædilis est.

Si que improbe funt merces, jattat emnes. Alluding, without doubt, to this part of the Ædiles Office. In the fourth place, they had the Overlight of the Victuals for the City and Provisions for the Army: they fet a price upon them, and took care that no Monopoly should be made to burden the Publick : they rermitted no Ufury in Commerce, and when they discover'd any Usurers, they summoned them to appear before the Tribunes, that they might be punished, as Titus Livius informs us, They took cognizance of Debauches that were usual in Taverns, and forbad the felling of any extravagant Delicacies, according to the Testimony of Suctonius, in the Life of Tiberius, 1. 34. They punish'd debaucht Women, and such as play'd in Gaming Houses. They kept the Orders of the People, which were lock'd up in the Temple of Ceres. And Polybius relates, that the Treaty of Peace between the Carthaginians and the Romans was intrufted with the Ædiles, who plac'd it in the Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus. Twas one part of their Office to review Comedies and other pieces of Wit, they also were obliged to grant to the People, at their own Expence, magnificent Sports, fuch as those of the Circus, and of the Goddess Flore; and because they were once excused from doing it, this gave occasion to the Creation of the Ædiles Curules, of whom I shall next fpeak.

The Ædilit of the People being arrived to fo high a pitch of Honour, by so many considerable Offices; the Patrician or Sons of the Senators, had a mind to have a share in them, and to this purpose a favourable Occasion presented it self: for the Tribunt having obtain'd thought fit, for appealing all Differences on both fides, that publick Thanks should be given to the Gods by Sacrifices and magnificent Games, which they order'd the Ædiles to grant : But they excusing themselves upon the account of the great Expence they were forced to be at : the Patricians faid, they were ready. for the Honour and Service of the Gods, to be at the Expence, if they would admit them to the Office of the Ædiles. Whereupon their Offers were received, and M. Furius Camillus. being then Differer, nam'd to the People, by order of the Senate, two Patricians who were created Ædiles Curules, in the year 385, or 388 from the Building of Rome. The two first Patrician Ædiles were Cornelius Quintus Capitolinus and P. Cornelius Scipio, according to the relation of Titus Livius, in the beginning of his feventh Book. These Ediles were called Meiores and Curules, because they had the Privelege to be carried in a Chair of State which was adorn'd with Ivory, and to fit upon it in a Chariot, when they gave Audience; whereas the other Ædiles fat only upon Benches, as the Tribunes and Queffors did. They had also the Privilege. according to Ascenius Pedianus, of wearing the Garment called Pratexta adorn'd with Purple, and of having Litters walk before them with Bundles of Rods, as Apuleius fays; but Aulus Gellius feems to contradict him, when he remarks, that the Ædiles never punish'd any Person, nor beat him with Rods: which may be understood of the Ædiles of the People and not of these superiour ones. The chief Office of the Ædiles Curules was to look after the Celebration of the great Roman Sports, to be at the charge of Plays, and the Shows of Gladiators to the People; the publick Farms and Fines, which were allow'd to defray the Expence of them, being but a fmall matter, they chose many times to make no use of them, to the end they might the more infinuate themfelves into the Favour of the People by this Difinterestedness and Liberality, and by that means be the more easily promoted to other Offices of the Republick. They had a share in all the other Offices of the Plebeian Ædiles, whereof we have already fooken. Above all. they took care that no new Religious Worship fhould be introduc'd either into publick or private Assemblies, nor any new Doctrine taught without the Order of the Postifices, and of this they were bound to inform the Senate. They were careful also, at least under the Emperors, to prevent the publishing of any ill Book, and when any fuch appear'd, they order'd it to be barnt, after they had examin'd it, and condemn'd it as pernicious to the State. Labienus publish'd publika foile Books of this fort, seconding fenerwife call'd debiptings, or the White-See. to the Relation of Senech, Libra Labieni per A.

diles cremanitos cenfuere Patres. Ediles Geresles, the Ediles that prefided over the Corn, were also appointed and taken out of the Order of the Patricians by Julius Cafar, to supervise the Corn. 'Tis probable that these two last were created only to ease the four former, who were oppress'd with a multitude of Business. There were also Adiles in municipal Cities, like those at Rome.

ÆDILITAS, Ædility, the Magistracy of the Ediler, which lasted a year. It included many Magistrates and their different Offices, fuch as thele, of the Conful, the Chief Juffice, Surveyor of the High-ways, and the High Treafurer. This Office continued in the Empire, according to Justus Lipsius, till Confiantmer's time, who suppress'd it, together with other Magiffracies of the Empire.

EDITUUS or EDITIMUS, a Saciff, or Sexton, a Treasurer to the Temples of the Falle Gods, who took care of the Offerings and other Ornaments of the Gods.

ÆDITUA, a Sucrift of the Female Deities. with whom was intrufted the keeping of the Treasures of the Temple.

ÆDON, the Wife of King Zether, the Brother of Amphiron ; the by miftake kill'd her own Son Byles, instead of the Son of her Brother-in-law, whom the hated. She designed to have kill'd her felf when the found her miflake ; but the Gods in compassion chang'd her into a Limet, who is always complaining of this Misfortune in her Song.

ÆGEON, a Giant. See Briarens.

ÆGEUS, the Son of Pandim King of Athens, who begot Thefew upon the Nymph Æthra. Minos King of Candia declar'd War against him, to revenge the Death of his Son indregeus, whom some of the Athenians had kill'd. In this War the Athenians had confiderable Losses, which forc'd them to desire a Peace, and it was granted them, on condition that they should send every year six young Men, of the better fort of Families, to be expos'd to the Minetoure, for appealing the Ghoft of his Son. The Lot fell upon Thefeus, the Son of King Bein, who escap'd the Fury of this Monfter : But Egen feeing the Ship return, which had carry'd this cruel Oblation, and not percieving the white Flag fet up, (as had been agreed between them) he fuppos'd his Son was dead, which put him into fuch a Fit of Despair, that he threw himself headlong into the Sea. The Athenians instituted Fealts to his Honour, and facrific'd to him as a Sea-God, and an Adopted Son of Ne-

Tis a part of the Gulph of the Mediterrantan Sea, which begins at the Eaftern part of the Ifthmus of Cwinth, or the Promontory Suniam, and reaches as far as the Helleffont, dividing Greece and Europe from Afia. Suidas would have this Sea call'd the Agem, upon account of Egens, who threw himfelf headlong into it. fuppoling his Son Thefear, who went to fight the Minoraure, had been flain. Others give it this Name upon the account of a Rock, which lies between the two Isles of Tenedor and Chie, having the fhape of a Goat. The Illes of this Sea were divided by the Antients into Cycledes and Sporades : they reckon'd fifty of the Cyclades, which encompais'd the lile of Delorlike a Circle; but the Sporades were fcatter'd here and there towards the Isle of Crete or Candia.

ÆGI

ÆGERIA, a Nymph, or Deity that was worthip'd in the Forest Aricina, which Titus Livius places feven miles from Rome, but Fellus fays it lay only a little way without the Gate Collina. Numa Pampilius, the fecond King of Rome, feign'd that he had frequent Conversation with this Deiry, that he might add greater Weight and Authority to his Laws and Ordinances, and root them deeper in the Minds of the Romans, making them believe that this Nymph Egeris dictated them to him. Ovid makes her the Wife of Numa, who was changed into a Pountain by Dians. Faft. lib. 3. ver.

Egeria eft que prabet aquat, Dea grata Ca-

Illa Numa conjux, confiliumque fuit. She was reverenc'd by the Roman as a Deity; and the Women with child pray'd to her, in the time of their Travel, that by her Aid they might be fafely deliver'd of their Children, as we learn from Festus : Ægeria nympha facrificabant pragnantes, quod cam putabant facile conceptum alvo egerere. She was also call'd Fluinia, because she stop'd the Bloody-flux in Wo-

ÆGIALA, the Wife of Diemedes, whom Venus inspir'd with fo brutish a Passion, that fhe profittuted her felf to all Commerc, in revenge for the Wound she had receiv'd from her Husband at the War of Troy. Diemedes not being able to endure the Whoredoms of his Wife, abandon'd her, and retir'd into Italy, where he agreed with Danisus for one part of his Kingdom, which was call'd Gracia Magna : He built there a City call'd Argos Hippium, and in after times Argyrippa, as Servius fays upon the eleventh of the Eneids.

ÆGINA, an Island with a City of the fame Name, near to Peloponnesus and Astica. which was distant only four Leagues from the Prupe.

BGEUM MARE, the Egem Sen, O- famous Port Pyneum, in the lower part of Athens. It was also to call'd from Agina the Daughter | mention'd by Virgil in his firth Ectorue. This of Albert, King of Bentia, by whom Japiter, in a Difzuife of Fire, had two Sons call'd Eacus | der. and Rhadamanthus.

ÆGIOCHUS, a Surname given to Jupiser, from a Goat, which the Greeks call ATE, Gen. aixis, upon the account of the Milk with which he was nourifu'd in his Infancy, by the Nymphs Amalthas and Meliffs. The Poets tell us, that when this Goat died Jupiter cover'd his Shield with its Skin; but afterwards he brought it to life again, and plac'd it among the Celestial Signs.

ÆGIS, the Gost-skin of Jupiter; a Buckler cover'd with the Skin of the Goat of Amalthas the Nurse of Jupiter. This Buckler he gave to Pallas, who painted the Head of Medula upon it, the bare Sight whereof petrifi'd both Men and Beafts. Jupiter took upon him the Name of Ægiochus, i. e. the Goat-skin-Bearer.

ÆGIS, a frightful Monster, born of the Earth, which vomited Fire, wherewith all the Forests of Phrygis were consum'd, from Mount Taurus as far as the Indies. This forc'd the Inhabitants to abandon the Country: But Mnervs kill'd this Monster and cover'd her Buckler with its Skin, that it might ferve not only for Defence, but also for a Mark of her Victory. Thus Natalis Comes relates the Fable, lib. 4. cap. 5. 6 Egidem feram vocam menstrum prope inexougnabile obtrunçavit, &c.

ÆGISTHUS, born of the incestuous mixture of Thyestes with his own Daughter Pelopia. He was exposed to Beafts by his Father, in order to conceal his Crime; but the Shepherds fav'd him, and fed him with the Milk of a Goat, from whence he was call'd Ægyfibus. When he came to age, he kill'd his Uncle Atrew, the Father of Agameumus, and afterwards Agamemnon also at a Feast, by the help of his own Wife Clytemnestra whom he had abus'd. But Orefer the Son of Agentemmon reveng'd the Death of his Father, by killing Ægyfibus and the faithless Clytennestre.

ÆGIOCHUS, Airlox . the Surname of Jupiter, the same with Agischus. There are feveral Medals of the Emperours Philip and Valerian, upon the Reverse whereof is reprefented a Goat, with this Infcription, Jour Can-Savatori Augusti, and on the other side a Goat carrying Jupiter an Infant on his back, with thefe Words, Javi gelcenti.

AEGLE, the Daughter of Helperus King of den near to Lixa, a City of Mauritania towards | it, and fattens it with the flim the Frontiers of Echiopia, where there were hind when it retires into its C. Trees laden with Apples of Gold, which were | was reduced into a Province by Aug is a Greek word, which lignifieth Light or Splea-

ÆGOBOLUS, an Epither given to Bacchus, upon the account of a Goat which the Pomians facrific'd to him instead of an Infant, to expiate the Murder they had committed on one of the Priefts of his Temple. For Paule nias relates, That one day when the Potnians were facrificing to him in his Temple, they get drunk, and in that drunken Fit kill'd one of his Priests, who in revenge feut a Plague among 'em, which made their Country desolate: To put a stop to this Mischief, they had recourse to the Oracle, who order d to sacrifice to him every year a young Boy, to appeale him; but Some time after the God was contented with the Sacrifice of a Goat inflead of a Boy.

ÆGYPTUS, the Son of the antient Believ. He had fifty Sons which he marry'd to the fifty Daughters of his Brother Danaw, who all cut their Husbands Throats the first Night of their Marriage, Hypermnestra only excepted, who follow'd not this cruel and barbarous Direction. but preferv'd her Husband Lyncow alive, who drove Dansus away from the Kingdom of the Argives. Ægypsus, according to Eufebius, gave name to Egypt, which was formerly call'd Oce-ana, Aerea and Ofirina.

ÆGYPTUS, Egypt, a large Country of Africa, water'd by the River Nile, which ren-ders it very fruitful. It was at first inhabited by Mifrain, the fecond Son of Cham, which fignifies Egypt. Tis divided into two parts. the Upper and the Lower. The Upper contains Thebais, which the Prophets Elay and Jeremy call Phetres: The Greeks call the Lower Egypt, Delta, upon the account of the likeness of its figure to that of their Letter A. The Original of the founding a Kingdom in this vaft Country is uncertain and fabulous : only we know that it had Kings from Abraham's time. Mifraim was the Father of Ludim, from whom the Ethippians are descended, who difpute the Antiquity of their Original with the Egyptians; but this they did out of vanity only. and upon very bad grounds. The first Kings were called Pharaohs, and the latter Ptolimy's. Egypt was represented in the antient Medals by the Goddels Ifir, the great Deity of the Egyptianu: the held in one hand a Sphere, as being the Mother of Arts and Sciences, and in the other a Veffel or Appeara fill'd with Ears of Corn, to thew its Fertility, which proceeds traly, and one of the Halperedes, who had a Gar- from the Overflowing of the Nile hat waters aves heguarded by a Dragon; but Hercules kill'd it after the Defeat of Clepatra, who was the last and carry'd off the Bruit. There is also ano- Queen of it, in the year of the World 4015. ther Agle, the Daughter of the San and Nears, according to Pitaviju, or in 3915, according to Calvifiu, and in the year 717. from the Building of Rome.

ÆGYPTII, the Egyptians. Who were the first of all the Nations that we know of (fays Lucian in his Syrian Goddess) that had any knowledge in Divine matters, and who founded Temples, and inflituted Mysteries and Geremonies ; for the Astyrians learn'd these things of them some time after, and added to the Worship of the Gods, the Adoration of Idols, because there was none of them at first among it the Egyptians. Theje are they (fays the fame Lucian in his Judicial Aftrology) who have cultivated Aftrology, measur'd the Course of each Star, and distinguish'd the Year into Months and Seasons, regulating the Year by the Course of the Sun, and the Months by that of the Moon: They divided then Heavens into twelve parts, and represented each Conftellation by the Figure of some Animal, from whence comes the Diversity in their Religion; for all the Egyptians did not make ufe of all the parts of the Heawens for their Gods : Those who observed the Properties of Aries ador'd a Ram, and fo of the rest. 'Tis faid alfo that they worship'd the Ox Apis, in memory of the celeftial Bull; and in the Oracle, which is consecrated to him, Predictions are taken from the nature of this Sign; as the Africans do from Aries in memory of Jupiter Hammon, whom they ador'd under that figure. The Egyptians worship'd Water in publick, but they had other Gods whom they ador'd in private : Some worship'd a Bull or an Ape; others a Stork or a Crocodile ; fome worship'd Onions, others a Cat, or a Monster wish a Dog's Head ; some ader'd the Right Shoulder, others the Left, or half of the Head ; and fome an Earthen Platter or a Cup. Laftly, Diodorus tells us, That they ador'd the Privy Parts; and even the very Excrements, according to Clement, in his fifth Book of Recognitions. Their Cuftom was to Salute their Gods in the Morning. which they call'd Adoration. They Sang Hymns to their honour, which were describ'd in Hieroglyphic Charatters upon facred Parchments, and none but thefe who were initiated into their Myfteries could read or decupher'em, as being Figures of different Animals, whereof each had its proper Signification, which none elfe could penetrate into, at leaft not till they were explain'd.

ÆLIUS, a Name common to many il-Instrious Romans of the Ælian Family; as to Ælius Gallus, a Roman Knight, who carryed the Roman Arms into Arabia; to Elius Patus. a Conful, who having a mind to raise the fiege before Arctium in Tuscany, lost there his Army and his Life in the view of the belieged; to Elius Pertinax, who fucceeded the Emperor Commodus, and enjoy'd the Empire only Three Months, to Alius Adrianus and Alius Verus, who were likewise Emperors. See Adrianus and Verus.

ELIA CAPITOLINA, the City of Jerusalem was thus call'd by Elius Adrianus, who caus'd it to be rebuilt, after he drove all the Jews from thence who had rebell'd against the Romans.

ENE ÆLIANUM JUS, the Elian Code. which contain'd a Treatise of Personal Actions: It was compos'd by Sextus Ælius, a Lawyer and Philosopher.

AELLO, one of the Harpies to whom this Name agrees, because it fignifies One that.

carries all away by force.

AEMILIUS, the Name of a Reman Family, from which many great Men were defcended, and among the rest Paulus Æmilius the Conful. Tacitus relates of him this piece of History; The diffolute Life of the Priefts of Ifis, who were call'd Galli, oblig'd the Senate to order That the Temple of this Goddess, and of Serapis, should be raz'd to the ground. There was no perfon found lo bold as to execute this Order , because every one Scrupled its Lawfulnels in point of Religion. Paulus Æmilius feeing this, put off his magiftratical Robe. and was the first who, with an Ax, begun to demolish this Temple, which had ferv'd for a Retreat to the most infamous People, and by his own Example he encourag'd the Workmen. When he was Pro-Conful, finding himfelf befieg'd in his Camp by the Ligurians, who had amus'd him in vain. he try'd all ways possible to disintangle himfelf: but being very much prefs'd, without any hopes of receiving Succours, he forc'd his way through the Enemies, and then defeated 'em, reduc'd 'em to beg a Peace, and to deliver him Hostages. Perfeus, King of the Macedonisms, having pitch'd his Camp advantagioufly upon Mount Olympus, Paul Æmilius endeayour'd by all means to dislodg him from thence. and having discover'd a Path which led to a Hill, whereon was built the Temple of Apollo Pythius, he fent his Two adopted Sons, Scipio Africanus, and Fabius Maximus, to feize upon it. Perfess having notice of it, front up their Paffage, but was forc'd to decamp, and give him battel, which Paul Amilius joyfully accepted : The Fight was well maintain'd on both fides. but at last the Victory fell to the Romans, who left 20000 Macedonians dead upon the place. Perfeus efcap'd with the Cavalry, but diftrufting their Fidelity, he came and furrender'd himfelf to the Proconful, who led him in triumph to Rome, with Three of his Children : The youngest, call'd Alexander, became very skilful in the Art of Turning, and Joyners Work. Such was the Fate of the last Succesfor to Alexander the Great, and by his Defeat. Macedonia was reduc'd into a Province, and made tributary to the Romans, after it had been govern'd by Thirty Kings, during the space of 923 Years.

ÆNEAS, a Phrygian by Nation, descendfrom the Kings of Trey in this order : Dardanus was the Father of Erichtonius, and he was the Father of Tree, who had Three Children, Ilus. Affaracus and Ganimedes. From Ilus descended King of Troy. Affaracus married his Grand-Anchifes had Æneas by the Goddess Venus. Whether it were that the Perfections of the Mother of Eneas caus'd the Name of the Goddess of the Graces to be given unto her, or that Auchifes had a mind to conceal her true Name, and invented this Fable to render his Son the more venerable, or that he thought thereby to raife the Value of his own Merits; I say, whatever was the cause of it, this is certain, that no other Name of the Mother of Eness is to be met with, but that of Venus. From hence it appears, that Virgil had reason to call Eneas a Dardanian; for besides that he descended from Dardanus, there was also occasion to call him fo, because his Fathers ordinary abode was in Dardania. Upon the first noise of the Descent upon the Greeks, Æmas threw himself into Troy to defend it. Dychis Cretenfis express accuses him of giving the Palladium to Diomedes, and betraying the City. Titus Livius does not accuse him of Treachery, but he is of opinion, that the Greeks treated him favourably, as well as Antenor, because these two Princes were for Peace, and for restoring Helena, who was the cause of that War to ber Husband Menelaus. Sabellicus having rejetted the Opinion of Die, advances another of his own : Aneas, favs he, not being able to perswade the Trojans to Peace, and being otherwise discontented, treated secretly with the Greeks, and let them in by one of the Gates of the City, upon which was the figure of a Horfe. This gave occafion to the Fiction of a Wooden Horse, which is mention'd by Homer, and after him by Virgil. Dionyfius Halicarnaffaus, on the contrary, affirms. That Aineas made extraordinary Efforts to defend Troy and the Palace of King Priam; that be feeing himself abandon'd, the Citadel forc'd, and Priam kill'd, retir'd, with all his Family, and thefe who escap'd death at the sacking of the City, to Mount Ida, by the favour of the Night, while the Enemy was busie in taking the Spoil; that then be built many Ships with the Trees he found upon that Mountain, and after be had equip'd 'em with Neceffaries, he embarqu'd with the reft of the Trojans upon the Hellespont, and made his first Descent into a Peninsula of Thracia, call'd Pellena, where he built a City of his own Name. From thence be fail'd to Delos, and from Delos to Cythera, from Cythera to Zacintha, from Zacintha to Leucada, from Leucada to Ictium, from Ictium to Ambracia. After this he coafted along the Sea-fide, and caft Anchor at Buthrota, from whence he transported himself to Dodona, and there having consulted the Oracle, he was confirm'd in his design of going into Italy; whereupon he reimbarqu'd, and feer'd his

Lasmedon, and from Lasmedon, Priam, the last course towards Sicily, and made a Descent upon Laurentum, after he had pasi'd through many Daughter Clytidora, the Daughter of Laomedon, Dangers at Sea, which proceeded from the Hatred of by whom he had Capy, and Capy; had Anchifes, the implacable Juno. After be landed in the Counthe Father of Aneas by the Nymph Nais; and try, he discover'd in it many Springs of Water, and perceiv'd a Sow in a Wood, with Thirty Imall Boar-Pigs, as the Oracle of Dodona bad foretold to > Littoreis ingens inventa sub Ilicibus sus Triginta capitum fatus enixa iacebit. Alba folo recubans, albi circum ubera nati: Is locus urbis erit. -

Æn. l. 3. v. 390. & feq. King Latinus and the Rutuli being alarm'd at the arrival of these new Guests, came forth to fight em, and drive em out of their Country : Bur the Latines having fuffer'd many Losses, and Turnus being overcome by Eneas in a Duel, at last a Peace was concluded, by the Marriage of Lavinia to Æneas, who built a City call'd Lavinium, from the Name of his Wife. This for the present united the Aborigines and Trojans under the common Name of Latines, in Honour of his Father-in-Law Latinus. (This has no relation at all to the Etymology of Latium, à latendo, in which there is some reference to the Prophecies of Numbers of Daniel, which are justifi'd by the Event.) Æneas was kill'd in a Battel against the Rutuli, on the Banks of the River Numicus; and because he did not appear again after this Fight, this gave occasion to the common Report that he was carried up into Heaven, tho' 'tis much more probable, that he fell into the River when he was fighting, and was detain'd at the bottom by the weight of his Armour : Nevertheless, a little Temple was built to him with this Infeription. Patri Dei indigeti, qui Numici amnis undas temperat. And here it may be observ'd, that the Kingdom of Latium feems rather to have given Name to Latinus, than that this King frould give his Name to this Kingdom; for Latium was before Latinus, who reign'd 43 Years over the Latines. S. Auftin has abridg'd the Hiftory of Anens, Lib. 8. De Civ. Dei, cap. 19. After the facking of Troy, Eneas came into Italy with Twenty Ships, which carried thither the surviying Trojans. Latinus was then King of it, but after his death Aneas reign'd Three Years in Italy : Because his Body did not appear after his death, the Latins made a God of bim. Homer makes Aneas appear very glorious among the great Heroes of his Iliads, and fays, That the Trojans reverenc'd him as a God. The younger Philofiratus. in his Heroicks, equals him with Hetter for his fize and Mien, but fays, that he furpass'd him in Virtue and good Senfe; and that the Troisns call'd Hettor their Arm, and Æneas their Head. 'Tis agreed among all these Authors, that Aneas came into traly under the Reign of Latinus

the Son of Faussie; but the difficulty is, to know what Year he came, of which That Livius, and many others say nothing. Dissyffied Halicarnesses thinks, that it was in the Forty-Fifth Olympiad; Cofficions in the Twenty-Fifth; and Figures in the Twentieth; informath that its difficult to determin in a matter for much contelled; yet there is forme reason to believe, that Russe landed in Buly in the Thirty Fourth Year of the Russin of Lasians.

A H E AS Sassadus, or Latinus Sphrinus, as Sassad Willer Calls him, or Silius and Phylhumius, as Maffale calls him, was the posithumnous Son of Alexas and Lawnine. The Phylane of Silvinus was given him because he was brought up in the Woods, whither his Mothers retired for fear of Alexanius her Son-in-Law. He had a great Connest with Julus, his Nephew, the Son of Alexanius; but the Aberigas stround in his Perfon the Blood of their antient Kings, and advanced him to the Throne, and pacific Julus by promoting him to the Chief Honours and Employments of the State. The Caferr glory in their delicent from him.

Silvius reign'd 29 Xears.

ENE AS Tertius Silvius reign'd 3! Yeass.

EOLUS, the Son of Jupiter and Actfa, or Sergefa, the Daughter of Hippeten, a Thijam, who is thought to have hir'd at the time of the Trijam War. He commanded the little klles, call'd Baliame, and was by the Poets made King of the Winds. Virgil Speaks of him as fusch. Basid. Lib. 1. v. 6.

Hic vosto ren Rolus outro LuHantes ventos, tempestotesque souras Imperio premis, ac vinclis & carere frenat.

But the Worship of the Winds was more antimer than the Reign of Malus. The Persons and Scuthieus ador'd them, according to Strabe and Lucies, and yer they never beard a word of the King of these little liles. All the Entern Molaters gave Monour to the Winds, before ever the Fable of Belu was forg'd. 'Tis prohable that the Sicilians and Balians took occafrom the nature of these Isles, so make them the Dominion of the Winds, because they frequently few florers of Smoke, Wind, and Pize iffued out of them. Disdorus Sindus, and Varre, fuppos'd that the Poets attributes the Government of the Winds to Eslay, becapie he perfectly understood the Nature of them, and was the first that invented Sails for Ships. Velorum ulum docuit, nautica rei fludiolus; au ignis quoque prodigiis diligenter observatis, qui aumsi ingenituri effent indigenis cerso pradinit. Unde venterum prafes & disponsator à fabula declaraout of. Servine faid that there are Nine Ifles in the Sisilian-Sea, whereof Varre tells us Felus was King: And from hence came the Fiction. That the Winds were under his Government.

because he foretold Storms that should happen. by observing the Vapors and Smoke which proceeded from these liles, and chiefly from that which takes its Name from Pulcan. But this learned Grammarian, after he has related this Pable, confesses it was founded upon Reafon. Pliny fays, That the Ifle Strongyle was one of these burning and smoking lifes; that the Inhabitants, by its Smoke, foretold the Winds Three Days before, and that upon this account it was feign'd, that Roles was Lord of the Winds. Berahe zemarks out of Politics. concerning the Isle of Lippara, which is the greatof the Seven Rolliss Itles, that before the South-Wind blew, it was cover'd with so thick a Cloud, that it hindred the near Neighbours of the light of Sicily; but before the Morth-Wind blew, that then this great Ifle vomited up clear Flame, and made an exceeding great noise and roaring; upon which account, the King of these likes was called the King of the EOLIE INSULE, the Radius or Valentius 18ts, near the Fromontory of Pulswain Statis, where Radius reigns. They are Seven, of which, the most considerable is that of Lipsea, from whence proceed Winds, and fforms of Fire and Flannes, rogether with certible Earthquakes, which occasioned the Poets to Say, That it was the Habitation of the Winds, and the Forge of Valent, who, with his Cycley, were the Smith of the Gods.

AE OUIMELIUM, a great place in Rome before the Temple of the Goddels Whis, at one end of the Street call'd Euterable. This place was fo call'd from Septimus Melius, a Remes Knight, who had a House there which was raz'd to the ground by the Sentence of the Dictator L. Quintius Cincinnatus, because he aim'd at usurping the Sovereign Power, by be-Rowing Largelles on the People. L. Minutiat, Commiffary General of the Provisions, discovering the fecret Intrigues of Melius, gave notice of 'em to the Senate, who judg'd it an Affair of fo great confequence, that immediately they created a Dictator, call'd Cincinnatus. The next day after Melins was cited to answer the Accusation, but he refus'd to appear, and endeavour'd to make his escape, but was purfu'd and kill'd by Servi ins. The Dictator order'd that his flouse should be raz'd to the ground, and that no person for the future thould build upon the place where it flood: And to perpensate the memory of this Perfidiousness of Melius and of his Punishment, the place was call'd ever after Equimelium, quali ab aquata domo Malii, pro domo fua. Cicero, in his Oration, relates the Story thus; Melii repress appetentis domus eft complanata, & quid alind aguum accidiffe Melio P. R. judicaret ? Nomine ipfo

A nuimelii

Equinelli fulfitie pens comprehate eff. Titus nually a part of the Produce. These Linds relates the Story at large, Book IV. Dec. 1.

A E R. See it after Affection.

Were called after vestigates, or Pradia tributaria.

ÆRA, a Number stampt upon Money. to fignifie the current Value of it, according to Latilias; it fignifies also the same with Epach, i. e. A certain Time from whence to compute or begin the new Year, or fome particular way of reckoning Time and Years. And in this last fense the word is thought to be corrupted, and to come from the cuftom of the Spaniards, who reckon'd their Years by the Reign of Augustus, who, for shortness sake, they commonly fet down thus, A. E. R. A. to fignifie Annus erat regni Augusti. The Transcriber not understanding this sufficiently, in process of time, made of thefe Letters the word Ara: in the first fense the word comes from A.c. and Are in the Plural Number, from whence was made the Ære of the Feminine Gender. bither because in their Accompts to every parcicular Sum, they prefix'd the Word Ara, as we do now frem, or because the Number of Years was mark'd down in Tables with little Brais Nails.

ARA MILITUM, in Sustantias, the Soldiers Pay, because that Money was antiently made of Brass.

ÆR A R.I U M, the publick Treafury, the Revenues of the Remm Common-wealth, for deflaying their necessary Expences both in time of Peace and War.

ERARIUM MILITARE, the Burnels fettled by Cofor-Angular, for maintaining the Roman Armies, which were managed by Three Treafurers.

BRARIUM VICESIMARUM. 2 Treasury or Fund which arose from the Twentieth part, and was kept as a Referve for the extreme Necessities of the Common wealth. As foon as the People of Rome became powerful enough to enlarge the Bounds of their Empire, and conquer almost all the World, they held it their utmost Policy to make themselves absolute Masters of the Conquer'd and their Poffessions: and therefore all the Gold and Silver, and even the precious Moveables which could be carried away, after some part of 'em had been diffributed among the Soldiers, were carried away to Rome, where they forv'd, first to make up the Pomp of their Triumph, and then were lock'd up in the publick Treasury, to be kept as an eternal Monument to Posterity of the Glory of the Conquerors, and the Shame of the Conquered. The Victors referv'd to themselves the entire Propriety of the Lands and Immoveables, permitting the Vanquish'd to be Usu fructuarii, which was only to enjoy the Products of the Earth, on condition that they cultivated it, and paid them an-

were call'd Agri velligales, or Pradia tributaria & flipendiaria, because they paid a fort of Tribute or annual Acknowledgment. The Inhabitants, but especially those who refus'd to capitulate or furrender themselves, were made Slaves, and fold; but because there was nor always a quick Market for them, and it was thought disadvantagious to the Republick to depopulate whole Countries, they often left a part of them free in the enjoyment of their Estates, charging them with a Tax and annual Acknowledgment, befides a Poll, and Service and Homages, which they were obliged to render to the Romans as their Masters : This Capitation was indifferently levyed upon all forts of persons, without respect to Sex or Condition. the Males from Fourteen, the Females from Twelve to Sixty Five Years; the Fathers were oblig'd to pay for all their Children. The People of Rome, as Plmy informs us, were not deliver'd from this Tribute till after Paulus Æmifins had conquer'd Macedonia, and led Perfins, its King, Captive to Rome, Ann. Rom. 586. Paulus Æmilius Perfeo rege Macedonico devillo des. - a que tempore Pepulus Romanus tributum pendere defin. This Poll-Tax was only paid upon account of each particular Persons Estate, and therefore, every Fourth Year, a strict account was taken of all the Subjects of the Empire, and their Effate, by certain Officers, who were call'd at first Genferes, and afterwards, under the change of the Government, Cenfitures, Perequitores, & hipettores, because they numbred the Citizens, and valu'd their Effates, in order to tax 'em the Hundreth part annually. Hence it was, in the Roman Common-wealth, there were Two forts of Taxes, one that was paid for their Head, and another which was paid for their Goods or Lands : Cenfus five tribution : aliad pradii, aliad capitis. There was also annther Tax paid for every Head of Carrel. 'Ties not easie to tell exactly what these Five forts of fertled Taxes amounted to yearly, which made up the Revenue of the Common wealth : butwe may eafily judg, that these Taxes amounted to vaft Sums, fince they contain'd the Eighth or Tenth part of the whole Revenue of those vaft Provinces, which reach'd from Herceles Pillars as far as the River Euphrates, without reckoning the Money they made of their Paffures. Many have endeavour'd to make a Calculation of it, but they have not done it with any Exactness. To this common Revenue a Fourth. was added, which accru'd by the Impositions on the importing and exporting of Commodities, not only on the Frontiers of the Empire. but at Havens, Sea-Ports, Gares of Cities. Bridges, High-ways, and Rivers; but this was not fo certain as the former, being very uncertain .

on the account of the Diversity of places and 4 Archers and Guards, made use of 'em as Mi-Alteration of Trade: Yet the most common way was to pay the Twentieth, fometimes the Fortieth or the Fiftieth part, the least that ever was paid was the Hundreth, and the highest was the Eighth part. Foreign Commodities which ferv'd only for Luxury and Delicacy, paid the greatest Tax: But we must distinguish betwirt this Duty and what was paid as Tol-Money at Bridges and Gates, fince they were Two different things. The Officers and Magiftrates of the Common-wealth paid nothing for the Carriage of Goods which were for their own use. There was also, another Revenue, which was no less considerable than the former which was rais'd from Mines of Gold and Silver, and other Metals, as also from Marshes

All this may give us a general view, wherein the Revenues of the Roman Common-wealth confifted, which ferv'd to maintain all publick Offices and Expences under the popular State, and whereof a great part was return'd into the publick Treasury : But when the Government was chang'd by Civil Wars, which confum'd the Revenues and exhausted the Treasury, and the Supreme Power was vested in the Cefars, this was the occasion of a new Expence for maintaining the Princes Family and his Officers: and therefore Augustus made a Partition of all the Revenues we have now mention'd, allowing one part of it to the People, and referving the other to himfelf : From whence there arole Two forts of Treasuries, one for the People, which was call'd Erarium publicum, and another for the Prince, which was call'd Fiscus, the Exchequer, whereof we shall speak in its proper place. And fo Authors do commonly put a difference between Erarium and Fifcus : 25 Suetenius, who in the Life of Vefpafian, fays of that Prince, Neceffitate compulfus, fumma erarii fiscique impia: Yet there are some who confound these two words, because the Prince did equally dispose of 'em both, although they were divided for preferving some Memory of their antient Liberty.

At the beginning of their Conquests under a popular State, there was no other Method for raifing them but this; the People of Rome hawing made both the Persons and Estates of the Conquer'd tributary to 'em, after the manner we have already declar'd, fent into each Prowince a Governour, who was call'd Proconful, Prætor, or Pro-Prætor, because he exercis'd in that Province the Office und Authority of a Raman Conful and Przetor, with whom was joyn'd another Magistrate, who was a kind of Treasurer, whom they call'd Quaster, who tinople, this Method of collecting the Tribute levy'd the publick Revenues: These Two nisters for executing Justice and levying of Taxes, which were laid up in a Cheft, out of which they took what was necessary for the Governors and military Men, and for all publick Affairs, and then fent the remainder to Rome, to be kept in the publick Treasury, which was in the Temple of Saturn under the Care of a Quefter, whom they call'd Prafettus arerii. the Treasurer; and out of this Treasury was taken whatever was necessary for the publick Buildings, for Games and Shows, for the Maintenance of their Armies by Sea and Land, and for the Reception of Ambassadors from foreign Nations. This first Custom of gathering Taxes by the Quaffers did not last always : for a new way was introduc'd of Letting out all the publick Revenues in each Province to private Men, who farm'd them commonly for five years at a certain Sum, payable every four Months, for which they gave good and fufficient Security. Nevertheless the Governors and Questors of Provinces were not changed; they still gave Authority to these Farmers, had the Overlight of them in levying the Taxes, and determin'd all Differences that arose about them; they took care also that the Farmers should pay the full Value of their Leafes, notwithstanding any Deficiencies that might happen, which they run the rifque of. Of these Farmers Companies were made, whereof fome were Farmers for one kind of Tribute; and others for another; some were Farmers of the twentieth. the tenth, the eighth, some of the hundredth part, and of the other Taxes before-mention'd, and were therefore call'd Offavarii, Decimarii, Vigelimarii, &c. Those who farm'd the Gathering of the Tribute were call'd Mancipes, Redempteres vettigalium, and Publicani; this laft Name, which at first was honourable, according to the testimony of Gicero, in his Oration for Manlius, became afterwards very odious, for their Harshness and Injustice in exacting upon the People ; infomuch that Nero was fully refolv'd to abolish them, and had done it, if he had not been hindred by the Remonftrances of the Senate; but he oblig'd them to fet up Writing-Tables in their Places of meeting, to specific what Tribute was to be paid for each thing.

This way of Farming the Publick Revenues lasted a long while under the Emperours, and from hence it comes to pass, that in the Law-Books and chiefly in Pandells, there is a Title De Publicanis, or Of Men of Bufiness. But after the Seat of the Empire was translated to Conflanwas wholly chang'd for that which follows. Magistrates having under em a Company of viz. Every year towards the End of Summer,

Affairs under the Prince, drew up a general Accompt of all that was to be impos'd and levy'd upon the People, and after they had fha- Right of voting in his Tribe, to be depriv'd of red this among the Præfectures or Provinces. and stated the particular Sum which each Province was to pay, they fent Commissions. which they call'd Delegationer, to the four Lieutenant-Generals of the Empire, who were called Prafetti Pratorio, among whom it was divided; but they had under them many Provinces, and each Province had its own peculiar Governour. These Lieutenant-Generals having received that Accompt which belonged to their share of the Empire, sent particular Commissions to each Governour of a Province. and he fent them to the Municipal Magistrates in each City, call'd Decuriones, who in each City made a kind of Corporation, or Municipal Senate, and took care of the Affairs of that City. These Magistrates, whom we may after a fort compare to our Mayors, Sheriffs, Aldermen, Common-councilmen and Judges of the City, were bound, upon receiving the Tax which was to be imposed, to name some Persons of their Corporation, who were to lay it equally upon each particular Person, upon which account they were call'd Perequateres or Discusfores ; and after this was done, the Publick Notary or Town-Clerk enter'd down every Man's every one might know what he was rated at. and what he must pay to the Collectors, who were call'd Susceptores. The Sums of Money employ'd to pay off those who bore any Office in the Province, and the Remainder was fent to Rome, to be kept in the publick Treasurv. Prafectus Erarii, and after Conftantine's time, Comes facrarum largitimum; or elfe it was put into the Prince's Privy-Purfe, and intrufted in his hands, who took care of it, and was call'd the Provinces one of his Officers, who was to press the fending of the Money, and a month after another Officer, who was call'd Compulsor: and both of these were maintain'd at the Expence of the Governour.

These were the offinary ways that were us'd in the Roman Empire for levving the Taxes which were laid upon Persons and Lands in the conquer'd Provinces: But as for the Customs upom Goods imported or exported, these were collected, by those that farm'd them, at the Sea Ports, or the Gates by which they enter'd into or went out of a City, according to the Tax which was laid on them.

ÆRARIUS, he who was liable to be tax'd, from whence comes the Phrase Erarium fieri, to be made fubiect to Taxes, to want the the Privileges and Immunities of a City, and forc'd to be oblig'd to contribute to the publick Expences. Ex erariis aliquem eximere, to restore one to his Rights and the Privileges of a Citizen, to exempt one from Taxes.

AER, the Air, which by the Antients was taken for a Deity. Anaximenes the Milefian, and Diogenes Apolloniates affirm'd the Air to be their God : but Cicere and St. Austin confute them by very firong Arguments. This Holy Doctor informs us, that these two Philosophers did no otherwise attribute Divinity to the Air, but as they believ'd it was fill'd with an Infinite Intelligence, and an infinite number of particular Spirits who made their abode in it; and fo their Opinion is co-incident with that Idea of the Platenists, who thought that God was the Soul of the World, and that all the Parts of the World were full of Spirits and living Substances. The Allyrians and Africans gave the Air the Name of June, or Venus Urania and Virgo, as we learn from Julius Firmicus, de Err. Prof. Rel. The Egrotians gave the Air the Name and Worship. of Minerva, as Eusebius testifies, Aera verò aiunt ab iis Minervam vecari. But Diederus Siculus has better unveil'd the Mystery of this Doctrine, Name in a Roll, and the particular Sum he was | speaking of the Egyptians, he says, Acri porrò Ato pay : which was afterward's publish'd, that thene, few Minerve nomen quadam vocis interpretatione tribuisse, Jovisque filiam hanc & virginem putari ; co quòd Aer natura corruptioni non obnoxius fit. & fummum munds locum obtineat. Unde etiam which were rais'd by these Taxes, were first fabula & Jouis vertice illam enatam. Vocari autem tritogeniam, quòd ter in anno naturam mutet. vere. aftate, hieme : & glaucam dici, non quod glaucos. id eft, cafies habet ocules, infulfum enim boc effet : which was under the Care of a Treasurer, who | fed quod Aer glauco fit colore : To the Air was given in the times of the first Emperours was call'd | the Name of Athena or Minerva, who was thought to be the Daughter of Jupiter, and a Virgin, because the Air by its nature is not liable to corruption. and it possesses the highest place of the World : from whence arose the Fable, that Minerva came out of Comes Rei Privata. The Treasurer sent into | Juniter's Brain; and she is faid to be begotten thrice, because the Air changes three times in a year. viz. at Spring, Summer and Winter; her Eyes were faid to be blue, because the Air appears to be of that colour.

The Greeks and Romans did most readily call the Air by the Names of Jupiter and June; and thus they diftinguish'd two Vertues in the Air. the one Active and Malculine, the other Patfive and Feminine, as we learn from Senece in his Natural Questions: Aera marem judicant. qua ventus est : feminam, qua nebulofus & iners. Yet it must be confess'd, that June was most commonly taken for the Air; and fo the Greek Name of June des, is faid to be nothing elfe but a eranfoa• transposition of sine. After this manner Cicero explains the Fable of June ; Aer, ut Steici difputant, interjectus inter mare & celum, Junenis nomine consecratur, que est foror & conjux Jouis, quod ei fimilitudo est atheris, & cum eo summa conjunctio. From whence we may fee the reason of the Affinity and Marriage between Jupiter and June, i.e. between the Heaven and the Air, and also plainly understand that other Fable of Homer, That Jupiter hang'd June in a Chain, having Two Anvils which were fafien'd to his Feet, which fignifies nothing but the dependance that the Air has upon the Heaven, and which the Sea and Land have upon the Air.

ÆS. See after Æsculapius. ÆSCULANUS, the Æsculan God, who was the God of Riches, according to S. Austin in the City of God, because Brass in former times was us'd for Money. ÆSCULAPIUS, the God of Phylick, whom Sancheniathen makes the Son of Jupiter, and Brother of Mercury; and Clemens Alexandrinus affirms to have reign'd at Memphis. La-Elastius, in his fhort History of the Greek Æfeulapius, affirms, that he was born at Meffina of uncertain Parents, and nurs'd at Epidaurus by a Birch, and educated by Chire, of whom he learned Medicine. Paulanius, upon the Pi-Cture of the Phlegyans, relates, that a Shepherd having found the Infant Æsculapius, when he was just born, nurs'd him by a Goat of his Flock, and guarded him by his Dog. Feftus contradicts him, and fays that Affenlapin was nurs'd by a Bitch, and that in Memory thereof, Dogs were kept in the Temple of Alculapius. Hemer and Owld following him, fay, Apollo was his Father, and Coronis the Daughter of King Phlegyas, his Mother, who, when the was big with Child with this Æsculapius, of whom Apollo was Father, proftituted herfelf to a Fellow call'd Ilchys, the Son of Elatus. But Diana, Apollo's Sifter, refenting the Affront put upon her Brother, kill'd Ceronis with an Arrow the shot at her; and as she was ready to be laid upon the Funeral-Pile, Mercury came and took the Child out of her Womb, who was call'd Alculapius from the Egyptian word Elch, which fignifies a Goat, and Cheleph, which fignifies a Dog, because he was nurs'd by a Goat and guarded by a Dog. Pinder, in his Third Ode of his Pythia, fays, That Apollo himself took the Child out of its Mothers Womb. There are fome Authors would have him to be the Son of Arfinee, the Daughter of Leucippa the Mellinian : But that was contradicted by the Oracle of Delphos, which Apollophones of Areadie confulted : for that Oracle answer'd him, That Æsculspins was born at Epideurus of the Nymph Coronis, the Daughter of Phlogras. Indeed the Epidaurians were the first who appointed a Festival to be kept in Honour of him, wherein they were follow'd by the Athenians, who call'd thefe Festivals Epidaureane. and plac'd Æsculapius among the number of their Gods, as did likewise the Inhabitants of Pergamus and Smyrns, who built him a Temple by the Sea-side He had also a Temple at Cyrene, under the Name of the Physician, by way of Excellency; and the fame Worship was paid, and the same Sacrifices offer'd to him there as at Epideurus, except that Goats were offer'd to him only in the Temple at Cyrene. The Starne of this God, which was plac'd in the Temple of Epideurus, was of Gold and Ivory, made by Thrafymeder the Son of Arignotus of the Isle of Para; it was seated upon a Throne of the same matter, holding in one hand a knotted Battoon, and the other leaning on the Head of a Serpent, with a Dog at his feet. There were many Pictures to be feen in that Temple, on the Walls and Pillars of it. wherein divers Difeases that had been cur'd. were reprefented, and the Medicines that had been us'd for that end.

Sanchoniathen afferts, that the first who was nam'd Æsculapius was an Egyptian, and he ranks him among the Gods, call'd Cabires, or The petent Gods, together with Mercury; and therefore Pliny had reason to say, That the Egyptians boulted themselves to be the first Inventors of Phylick. There is no doubt but there were many of that Name, and that the most antient was he who was the Ecoption : whence it came to pass, that Autonimus the Senator, built a Temple at Epidaurus to Health, Apollo, and Æ culapine, Surnam'd Egyptian. But Ælculapius of Epidaurus was the most famous in all Greece. Cicero rockons up Three Alculapius's in Greece; the First was the Son of Apollo, worfhip'd by the Arcadians, who first found out the Ligatures and Bandages of Wounds; the Second was the Brother of the fecond M.rcury, who was kill'd by Thunder, and interr'd at Crnolura: the Third was the Son of Arlippus and Artime, who raught first how to purge and draw Teeth, whose Sepulchre is to be seen, with a little Grove which was confectated to him in Arcadia. Afculapiorum primus, Apollinis, quem Arcades colunt, qui fpecillum inveniffe, primufque vulnus obligaviffe dicitur. Secundus, fecuendi Mercurii frater; is fut ine percuffus, dicitur humatus offe Cynofuris. Tertius, Arfippi & Arfinoe, qui primus purgationem alvi, dentisque evulfionem, at ferunt invenit ; cujus in Arcadia fepulchrum & lucus oftenditur. By which we may plainly observe, that when once the Name of Æfculapius was brought from Egypt into Greece, it was given to many others who invented any new way of Drelling Wounds or Curing Difeafes.

Difeafes. The most antient Esculapius a- I flay, during which time the Serpent crawl'd a-shoar mangft the Greeks was not born till a thousand Years after him of the Egyptians. S. Clemens Alculapius : Some days after it return'd to the Alexandrinus reckons his Apotheofis, as well as Ship again, and continu'd there till the Ship in its Hercules's to be Fifty Three Years after the taking of Troy, which agrees very well with come overagainst Rome, this facred Serpent quitted Homer, who speaks of Machaon, the Son of Æsculapius, among those who were at the Siege of Troy : And to him Diodorus Siculus refers | it ; and then immediately the Plague ceased. what Cicero faid, That he was Thunder-ftruck. This Historian, to fet forth the admirable Knowledg of this excellent Physician, relates. as Hiftory, what probably is nothing but an ingenious Fable, viz. That he rais'd Hippolytus | rus Æsculapius, under the figure of a living Serfrom the dead by his Medicines. Plute complain'd of this to Juniter, who ftruck Elculasius with a Thunder-bolt : Apollo reveng'd his Death upon the Cycloper, who made his Thunderbolts, and kill'd them with his Arrows : Jupiter punish'd apollo by condemning him to feed | young Man. Admetus's Flocks. Pliny affirms, that there was no other knowledg of Phylick at the Siege of Troy, but only to cure Wounds, and after that, it was neglected until the Peloponnesian War ; for then it was that Hippocrates, as 'tis faid, compos'd his Treatifes of Phylick from the Inscriptions in the Temple of Æsculapius, where Persons were oblig'd by a Law to set down all the Remedies which the fick had us'd with fuccess for their Cure. He adds, That the antient Romans rejected all Phylicians, and therefore the Temple of Afculapius was plac'd without the City; the 'tis more probable to think, that it was rather done to fignifie, that the Country-Air is purer and better for recovery of Health.

The reason why the Romans built a Temple to Æsculapius, in an Island of the Tiber, near to Rome, as it is related by Aurelius Victor, in his Book of Illustrious Men, was, The Romans, Says be, at a time when the Plague rag'd at Rome, and the places round about it, confulted the Oracle, which gave them this Answer. That if they would be freed from it, they should fetch the God AESculapius from Epidaurus : Whereupon they fent thither Ten Deputies, the chief whereof was Quintus Ogulnius, who arriving at the City, went immediately to pay their Respects and Adorations to Æsculapius; but at the same time, while they were admiring his Statue, which was of extraordinary bignels, they fam a great Serpent come out of a Vault near the Idel, which imprinted upon the minds of all Men a profound Veneration, rather than any Terror : It paled through the midst of the City across the Streets, and went directly to the Ship that waited for the Romans, where it posted it felf in the Cabin of Ogulnius. The Romans being aftentib'd at this Judden and happy success of their Voyage, fail'd away presently to carry off the God, and arrived Jafe at the Pert of Antium, where they made fome and went into a neighbouring Temple dedicated to course arriv'd at the Tiber : But when they were the Ship, and retir'd into a neighbouring Island, where the Romans took care to build a Temple for Paulanias relates a Story fomething like this in his Corinthiaca, where he tells us, That Nicagors the Mother of Agasicles, and Wife of Echetion, brought along with her from Epidaupent, in a Litter drawn with two Mules, as far as the City of Sicyona, where the was born. Philostratus adds, That he had read somewhere. that this Serpent was formerly kept by Æfeulapius, under Mount Pelion, when he was a

Lucian, in his Dialogue, entituled Alexander, or The falle Prophet, discovers to us what gave occasion to represent Æsculapius under the figure of a Serpent. He fays then, That the falle Prophet Alexander, having affociated himself with a Byzantine Analist, call'd Cocconas, they ment together into Bithynia, where they observed that great Serpents were kept fo tame, that they fucked the Breasts of Women, and playd with Children without doing them any burt : (from whence doubtless comes the Fable of Olympius, who is faid to lye in Bed with a Serpent.) They bought therefore one of the largest and fairest of 'em-(which is the Source and Original of the Serpent of Æsculapius,) and made choice of Paphlagonia. where the Spirits of Men are more dull and superstitious, as a fit place to fet up for cheating the People. and venting their Impostures. Alexander therefore having a long head of Hair well comb'd, and clad in a Glock of purple firip'd with white, which was cour'd over with a Surplice, belding in his hand a Faulchion, like Perfeus, from whom he faid he was descended by the Mothers side, bid some Plates of Braft in an old Temple of Apollo, which is at Calcedonia, and wrote upon them. That Alculmius would quickly come with his Father Apollo, to fettle his abode in this place: But withal, he fo order'd the matter by his Tricks, thut thefe Plates should be found out, and presently the News of them was spread over all Pontus and Bithynia; informeb, that the Inhabitants decreed a Temple to be built for these Gods, and begun to dig the Foundations of it. Our Prophet transported himfelf in the Night-time to the place where they were digging the Foundations of the Temple, and having found there some Spring, or at least some Rain-water. he hid in it a Birds Egg , wherein he had inclos'd a very little Serpent which was newly hatch'd: The next day, very early in the morning, he came into the Market-place Stark naked, having only a gilded Girdle about him to cover his Nakedness; and helding his Faulchion in his band , he mounted upon an Altar, and began to hold forth to the People, faying That this place was happy, for being honour with the Birth of a God : At thele words the whole City, which had flock'd together to fee this Sight, became very attentive, and fell a-making Vows, and faying Prayers, while he was pronouncing Some barbarous words in the lewish or Phoenitian Language. After this, he ran to the place where be had hid his Birds Egg, and going into the Water, be fell a-finging the Praises of Apollo and Æsculapius, and invited the latter to descend, and them himself visibly among Men : At the Speaking of thefe words he dip'd a Cup into the Water, and drew out of it that mysterious Egg which held a God inclosed in it, and while he had it in his hand, he told the People, That it contain'd Æiculapius: The People being very attentive to behold this wonderful Mystery, be broke the Egg, and out came the little Serpent that was lodg'd in it, which twin'd round about his Fingers : And immediately the Air was fill'd with Shouts of Joy, which were intermix'd with Bleffings and Praises; one desired Health of the God, and another Honour and Riches. In the mean sime our Impostor return'd to his Lodging very joyful, bolding in his band Æsculapius born of an Egg, and not of a Crow, (as was faid of him in former zimes, who was the Sen of Coronis, which fignifies & Crow) and be that himfelf up in the House with him, until the God was become a great one ; and one day when all Paphlagonia came flocking about him. he fate upon a Bed in bis Prophetick Habit, and holding that Serpent in his Bofom which be had brought from Macedonia, be fbem'd him to the People folding about his Neck, and drawing after him a long Tail, fo predigious was his bignefs. This Truth is also confirm'd by many Medals coin'd by the Emperors and the People, mpon which & Culapius is represented like a great Serpent. The First is the Reverse of a Brais Medal of Anteninus Pius, coin'd by the Inhabitants of Aboniteichor, whose Tail made many Foldings, and which without doubt was the Figure of that of Alexander the Impostor, fince these two words are added to it, ABO-NITEIXITON TATKON, the Glycon of the Abmiteichites, i. e. the Inhabitants of that City of Paphlagonia which is call'd Abonizeiches. or the Castle of Abonas. By this Medal we Jearn, that the true Name which Alexander gave to Efculapius, when he return'd to the World under the form of a Serpent, was Glycon, which comes from the Greek word Naun's which is as much as to fay, Sweet and beneficial to Man-

we have feen also this God sepresented in the Medals of the Nicomedians, having the Body of a Serpent and the Head of a Man, with his Instription: upon a Marble CNEUS

GNAVIUS. Philonimus confectated this Marble in refirmony of his Thankfulnes to Efculapius the Conferver and Preferver of Mankind, and to Health, which the Greeks call Hygia, and the Latinet, Edua, which they fay was the Daughter of Æsculapius: She is there reprefented as giving him fomething to eat or drink, and holding in her Left-hand a lighted Torch.

We have also a Medal of Anteninus Pius, whereon is engraven Two Serpents, with the Name of Abmitcibitis; whereof the one is bitting the Head of the other, to signifie that Apulla, the Good of Physick, communicated his Knowledg to his Son Æsulapius; and also a Medal of the same Emperor, which represents the Arrival of Æsulapius at Rome in an Island of the Tiber, under the shape of a Serpent, as Aurelius Viller has inform d us.

The first Inventer of Physick, according to the opinion of the Greeks and Romans, was Apollo, the Father of Æsculapius, as we learn from Ovid, in these Verses, wherein he brings in Apollo thus speaking, Inventum Medicina meum est, opiserque per orbem. Dicor, & herbarum est subjecta potentia nobis. Metam. l. 1. v. 521.

And thus the first God which Hippacraire taught his Scholars to fever by, was Apollo the Phylician; and then after that they swore by Escalapius, Hyzis, and Panaccas. Yet Hyzinus, the enstranchis'd Slave Says, that Apollo was only the Inventer of Medicines for the Eyes, and that Chirms was the Author of Chiurgery, and Esculapius of that fort of Physick which is call'd the Glinics, i.e. which teaches how to visit and treat the sick which are confin'd to their Bed; tho Lucian tells us, that he set up an Apothecaries Shop at Pergamus; but this looks like a piece of Railery of this Saryrist.

There are also antient Medals of Braits and Silver, done by the Family of the Acilii, with the Head of Affeldapias crownd with a Laurel on one fide, either because he was the Son of Apollo, to whom that Tree was conferred, or because it supplies Medicines for the Cure of Wounds.

Mbritis describes Esculative in the habit of a Physsician, with a long Beard of massy Gold, which Dienssius, the Tyrant of Syrauss, took away from him, alledging in Railery, that it did not become the Son to be represented with a Beard, since his Father Apollo, who was much older than he, had none. In this figure Esculative holds his Beard with his right-hand, as it has a profound study, and in his left-hand a Staff, about which a Serpent is twining; the Serpent intimates to us that Diffase with respect to Physicians, are like a Serpent which casts off its old Skin, because Physicians are to free the Sick from Diffases and Instend ties, and make them healthful and vigorous: another reason why this Animal is confectated to the God of Phylick, is, because the Serpent being the Emblem of Prudence, it fignifies, that this Virtue is more especially requisite for a Physician. Pliny thinks that the Serpent was dedicated to Æsculapius, because there are some Salts extracted from this Animal, which are Ingredients in many Medicines that are necesfary for the Preservation of Life: the Staff was likewife given to him to fignifie that those persons who are raised up from a sick Bed, had need manage themselves well to prevent a Relapfe, or rather because Physick is the Comfort and Staff of Life; this Staff had Knots in it, to fignifie the Difficulty of this Art, and that it was not easie to cure Diseases.

ÆS, a Metal which was found in the Bowels of the Earth, whereof Money was antiently made: which gives me occasion to speak of several kinds of Money and their use.

The certain that at first People traffick'd one with another, by Exchanges of Commodities which their own Country produc'd, for those of Forein Countries: Bur the Difficulty they found in ballancing these Exchange, pur them upon the Invention of Money, made of Metal or other Materials, according to the Diversity of Countries. The Lacedomonian had no other Mony but livtle round pieces or legots of red kron, which had been quench'd in Vinegar. Cefar, in his Commentaries, ib. 7. lays, that in England there was no other Money but what was made of Copper and Lead, together with some Buttons and Rings of Iron, which they weight'd.

Authors are very much divided about the Invention and antient Use of Money: Some think that it is not very antient; and thefe ground their Opinion upon the Authority of Homer, who fays, Iliad. lib. 7. the Greeks bought the Wine which was brought to them in Ships from Lemnos, by giving in exchange for it Copper, Iron, Skins of Beafts, Cattel, and fometimes Slaves. This Opinion is also confirm'd by another Passage in Iliad. lib. 6. where the Poet relates that Glaucus exchang'd his Armour of Gold, which was reckon'd to be worth an hundred Oxen, for that of Diomedes, which was only of Brass. But Pollux lib. 9. c. 7. understands by these Oxen, not any living Animals, but pieces of Money on which was flampt the figure of an Ox; which is justify'd by the Authority of Plutarch, in the Apothegms of Agefilian, who complains that he was driven out of Alia by thirty thousand Men of the King of Persia's, which were arm'd with Bows and Arrows; by which he meant fo many pieces of Gold, call'd Daricks, which were flampt with an Archer.

Others, on the contrary, will have it that Money made of Metal has been used in all times, from the beginning of Mankind. This Opinion they build on a passage in Josephus, in his tenth Book Of the Jewish Antiquities, where he makes Cain the Inventor of it, and favs that he increas'd his Riches by the Mony which he amais'd from all parts. In the twentieth Chapter of Genesis, 'tis observ'd, that Abimelech made a Present to Abraham of a thousand pieces of Silver, Ecce mille argenteos dedi fratri tuo. And the Sons of Jacob carried pieces of Silver into Egypt to buy Corn with during the Famine, for the Scripture tells us that Joseph their Brother order'd the Silver to be put into their Sacks together with the Corn.

We cannot therefore clearly discover, in these dark times of Antiquity, who was the first Inventer or Cohper of Money. We read indeed in Genisis ch. 4. vo. 22. that Tubel-Cain, the Son of Lamech and Stad, was a Worker in Brass and Iron; but 'tis not said that he coin' any Money: All the Certainty we can find in this matter, is only the use of pieces of Gold and Silver in Commerce from the beginning of the World, which may be prov'd by many places of Genefit and Esodau, and by the 43 ch. of the Prophet Exetici.

The Hebrews or Ifraelites us'd many pieces of money in their Traffick.

The Great Cicar, or the Talent of the Sanctuary, which weigh'd 100 Mine, or 250 Remanpounds.

The Manch or Mina, which weigh'd two pounds and a half, or 30 ounces.

The Shekel of the Santhuary, which weigh'd.

half an ounce or 20 Obols.

The Drachma, which had an Harp on one fide, and on the other a Bunch of Grapes.

The Little Shekel which weigh'd two drams.

The Gera or Obebu, which weigh'd from 14

The Gera or Obshu, which weigh'd from 12 to 15 grains

Hiradinia fays, that the Lydinus were the first who coind pieces of Gold and Silver: But there are fome Authors who attribute the first Coining of Money to Erichbusus the fourth King of Alban; and others who afteribe it to Junz King of Theffahy, of whom Lucan is one, in the, 7, of his Pabralia.

Plusarly, in the Life of Thefaus the tenth King of Athem, fays, He cau'd queees of Silver to be coin'd of the value of two drachmal, having on one fide an Ox, in favour of the Marathmin Bull, or the Captan Minstaurus; and on the other Jupiter with an Owl. He caus'd alfo another piece to be coin'd, which was flampt on one fide with a Minerus, and on the other with two Owl, to thew that it was of double the value: they were call'd Staters, (being worth two findlings and four pence) and weight drour drams.

The Money of the Pelepennesians was stampt with a Snail, which gave occasion to that Proverb, & agerlui, zi & orgine rixarras 300 aut The Snail surpasses Wildom and Vertue, which is as much as to fay, All things are procurd by Money.

Philip, the Father of Alexander the Great. caus'd pieces of Gold to be made, which bore his own Image and Name. Plantus mentions them in his Bacchides; Ducentos nummos auros Philippeos probos dabin'?

The Cyzicenians who liv'd in Bithynia caus'd pieces of Silver to be coin'd of a very fine Metal, wheron was engraven the Goddess Cybele on one fide, and on the Reverse was a Lion.

But it does most clearly appear, That among the Romans, Servius Tullus their King was the first who caus'd Brass-Money to be coin'd, for in former times they used Brass in the Lump of a Pound-weight, which was call'd As grave, as Pliny affares us, Servius rex primus figuravit es, antes rudi ufer Reme Timeus tradit. The first Money therefore that the Ramans us'd was made of Brass, about the year 180 from the Building of Rome : It was frampt with a Sheep, or, according to Varre, with an Ox; from whence comes the word Pecunia to fignific Silver: the fome think that the word comes from the Leather-Money which Nama caus'd to be made, ex affibus fcorteis.

Meversheles Platarch mentions a Money more antient, which Saturn caus'd to be flampt. having on one side his own figure, and on the other a Ship; that he might leave to Posterity a Monument of his Flight, and Arrival in Italy on Ship-board.

Macrebius favs. It was Janus who caus'd this Money to be frampt in honour of Satura, which Ovid confirms in these Verses.

> At bens posteritus puppin formavit in are Mofatis adventum teltificata Dei.

Whether it were Saturn or Janus that coin'd this Money fignifies little: nevertheless it makes it evident that Servius Tullus was not the first who coined Brass-Money, unless they mean that he was the first who stamp'd Figures of Animals on it, and gave it a Currency throughout Isoly.

Aurelius Viller mentions a certain Game amongst the Romans, by toffing up a piece of Janus's Money, faying Navi an Dii? which will you have, a God or a Ship? because it had the Head of a God represented on one fide, and a Ship on the other, (like our Crofs or Pile.)

Yet the pieces of Copper-Money, which were made in a Mass of a pound-weight, were not used of a long time : for the first Pay that the Roman Legions received, was of this Money, according to Titus Livius; also Pecuniary Mulcts were paid in this fort of Coin.

But, according to the Falli Capitelini, in the year 485, and five years before the first Punick War, under the Confulthip of Q. Fabius Maximus Pictor and L. Quintius Gulo, certain Silver pieces were coin'd which were called Denarit, because they were of the value of ten Aller; Argentum signatum, says Pliny, anno Urbis quadringentesimo ellegesimo quinte, quinque annis ante primum bellum Punicum.

This is the Sum of what hath been hitherto faid of the Reman Money. In the time of Nums the Romans used Leather-Money, Nummis scortes : and for two hundred years after, Copper always in a Mass of a pound-weight. Servius Tullus, their fixth King coined pieces of a less value, which he call'd Trientes and Quesdrantes, these had the Figure of a Ship stampt upon them : He also coin'd other kinds, which he called Sextantes, and Unciales, or Unciaria Stips. These are all the forts which were currant among the Romans all this time.

There were also several small forts of Leaden Money, according to Martial, lib. 10. spigr.

Centum merebor plumbeos die toto. Silver pieces were not coined till the year 485. viz. the Denarius, which was ten Affes in value : the Semidenarius, call'd Quinarius, or five Affes; the fourth part of the Denarius, call'd Seftertisom; and laftly, the Terancius. All these forts of Money were Silver, stampt on one fide with a Woman's Head, which represented Rome, and on the other with a X, or a V, or fome other Letter to fignific the Value. Upon fome of them was frament the Images of Caffer and Pollux, two Roman Gods. There were other kinds also, on which was represented Vittory on foot crowning a Trophy with Garlands. ferred on a Triumphal Chariot, holding out Garlands, ready to crown the Victorious. Feflus and Titus Livius call them. Nummi Victorati. Bigati, Quadrigati.

In the latter Ages of the Commonwealth. the Masters of the Mint caus'd the Heads of fuch Persons as were famous either in War or Peace, with a Representation of their great Actions to be stampt on pieces of Money.

Pieces of Gold called Nummi surei, were not used in Commerce, till the Consulship of Claudies Nero and Livius Salinetor, which was in the year $46, after the Building of Rome, and fixty two years after these pieces of Silver began to be current: they weighed two drams and an half.

Per es & libram, or Ære & libra, were Phrafes used among the Romans in felling by weight and ballance.

Their Adoptions, Obligations, Expertations, Parments, Sales, and Purchases, were made in Copper, by guess and weight, as we shall shew under Denarii aperti.

定 S の ÆS, this Word also fignifies a Bell, with which the Romans us'd to give notice that the Publick Baths were open, or going to be flut; as we may learn from that of Martial, lib. 14. epigr. 163.

Redde pilan, fonat es thermarum.

ÆSO, Æson, the Father of Jason, whom Mides reftor'd to his Youth again, by the power of her Magick.

ÆSOPUS, Æsop, who composed the Fables, fo ingenious, and full of good Instruflions, there being not any one of them but contains excellent moral Advice, which may make us just and prudent in the conduct of our Lives. We may with pleafure fee there most natural Representations of all mundane Transactions. The Pictures are not drawn with dead Colours, but with living and fenfitive Creatures, which do not only represent to us the Faces and outward Shapes of Men. but also the Dispositions of their Mind. Æfop was a Phrygian Slave, of finall flature, very deform'd, being bunch'd behind and before. He obtained the Gift of making Fables of Mercury, as we learn from Philostratus in his Description of Fables; When I was a Child (favs he) my Mother sold me a flory of Fables. ÆSop (continues he) being a Shepherd, commonly fed his Flock near a Temple belonging to Mercury, into which he often went to pray that God to inspire him with Knowledge, to which he had a great Inclination. Several Persons frequented the Temple upon the Same account : but the Offerines they made to that God were much more valuable than Æfop's, who had nothing to give him but a few Honey-combs. and the Stroakings of the Milk of his Sheep, with a fem Flowers with which he cover'd his Altars. Mercury, as a bountiful and generous Deity, was willing to reward their Devotions, and answer'd their Prayers; to some he gave Wildom, to others Eloquence; to some Afrology, and others Poetry: Ælop only was forgot in the Distribution, and complain'd of it; Mercury not knowing what remain'd to give him, call'd to mind a Fable which the Hours, his Nurfes, had taught him in his Childbood, of a Cow that spake to a Man, and had made him defire the Oxen of the Sun, whereupon he refelv'd to give Æsop a Faculty of making Fables, in which he became very excellent.

There was another of that Name, who was a Comedian, and Cicero's intimate Friend. Plmy fays of him, That one day he made a Banquet of fuch an excellive Expence, that one Rarou, made of the Tengues of these Birds that imitate Man's voice, which thought to cost fix hundred Sesterces, or fifteen thousand Crowns. He had a Son as extravagant as himfelf, who at a Feaft drank feveral Pearls of extraordinary Value, beat to powder.

AESTAS, Summer, the hottest Seafon of the Year, which is between Spring and Autumn. The Summer heretofore contained fix months, the Year being then divided into two parts only, Winter and Summer : for the Summer was reckon'd from the Equipmen of March to the Equinex of September, and the Winter from the Equinor of September to the Equinox of March.

But the Aftronomers have now divided the Year into four equal parts, or Seafons, Spring. Summer. Autumn and Winter: the Summer Solffice begins in the Sign Cancer, June 12. when the Sun is nearest us, and makes the longest day in the Year. Poets represent the Summer in the Form of a Goddess crowned with Ears of Corn, holding a Sickle in one hand, and a Sheaf of Corn in the other.

ASTIMATIO, Estimation, or Valuation, a Term of the Roman Law, used in buying and felling, and is taken not only for an Appraisment. Value or Price, but also for the things appraised. They say, astimare litem, to signifie, to tax the Cofts of a Suit.

ÆTAS. an Age in general, contained no more at first than twenty five or thirty years : but afterwards it was counted an hundred years. Servius observes, that an Age is taken fometimes for the space of thirty years, for an hundred and ten years, and fometimes for a thousand.

'Tis necessary to say something here of the four Ages of the World, according to the Poets, both Greek and Latin, who have reduc'd them to two, the Golden Age, or as we Chriflians speak, the State of Innocence and Happiness before the Fall of Man; and the Iron Age, or that of Sins and Miferies, after the

What the Scripture informs us concerning that Innocence and Happiness in which God created the first Man, feems to have given occasion for what the Poets have said of the four Ages of the World, viz. the Golden, Silver, Brass, and Iron Ages. Ovid in his Metamorph. lib. 1. ver. 80. has described the Golden Age, which is the State of Innocence, thus,

Aurea prima fata est atas, que vindice nulle . Sponte sua fine lege fidem restumque colebat.

That is called the Silver-Age, in which the Spring was no longer the only Season of the Year, but the Earth refused to produce its Fruits, unless forc'd by the long Labour of Tillage. In fine, when Men had need of Cloths to defend them from the Sharpness and ... Injuries of the Weather, and to apply themfelves to Arts and Sciences, to Supply the Neceffities of Life.

– Subiit argentea proles

Auro deserior.

and Iron, degenerated yet more, and run into all forts of Crimes and Vices.

Tertia post illas successit abenea proles

Sevier ingeniis, O'c, Villa jacet pietas, terras Aftranreliquit.

The Golden Age, or Age of Innocence. it we may believe the Poets, was common to many Nations; for Ovid faith, that in the times of Janus and Saturn the Italians enjoy'd the Company of the Gods, and liv'd in Innocence, Justice, Peace, and all other Advantages of the Golden Age; this he speaks in lib. 1. Fasterum. The Golden Age was then in Italy, when Saturn and Janus reigned there.

Virgil has taken notice but of two Ages, one before the Reign of Jupiter, the other after : for it was in the Reign of Jupiter that Men began to divide and till the ground. 'Twas then that Jupiter condemn'd Men to a hard and laborious Life, and forc'd them to invent Arts. Series follows the fame Method, diftin-enishing the two Ages of Men into just and happy, and unjust and unhappy, viz. the Golden and the Iron Age.

Heffed lived many Ages before these Latin Poets, and made this Distinction of Ages before them. He describes the three first much like those of Ovid. He also calls them the Golden. Silver and Steel Ages; the fourth he makes an Age of Justice and Valour. This fourth Age of Heffed may be computed about the time of Mab, when there was a Restauration of Juflice. This is not the only Point in which Heffed hits upon the Truth ; for he has plainly discover'd that it was Woman by whom all Evil entred into the World : Sed Mulier manibus magnum operculum cum dimovisset, dispersit, bominibus autom immist curas, v. 92. This is the Description he gives of Pandora, who was the first Woman made by the hand of God. This was that Panders who open'd the Fatal Box of Evils which over-fpread the Earth, in which Heffed is follow'd by the other Poets ; as Paulanias observes.

The Life of every Man is likewise divided into Four Ages, or Four different Times of which 'tis made up, viz. Infancy, which continues till the Fourteenth Year; Youth, to Twenty Four; Manhood, to Sixty; and Old Age, to the end of our Life.

The Age or Term of Life at which a Man was qualified for Offices, war differently appointed in the Common-wealth of Rome, and under the Emperors. A Man ought to be at least Seventeen years old to be Soldier. None could obtain a Quæftorship till the Age of Twenty Seven. They would not allow any to be Tribunus Plebis till Thirty Years old. None could be an Ædile before he was Thirty feven

The two following Ages, viz. the Brass | Years old. Nor a Pretor or Conful till Forty. These fix'd Times could not be dispens'd with. especially under the Emperors.

Tacitus teaches us, that at first they had no respect to Age, even in bestowing their greatest Dignities, and he mentions young Men who were Dictators and Confuls. It does not appear that those Ages were fettled till the Year 373. under the Confulthip of Pefthumins Albinus and C. Calpurnius Pifo, when Julius the Tribune made a Law, as Titus Livius relates, which afcertain'd the Age for all Offices.

ÆTERNITAS, Esernity, was reckoned among the Gods worshiped at Rome. It is differently represented to us upon Medals; her Statue was fometimes drawn in the Habit of a Roman Lady, holding a Javelin in her Right-hand, and a Cornu-copis in her Left, fetting her Left-foot upon a Globe. The Emperor Adrian caus'd her to be graven holding two Heads in her Hands. Upon some Medals of Philip, Eternity is also represented sitting upon an Elephant; on a Chariot drawn by two Elephants or two Lyons, with this Motto, ETERNITAS.

ÆTHER, Jupiter, or the more fine part of the Air, which is eafily inflam'd, and where the Thunder and Lightning is formed out of the fubtle Matter, which is fet on fire there : Hence it is that the Poets fay, that Jupiter caufes the Thunder, and darts Lightning upon the Earth. This word comes from also, uro, to burn ; and 'tis likely that Jupiter is also nam'd Zdis, because (dis comes from Cie, ferves, to ÆTHIOPIA, a very large Country of Africk. It was first call'd Atheria, after that Atlantia, and fince Ethiopia, from Ethisps the Son of Vulcan, according to Pliny; or rather from the word ais, ure, to burn. The Hebrews call it Chus, that is to fay, Black. Geographers place Ethiopia under the Torrid Zone, between Arabia and Egypt. The exceffive Heat of that Climate hath given Birth to many monstrous Men and Beasts, of which the Historians Pliny, Strabe, and others Speak.

of Ethiopia. Hefiod calls them ardess muertes, Black Men. Homer gives 'em the Epithet of Blameless. They go to fight dancing, as Lucian fays, and before they draw out their Arrows, which are fet round their Heads in farm of Rays, they lenp and dance to affright their Enemies. They were the first who found out Astrology; for tis a subtile Nation, which excels all others in Ingenuity and Knowledg. Homer calls them Thrice happy. They treated Jupiter, with all his Train of Gods, Twelve whole Days at their Sacrifices, as we learn from the fame Lucian.

ATHIOPES, The Ethiopians, or People

ATHON.

Horses of the Sun; the First is call'd Pyrais, i.e. Red, because the Sun, when it ascends above our Horizon, being overspread with Vapors from the Earth, appears red; the Second is East, i. c. Shining or Bright, because the Sun being mounted up, and having dispers'd the Vapors, appears clear and bright; Æthon is the Third, which fignifies Burning, as the Sun is at Noon, when it is in the middle of its course, and when it scorches us with its Heat and Fire ; the Fourth is'call'd Phlegon, Ruffetcolour'd, as the Sun is when it fers.

ÆTHRA, the Daughter of Oceanus and Thetis, and Wife of Atlas, by whom she had a Son named Hyas, and Seven Daughters, who fo lamented the Death of their Brother Hyas, who was torn in pieces by a Lyon, that they dyed of Grief: Jupiter chang'd em into fo many Stars, which the Aftronomers called Hyades, or Rainy. ÆTION, the Father of Andromache the Wife of Heller, who was flain at Thebes by the Greek, with his Seven Sons. He was particularly honoured at the Olympick-Games, fays Lucion.

ÆTION, Action, a famous antient Painter, who has left us a famous Piece of the Amours of Rezons and Alexander, which he shewed to the Publick at the Olympick-Games; he drew a magnificent Chamber, where Roxana fate upon her Bed thining in glorious Apparel, but more glorious yet by her Beauty, although the looks down for thame at the presence of Alexander, who flood before her : A Thousand little Capids flew about her, of whom fome lifted up her Veil behind, to they her to the Prince, others undreft her, others pull'd Alexander by the Robe, as a young Bridegroom full of Modesty, and presented him to his Mistris: He throws his Crown at her Feet, accompanied by Epheficen, who holds a Torch in his Hand, and learning upon a beautiful Boy. which represents Hymeneus. On his fide are other little Cupids which wantonly play with his Arms. Some carry his Lance bowing under fo heavy a burden, others his Buckler, upon which there is one fitting whom they carry in Triumph, while another lies in ambush in his Breast-plate, who attends 'em in the passage to affright 'em. This Piece gain'd Action to great Reputation, that he who presided over the Games, gave him his Daughter in Marriage. ATNA, Ætns, a burning Mountain in Sicily, which was also call'd by some Mount Gibel, which fends forth from time to time Whirlwinds of Fire and Smoke, and Clouds of Ashes. This Fire is fed by Veins of Brimftone and Birumen kindled by the Winds, which are inclosed in these subterraneous Ca-

A. T. HON, the Name of one of the Four | verns. Fabulous Antiquity would make us believe, that Jupiter having flain the rebellious Gyants with Thunder, thut them up in this Mountain: that the Bellowings, which are heard to come out of it, are the Groans of those Gyants, who are overwhelm'd with the excessive weight of that Mountain, and that these Fires that issue out of it, are the Breath and Wind of these miserable Creatures : This Virgil describes in these Verses of Lib. 2. of his Encids, v. 578, & feg.

Fama est Enceladi semustum fulmine corpus Urgeri mole bac, ingentemque insuper Ætnam Impositam, ruptis flammam expirare caminis ; Et fellum quoties motat latus, intremere omnem Murmure Trinacriam. -

AFFIXUM, or AFFIXA, that which is fixed or joyned to a Building. The things which are added to an House, and are over and above the Building. AGAMEMNON, the Son of Atreus

and Europe, and Brother of Menelaus, was King of Mycene, one of the Kingdoms of Pelaponne wi. Going to the Siege of Trey to revenge the Rape of his Sifter-in-law Helens, he left with his Wife Clytemnefira, a musical Poet who was faithful to him, to divert her in his absence, and so hinder her from acting any thing contrary to the Fidelity she ow'd him. Beiftbeus the Son of Thyestes, who endeavourd to debauch her. feeing that this Poet broke all his Measures, and obstructed his Designs, carry'd him away into a defart Isle, and left him there to die of Hunger, and returning to Mycene, debauch'd Clytennestra, and got possession of the King-dom. Agamennes, at his return from the Tra-Jan War, was flain by his own Wife at a Banquet which the had prepared for him, having inclos'd him in a Garment without a Bosom when he came out of the Bath. Orefles reveng'd the Death of his Father upon his Mo-ther, and Egifthen, who debauch'd her, for he kill d'em both. Agamemion was chang'd into an Eagle after his Death.

AGANIPPIDES, an Epithete which the Poets give the Muses, from the Fountain Asnippe, or Hippecrene, which was confectated to AGAVE, the Daughter of Cadmus and Hermiene, who in the shape of a Boar tore in pieces her Son Pantheur, King of Theber, because he abolish'd the Orgis or Feasts of Bacchas in his Realm, upon account of Debauches committed in them.

AGE, Quodagis, a Form of Speech us'd in the antient Sacrifices, which was often repeated to the Person that offer'd, to make him more careful and attentive; as if it were faid to him, Mind what you are about ; Let not your Thoughts

A G E-

AGENORA, the Goddoss Agences, who I makes us aftive, and to whom the Romans built a Temple upon Mount Aventine.

AGGERES, Heaps of Earth which were rais'd upon the Tombs of the Antients; Virgil makes mention of them in his Eneids, Lib. XI.

– Terrina ex aggere buftum.

as also in v. 6. of Lib. VII.

Aggere composito tumuli. Sidonius writes to one of his Relations named Secundus, that coming from Lyons to Glermont in Awvergne, he observed that Time and Water had almost laid plain an Heap or Bank of Earth, which cover'd the Tomb of Apellinaris his Kinfman, who was Prefettus Preterio, A. C. 409. Catulus speaks also of these Tombs, and calls them, Coacervatum buftum excelfe aggere.

Aggere Tarquinii, the Ramparts of Earth which Tarquinius rais'd between the Mountains, Viminalis, & Efquilinus from whence Sustanius Tays, they cast down Criminals head-long : Verberatum per vices agerent , qued pracipitaretur en AGLAIS, One of the Three Graces, which the Greeks call'd Charites, the Companions of Venus the Goddess of Beauty. They were the Daughtert of Jupiter and Eurynome.

AGLAURA, the Daughter of Cecrops, and Sifter of Hirle, with whom Mercury fell in love: This Mellenger of the Gods, to gain the Favour of his Miltris, engag'd her Sifter Aglaurs, who promis'd to ferve him, by giving her a Sum of Money. This provok'd Minerel fo much, who could not endure fuch fordid Avarice, that the commanded Easy to make her jealous of her Sifter Hirfs; while she was contriving to crofs Mercury's Deligns, he turn'd her into a Statue of Salt.

AGLIBOLUS, forme learned Men guels, that this word comes from Alyalus and Belane, to caft a light, to fbine. Helychius fays, that Aiglitis, which fignifies Shining, is a Name of the Sun; and so Arlibolus is the Sun. Mr. Spon, in his CURIOUS ENQUIRIES after Antiquities, fays, that there was an antient Marble at Rome, in the Vineyard of Cardinal Corpegns, on which was the Portrait of two Syrian Deiries, with an Infcription in Greek thus englished.

To the Honour of Aglibolus and Malak-belus. The Gods of the Country, and he affirms, that Aglibelus is the Sun, and Malak-belus the Moon. He fays, that the Habit of Aglibolus is not after the Roman Fashion, but, like the Syrians, short, with a fort of Cloak uppermost, which ought not to feem strange, fince these Figures were drawn in Spria, and every Nation is clothed after their own Fashion, as Theodores says. The Habit of Malak-belus is fomething like that which the Rosess wore in their Wars. which they call'd Paludamentum, with a Cloak over it. But the Crown is not like the Remen, no more than the Hair which the Romans usually shav'd; and this gave occasion to Veftafian, as Suetenius relates, to tell the Romans, when they were frighted at the fight of a Comet with a long Tail above their Horizon, that that Comet did not belong to their Country, but the Kingdom of Perfis, who wore long Hair, and had most reason to fear the effects of it. Salmasius is of another opinion in his Commentaries upon the Historia Augusta, for he will have Malak-belus to be the Sun, and Aglibelas the Moon, but he gives no reason for the Conjecture, and 'tis likely he never faw the Marble, which I have spoken of.

AGNATI, are the Relations on the Fathers fide, and who are of the fame Race. In the Civil-Law 'tis faid, Ad agnatos deducere aliquem, To put any one under a Guardian, To forbid him the Administration of his Goods. by the advice of his Relations.

AGNO, a Fountain of Areadia, fo call'd from a Nymph fo nam'd, the Nurse of Jupiter. When the Water of it was us'd in facred matters, it afcended in the form of a Cloud, which after fell down in Rain.

AGNODICE, a young Maid, who being defirous to learn Phylick, conceal'd her Sex, and went to be inftructed by Herophylus a Phylician, the particularly soquir d the Skill of Midwifery. The Phylicians much envy'd her. because the was preferr'd before 'em, fummon'd her before the Judges of the Arepsgar, accusing her of debauching the Women the deliver'd . But having difeover'd her Sex. the convicted them of a Calumny, which occafion'd the Judges to make a Law, allowing free-born Women to profess Midwifery.

AGNOMEN, is a Name added to the Sur-name which was given from fome particular Action; as one of the Scipie's was named Africanus, and the other Afracicus, from the brave Achievments which the one did in Africa, and the other in Afia. Without all doubt fome Persons had heretofore a particular Sur-name, which was as it were a Fourth Name. The Author to Heremius makes mention of this Agnomen, when he fays, Nomen autem cum dicimus, cognomen & agnomen intelligatur spartet.

AGONALIA, was an immoveable Feaft appointed by King Name, which was celebrated every Year, on January 9. in Honour of the God James, as we learn from Ovid, Lib. I. Far-ftorum, v. 317. Quaruer adde dies ductis ex ordine nonis Jamus agonali Lucepiandus erit, The Rex Sucrerum at this Feast facrific'd a Wether to the God Janus. Authors differ in their opinions oninions about the Occasion of this Feast. | Mother of Penthess, which was never afted by Varre will have it fo call'd from a Ceremony used in all Sacrifices, where the Priest being ready to offer Sacrifice, asks the Sacrificer, Acen' which was used then for Agamne? Shall I strike? Festus derives this Word either from Agenia, which fignifies a Sacrifice. which they led to the Altar, ab agende, from whence these forts of Ministers were call'd Agones; or from the God Agonius, the God of Action; or from Agenes, which fignific Mountains, and fo the Agonalia were Sacrifices which were offer'd upon a Mountain. Indeed the Mount Quirinalis was called Agonus, and the Colline-Gate which led thither Ports Agenensis, which the same Festus will have so call'd from the Games which were celebrated without that Gate in Honour of Apollo, near the Temple of Venus Erycina; where the Cirque of Flaminius was overflow'd by the Tiber.

But it is more probable, that this Feast was called Agonalia, from the Greek word agair, which fignifies Sports and Combats which were us'd in Greece, in imitation of those which Hercules appointed at Elis first, and confecrated to Jupiter, as these Verses of Ovid shew, Lib. I.

Fastorum, v. 359. Fas etiam fieri felitis atate priorum Nomina de Ludis Graca tulisse diem, Et prius antiquus dicebat, Agonia, Sermo Veraque judicio est ultima causa meo.

There are Two Feasts celebrated at Rome of the fame Name, one upon April 21. which falls on the day of the Palilia, on which the Building of Rome is commemorated; and the other on December 11. according to Festus. AGONES, the Salii, of whom Varro fpeaks, in his Fifth Book of the Latin Tongue. See Salii.

AGONES CAPITOLINI, Games which were celebrated every Five Years in the Capitol, instituted by the Emperor Demitian in his Confulship, and that of Corn. Dolabella Sergius. All forts of Exercises both of Body and Mind were represented there, as at the Olympick-Games, as Players on Instruments, Poets, lack-Puddings and Mimics, which strove, every one in his own Profession, who should gain the Prize.

The Poet Statius recited his Thebais there, which was not well lik'd, as he complains in feveral places of his Silva. This ferves to explain a place in Juvenal not well understood, ----Sed cum fregit subsellia versu Elurit intactam Paridi nisi vendat Agaven. Sat. VII. v. 86.

But his Thebais not having the Success he expected, and he having procured no Patron by it, Paris the Stage Player.

Sorze Commentators explain this place of Juvenal otherwise, and think the Poet meant the contrary, that his Work was well receiv'd and univerfally applauded. Altho this Explication be allowable enough, yet 'tis evidently contrary to the Complaints which Statius makes in feveral places of his Poems, unless we think it better to fay that Statius complains that after he had receiv'd Applause for his Thebais, he was nevertheless ill requited for it afterwards.

In these Exercises the chief Conqueror receiv'd a Laurel Crown adorn'd with Ribbands, but the others receiv'd a plain One without any Ornament, as we may fee by these Verses of Aulmiu.

Et que jamdudum tibi palma Poetica pollet Lemnisco ornata est, quo mea palma caret. Poets thus crowned were call'd Laureati.

These Sports were so much esteem'd by Domitian, that he changed the Account of Years, and instead of reckoning by Lustra, which is the space of five years, they counted by Agonalia and Agenes Capitelini, from their Institution to the time of Cenforings.

AGRARIA LEX, the Agrarian Law, was made for the dividing Lands got by Conquest, which the Tribuni Plebis would have to be shared among the People by Poll. Spurius Cassius Vicellinus being Conful first propounded this Agrarian Law, Anno U. C. 267, which was the cause of a very great Quarrel betwint the Senate and the People; but it was rejected the first time. There are two Agragrian Laws mentioned in the Digefts, one made by Julius Cefer and the other by the Emperour Nerva, but they had respect only to the Bounds of Lands, and had no relation to that we now speak of.

Caffins perceiving the strong Opposition which some made that this Agrarian Law might not be received, proposed to distribute among the People the Money which arose from the Sale of the Corn brought from Sicily, but the People refused it.

After this first Attempt, a peace was settled in Rome for fome years; but in the Confulship of Cafe Fabius and Emiliu: Mamercus, Licinius Stele Tribune of the People proposed the Agrarian Law a fecond time in the year 269 from the Building of Rome. This fecond Attempt had no better Success than the former, tho it was pass'd over calmly enough. Nevertheless the Conful Cafe feeing the People fond of this Law, and that the Senate was politive it ought not to be received, contriv'd a way to fatisfie both Parties, as he thought, by proposing, that only the Lands of the Vejentes, conquer d dyed of Hunger, and after being to subsist under his Consulship, should be divided among himself by selling the Tragedy of Agave, the the People, but this met withno better Success than the other.

The Tribunes of the People, being angry at the Opposition of the Senate drew up many Accusations against the Patricians and Noblemen before the People, and caufed many of them to be fined and banish'd, which so much provok'd the Coufuls, that they caufed Genutius the Tribune to be flab'd: this Affaffination raised a great Tumult in Rome, and stir'd up the People to revenge, till the Conful Semprenius was condemned to pay a large Fine.

Laftly, In the year 320 from the Building of Rome, Matius Scevola put Tiberius Gracchus, the Tribune of the People, in mind to have the Agrarian Law established against the Will of the Senate, Nobles and Rich Commons. Offsvius, his Partner, being rich, was not of the fame mind, and opposed the Law. Gracebus, feeing that, accused him before the People of Prevarication and Unfaithfulness in his Office, and caused him to be depos'd with Difgrace. This Obstacle being remov'd, the Agrarian Law passed, and Commissioners were appointed to divide the Lands.

AGRIPPA, several Persons among the Antients bore this Name, which was usually given to fuch as came into the World with Difficulty, or which were born with their Feet forward, as Aulus Gellius affirms. The most eminent of this Name were,

AGRIPPA SYLVIUS, the twelfth King of the Latins, the Son of Tyberinus Sylvius, whom he fucceeded; he reigned thirty or forty years, and Aremulus fucceeded him in the year of the World 3281.

AGRIPPA MENENIUS, furnamed Langtus; he was chosen General of the Ramani against the Sabins, whom he conquer'd, and obtain'd the leffer Triumph called Ovation : he was endow'd with admirable Eloquence, which made him undertake with Success to reconcile the Senate and the People of Rome; to this end he went to the Aventine Mount, where he pathetically represented to the People, that all the Commonwealth was but one great Body of which the Senate is the Head and Stomach; which feems alone to devour all that the Labour and Industry of the other Parts can get, but in Reality 'tis only to distribute it to the rest of the Body to nourish and strengthen it; and if the Members do not daily supply them with the usual Nouristament, they themselves would foon be found to be without Vigour, Heat or Life. This excellent Comparison was so apely apply'd, and so zealously explained by Agrippa, that the People were reconciled to the Senate, who confented to the Election of 2 Tribune, chosen out of the People, to protest them against the Authority of the great Ones. This Magistrate had a right to oppose the Confultations of the Senate, by faying this | Emperour, he was struck on a sudden, as he Word, Pete, i. e. I oppose it, and forbid you; to proceed further.

AGRIPPA, named Marcus, a Man of a. mean Original, a Favourite of Augustus, Admiral of the Empire, a great Captain, and a Companion of that Prince in his Victories. He affifted him much in obtaining that Victory which he had in the Sea-fight against Sextus Pompeiss, of which Virgil fpeaks. Augustus bestow'd the Confulship upon him twice together, and, as a Surplus of his Pavour, he made him his Son-in-Law, by marrying his Daughter Jalia to him, who had been first married to Marcellus his Nephew, who died without Children, This Agrippa had two Daughters and three Sons, viz. Calar, Lucius, and Agrippa, who was a Posthumous Child, i. e. born after his Farher's Death.

Augustus adopted Caius and Lucius before they were seventeen years of Age; he had them proclaimed Princes of the Youth, and earnestly defired that they might be chosen Confuls. The first married Livis the Sister of Germanicus. These two Princes were soon taken from him. by the Wickedness of another Livia their Mother-in-Law, or by their own Misfortunes: one in a Voyage to Spain, whither he went to command the Armies, and the other in his Return from Armenia, from whence he came ill of a Wound. As for Agripps the posthumous Child, Augustus complain'd of him, and caused him to be banish'd by a Decree of the Senate, into the Isle Planefia. He was indeed a stupid and brutish Prince, and withal a simple Man. Tiberius, who fucceeded Augustus, made his Access to the Empire remarkable by the Death of Agripps, who being furpriz'd was flain by a Centurion, whom he fent on purpole, without making any Defence. Tacit. An-

AGRIPPA, Hered, the Son of Ariflebulas, whom Hered the Elder put to Death. He was King of the Jews, and had the Favour of the Emperous Caligula, who at his coming to the Crown released him from Prison, where Tiberius had shut him up, for wishing Caligula had his place. This Emperour, besides his Liberty, gave him a Chain of Gold. of the fame . weight with that which he had worn out of Love to him while he was in Prison, and gave him the Tetrarchy of his Uncle Philip, who . died without Children, and allow'd him to take upon him the Title of The King of the Jews. He made himself infamous at his Arrival at Jerusalem, by the Death of St. James the Great. and the Imprisonment of St. Peter. But his Cruelty was not long unpunish'd, for as he was in Cafarea Palastine, busied in the Celebration of the Publick Plays for the Health of the was making a Speech to the People, with a f furpriling terrible Pain, of which foon after he

AGRIPPINA, the Grand-daughter of Augustus, and Daughter of Marcus Agrippa, was the Wife of Germanicus the Son of Drulus the Brother of Tiberius. Some believe that her Hufhand was poisoned by Cn. Pife, the this Crime was but weakly proved at the Condemnation of Pife. She carried her Husband's Ashes to Rome, and laid them in the Tomb of the Cafort. Tacitus fays, the was a Woman of an haughty and untameable Spirit, but she aton'd for her Passions by her Chastity, and the Love the bare to her Husband.

AGRIPPINA, named Julia, who married, at her fecond Marriage, the Emperour Claudius, who was her Uncle; but she soon after poison'd him with what she put into Mushrooms, which afterwards at Rome were called The Food of the Gods. Britannicus, who was Claudius's Son by his first Marriage, ought to have fucceeded him in the Empire; but Agripping advanc'd her Son Nero to it, contrary to his Right, that she herself might reign under the Name of her Son. She had him by Domitius Æneobarbus her first Husband, and Claudius adopted him into his Family, which opened a way for his Accession to the Sovereign Dignity. But this ambitious Princess was well rewarded for it, for Nere caused her to be flain by Anicetus, and, for compleating her Infamy, order'd that the Day of her Nativity, should be recken'd among the unfortunate Days. AJAX, the Locrim, the Son of Oileus, fo named from the City and Country of Locris. near Mount Parnassus. He fignaliz'd himself at the Siege of Trey by many notable Exploits. After the taking of the City, he pluck'd Caffandra, the Daughter of King Priam, from the Altar of Minerva, to which she was fled as an' Alylum. Some fav. he ravish'd her, and that Minerva, being provok'd, reveng'd the Fact by flaving him with a Thunderbolt, which fir'd his Ship, and so drowned him in the Sea. But Philoftratus favs the contrary, that Ajax offer'd no Force to Callandra, but that Agamemnon took her away from him, having feen her in his Tent, and to avoid the Mischief he might design against him, fled by Sea in the night, and fuffer'd Shipwrack by a Tempest that overtook him. The Greeks much lamented him, and made an extraordinary Funeral for him, for they fill'd a Ship with Wood, as if they would make a Funeral-Pile for him, flew feveral black Beafts in honour of him, and having also set up black Sails in the Ship, they fet it on fire about break of day, and left it was confum'd to Ashes,

ATAX TELAMONIUS, the Son of Telamon, King of Salamis, and the fair Eribes. according to Pindar. He was one of the most valiant Greeks that was at the Siege of Troy. After the Death of Achilles, he pretended that his Armour belonged to him as the next of kin; but Thetis exposing them to the Publick, that every one that pretended a Right to them might claim them, Viyles disputed it with him and gained them. Ajax was thereupon fo much enraged, that he fell upon a Flock of Sheep. with his Sword drawn and brandished, and flew them, fuppoling them to be Grecians, and then he thrust himself through with his own; Sword and died.

AIUS LOCUTIUS, a Speaking Voice, to which the Remans erected an Altar, according to Cicero and Aulus Gellius, or a fmall Temple, according to P. Vittor, in the Newffreet. The occasion of it, as Cicero and Livy relate, was thus; One named M. Ceditius, a Plebeian, went and acquainted the Tribunes, that passing through the New-street in the night. he heard a Voice more than human over the Temple of Velta, which gave the Romans notice that the Gauls were coming against Rome. This Information was neglected upon account of the Person who gave it; but the Event prov'd the Truth of it. Hereupon Camillus thought, that to appeale the angry Gods, he ought to acknowledge this Voice as a new Deity, under the Title of The Speaking God, and to build an Altar to offer Sacrifice to him.

ALA, a Wing, in the Roman Armies, was made up of the Cavalry and Infantry of the Confederates, and which cover'd the Body of the Roman Army, as the Wings cover the Bodies of Birds. There was a Right and a Left Wing, both mix'd with the Cavalry and Infantry, which they called Alares, or Alares Copie. They were made up each of four hundred Horsemen divided into ten Squadrons, and A200 Foot. Some fay that Pan the Indian. a Captain of Bacchus, was the first Inventor of this way of drawing up an Army in Battle. whence it comes to pass that the Antients have painted him with Horns on his Head, because what we call Wings they called Horns.

ALADUS or ALADINUS SYLVIUS. Eutropius calls him Romus Caffiodorus, and Sextus Victor names him Aremulus. Titus Livius, Meffala, and Sabellieus call him Romulus. But the there are different Opinions about the Name of this Prince, there is an univerfal Confent in the Abhorrence of his Tyranny, and a general Agreement about his extraordinary Death. His Pride transported him so far as to equal himself with Jupiter the King of the Gods in his Age. He counterfeited the Noise of his Thunder by it to run into the Main Sea all in a flame, till | certain Engines, but at last he perished by a vain. Fire from Heaven confum'd his Palace ; the Lake, in the middle of which it was built, flowed extraordinarily, and contributed to the Destruction of his Family. He reigned nineteen years.

Tempest:

ALAPA, a Box on the Ear. Majoris Alapa mecum veneunt. Phæd. I do not grant them Liberty so easily. (Boxes on the Ear were usually given to Slaves when they were fet at Liberty.)

ALAUDA, a Lark. The Poets fay it was Scylla the Daughter of Nijus King of Megara, whom she deliver'd into the hands of Mines King of Crete, having cut off his fatal Hair, which was of a purple Colour. The Gods changed her into a Lark, and her Father into a Hawk, which continually pursues her, says the Fable to punish her horrible Treason.

ALAUDA, the Name of a Roman Legion of a French one, according to Bachart; the Soldiers of which carried a Lark's Tuft upon the top of their Helmets.

ALBA, a Name given to three or four Cities, of which the principal was Alba Longs, fo called by the Antients because it extended to a great Length in the Territory of Rome, it was built by Afcanius the Son of Eneas, from whence the Inhabitants are called Albini. Al saniss built it in a place where he had observ'd a white Sow, thirty years after the Foundation of Lavinium, which his Father had built. This number of Years was fignified to him by the thirty Pigs which that Sow then fuckled. He would have transported the Gods of Trey, which Eness had brought with him, into this new City; but he found the next day they were carried to Louiniam : whereupon Ascanise left them there, and contented himfelf with fettling a College of fix hundred Trojans, to ferve them according to the Worship used in | Leagues in length, from the County of Kent, which Chief of those Priests. This City had several Kings, and maintained fierce Wars against the Romens : which did not ceafe till the famous Combat between the three Curatii on the Albins parts, and the three Heratii on the Remans fide. The three Curatii were flain, and before the Combat, Metius Suffetius was made | fborter m those Parts than they are in Gallia. the first Governour of it.

ALBINUS, a Native of Adrumetum in Aof the Europeans, but a frizled Beard like those of that Country; his Stature was tall and proportionably thick; he was of a melancholy All the English paint their Bediet with Woad, Temper, and had a wide Mouth; he was also which makes them of a blewish Colour, and renders portionably thick, he was of a melancholy a great Eater. A certain Writer, named Co-

Tompeft and Thunder as real as his own were | That he est at one Breakfast five hundred Figs. one hundred Peaches, ten Melons, twenty pounds el Raifins, one bundred Wood-peckers, and four bundred Offers; which without doubt is rather an Heperbole than a Truth. After the Death of the Emperour Pertinan, Albinas was chosen Emperour by the Troops which he commanded in Great-Britain; and at the fame time Severus. who had just defeated Pescennius Niger, was likewise chosen Emperour by the Eastern Troops. Albinus, fearing least he should be feiz'd in England, went into France with fifty thousand Men, and Severus had about as many. Albims being secure, because the City of Lyons took his part, gave Severus battel. He had an Advantage at the first Onset, and Severus himfelf, being faln from his Horfe, had thoughts of giving over the Battel; but at last Albinus was conquer'd, and the Conquerour caus'd his Head to be cut off and fent to Rome, and cast his Body into the River Rhofne.

A LB

ALBION or BRITANNIA, England. Cafer. 1. 5. c. 3. of the War with the Ganls, gives this De-Scription of it ; the interiour part of Britannia is inhabited by the Natives of the Country, but on the Coafts by the Gauls, which, for the moft part, keep ftill their Names : the Island is well peopled, and their Houles much like the Gauls : they have much Cattel : they use Copper Money, or Iron Rings by weight, for want of Silver : they have Mines of Tin in the middle of the Country, and of Iron on the Coafts, which yield no great Revenue, but the Copper which they use is brought them from abroad : all sorts of Wood grow there as in France, except Beach and Fire : the People scruple to eat Hares, Geese and Hens. altho they breed them up for Pleasure : the Air is more temperate than in Gallia, and the Cold lefs violent : the life is triangular, the fide which is oppolite to Gallia is above an hundred and twenty Phrygia. Egiftheus was chosen to be the is the furtheft end towards the East, and where almost all the Ships from Gallia do land, to the other which is Southward : the Western Coast. which lies overagainst Spain and Ireland, contains near 180 Leagues in length. Ireland is not half fo big as England : between them liet the Ifle of Mon. er Anglesea, where some say there are thirty Days and by their Death their Country became fub- all Night in Winter; but I found no fuch thing, only ject to the Romans, as both Parties had agreed I have observ'd by Water-Clocks, that the Nights are

The most cruiliz'd People of England are those of the County of Kent, which lies along the Coafts. frick : He was descended of a Noble Family The inward parts of the Country are not till'd in all which came from Rome, having the Whiteness places, and most of the Inhabitants live upon Milk and the Flesh of their Flocks, and wear their Skins for Clothing. them more formidable in Battel. They shave off all drus, has told incredible things of him, faying, their Hair except that of their Head and Whiskers.

Their Women are common to ten or twelve, but their | He will not follow the Example of Old Albucius Children belong to those who married them.

Tacitus, in the Life of Agricola, gives us this Character of England; It is the biggeft Ifle which is yet known : it has Germany on the East, Spain on the West, Gallia on the South, and the Main Ocean, which has no Bounds, on the North. Fabius and Titus Livius, the two most elequent of our Hi-Berians, as well antient as modern, have compared it to a long Buckler, or the Head of an Ax, because the hither fide is of that figure. It was not known till our time that 'twas an Isle, after a Tour was made about the Northern Coast of it, where there are discover'd other Isles at a further distance called the Orcades, and Island it felf, which a perpetual Winter keeps from our View. The Original of the Inhabitants is not known, whether they are Indigenæ or Strangers. The Scots have Hair and a Stature like the Germans. Thoje who dwell on the fide next Spain, have frizled Hair, and are of a Tawny Colour. The reft are like the Gauls, to whom they

The Sky is always thick and cloudy, but the Cold is never very fierce: the Days are longer than in France, but the Night is very clear, especially about the extreme parts of the ifle, where there is but little distance between the End of one day and the Beginning of the next : forme fay, that in a clear and forene Sky, they do not whelly lofe their Light, but it feems to turn about above the Herizon ; fo that, properly Speaking, they never fee the Sun either rife er fet. They have neither Vines nor Olive-teees, nor other Fruit-trees which grow in hot Countries, altho otherwise it is very Fruitful : their Fruits come out early, but are w long time in ripening, for want of Heat, and by reason of the abundance of their Mei-

ture. -

ALBO-GALERUS, a fort of Cap made of white Weel, which had a Tuft on the Top, and upon which they wore Branches of Olives embroider'd. The Flamen Dialis, or Priest of Jupiter only had a Right to wear it.

ALBULA, a River where Tiberius Selvins was drown'd, who was King of the Albini, from whom it was immediately named Tiber.

ALBUNA, a Goddess worshipped in the Country of Tiber [now Treeli.] Some think the was mo the Daughter of Athamas, who fearing her Husband, cast her felf headlong into the Sea with her Son Melicerta. Other Authors confound her with the tenth Sibyl, call'd Tiburtins, because she was born at Tibur.

ALBUTIUS, the Father of the Sorcerer Ganidius. He was extraordinarily nice in his Victuals, and in the Cookery of it, infomuch that he beat his Servants before they offended. Herace speaks thus of him, lib. 2. Sat. 2. v. 66. - Hic neque Servus, when he commands his Slaves any thing.

Albuti senis exemplo, dum munia didit, Savus erit ----

ALCESTIS, the Daughter of Pelias and Wife of Admetus King of Theffaly. Apallo obtained of the Destinies, that if Admetus could procure any Person to die in his stead, he should live as many years as he had done already. The Pather and Mother of Admetus having refus'd him that Favour, his Wife Alcelia offer'd to die for him. Hercules came unexpectedly, and, having heard what had pass'd, went to the Tomb of Alcetis, and rescu'd her from the Jaws of Death, and restored her to her Husband. Others fay, he went down into Hell, and took her from Proferping.

Euripides, in his Alcefie, relates, That Hercules was entertained by Admetus the day that Alcestis bis Wife died, and all his House was in Mourning. Admetus lodg'd him in an Apartment by himself, that he might not disturb his Guest by lo doleful an Object. Hercules required his Hoft well. for he undertook to encounter Death, who had taken away the Soul of Alcestis; he char'd Death away. brought back ber Soul to ber Body, and reftar'd his Wife alive to Admetus. This feems to be the History of Elisha counterfeited, who sais'd the Son of the Shunamite from the dead.

ALCIBIADES, the Son of Clinias and Dinemache, he was the most beautiful Man in the World, and of the neatest shape that ever was feen. The Grandees of his Family gave him as great preheminence above all the Atheniant, as Athens had above the rest of the Ciries of Greece. His Courage and Conduct were shewn in the Wars against the Lacedamonians and Perfians. But this Great Man had fo great a Mixture of Vices and Corruptions, with thefe rare Endowments of Mind and Body, that he was condemn'd to Death, and his Goods to be confiscated, because he blasphemed the Gods. When he repented of his Extravagances, after this Difgrace, he banish'd those that had debauch'd him, and put himfelf under the Instruction of Secretes, who made him a good Man. Afterwards flying to King Artaxerxes, he was basely slain by the Lacedamonians, who bore him a mortal Hatred, and had made themfelves Masters of Athens and all Greece. His Statue, because he was one of the most Valiant Grecians, was fer up, by a Decree of the Senate, in a publick Place at Rome, according to the Pythian Oracle.

ALCIDES, an Epithet given to Hercules, from the Word axed, which fignifies Strength and Virtue; or from Alcaus his Grand-father by the Father's side.

ALCITHOE, a Theban Woman, who despising the Orgia, or Festivals of Bacchus, and beginning a Journey whilst they were celebrating, was changed into a Screech-Owl, and her Sifters into Batts.

ALCMENA, the Daughter of Elettre, | which she had conceived by her Hushand Anand Lylidica, whose Father was Pelops, and Mother Hippodomia, the married Amphitrye her Cofin-German, upon condition that he should revenge the Death of her Brother, which the Thelebeans, a People of Atelia had kill'd. While Amphitrys was employ'd against them, Jupiter, who was in Love with Alemens, took the shape of Amphiryo, and lay with her a whole Night, which he made as long as Three, having commanded the Night and Sleep, by the Media-tion of Mercary, not to leave Men for that time, and by this Conjunction Alemens became the Mother of Hercules. Lucian has related this Fable in his Dialogue between Mercury and the San, which we shall fet down here entire : ' Phabus. Jupiter fays you must not drive to day to morrow, nor the next day, but keep within ; that during that time there may be one entire Night; bid the Hours unharness their Horfes, and do you put out your Light, and repole your felf a while. San. You bring me very ffrange News, Mercary; I do not know that in Negers. have in the least drove beyond my just limits, or diffurb'd the Mountains; why then is he so angry with me to make the Night thrice as long as the day? Mercury. Not in the leaft, this is not to be for a continuance, he only now defires that this Night may be long on his own account. Sun. Pray, where is he? From whence fent he you on this Errand? Moreny. From Bestia Phabus, he is with Amphitryo's Wife, whom he is enamour'd with, and now enjoys. Sun And will not one Night be fufficient? Mercury. No, for he intends to get a great and warlike Hero, and this is impollible to be done in one Night. Sam. Let him go on with fuccefs; but we had no fuch doings in Saturn's time ; he never defil'd Rhea's * Red, nor left Heaven to fleep at Thelip, but Day was then Day, and Night had only its proportion of hours, and nothing was france and out of due course, nor did he ever meddle with mortal Woman; but now for the fake of this Wretch, all things must be inverted; my Horfes will grow unmanageable for want of working, the way will become difficult to travel in, and Men must live in difmal Darkness; thus must they sleep for the Amours of Jove, till he perfect this mighty Champion you talk of. Mercary. No more words, Phabus, left it prove prejudicial to you. I must make haste to Luns and Somens, and tell "em what Jupiter's Orders are, that the may retard her Motion; and that he do not leave Men, that they may not perceive that the Night was fo long.

This is the reason why Lycophron calls . Hereules the Lum of Three Nights. Alemens having gone her time, first brought forth Iphyelus, phitrye. But jeajous June hindred her when the was about to bring forth Hercules, which the had conceiv'd by Jupiter; for the brib'd Lucius, the Goddes of Child-bearing, that instead of affifting her, she, on the contrary should obftruct her, by making certain Figures with her Fingers. Panfanias, in his Bestrice , fays , That June fent the Pharmacides or Sorcerereffes into the Chamber of Alemens in the time of her Travail, to hinder her by their Enchantments : But Juniter dispell'd all their Charms. by declaring himself from Heaven by Thunder, in favour of his Son, and reconcil'd Amphitryon and Alemens, who were fall'n out. Alemena dved in her return from Arges to Thebei, as Paufanius fays, on the Confines of Metara. There was a Dispute between the the Heraclites about her Burial, some defiring that her Body should be carryed to Argu, and others to Thebes; but the Oracle of Apollo at Delphos ordered, that her Tomb should be made

ALCMON and PASSALUS, rather Achemen, or Achmen and Paffalus, Two Brothers who were of very wicked and debauch'd Inclinations; they were the Sons of a Woman called Semmenis, who us'd to tell Fortunes : She had them beware of a Melamprous, i. c. a Creature whose back-parts were black and hairy, Wherefore meeting one day with Hercules, who was afteen leaning against a Tree, they took up a resolution to kill him; but Hercules awaking, and perceiving their delign, feiz'd on 'em, and hang'd 'em by the heels on his Chub, and as he merch'd with 'em in this pofture, they perceiv'd his back-parts, and remembring the Prediction of their Mother, they look'd upon themselves as undone a But Hercules having learn'd of 'em the cause of their fear, let 'em go.

A L C Y O N, The Kings Fifter, a Bird much extolfd, of whom this Fable is told a That Aleymor the Daughter of Lolus, having loft the beautiful Geys, her Husband, in the Sea, who was the Son of the Day Star, tormented herfelf with vain Grief ; till the Gods, mov'd with Compession, chang'd her into a Bird. which still fearches about the Water for him the loft there. It is a fmall Bird, and its Note is very mournful. To requite her Love, when the makes her Nest, and firs on her young ones, the Winds are still, and the Sea calm in the sharpest time of Winter: These serene Days are call'd Hologenian from the Aleyen, and during them, the Sky is calm, and the furface of the Sea as fmooth as a Looking-Glass.

Pliny gives this Description of this Bird, Lib. X. cap. 32. It is, fays he, a little bigger than a Sparrow, and of a blue colour, but hatil fome red and white Feathers. The Smallest of them fing come crifices. In choosing their Kings they much monly among the Reeds. They breed about the middle of December. Their Nefts are round, in the form of a large Bowl, having only a little Hole to cm have right to imprison and punish. Of all ALCYONEUS, a Gyant, who had many Daughters, which after his Death cast themselves head-long from the Cape of Pillena into the Sea : Amphirite mov'd with Compaffion for 'em, chang'd 'em into Birds.

ALECTO, One of the Three Furies of Hell, according to the Poets, the Daughters of Acheren and Nex, or of Plute and Proferning. They are reverenc'd by the Antients, as the Goddesses, by whom Crimes were punished. they are painted with a furious Afpect, and wearing a Cap of Serpents, holding Whips and lighted Torches in their Hands.

ALECTRYO, a young Man, a Confident of Mars in his Amours. One Day when Mars was gone to fee Venus, and Iye with her in the absence of her Husband Vulcan, he left him at the Gate to watch when the Day appear'd, but this pretty Youth falling afleen, the Sun discover'd the whole Intrigue, fo that Vulcan caught both the Lovers in his Nets. Mers, angry at this, chang'd this young Man into a Cock, who still keeps the Crest of the Helmer which he had before he was chang'd: and all his Generation ever fince, to retrieve his Honour, give notice of the approach of the ALEMANNI, the Germans : Thefe People, fays Tacitus, were never debauch'd by Commerce or Alliance with other People. which is the reason that they are all alike : for they have yellow Hair, blue Eyes, a fierce Aspect, and an advantagious Stature, yet they cannot bear long Fatigues, and are only brisk at the first; Heat and Thirst are very unsupportable to 'em, but they endure Cold and Hunger very well, by reason of the Constitution of their Country. Those that inhabit our Frontiers value Money upon the account of Commerce, and know fome antient Pieces of our Coin, which they value more than others, as those that have a Saw or a Chariot on them. The rest traffick by exchange of Goods still, as the first Men did. Their Cavalry carry only a Lance and a Buckler: Their Infantry carry also Darts, of which every Soldier has feveral, which he knows how to cast with great Force and Dexterity, being not at all hindred by his Clothes or Arms: for their only Garment is a long Coat. If we consider their Troops in general, their Infantry is the best, which is the reason that they mix it with their Cavalry. 'Tis fuch a Difgrace among 'em to quit their Buckler, that they who have done never dare come to their Affemblies or Sa-respect their Birth, and in their Governours their Vertue. None but the Priests among the Gods, they chiefly worship Mercary, and facrifice even Men to him at certain Solemnities. They think it not agreeable to the Grandieur of the Gods, to paint them as Men, ot that them up in Temples, but they only confecrate Groves to 'em, and adore fuch as are most folitary. They are much given to Auguries and Lots, which they perform with little Ceremony. They cut a Branch of a certain Fruit-Tree in feveral pieces, and having mark'd them with certain Characters, cast 'em carelesty upon a white Cloth; then the Prieft. or Mafter of the Family, if it be a private House, after he has made a Prayer to the Gods. lifts up each piece three times, and interprets them according to the Marks on 'em. They also consult the flying and chirping of Birds. and the neighing of Horses is with them a certain Prefage : To this end they feed white Horses in their dedicated Groves, and will not fuffer them to be prophan'd by the fervice of Men; and when they have a mind to confine 'em, they yoke 'em in a Chariot of their Gods, and the Priest or King follows them to observe their Neighing; there is no Augury to which they give more Credit. They make use also of another Invention to know the Event of their Wars; They take a Captive of their Enemies, and match him with one of their own Party, and judg of the iffue of the War by the fuccess of their Combat. They count by Nights and not by Days, as we do; and in their Orders of State, they fet down on fuch a Night, and not on fuch a Day; because, as they think, the Night was first. They meet in Council armed, and the Priefts alone have power to enjoyn filence, as they have also to punish: Their Punishments are different, according to their Crimes; they hang Traytors and Deferrers on Trees; the cowardly, the base, and the infamous they impother in Puddles, and then throw an Hurdle upon em. Their Coat. which is all the Garment they wear, as I have above observed, is fasten'd with a Button or Clasp, the rest of their Body is naked: The richeft of them have their Garments nor large and full, as the Parthians and Sarmatians, but close, according to the shape of their Bodies : They also clothe themselves with Furs. The Womens Garments are much like the Mens. fave that they wear a kind of Linnen Shift with out Sleeves, border'd with Crimfon-Silk, which leaves their Arms and Bosom naked. Their Marriages nevertheless are untainted, and their Chaftity is not blemished by their Meetings. Pestivals, and publick Shews. They neither fend nor receive Love-Letters or Billet-Douxes, | in this Country; and Ulffer himfelf, in his infomuch that Adultery is feldom found among fo great a People: they allow not second Marriage, and a Woman takes an Husband to be united to her, as one Body and one Soul. Tis an odious thing among 'em to destroy a Child in the Womb or hinder Conception; every one is brought up in his own Family, without any other Nurse than his own Mother. There are few People that take more pleafure in entertaining Strangers; 'tis a Crime for any Man to shut his House against them, whosoever they be : When any one comes to their Houses, the Mafter of it gives him wharever he has, and when he has nothing left, he will carry him to his Neighbour, who receives him with the fame Respect and Freedom. They drink Beer, for no Vines grow in their Country. Their Food is very plain, wild Fruits, Milk curdled, and Venison, and they live without Dainties and Expence. They have but one fort of publick Show, their young Men dance naked on the points of Spears and Javelins. They do not divide the Year into Four parts, as other Nations. The Autumn is as little known as the Fruits of it. Their Funerals are without any Pomp or Magnificence, they only burn the Bodies of fome Persons of Quality with a particular fort of Wood, putting nothing upon the Pile but their Arms, and fometimes the Horse of the deceas'd without Perfumes or Garments: their Graves are made of Turfs, and they contemn the Costliness of our Tombs. In fine, they are great Drinkers, and very great Gamesters, infomuch that they will play away themselves after they have lost all their Goods.

They celebrate in old Verses, of which all their History is compos'd, a God born in their Land, called Tuisco, and his Son, Men, who were the first Inhabitants of the Country. Cefar speaking of the Germans in his Sixth Book. De Bella Gallico, tells us, That they have neither Priests nor Sacrifices, and own no Deity but such as they see and feel the Effects of, as the Sun, the Moon, and the Fire; and that War and Hunting were their only Exercises.

ALEMANNIA, Germany. This Country, fays Tacitus, is bounded with the Rhine. Danube, and Ocean, except on the part next Sarmatia and Dacia, where it is bounded with the Mountains, on which a very warlike People inhabit The Ocean there makes great Bays and large Isles. The Rhine takes it rife in the Country of the Grifons, and falling from the top of the Alps, discharges it felf, after a long course, into the North-Sea, inclining a little toward rhe West. The Danube falls from Mount Abnoba, and empties it felf into the Busine-Sea at fix Mouths, for the feventh is loft him, and palling the Hillefrent, defeated the in the Marthes. Hersiles is faid to have been Captains of Derise in a pitch'd Battel, and long and fabulous Travels, was carried by a Tempest into Germany, where he built a City upon the Banks of the Rhine, which is still called Aschelburg, from the Greek Name which he gave it : Some add, that he had an Altar confecrated to him there, under the Title of the Son of Laertes, and that there remain to this day fome Monuments of him with Greek Inscriptions in the Borders of the Grifons and Germany, which I neither affert, or call in question the Truth of:

ALE

ALETIDES, antient Sacrifices which the Athenians offer'd to Icarus and Erigone, in which they danced Puppets. Icarus was the Son of Æbalus, and Father of Erigone, who having receiv'd of Bacchus a Bottle full of Wine, gave it the Shepherds of Attica to drink, who were very thirfty, because of the Heat of their Countrey; they drank of it till they loft the use of their Reason, and supposing themselves to be poyfon'd by that Liquor, they fell upon him, and killing him, cast his Body into a Pit : He had a little Bitch named Mara, who went, and pulling his Daughter Erigone by the lower part of her Garment, brought her to the place where the Body of her Father was; she seeing him in this condition, hang'd herfelf for griet, and many Athenian Virgins, who lov'd her extraordinarily, follow'd her Example. The Bitch also pin'd away with Grief, and Jupiter translated her to Heaven under the Name of Canicula, i.e. the Dog-Star. Icarus was chang'd into that Sign of the Zodiac which is called. Charles's Wain, and Erigone into another Sign call'd Virgo. The Oracle of Apollo being confulted, order'd that a folemn Sacrifice should be offer'd to the Ghosts of Erigene and her Companions, in which the Images of the Virgins hanged were reprefented; and 'twas in this Solemnity that some Virgins swung themselves about in the Air.

ALEXANDER, furnamed the GREAT. was of a middling stature, and rather small than great, as his Medal represents him on the Reverse, and as Historians speak of him, which has given occasion for this Verse,

Magnus Alexander corpore parvus erat. He had a very lofty Countenance, and his Eyes placed very high in his Head, well-shap'd, and generally flooking upward. He was the Son of Philip, King of Macedon, and Olympias ; he fucceeded his Father in his Kingdom, which he found full of Tumults, and wavering after his Death; but he foon fettled it by the Punishment of his Murtherers, and made Greece tremble by the Destruction of Thebes. He advanc'd his Arms farther than any King before conquer'd all the Provinces as far as Cilicia, and vanquisht Darius, King of Persia. Lastly, not to mention Tyre or Arbella, he fubdu'd Alia, as far as the Indies, and then the Indies themselves. making the Ocean the Bounds of his Empire. He dved at Babylen of Poyton, or a Feaver, being 32 years of Age, having reign'd Twelve Years. He was liberal and magnificent, and rality to their Free-Merr, as we learn from the lov'd Glory and Learning. He is accus'd of Lawyer Scavola: Quisquis mihi hares erit, omni-Cruelty to his Friends who had not Complai- bus libertis meis, quos hoc testamento manu miss, fance enough to flatter him, and believe him the Son of Jupiter. He kill'd Clitus because he would not approve that he should use the Customs of those he had conquer'd, nor that he should be ador'd as a God : Yet'tis faid, that Aristobulus, one of his Captains, reading to him, as he was failing upon Hydaspes, a Relation he had written of his Battel with Porus, in which he flatter'd him very much ; Alexander threw the Book into the Water, and told him, that he ought to do fo, because he was so base-spirited to attribute false Actions to Alexander, as if he had done no real ones. In like manner he reprimanded an Architeft, who would have cur Mount Ather after his likeness, and make him to hold a City in one Hand, and pour a River out with the other. He would not meddle with Darius's Wife, and took care of his Mother and Children.

ALEXANDER SEVERUS, the Son of Varus and Mammea. He was made Emperor of Rome before he was 16 years of Age, and was one of the wifest and most learned of the Emperors. He would not fuffer any Offices to be fold, but gave them to Persons of Merit. His Council was made up of the most virtuous and able Lawyers of the Empire, viz. Ulpian, Calliftratus, and Modestinus. He was a great Lover of Arts and Sciences. He was liberal without Profuseness, valiant without Cruelty, a fevere Judg, yet was every way just and equitable.

He discover'd a great Inclination to the Christian Religion; for he set up in his Chappel the Image of Jesus Christ, together with Abrahams: And fome likewise conjecture, that he intended to build him a Temple at Rome, His Severity, tho' just, yet was fatal to him, and provoked the Soldiers of the German Legion to flay him near Mens, after he had reign'd Thirteen years.

pitch of Honour, that he never would fuffer himself to be call'd Lord ; for he order'd that all Salutations to him should be utter'd in these words, Ave Alexander, and condemn'd by his Modesty his Predecessors, and chiefly Heliogabalus, who would be faluted thus, Deminus, ac Deus nofter fie fieri jubet, Our Lord and God will | being the first of August, was mark'd in the Rohave it fo : As Suetonius faith.

ALIMENTA, an Allowance of Mear given to a fingle person to live on for a Year or a Month. The Romans did often in their Wills, give a certain Sum to ferve for an Allowance of Meat to their Children. In pueror, puellasque singulas damnas esto dare cibarii nomine aureos decem. They also extended this Libealimentorum nomine in menfes singulos certam pecuniam date. i.e. I charge him that is mine Heir. to give monthly a certain Sum for an Allowance of Meat, to all my Free-Men, to whom I have given Liberty by this my Will.

They practis'd also the same thing towards those whom they called Alumnes and Alumnas, as these words in the Law do testifie; Mevie infanti alumno meo quadringinta dari volo, que peto à te suscipias, & usuras ei quincunces in annum ufque vicefimum atatis praftes, cumque fufcipiat, ac tuearis.

ALIMENTARII pueri, & ALI-MENTARIÆ puella, is spoken of young Boys and Girls, which were brought up in publick places, as in our Hospital of Chrift-Church: For the Romans had certain publick places where they brought up and maintain'd poor Children and Orphans of both Sexes, at the Expence of the Treasury, or of such Banks of Money as the Emperors, and private Persons had made, and given by their Will for the Maintenance of these Hospitals. These Children were call'd, if Boys, Alimentarii pueri; if Girls, Alimentaria puella: They were also often call'd by the Names of their Founders. Julius Capitelinus, in his Life of Antennus, furnamed Pius, fays, That this Prince founded an Hospital for Girls, which were call'd Faustine. Fauftines, from the Name of his Wife, Puellas alimentarias in honorum Faustina Faustinianas confituit. The fame Author, speaking of the Emperor Alexander Severus, tells us, that he follow'd the Example of Antoninus, in creeting an Hospital for Boys and Girls, and gave them his own Name, calling em Mammaani and Mammaana. Puellas & pueros, quemadmodum Antoninus Faustinianas instituerat Mammaanas & Mammeanos instituit.

ALLÍENSIS PUGNA, a Fight near the River Allier. The Tribunes going against He retain'd so great a Modesty in his highest the Gauls, with a more numerous Army than the Romans had ever fent out before on foot. gave them battel having the River Allier on their backs. The Fight was fierce and obsfinate on both fides, but at length the Gauls were Victors, and flew many of the Romans, because the River hindred their Flight. This day, man Kalendar, as a fatal and unfortunate day, in the year from the Building of Rome 365. This Lofs was more felt, and prejudicial to the Romens, as Ossere fays, than the facking of Rome by the fame Gauls; Majores noftri funeftiorem diem effe voluerunt Allienfis pugna, quam urbis ALLOCUTIO, an Oration or Speech of a General of an Army to his Soldiers, either to animate them to fight, or to appeale Sedition, and keep them to their Dury. To this end they raised a little Hill of Earth, as it were a kind of Tribunal of Turf, upon which the General mounted and spoke to his Soldiers. who were drawn up in their feveral Squadrons round about the Tribunal, and having their Captains at the Head of them. If the General's Speech pleafed them, they fhew'd their Approbations by lifting up their Right-hands, and clashing their Bucklers one against another; but if they diflik'd it, a humming Murmur ran thro their Ranks, or elfe they discover'd, by a fullen Silence, that they were not pleased.

If the Enemy push'd on the Battel, the General thought it sufficient to go through the Ranks to encourage the Soldiers, calling them every one by their Names, putting them in mind of their Courage, and the Victories they had gain'd, and promising them the Plunder, or some other Largess, if they obtain d the

Victory

ALOIDES, two Giants, the Sons of Alesus, who in their infancy attempted to pull up Mount Offs by the roots, and to fet it upon Olympus, and Pelies upon that, that they might make use of them as a Ladder to climb up into Heaven, and make War with Jupiter; but shele young and rash Fools were punish'd for their Madness, and shot to death by the Arrows of Apelle and his Sifter Diana. Virgil brings in Enest relating that he faw these two Giants in Hell:

Hic & Aloidas geminos, immania vidi Corpora, qui manibus magnum rescindere calum

Virg. Æneid. lib. 6. v. 582. Homer affures us, That they formerly bound the Ged Mars, and But bim up in Prifon for thirteen Mouths, from whence he could not be releas'd but by the mediation of Mercury.

ALPHABETUM, an Alphabet; the orderly Difpolition of the Letters of any Language. This Word comes from the initial Letters of the Greek Tongue, Alpha, Beta.

ALPHEUS, a River of Arcadia. Panfanias, in his Eliaca, tells us, That Alpheus was an antient Hunter, who lou'd Arethufa, and also delighted much in Hunting. He fought ber in Marriage, but the deny'd him, and flying into an ifle near Syracufe, the was turn'd into a Fountain, and Alpheus inte a Kiver ; which, as thre an amerous

ALT Impatience, forces its sourfe through the See. and mires it: Waters with Arathula.

Lucian, in a Dialogue between Neptune and Abbens, introduces them speaking thus: Nept. Whence comes it that such a fine River as you, pass through the Sea without mining with its Water any more than if you were ke, like thefe Fewls who dive in one place and rife in austher? Alph. It is an amereus Mystery which you ought not to condemn because you have been in love your self. Nept. Who are you in love with, is it with a Woman, a Nymph, ar any one of the Nereides ? Alph. No, so, it is with a Pountain. Nept. With what Fountain pray? Alph. With Arethula. Nept. Tis a fine clear Spring, which rolls its Silver Streams through the Stones with an agreeable Murmur. Alph. Ah! how well you describe her, 'tis fhe that I purfue. Nept. G., and be happy in thy Amour ; but tell me when halt then feen her, then being in Arcadia, and the in Sicily? Alph. You are too curious, and prefs too far for me to answer you. Nept. You are in the right of it, and I to blame, to retard a Lover in the pursuit of his Mistress; and when you have met with her, join your felf fo close to her that you two may have but one Bed bereafter. Paulanias enlarges this Fable a little more in his Arcadica; Alpheus, fays he, parts the Lacedemonians from the Tageates, and bounds them both : its Source is from Phylace. At some diffance from bence he receives the Waters of Several Small Springs called Symboles, or A Concouse of Waters. This River bes this particular Quality, that it loles its Waters under the Earth, and they rife again in other places ; it goes into the River Eurotas, and then lofes it felf, and rifes again in a place which the Arcadians call The Sources. It runs into the Territories of Pifa and Olympia, and difcharges it felf in the Adriatick Gulph; from whence it paffes, without mixing its Waters with the Sea, and rifes in Orrygia in the Fountain of Are-thufa, with which it mixes.

Hercules cut a Canal from this River, to cleanse the Stable of Augens, which was fill'd. with the Dung of three thousand Oxen for thirty years.

ALTARE, on Alear, upon which Sacrifices were offer'd to the Gods of Heaven. This Word comes from Altus, high, because, according to Serving, they facrificed on them to the Gods on high, or in Heaven. This is the Difference he makes betwixt these Words Are and Altare: Novimus, favs he, aras Diis effe (uperis & inferis confecratas, altaria verò effe Superiorum toutum Dearum, que ab altitudine confrat effe nominata. We find also another Difference of thefe Words, which is this, Abore was built in an high place to which they went up by Stais, as the great Altars in the Romifb Churches; whereas Are is a low Altar, like their little.

ALTHEA.

Caledonia. She reveng'd the Death of her Brethren by the Death of her own Son Meleager, burning the Log of Wood which was to prolong his Life, as long as it lasted and was not confum'd by Fire.

AM ALTH Æ A, a Sybil furnamed Cumas, famous in Antiquity for her Propheties and Predictions of the coming of the Meffias, who was to be born of a Virgin. We learn of Servine, that the wrote nine Books of Prophefies foretelling what should befal the Empire of Rome, addressing her felf to Tarquinius Prifow. the presented them to him, demanding three thousand Crowns in Gold of Philippick Money: but the King rejected her Prefent : whereupon the burn'd three of them in the presence of that Prince. Returning within a few days, the demanded the fame Price for the remaining fix, and being again deny'd, fhe burn'd three more. This aftonish'd the King so much that he bought the three which were left, at the fame Price she had requir'd for all the nine. They were kept with great care, and certain Persons appointed to look after them. These Books contained the Fate of the Empire, and were never confulted but in the time of some publick Calamities.

AMALTHÆA, the Daughter of Meliffus King of Candia, who nurs'd Jupiter with Goats Milk and Honey. Some Authors will have it that this Goat was called Amalthas, and that Jupiter in gratitude placed it among the Stars; giving to the Nymphs one of her Horns, which had this Vertue, to furnish them with whatever they defired; from whence it was called Cornecepia, or the Horn of Plenty.

'Twas also the Name of Atticus's Country-House in Greece, which he called so to intimate. that all things abounded there: for it is very well known that this Word fignifies Plenty.

Gie. l. 1. ep. 2. ad Attic,

AMATHUS, a City in the Isle of Cyprus, confecrated to Venus, whose Inhabitants built a flately Temple to her and her Minion Admir, They facrificed at first Strangers upon her Altars; but the Goddess abhorring such cruel Sacrifices, chang'd thefe Inhabitants into Bulls. and depriving their Wives of all Modesty, because they had contemned her Worship, made them to profitute themselves to all

AMAZONIUS, the Month of December was fo called in the Reign of the Emperour Genmedus by his Flatterers, in honour of a Concubine which he loved extreamly, and whom he had caused to be painted like an Amazon. as Lampridius affures us.

AMAZONES, the Amazons, Women-Warriours of great Courage. They were Afia. heretofore Wemen of Soy: hia, who dwelt near ALTHRA, the Wife of Eness King of Tanais and Thermodon, which conquer'd great part of Afia. They liv'd without Men. and proftituted their Bodies to Strangers, but kill'd all their Male Children, and burn'd off the left Pap of their Daughters, to make them fir for fighting. From whence fome fay their Name is derived from a & ude, non mamma, which fignifies Without Paps.

Strabe denies that there ever were any Amazons. Pliny and Mela make mention of those of Scythia. Hippocrates fays, that there was a Law among them, which condemn'd their Daughters to remain Virgins till they had flain three Men of their Enemies. He also says that the Cause why they cut off the Right-pap, was, that their Right-arm might become the stronger, because it gain'd the Nourishment of the Breast; and they distorted the Legs of their Male Children, that they might always be Mistresses over them. Some affirm, that in Africk there was a. Realm of Women only, who flew all the Boys that they brought forth by their Copulation. with the Neighbouring Nations, as we learn from Juan de les Sanctes, a Grey-Fryar of Pertugal, in his Description of the Eastern Æthiopia. Eneas Sylvins relates, that he faw in Behemis. for feven years, a Common-wealth exactly like that of the Amazons, establish'd by the Valour of a Woman called Valaica.

The Names of the most famous Amazons were, Marthelia, Orythea, and Penthelilea, whom Virgil, in his Eneide, Supposes to be flain by Herodorus, speaking of the Amezeus, fays. that the Greeks having defeated them near the River Thermeden, carried away those that remain'd Captives in their Ships, who after the Defeat watch'd their opportunity fo well that they feiz'd the Arms of the Greeks and made a. great Slaughter of them; but because they understood nothing of Navigation, they were cast by the Winds upon the Coasts of Scribia: where mounting upon the Horfes that came in their way, they fought with the Scribians : who being defirous to make an amicable end of the War which they had begun, endeavoured to perfuade them to furrender themfelves, and hoping to gain them by their weak fide, told them, that in case they would do fo. they should not be enjoy'd by their Lame, burby the handsomest Men. They stope their. months with this Answer. That their Lame were their best Men: which is fince passed into a Proverb among the Greeks, Agreesonas almen. Novertheless a Peace was made, and the Scythians gave them a part of their Country, where they fettled themselves on the Southside of Tanais. This is what Herodotus favs of the Amezons of Philoftratus.

Philoftratus, in his Picture of Neoptolemus, relates, that they which fail upon the Euxine Sea do affirm, That along that Coast, between the Rivers Thermoden and Phasis, there are Amazons, which fay, they are descended of Mars, who busie themselves wholly in Warlike matters, as to draw a Bow, and ride on Horses; they will not permit a Man to live among them. but when they delire to have any Children, they go to feek out Men among their Neighbours, and when they bring forth Boys, they cause them to be gelt, but their Daughters they bring up to warlike Affairs, feeding them with the Milk of Cattle, and Dew which falls in the form of Honey upon the Reeds in their

The chief Expeditions of the Amazons were the War which they made against King Priamu, the Affistance they brought him at the Siege of Troy, and their Invalion of Attica, to revenge themselves of Theseus who had taken away Antiope. As for their Expedition into the Isle of Achilles, at the mouth of the Danube, it is a Fiction of Philoftratus, which no ways redounds to their Honour, because they shew'd themselves very cruel there. 'Tis true Philofiratus is not the only Man that has represented the Amazons as wicked, for Apollonius describes them as Salvages, that have neither Faith nor Law.

The Monuments which preferve the Memory of these Warlike Women are, the City of Thermiscira, the Metropolis of their State, firuate in Cappadocia, near a River well known by the Name of Thermodon: the City of Ephelius and Temple of Diana are two Works of their hands Dienyfius Afer fays, that they built another Temple to Diana upon the Stump of a young Elm. The Cities of Smyrna, Thyatira, Cuma and Magnefis are commonly thought to be founded by them. Apellonius will have it, that they consecrated the Temples even in the Areopagus, and in the Territories of Lacedamo-

The Statue of Diana at Ephelias was adorned with Paps, because the Amazons consecrated those to her which they cut off.

It appears, by some Medals, that the Amazons wore Garments like Men, but by others they feem cloth'd after the usual manner of their Sex.

The ingenious Mr. Peth has written a Treatife which contains things very learned and curious about these Heroines, as about their Sepulchres, the Reasons why the Names which they bear are all Greek, and the Chronology of their History, which may be consulted.

AMBARVALE or AMBARVALIA. The Feast of Perambulation. The Procession they anade about the plow'd and fown Fields in ho- precer uti fier welent, propitius mihi liberifque meit, nour of the Goddess Cares; like the Processions of the Papists at this day, celebrated upon the Feafts of St. Mark and Rogation-days, with larger or shorter Litanies. There were two Feasts at Rome of that Name, one in April. or according to other Authors, in the End of 74nuary; and the other in July.

AMB

Twelve Arval Brothers, or Priests, of which I shall speak in their place, went before a publick Procession of the Citizens who had Lands and Vineyards without the City. The fame Ceremony was practifed in the Country by other Priests among the Inhabitants of the Villages. They went three times round the Ground. every one being crowned with Leaves of Oak, and finging Hymns in honour of Geres, the Godde. of Corn. This Ceremony was called Ambarvalia, ab ambiendis arvis; the Sacrifices which they offer'd after this Procession, they call'd Ambarvales Hoftie.

There were three forts of them, viz. a Sow. a Sheep and a Bull, which is the Reason that this threefold Sacrifice was called Susvitaurilia, which is a Word compounded of Sas, Ovis and Taurus. In the first Sacrifice they pray'd to the Goddess Ceres and the God Mars, that they would preferve their Corn from Mildew and Hail, and bring it to perfect Ripenels; and in that of the month of July, they pray'd to them to bless their Harvest.

Cate has left us the Form of Prayer used on this occasion, in cap. 141. De Re Rustica, but this Prayer was made to Mars only.

Mars Pater, te precor quesoque uti fies volent propitiufque mibi, domo, familiaque noftra : que jus rei ergo, agrum terram, fundumque meum fuevitaurilia circumagi juffi, uti tu merbes viles invifolque, viduertatem vastitudinemque, calamitates. intempeftafque probibeffis, defendas, averruncefque : uti tu fruges, vineta, frumenta, virgultaque grandire, beneque evenire finas : paftores, pafcuaque Salva servassis, dicifque bonam Salutem, valetudinemque mihi, domo, familiaque nostra. Harumce rerum ergo, fundi, terræ, agrique mei lustrandi. lustrique faciendi ergo, sicut dixi, matte hisce suovitaurilibus lastantibus immelandis efte. Mars Pater, ejusdem rei ergo, matte hisce suovitaurililibus ladentibus efte. Item, Cultro facito ftruem & fer-Zum uti adliet.

The fame Author hath left us also another Form of Prayer, which was made in the fecond Feast of Perambulation, in the month of July, in which they facrific'd a Sow before they began their Harvest, which they call'd Porca pracedanes. This Prayer was put up to Janus, Jupiter and Jame, and not to Geres any more than the former. Priulquam porcam faminam immolabu, faith Cate, Jane ftruem commo veto fic : Tane Pater, te bac firue commovenda bonas preces.

domo, familiaque mea, mastus boc fersto. Ferdum Jovi moveto & madato fie : Tupiter, te boc fercto obmovendo bonas preces precor uti lies volens propitius mihi, &c.

Postea Jano vinum dato sic : Jane Pater, uti te firuem commovendo bonas preces bene precasus fum, ejusdem rei ergo, matte vino inferio esto.

Postes Joui sit : Jupiter, matte fertte efto : ma-He vino inferio esto.

We find likewise that this Ceremony was perform'd by the Master of the Family, accompany'd with his Children and Servants. every one of them being crowned with Oaken Leaves, as well as the Sacrifice, which they led three times round the Lands and Vineyards, finging Hymns to his honour: after which they facrific'd to him fweet Wine with Honey and Milk; as we may fee by the Verfes of Virgil, Georg. lib. 1.

This manner of Procession was always us'd in the Country, were they had no Arval Priefts AMBEGNÆ or AMBIGNÆ. Vistms. which were accompany'd and encompass'd with other Victims, fays Varre.

AMBITUS, fignifies in the Law of the XII. Tables, A space of Ground of two feet and an half, which was left to go about an House, for the Houses of old were not contiguous for fear

AMBITUS, an earnest Solicitation to get into publick Offices. Properly, 'tis the furrounding a Person to have his Vote in Electi ons, being always busie about him, embracing and careffing him for that end. The Romans made it a Crime to folicite Offices by too eager Applications, as by extraordinary Gifts. Threatnings or open Force : they made feveral Laws to hinder this foliciting, and punish those that were found guilty of it. The most confiderable of them was that which was made in the Consulship of Cieere, called from his Name Lex Tullia. By that Law, the Candidates were forbidden to beslow any Combats of the Gladiators on the People, to make any publick Feast, or to cause themselves to be follow'd by a Crowd of Clients, for two years before they put in for any place.

A Senator, who was guilty of a Breach of this Law, was punish'd with ten years Banishment : others were fin'd and render'd incapable of any Dignity for ever; as may be feen in Cicere's Oration against Vatinius and Sextius. Nevertheless, these things had gone so far in the corrupt times of the Commonwealth, that fome would publickly tell the Tribes what Sums of Money they would give them for their Votes, which was call'd Pronuntiare in tribus, says Cicero. They made use of three forts

Interpretes. Mediators, who affifted in making the Bargain, per quos pattio inducebatur, fays A-Sconius Pedianus : Sequestres, who are the Trustees, in whose hands the Money agreed for is deposited: and lastly Divisores, Dividers, who were to distribute the Money to every particular person in the Tribe.

AMBROSIA, the Food of the Gods, according to the Poets. Lucian, rallying their Poetical Gods, tells us, that Ambrefia and Ne-Har, of which one is the Meat and the other the Drink of the Gods, were not so excellent as the Poets describe them, since they will leave them for the Blood and Fat which they come to fuck from the the Altars like Flies.

Ambrofis, was also a certain Feast which the Romans celebrated on the 24th. of November. instituted in honour of Bacchus by Romulus. which the Romans call'd Brumalia, but the Greeks Ambrofia.

AMBUBAIÆ, Syrian Women, which dwelt at Rome, and play'd on a Pipe in the Cirque and other Places of Sports, like our Gipfies, who play upon the Tabor, and pretend to tell Fortunes, and do a thousand other cheating Tricks, to tharp People of their Money. Turnebus affures us, that they liv'd after this tricking manner, near the Hot Baths at Baia. Cruquim is of another opinion, and fays, they were a fort of Women who fold Colmeticks and Drugs for painting the Skin. Horace speaks thus of them, Ambabaiarum collegia, pharmacopola.

Sat. 2. lib. t. AMBURBALIA and AMBURBALES. Mofile. See Ambarvalis, which is the fame ?

AMBUSTA, the Marks of Burning which remain'd upon the Skin. It is a Title in Valerius Maximus, Ambuftarum lib. 8. cap. 1. fpeaking of two Women whose Reputation was only blemish'd, as a Body scarr'd with Burning, tho they were not condemn'd by any publick Sentence.

So, among the Antients, those who were kill'd by Thunder wee call'd Confumpti, whereas those were termed Ambusti who were only Thunder-struck. For which reason it was that the was furnamed Ambufus, as was also his whole Family, because he was smitten with Thunder in the hinder-parts: Ut Jouis dicatur fi ius, in partibus Fabius aduritur mellibus. obsignaturque posticis.

AMILCAR, the Admiral of Carthage. who raised the Honour of his Nation by many brave Actions, which he did against the Remans. He ordinarily faid of his three Sons, that he nourish'd three Lions, which would one day tear Rome in pieces, and he made his of Persons for this purpose, which they call'd eldest Son, the Great Hannibal, to swear upon at peace with Rome.

AMISSA, Things loft. These were the ways which the Antients made use of to find the things they had loft. Marfur teaches us, that they fix'd Papers upon some Post or Pillar in publick places, declaring what was loft, the Name of the Person who lost it, and the place of his Dwelling, promiting a Reward to him that should bring it, as it is practifed at this

Quae fiquis mibi retuleris, denabitur auro.

I puer, & ettar her alique propone columne : Et dominum Exquilits feribe habitare taum. Apulsius tells us, that they can'd the thing to be cry'd in the Crofs-ftreets, promiting likewife a Reward to him that should restore it :

Si quis à fugă retrabere, vel occultam demenfrare potuerit regis filiam, Veneris ancillam, nomine Pfychen, conveniar retro metas Marcias mercurium pradicatorum.

They went also to the Preter, and ask'd of his fome Perfons to make fearch for the thing loft, as we learn out of Pleatus;

- Ad Pratorem illisò Ile, crabe, ut conquisitures det milit in vicis anaribus. Qui illam i vafigent, qui invaniant.

AMMONIUS or HAMMONIUS,

Insiter Ammen, worthin'd in Libre under the figure of a Ram, of which fome fay this was the Reafon : Becches having faben'd Afia, and paffing with his Army through the Defarts of Africe, was in great Want of Water, and ready to perife with Third; but Junior his Father affirming the shape of a Ram, led him to a Formanin where he refreth'd his Army, and in requiral of fo great a Benefit, Bacchur built him a Temple there, under the Title of Jupiter Hommen, i. c. Sandy, because of the Sands of Africa. Others fay he was call'd Annes from a Shepherd of that Name, who built an Altze to him there.

The Latin Interpreter of Ameur, who is called Boffus on Germanicus Cafar, Wittes, That the Rom which frem'd the Fountain to Bacchus, when he amduliad his Army thre the Defarts of Libyn, mas plac'd among the Celeftial dans; and Bacchus creffed a magnificent Temple to Jupiter in the place where he found the Bountain, about nine days Journey from Alexandria, who, from the Sand that was there, was call'd Jupicer Ammon. You may confult upon this Subject Quintus Curtius. Elb. 4. Diederus Siculus, lib. 17. Ox Arrian, lib. 4. de Expedit. Alexand.

Jupiter was figur'd with a Ram's Head beesule his Oracles were always very intricate, if we may credit Servius. But Heredetus gives a better Reafon, when he trile us that the de-

the Alters of the Gods, that he would never be | mentate borrow'd this Worship of the Egyptians. of the City of Thebes, where Japiter had a Ram's Head.

Strabe relates, with fome appearance of Reafon, that the Place where Jupiter Ammon's Temple flood, was formerly near the Sea, and that the great Concourse of People, which came to confult this Oracle, is an evident Proof of it; for a place fo far diffant from the Sea, and flanding in fuch valt Defarts of Sand. could never be fo frequenced. He speaks elsewhere of the Travels of Hercules, Perfess and Alexander to confult this Oracle.

This Relation supposes always, that Japites Ammon was King of Egypt, whose Worthip, after his Apotheofis or Deification in Ecipi. pass'd into the distant Provinces. Diederus Sicube, describing a Tradition of the Libyaur, gives us a Relation that proves the thing, with That Jupiter Amount was a great King, of whom was made a fabulous God, and a fictitious Oracle after his death. This Historian cites another more antient Writer, who fays, That Ammon reign'd in Libys, and marryed Rhes the Daughter of Calas, and Sifter of Satura and the other Titans : that Rhea divorcing herfelf from durmer, marryed Samen, and put him upon making War with Amoun, in which he was victorious, and forced Amora to fave himfelf by Sea, and fly into Crete, where he made himfelf King. Arries fays, That Perfess and Hercules accounted themselves the Posterity of Japiter : and that Alexander being envious of their Glory, call'd himfelf also the Son of Annon, who was the Jupiter of Libys.

AMOR, Leve, according to Plate, is a God more beautiful, antient, and better than all the fabulous Deities of Antiquity. Simmider makes him the Son of Mars, and Venus the Goddess of Beauty; as also doth Lucian in his Dialogues, Acallau will have him the Son of the Air and Night; Saple of the God Ca-ler and Venus. Helied; in his Theogenia, fays, that he was born of Cheer and the Earth; and that before the Creation of the World, he was in the Divine Effence, because it lov'd its Creatures from all Eternity, before they were created.

He bath also diffused the same Spirit of Love among them all, which is nothing elfe, according to Empedicles, but the Divine Vertue which inclines the Creatures to defire an Union one with another; or to speak more properly, 2 Divine Intelligence, which hath imprinted that Spirit in Nature it felf : From whence arifes the Harmony of the Elements, and the Constation of Animals.

The beavenly Souls, and Spirits themselves: according to the Platenife, descend by the means of Love into the Body : For which rer-fon it is, that Orphew will have it, that Love has the Keys of Heaven Gates, and so he represents him, as holding them in his Hands. 'Tir Love or Cupid, Says Lucian, that conquers all the Gods, and Venus herfelf, who is his Mother. He can do nothing with Pallas, nor the Mufes, nor dares to attack Diana, but he fears not Juniter or bis Thunderbolts. He is painted in the form of a beautiful Child with Wings, and a Filler over his Eves, who carries a Quiver upon his Shoulders, holding a Bow and Arrows in one hand. and in the other a lighted Torch.

The Wings which are given to Cupid denote his Levity and Inconstancy : A Bow and Ouiver full of Arrows are attributed to him, because he wounds the Hearts of Lovers : He is painted blind, because nothing is more blind than Love.

Love is call'd by the Greeks sees, from the earnest folicitation which Lovers make one to the other. They also call arrigus, Mutual Love, which they make a God, and affirm him to be the Son of Mars and Venus, as Cicero tells us, Lib. 3. De Nat. Deor. whom they myflically represent with two Torches lighted. joyned and tyed together. Pausanias, in his Eliaca, makes mention of a Statue of Cupid and Anteres, who strives to fnatch a Palm-Branch which the other holds in his hand. And Perphyrius, the Philosopher, has left us a Fable upon this Subject ; That Venus perceiving that little Cupid did not thrive, and that he fell into a languishing condition, went to ask Advice about it of the Goddels Themis, who answerd her, That he had need of an Anteros, or mutual Love to relieve him : whereupon, a little time after, Venus conceived Anteros, and he was fearce born, but Cupid apparently grew, and became more beautiful every day. The Athenians, fays Paulanias, erected an Altar to the God Anterer, upon the account of a certain Milesian, who was much lov'd by Timagoray. This last being defirous to give some proofs of his Love, cast himself headlong from a Rock, and kill'd himfelf; at which the Milesian was so troubled, that he also cast himself down after him, which made the Athenians worship the Ghost of Timagoras, under the Name of Anteres, as a Revenger of the too great Rigour of the person lov'd toward the Lover. Some also call him Anteres, who disengages unhappy Lovers from that Love which cannot find a futable return. Dide feems to allude to this in Eneid. Lib. IV. v. 478.

Invent, Germana, viam, gratare forori Que mihi reddas cum, vel eo me folvat amanten

Ovid, in like manner fays, that they call'd him Forgetful Love, Lethaus Amor, who had a Temple at Rome near the Colline-Gate :

Est propè Collinain templam wenerabile portam

Eft illic Lethaus Amor qui pettora fanat, Inque suas gelidam lampadas addit aquam. In Remed. Amoris.

Some have had recourse to Magicians and Charms, to make 'em love. Lucian brings in an Harlot named Meliffa. who defired Bacchis to bring fome Magician to her, who gave Philtres to cause Love, and allure Lovers. She tells her, That she knew a Syrian Woman, who made a Lover return to her again, after Four Months absence, by an Enchantment which she then declar'd to her. She shall hang. fars fbe, the Calces or Sandals of the Lover upon a Peg, and shall put upon them some Perfumes, then the Shall caft forme Salt into the Fire, pronouncing thy Name and his ; then drawing a Magical Looking Glass out of her Besom, the shall turn every way. muttering feveral words with a low voice.

We meet also with other Enchantments fet down in Theoritus's Pharmaceutria, in Virgil and Juvenal. Josephus alfo, the Jewifb Historian. testifies, that Moses having learn'd the Egyptian Philosophy, made Rings for Lovers and Forgetfulness, as also did King Solomon against Witchcraft.

Whatever Effects these Love-Potions might have, what Ovid tells us is more probable, That Beauty, and fomething elfe, not to be mention'd, are the only Philtres, which engage any Man to love.

Fallitur Emonias fiquis decurrit ad artes: Datque quod à teneri fronte revellit equi Non facient, ut vivat amor, Medeides herhe Mixtaque cum magicis Marja venena fanis Phasias Æsonidem, Circe tenuisset Ulyssen. Si medò servari carmine poffet amor.

Nec data profuerint pallentia philtra puellic Philtra noccut animis, vimque furoris habent. Sit procul omne nefas : Ut ameris, amabilis effo : Qued tibi non facies, solave forma dabit. Art. Amand. Lib. II. v. oo.

-AMPHIARAUS, the Son of Oecleus, or according to fome, of Apollo and Hypermaeftra; being unwilling to go with Adraftus, King of Argos, to war against Ethcocles, King of Thebes, hid himself, to avoid the Death which he knew would happen to him in that Expedition; but Eriphyle, his Wife, being gain'd by Adrastus with the promise of a rich Chain, betray'd him, and discover'd the place where he was hid. Amphiaraus, entag'd that he was fo basely betray'd by the Treachery of his own Wife, commanded his Son Alemen, before his departure. That as foon as he heard of his death. he should revenge it upon his Mother Eriphyle, as the only cause of his Misfortune. The Enterprize against Thebes provid very unfuccesful; for of the Seven chief Commanders, Five of them were flain at the first On-fet, and amphiaraus was fwallow'd up was retreating.

Philefirstu gives this account of Amphiaraus, in his Second Book of the Life of Apellenius ; Amphiaraus, the Son of Oecleus, at his return from Thebes, was swallow'd up in the Earth. He had an Oracle in Attica, whither be fent the Dreams of those who came to confult him about their Affairs ; but above all things they must be 24 hours without Meat or Drink and Three days entire without the use of Wine.

Pausanias, in his Attica, speaks of a Temple confecrated to him : At the going out of the City Oropus, upon the Sea-Coafts, about 12 Furlengs from thence, there flands the Temp'e of Amphiaraus, who flying from Thebes, was fwallowed up with his Chariet. Others fay, that it was not in that place, but in the way that leads from Toebes to Chalcis. Nevertheless, 'tis evident that Amphiarnus was first deifi'd by the Orepians, and afterwards the Greeks decreed him divine Honours. His Statue was made of white Marble, with an Altar, of which only the third part is dedicated to him, and the rest to other Gods. Near to this Temple there is a Fountain call'd the Temple of Amphiaraus, out of which 'tis faid he came when he was plac'd among the number of the Gods. None were permitted to wash or purify in that Fountain, but when they had an Answer from the Oracle, or found their trouble remov'd; then they cast some pieces of Silver or Gold into the Fountain. Jophe of Gneffus, one of the Interpreters of Amphiaraus's Oracles, publish'd them in Hexameter Verse, which brought the People to his Amphiaraus, after he was deifi'd, instituted the way of fore-telling things to come, by Dreams; and they that came to confult his Oracle, must first facrifice to him, as to a God, and then observe the other Ceremonies prefcribed. They facrificed a Sheep, and after they have flead it, they spread the Skin upon the ground, and flept upon it, expecting a Refolution of what they asked, which he gave them in a Dream.

The fame Author, in his Corinthiaca, tells us alfo, That in the City of the Philasium, behind the great Market, there is an House which is called the Prophecying or Divining-place, where Amphiaraus having watch'd one Night, began to fore-tell things to come.

Plutarch, speaking of the Oracle of Amphiarans , fays, That in the time of Xerxes. a Servant was fent to confult is concerning Mardonius. This Servant being afteep in the Temple, dreamt that an Officer of the Temple chid him much, and beat him, and at laft flung a great Stone at his head, because he would not go out. This Dream prov'd true; for Mardonius was flain by the Lieutenant of the King alive in the Earth, with his Chariot, as he | of Lacedamon, being received a Blow with a Stone upon his bead, of which be dyed. This is almost all that Antiquity has left us about Amphiarant and his Oracles.

AMPHICTYON, the Son of Helenus ; This was he, fays Strabe, who appointed that famous Assembly of Greece, made up of the most vertuous and wife of Seven Cities, who were called after his Name, as were also the Laws which they made.

Calius would have us believe, that he was the first that taught Men to mingle Wine with Water. There was another of that Name. the Son of Deucalism, Governour of Attica after Cranaus, who is faid to be an Interpreter of Prodigies and Dreams.

AMPHILOCHUS. Lucian, in one of his Dialogues, entituled The Affembly of the Gods, tells us, That he was the Son of a Villain that flew his Mother, and that had the confidence to prophecy in Cilicia, where he foretold all that Men defired for about Two pence; so that he took away Apollo's Trade. And the same Lucion, in his Lyar, brings in Eucrates Speaking thus about Amphilechus; As I return'd, says he, from Egypt, having beard of the Fame of the Oracle of Amphilochus, which answer'd clearly and punitually to every thing any person desired to know, provided they gave it in writing to his Prophet, I had the curiofity to confult him as I passed.

AMPHINOMUS, and ANAPIUS, two Brothers who were eminent for their Piety, having faved their Parents, by carrying them upon their Shoulders, with the peril of their own Lives, out of the City of Catanea. which was fet on fire by the Flames of Ætna.

AMPHION, the Son of Jupiter and Antiope, the Daughter of Nycetus King of Beotia. Antiope was first marryed to Lyou King of Thebes; but he divorc'd her, because she had profitured herfelf to Enaphus, King of Sicyon. Jupiter, who was in love with her, enjoy'd her under the form of a Satyr. Derce, the Second Wife of Lycus, caus'd her to be imprison'd. out of Jealousie; but she having escaped, and feeing herfelf pursu'd, hid herfelf in Mount Citheren , where she brought forth Twins . Zethus and Amphion, who were brought up by Shepherds, and being grown up, reveng'd the Wrongs done to their Mother by Lycus and Derce, whom they caus'd to be pull'd in pieces, having ty'd them to the Tail of a mad Bull.

Amphyon was very excellent at Musick, and learn'd of Mercary to play upon stringed Instruments, in which he grew so great a Proficient, as the Poets fay, That he built the Walls of Thebes by the found of his Harp, and that the Stones put themselves in order to make that Building. Having married Niebe, the Daughter of Tantalas, he had by her Seven | Altar, upon which they facrificed Men before Sons. and Seven Daughters, of which their Mother was fo proud, that the preferred herfelf before Latona, the Mother of Apollo and Diana, for which the loft all her Children, except Cloris, they being flain by Apollo's and Diana's Darts. Amphion, to revenge himfelf, attempted to destroy Apollo's Temple; but that God flew him, and punish'd him in Hell with the loss of his Sight and Harp.

Amphion receiv'd his Harp of Mercury, who was the Inventer of it, as Apollo speaks in Lucian : He made (fays that God to Vulcan) an Instrument of a Tortoife-Shell, on which he play'd fo excellently, fo that he made me jealous, who am the God of Harmony.

And after he had shewn it to Apollo, and the Muses, as Pausonias says, he made a Present of it to Amphien : 'Aupiers Te Oncale dueer.

AMPHITHEATRUM, the Amphitheatre, a place built round or oval, which encompassed the Roman-Theatre, and was furnish'd with Seats, on which the People fitting. faw divers Shows and Sports'which were expos'd to view. It is evident, that in Vitruvius's time the true Amphitheatres were not built at Rome: and therefore 'tis a mistake in Pliny, for keeping the Athlete, i. e. Wrestlers. when he speaks of Pempeii Amphitheatri, inflead of Pompeiani Theatri, as Lipsius observes. the precise time when Amphitheatres were beautiful as Marble. It was call'd the Amphitheatre of Nero's Colossus or Statue. It was 135 feet broad, and 525 long, large enough theatres and Theatres at first were not built for continuance, being only of Boards, which they down, and crush'd a great number of People under the Ruines of it. Augustus was the first that built one of Stone in the Campus Martius, at the Expence of Statilius Taurus, A.U.725. and this Amphitheatre remained till the time of the Emperor Velpasian; for the first being burnt in Nero's time, Velpasian began a new one, in his Eighth in that Delign : for, as Pling says, Scaurus was Confulship, two Years before his Death, but Titus finish'd it.

Pliny relates, that Curio made an Amphitheatre that turned upon huge Iron-Hinges, fo that two Theatres might be made of that Amphitheatre at pleasure, on which different Plays might be reprefented at the same time.

The Amphitheatres were confecrated to Diana Taurica, or Scythica, Jove Latino, or Stygie, as Martial will have it, and at last to Saturn. Minutius Felix tells us, That there was an fitting at their eafe.

they began their Sports.

The Amphitheatre was divided into Three principal parts; the Firft, which was the Theatre, was the lowest, and made as it were a plain of Sand, which was call'd the Cavea, that is to fay, the Cave; because it was full of artificial fubterraneous Caverns, of which some were used to shut up Beasts in, and others ferved to hold Water for the imittaing of Sea-Fights, and for the conveniency of the Spectators. This place was plain, even and fandy, whence it was call'd arens, or the Sand, and from it proceeded that Latin figurative Phrase, In arenam descendere, which is as much as to fay To enter the Combat , because the Gladiators fought upon that Sand, or on that Sandy Place.

The fecond part was the Circle about the Arena, which contain'd a great number of Seats, with divers Ascents one above another. that the Spectators who fat nearest might not hinder those that fat further off from feeing.

The third part was us'd for the keeping of divers kinds of Beafts, as Horfes for Races and Hunting of Wild-Beafts, for Criminals, and

It is very hard, favs Justus Lipsius, to set down There were afterwards several Amphitheatres first built; yet that Author does not doubt to built at Rome, in imitation of the Greeks, of fix the Invention of them about the Declenwhich the most famous was Nero's, which was fron of the Commonwealth, and believes that built all of Tybertine-Stone, which is as hard and Curio's Theatre was an Amphitheatre, because when they pleas'd they could divide it into two parts, and when they chang'd its Form, and us'd it in its full Extent it was a true Amto contain 87000 persons sitting at their ease; phiteatre. These Words are almost the same and the height of it was 165 feet. Amphi- with Pliny's, and feem to make that Tribune of the People the first Inventor of Amphitheatres; for in the fame place 'tis expresly obpull'd down after the Plays were ended. Dien | ferv'd, that the Divertions of the Scene were Cassus says, That one of these Amphitheatres fell so artificially dispos'd, that altho there were, as it were, two Theatres, yet the Contrivance of the Machine-maker did order things fo well, that when they pleas'd there appear'd but one Inclosure or Amphitheatre.

Nevertheles Statilius Scaurus, that famous Ædile, may be thought to have preceded Curio the first who exposed to the People an hundred and fifty Panthers: and Bullenger adds, that he us'd his Theatre as an Amphitheatre.

However 'tis most evident that Julius Cafer. was the first Inventor of Amphitheatres; and Bullenger affures us, That after he had subdu'd Afia and Africa, he built a Theatre of Wood in the Campus Martius, which was called an Amphitheatre, because of the Ascents that were round it. and upon which the Spectators might fee the Plays, of Alcaus and Laonoma, the Daughter of Gunaus according to Paulanias in his Arcadica. He marry'd Alemena of whom the Story is famous for the Birth of Twins, whereof one was nam'd Hercules, who was the Son of Jupiter, and was furnamed Alcides, either from his Grand-father Alcaus, or else from the Greek Word ann, which fignifies Strength or Valour, because of his extraordinary Strength, by which he fubdu'd so many huge Monsters, and clear'd the Earth of them. See Alemena.

AMPHITRYO,

AMPHITRITE, a Greek Word which fignifies encompassing. The Poets make her a Goddess, the Daughter of Oceanus and Daris, and Wife to Neptune the God of the Sea.

AMPHORA, an Earthen Vessel with two handles, wherein were put things dry and liquid, as Horace fays in his de Arte Poetica, v. 21.

- Amphora cepit Inflitui, currente rota cur urceus exit ? The Potter had a Design in turning the Wheel to make an Amphora, and nevertheless he made a Pitcher only. This Veffel contain'd four Sextaries and an half of Wine, which is about nine Gallons. Suetonius tell us a Story of a Man who flood for the Quæstorship, and who drank an Amphora of Wine at one Meal with the Emperour Tiberius, Ob Epotam in Convivio propinante fe vini am-phoram. This Measure contains also three Bushels of dry Measure, the Standard of it was kept at Rome in the Capitol, to prevent falle Measures, as Rhemnius Fannius Polemon, who was Lucan's Master, testifies; from whence it was called Amphera Capitalina. It was a foot fquare in all its Dimensions, as Length, Breadth and Depth. and confequently it was Cubical.

AMPLIARE and AMPLIATIO [Terms of the Roman Law,] to delay the Judgment of any matter for better Information, to declare that we must proceed in Law by Writing and Allegations, when a matter is not fufficiently discover'd or prov'd; for when such a thing happen'd in Suits, the Judg pronounc'd with a loud Voice Amplies; or he cast into a Pot a Ballot mark'd with an N and an L, which is as much as to fay, Non Liquet, that is, The Matter cannot be determin'd as it ftands.

M. Acilius Glabrio and Calpurnius Pife forbad Ampliation or Pleadings by Writing in Lawfuits, as Cicero testifies in his first Oration against Verres.

AMULA, a fort of Vessel, wherein the Lustral Water, in the Roman Sacrifices, was AMULIUS SYLVIUS, King of Alba, the Son of Proces, and Brother of Numiter.

AMPHITRYO, a Theban Prince, the Son | and his Father gave it him at his death; but Amulius invaded it, and to fecure his Ufurpapation he caus'd Egeftur the Son of Numitor to be flain in hunting, and forc'd his Daughter, whom some name Ilia and other Rhea and Sylvis, to become a Vestal Virgin. She grew big as the was facrificing to Mars in a Wood, and was after deliver'd of Twins, Rhemus and Romulus, who reveng'd their Uncle's Death by flaying Amulius the Ufurper, and restoring Numiter to the Throne.

AMYMONE, one of the fifty Daughters of Danaus, whom her Father forced every day to go and draw Water in the Lake of Lerns, a City of Arges, and who had her Water-pot in her hand, fays Lucian, because the City was very dry. But Neptune having feen her fell in love with her and took her away, and striking a Rock with his Trident he rais'd up a Fountain in her stead. She was the only one of all her Sisters who, after her Death, was not condemn'd to fill a Tub, full of holes, with Wa-

ANALEMMA, a Greek Word, that fignifies those forts of Sun-Disk, which shew only the Height of the Sun at Noon every day, by the Largeness of the shadow of the Gnomen. Tis not properly a Dyal, because it does not ... fhew the Hours, but the Signs and Months only. Of late Analemma's and Dials are joined together, which shew the Month by the length of the shadow, and the Hours by the Declina-

ANCÆUS, the Son of Neptune and Aftypales, who much delighted in tilling the ground and planting Vines; when he had fpent feveral Nights in planting a Vineyard, one of his Servants told him that he should never drink of the Wine of that Vineyard; but when he had gather'd his Vintage, and caused some of the New Wine to be brought him to drink, he call'd that Servant to convict him of a Lye; he nevertheless held firm to his Prediction, repeating the Proverb, Multa cadunt inter calicem supremaque labra. Or this.

Inter os & offam multa cadant.

While these things pass'd, News came to Anceus, that a Boar was got into his Vineyard. and had made much waste in it: he thereupon let fall his Cup, and went to hunt the Boar, which run at him and flew him. Paufanias, in his Arcadica, makes mention of another Ancaus, the Son of Lycurgus, who went in an Expedition to Chelcher, and was flain by the Calydenian Boar, hunting with Mileager.

ANCHISES, the Son of Capys, lived in the Defarts of Phrygia, where he spent his days in keeping his Flocks. The Fable fays, that The Kingdom of right belonged to Numiter, Venus often came down upon Mount Ida to en-

Prince, was born, who in the Destruction of Troy fav'd him from the flames, carrying him upon his shoulders. He dy'd at Drepanum, and his Son celebrated anniversary Games in honour of him, of which Virgil speaks in his fifth Book.

ANCILE, Re ANCYLE.

ANCULI and ANCULÆ, the Gods and Goddeffes of Slaves, whom they honour'd and pray'd to in the Miseries of their Bondage.

ANCUS MARTIUS, the Grandson of Nums, and fourth King of the Romans. He fucceeded Tullus Hostilius, and was valiant contrary to the Hopes of his Neighbours. He fubdu'd the Vejenter in two several Fights, and took some of their Towns. He enlared Rome, and fortifi'd Janiculum. He built the City Offia. at the mouth of Tiber, to facilitate and fecure Navigation. He reign'd 24 years.

ANCYLE, or rather ANCILIA, a fort of Buckler fo call'd from the Greek Word a vκίλη or αγκών, which fignifies an Elbow. The Bucklers were cut and hollow'd into a Semicircle in the middle, and larger at the two

There was a Festival kept at Rome in March. called The Feast of the Holy Bucklers. The Occafion of its Institution was thus; In the Reign of Numa, Rome was afflitted with fo great a Plague, that all feiz'd with it dy'd without any Poffibility of Cure. One day as Numa was going in one of the Streets of the City, there fell down from Heaven upon bim, an Holy Buckler, or Ancyle, which he took as a Token of the Divine Protection; for the Plague began to decrease, and the Nymph Ægeria told him, that the Fate and Happiness of his City were annexed to it, as beretofore those of Troy were to the Palladium of Minerva. He found no great Difficulty to persuade the People to these things, and, that their Enemies might not take away this Fatal Buckler, he caus'd Veturius Mamurius to make Eleven others, fo exactly like it, that the Hely Buckler could never be distinguished from the others. He put them into the Temple of Mars, under the Conduct of twelve Priefts call'd Salii; of whom I fhall speak in their place.

Mamurius received this Reward, to be celebrated in the Hymns compos'd in honour of the God Mars. as Ovid tells us in these Verses, lib. 2. Fasterum

Inde Sacerdotes operi promissa vetusto

Pramia perselvunt , Mamuriumque vecant. Plutarch, explains this otherwise, for he says, That when the Salii made mention of Verurius Mamurius in the Hymns of Mars, it was only through a Corruption of their Language, and that they ought to have faid, ob veterem memoriam.

iov his Love; and of her Eneas, the Trojan | Sali qui cantant Veturium Manutium, Genificant veterem memeriam. But the greatest number of Authors are for the former Opinion, which feems the most natural and least strained.

The Feast of Holy Bucklers began the first of March, and lasted three days. It had several Names, some call'd it Salierum Festura, Saliares or Martiales Ludi, Antylierum festum, Mamuralia. The Salii carry'd the Bucklers through the City dancing, and the Festival was ended with a fumptuous Feast, which was by way of Eminency call'd Saliaris Cana. Harace describes this Feaft, and what pass'd in it lib. 1. Od. 37.

Nunc est bibendum, nunc pede libero Pullanda tellus : nunc Saliaribus

Ornare pulvinar deorum Tempus erat dapibus, sodalas,

None could marry, nor go about any Bufinels when these Bucklers were carry'd, because as Ovid fays, Arms denote Discord, which. ought not to be found in Marriages.

Arma movent pugnam, pugna est aliena maritis : Condita cum fuerint, aptius omen erit.

Fast. lib. 3. v. 395. Tacitus, in the first Book of his History, attributes the ill Success of the Emperour Othe against Vitellius, to his Departure from Rome. while these Holy Bucklers were carrying.

ANDROMEDA, the Daughter of Cepheus. King of Æthiepia, and Caffiepe, who was fo rash and presumptuous to dispute with June and the Nereides for Beauty; to punish this Sauciness, her Daughter was condemn'd to be expos'd naked upon a Rock to be devour'd by a Sea-monster, but she was rescu'd by Perseus, (who flew through the Air with the Wings which Minerva lent him to fight against the Gorgons, and who, by the help of the Buckler of that Goddess, wherein he saw the Image of Medusa as in a Looking-glass, had taken her by the Hair and cut off her Head, and then escap'd, while her Sifters were afleep.) for as he was on his Return on the Coasts of Ethiopia, he faw Andromeda just ready to be devour'd by the Monfter, and being mov'd with Love as well as Pity for the Misfortune of fuch a fair Unfortunate, turn'd the Monster into stone by shewing it the Head of Medula, after he had flun'd it with a Blow of his Sword: then loofing the Virgin, who was ty'd half naked to the Rock, he help'd her to get down the steep Precipice. and carry'd her back to her Father, who, to reward him, gave her to him in Marriage.

Lucian gives us a further Description of this History, in his Commendation of an House; Behold, fays he, Perfeus, who flew a Sea-monfter and refer'd Andromeda : Confider bow in a [mall space the Painter, has well express d the Fear and Modelly of this young Fair one, who all naked view'd Varro is of the same Opinion, lib. 5. Itaque | the Combat from an high Rock. Consider the terrible the amorous Courage of the Hero. See bom he held up his Buckler against the Monster, which turned him into stone by the force of Medufa's Look, whilst he gave him a full Blow upon his Head with a Back-Gword.

The Hiftory of Andremeds may be compar'd to that of Iphigenia. Andromeda being expord to a Sea-monfter, to expiate for the Pride of her Mother, who prefer'd her own Beauty before that of the Nymphs, the was deliver'd from it by Perfeus, who marry'd her after he had flain the Monster. This Perfeus is nothing elfe but an Horseman, according to the fignification of the Hebrew word Pharas, Equus. The place where Andromeda was expos'd is Joppa, or Japha, upon the Coasts of Phanicia, as Pliny fays, In que vinculorum Andromede veltigie oftendunt.

The same Author assures us, that the prodigious Bones of this Fish to which Andromeda was expos'd, were carry'd by Scaurus of Joppa to Rome : Bellue, cui dicebatur fuife expofica Andromede, offe Rome apportata ex oppido Judea Joppe, oftendit inter relique miracula in adilitate (us M. Scourse. 'Tis evident that it was fome Whale, taken at Joppa, whose Skeleton Scaurus shew'd at Rome: and that he might make his new Story more plaufible, he fet it off with the old Fable of Andromeda, Volfius is of opinion that this Sea-monster to whom ... indromeda was expos'd, and from whom Perfeus deliver'd her. was nothing elfe but a Ship, or the Captain of 2 Ship, who had fuch a Monster for his Flag, and courted Andremeda, to marry her.

ANDRONES, a Greek Word which fignifies. The Apartment of Men, where they were accustom'd to make their Feasts, into which Women were not allow'd to come.

ANGELI, Angels, These are spiritual Inrelligences, which God makes use of, as his Ministers, to do Men Good or Evil, and to execute the Commands of his Divine Providence upon them. The Greeks and Latins acknowledg'd Angels under the Name of Good or Evil Genii or Damons. It is a Truth which Homer was well fatish'd in, that Angels or Demens do ftir up many Motions and divers Paffions in the Mind and Heart of Man.

Hefied tells us, that there are thirty thousand Gods or Angels dispers'd over all the Earth, to observe the Conduct of Men ; Ter enim decies mille funt in terra Dir Jovis, cuftoder mortulium bominum, qui judicia observant & prava opera, aere induti, paffim oberrantes per terram : thefe Words Dii Jovis fignifie Angels: "Tis the Do-Strine of the Church, which even the Poets acknowledg'd with Hefiod, That the Providence of God watches over the Universe, and that he hath thirty thousand, i. e. an infinite number of Angels, the Ministers of his wrath.

Lukt of the Monfeer, who came to devour her, and I In fine, These Divine Guardians and Observers of our Actions are invisibly, yet most certainly in the midft of us, and encompals us on all fides.

Euripides, in Cicero, makes the unformate OEdipus fay, that he withdrew himfelf for fear lest the Evil Genii should hurt the City upon his account, And rev and speas, &c. That's the Name he gives those Gmii or Demmi which he believ'd were appointed to every particular Person, and were dispos'd to hurt them, as there were others who delighted to help and benefit them.

This Opinion of Heliod, agrees with Varre's and Plate's, who also assign several Orders of Demons or Intelligences in the Heavens, the Air, the Earth, and the fubrerraneous parts, that all the Universe might be fill'd with Life. Reason and Understanding, and consequently have a perfect Beauty. Nevertheless this Difference is remarkable, that Plate will have those Intelligences, which people and fill the whole Universe, to be created and appointed to their Offices from the beginning of the World; whereas Hefied supposes them to be partly the Souls of the deceas'd.

ANGERONA, a Goddess, who is pray'd to against a certain Distemper call'd a Quinsie, in Latin Angina. Pliny will have her the Goddess of Silence, and Calmness of Mind, who banishes all Disturbances, and heals all forts of Melancholy. The Romans instituted a Feast toher, which they call'd Angeronalia, because she cur'd their Flocks, which were troubled with the Quinfie. She is painted with her Mouth cover'd, to shew us that Pains and Griefs should be born without impatient Complaints. They facrifi'd to her in the Temple of the Goddels Velapia, where her Statue was fet up.

ANGIBATA, a Greek Word that comes from 23 Sao, and fignifies a Transparent Veffel, in which little Images feem to move up and down in the Water, which are inclosed in it and feal'd up hermetically. This wonderful Effect, which makes a kind of Enameli'd Figures to fwim in the Water, is feen in an Angibata, which has lately been found out, in which a fmall Image rifes and falls, turns about and flands flill as you pleafe. This is done by fraitning and comprelling the Water more or less with the Thumb, which stops the end of a long Glass Pipe or Tube fill'd with Water. The Contrivance is, The little enamell'd Image, which is hollow and has a Weight fo proportion'd to its Largeness, that it will Iwim upon the Water, yet fo, that by the Addition of a small Weight it will rife and fink to the bottom.

ANGLIA, England, see Albion.

ANGUIS, a Serpent, which was an ill Omen | it shews us, that the Soul had forsaken the Boy in Marriages, as we may fee by those Verses of Terence in his Phormie, He will fay that lately there bappen'd to him ill Omens, & Serpent fell from the Tiles through a Gutter. The God Afculapins is ordinarily represented under the figure of a Serpent, because he came from Epidaurus to Rome in that shape.

ANGUSTUS CLAVUS, a finall Button in the shape of the Head of a Nail, which the Reman Knights did Wear upon their Garments, call'd from thence Tunica Angusti Clavi. whereas the Senators wore them larger, and their Coat was therefore call'd Tunica Lati Clavi. From hence it comes that these Words are often in Latin Authors, and chiefly in Suctonius, taken for the Dignity of Knights and ANIENSIS TRIBUS, the Tribe of Anio, or the Inhabitants near the River Anio. In the Confulfhip of M. Fulvius and F. Manlius, the Cenfors P. Semprenius Sopho and P. Sulpitius Severa: made a Cenfus, i. e. took an Account of the number of the People, to which they added a new Tribe call'd Anienfis.

ANIGER or ANIGRUS, a River of fant, but afterwards turn'd bitter and stinking, because the Centaurs wash'd their Wounds in it, which they had receiv'd from Hercules, as the Fable fays.

ANIMA, the Soul, which animates all living Creatures in general. This Word comes from ange, which fignifies Wind or Breath ; the Latins fay, Animam efflare, to express the yielding up the last Breath, or at the last Gasp .-

The Antients were feveral ways miftaken about the Nature of the Soul. Some, as Lactantius fays, believ'd that the Soul was Air. Varro, following this Opinon, fays, The Soul is Air received in at the Mouth, purified by the Lungs, warmed by the Heart, and from thence dispersed through the whole Body. Some have form'd to themselves an Idæa of Souls, as certain thin Subffances like Shadows, yet visible, performing the fame Functions and having the fame Organs with the Bodies which they animate, fince they fee, fpeak, understand, and have need of Boats to carry them over the Rivers of | Spirits. Hell; so that according to their Argument they are only more fubril Bodies. This Error pass'd among the Primitive Christians, notwithstanding the clear Light of the Gospel; and so the Antients in their Emblems have represented the Soul by a Butterfly flying from the Body, which may be observed from a Baffo Relieve of Marble, which represents a young ces which govern the Stars. Thus the Apo-Man lying upon a Bed, with a Deaths-head at | theofis or Deification of the deceafed, was an which fignifies his Soul, and by its flying away Immortality of Soul.

dy, to which it was united.

The Butter-fly feems to have come out of the Mouth of the deceas'd, because the Antients thought, as the Vulgar still do, that the Soul took its flight from the Body at the Mouth, which made Honer fay, in his Iliads lib. 9. That when the Soul has once past'd the Fence of the Teeth, it can never return again.

They have exprest the Soul by a Butter-fly, which perpetuates its Being by changing its shape several times. For after this manner the Pythagoreans believe that we change our Genus or Species by the Transmigration of our Souls. Moralis tells us of an Epitaph, by which it appears, that a dead Man order d his Heirs to make a Butter-fly over his Ashes:

Haredibus meis mando etiam cineri ut meo Volitet ebrius Papilio.

There is yet extant a Representation of a Cupid endeavouring to fix an unfleady Soul. by fastening it to a Tree, for a punishment of its Inconstancy, nailing it to a dry stump, and by that means hindring it from entring into the Body it defir'd.

Nicetas Choniates fays, That fome were of opinion. Theffaly, whose Waters were sweet and plea- that there are two Natures in the Soul, one luminous and the other dark. This last has its Original from below, and comes through some subterraneous Caverns ; the other descends from the Height of Heaven all inflamed to adorn the Body ; but in its Defeent it is especially caution'd to take care, that while it endeavours to adorn its earthly Habitation by its Light, it doth not obscure it self by the others Darkness.

> The Soul is more particularly faid to be that which gives Life to Animals and Vegetables. The Vegetative Soul is in Plants and Trees, the Animal in Beafts, and the Rational and Spiritual in Man. The Cartefians define the Soul of Man a thinking Substance, and by this Quality alone they think they can prove its spiritual and immortal Nature. As to the Soul of Beafts they fay tis an Automaton, or a. Machine that moves of it felf and by natural Springs, that their Soul is a thin an active Substance, which participates of the Nature of Fire, and is the Source of the Vegetative

The Immortality of our Soul was not only the Opinion of the Poets, but of all Mankind. The first Idolatry was either the Worship of the Stars, or of Kings, which were Deities after their Deaths. Now this presupposes that they believed that the Souls of Kings were much of the same Nature with the Intelligenhis Feet, and a Butter-fly flying over him, evident proof of the common belief of the of the inward belief of the Souls Immortality; for Men would never have taken so much pains to have eterniz'd their Name and Memory, if the Soul had been mortal: So Horace tells us, That he should not dye entirely, but that the greatest part of himself would survive after death.

Non omnis moriar, multaque pars mei Vitabit Libitinam. And Ovid fays the fame in these Verses : Parte tamen meliore mei super alta perennis

Altra ferar. Cieero, in his Oration for the Poet Archiae explains the Immortality, fo much celebrated by the Poets; he affures us, that it was the Opinion of wife Men, That immortal Glory, the love of which was fo ardent in Man, suppofes immortal Life, which could tast the Sweetness of that Glory. This learned Man treats upon this Subject in his Tufculan Queftions, and observes there, that their very Burials, Funeral-Elegies, the Examples of those who have devoted themselves to Death for the Good of their Country, the Love of Glory, wherewith Men are so inspir'd, and lastly is read concerning it in the Poets, are evident Proofs of the Immortality of Souls, and of the Belief that all Men have of it, and explaining the reason which induc'd Men to describe Hell after the manner that the Poets had represented it; he says, 'twas because they thought Souls immortal, and not being able to apprehend any thing but what is material; they had describ'd Souls, and the Punishment of Hell, by corporial Representations; as we may learn by Homer, and other Poets. Euripides, in his Deification of Cafter, Pollux, and Helena, tells us, That the Soul of Man. after Death, hath no Enjoyment of this sensitive Life, but bath always the same Understanding, and goes to take up itmabode in Heaven, woulden d'Exet d-

Sanglov. Herodotus affures us . That the Egyptians were the first who deliver'd the Doctrine of the Souls Immortality.

Plate tells us. That after Death, our Souls are conducted by a Genius, who the Poets fay is Mercury, to the place where they shall be judged; and that they receive Punishments or Rewards proportionably to the good or evil they have done in their Lives. Quemlibet morientem cujufque Gentus & Suigur, quem vivens fortitus fuerat, in locum quendam ducit, ubi omnes judicari oportet. Judicantur & qui bonefte, jufte & fancte vixerunt ; & qui non, & qui mediocriter.

ANIMALIA, Animali, which are divided into Terrestrial, Aquatic, Birds, amphibious Creatures, and Infects. The Pagans ado-

The earnest desire of Fame is a secret proof, red Beasts, and creeping things, as Deiries; and the most superstitious, as well as the most antient Worshippers of this kind, were the Egyptions. Thus, when Cefor made himself Mafter of Egypt, Lucian tells us, That he made a magnificent Treat of many of the Egyptian

Non mandante fame, multas volucresque fe-

Agipti posucre Deos. Flight of the Gods into Egypt from the War of the Gyants, and when Typhew purfu'd them. they concealed themselves under the shape of divers Animals, to avoid his Fury.

Herodotus affures us, that the Egyptisms were the first that made Statues, and engraved Animals in Stone: They represented Jupiter with a Rams Head, because Heracles being earnestly defirous to fee him, Jupiter appeared to him with a Ram's head. He fays also, That Pan was one of their greatest Gods, and they represented him as a Goat, tho' they knew very well. that he was like the other Gods. Lucian declares. that the Signs of the Zodiack, and the other Constellations, were first painted by the Egyptians Call that is faid or believed of Hell, and all that in the Heavens, or in the Coelectial Spheres, whose Images they would have afterwards to be upon the Earth in the fame Animals, whose Nature, they affirmed, depended upon the Nature of those Constellations, and upon their Impressions on sublunary beings. It is also probable, that this Fable of the Flight of the Gods into Egypt, and their Transformation into Animals, was taken from the Opinion of the Astronomers, who attributed the shape of these Creatures to the Constellations, and of the Constellations to the Gods, that is to fay, to the Coelestial Intelligences.

'Tis certain that they distinguish'd the Gods from the Animals that were confecrated to 'em, and that they did not give any Honour to those Beafts, but with relation to those Gods to whom they put up their Prayers, and not to Animals. Herodotus has given us the reason. why the Egyptians gave fo much Honour to the Ibis, or the Hawk; 'twas because, in the Spring, a vast number of flying Serpents came out of Arabia, to build Nests in Egypt, but were driven back by these Birds. 'Twas without doubt to the God, who had fent them these Helps, that the Egyptians intended to give Honour, by worshiping the Animals which was consecrated to him. Diodorus Siculus afferts, after Herodotus, That the Egyptians affirm'd, That they worshiped those Animal which were consecrated to the Gods, in Honour to those Gods; and he affures us, that the Egyptian Priests had secret and mysterious Reasons for their Worship: but the People had only three Reasons for it, of which the two former feem to be fomething, expose themselves to be stoned by the Exprison. fabulous, viz. That the Gods, at the beginning. being affaulted by a rout of wicked Men, conceal'd themselves under the Form of these Animals, and ever fince they had honour'd them. Secondly, That the Egyptians having been often vanquish'd by their Enemies, at length became victorious, after they fet up the Figures of these Animals for their Standards. Thirdly That all these Animals were extremely useful for the preservation of their Goods and Lives.

Plutarch tells us, That we ought to interpret all these Fables in a pious and philosophical Italy to Laurentum, where Encas was settled ; and fense, piè & philosophice : That if the Egyptians did honour Mercury under the Name of a Dog, twas because of the Watchfulness of that her, and conducting her to his Palace, he trea-Creature.

There was nothing fo lewd as the Worship of the Goat, which they call'd Mendes; the Greeks, Pan; and the Latines, Faunus and Silvamus. The Sileni and Satyrs related to this. The Figures of these Deities were yet more immodest and impure than the Animals themfelves; for they were the original, as I may fav, of the Priapus of the Greeks. All thefe Idolaters protested nevertheless. That their intention was by these Symbols, to honour the Fruitfulness of Nature, that continually produced an infinite number of Beafts, many of which are Masterpieces of the Fecundity of the divine Power.

Some think that the greatest part of these Transformations of the Egyptian Gods into Animals, or the divers ways of reprefenting 'em under the Figures of these several Animals. arose from nothing else but some Allusions of the Names to a more antient Language; for Bechartus observes, that if Iss were changed into a Swallow, as Plutarch fays, 'twas because that Si in the Hebrew-Tongue fignifies a Swallow : If Anubis were painted with a Dog's Head, 'twas because Nobach signifies to bark : If Apis was worshipped in the shape of an Ox, 'twas because Abbir signifies an Ox : If Jupiter chang'd himfelf into a Ram, 'twas because El, which is the Name of God, fignifies also a Ram: If Ofiris, or Bacchus be changed into a Goat, 'tis because Seir signifies a Geat : If Diana be changed into a Cat, 'tis because, in the Egyptian-Language, Bubaftis fignifies a Cat, and that's the Name of Disna : Vinus is chang'd into a Fifb, because Atergatis come near to Dag, a of a Cow, because Hastaroth fignities Herds of Oxen.

Tis not to be doubted, but from the time of Meses, the Egyptians worshipped their Gods under the figure of Animals, fince Mofes himfelf answers, That the Ijraelites could not ofwhose Gods they must facrifice to the true

ANNA PERENNA. This fabulous Story is told of her:

This Anna, according to some Authors, was the Daughter of Belus, and Sifter of Dide, who fled to Battus, King of the Isle of Malta, after the death of her Sifter, when Hierbas, the King of the Getuli, attempted to take Carthage. When fhe perceiv'd herfelf not fafe with Battus, because of the Threats of Hierbas, she fled into as he walked one day along the Bank of the River Numicius, he met Anna, and presently knew ted her according to her Quality. Lavinia was troubled at it, and fought her Destruction, as being her Rival; but the being admonished of it in a Dream, escaped to the River Numicius, whereof she was made a Nymph, as she told them that fearched for her, and ordered them to call her for the future Anna Perenna, because she should be for ever under these Waters:

----- Placidi fum Nympha Numici Amne perenne latens, Anna Perenna vocor. Ovid. Faft. Lib. III. v. 653.

This News oblig'd the Albans to make great Rejoycings along the Banks of the River in Dances, and Featting; and in imitation of them, the Romans did the fame on the Banks of Tiber. The Virgins took very undecent Liberties, dancing and lasciviously sporting withour any Modesty : Owd has describ'd these Feasts. which were made on the 15th of March. They facrific'd to her to obtain a long Life, Annare, & Perennare. Some have thought that the was an old Woman of Boville, who brought Mean to the People of Rome of old, and then fled into the holy Aventine-Mount, and in Gratitude this Feast was appointed in Honour et her by the Romans :

Pace domi fact à signum posuere perenne. Qued fibi defectis illa ferebat opem.

Ovid. Faft. Lib. III. v. 673. ANNALES, Annals, a chronological History, which describes the remarkable Events of a State yearly, as the Annals of Cornellus Tacitus : Whereas History, fays Aulus Gellius, descants upon those Events, and upon the Caufes which produc'd 'em. It was allow'd at Fift : Laftly, Juno, or Aftarte, takes the figure | first to the Chief-Priests only to write the Annals of the People of Rome; that is to fay, the confiderable things that happen'd every Year; and from thence they were called Annaies Maximi, non à magnitudine, sed quod cos Pontifex confecraffet ; fays Feffus.

ANNALIS LEX, The Law which appointfer a folemn Sacrifice in Egypt, lest they should ed the Age at which any Perfor was promoted to for one to be made a Remen Knight; and Twenty five to obtain a Confulship; and fo for other Offices. The Rement took this Law from the Athenians. ANNALIS CLAVUS, The Nail which the Prætor, Conful, or Dictator fix'd every Year in the Wall of Jupiter's Temple, upon the Ides of September, to shew the Number of Years. But this Custom was after changed, and the Years were reckon'd by the Confuls.

ANNIBAL, an African, the Son of Amilear, and General of the Carthaginians in the Wars against the Remans, whom he beat and defeated in feveral Battels. He pass'd from Spain to the foot of the Alps, in his way to Italy, and went up to the top of those Mountains in Nine days time, notwihstanding the Snow with which they were covered, and in foight of the Refistance of the Mountaineers which inhabit there, whom he shut up in a Rock, which they used for a Retreat; and by an unheard of Invention, he cut a way through that part of this Mountain which most obstructed his passage, with Fire and Vinegar. After this, he over-run all Italy, and brought Terrour and Dread with him into all Parts, and chiefly after the Battel of Canne, which is a finall Village of Aulis, in which the Romans loft Forty Thousand Men, together with the Conful Amiliar. Annibal fent Three Bulhels of Gold Rings to Carthage, and made himself a Bridg of dead Bodies. 'Twas at this Battel that he shew'd, that the greatest Men commit the greatest Faults; for he forgot himself. and loft by his own Carelefness a complete Victory; for instead of arracking Rome, he went and drown'd all his Glory and Hopes in the Pleafures of Capus. He dyed at the Palace of Prafas, King of Bithynia, having poyfon'd himfelf, because he apprehended, that this barbarous King would deliver him into the hands of the Romans. Thus dyed this great General. after he had made War Sixteen Years in Italy. won feveral Battels, brought feveral Nations to a Submission, either by Force or Agreement, belieg'd Rome, and made himself Master of divers Cities. Juvenal having briefly run over the great Exploits of Annibal, concludes, that all this Glory ended at last with being conquer'd. banish'd, and living as a Fugitive; reduc'd to fo mean a condition, as to court a petry King of Asia; and lastly with killing himself by a Ring, which was a fort of Revenge on him for that incredible multitude of Rings which he had taken from the Roman Nobles flain in the Battel of Canna.

Lucian makes him fpeak thus of himself in one of his Dialogues of the Dead : Having past'd

Officer of State. Eighteen Years was required out of Africk into Spain mile au laudful of Man, I first made my self famous by my Valour, and after the death of my Wives Brother, having the cammand of the Armies, I Subdu'd the Spaniards and Western Gauls ; then marching over the Alps, I conquer'd all Italy, as far as Rome; after I had gain'd Three great Battels, and flain in one day fo many Enemies, that I measured the Gold Rings which the Knights were, by the Bushel, and marched upon a Bridg of dead Bodies. Being recall'd into Africa. to oppose Scipio, I obey'd, as if I had been one of the meanest of the Citizens; and after being unjustly condemn'd, I bore my Banishment patiently.

ANN

ANNONA, the Viduals, or the provision of Corn for a Year.

Amena Civilis, the Corn with which the Granaries of Cities were fill'd every Year, for the Subfistance of the Citizens.

Annua Militaris, the Corn which was laid un in the Magazines for the Sublistance of an Army during the Campaign.

ANNULUS, a Ring which the Antients wore on their Fingers. There are Three forts of 'em; one fort was call'd 4nuali Sponfalitii, Pronubt, or Geniales, Rings of Espoulals, or Marriage-Rings, which the Bride-groom gives his Bride at their Marriage; others were call'd Annuli Henerarii, Rings of Honour, which were us'd as Marks of Honour, and distinction. between the different Orders of Men, and with which those also were rewarded, who had done fome fignal Service to the Commonwealth : the Third fort were call'd Annuli Signatorii, or Sigillatorii, which they used to feal their Letters with.

The Rings which the Remans used to give the Women betrothed to them, were ordinarily of Iron, and they put them upon the 4th Finger of the hand. I have feen fome also of Copper and Brass, with little Knobs in the fafhion of a Key, to fignifie, that the Husband. by giving this Nuptial-Ring to his Wife, puts her in possession of the Keys of his House, of which the ought to have the care. Some of them are found with these Inscriptions, Bonam Vitam. Amo te, ama me.

Rings of Henour, were Marks of Merit in the Persons who wore them. The first Remans wore only Rings of Iron, as fittest for a warlike Nation, and they prefer'd 'em before Rings of value. Tarquinius Prifeus was the first that wore one of Gold; but for a long time the Senators durst not wear 'em. Afterwards a Custom prevail'd of giving Gold Rings to them that went on an Embassy into strange Countries about the Affairs of the Commonwealth; but yet they wore them only upon the days of their Entries, or Audiences, as a Badg of their Dignity.

Gold. as also the Knights, to distinguish themielves from the common People; as they were known from Senators by a Robe woven with Gold, and by their large Buttons. This happen'd about the Second Punick or Carthaginian-

We read in Appian of Alexandria, that only Colonels in an Army had a Right to wear Gold Rings, which they used as a Mark of Nobility.

It is true, that in the Diforder and Confusion of Civil-Wars, the People, and Soldiers took she liberty to wear 'em, as also Women-Slaves. and those who were made free, which obliged the Confuls, C. Alinius Pollio and C. Antifius, under the Emperor Tiberius, to make an Order forbidding the Common-People to wear Gold Rings, at least those whose Father, or Grandfather by the Fathers fide, had not a Revenue of 400 great Sefterces, with a right to take place in the Fourteenth Ascent of the Theatre, which was granted to the Roman Knights when they were present at those Shows.

It is also true, that from the time of the Emperor Commodus, the Slaves made free were honoured with a Gold Ring.

Aurelius Victor fays, That the infamous Maerinus, the Son of an enfranchis'd Slave, receiv'd a Gold Ring, and was thereby equall'd to the Knights, as these Verses of the Poet Statius shew :

Mutavitque genus, Levaque ignobile ferrum Exuit, & celfo natorum aquavis honori.

They affected to wear 'em of an extraordinary weight; I have feen fome that weighed Four Pistoles and a staff of Gold; which puts me in mind of what Juvenal fays wittily in his Seventh Satyr, That no body will give 200 Pieces to an Orator to plead his Caufe, although he be as qui signaverint testamentum, ut ita agnitis signis, eloquent as Cicero, unlesi they see an extraordinary rupto lino, aperiatur & recitetur. Jul. Paul. great Ring flining on his Finger :

--- Ciceroni nemo ducentos

Satyr. VII. v. 139.

neca, the Philosopher, fays, Oneramus annulis di- fignant cum fale. gites, & m omni articulo gemma disponitur.

Stones graved feveral ways.

But afterwards the Senators were them of | Signatorii, or Sigillaterii, with which they feal'd their Letters, which they impress'd upon their Records; as also in their Houses upon their Cellars, where they kept their Provisions.

They feal'd their Letters, as we do at this day, faving, that instead of Silk they used Thread or Flax, with which they wrapt about the Letter on the outfide, and then laying upon it a fort of foft Clay or Wax, they stampt the figure of their Seal upon it, after they had a little softened it with Spittle. Cicero has describ'd the manner of it to us in his Third Oration against Catiline ; Tabellas proferri justimus, que à quoque dicebantur date; primum oftendimus Cethege, signum cognovit, nos linum incidimus, legi-mus: We caused the Letters to be brought, show'd 'em to Cethegus, who acknowledg'd the Seal, we cut the Thread, and read them.

Plautus has describ'd the same thing to us more elegantly in his Bacchides : Cedo tu ceram. & linum, attutum age, obliga ob signa citò : Give me the Wax, and Thred, quickly; bind up the Letter, and feal it : This Flax was call'd Vinculum Epifole; and Juvenal calls the Impression of the Seal upon the Wax, that was fostened with Spittle, Gemma Uda.

They feal'd their Contracts in the fame manner, as also their Wills : for as soon as the Witnesses had heard the Will read, it was feal'd in their presence, and they fix'd Three Labels to it, upon which they put Wax, and fet their Seals. This was decreed by the Senate, in the time of Nero, as Suetonius relates. It was likewise necessary, when a Will was opened, that either all the Witnesses, or at least most of 'em, should be present, to own their Seals : Tabella testamenti aperiuntur hoc modo, ut teftes ver maxima pars corum adbibeantur,

These Seals were also made use of to seal their Cellars and Pantries, where they kept Nune dederit nummer, nist fulserit annulus Provisions for their Families ; for Plautus brings in a Mistris of a House, who was going to visit her Neighbour, thus speaking in Pliny tells us, That in his time the Excess was so his Comedy, entituled Casina, Obsignate sellas, great, that it seem'd to him, as though overy one referte annulum ad me; And the same Poet would be valued only by the Number and Weight of brings in a Slave complaining of his Master for his Gold Rings, with which they loaded rather than fealing the Salt-Box, for fear he should take adorned their Fingers. This is the tame that So- any Salt; Isti parci promi qui salinum servis ob-

ANNULI Samothracii ferrei, Rings call'd These Rings were often adorned with Bea- Samethracian. They had something in them zels made of the same Matter, or precious which secured from Envy, and from other Evils, as Varro fays. Thefe Rings, as Artemido-Under the Emperor Claudius, . Seals were or- rus fays, which were Iron on the out-fide, and to dered to be made of the same Metals, and not which Art had imparted some salutary Virtue, of precious Stones. The feveral forts of were fortunate in Dreams. Petronius, speaking Engravings which were fet in the Beazels of of the Rings which Tremalcion wore, tells us, Rings made the Scals, which we name Annuli That that which was upon his Little Finger was of Gold, fer thick with small Stars of Iron. | which made Virgil say in his Georgicks, lib. 2. . Ifidore, after Pliny, teaches, That the Slaves cover'd their Iron Rings with Gold. These Samothracian Rings may be faid to be Talismans, of which the Iron was wrought under some Constellation. Such also were those Rings which Solomon taught Men to make, as Josephus fays, which would drive away Devils : and those hollow Rings of Artemidorus, which inclos'd in 'em fome supernatural and divine Virtue. The People of the Isle of Samothrace much addicted themselves to the study of the Secrets of Nature, and Pythagoras taught them a fort of Philosophy which he call'd Divine, and is the fame with the Talismans, or Rings made under acertain Constellation. The Gods of Samothrace were those who presided over the Talismans. Tertullian mentions three Altars, dedicated to three forts of Deitics, Magnis, Potentibus, Valentibus; and adds, 'Tis credible that thefe were the Gods of Samothrace, who were potent for the Execution of difficult Designs, and who presided over great Undertakings. Varro calls them Divi Potentes, and supposes 'em

ANNUS, the Year. 'Tis, properly fpeaking, that Time which the Sun takes in passing through the 12 Signs of the Zodiack. After feveral Observations, Astronomers having determin'd. That the feveral Receffes of the Sun bave certain Periods, after which that Planet leems to return to the fame Points, in refeet to us, and much about the Jame time makes the Jame Alteratoins of Scafons, and Temperature of the Air ; call'd the Year that Number of Days which the Sun is is the greatest of all, that in Albategnius the least, passing through those several differences of Di-

Stances and Recesses.

to be Heaves and Earth.

Those who observ'd these things with greater Exactness, did first acknowledge, That the who liv'd about the end of the last Age but Sun did run from East to West, round the Earth in one, took occasion to conjecture that these, twenty four Hours, by the fwift Motion of the Primum Mobile, or Highest Orb. Then they obferv'd, That the Sun, besides this Motion which is common to all the Planets, had another also proper to it felf, which was from West to East, round the Same Globe of Earth, in the Ecliptick, which cutting the Aguator obliquely, rifes on both fides towards the Peles, as far as the Tropicks. And lastly, That the Sun running, in one Year, through the full Extent of this great Circle of the Ecliptick, which they have divided into twelve Parts or Signs, by its Motion causes two very different Seasons, viz. Summer and Winter, when it arrives at the Tropicks, that is to fay, at the two Points of the Solffices; and two other more temperate, viz. Spring and Autumn, when the Sun cuts the Rquator, er the Æquinoctial.

The Year is call'd in Greek 17@ and enaulds. that is to fay, Returning into it felf; whence it is, that the Egyptians have represented the Year

Atque in |e sua pervestigia volvitur annus. The Year is either Natural, which is otherwife call'd Tropical, or Civil. The Natural or Tropick Year is that exact Space of Time which the Sun takes in passing through the Ecliptick, which is not always the fame, because of the Inequality of the Sun's Motion; which feems to have been observ'd in the most antient Times by the Egyptian Priests, and Sacrificers to Jupiter Ammon, by means of the different Quantity of Oyl which was burnt continually before the Statue of that God; for measuring with all the exactness possible what they spent in the whole year, they found that there was a confiderable Difference between one Year and another, and from thence infer'd that the Years were not exactly equal.

Aftronomers have fince by the Exactness of their Calculations and Observations, proved that the Mechanical Conjecture of the Egyptians for the Term of the Solar Year, observ'd in the time of Hipparchus and Psolemy, and about 750 years after by Albategnius, was still found very different in the time of Alphonius King of Caftile, which was about 400 years after, and the Modern Discoveries that have been made from the most curious and diligent Observations have no Agreement with the Antients.

And as the Duration of the Solar Year, which we have from Ptolemy's Observations, fo that in Alphonfus's time is in some fort a Mean between both, but that of our time feems to come near the greatest. Copernicus, the different Inequalities, had their determin'd Periods; and that, in a certain Revolution of time, they pass'd through all these Differences, and then return'd to the fame Posture they were in before.

He has found out, by a laborious Computation, that the Term of this Period is about 1716 years, in which time the Solar year runs through all these several Changes.

But because it would be very hard to fix upon a Computation of Years, according to fuch nice Differences, which consist in some few Minutes for each year, the Astronomers have, for that reason, made use of a mean Duration between the greater and the less, which contains 365 days, 15 hours, and about 49 mi-

The Civil Year, which is commonly us'd by all Nations is very different, both as to its Beginning and Duration; which nevertheless by a Serpent turning round and biting its Tail : may be refer'd to three different Heads, for they either follow the Course of the Sun, or mentioning the hours. Quintus Cursius tells us. of the Moon, or of both.

The Hebrews had two forts of Years, the Secular or Natural Year, and the Sacred or Ec-

The Secular had respect to the Civil Government for buying and felling, and began at the Autumnal Æquinox, in the month called Tifri, which answers to our September, because they believed that God created the World at that time.

The Sacred Year had reference to their Religion, and began at the Vernal Æqumox, in the month called Nifan, which answers to our April, at which time they kept their Passover.

The Egyptians, Chaldeans and Affyrians were the first that measur'd their Year by the Course of the Sun, and they thought at first, that the Solar Year had 360 days only, which they divided into twelve months containing thirty days each; at the end of which, as we may conjecture by the Story which Plutarch relates concerning Rhea and Saturn, Mercury added five days, which he called san popoling, i. e. Added, by which means the year became 365 days long, without counting the fix hours or thereabouts, by which the Solar Year exceeds that number of days, and which, making one day in four years, is the cause that Thot, i.e. the Egyptian year has no determin'd and fix'd place in any part of the Solar Year, which it anticipates one day every four years, and one month in 120 years, running through its whole Course in the space of 1440 years; after which it returns to the fame point from which it first began.

This way of reckoning the Years has been a long time in use among the Ægyptians, till, after the defeat of Mark Anthony by Augustus at the Battel of Attium, their Country was made a Province of the Roman Empire, and they were forced to Submit to the Laws of the Conquerours and their Computation of years, which was the Julian, keeping only the Names of the months, which answer'd after such a manner to the Roman Months, that their That, the first day of the Year, always happen'd upon the 29th. of August; whence it comes to pass that the first day of the Egyption Year, which is alfo call'd the Coptick Year, is four whole months and three days before the Kalends of January. which is the first day of the Roman Year.

The Persians count their Years as the Ægyptions do, ever fince Camby/es became Mafter of Egypt. For having rantack'd the Sepulchre of Simandius, he found a Circle of 365 Cubits round, every Cubit representing a day of the year, which was graven and mark'd by the riling and fetting of the fix'd Stars, which years; which oblig'd them to change their Inmade them fix their year to 365 days, without | tercalation, and put it off to the fourth year :

that the Persians adore the Sun, and have an holy Fire, kindled by its Rays, to be carry'd before their King, who is fellow'd by 365 young Lords, cleath'd with yellow Robes, to represent the 365 days of the

The Arabians, Saracens, and Turks, at this day reckon their Year by the Course of the Moon, making it to confift of twelve Moons, whereof fome have thirty, and fome twenty nine days, alternatively one after the other, which make all together but 354 days; fo that the Duration of time being less than the Solar Year by about eleven days, it follows, that their Month Mubarran, which they count for their first place in the whole Course of the Solar Year, which it precedes 11 days every year, and more than a month in 3 years; fo that in less than thirty four years it runs through all the feafon of the Solar Year, and returns to the Point from which it first be-

And fince the exact time of the 12 Moons. besides the 354 whole days, is about 8 hours and 48 minutes, which make 11 days in 30 years, they are forc'd to add 11 days extraordinary in 30 years; which they do by means of a Cycle of 30 years invented by the Arabians, in which there are 19 years with 354 days only, and 11 intercalary, or Embolismical. which have every one 355 days; and thefe are they wherein the number of hours and minutes, which are Surplus to the whole days in every year, is found to be more than half a day, fuch as 2, 5, 7, 10, 13, 16, 18, 21, 24, 26, and 29, by which means they fill up all the Inequalities that can happen.

The Greeks consider the Motions of the Sun and Moon in their Year, and as they suppos'd in antient times, that the Moons Courfe was exactly 30 days, they made their Year to confift of 12 Moons, and by confequence of 360 days; but quickly perceiving their error, they took out 6 days, to bring it to the Lunar Year of 354 days, which being less than the Solar Year by is days, they found it convenient, for reconciling the Inequalities in the Motions of these two Luminaries, to insert at the end of every fecond year an intercalary month of 22 days, which they call'd, upon that account, Eulonimaior, id eft, a Month added, or infer-

They understood afterwards, that the 6 hours they had omitted, which yet are a part of the time of the Solar Year above the 365 days, and make one whole day in four years. were the cause that their Year anticipated the true Solar Year one day at the end of four under the name of the Common Year, they reckon'd 399 days to the fourth, by the addirion or interculation of one month and an half. confifting of 40 days, arising from the 11 days by which every Solar Year exceeds the Lunar, being four times counted, and the day which arises from the adding of the fix hours in four years. And to render the Intercalation more remarkable, they made a noble Confectation of it by instituting the Olympick Games, in the time of Iphites, at which all Greece met together every fourth year, and hence came the Computation of time by Olympiads, every one of which confifted of four years, and are to famous in History.

Nevertheless they found at last, that this space of four years did not rectifie all the Irregularities that happen'd in the Courses of the Sun and Moon, which oblig'd them to double 'em, and make a Revolution of 8 years, and because they were not hereby yet fully fatisfy'd, they introduc'd another of 11 years.

Notwithstanding this, the Athenians did not receive such satisfaction as they hop'd for by this last Period of 11 years, but they had still remain'd in a perpetual Confusion, had not one of their Citizens, nam'd Mete, an Aftronomer of very profound Judgment, at last difcover'd, that all these different Changes which happen'd betwixt the two Motions of the Sun and Moon would be accommodated by a Period made up of the two former of 8 and 11 years, i.e. in the space of 19 years, after which those Stars return again to the same place where they were at first.

This Period of XIX. Years of Mete, was ordinarily call'd The Euneadecus eternia, and was receiv'd with fo great Applaufe among the Athenians, that they would have it written in large Characters of Gold, and fet up in a publick Place, which gave it the Name of the Golden Number, and the use of it became common not only in Greece but also among the Jews, who made use of it to regulare their years. afterwards among the Romans, and lastly, among the Christians.

The Athenians began their Year at the New-Moon after the Summer Solftice, in the Month call'd Examplaior, i. e. between the months of June and July. All the Magistrates, says Plato, must meet in the same Temple the day before the Kalends of the Summer Solflice, when the New-year and then leaving only 354 days to the 3 first, | Year to consist of fix months, and Justin tells us. That they reckon'd but fifteen days to their Month.

Some made their Year to confift only of three Months, others of four, as we read in Macrebius his first Book of his Saturnalia, Chap.

. The Romans had three forts of Years: 1. That of Remulus, which contain'd but ten months, beginning with March, whence it comes that December is call'd the last Month. 2. Of Numa, which corrected the grots Miflake of Remulse, and added two months to the year, viz. January and February, making it to confilt of 355 days only, which makes 12 Lunar months. 3. Of Julius Cefar, who difcovering a further Error in the Calculation. viz. That there were ten days more than Name reckon'd, made a Year of 365 compleat days. and referving the fix hours to the end of four years, made a whole day of 'em, which he inferred before the 6th of the Calends of March: fo that in that year they counted the 6th of the Calends twice, Bis fexte Calendas, whence came the word Biffextile; and the year had 366 days, and was call'd Biffestile. And this way of computation has continued to our time, and from its Author is memed the Julian Year.

Now the 10 days which Cefer added to the year were thus distributed, to January, August, and December, each of 'em two; to April, June, September, and Nevember, each of em one.

But because in these latter times there is still an Errour found in this Calculation, and the Equinoxes infensibly go back from the point where Julius Cafar had fix'd them, they have found out, that the year had not just 365 days and fix hours, but wanted about 11 minutes. which in 121 years, make the Boumenes go back about a day; for an hour having 60 fuch minutes, a day must have 1440, which being divided by 11 make 130 and 10 over, fo that the Equinoxes were come back to the tenth of March. For which reason in the year 1582 Pope Gregory XIII, to reform this Error, caus'd to days to be taken from the Year, to bring the Equinoxes to the 21 of March, and the 22, and 23 of September, and to prevent the like for the future, he order'd, that fince 131 thrice counted make 393, i. e almost 400 years, this matter should be regulated by Centuries. to make the account more easie and compleat, so that in 400 years, the Biffextile of 3 years should come to 100 Biffestiles. And this is that which is call'd The Gregorian Tear.

The Jews count their years by weeks, and call the feventh Sabbatical, in which they were not allow'd to plow their Ground, and were oblig'd to fet all their Bond-Servants at liberty. They had also their Year of Jubiles and Release, which was every 50 years, or according to ethers every 49 years, fo that every year of 70bilee was also Subbatical, but yet more famous The Carians and Acharmonians made their than others, and then all Possissions, and what

ANS ever else had been alienated, return'd to its next after Esfer, about the twenty fifth of first Owner.

The Greeks counted their years by Olympiads. of which every one contain d the space of four whole and compleat years. These Olympiads took their Names from the Olympick Games, which were celebrated near the City of Pile. otherwise call'd Olympia in Pelopomesus, from whence they were call'd Olympicks. Thefe vears were also called Iphitus's, because Iphitus first appointed them, or at least revived that Solemnity.

The Romans counted by Lustra, of which every one is 4 complext years, or the beginning of the fifth. This word comes from Las, which fignifies to pay, because at the beginning of every fifth year they paid the Tribute impos'd on them by the Cenfers. They also counted their Year by a Nail, which they fix'd in a Wall of the Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus.

The Year is divided into four Parts or Seafons, wiz. Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter. The Egyption divided it but into three Parts, Spring, Summer, and Autumn, allotting to each Seafon four months. They represented the Springby a Rose, the Summer by an Ear of Corn, and the Autumn by Grapes and other Fruits. Nomies, at the end of his Lib. 11. of his Dionyfisca, describes the four Seasons of the year thus, The Seasons, faith he, appear to the Eye of the Colour of a Rofe; the Daughsers of the inconstant Tear come into the House of their Father. The Winter cafts a feeble Ray, having her Face and Hair cruer'd with Snow, and her Breaft with Hoar-Froft, ber Teeth chatter and all her Bedy is rough-coated with Cold. The Spring, crowned with Rofes, Sends forth a sweet Smell, and makes Garlands of Flowers for Venus and Adonis. The Summer holds in one hand a Sickle, and in the other Ears of Corn. And lastly, the Autumn appears crowned with Vine Branches , loaden with the Year; one begins at Christmasi, because Padua, of the Nativity of our Saviour, and the Noraries of Reme use this Date, setting to their and Brother of Cupid. See Amor. Deeds & Nativitate : and the other at March, because of the Incarnation of Jesus Christ, this is the Reason that the Popes Bulls are thus dated, Anno Incarnationis.

The Greeks begin to count the Years from the Creation of the World, on the first of Sep-

at the Death of St. Martin, who dy'd in the year of Christ 401, or 402. They began not in France to reckon the year from January till 1564, by virtue of an Ordinance of Charles IX, King of France, for before they began the day

ANQUIRERE capite, or permid (in the Reman Law) to require that a Perlon be condemn'd to Death or fined.

ANSER, & Goofe. This Domeflick Fowl was in great Effeem among the Romans, for having fav'd the Capitol from the Invasion of the Gauls, by her Cackling and clapping of her Wings. They were kept in the Temple of June, and the Cenfers, at their entrance into their Office, provided Meat for them. There was also every year a Feast kept at Rome, at which they carry'd a Silver Image of a Goofe in state upon a Pageant adorn'd with rich Tapftry, with a Dog which was hang'd, to punish that Creature because he did not bark at the arrival of the Gauls.

ANT ÆUS, the Son of Neptune and Terrs, and one of the Giants which dwelt in the Defarts of Libya. He forc'd all Travellers towrestle with him, and kill'd them, He made a Vow to build Neptune a Temple of the Sculls of those he kill'd. He attack'd Hercules, who taking him by the middle of his Body, choak'd him in the Air, it being impossible to kill him otherwise, for as often as he threw him upon the ground, that Giant recover'd new Strength. which the Earth, his Mother, supply'd him.

ANTECESSORES, this Word properly fignifies those who excel in any Art or Science. Justinian has honour'd those Doctors of Law who taught publickly with this Title ; there were four of them in every College, and they made up the Council of State.

ANTECOENA, the First Course, the first Dish set upon the Table ; it was either Fruits, or Sweet Wine, or fome part of the Entertain-

ANTENOR, a Trejan Prince, who is Grapes, and carrying in her hands a Basket of faid to have deliver'd the Palladium of Troy tothe Greeks, which was the cause that the City was taken. After the City was taken and destroy'd, he came into Sclavenia, about the Streights of the Adriatick Sea, where he built At Rome there are two ways of reckoning a Ciry of his own Name, which is fince call'd ANTEROS, the Son of Mars and Venus.

ANTESTARI, in the Law, fignifies to bear Witness against any one; whence it is that Horace fays in his Sat. 9. lib. 1. v. 76. Vis anteflar;? Will you bear Witness? And he that would, The antient French Hiltorians began the year did only offers the Tip of his Ear, Ego werd oppono auriculam : I offer my Ear immediately to fbem that I confent.

ANTEVORTA and POSTVORTA Deiries honour'd by the Romans, who took care of what is past and what is future, and whom they made the Companions of Providence. ANTICYRA, an Island lying between the Streights of Meliacum, and Mount Orta. There grew, fays Pliny, the best Hellebore, which is an excellent Herb to purge the Brain ; from whence comes the Proverb, Naviget Anticyram as much as to fay, That a Man that has a diftemper'd Head, or a crackt Brain, fould go to Anti-Cyra to cure it with Hellebore.

ANTIGONE, the Daughter of OEdipus King of Theber, the ferv'd as an Eye to her Fr ther, after he had loft his Sight in his Banishment. Going to pay her last respects to her Brother Polynices at his Funeral, against the express Command of Creen, she was condemn'd by him to be ftarv'd to Death in Prison ; but fhe prevented her Death by hanging herfelf. Prince Hamen, Creen's Son, who was about to marry her, flew himfelf also upon her Body in a Fit of amorous Despair. The Poet Sophoeles handles this Tragical Subject in his Tragedy of that Name to nobly, that the Athenians gave him for his reward the Government of the Ifle of Sames.

There was another Antigone, the Daughter of Lasmedon, whom June changed into a Stork, because she equall'd her in Beauty.

ANTILOCHUS, the Son of Nefter, who accompanied him to the Siege of Troy, was flain by Memmen, whilft he endeavoured to ward the blow from his Father Neffor. Xenephon tells us, in the beginning of his Treatife of Hunting, That Antilochus having exposed his own Life to fave his Fathers, deferv'd fo well, that the Greeks gave him the Name of Philopator, true Lover of his Father. Quintus Calaber relates the matter otherwise, That Antilochus having feen two of his Father Neftor's Captains, Erenthus and Pheron, flain by Memnon, attempted to revenge their Death upon him; but having pulbed bim with bis Javelin, Memnon run bim through with his Lance. Neftor commanded his other Son Thrasymedes to fetch off the Body of his Brother ; but Achilles interposing, slew Memnon. Nevertheless, Ovid tells us, That Antilochus was flain by Hestor.

ANTINOUS, of Bithymia, the Empefor Adrian's Favourite, who was drowned in the Nile, in a Voyage from Egypt. The Emperor was fo fensibly touched with his Loss, that to comfort himself, he plac'd him in the rank of the immortal Gods, causing Temples to be built to him, erecting Altars, and appointing Priefts and Sacrifices.

He caused several Medals to be stamp'd to perpetuate his Memory, and plac'd his Statues in the Colleges.

We have Three Medals of his; upon the Reverse of the First there is the Figure of a Temple, with the Emperor Adrian built upon merciful, just, liberal, fober, and eloquent, the Nile, in Honour of him, with these Greek Words, AAPIANOE QKOAOMHEEN, Adrianus confirmait. At the bottom of this Temple there is drawn a Crocodile, a Creature that abounds in the Nile, where Antineus dyed.

Leonicus, in his Hifteria varia, fays, That he faw at Venice a Silver Medal of Antinous. on which were these words, ANTINOOS HPQE, that is to fay, Antinow the Here. On the reverse of this Medal is represented a Sheep, with an Inscription quite worn out.

There is yet a Third Medal of Antinour. wherein, on one fide is the Portraiture of this young Bithmian Lad of extraordinary Beauty, with thefe Greek Letters, OETIAIOE MAP-KEAAOE O IEPETE TOT ANTINOOT TOIE AXAIOIE ANEOHKE, Hofilius Marcellus Sacerdes Antinei Acheia dicavit : On the reverse is the Horse Pegajus, with Mercury having his winged Shooes on, and his Caduceus.

ANTIOPE, the Daughter of Nyffeus, and Wife of Lyous, King of Thebes, whom Jupiter enjoy'd in the form of a Satvr. which was the cause that her Husband divorc'd her, and marryed Dirce, who imprison'd Antispe; but the escaped and fled to Mount Citheren, where the brought forth Twins, Zethu and Amphien, who being grown up, reveng'd the Wrong done to their Mother upon Lyeus and his Wife Dirce.

ANTIUM, a Sea-Town built by Afcaniss, according to Solinus; or as Dienylius Halicarnaffus will have it, by one of the Children of Ulyffes and Circe, upon a Promontory, or the top of a Rock, 32 Miles from Offia; it was the Metropolis of Velsci, with whom the Remens had War for Two Hundred Years. Camillus took it from them, and carryed all the Beaks of their Ships away, and laid 'em up at Rome, in the place of their Comitie, or Affemblies, called from thence Roftra. This City was given to the old Pratorian Soldiers; and Nero caufed a Port to be built there. Antum. favs Suetonius, coloniam deduxit afcriptis veteranu, e pratorie, ubi & portum operis sumptuosiffimi fecit.

ANTONINUS, the adopted Son of Adrian, to whom he fucceeded : He was Surnamed Pius, for his excellent Morals and fweet Temper, to which a reverse of a Medal alludes, which represents Eness carrying his Father Anchifes upon his Shoulders from Try. (This was the Badge of Piety and Love towards Parents, among the Antients.) Anteninut had a long Vifage, which the Physiogmonists say, is a sign of Good Nature and Kindness, to which we may add a sweet, modell, and majestick Air, and a due proportion of all parts of his Face, as in the rest of his Body. He must be acknowledg'd to be a Prince good,

one that was truly worthy to govern so great | ple, whereas a Stag's Head was commonly an Empire. This Emperor was compard to Numa, and indeed they had a very great refemblance one to the other, both as to their Minds and the Lineaments of their Face. He caus'd the Temple of Augustus, which was much ruined. to be rebuilt, and rais'd a new one to his Predecessor Adrian, who adopted him. He dyed in the Seventieth Year of his Age, and was as much lamented, as if he had been a very young Man; and 'twas observ'd, that he gave Palm-Branch. up the Ghost as if he had been in a sleep, Heaven recompensing the sweetness of his Life by a Medal of Pansa, Jouis Axur, otherwise call'd the easiness of his Death. He govern'd the Em- Terracins, a City situate upon an Hill that reapire Twenty two Years and Seven Months, or Twenty four Years, according to others. ANTONINUS. See Marcus Aurelius

ANTONINUS HELIOGABALUS. See Heliogabalus.

M. ANTONIUS, Mark Anthony, a Trium-vir, the Grand-Son of Mark Anthony the Orator, and Brother of Lucius. He took Cafor's part, when he was Tribune of the People, and Augur. He went into Gallia, and engag'd him in a Civil-War against Pompey and his Followers. Attempting to pollels himfelf of Musine, Brutui's Province; he was declar'd an Enemy to the Senate and People of Rome, by the perswasion of Gierro. He establish'd the Triumvirate of Offavius Cafar, Lampidius, and himself, which they all Three manag'd with much Cruelty. Cafar abandon'd Guero to the Refentments of Anthony, who caus'd his Head to be cut off as he was carryed in his Litter. and fet it up in the Roffrum where the Roman Orators us'd to plead. In the beginning of his Triumvirate he divorc'd his Wife Falvia, to marry Offavia the Sifter of Augustus; but he left her a little time after for Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt, with whom he was extremely enamour'd, which fo enrag'd Augustus, that he rais'd an Army against him, and defeated him at that famous Sea-fight near Adium. The year following he pursu'd him as far as Alewandres, whither he fled; but feeing himfelf deferted by his Friends, he kill'd himfelf at the Age of 36 years.

ANTRONIUS, the Creation, had a Cow of wonderful Beauty, and he had learn'd of a certain Diviner, that he who facrific'd it to Diana upon Mount Aventine, should make his own City Miltris of the whole World by that Sacrifice. This Oracle being told to Servius Tullus, he commanded Antrmius to wash himself in the Tiber, before he offered his Sacrifice. In the interim Serwins prevented him; and facrific'd the Cow, and fasten'd her Horns to the Temple of the Goddess; whence arose the Custom of fastening the Horns of an Ox to that Tem- had done him so much mischief, designed this hang'd up in other Temples belonging to the fame Goddefs.

ANUBIS, the God of the Egyptians, pictur'd with the Face of a Dog, wrapp'd up in . Linnen. Diederus Siculus thought him the Son of Ofris, call'd Jupiter, under whose Name Mercury was worshipped, whom Apuleius describes with a Dogs Head, carrying in his Right Hand the Coduceus, and in his Left a ANXUR, or AXUR, as it is found on ches along the Sea-side from Offia to Naples. which is Forty Miles from Rome. It was made a Colony in the Year 424. under the Confulfhip of Emilius Momercus and L. Plautus, who fent thither Three Hundred Citizens, to every one of whom they gave a considerable parcel of Land. 'Tis thought by fome, that it was call'd Angur, because Jupiter Angurus, or Beardless Jupiter was worship'd there ; for this word Anxur or Axur, fignifies quafi ardi Euge, without a Razor.

Circaumq, jugum, queis Jupiter Anxuris arvis Prafidet. -

Æneid. Lib. VII. v. 799. APATURIA, a Surname given Minerus by Æthre (the Daughter of Oceanus and Thetis) who confecrated a Temple to this Goddess, according to the Admonition she had given her, and order'd that the Trazomenian Vir-gins should for the future dedicate their Girdles to her at their Marriage. There were also Feafts called Apaturia, celebrated by the Athenians in Odlober, in Honour of Bacchus, Jupiter, and Pallas, where the young Men and Maids frent their time in Sports and Feafts, which lafted for feveral days. APELLES, of the Isle of Coos, one of the most excellent Painters of the Antients: He drew feveral Pictures, all which were great Mafter-pieces. He drew the Image of Fortune lying on a Bed, holding upon her Left Arm her Corne copie, having her Right Hand Supported by a Wheel, to thew her Instability and Inconstancy, with this Inscription, Foreuna Reduci; and when he was asked, Why he painted Farture in that posture, he answered, Because she never is at rest. Being on a time accus'd by a Painter who envy'd his Fame, that he had conspir'd against King Prolomy, and caufed Tyre to revolt, and Pelulium to be taken, the Prince was thereupon very angry with him, as a Traytor and Affaffine, and had cut off his Head. if one of his Accomplices had not clear'd him when he was upon the Rack. Apelles therefore to revenge himfelf for this Calumny, which

Picture, He painted a Prince with great Ears, at Midas is only drawn, fitting upon a Throne attended with Sufpicion and Ignorance, reaching out his Hand to Calumny, who was coming towards him with a fiery Countenance ; she held in her Left Hand a Torch, and with her other dragg'd a young innocent Child by the Hair ; before ber went Envy with a pale Face and blear Eyes, accompanyed with Fraud and Deceit, which dreffed and adorn'd Calumny, to make her appear more agreeable : after them came Repentance, under the Figure of a Lady clad in Mourning, with her Clothes all torn, who turn'd her Head towards Truth, being full of Sorrow and Shame.

Temple of Diana at Ephefus, under the Ligure of a Jupiter, holding a Thunderboic in his Hand, who feems to be iffuing out of the Picture, as well as the Thunderbolt. Pliny fays, he had Twenty .Talents of Gold for this rare piece.

Protogenes's House, which are so very fine, that they feem to grow invitible; but this did not gain him so much Reputation and Esteem as his Venus proceeding from the Sea, although that Picture was never finish'd by reason of his Death.

APEX, a fort of Bonnet, or Cap, very plain and light, which draws to a point on the top; used by the Priests call'd Salii. .

Feftus and Servius derive the word from the Verb spere, which is an old Latin word fignifying to join or bind; because of the two woollen Strings, which coming from the Bonnet, were used to tye it under the Chin.

APHRODITE, a Name given to Vemus, because she was generated of the Froth of the Sea, and from hence her Feasts were call'd Aphrodifiana.

APIS, otherwise called Offris and Serapis, the Son of Jupiter and Niebe, who marryed Is, the Wife of King Inschus, and was named afterwards Ifu. He left his Kingdom to his Brother Egialeus, and going into Egypt, he civiliz'd the Ægyptians, which made Hermes Trifmegiffus think that Apis was a great Philosopher. He was put to death by one named Typhe, who caft himself into the Sea : When his Wife Is fearched for him, a very handsom Bull apperared to her, which she believed to be her Husband, whom she afterward caus'd to be honour'd in Egypt, under the figure of that Animal. He was taken out of the midst of the Herd, but then he was to be white-headed black in the Body, with a white Spot upon his Back, the figure of a Snail upon his Tongue. and the Hairs of his Tail were to be tied double. When this God happen'd to die, no body valu'd his Mair (tho he had the Periwig of Nifw, fays Lucian) but he shav'd it all off, in token of his Grief. When he readily took the Meat that was offer'd him, this was look'd upon as a good Omen; but on the contrary. if he refus'd to eat, this was look'd upon as a bad one. Thus Germanicus, in his Voyage from Egypt, drew a Presage of his own Death. from this Animal's refuling to eat Meat out of his Hand. This is the Fable, the History fol-

APIS, was one of the most antient Gods of Egypt, and as he was honour'd under the figure of an Ox, many have thought that it was Joseph himself, who was represented and ho-He also drew the Picture of Alexander in the nour'd under that mysterious figure. Julius Firmicu Maternus, who liv'd in the time of Conflantine the Emperour, was of opinion, That the Egyptians ador'd Joseph under the name of Apis or Scrapis, which Name he thought was derived from Sara his Grandmother; and that all this Worship was given to Joseph, as being He has left us the Lines which he drew at the Preserver of Egypt, during the great Famine of feven years : Jefepho poft mortem Ægyptii patrio gentis fue inftituto templa fecerunt : & quia Sara pronepos fucrat, Serapis dittus eft.

This Historian afterwards relates the opinion of others, who thought that Apis was a King who distributed great Quantities of Corn among the People in a time of Famine, and that after his death a Temple was erected to him, in which an Ox was kept, as the lively Symbol of an Husbandman: Alii repertum in Historius Gracorum veteribus ferunt Apim quondam patrem-familias, five regem in Ægypto Memphis tofitum, cum famis tempore frumenta apud Alexandriam defecifent, ex proprio affatim civibus alimenta prabniffe : quo defuncto, in bonorem ejus inflituerint apud Mimphim templum, in quo bes, quafi indicium optimi agricole, nutritur.

The Worship of Apis was, without doubt. more antient than the City of Alexandria. which was built by Alexander : but either this was a Mistake in the matter of Fact, which does no ways prejudice the rest of the History, or else under the name of Alexandria we must understand a little City which was formerly in the fame place.

See what St. Auftin fays of Apis, cap. 5. lib. 18. de Civ. Dei. At this time Apis, King of the Argives, baving fail'd into Egypt, and dying there, became the famous Serapis, the greatest of all the Egyptian Geds.

Now, the Reason given by Farre, why he was no more called Apis, but Serapis after his death, is very natural and easie, because the Greeks call a Coffin overs, and the Coffin of Apis having been honour'd before any Temple was built to him, from hence he was at first called Sorojapis or Sorapis, and after that by the change of one letter, which often happens, Serapis.

Ir was also ordained, That whosoever should call him a Man should be punish'd with death; and Varro adds, That all the Statues of Ilis and Scrapis had a Finger upon their Lips to fignifie this Prohibition. As to the Ox which Egypt kept fo tenderly in honour of him, out of a firange fuperstitious Humour, because they worship'd it only while alive, and not when it was in the Coffin, they call'd it Apis and not Serapis. When the Ox died, another was fubstituted in his room, having the same Marks with the former, which pass'd for a great Miracle; but certainly it was not difficult for Evil Spirits, who took pleasure in deceiving this People, to reprefent to a Cow, when the went to Bull, an Ox having the fame Marks with the former ; as Jacob made the Goats and Sheep of the fame colours, by placing speckled Rods before the Eyes of the Dams, at the time of Conception.

The Author of the Book de Mirabilibus Scripture, which is among the Works of St. Austin. affirms, That the Egyptians eretted the figure of an Ox near the Sepulchre of Joseph. Suidas fays the same thing, viz. That Apis was the Symbol of Joseph, or of some other rich Person, who had furnished the Egyptians with Corn in the time of a great Famine; and that a Temple was built to him after his death, wherein an Ox was kept, as being the resemblance of an Huibandman, in & Bus ires een, willohor escur is mapy . There is a very great Agreement between Joseph and this Symbol, for tis very well known, that Jefeph interpreted Pharaoh's Dream by the Power of Divine Wisdom, and that he took the seven fat Kine to be figns of the Fruitfulness of the Land. Now, 'tis hardly to be imagin'd, but this miraclous Prediction of feven Years of Plenty, and feven of Famine, and the Prefervation of Egypt by laying up great Quantities tor. of Corn, must inspire the Egyptians with a great Veneration for Jojeph; and it was impossible but the great Opinion they had of him must, in process of time, degenerate into Superstition, in a People who had so strong an Inclination to it. In fine, Trogus Pompeius, or his Epitomizer Justin, fays, That considering the Veneration that Nation had for Joseph, 'twas impossible that they, who made all their Benefallors Gods and Demigods, fould not give him Divine Henours.

The Name of Apis agrees very well to Joseph, for fince the Egyptian Tongue must needs have a great affinity with that of the Consumites or Hebrews, Apis may be derived from the Hebrew word Ab, which fignifies a Father, from whence we have the word Avus. Now, Joseph was truly a Father to Egypt, and therefore Pharach caused him to be proclaimed every where with this Epithet Abrec, which fignifies Pater Tener, i. c. a Tender Father.

APIUM, Smallage, an Aquatick Plant, that grows by the water-fide; which, according to Philofiratus and Hyginus, was occasioned by the Death of young Archemorus, whom his Nurse Hypsiphile left lying upon Smallage near a Fountain, where a Serpent kill'd him. Garlands were made of this Plant, which were given to those who were victorious at the Nemean Games, that were instituted in honour of him. Plutarch, in the third Queftion of his Sympoliacks, fays, that this Plant was used for the same purpose at the Isthmian Games, that were in honour of Palemen. Hence it was that Timoleon, in the War of the Sicilians against the Carthaginians, took it for an Omen of affured Victory, that the Souldiers had Bundles of Smallage, fince the Victors at the Ishmian Games, that were celebrated near Carinth, were crowned with it; and hence also the Admiral Ship of King Antigenus was call'd Ishmien, because a Smallage grew of it felf upon the Stern of that Ship.

This Plant was peculiarly confecrated to the dead, according to the Testimony of Pliny, Defunctorum epulis dicarum Apium. And Agrippa, in chap. 25. of his' first Book of Occult Philosophy. informs us, That the Cypress as well as Smallage was a direful Plant dedicated to Pluto, which is was not lawful for any to crown themselves with on Festival days.

APOLLINARES LUDI, the Apollinarian Games, instituted by Augustus in honour of Apollo, as an Acknowledgment for the Victory he obtain'd, by his means, over Anthony and Cleopatra, near the Promontory of Attium. These Games were celebrated every Year. fometimes on one day and fometimes on another: but afterwards they were fix'd to the fourth day of July, by Lucius Varus, the Pra-

APOLLO, a famous God among the Greeks and Romans, to whom they attribute the Invention of many excellent Arts, and to whom they erefted many Temples and Statues made by the most skilful Artificers.

Cicero, in lib. 3. de Nat. Deorum, informs us, that the Ancients worship'd four Apollo's: The first and most ancient was the Son of Vulcan, whom the Athenians took for their Tutelary God : The second was the Son of Corybas, born in the Ife of Crete, and who contended with Jupiter for the Government of that Ifle : The third was effeem'd the Son of Jupiter and Latona, who came from Scythis to Delphos : And the fourth was called Nomion, who was born in Arcadia, and to whom the Arcadians gave that Name, because he had been their Legiflator ; for vou@ in Greek fignifies & Law: yet 'tis believed that this Name was given for some other reason, which may induce us to think that the fecond and third L 2

Apillo were one and the same Person, according to the following Fable, 'Tis faid therefore that Jupiter having heard the Complaint which the Infernal Spirits made against the Physician Æsculapius, the Son of Apollo, who cared the Sick with his Medicines, and even raifed the Dead to Life again, as he did Hippolytus, (which depopulated Pluto's Kingdom) deftroy'd him with a Thunderboit : Apollo being irritated against Jupiter, reveng'd it upon the Cyclops, who made the Thunderbolt, and kill'd them with his Arrows : for this Attion Apollo was driven out of Heaven , and forced for a Livelyhood , Says Lucian , to hire himself out to Admerus in Theffaly, at a Shepberd to look after his Flocks; and afterwards in Phrygia to Laomedon, in the company of Neptune, where they paffed their miferable time in making of Bricks, wherewith they built the Walls of Troy, and were fo unfortunate as never to be paid for their Labour. From hence it appears that he was call'd Nomion from rouds, which fignifies a Shepherd. The Fable also relates of him, That Mercury, Joon after he was born, fiele the Flock of Admetus from him, by playing upon an Instrument made of Tortoise-fhell ; but when Apollo would have flot an Arrow at him, he found that he had also rob'd him of his Bow and Arrows, at which the God fell a laughing, as Horace tells us in thefe Veries, Te, boves olim nist reddidisses Per dolum amotas, puerum minaci Voce dum terret, viduus pharetra Rifit Apollo. Carm, Lib. 1. Od. 10.

I intend not in this place to treat of any other Apollo but him who was the Son of Jupi ter and Latons, who was brought to bed of him and Diana in the Ifle of Delas, according to the most common opinion, the Tacnus is of another mind, when he tells us, How the Ephefians in former times represented to the Senate, that Apollo and Diana were not born in the Isle of Delos, as ignorant People believe, and for proof of this, he fays, they fhew'd at that time a confecrated River and Forest in their Country, where Latona, being big with thefe Deities was happily deliver'd; that the Olive-tree on which fhe lean'd in the pains of her Travail was still remaining after so many A-ges; that the River was called Cenchris, and the Fereft Ortygia ; and that Apollo retir'd to this place when he fled from the Wrath of Jupiter, after the flaughter of the Cyclopes. Plutarch, in the Life of Pelopidas, thinks that Apollo was born in the City of Tegyrs, where there were two Fountains, one of which was called the Paim, and the other the Olive, with a Mountain called Deles. But whatfoever was the place of his Birth, 'tis certain that the Antients believ'd Apelle to be the Inventer and God of Harmony his Courtship, Per me concordant carmina nervit.

In the fecond place they made him the God of Phyfick and Bottony, which confift in knowing the Virrue of Plants; and this was the opinion both of the Greek and Reman, upon which account Ovid brings him in speaking thus, inventum medicina meum eft, opiferque per

Dieter, & berburum fubjetta petentia nobit. Meram. lib. 1.

Thus Hippocrates order'd his Difciples to Iwear by Apollo the God of Medicine; yet Higinus makes spelle to be only the Inventer of Medicines relating to the Eyes, fuch as our Oculifts profess to know. M. Faluin Nebilier being Confor in the year 574, built a Temple to him under the Title of The God of Medicine ; and the Falifei instituted Sacrifices for him, and a Society of Priests upon Mount Seratte, where his Priests have been feen to walk unhurt upon burning Coals, for a proof of their Sanctity, and of the Protection they receive from this God, as Virgil tells us, Summe Delim, & fimili cuftos Serutis Apollo. Raem primi colimus, cui pineas arder acervo Pafcitur, & medium freti pietate per ignem Cultures wuled premimus weftigia pravid. Æneid. lib. 11. v. 785.

In the third place, the Invention of Bows and Arrows is attributed to him, and therefore he is made the God of Archers who shoot out of the Long-Bow, or the Crofs-Bow. He killed the Serpent Python with his Arrows, from whence he was furnamed the Pythian: And obliged the Greeks to institute the Pythian Games in honour of him, of which I shall speak hereafter.

Inflicait facres velebri certamine ludes. Pythia de demisa ferpentis nomine dictor. Ovid. Metam. lib. 1.

He was accounted the God of Musick, and of Poetry, and was always printed with his Harp when he was in their Company. The Poets commonly invoke him when they begin their Poems, to the end he may inspire them. and enable them to fing the Praises of Gods and Men in fuitable Strains.

Antiquity also believ'd him to be a Prophet. who foretold things to come, and deliver'd Oracles to Cities and Private Persons who confolced him with Water, Incense and the Tripod, about their Undertaking : And when he was about to deliver his Oracles, fays Lucian, the Colour of his Face chang'd, his Hair flood on end, his Threat fwell'd, his Eyes roll'd about, and his Body trembled ; at laft he open'd his facred Mouth and prophefied.

The places which were most famous for his as he himfelf boufts to Daphne, who despifed Oracles, were Deles, Clares, Tenedes, Cyrrhe and Paters.

Patara, and from these places he was surnam'd placed in a Semicircle who lift up their hands Delss during the fix Months of Summer, and of the Medal, EIII KA APIETIONOE, IEat Paters in Lycis, during the fix Months of PEOE IQNON KOAQOONION, i. c. Under Winter : the Delians therefore, fancying that Claudius Arifion, a Prieft of the Lonian Colophohe return'd to Deler at the beginning of Summer, came all to welcom him there with the Sound of Musical Instruments, dancing and playing antick Tricks, as Virgil has observed in and that which chiefly render'd it famous was chefe Verfes.

Qualis ubi bybornam Lyciam, Xanthique fu-

Deferit, at Delum maternam invifit Apollo. Inflauratque cheres, & c.

Æneid. lib. 4. v. 143. The Greeks called this Solemnity imperiuale, and the Removing of the God ameducian'A-

At Delos there was an Altar in his Temple, which pass'd for an extraordinary piece of Art, it was made of little pieces of Horn, fo exactly join'd together, that they feem'd all to be but one entire piece. It was call'd Ara Apollinis. and Ara Cornes. Martial mentions it in his Book of Shows,

Nee Trivia templo molles laudentur honores, Diffimuletque deum cornibus ara frequens. Epigr. 1. v. 3.

On this Altar Sacrifices were offer'd to him, not fuch as were bloody, as Macrobius fays, lib. 1. of his Saturnalia, but of the Fruits of the Ground, with the Sound of Trumpets and other Instruments of Musick, while the Altar was crown'd with Vervain. This we learn from a passage of Cate in his Fragments of Hi-Rory: Nutrix hac omnis faciebat in verbenis ac tubis fine boftsis Deli ad Apollinis genitoris aram. Nevertheless Victims of Animals, as of Bulls and the like, were also offer'd to him ; which may be proved out of Lucian in his Dialogue of Sacrifices, where he introduces Chryfes a Prieft of Apollo, and perfectly well skill'd in his Mysteries, complaining to the God himself, That men his Temple was flighted which had been highly efteem'd in former times, when they burnt upon his Altars the Thighs of Bulls and Goats.

He had also a Temple at Clares, a little City in the Territory of Colophona, where there was also a Mountain and a Grove dedicated to the Clarian Apollo. This is represented to us in a Greek Medal of the Emperour Trebenian , in which there is the Picture of the Emperour on one fide, and on the Reverse a Temple shand-

Delian, Clarian, &c. He deliver'd Oracles at on high, with this Inscription under the sides niem. This last Word discovers to us, that the Colophonians stamp'd this Medal, for their City was one of the most famous in all lonia : the Temple of Clarian Apollo, which, next to that of Ephelus, was the most considerable in all lonia: altho it was never finished, as we learn from Paulanias in his Achaica, yet it was very famous for the Oracles which Apollo gave there. It was not built in Colopbon it felf, but in Clares a little City belonging to the Territory of Colophon.

The most celebrated and the richest of all the Temples which Greece erected to this God. was that at Delphor: all the Nations of the Earth vy'd with one another in fending rich Presents thither, and People came from all parts to confult this God there. Grafas fent thither Ingots of Gold to build an Altar in that Temple : and Phalaris, the Tyrant of Agrigontum, made a Present to it of a brazen Bull. which was a Mafterpiece of Art, and a Testimony of his Piery.

The Romans likewise made many Altars, and built many Temples to him at Rome, and in other Cities of the Empire; but the most famous of them all was that which Augustus built upon Mount Palatine, after the Victory of Attium which he obtain'd over Anthony and Cleopatra Queen of Egypt; from whence Apollo was called by the Names of Apollo Palatinus. Actiocus, and Navalis: for this Prince could not fatisfie himfelf with building to this God (to whom he had address'd himself before the Fight) a Chappel upon the Promontory of Adium, with Games and Sacrifices in honour to. him; but he had a mind to give yet more fignal and remarkable demonstrations of his Piery. by erecting flately Temples to him in the Capital City of the Empire, whose Structure and Magnificence is almost incredible. It was. built of the Marble of Clares, with divers Ornaments within and without of richer Materials: There you might fee a spatious Porrice for the holding a Library of Greek and Latin. Authors : Upon the Walls of this Temple was painted the History of Dangus's fifty Daughters. on one fide, and on the other Equestrian Staing upon four Pillars; over the fore-part of tues of the Children of Egypt : In the place bethe Gate Apollo fits holding a Harp in his hand, I fore the Temple there were four Cows of. and under the Stairs of the Temple, these Brass, done by the hand of Myron, and there-Letters are to be read TO KOINON IONON, fore called Armenta Mironia, which reprefented the Corporation of the Ionians. Under thefe Let- the Daughters of Presus the King of Arges, who ters is an Ox to be feen at the foot of an Altar, were chang'd into Cows, because they were and round about it there are thirteen Persons counted more beautiful than June, or rather; because .

because this Change of 'em was made in their own imagination by a black Melancholy, whereof Melampus cur'd 'em with one Dose of Hellebore, according to the Relation of Piny. In the same place grew a Laurel-Tree, which was of the same Age with Augustus, and had been planted before the Palace of that Prince. The Gates of this Temple were of Ivory, enrich'd with many Baffo-relievo's, which reprefented the Gaules when they threw themselves head-long from the top of the Capitol, and the Fourteen Daughters of Niebe the Daughter of Tantalus, who perish'd miserably through the Pride of their Mother, who had provok'd the Wrath of Apollo and Latona against her.

In the Frontispiece there appear'd a Chariot of the Sun of massie Gold, whose Figure was crown'd with Rays, which darted fo much Fire, and so vigorous a Light, that they were taken for the true Rays of that Star. Within the Temple was plac'd the Statue of the God made of Marble, done by the hand of Scopes, an excellent Statuary; together with another Giant-like Statue made of Brass, being Fifty foot high. There also was to be seen a Candleftick in the shape of a Tree, on whose Branches the Fruit hang'd, which were like so many fparkling Lamps; and on these Branches the Poets hung their Poems which they offer'd up to Apollo, as Horace tells us, Ep. 3. 1. 1. ___ Et tangere vitet

Scripta, Palatinus quacunque recepit Apollo. The fame Poet in Compliment to Augustus, invites him to examin these Poems, and consider whether they were worthy of Apollo;

- Si minus Apolline dignum Vis complere libris. & vatibus addere calcar.

Horat, lib. 2. cp. 1. Augustus caus'd also an Image of the same God to be made of Silver, which wore Sandals upon its Feet; and for this reason he was call'd Apollo Sandapilarius, or rather because this Statue was plac'd at Rome, in Sandapilario vico. The Greeks represented Apollo as young and beardless, having Hair dishevel'd, and flying up, as it were, with a blaft of Wind, carrying upon his Back a Quiver furnish'd with Arrows, and holding a Bow in his Hand, as we fee in the Medals of Ners, where he is drawn crown'd with Laurel, having his Quiver upon his Shoulder, and the Star of Phabus by his fide, with these Greek words, AΠΟΛΑΩΝ

ΣΩΤΗΡ, i.e. Apollo the Saviour. We have also other Medals whereon he is represented, sometimes holding a Harp in one Hand, and a Branch of Laurel in the other ; and sometimes clothed with a long Robe, having a Harp in one Hand, and in the other a Cup, which is the Emblem of his Divinity. There is yet remaining an antient Figure of

Jafer, on which the Tripod of Apollo is to be feen, and the Crow which was confecrated to him, having at his Feet a Harp on one fide. and on the other a Branch of Laurel. The Emperor Gallienus, after his Expedition in the East, caus'd him to be represented in the shape of a Centaur, holding in one Hand his Harp. and in the other a Globe, with this Device, Apollini comiti. Probus made him appear like a Charioteer, mounted upon a Chariot crown'd with Rays, who holds the Reins of his Four Horses, with these words, Soli invitto. The other Emperor, as Confiantius, Aurelian, and Crifpus, stamp'd an Image of him upon their Money, which shew'd the Figure of a clear Sun, crown'd with Rays, holding in the Right Hand a Globe, and in the Left a Whip, with this Device, Soli invitto comiti; which fignifies. that they had vanquish'd and subdu'd many Provinces by the Affiftance of Apollo, or the Lucian in his Dea Spris informs us, that there si a Temple in that Country, where the Statue of Apollo has a Beard, and appears to be of perfeet Age, and not like a young Man, as he is usually represented; because, say they, this is an Imperfection : His statue there has also this peculiar to it, that it is clothed, whereas all the other Statues of this God are not. In this Temple Apollo delivers his Oracles himfelf. whereas in other places it is done by his Priefts. When he has a mind to fore-tell any thing, he shakes himself, then the Priests take him us upon their Shoulders, and if they do not, he moves of himfelf and fweats: When they hold him, he leads them whither he will, and guides them as a Coachman does his Horfes, turning here and there, and going from one place to another: As foon as the High-Prieft asks him what he has a mind to know, if the thing difpleases him, he goes backward, if not, he goes forward. Thus they divine what his Will is : and they do nothing either in publick or private until they have first consulted him; and he foretells the Change of Times and Seafons. and even Death it felf.

Among Animals, the Wolf, the Raven, the Crow, the Cigale [the Cicada of the Antients. a flying Infect like a Grashopper] the Cock, and the Spar-Hawk; as also the Laurel, and Olive-Tree, among Trees, were confecrated to him by the Antients.

Apollo was esteem'd a God different from the Sun; for the latter was suppos'd to be the Son of Hyperion, one of the Titans, from whence he was call'd Hyperione natus, and Titania proles ; whereas Apollo was the Son of Jupiter and Latens; nevertheless they are frequently confounded.

Vo∏ius

Voffing thinks that the Jubal mentioned in | with him to bear witness of his Death, not so Holy Scripture was Apolle, to whom the Pagans much as Dannit his dear Disciple, and the Comattributed the Invention and Honour of Vocal and Instrumental Musick. Bechart has ob had a mind to make People believe that his ferved that the Isle of Deles, where Apollo was born, takes its name from Dahal, i. e. Terrer Deur; that the name of Mount Cynthus, where Latona was brought to bed, is deriv'd from Chanat, i. e. in lucem edere. This Fable then of Apollo comes originally from the East, and Apollo is an Egyptian God, according to Paulamias, who relates that a Senator call'd Antoninus built at Epidaurus a Temple to Apolio and Ælculapius, Egyptian Gods; for of the four Apollo's mentioned by Cicere, the three latter were certainly of Greek original, but the most antient was he of Egypt,

APO

Lastantius proves that Apollo was no more than a mere Man; and that he was like other Men, not only in his Birth but in his Crimes, which tho the Fable did not invent, yet could

Vossius further tells us, That the Fable of the Raven fent by Apolle, is plainly copied from the History of the Raven fent by Noah; for as the Raven, fent to discover whether the Waters of the Deluge were gone off from the Face of the Earth, did not return again into the Ark; fo the Poets feign'd, that Apollo having fent a Raven to fetch Water, this lazy and unfaithful Bird rested on a Fig-tree, and waited till the Figs were ripe, to eat them, as Ovid

Bochart remarks, with great probability, that the Fable of the Serpent Python kill'd by Apollo, took its original from Phanicia, because the Name of Python or Pethon in the Hebrew Tongue fignifies a Serpent, and from thence Apollo was call'd Pythian.

APOLLONIUS TYANÆUS, 2 Philesopher and Magician, who was for some time one of the Friends of the Emperour Demitian, but this Happiness lasted not long; for being accused of having foretold his Accession to the Empire, and facrificing an Infant upon this occalion, he was first ignominiously shav'd, and then fentenc'd to die; but when the Sentence was just ready to be put in execution, he made himself invisible, and vanish'd out of their fight who were present, by the Help of a Demen, who transported him to Pouzel. The Church of Christ never had a greater Enemy than this Magician; for, by the feeming Innocence of his Life, and his deceitful Tricks, which were accounted true Miracles, he gave occasion to Hierocles, a Philosopher, to compose a Book, wherein he compares him, with mifchievous artifice, to JESUS CHRIST. After he had a long time deceiv'd the World by his Prodigies, he died all alone, having no body panion of all his Impostures. No doubt he Body, which never appear'd any more upon Earth, was carried up into Heaven, and that in this also he resembled JESUS CHRIST. whom he pretended to imitate in his Life-time. Philofiratus has given a large account of it; but it is rather a well-contriv'd Fable than a true Hiftory.

As he was one day haranguing the People of Ephejus, he stopt all on a judden, and going back two or three paces, while he look'd down upon the ground with frightful Eyes, he cry'd out, Smite the Tyrant, Smite the Tyrant, meaning Domitian; his Auditors were mightily aftonisht at this Discourse, and all of them expected he should explain himself, which he did immediarely, by telling them, That in that very Heur Domitian was killed; the News of his Death came quickly after, and the Curious finding that his Words did fo exactly agree with the Action, which happen'd at io great a distance from him, this wonderfully increas'd his Reputation to the Prejudice of the Christian Religion. The Emperour Caracalla and the Epbefian erected a Statue to him under the Name of Hercules 'Anelieuch, or He that drives away Evils; and the Emperour Severus had his Image together with that of JESUS CHRIST in his Oratory.

APOPHRAS, a Greek word, us'd among the Athenians to fignifie an Unhappy Day, on which nothing was to be undertaken; or for some great Defeat which happen'd on that day. or for any other publick Calamity.

APOTHEOSIS, the Consecration or Deification of Great Men after their Death. The Greeks and Romans plac'd the Inventors of Liberal and Mechanical Arts amongst the Gods; fo they did Ceres, Bacchus, and Valcan : they deified also the Founders of Cities, great Generals, and, in process of time, their Kings and Emperours. This we learn from Horace lib. 2. Ep. 1. where he writes thus to Cafar Augustus:

Cum tot fustineas ac tanta negotia folus: Res Italas armis tuteris, moribus ornes.

. Prasenti tibi maturos largimur honores.

Jurandasque tuum per nomen ponimus aras. The Description which Ould gives of the Apotheofis of Hercules, made by Japiter himfelf, cannot be read without Admiration; and every one must apply it to the Brightness of a pure Soul, when it goes out of the Filthiness of Body and Matter, that then being purified from all the Stains of this Mortal Life, it enters upon a Life altogether Divine. These are the words of Jupiter to the other Gods :

Octem.

Detwas foernite flammas. Omnia qui vicit, vincet, ques cernita, ignes : Nec nifi materna Volcumum parte potentem Sentiet. Eternum eft, & me mad tranit, O Atque immune necis, mulfaq; demabile flamma. Idque ego defuntium terra, caleftibus oris Accipiam, &c.

Metam. l. 9. v.250. In another place of the fame Poet, Venus deres of Jupiter the Deification of Eness: Quamvis par vum, des, optime, Numen Dummodo des aliqued. Sacis est inamabile reg-Aspenisse semel, flygios semel iffe per amnes. ibid. l. 14.v. 489. Affenfere Dei. The Meaning of the Poet is, That Æneas naving made a Destent into Hell, out of Piety and Religion, in his Life-time, it was not just that be hould descend thither again after his Death. The Expiation of his Mortality was made, not by fire, but by Water, and for this end a Commission was granted to the River Numicius, which wash'd away the stains of his Mortality:

Hunc jubet Ence quecunque obnoxia merti.

Abluere ; & tacito deferre fub aquera curfu.

Corniger exequitur Veneris mandata; suisque

Quicquid in Enea fuerat mortale, repurgat.

Et respergit aquis ; pars optima reflitit illi. Luftratum genitrix divino corpus edore Unnit, & ambrefis cum dulci nettare mints Contigit os fecitque Denm. ibid. v. 500. The Apotheofis of Romulus is thus describ'd: -Cerpus mertale per auras Dilapfum tenues ; ceu tată plumbea fundă Miffa folet medio glans intabefcere calo. Pulchra subit facies, & pulvinaribus altis Dignier eft, Gc. These Deifications were to be authorized in Greece by the Oracle of fome God, and at Rome by a Decree of the Senate, which declar'd an Emperour to be of the number of the Gods. and order'd Temples to be built, Sacrifices to be offer'd, and Divine Honours to be paid him. When Alexander the Great had a mind to adore Ephifien as a God; one Phile, who came from Babylen, gave an account that an Oracle of Jupiter Hammon, had commanded Epheftion to be worshipt as a God, and to offer Sacrifice unto him, as Diodorus Siculus tells us in lib. 17. Alexander testified so great Joy at this Deification, that the Historians say he was the first that offer'd Sacrifice to him, and that he kill'd for that end no less than ten thousand Victims. But the Athenians did not only adore Great Men after their Death, but they worship'd them, and facrific'd to them even while they were alive. This they did to Demetrias Polyorcetes, as Demochares restifies in lib. 20. of his History, where he relates, That Demetrius returning from Leucada to Athens, the Athenians ting containing a Summary of the Caufe, and came out to meet him being crown d with Garlands of Flowers; that they made Libations of Wine, and were accompanied with Singing-Men and Musicions who fung Hymns to his Honour; that the Common-

People prefirated chemicives before him, crying with a land Voice, that Demetrius was the only true

God. We Salute thee, faid they, Son of Venus and of the Almighty Neptune, and we conjure thee to give as Peace, for thou art the Lard, the other Gods are afteep in the time of our Necessay, and are deaf to our Prayers. Upon this Subject you may confult Athenaus and Duris the Samian. Pythageras, who was the first that assum'd the Name of a Philosopher, i. e. a Lover of Wif-dom, having dwelt twenty years at Crotons, went afterwards to Metapontum and died there.

The Metapontines, admiring his profound Dodrine, consecrated his House into a Temple, and worship'd him as a God. All Greece decreed Sacrifices to be offer'd, and Altars to be erected to Lysander after his Death, upon the account of his Vertue; and Duris remarks.

That he was the first of the Grecians to whom Divine Worship was given, and in honour of whom

Himns were fung; which must be understood

during his Life, fince there were many others to whom Sacrifices were offer'd and Altars erected after their Death, a long time before

The Remens follow'd the Example of the Greeks, and made Gods of their Emperours.

The Senate decreed to them Divine Honours,

Sacrifices and Temples, and instituted Priests,

Festivals and Games in honour of them, as the Greeks had done before them. The manner of Deification us'd among the Remens, was, by letting an Eagle fly, which came out of the top of the Funeral pile on which the Body of the Emperour was burnt; and their Superfti-rion inclin'd them to believe that the Soul of the Emperour by this means flew up into Heaven among the Gods. Thus they deified Julius Gefar, Augustus, and other Emperours whether good or bad; the good for the great efteem

they had of their Vertues, and the bad out of Flattery, and in compliance with the Torrent

APPELLATIO, as Appeal from any

Sentence, when we are not fixisfi'd with it.

An Appeal, fay the Lawyers, is nothing elfe,

but a complaint made by a Person who has loft

the Caufe to a fuperiour Judg, against the In-inflice of an inferious and fubordinate. In the Remen Law, he who would not abide by a Sentence, was oblig'd at the instant it was given, or at least in two or three days after, to declare,

either wind voce or by writing, that he did appeal from it ; fince that the time was limited to ten days, after which no Appeal was to be admitted. In France any one may appeal within the space of thirty years.

Lyfander.

of Cuftom.

the Reasons of his Sentence, which he carried to the superiour Judg; and if he did not confent, nevertheless he gave a Writing containing an account of the whole matter, and the Reasons why he would not confent nor admit the Appeal. But whether the subordinate Judg did confent to the Appeal or not, still the Appellant might always carry the Suit before a fuperiour Judg. This was a very good Custom tho it is not at present used in Prance. In Civil matters none but he who had loft the Cause could appeal; but in criminal Caufes, when a Man's Life was concern'd, any Person was admitted to bring an Appeal, tho he who was condemn'd did not defire it. APPELLATORIUS LIBELLUS. Writ of Appeal, a Writ which is obtain'd in and the adverse Party. If the Judg consented to the Appeal, he gave the Appellant a Wri-

APPIADES, are five Pagan Deiries which were ador'd under that general Name, viz. Venus, Pallas, Vefta, Concordia and Pax, whose Temples were at Rome near Cafar's Market-place, where were the Fountains of Appius, from whence the name Appiades was given them. APPIANA FAMILIA, the Appian Family; most illustrious among the Romans. Its Original was from L. Appins, who obtain'd the Prize at the Nemean Games in Achaia, Chancery for admitting an Appeal, and for fummoning the Adversiry before the Judg, when he has obtain'd a Sentence in his favour, to fee if it can be fet aside.

There were many Confuls of this Name who always maintain'd the Authority of the Senate, against the Attempts and Violence of the Tribunes and People. APPIUS CLAUDIUS, furnamed the Blind, when he was Cenfor, caus'd the way to be pav'd, which leads from the Gate Capena to Brundusium, and which from his Name was called Via Appia. He made also an Aquadutt, which brought the River Anio into Rome, the Water whereof was carried up as high as Mount Aventine. He, understanding that the Senate was just upon the point of concluding a Peace with King Pyrrhu, caused himself to be carried into the Senate, where by feveral notable Arguments he disfuaded them from it, till he had withdrawn his Troops out of Ealy. APRILIS, the fecond Month of Romulus's Year, which confifted only of ten Months, and commenc'd with March; but it is the

the Mother of the Gods, and particularly of fourth Month of Numa's Year, which confifted of twelve Months, beginning with Janua-Macrobius derives the word Aprilis from the Greek dees, as if one should fay Aphrilis, i. c. One descended of Venus, or Born of the Scum made at the War against the Samutter; and the

This Appeal was to be notified to the Judg of the Sea, because this Month was dedicated to Venue by Remulus. There are other Authors who think this Word may more probably be deriv'd from the Verb Aperice, which fignifies to open, because in this Month the Flowers begin to blow, and the Earth does fend forth Seeds and Plants. These Festivals and Solemnities were obser-On the Calends of the Month, which was ved by the Remans, during this Month. the first day, there was no pleading of Causes; but the Roman Ladies being crowned with Myrtle, and wash'd under the same Trees, offer'd up a Sacrifice to Venus. Ovid relates the Original of this Ceremony: He tells us, That one day as Venus was drying her wet Hair by the River-fide, the Satyrs parceiv'd her quite naked, which caus'd in her fo much Shame and Confusion, that the cover'd her felf prefently with a Myrile. And this the Raman Ladies imitate by this Ceremony. On the same day the Maids, who are fit for Marriage, facrifice to Fertuna Virilia, praying her to hide the Defects of their Body from those who have a mind to marry them, as Ovid tells us, Fast. lib. 3. v. 150. Ut tegat hoz, celetque vires, Pertuna Virilia Praftat : O bec parve ture regata facit. They facrifie'd also to Venus furnam'd Verticordia, to make the new-married Husbands prove faithful to their Conjugal Vow. On the fifth, which was the day of the Nones. the Festival of Megalesia began to be solemniz'd in honour of the Mother of the Gods, which lasted for eight days together. See Meralesia. On the fixth, the Commemoration of the Dedication of the Temple of Fortuna Publica was celebrated on the Quirinal Mount, which P. Semprenius vow'd, and Martius Abala dedicated ten years after, appointing the Memorial of it to be observed every year. On the feventh, the Commemoration of the Birth of Apollo was in like manner observ'd. On the eighth Games were appointed for the Victory which J. Cefor obtain'd over Juba and Scipie, after the Battel of Pharfalia.

On the ninth and tenth the Games of Ceres were celebrated in the Circus called Cerealis. which were instituted by G. Memmius, Edilis Curulis. See Gerealia. On the twelfth, according to the new Calendar, was observ'd the great Solemnity of her Arrival at Rome, with Processions and many Games to her Honour. On the thirteeenth, which was the day of the Ides, a Sacrifice was offer'd to Jupiter Victor and to Liberty, because on that day their two Temples were dedicated at Rome, one by 2 Fabius, in performance of the Vow he had other by T. Gracehas, out of the pecuniary Fines of the Commonwealth.

the Fordicides, at which thirty Cows ready to calve were facrificed. See Fordicidis. On the same day the Governess of the Vestal Virgins burnt the Calves which were taken out of these Cows, and of the Aihes a Perfume was made, wherewith the Remans perfum'd themselves on the day of the Palitia, or of the Foundation of Rome.

On the fixteenth, Augustus was surnamed Imperator.

On the eighteenth, there was a Horfe-race, call'd Equiris, in the Great Circus; where were also to be seen Foxes running cover'd with Straw, which was fet on fire to divert the People. The occasion of this Diversion was thus: The Son of a certain Peafant in the listle City of Carleoli, walking about his Corn, percein'd a Fox catch'd in a Snare ; he takes him and binds him about with some Straw, and having set it on fire, lets him run among the Corn, which he burnt all up : and the Romans, in revenge for this burnt the Foxes after this manner, cover'd all over with Straw ; as Ovid informs us, Faft. lib. 4. v.

Utque luat panas, gens hac Cerealibus ardet: Quoque modò segetes perdidit, ipsa perit.

On the nineteenth, or thirteenth of the Calends of May, the Anniversary of the great Solemnity of the Feaft of Ceres Eleufins was obferv'd, at which the Roman Ladies, clad in white Linnen, and holding Lamps in their hands, facrific'd to her a Sow, with great Solemnity.

On the twentieth or twenty first was celebrated the Feaft of Palilia, or the Foundation of Rome, dedicated to Pales the Patronels of Shepherds. See Palilia.

On the same day a Sacrifice was offer'd to to the Immortal Gods, for the Victory which Julius Cafar obtain'd in Spain over Pampey's Sons, the News whereof was brought to Rome by a Courier, the Night before the Palilia. On the twenty first, the Festival was kent which was call'd Pinalis Priers, at which a Sacrifice of New Wine was offer'd to Venue, and according to fome, to Jupiter; of which none were permitted to drink till they had first offer'd this Sacrifice. See Vinalia.

On the twenty feventh, was the Feast call'd Robigalia, from Robigus the God of Mil-dew and Hoar-frost which blast the Corn. See Rebigalia.

On the twenty ninth, the Festival in homout of Flora, the Goddess of Flowers, was kept, which was called Floralia. lace of Augustus.

AQUA, Water, one of the four Elements. or the four Principles which concur to the On the fifteenth, was kept the Festival of Production of all Beings. Thales Milesius, one he Fordicides, at which thirty Cows ready to of the Wife Men, thought Water was the Principle of all things ; but Heraclitus faid it was Fire. The Priests, call'd Megi, admitted the two Principles of Fire and Water; and Euripides, the Scholar of Anaxagoras afferted the two other Elements of Air and Earth; but Pythageras, Empedecles, Epicharmus, and the other Philosophers, affirm'd that there were four Principles, viz. Air, Fire, Water, and

> The Egyptian Priests, to signific that all things fublift only by this Element, cover'd and adorn'd a Vessel full of Water, which they look'd upon as the Temple wherein their God resided, and prostrating themselves on the Ground, with Hands lifted up to Heaven, they gave thanks to the Divine Goodness for his admirable Inventions.

> Pliny, in lib. 31. ch. 1. makes an Encomium on Water, wherein he reckons up fo many excellent Qualities of it, as make it probable that this gave occasion to that superstitious Worship which was paid to it : For he tells us, That the Empire of the Waters confifts in ruling over all the other Elements, in over-flowing the Earth, extinguishing the Fire, in raising it self ub into the Air, and continuing there suspended, in mounting up as high as Heaven, and descending again with that fruitful Vertue, which makes the Earth produce all forts of Plants and Animals. Upon this account it was that the Poets invented Fables, to make the Wonders of this Riement more grateful.

> The Book of Wisdom deplores the Blindness of those Idolaters, who worship'd not the Almighty Power of the true God, but the Force and Abundance of Water, which has fomething very beautiful and terrible at the fame time, Blaw uAu.

> Plutarch fays, That the Egyptians ador'd the Waters of Nile, whose Inundations serv'd them inflead of Rain. Thus the Nile was held to be their Jupiter, who was thought to be the cause of Rain; and fo in Athenaus we find this Prayer address'd to the Nile, as being the Jupiter of Egypt, Airwille Zed Neine.

The Eastern Nations had no less a Veneration for their Rivers : Herodotus and Strabo fav. the Perfient reverenc'd the Rivers fo much, that they durst not throw nor fuffer any Excrement to fall into them, nor fo much as wash their Hands in them. Xerxes sacrific'd white Horses to the River Strymon, according to Herodotus : and Tiridates did as much to the River Emphrates before he pass'd over it, accor-On the last day, some Sacrifices were offer'd ding to the Relation of Tacitus. Pliny savs. to Vofta, upon the Palatine Mount, in the Par that the fame Tiridates would not put to Sea, because he would not lose that Reverence which Branches, whereof one, which runs towards he thought was due to the Ocean, by spitting Mount Eina, is good to drink, because it

Attergatis the Goddess of the Affgrians, of whom we shall give an account in the proper place, was also the Goddess of Waters, for the was drawn as half Woman and half Fifh.

The Greeks consider'd Water as one of the four general Principles of all fublunary Beings.

and call'd it in former times Nasse.

There are several forts of Water, that of the Sea, of Rivers, of Springs, of Lakes, and Rain-Water, which is gather'd and kept in Water-houses and Cifterns. Of all these sorts there is none better than Rain-Water, fays Vitruvius, because it is compos'd of the lightest and most subtil Particles, which are extracted out of all other Waters, and which the Air has purified for a long time by its Motion, till they are diffolv'd, and fo fall down in Showers upon the Earth; for the Earth being heated emits its Moisture out of its Breast, after the fame manner as our Eodies, when they are hot, do fweat. There are hot Springs whose Waters are not proper for ordinary Drink, altho they have no ill Tafte; and thefe are only to be used for the Cure of some Diseases. which require Dryness and Heat. There are cold Waters whose Smell and Taste are unpleafant, fuch are the Waters call'd Albula. which are near to Tiveli, and those in the Springs which are near to Ardea. All hot Springs have a Medicinal Virtue, beaufe after they are heated, they have another Effect than common Water; for the Sulphureous are good for Diferies of the Nerves, which they fortifie by heating them, and besides they confume the bad Humours. The Aluminous cure those Bodies which are weaken'd with the Palsie, or any other such like Disease, by reducing the Parts, which are distemper'd by Cold, to their natural state by Heat. The Bituminous, by purging, expel the Difeafes of the inward parts.

There are also cold Waters which are nitrous, such are those near Penna, a Country of the Veftini, and in the Country of the Cutifians. which are drank for purging and diffolving scrophulous Tumours.

There is another Water which is not very clear, and besides has Scum or Froth which fwims at top, of the colour of red Glass: one of this fort is to be feen, chiefly near to Athens, where it is convey'd to make Water-Spours, and is made use of for washing, but not for drinking.

Water, which have different Properties; fuch | in which are found the Bones of Serpents, Liis the River Himers in Sicily, which, after it | zards and other venemous Beafts. There are passes through a fweet Earth; but the other. which runs through an Earth that yields Salt. has a very faltish Taste. Likewise in the Paretonian Fields, through which there is a way to the Temple of Jupiter Hammen, there are found fenny Lakes, whose Waters are so falt. that the Salt fwims at top congeal'd.

There are other Waters to be met with. which percolate through Veins of unchuous Earth, and which feem as if mixt with Oil ! fuch is the River Lipsris, which runs to Soli a City in Cilicia, where all those that bath in it. when they come out of the Water, look as if they were anointed. Near to Dyrrachium and Apollonia, there are Springs which throw forth great Quantities of Pitch. There are also Springs which the Moisture of the Earth from whence they rife, makes very bitter; fuch is the River Hypanis in the Kingdom of Pentus, which from its Source for the space of about forty miles is fweet; but when it reaches to a place 160 miles distant from its Entrance into the Sea, a little Spring, which runs into it, makes its Waters bitter; this Bitterness proceeds from a Mine of red Arfnick, which is found near the Head of that Spring.

There are Waters also which are dangerous to those that use them, by reason of the venemous Juices through which they percolate: fuch is that Fountain at Terracina, call'd Neptuniana, whose Waters are poisonous; such also was that Lake near Cyderes in Thracia, whose Waters kill'd not only those that drank of it, but even those that wash'd with it. In Macedonia, near the Grave of Euripides, two Rivulets join together, one of which has a Water fo good that Paffengers ftop there on purpose to refresh themselves ; but the Water which run on the other fide is so pernicious that no body dares come near it.

In that part of Arcadia which is call'd Nanaeris, there diffils from certain Mountains a Water extremely cold, which the Greeks call SUNG Udwe, the Water of Mourning, which cannot be taken up in any other Vessel, but only in the horny part of a Mule's Foot. 'Tis faid that Antipater made his Son Islas carry fome of this Water into the Province where Alexander was, and that it was its Poison that kill'd that King.

There is also another Water in the Alpr. in the Kingdom of Cottos, which makes all that drink of it fall down fuddenly. In the Country of the Falifei, near the Road

There are also found many other kinds of which goes to Naples, there rises a Fountain, rifes from its Spring-head, is divided into two also some Fountains whose Water is source; fuch is that of Lyncestia, that of Voline in Baly, I which was near the Porta Capena, wherewith and that of Theams in the Terra Laberis, which have a Virtue to dissolve Stones in the Bladder. There are also some Fountains whose Water feems as if it were mixt with Wine; fuch is that of Paphlagonia, wherewith a Man may

In the City of Equicoli, which is in Italy, and in the Country of the Medulli, in the Alps, fwell.

. In Arcadia there is a City very well known. call'd Clitar, near which there is a Cavern. from whence a Spring rifes, which makes those who drink of it have Wine; because in this Fountain, Melampus, having first offer'd Sacrifice, purified the Daughters of Presus, to cure them of their Folly, and by this means de did in effect restore them to their right Wits again. In the lile of Chio there is a Spring which makes them mad who inconsiderately drink of it. At Suza, the Capital City of Persia, there is a Fountain whose Water makes the Teeth fall our.

AQUA LUSTRALIS, Lustral Water. The Antients did not make use of all forts of Water indifferently for their Lustral Water, wherewith they purified themselves at their Sacrifices. The Romans commonly fent to fetch it from the Fountain Juturus, near the River Numicius; as the Athenians fent to that Fountain which they call'd Calirrhee; the Trezenians to the Fountain of Hippscrene, and the Perfians to the River Cheafpes. They always made use of Running Water, which was clear; fuch as that of rapid Rivers or of the Sea, which they blefs'd after their manner. Hospinianus and Pontanus think that the Antients us'd only that Water which was perfeely pure, without any Mixture, to make their Lustral, which Opinion they ground on that patlage in the fiath Book of the Aneids, ver.

Idem ter socies pura circumtulit unda. Spargens rore levi.

Yet Du Choul; speaking of this Lustral Water, fays, That they took the Albes of the Wood which was made use of for burning the Villim, or of some pieces of Cedar, of Hysop and Cumin, which they threm into the Fire, when they were about to extinguish it, and of these Abes made their Lustral er Holy Water, which they plac'd at the Entrance into their Temples in great Veffels, and wherewith they parifi'd themfelves when they enter'd into them. They had also little Veffels, or Holy-Water Pots. wherein they put some of the Water, and with it they sprinkled those who were present with a kind of Brush; not unlike that now used in the Church of Rome.

Merchants sprinkled themselves, thinking thereby to blot out the Sins of Injustice and Fraud, which they had committed in their Trading.

The Antients, when any Person was dving. were wont, out of a superstitious Fancy, to throw out all the Water in that House where. he was, and the neighbouring, because they there are Waters which make the Throat thought that the Angel of Deatn, or Satan, who appear'd to all Dying Persons, would wash his Sword, wherewith he had kill'd the Deceas'd, in that Water, AQUÆDUCTUS, an Aqueduct, a Structure made of Stone, standing upon an uneven Ground, which was to preferve the Level of the Water, and to convey it through a Canal from one place to another. The Remans were very magnificent in their Aquæducts, which were fometimes an hundred thousand geometrical paces long.

The precise time when Aquaducts first began to be made at Rome is not certainly known. Pliny informs us, that Ancus Martius, the King. was the first who began to bring Water from a Fountain call'd Aufeia, which was aftewards call'd, from his Name, Aqua Martia. Frontinus who liv'd under the Emperour Nerve, and has wrote a long Treatife upon this Subject, attributes the first Aquaduet to Appius Claudius. Cenfor together with M. Plantins Venez, who in the year 441, under the Confulship of M. Valerius and P. Decius, built a fubterraneous Waterpassage of strong Stones, vaulted at top; the rais'd Arches were of Brick or very hard Stone. and were call'd, Subftructiones, opera arcusta. aerii fornices, & camerati arcus, which are mentioned by Caffiedorus.

The Height of the Aqueduct of Aqua Martia, which Q. Martin built, was level with the Top of the Viminal Mount; and that of Aqua Appia was rais'd an hundred feet above the Ground.

Some have reckon'd up fourteen Aquadufts which convey'd Water to Rome, that were of admirable Structure; but Frontinus, who was the the grand Over-feer of thefe Waters under the Emperour Nerva, fays there were but nine Aquaducts, in his time, at Rome.

The first was that which convey'd the Agus Appia, fo call'd from Appius Claudius, Cenfor, who gather'd Water together from many places in the Territory of Frejessi, about feven or eight Miles from Rome, and from thence convey'd it through Canals and Arches into the City; the Current of this Water from irs Spring-head, as far as to the Sabini, near the Forsts Tergenine was eleven thousand one hundred and ninety paces long : it was divided Ouid has alfortold us of the Water of Mercury, at Rome, near the Mons Teffaceus, into twenty terwards distributed by many Pipes into seve- of Agripps which he finished in one Year, and ral Quarters of the City.

The fecond was that of the Water of the old Tiverone, call'd Anie Venus, begun by the Cenfor M. Curius Dentatus, in the year 481, under the Confulfhip of Septimius Carbilius and L. Papyrius (for the building whereof he employ'd all the Spoils he had got from King Pyrrhus) and at last finished by Fulvius Flaceus the grand Overseer of the Waters. The Canal began about twenty miles from Rome, above Tivoli, its Course was forty two thousand two hundred eighty seven paces. This Water serv'd only to wash withal, to water Gardens, and for Drink for Beafts.

The third Aquaduct was that of the Aqua Martia, made by the Industry of Martius surnamed Rex, which was begun by Ancus Martius the King. This Water came from the Fountain call'd Picmia, which is in the utmost part of the Mountains of Peligni; its Course extended to fixty one thousand seven hundred and ten paces, through fubterraneous Channels, and Arches equal to Mount Viminalis: It entred into the City by the Porta Esquilina, and having furnish'd two Mountains of Rome, the Viminal and Quirinal, it emptied it felf into fifty one Cifterns, for the Convenience of many Parts of the City, for this Water was the clearest and best to drink. This Aquæduct was built in the year 609, under the Confulthip of Sulpitius Galba and Aurelius Cotta.

The fourth Aquædust was that of the Water called Tepula, which the Cenfors Cn. Servilius Scipio and L. Caffius Longinus, convey'd from the Territory of Frescati to the Capitol, being twelve thousand paces long. This Spring had no certain Source, but only fome little Veins or Branches, which met together in the Canal of the Aqua Julia : one part of this Water was convey'd to the Country, and the other to the City, which was kept in fourteen Confervatories, and distributed into the feveral Quarters of the City.

The fifth was that of Aqua Julia, which M. Agrippa erected in the time of Augustus, and to which, in honour of it, he gave his Name. This Water was collected, from many Sources into one great Water-house about six miles from Rome, its Course extended to fifteen thoufand paces and an half; it pass'd through the Porta Esquilina, and the Trophies of Marius, and emptied it felf into seventeen Cisterns, for the Accommodation of the feveral Quarters of the City.

The fixth was that of Aque Virginis, fo calfearching for Water, as Frontinus tells us in his | ses Aquarum dutius noviffmum impendium opti-ts

Caftles or Repositories, called Castella, and af- | First Book of Aquadutts. This was also the work about thirteen years after he had built the former. Its Canal began about eight miles from Reme, in the Territory of Tufculum, near the Bridge Salaro, and its Course extended to fourteen thousand one hundred and five paces. It paffed through the Campus Martius, and emptied it felf into many Cifterns, for the convenience of the feveral Quarters of the City. This Water, to this day is still called Aqua Virginis, and is the only ancient Aguadust that remains: Pope Nicolas V. repair'd in

The feventh Aquaduct was that of a Lake called Alfierina, four thousand paces diffant from Rome, and fix miles to the right-hand from the Via Appia. This was the Work of Augustus, and from his Name it was called Via Augusta. It ferved only to fill the Circus with Water for the Naumachia or Sea-fights, and for watering Gardens.

The eighth was begun by the Emperour Caligula, but Death prevented his finishing it: Claudius his Successor thought the Defign was too brave to leave it imperfect. Pliny never fpeaks of this Work but with great Admiration. It convey'd the Water of two fine Springs, call'd Caruleus and Curtius, which were in the Country of the Latins, thirty eight thousand paces distant from Rome, holding its Course for the space of forty fix thousand pa-ces in length, through many Arches, which terminate at last in the Ports Nevis, and rife as high as Mount Aventine. This Water was called Claudia from Claudius, and was very good to drink.

The ninth was also begun by Caligula, and finish'd by Claudias in the same year with the former. It derives its Water from a place further off than any of the rest, viz. at the distance of fixty two thousand paces from the City, from a muddy River call'd Tiverme or Anie, from which another Aquedutt was formerly made, and this latter is nam'd Anio Noous. Claudius thought fit, for purifying his thick and muddy Waters, to make, at the diffance of four thousand paces from their first Rifing, a Pool or Pond, wherein the Mud might fettle to the bottom, which was call'd Pilcina Limaria; but notwitflanding all this Precaution, when the Rains fell, the Water came to Rome very thick.

These two Works were worthy of a great Prince, as well for the Height and Magnificence, as for the excessive Expences that were laid out upon them, which were found to amount, according to the Computation of Viled, because a young Maid first discover'd its genere, to thirteen millions eight hundred Spring head to the Souldiers when they were feventy five thousand Crowns: Picit antecedent

incheati à Cafare & peratti à Claudio ; quippe à chat of Teverene, emitted it felf into Lakes, lapide quadragefimo ad eam extelfitatem, ut in em-

nes Urbis montes levarentur. Oc.

These are the nine Aquaducts which Frontinus treats of, that had 13594 pipes, which he calls Quinaries and were one inch in diameter and 3 in circumference. The first Aquaduct of the Aque Appie had 694 pipes: The Anie Verus, or the Toverone, had 1981 : That of the Aqua Martia had 1741: The Tepula had 445: The Julia 755: The Aqua Virgo 2504: The Alfietina 592 : The Claudie and Anie Novus 4882. Of all these Pipes there were only 10350 which convey'd Water for the City, the rest were for the benefit of the Countrey.

There are also other Aquaducts made at Rame fince Frontinus's Time. Pope Pius IV. built one in the Year 1363. which brought Water at eight miles distance from Rome, between Tiveli and Pranefle; 'tis thought to be the ancient Afietina. Sixtus Quintus built an Aquaduct of the Aque Felix, in the year of Grace 1581, as may appear by an Inscription engraven upon an Arch, near the Gate of St. Laurence, Sixtus V. Pont. Max. Ductum Aqua Felicis Rive paff. Subterrance Mil. XIII. Substructione arcusta VII. Šuo Sumptu extruxit Anno Domini M. D. LXXXI. Pontificatus I.

Let us now fee how the Partition and Difiribution of these Waters was made into the feveral Quarters and private Houses.

There were in all Parts of the City Confervatories or Water houses, which were called Dividicula or Caffella, into which the Waters emptied themselves, and from which they were convey'd on both fides by Pipes. Agripps alone, during his Edileship, made an hundred and thirty of these Water-houses, adorned with Statues and Pillars of Marble.

There were Over-feers appointed, to whom the Care of them was committed, who were called Castellani, who distributed the Water by divers Conduits into feveral places of the City, and even to private Houses, and hindred any private Person from misapplying the Water to his own Use without Leave first had; which was granted upon conditon of a certain Duty to be paid, which was more or less according to the Quantity of Water any one had a mind to have. Marlianus informs us, That Agrippa mas the first who invented this Partition of the Wasers by Inches and Ounses, as well for the Ufe of the Publick as of Private Persons. The Revenue of these Waters, according to the Computation of Vigenere, amounted yearly to fix millions two hundred and fifty thousand Crowns. The Water which was not good to drink, as and ferv'd the Beafts to drink, and to walk withal; it was us'd also for Baths, for dying, and tanning of Hides, for milling of Cloth. and for representing the Naumachia or Naval Fights in the Campus Martius. And after they had ferv'd for these several uses, they were all gather'd together in the Closic, or common Gutters, and from thence emptied themselves into the Tiber.

Nere, after the Burning of Rome, fays Tacitus, hinder'd private Perfons from applying the publick Water to their own use, as they had been accustomed to do, made Confervatories, which might serve for quenching Fires, and appointed some Persons to look after them. The Cenfors, and after them the Ædiles Caruli. took care of the Aqueducts and the Waters of Rome. But under the Emperours Overseers were appointed, who had under them many subordinate Officers, who distributed them for use of the Publick and Private Persons, upon payment of a certain Duty, and enjoy'd the Benefit of it, not as a Property, but only for .

AQUARIUS, One that pours forth Water : tis a Sign in the Zodiac, which is the eleventh reckoning from Aries. The Sun moves thro it in the Month of January, and this Sign is of the Nature of Saturn ; 'tis mark'd thus 23. The Poets feign'd, That this was Ganymede. whom Jupiter ravish'd under the shape of an Eagle. and carry'd away into Heaven, to ferve as Cupbearer in the Room of Hebe and Vulcan.

AOUILA, an Eagle, the King of Birds: He is call'd The Bird of Jupiter, because he flies highest of all Birds, and aims, say the Poets, to batch his young enes in his Bosom. After this the Fable adds, That there was formerly a King of the Ifle of Cos, call'd Merops, whom Juno chang'd into an Eagle, when he was just ready to put him-felf to death for the Loss of his Wife. But Agloofthenes relates, That Jupiter being carried away from Candia, was transported to Naxus, where, as as be was preparing to make War against the Titans. he faw an Eagle with his Thunderbolt, which he took for a good Omen, and ever after that this Bird was taken into his Protection. Some Authors tell us. That Mercury being smitten with the Love of Venus, and not being able to obtain any Favour from her : One day as the Goddels was bathing her felf in the River Achelous, Jupiter cau'd an Eagle to take away one of her Sandals, which he carried to Mercury, and fhe to get it again fatisfied the Paffion of ber Lover. Nevertheless Ovid and Lucian inform us, That it was Jupiter who transformed himself into an Eagle to carry of the Beautiful Ganymede from Mount Ida.

It was a Bird of good Omen, when it came flying on the right-fide with expanded Wings.

Thus Arifiander the Soothfayer foretold, That | The Poets represent it to us, With the Tail of a Alexander fould be victorione, because be had seen Serpent, having its Beard and Hair cover'd with an Eagle flying from his Enemies Camp into his own. Snow and Ice. Hefied, who has given us the Thus when Lucumm, call'd Tarquinius, came to Genealogy of the Winds, makes this, as well fettle at Rame, with all his Family, an Eagle | as the reft, the Son of the Stars and Aurera. prefag'd to him that he should be King ; for as he came near the Janicula, an Eagle came on a fudden and lit upon his Head, and having taken off his Cap, it play'd for some time with it it. Others derive it from the Greek word ded, in the Air, and then put it on his Head again ; Tanaquilla his Wife, who was afterwards call'd Caia Cacilia, being a Tuscan by Nation, and very well vers'd in Augury, interpreted this Prodigy in favour of her Husband, and affur'd him that he should be King; which was justified by the Event. In the Roman Armies the Eagle was the Enfign that was carried in the first Company of the Legion; it was of Silver, and was born upon the top of a Pike, with expanded Wings, and fometimes it held in its Talonsthe Thunderboltof Jupiter, as being just ready to dart it, It was of Silver rather than Gold, fays Pliny, because Silver is feen at a greater diffance.

The first who carried the Eagle in their Enfigns were the Persians, according to the Testimony of Xenephen. The Remans having formerly carried divers other Ensigns, at last fix'd upon the Eagle, in the second year of the Confulfhip of Marius, which they made the Enfign for the Colonel's Company in each Legion, and was carried on the top of a Pike. Some fay, That Constantine was the first who appointed an Eagle with two Heads, to fignifie, that the the Empire feem'd to be divided, yet it was but one Bowith two Heads, which Lipfius observ'd in the the Pillar of Trajan, and from the Custom of later times, wherein the Eagle had but one Head, as in the Seal of the Bulla Aurea, which was made in the time of Charles IV. Emperour. The Conjecture of Father Menefirier is more probable, who fays, That as the Eastern Emperors, when two of them fat upon the Throne, flamp'd their Money with a Crofs having a double Bar, which each of them held with one hand, as being the Sceptre of Christians : fo the Romans did the Eagle in their Heraldry, and instead of doubling their Escutcheons and Eagles, they join'd them together, and represensed one Eagle with two Heads, which Custom was follow'd by the Emperors of the West for same time after.

The Confuls carried a Bartoon of Ivory as a fign of their Dignity, on the top of which there was an Eagle, as we learn from Martial, Da nunc & wolucrem sceptro que surgit eburno. AQUILICIANA, Festivals which were celebrated at Rome during a great Drought, for brought down Rain upon the Earth by their Prayers.

ARA, an Altar. Some derive this Word from ardee, which fignifies to burn, because Perfumes and the Entrails of Beaft were burnt on which fignifies Prayer, from whence comes re-They, which fignifies Imprecation. Whatever the Etymology of the Word is, there is certainly a difference between Are and Altere, which comes from alsw, i. e. high, for according to Servius they did not Sacrifice on the latter, but only to the Gods on high, or Celefial Deities, but upon Ara's they facrific'd both to those and the Infernal Gods. There is also another Difference between these 2 Words, that there were Steps for ascending the Altars which were call'd Altaria, but there were none to those call'd Ara, which were indeed rais'd upon the ground, but in a plain and even plat. Yet notwithstanding these Differences, Authors have confounded these Words, and do often take one for t'other.

We must now enquire what was the Matter of which Altars were made, what was the Figure and Ornaments, what was their Confecration and Use.

The Matter of Altars was different according to feveral Countries and Times.

At first they were made only of Turf heap'd one upon another. Pausanias, in his Elegiaca, describing the Altar of Jupiter Olympius, fays, dy. But this opinion is confuted by an Eagle That it was made of the Albes of the Villims that were facrific'd to him, and was 22 feet high, and that the Steps for ascending to it were also of Afbes : and that every Year, on the 19th of February, the Aruspices were went to carry the Ashes of the Prytaneum, and make an Altar of them tempering them with the Water of the River Alpheus. The same Author mentions another Altar of Apolle Spadius which was made after the same Fashion. In following times Altars were made of Stones, of Marble, of Wood, and even of Horn, as that of Apollo in the Ifle of Delos.

The Figure of Altars was different, fome were round, others four-square or oval; but they were always turn'd towards the East, and stood lower than the Statues of the God, which were plac'd upon Bases above the Altar. These Statues were crown'd and adorn'd with Ornaments convenient for them, which express'd their Divinity: thus also the Altars were adorned with Festoons of Leaves and Flowers which had been dedicated to them; and fo the obtaining Rain of the Gods. The Priests were | Statues and Altars of Apollo were adorn'd with call'd Aquilices, quia aquam eliciebant, because they Lauret Leaves, those of Herculet with Poplar, Jupiter's with Oak, of Venus with Myrtle, and AQUILO, the North-Wind, which blows | those of Pallas with Olive Leaves, Neverthefrom the North-fide, which is cold and dry. less the same name Verbena, was commonly given to them all, as we learn from Donator | Ser'd Sacrifice to the Gods to witness the Sinupon Terence's Andria, All. 4. Se, 4. Ex ara bine sume verbenas tibi : upon which words he fays, verbene funt redimicula ararum, five omnes herbe, frondesque festa ad aras coronandas.

These Altars were consecrated with Oyl, which was pour'd upon them. The People of Elis for this end made use of the Ashes which they took from the Prytaneum, and temper'd with the Water of the River Alphan, and with these they rub'd over their Altars. They dedicated them afterwards to some Deity, and put on them the Name of the God, together with his who made the Dedication. I will here fubjoin a Form of the Dedication of an Altar:

C. Domitius Valens Dunmvir praeunte D. Julio Severe Pentifice legem dinit in ea verba que infra

Jupiter Optime, quandoque bodie tibi banc aram dabo dedicaboque, ollis legibus ollifq; religionibus dabe dedicaboque, quas bic bedie palam dixere ; uti infimum folum bujus ara eft, fi quis bic boftiå facrum fecit, quod in augmentum ne protollat, idcirco tomen probe fattum efto. ---

Sicuti dizi hane tibi aram, Jupiter Optime, Mazime, dico dedicaque, uti fis volens propitius mihi collegifque meis, decurionibus, colonis, incolis Colonia Martie Julie Salonie, conjugibusq; liberisq; moftrie.

Here follows likewise the Inscription of an Alter, which the Inhabitants of Narbon erected to Cafar Augustus in their City.

T. Statilio Tauro. L. Caffie Langine, Coff. X. Kalend, Octob. Numini Augusti votum susceptum

A plebe Narbonensium in perpetuum. Duod bonum, faustum felinque sit Imp. Cajari Divi P. Augusto P. P. Pontifici maximo Tribun, potestate XXXIIII

Conjugi, liberis, gentique ejus, Senatui, populeq; Romano & colonis incolifque C. I. P. N. M. qui numini eius iu perpetuum colendo obligaverunt, plebes Narbon, aram Narbone in fore posuit, ad quam quetannis VIII. Kal. OS. qua die eum feculi felicitae arbi terrarum Rectorem edidit, tres Equites Romani à plebe & tres libertini hostias singulas immolent, & colonis & incolis, ad supplicandum numini ejus, tus & vinum de suo ea die prastent : & VIII. Kal. O. tus, vinum colonis & incolis item praftent : VII. quoque Idus Januarias, qua die primim Imperium erbis terrarum auspicatus est, ture, vine supplicent, & hofties fingulas immolent, & colonis incolifq; tue winum ed die præftent.

By these Inscriptions we see, that the first use of Altars, was there to offer Sacrifices and and Prayers to the Gods to whom they were dedicated.

The fecond use of them was to render Alliances more folemn, Treaties of Peace more firm, Marriages more indiffoluble, and Oaths cerity wherewith they fwore that Alliance, and conjuring them to bring the Infractors of it to fome milerable Death. Thus K. Larinus sware an Erernal Peace with Energy, in the presence the Armies of the Troisus and Latines.

AQU

Tango aras, mediofque ignes & numina tefter : Nulla dies pacem banc Italis, nec fadera rumpet,

Æn. 12. v. 201.

The Remans observed the same Ceremony in the Oaths they took about divers Civil Affairs, and prescrib'd certain Words to be us'd by him who fwore, while he laid his hand upon the Altar of the Gods. Thus Gripus in Plantas makes Labrax swear, while he held by the Altar of Vosur, to restore to him a Portmanteau, and makes him repeat after him the Words of his Oath : All. S. Sc. 11. Rud. W. A6. Gr. Tange aram banc Veneris. La. Tango. Gr. Per Venerem banc iurandum eft tibi. La. Quid jurem ? Gr. Qued jubebo. La. Prei verbis qued vis -- Gr. Tene gram banc. La. Tenco - Gr. La. Venus Cyrenenfis, sestem to tefter mihi : Si vidulum illum, quem ego in navi perdidi, Cum auro atque argento faloum inveftigavero, Ifq; in potestatem means pervenerit - La. Tum ego buic Gripo dico, Venus, ut tu enaudias. Gr. La. Talentum argenti magnum contieno dabo. Gr. Et fi fraudassis, dicito, uti in qualtu tun Venus eradicet cabut atque atatem tuam.

By which Paffage it appears, that they us'd Imprecations against those that should violate their Oath. From this Custom came the Latin Proverb, Amicus ad aras, which Pericles first made use of, meaning thereby, that he would ferve his Friends in every thing fo far as he could without offending the Gods, wive of Boun ola Graini. This Answer he gave to one of his Friends, who defir'd him to bear false witness in his favour ; Asi un suparedifice will φίλοις, αλλά μόχει βωμών I ought to ferve my Friends, but without touching the Altar. From thence came also that other Phrase, pro aris & focis pugnare, which fignifies, to fight for the Insereft of the Gods and Religion.

The third use of Altars was to serve for an Afrium or place of Refuge and a Sanchuary to all those who fled to them, whatever Crimes they had comitted; for it was expressy forbidden by the Laws to take any one from them by Force, and especially from the Alter of Concord ; which Privilege belong'd also to those that held in their arms the Statues of the Emperors. This happen'd often to Slaves, who being unfaithful to their Master, ran to the Altars and Statues. which they embrac'd as a most safe Asylum, as Plantus tells us in this Verse,

Nemo accufat, Syre, nec tu aram tibi nec precacaterem parabis.

Upon this account the Altars were call'd Are confugit, and Euripides calls them the Retreat of more facred; for the two Parties having of Slaves, as the Caves are of Wild Beafts.

Remain was the first who appointed these places of Refuge in the Temples, and at the Alters of the Gods, that by this means he might People his new Ciry ; during the Triamvirate it was exprelly forbidden to take any Criminals by force out of the Temple of Julius Cafer, who had fled thither and embrac'd his Altars. In fine, the privilege of thefe Sanctuaries came to fo great an height, that at Rome and in the Cities of Greece, the Temples were fill'd with Debtors, fugitive Slaves, and Criminals, and yet the Magistrates could give no Orders about them, nor put any Rep to the fury of the People, who protected shele funerstitions as facred and mysterious

ARA, a Celestial sign so call'd from the Altar which the Cyclopes crefted, and on which the Gode swore to affist Jupiter in his War against the Giants; for efter their defeat this Altar was plac'd among the Stars.

A R AB, certain Rocks in the Sea, at which Letteties Catelles obtain'd a Naval Victory over the Carthaginians, and where a Peace was made between them and the Romans. which put an end to the first Punick War in the Year from the building of Rome DXII.

Saxa vocant Itali, mediis que in fluttibus aras. &c. Virg. 1. Æneid. v. 112.

Ara Maxima, an Altar call'd the greatest. from the great quantity of Stones of which it was built, as Servius tells us. This Altar was erected at Rome to Hercules in the Marketket place for Oxen, near the Schola Graca and hard by the Entrance of the Circus maximus . The occasion of building it was this. "Ca. our being kill'd by Hercules, Evander, who " had observ'd something very great and ex-" traordinary in his Phyliognomy, defir'd to " know his Name; and understanding that " he was call'd Hercules, he cry'd out imme-" diatly, that it was he of whom his Mother "Carmenta had foretold extraordinary Prodi-" gies of Courage, for which an Altar was to be erected to him which should be call'd. " Ara manima; that he himself should appoint his own Sacrifice, and prescribe the "manner of it to Posterity : Immediatly Hercules facrific'd a fine Heifer out of the Herd. " and appointed those of the Family of the " Patitii and Pinarii to be his Priefts: Or, according to Properties, this Altar was areeled to him for finding again his Drove of Maxima qua gregibus deveta est ara repertis :

Ara per has, inquit, Maxima falla manus. Are Lugdunensis, an Altar in the City of

Lyons, dedicated to Augustus, in the Year of Rome DCCXLIV. This Altar was in a Temple, which was erected at the common charge of Sixty feveral Nations of the Gauls, together with fo many Statues, which here the Names of each of these Nations. In this Temple the Emperor Caligula appointed Ludi Academici, as Suetonius fays, to which great numbers of Orators and Poets came from feveral parts of the World, to perform their best in Eloquence and Poetry. But because it was ordain'd, that they who were our done should be plung'd in the River Saone, if they did not like the performance of their Tongue; this gave occafion to Juvenal to express any great fear, by way of Proverb, by the timerousness of an Orator, who was to harangue before the Altar of Lyons.

Palleat ut nudis pressit qui calcibus auguem, Aut Lugdunen en Rheter dicturus ad aram. Tuv. Sat. 1. v. 43.

Arachne, the Daughter of Idmen of Ledia. very skilful in the art of Weaving She was fo rash that she would be esteem'd more excellent than Minerus; but this Goddess punish'd her by tearing her Work in pieces, and giving her a blow with her shuttle, which so mightily offended Arachue that she hang'd her felf in despair : But Minerva afterwards pirying her misfortune, chang'd her into a Spider, which still makes Cobwebs in the Air.

ARBITER, an Arbitrator, a Judge in an amicable manner, whom the Pretor appointed for Partners to end their differences: and Arbitrators in general, are such as are chosen and agreed upon by Two Parties for determining any Controversies between them : To which end they fign'd a Bond of Arbitration to submir to the Award given about the differences, under the forfeiture of a certain Summ of Money to be paid by those who refus'd to stand to it.

ARBORES, Trees. The Pagan Gods. favs Phadrus, in ancient times made choice of certain Trees which they had a mind to take into their Protection : Thus Jupiter chose the Oak-tree, Venus the Myrtle, Apollo the Laurel, Cybele the Pine-tree, Hercules the high Poplar. Minerus the Olive-tree, and Bacchus the Ivy. Men did then also reverence Trees. Woods and Plants, as being the Temples, or Bodies of fome living and intelligent Divinities. The Egyptians abstain'd from Onions and Leeks, because they durst not handle thefe Gods which grew in their Gardens, as we learn from Javenal, Porrum & Cape wefas violare & frangere morfa. O fancter gentes quibus hac nascuntur in hortis Namina! Sat. 15. v. 9.

Pliny tells us, that if the Ancients ador'd Trees, it was only because they look'd upon them as the Temples of some Divinity. This Testimony of Pliny thews plainly, that if the Rement ador'd Groves and their Silence, Lucus er in its ipla silentia adoramus] this Worship was only paid to some intelligent Divinity, or to fome Genius, which they believ'd to prefide over, and also to have their Residence in these Trees. Ovid speaking of an impious Profaner of facred Groves, and of a great Oak, under which the Dryades often us'd their innocent Diversions, tells us, that this Oak being ftruck with an Axe by the bold Profaner, declar'd that a Nymph lodg'd in the Tree, who died at the fame time with the Tree, but that her Death should not long remain unpunish'd. He mentions elsewhere a Mother who was chang'd into a Tree, and defir'd her Son never to touch any Trees, but look upon them as the Bodies of fome-Nymphs. Horace devoted a Pine-tree to Diana, at which he engag'd every Year to offer Sacrifice, Montium cuftos, nemorumque Virgo, Imminens ville tue pinus efte, Quam per exactes ero letus annes. Verris obliquum meditantis ichum Sanguine denem. Lib. 3. od 22.

ARCAS, the Son of Juniter, and Califfo the Daughter of Lycaon King of Arcadia with whom Jupiter fell in love. June, to be reveng'd of her Rival, chang'd her into a Bear, which Dians shot dead with her Arrows in complaifance to June. Paulanias in his Arcadica, fays that she was then with Child of Areas, and that Jupiter fent Mercury to fave the Infant alive, and plac'd the Mother in the number of the Stars under the Name of Ursa major, i. e. the great Bear. When Areas grew up to be a great Boy, he was presented by some Hunters to Lycam his Grandfather, who yet did not know him : But it hap'ned that Jupiter came one day to fee Lycaen, and this King having a mind to try whether he was truly a God or no. caus'd Areas to be kill'd and cut into morfels, and fo ferv'd up as Meat for Jupiter : But he immediatly punish'd his cruelty, by changing him into a Wolf, and Areas into the little Bear, Urla minor, Thefe Two Bears, favs Viruvius, are plac'd in the Artic Circle, fo that their Backs touch one another, having their Bellies turn'd a contrary way, one to one fide, and the other to the other fide. The litt'e Bear is call'd by the Grecians Cynolura, and the great one Helice: Their Heads are opposite to one another, and their Tails also remove from one another for each Head as it goes forward on each fide is to the right of each Tail.

ARCADES, the Arcadians, who are fuch Sots, fays I ucian, as to believe that they were Born before the Moon, and for that reafon would never receive Aftrology. Their King Pelasgus first taught them the use of Acorns, for before his time they liv'd only upon Herbs and Roots : But Areas the Son of Jupiter and Califle , according to Vigenere , upon the Pictures of Philoftratus, first thew'd them the Art of tilling the Ground, of fowing Corn and making Bread, with which they afterwards maintain'd themselves, and forfook their Acorns: This he learn'd from Triptalemus the Son of Ceres, and the Country where they dwelt, which was formerly call'd Pelafgia, was after wards call'd Arcadia. Among other Deities they worship'd Pan and Diana as Virgil fays, Pan Deus Arcadia. They facrific'd Men to Jupiter Lycianus, according to the relation of Pliny. Ariftotle tells us Book 4th. of his Mescors, that the Wine of this Country being put into the Skin of a Hegoat, and plac'd near the fire, calcines itself. and is reduc'd to a Salt.

ARCHAGATHUS, the Son of Lifaniar, was the first Physician who came from Pelapamelus to Rome, under the Confulship of Lucius Amilius, and Marcus Livius, in the Year of Rome DXXXV. Caffine Hemina, an ancient Writer, fays that the Freedom of a Citizen was given him, and a Shop was purchas'd for him at the expence of the Publick, in the Crofs Street of Acilius. 'Tis faid alio, that the Epithet of Healer of Wounds was given him. and that at first he met with a wondrous good Reception : but that within a little while after, when he was oblig'd to cut and burn fome Members of the Body, for these unmerciful Operations they gave him the Nickname of a Haneman, and were much diffeusted at Rome with Medicine and Physicians. at least with that part of it which is call'd ARCHEMORUS, the Son of Lycan. according to Guichard, or of Lycurgus King of Thracia or Nemas, according to others, was kill'd by a Serpent, and after this manner. " The Argives going with their King Adrastus to the "War of Thebes in favour of Polynice, were "extremely diffressed with thirst, and the " Nurse of the young Prince, call'd Hypsiphile, " whom they met, went along with him to " fhew them where they might have Water; "but fearing to lay the Infant down upon "the ground, because of the Prohibition of "the Oracle, she laid it upon a smallage "Plant, and thither a Serpent came and " choak'd it. Adraftus and the other Grecians " ran to the Place, and found the Serpent " Still fucking the Blood of the Child, where-"upon they kill'd it : And to comfort the " King for this loss, they appointed the fo-"lemn Games, cali'd Nemaan, to be celebra-"ted every Fifth Year, at which the Conquerors "the Judges that presided over them were "clad in Mourning. Clemens Alexandrinus informs us, that a Funeral Oration in honour of him was also repeated at them. ARCHIGALLUS, the High Prieft of Cybele Mother of the Gods, who was wont to cut and gash himself, as the other Priests of that Goddess did, who were call'd Galli Cybeles. ARCHIMAGIRUS, degudzenco, the Mafter Cook.

ARCHIMEDES, of Syracule, a most skilful Mathematician, who by his Engines defeated all the Attacks of Marcellus at the Siege of Syracuse, and burnt also the Gallies of the Romans that were there. The Invention of the Cochlea, or Water-skrew, is commonly attributed to him, which is call'd the Mechanical Power of Archimedes, although Vitruvius does not make him the Inventor of it. Diederus Siculus, who liv'd near the time of Vitruvisus, atcribes the Invention of it to him. But as to the famous use which he fays was made of this Machine, to make Lgypt habitable, by draining the lower grounds which had formerly been overflowd with Water, it may be doubted whether it is not much ancienter than Archimedes. Cicero glories of discovering the Sepulcher of Archimeder at Syracufe, without the Gate Acragana cover'd all over with Brambles and Thorns which grew in that place : He fays, that he knew it by observing a Cylinder and a Sphere carv'd upon the Stone. ARCHIMIMUS, ἀρχιμῖμΘ·, the chief Buffeen, or an extraordinary Mimick, who imitates the Gate, Gesture, and Words of any Person dead or alive.

ARCHITECTONICE, apprelowww. and ARCHITECTURA, the Art or Science of Building. Architecture is divided into Civil and Military: Civil Architecture teaches to make any Buildings whether publick or private, facred or profane : Military Architecture teaches to fortifie Cities, Paffes, and Sea-ports. Architecture, fays Vitruvius, is a Science, which should be accompanied with great variety of Studies, and requires a vast compass of Learning; for by this means it must judge of all the Works of other Arrs: In effect Architecture, or the art of Building comprehends all Sciences, and therefore the Greeks gave it a Name, which fignifies a fuperiority, or fuperintendence over all the rest; and when Cicero would give an Example of a Science that is of a vaft extent, he instances in Architecture.

This Art, like all the rest, had but weak

" querors were crown'd with smallage, and I and imperfest beginnings, and was not perfected till after long use and experience. At first Houses were made only for necessity; and because in the first Ages Men often chang'd their Habitations, they did not trouble themselves to make their Houses either beautiful or lafting. But when in process of time, every one endeavour'd to fettle in fome particular Country, then Men began to build their Houses, more solid and strong that they might be able to hold out against the injuries of time: At last, when Luxury was spread among the most rich and powerful Nations, then they began to mind the Beauty and magnificence of their Buildings and having observ'd what contributed most either to the Strength or Beauty of them, they fet down Rules about them, and fo fram'd the Art of Building well, which is call'd Architecture, as those who are perfect Masters of this Art are call'd Architests. The necessity of making feveral forts of Buildings first induc'd the Workmen to settle different Proportions, and from these different Proportions they compos'd different Orders of Architecture. The Orders which the Ancients established at several times and upon divers accidents are the Tulcan, the Deric, the ionic, the Corinthian, and the Composite. That which forms each of these different Orders, is the Column with its base and Capital, and the Entablature, i.e. the Architrave. the Frise and Cornish: for these are the only parts which in Buildings conftitute that which is call'd an Order, and each Order has its own peculiar measures. Vitravita is the most ancient of all the Architects whose Writings we have; he liv'd in the time of Julius Cefar and Augustia, and had view'd the stately Edifices which were then in Greece and Italy. Several learned Men have also written many excellent Volumes of Architecture, as Fuffitius, Varro, Septimius and Gellus; and Cof-Julius a Roman Citizen was fent for by King Antiochus, to finish the Temple of Jupiter Olympiss in the City of Athens.

The Original of the Tuscan Order was in Tuscany, one of the most considerable parts of Italy, whose Name it still keeps. Of all the Orders this is the most plain and least ornamental: 'Twas feldom us'd, fave only for fome Country Building where there is no need of any Order but one, or elfe for fome great Edifice, as an Amphitheatre, and fuch like other Buildings. The Tulcan Column is the only thing that recommends this Order. The Doric Order was invented by the Dorians a People of Grecce, and has Columns which stand by themselves, and are more ornamental than the former. The Ionic Order has its Name from tonis a Province of Mis, whose Columns are commonly fluxed with Twenty four Gutters: But there are fome which are i not thus farrow'd and hollow'd, but only tothe third part from the bottom of the Co-Jumn ; and that third part has its Gutters fill'd with little Rods, or round Barroons according to the different height of the Column which in the upper part is channell'd and hollow'd into Groves, and is altogether

The Carinthian Order was invented at Corinth, it observes the same measures with the Imic, and the greatest difference between them

is in their Capitals.

The Compesite was added to the other Orders by the Romans, who plac'd it above the Corimbian, to flow, as fome Authors fav, that they were Lords over all other Nations; and this was not invented till after Angulius had given Peace to the whole World. Tis made up of the Imic and Covinthian, but yet is more ornamental than the Corinthian.

Besides these Five Orders, there are some Authors who add ver Two more, viz. the Order of the Gargatides, and the Perfit Order. The former is nothing but the Imic Order, from which it differs only in this, that instead of Columns there are Figures of Women which support the Entablature. Pierawise attributes the Origine of this Order to the Ruine of the Inhabitants of Carva, a City of Peloponnelus. He fays, " That thefe People "having joyn'd with the Persions to make "War upon their own Nation, the Greciens " routed the Perliant, and obtain'd an entire "Victory over them; after which they be-" fieg d the Inhabitants of Carya, and having "taken their City by force of Arms they " reduc'd it to Alhes, and put all the Men " in it to the Sword : As for the Women and "Virgins they carried them away captive, " but to perpetuate the Marks of their Crime " to Posterity, they represented afterwards " the Figure of these miserable Captives in " the publick Edifices which they built, where " by making them ferve inftead of Columns, "they appear'd to be loaded with a heavy " burden, which was, as it were the Punish-" ment they had deferv'd for the Crime of "their Husbands. The Perfic Order had its rife from an Accident like this : For Paulamias having defeated the Persians, the Lacedemonians, as a Mark of their Victory, erected Trophees of the Arms of their Enemies. whom they represented afterwards under the Figure of Slaves, Supporting the Entablatures of their Houses. From these Two Examples divers kinds of Figures were afterwards made nifies, and Support the Corbels and Reselves: There are still some ancient soothers to be feen near atheu, of these Figures of Women which carry Panniers on their Head, and fineply the room of the Cargatides. There are alto Figures of Men, who are commonly call'd Atlantes, according to Vitratius, the' the Romans call'd them Telamones. The Gracks had fome reason to call them Atlantes, from Atlan whom the Poets feign'd to bear up the Heavens, but it does not appear why the dur in his Dictionary upon Virmoiar, fave. that 'tis probable, he who first us'd this Word to fignifie thefe Statues which bear forme burden, wrote not Telemenes, but Thisseres, which Greek Word fignifies, these that are milerable and labour bard : which exactly agrees to these fort of Figures, which support Cornishes or Corbels, and which we commonly fee in the Pillars of our ancient Temples, under the Images of some Saints, or some great Persons.

ARCHITECTURE confifts of Three Parts : The first treats of the Building of publick and private Edifices; the fecond is about the Art of Dialling, which treats of the Course of the Stars, and the way of making several forts of Dials; the third is about the Engines which are made use of for Architecture and for War.

ARCHITECTUS, an Architett: He ought, favs Vitruvia, to be skill'd in Writing and Deligning, to be instructed in Goometry, and to have some knowledge of Opticks: He ought to have learn'd Arithme. rick, and to be well vers'd in History, to have studied Philosophy very well, and to have some insight in the Musick, Laws, Aftronomy, and Phyfick.

He should be well skill'd in Designing. that he may the more eafily perform all the Works he has projected according to the Draughts he hath made of them : Geometry is also a great help to him., especially to teach him how to make use of the Rule and Compais, how to lay out things by the Line. and do every thing by the Rule and Plummet : Opticks ferve to teach him how to admit the Light, and to make Windows according to the Situation of the Heavens : Arithmetick instructs him how to calculate the Charges which his Work amounts to. Hiflory furnishes him with matter for the greatell part of the Ornaments in Architecture. of which he should be able to give a rational account. Philosophy is also necessary to make a perfect Architect, I mean that part of Philosophy which treats of things Natural, which use of in Architecture to bear up the Cor- in Greek is call'd Physieler. As for Musick. he should be a perfect Master of it, that he may know how to Order the braten Pipes, which are lodg'd under the Stairs of Theatres, to that the Voice of the Comedians may firike the Ears of the Auditors, with more or less force, cleannels and (weetnels,

ARC

An Architect ought also to be skill'd in the Laws and Customs of places that he may know how to make partition Walls, Spouts, Roofs, and Common-theres; how to order the Lights of Houses, the Drains for Water, and feveral other things of that nature. Aftronomy is also referred to him for making of Sun-dials, by teaching him to know the East. West, South and North, the Equinoxes and Soffices, e.c. He ought to be knowing in Phytick, to understand the Climates and Temperament of the Air, which is wholfome and which Infectious; also the Nature of Waters. For without confidering thefe things, he cannot build an healthful Habitation. If fo much knowledge is necessary to make a complete Architect, 'tis to be fear'd there are but few perfect Mafters of that Art.

ARCHON, the chief Magistrate of Athene: The Nine Magistrates who took upon them the Government of that City. after the Death of Codres who was the last King of it were also call'd so : At first they were chosen to be perpetual Governors; but in process of time their Office was limited to Ten Years, and at last reduced to one. This Republick was govern'd by Nine Archenter, or thief Magistrates, Six whereof were call'd, The most bet a. i. e. Lagiflaturs; the other Three were, Barradic, the King; Honor XO, the General, and the Archen, by way of eminence fo call'd, as being fuperior to all the reft. They decided with fovereign Authority all religious causes and matters of State : They were chosen by lot, and afterwards examin'd and approv'd by the People in their Affemblies. This Name was also given to the Chief Prefident, call'd Prytanis, who prefided in the Courts of the Fifty Judges, taken out of the Five Hundred, who judg'd by turns every Month the Affairs of private Persons.

ARCTOPHYLAX, a Conftellation, which is properly nam'd, the director of the Bear, but is otherwise call'd Bostes.

ARCTOS, the Bier, a Constellation. call'd by the Greeks Arthu and Helice, which is fituated in the North, having its directors mear it, which is not far from Virgo.

ARCTURUS, is a Star of that Con-Rellation which is properly call'd Artiophylax: This Word fignifies the Tail of the Bear, becanfe it is very near it. It rifes on the first day of September, and fets on the 13th. day of May; and never appears but when it brings fome Hail or Storm. The Poets feign'd that it refides amongst Men in the Day-time, at a for upon their Actions, and afterwards gives an Account to Justier of their perfidious and mainst dealings in Trade, or in Courts of Iuflice: This is the meaning of Plantar in thele Verfes of the Prelogue to his Rudens, &cc. - Nomen Arthuro est mibi

Notin fum in cale clarus atque inter deet, Inter mortales ambuloque interdius ---Hominum qui facta, mores, pietatem & fidem

Nescamus -Qui fallas lites falfis teftimeniis Petunt, quique in Jure abjurent peruniam. Estum referingus Nomina exforipta ad Jouem.

The Poets made him the Son of Jupiter and Califie, and others faid he was the Son Lycaen. Arcula aves, Birds which gave bad emens either by their flying, or their manner of eating. Because they hindred Men from undertaking any Bufineis, they were thus nam'd, Aroula aves, quia arcebant ne quid fieres.

ARCUS, a Ben. The Bow and Arrows were the first Arms which Men made use of, as may appear from the 21th. Chapt. of Gonefis, where it is faid of Ismael, that he was an expert Archer; and from the 27th. Chap, where If our commanded his Son Efau to take his Arms, i.e. his Bow and Arrows and go a hunting. Pliny in B. 7. Chap. 56. attributes the Invention of Bow and Arrows to Souther the Son of Juniter, from whom the Seythians, who are now the Tantars, took their Name, who were very dextrous in drawing the Bow : Plutarch also in his Banquet of the Seven Wife Men, ascribes to them the Bow, and to the Greeks the Invention of ftringed and wind Musick. But the Authority of Pliny is of no value, wherein he differs from the holy Scripture, which doubtless he never had any knowledge of.

Arcus Galeffis, the Rainbow which appears in the Glouds a natural Meteor; but after the Deluge it was appointed to be a Sign of the Covenant which God made with Mab, and of the Promise he gave that he would never again drown the World. The Poets feign'd that the Rainbow, or Iris, attended June, and carried her Orders from all parts, as Meroury did those of Jupiter. See this Fable more at large under the Word Iris.

Arcus, a Triumphal Arch, which was erested to the Emperors, and other great Men in ancient times, in honour of them for their brave Actions: feveral of them were erected at Rome; but the most ancient was that of Titus, which was very ingeniously and magnificently built : On one fide of it, there was the Triumphal Chariot of a Prince, with a Statue of Victory behind him, which feem'd . to hold out a Crown to him; the Ark of the Old Testament and the bundles of Rods were carried before him : On the other fide was the rest of the Triumphal Pomp, as the Two Tables of the Decalogue, the Tables of Gold, the Veffels of Solomon's Temple, and the golden Candlestick which had Seven Bran-

The Senate and People of Rome erected likewise a Triumphal Arch to Septimius Severus, at the foot of the Capitol, after the Victory he obtain'd over the Parthians, Armenians and Arabians. Victories were there represented with great Wings, holding in their hands Trophies and Crowns, with this Inferiotion.

Imp. Cal. Lucio Septimio M. Eil. Severo. l'io pertinaci. Aug. Patri Patrie Parthico Arabico. Et Parthico Adiabenico, Pontif. Maximo. Tribunic.poteft. Xl. Imp. XI. Coff. III. Procoff. Et Imp. C.ef. M. Aurelio. L. Fil. Antonino. Aug. Pio. Felici. Tribunic. poteft. VI. Cof. Procof. P. P. optimis fortiffimifq; Principibus. Ob Rempublicam restitutam, Imperiumque Populi Romani propagatum, insignibus virtutibus.

> Domi. Florifaue S. P. 2. R.

There are fill many other Triumphal Arthes to be feen at Rome as that of Titus and Veloasian, that of Septimius Severus, that of Galienus which was built after a very rude manner, being of the Deric Order with one Arch only, which has this Inscription upon the Frize.

Galieno Clementiffimo Principi, Cujus invicta Virtus fold pietare Superata eft M. Aurelius Victor dedicatifimus Numini Majestatiq; eins.

There is also an Arch of Marcus Aurelius, and of Verus, and of Gordianus junior, and lastly, one of Constantine, which the Senate erected to him for the Victory he obtain'd against Maxentius at the Pons Milvius, in the Suburbs of Rome. This last was all of Martle, and of the Corinthian Order, and had Eight great Columns and Three Avenues. Un one of its fides there is this Inscription. Imp. Caf. Il. Conftantine Maxime.

P. F. Augusto S. P. Q. R. Qued instinctu divinitatie mentis magnitudine cum exercitu suo, tam de tyranno quam de omni factione uno ten pere justis Remoublicam ultus elt armis.

Arcum triumphis insignem dicabit. On the other fide near the Riting Sun were M. atten these words, Vota X, and on the left hand Votis XX. On the Roof of the Arch about the middle on one fide were thefe words Liberatori Urbie, and on the other Fundatori quietis. Above the Capitals of each Column were represented in emboss'd work the most eminent Captives, whose Bodies were of changeable Marble, and their Hands and Feet of white Marble of the Isle of Pares. In the Frize of the little Arches was the Statue of Confiantine, holding in his Hand a Scrowl, which he feems to throw among the People for a Largels. Sucremius calls thefe Scrowls Teffers & Miffillia, and alfo Teffera Nummaria. For thefe Scrowls contain'd certain Summs of Money, and those who catch'd them were to demand them at the Exchequer, or the Lot wherewith they were mark'd, as is done in other Lotteries.

AREMULUS or Remus Sylvius, the Son of Agrippa Sylvins XII. King of the Latines, who was killed by a Thunderbolt after he had reigned 19 Years.

ARENA the bottom and middle of the Amphitheatre, fo called, because that Place was covered with Sand, for concealing, from the View of People, the Blood of the Gladiators that was spilt there at the Combares, which was done either by removing the Sand which was stained with Blood, or laying some fresh upon it.

AREOPAGUS, a famous Place in the City of Athens, fo called from the Temple of Mars, the Greek Word #126. fignifies a Burrough, and Town, and "Apus, fignifies Mars. There the first Grecians passed a favourable Sentence on Mars, who was accused by Neptune for killing his Son Hallirrothius, for violating the Chaftity of his Daughter Alcippe.

Varre, as St. Auftin tells us, B. 18. Ch. 10. of the City of God, will not allow the Areapagus, s.e. she Village of Mars to be fo called. because Mars, whom the Greeks called "Aene being accused of Homicide before 12 Gods, who judg'd him in this Village, was there acquitted, though he had but Six Votes for him, according to the common custom of that Place, which was always favourable to the accused. He rejects therefore this common Opinion, and endeavours to find out another Original of this Name, in some old obsolete Histories upon pretence that it is a reproach to the Deities to attribute to them Quarrels, and Lawfuits : And he maintains that the History of Mars is no less Fabulous than that of the three Goddeffes June, Minerus and Venus, who contefted before Paris for the Golden Apple the Prize of the most beautiful.

Arcopagita, the Arcopagites, the Judges of Athen, who decided all Caufes, as well publick as private in the Arespages, with a Sovereign Authority, and whose Decisions were esteem'd impartial. They heard Caufes only in the night time, and did not allow the Advocates to use the Ornaments of Rheterick in defending their Clients.

ARG.

ARETHUSA, the Daughter of Neress, and Doris, the Companion of Diana. with whom Alpheus of Arcadia, was in Love; but Arethusa, toefhun his Courtship, fled into Sicily to an Isle near Syracule, where the was chang'd into a Fountain, and her Lover into a River, whose Water runs so swiftly that it passes through several Rivers, and even thro' the Sea itself, without mingling with them, until it comes to the Fountain of Arethula, and then it unites fo with that, that they are no longer two, but one Channel. See Alpheus. Arethusa is a Fountain of Greece, which, as the Poets feign'd, was belov'd by the River Alshear, who purfues it even in the fubrerraneous Channels through which it fled away, as far as Sicily, where Diana receiv'd it in the little Isle Ortygia. Strabe takes a great deal of pains to refute this Fable, and has prov'd that the River Alpheur discharg'd itself into the Sea like other Rivers. 'Tis alledg'd that such things are found in the Bason of Arethusa, as were thrown, or had fallen into the River Alphous, which feems to be a proof of the fubterraneous Communication between them. Bockart has given a very ingenious explication of this Fable: For he fays, that the Arethusa is a Phanician Word, that Arith in Spriat fignifies a Brook, that 'tis probable the Phenicians call'd this Fountain Hen-Alphe, i. c. The Fountain of Willows, or the Fountain for Ships, because it held a very great quantity of Water, and its Banks were all cover'd with Willows, which occasion'd the Ships to put in there, and take in fresh Water. Ovid calls this Fountain Alpheias in his Metamorphofes. The Greeks after this having discover'd this Fountain to contain such abundance of Waters, that, as Cicero describes it, 'tis fons aque dulcis incredibili magnitudine. and understanding that it was call'd not only Arethufa, but Alpheias, hereupon feign'd that it receiv'd its Waters from the River Alpkeus in Greece by fubterraneous passages, ARGEI, or Argea, in the Neuter Gender ; were certain Places at Rome consecrated by Nums in memory of some Greek Princes who were buried there. Every Year a Sacrifice was offer'd to them on the 15th. of May, and the Vestal Virgins threw into the Tiber Thirty Images made of Rusbes which were call'd Argei, from off the Pons Sublicius at Rome. The Elaminica, or Priestels of June, was then clad in Mourning, with her Hair difshevell'd, in a careless dress, without any Ornament, in a word, in a pensive and forrowful filence, as we learn from Aulus Gellius, Flaminica cum eat ad Argeos, neque caput comito. neque capillum depettito : | Plutarch in his 32d. Roman Queftion, fays, that the Inhabitants of Latium had fo inveterate an hatred against the Grecians whom they call'd Argiva, that they never forgot to throw them into the Tiber from the top of the Pons Sublicius, till Hercules coming to Reme diffuaded them from this Violence : And yet, to fatiffie in some measure their harred, they dress'd up every Year Thirty Men of straw after the Greek fashion, and caus'd them to be thrown headlong from the top of this Bridge into the Tiber, by the Vestal Virgins and the Chief Priests, after they had offer'd Sacrifice to the Manes of the Greeks, whom they had formerly put to death.

Fabius Pillor, about the end of his Book. fays that this word comes from one Argur, who was the Hoft of Evander, and came with Hercules to dwell at Rome in ancient times when it was called Saturnina, as being under, the Rule of Saturn, and that the Plain which is at the bottom of the 7 Hills was called the Argean Field. (Subsidens Coptem collibus campus Argeus, dittus eft ab Argo Evandri bofpite, & ccmitibus Argivi Herculis, qui ad Evandrum venerunt & in Saturnia Jubsederunt.

Argentum, Silver, a Metal dug out of the Bowels of the Earth, which holds the 2d. rank among Metals.

Agentum, fignifies also Money which is us'd in Trade and Commerce. It has in all times been us'd fomewhere, though not in all Nations. Jefephus in B. ift. of his Jewijh Antiquities fays, that Cain amass'd together great Riches, which he had extorted aufar 3 7 olkor arthrau Muchtan abrangie if Blag: And 'ris observ'd in the 20th. Chap. of Genesis, that Abimelech King of Gerar, made a Present to Abraham of a Thousand Pieces of Silver. Ecce mille argentees dedi fratri suo. Plutarch in the Life of Thefew, the 10th. King of Athens, fays, that he stamp'd Pieces of Silver of the Weight of two Drams. Servius Tullus was the first King who stamp'd Money of Copper at Rome, but pieces of Silver begun first to be coined in the Year 483. to the value of a Denarius, i. e. 10 Affes. [which in English Money is 7 Pence half penny.]

Argentei, or Sieli, are the fame thing, as may easily be proved by the Septuagints Translation of the Bible, and by the Latin . Version of St. Jerom. in the 2d. B. of Kings. ch. 18. Ego dediffem tibi, fays Joab, decem argenti ficles, and the other answers, fi appenderes in ma-.

manibus meis mille argentees. This ficle of Silver was of the value of 2 Shillings att Six Pence in our Money.

ARGILETUW, a long Street in the City of Rome over against the Mens Palatinus, which reach'd from the end of the Velabrane, or Tufcan Street, as far as the Theatre of Marcellus to the Herb-Market. It was fo called from one Argus who a had mind to kill Evander, but he himfelf was flain and buried there. Varre thinks that this Place was alfo call'd by this Name, from Argilla, or fat Earth, whereof there is a great quantity in that Place.

ARGO NAVIS, the Ship of the Argenauts, in which Jajon fail'd to Colches, to fetch the Golden Fleece. This Ship was built by Argus, with the help of Miservs, of the Pine Trees in the Forest of Peless or Dedona. Phadres in the 4th. Book of his Fables, Fab. 6. speaks of it after the following manner. "I would to God that the Theffa-"lian Ax, had never cut down the high Pines " of the Forrest of Peleus, and that the sub-"til Argus, having a mind to go upon the "Waters a daring Voyage, expos'd to many " visible dangers of Death, had never fram'd " a Ship by the Art of Palles, which by ope-" ning the 1st. Entrance into the Sea, that "hitherto had continued inaccessible, has " been so fatal both to the Greeks and Bor-"barians. You will tell me doubtless, con-" rinues the same Author, that all this Pray-" er is impertinent, and founded upon a mi-" flake about the 1#. Ship, fince it is certain " that a long time before the Argmentes, " Mines overcame the Violence of the Reman " Sea. by covering it with a great Fleet, and " reveng'd the Death of his Son by a Punishment no less just than Exemplary.

ARGONAUT E, the Argmouts, a great number of Illustrious Greeks, who embark'd with Jajon to go and fetch the Golden Fleece, viz. Hercules, Thefen, Cafter and Pallux; Orpheus, Typhis, Lyneaus and some others. who arrived all fafe at Colches, after they had escap'd some Dangers.

AR GUS, the Son of Apis succeeded his Father in the Kingdom of the Argiver, and from him the Argives took their Name, for they were not so call'd before. It was under his Reign, that Greece ift. began to maliure the Ground, and fow Corn. Argus after his Death was honour'd as a God, and Temples, and Sacrifices were appointed for him which Honour had been given before him to one called Homogyrus, who was firnck dead with a Thunderbolt, andwas the iff who yok'd Oxen to draw. St. August. B. 3. Of the City of God, Chap. 6.

Argu, the Son of Action, a vigitat Prince and one of great Circumspection, to wi the Poets gave a hundred Eyes to denote his Vigilance. They also feign'd that June employ'd him to observe the Actions of Juniter her Husband, and to guard lethe Daughter of macus whom he lov'd. But Mercury killed this Argue by the order of Jupiter, after he had lulled him afleen with the found of his Pine. Jane to recompence the Faithfulnels of her Spy, chang'd him into a Peacock, which has as many golden Circles in his Tail, as ... gas had Eves.

Ariadne, the Daughter of Miner, King of Crete or Candia, by Pupphas. When Thelene was fent to Candia by the Athenians, to be devour'd by the Minoteure, the instructed him how to get out of the Labyrinth in which this Monster was emblos'd, by giving him a Clue of Thread, which fucceeded fo well that after he had killed the Monfter, he got out of the Labyrinth, though the escape was very difficult by reason of the many turnings and windings that were in it. After his Escape he forgat his Benefactress, and abanden'd her in the Ille of Chie or Maxes, where the married Bacabus, who plac'd the Crown she had then upon her Head amongst the ARICIA, a little of City Latium in Italy, which was built by Hippelieus the Son of Thefew, in Memory of his Wife, who had the fame Name, as Martial tells us, B.4. Her Name was also given to a Forest, wherein Diene concealed Hippolytus, after he was rais'd from the Dead by Efinlepius; as an acknowledgement for so great a Benefit he erected a Temple, to him whose Priests were to be fugitive Slaves. Hard by there was a Fountain facred to the Nymph Egeria, where King Nums, having learned Hydromancy, or the Art of Divination by Waters, boafted that he had frequent Convertation with that Nymph, that he might the more firmly establish his Empire, raile his own Repuration to a higher Pitch, and conciliate greater Authority to his Laws among the common People. Solims and Coffins Howing, think that the City of Aricia, was built by Archilecus the Sicilian, in the Year 405, from the building of Rome. It obtain'd the Priviledge of the Roman Freedom, and was at first a Municipal City, and afterwards a Roman Colony, as Floras tells us, Marias Anthon, Ariciam & Lavinium colonias devoltavis. It was the Place of the Nativity of Accia, the Mother of the Emperor Augustus.

ARIES, aRam a Warlike Engine us'd by the Ancients. It was a great Beam of Wood strengthned with Iron at the end.

which represented the Head of a Ram, wherewith the Ancients were to batter the Walls of Cities, there were Three forts of them, one was hang'd upon Ropes, another run upon Wheels, and a third fort was born up in the Arms of those who made use of it.

This Machine was first invented after this manner; when the Cartharinians laid Siege to Gades, they thought it convenient immediatly to demolish a Caftle which they had taken, but having no proper instruments for that purpose, they made use of a great Beam of Wood which many Men bore up in their Arms, and striking the top of the Walls with the end of this Beam by their redoubled blows, they made the uppermost Stones to come down, and fo descending lower from one Lay of Stones to another, they batter'd down the whole Fortification. After this a Carpenter of the City of Tyre, call'd Pephafmenu, taking the hint from the former Experiment, hang'd one Beam upon another like a Balance, which being thrust forward with great force, by many repeated blows he beat down the Wall of the City of Gades.

Cetras the Caeledonian was the 1ft. who made a Carr of Wood which moved upon Wheels. Upon the Carr he laid many pieces of Timber, whereof some slood upright, and others lay athwart, which he join'd together and made a Hut of them, in which he hung up a Ram, and then he cover'd it with Ox-hides to fecure those who play'd the Engine for battering down a Wall: And this Hutwas called a Snail to the Ram, because it moved but very flowly. Polydus the Theffalian at last perfected the Engine at the Siege which King Philip the Son of Amyntas laid to Bizantium. This is what Fitruvius tells us B. 10. Ch. 17. But Atheneus in his Book De Machinis, thinks that Geras the Carthaginian was the Inventor of this Engine: He fays alfo, that this Architect did not fling his Ram in a Hut, as Vitruvius explains it, but that it was carried by feveral Men who push'd it forward by the strength of their Arms.

ARIES a Ram, the first fign of the Zodiack. This was the Ram according to the Fable of the Golden Fleece, which carried Phryxus and Helle through the Air, and which Jupiter plac'd among the Signs of the Zediack. This Sign to this Day makes the Vernal Equinex; although Vitravius, tells us that when the Sun has reach'd the if part of the Sign Aries, it makes the Vernal Egninon. Columella gives the reason why the Solftices and Equinoxes among the Ancients were not at the entrance of the Signs, but at the 8sh Part :

low'd the Festivals which had been appionted about that time of the Year, at which. Endexus, Mete, and other ancient Aftronomies thought that the Points of the Equinoxes and Selflices happen'd, though they were at the beginning of the Signs, as Hipparcus shew'd afterwards.

Aries, the Ram with the golden Fleece, fo famous in fabulous Stories, Strabe relates the Expeditions of Phrysus or Jafon, and the Argonautes into Calches, for feizing and carrying off the great Treasure that was there. and chiefly the great Mass of Gold which was gather'd out of the Sand of a River by the straining it through a Ram's Fleece : and from thence he concludes that all which the Poets have faid of it, is nothing but a true History, either from the Nature of these Places, or from the successful Voyages which have been made thither at divers times.

Pliny gives a ffrange account of the Riches of Colches, and he forgets not the golden Fleece, because the best Gold is that which is gather'd out of Rivers by the help of Fleeces which gave occasion to the Fable.

Bochare thinks, that when the Poets ex. press the Riches of the King of Colches by golden Fleece, it may proceed from the Ama biguity of the word Gala, in its original Language which is Syriac, for it fignifies a Treaiure, and also a Fleece, and in allusion tthis, the Poets took occasion to Pun. Heo adds as a probable Conjecture that the two Bulls which guard the Treasure are nothing elfe but the two Walls which encompass the Castle wherein it is kept, because the Syriac word Sour fignifies a Bull and a Wall; and that the Dragon which guarded the Treafure, was nothing elfe but the Iron Gate of the Castle, because Nachas signifies both a Dragon and Iron.

ARION, a Native of Methymna in the Ifle of Lesbos, an excellent Player upon the Harp, and a Lyric Poet, growing rich, and being defirous to return into his own Country, fays Phadrus, that there he might thew great Riches. Having therefore embark'd in a Ship, the Seamen, a faithless and inhuman fort of People, having a mind to throw him into the Sea, that they might take his Riches to themselves, he pray'd them that before they did it, they would give him leave to make his own Funeral Oration, and to fing an Elegy to his Harp: After that when he threw himfelf into the Sea, with the most precious things that he had about him, the Dolphins which came running to the Ship, being charm'd by the sweetness of his Mufick faved him from drowning, and one of This came to pais, fays he, because then sot them carried him upon his Back as far as Tenara, whence he went to Periander, who being acquainted with his Story, caus'd all the Seamen to be hang'd in the Place where the Dolphin had fet him on Shore : For fometime after the adventure of the Dolphin, it happen'd that the Ship on which Arion had embark'd, was by a Storm cast upon the Coasts near Corinth, and then Periander caus'd all the Seamen to be brought before him; and having enquir'd of them what was become of Arion, they answer'd him that he was dead and they had buried him: Whereupon immediately he caus'd them to be carried away to a place near the Monument he had erected to the Dolphin, which died after it had carried Arim a shore : And there he made them fwear that Acion was dead, and then brought forth Arion before them, in the same kind of Habit which he had when he threw himfelf into the Sea to avoid their Fury, and he caus'd them all to be hang'd near the Monument of the Dolphin. The Gods also to recompence the Friendship of this Dolphin and eternize its Memory, plac'd it among the Stars.

ARI

A.RISTÆUS, the Son of Apollo and Cyrene, who was desperately in Love with Euridice the Wife of Orpheus : She died of the Bite of a Serpent, as she fled from the amorous pursuit of Ariffaus; the Nymphs enraged at this Misfortune killed all Arifleus's Bees, but he by the advice of his Mother confulted Proteus about this Loss, who order'd him to facrifice 4 Bulls and 4 Heifers to appeale the Ghoft of Euridice, which being done, immediately there came forth Swarms of Bees out of the Entrails of the flain Victims. 'Tis faid that he first invented the way of extracting Hony from the Wax-combs which the Bees make, and of making Oyl out of Olives, and of curdling Milk. He was plac'd among the Number of the Gods after his Death, and ador'd by the Shepherds.

The Éducation of Bachus was committed to Ariffaus, according to the Traditions of the Lybiums, which are related by Disdorus Siculas. The fame Author ellewhere gives us an Account, that Apile transported into Lybia a Crasian Virgin call'd Greene, and built there a City of her Name by whom he had a Son call'd driffaus; and caused him to be nurs'd up in a Wilderness by the Nymphs, who raught him the Culture and the Use of Olives, of Bees, and Milk-meats, as Burter, Choefe, e. which he in process of time communicated to Markind. After divers Voyages at length Ariffaus came into Sardinia and Siejs, and having pass'd over from thence in Sardinia, he was there intitized by Bachus to Marking.

into his Mysteries, who taught him many things useful for human Life. At last dristau died near Mount Hemin, and was there honour'd as a God, not only by the Thracians but also by the Gracians.

Herodatsi, relates a Story of Ariffans, in which Apollo is very much concerned. He was of Fracanaglas, where it was commonly thought that he was dead; but he appeared again at Cyzicum as one return'd from the dead: He disppeared yet once more, and 340 Years after he flowed himfelf again to the Metapamines in Italy, whom he affirmed to be the only Persons of all the Ensiens, whom Apollo had honour'd with his Prefence. enjoin'd them to erect a Statue to him in the Temple of Apollo, near that of Apollo himself. The Metapamines consulted the Oracle about it, which commanded them to obey him, and for they did.

ARISTANDER, a famous Diviner, who foretold a Victory to Alexander, having feen an Eagle fly round about him, Quint. Curt. B. 4. and 7.

ARISTARCHUS, a Grammarian of Samularacia, who was the Disciple of Arisfichams. He methodized the Verses of Hamp by the command of Pissiparacia the Trees of Alban, and rook the Liberty of rejecting some of them as did not please him. From hence came the Custom of calling any one by the name of Aristarchus, who is a critical and severe Censurer of other Men's Works. Alian says that he wrote more than a 100 Commentaries. He flourish d in the time of Pissiparas Philometer, to whose Son he was Pracecipic.

ARISTIDES, furnamed the Just. who was the Son of Lylimachus. He reftor'd Aristocracy, or the Government of the Grandees in Athens, and upon that account by the perswasion of Themistocles who maintain'd the Popular State, he was banish'd by Ostracifm. He maintain'd always an even and unimitable Temper of Mind, in Profperity as well as Adversity. The evil Treatment which he received from his Enemies, never made him in the least depart from the Rules of Justice, and he neither govern'd himfelf by Passion, nor by Prejudice. He had fo great a Love for Poverty, that when he died the Publick was obliged to Inter him, leaving nothing behind him. Lucius in his Description of Calumny, says, that as just as he was yet he conspir'd against Themistocles, being Jealous of his Glory; for the best Men have their Faults and their Paffions.

eijy, and having pass'd over from thence into Thracis, he was there initiated by Baschus, chee, who led an effeminate idle Life, in senfuel Pleafures and Feasting. He was very ingenious in the Art of Luxury, and was always maintain d at Alben, or the Court of the Kings of Sici, who efteem'd him highjb, because he underflood good eating, would dance after drinking, and knew exactly how to make the best Sauces and Ragoo's. He shew'd himself so excellent in this Art, that the Princes Cooks would come to take Orders from him, and he would not receive them unless he was in the humour, says La-

ARI

ARITHMETICA, Arithmetick, a Science which teaches the Art of accompting, and all the Powers and Properties of Numbers. The 4 first Rules of Arithmetick are Addition, Subtraction, Multiplication, and Division.

There was a Digital Arithmetick, which is more ancient as well as more Natural; for this way of reckoning by the Fingers feems to have been inflituted by Nature, which has given us this Expedient as more eafy than any of the reft. The Fingers are limited to 10. which is a myfterious Number, and reprefents any thing that is most perfect and compleat: Thus we plight our Truth to one another by joining our two right Hands together.

Ten is also composed of the a first Numbers. 1, 2, 3, 4. Which Visite commends at the beginning of his Timest; for these Numbers being joind together make the Number to. And when we arrive at that, we begin again at one, for 10 and 1 make 11. 10 and 2 make 12, and 50 forwards Piny rells us, that the Ancients reckon'd no further than to Those who in Progress of Time invented the Cypher, and the Arithmetical Figures which we now make use of, have given us no more than 10 of them. And the Pythagerams, after the Jewis Cabbalists, maintain that all Tens are full of Divine Mysteries, which gave occasion to the Institution of Tenths as due to God, by which we pay him Allegiance and Hennage for all the Fruits which the Ground produces by his Benediction.

Befides this digital Arithmetick is very ancient, Nearchui in a Greek Epigram tells us of an old Man, who begun again to reckon his Years upon his left Hand. St. Jerom informs us as to this matter, that the number of a 100 was carried on from the left Hand to the right, and was reckon'd upon the same Fingers, but not on the same hand; upon which account Juvonal speaking of the happy old Age of Nelfor, tells no, that he reckon'd hitherto the number of his Years upon his right.

Name erected a Statue to Janus, according to the Relation of Pliny, whose Fingers of its right Hand were so dispos'd as to fignifie the number 300, the Thumb and Foreinger standing out at the full length, while the other Three were bended towards the Palm of the Hand, and the Fingers of the left Hand signified 55, the Thumb and middle Finger being bended inwards, while the 3 other stood streight. Beds treats of the same thing in the 1st. Book Of the Nature of things, but after a different manner.

It will not be impertinent to our present Subject to relate a Discourse which Francis the 1st. had one Day at Dinner as it is set down in Vigenere.

A Discourse was begun in Praise of Auguflut, whose customit was to keep always in his Chamber two great Registers, one in which were entred the Receipts; and the other, in which were the Expences of fo vaft an Empire. " As to my felf, faid the King, I have likewife 2 Registers which I never part with "Night nor Day, viz. my 2 Hands, whereof the Left represents to me my Receipts : " for the Thumb, which is the strongest of "all the Fingers, fignifies my Demains, which is also the most solid and lawful Revenue that a good Prince can have; the " Fore-finger fignifies my Aids and Subfidies, " the middle Finger, which is the longest, de-" notes the Taxes, the Finger next to it, the cafual Forfeitures ; and lally, the little Finger, the Salt and Excise. The right Hand represents to me my Expence in general. "the Thumb fignifies the Maintenance of my " House, the Salaries of my Menial Servants, the great and little Equeries, and the Trea-" fury, the fore Finger tignifies the Fund referved for the Necessities of the State, the middle Finger, a Fund for the Armies by "Land; the Ring Finger, or the 4th. the " Payment of all the Officers of the King-" dom, and particularly of the Judges in the " Courts of Justice, which I ought to admi-" nifter Gratis to my Subjects, and the little " Finger a Fund for the Armies by Sea.

The Romans mark'd their numbers by Letters, which they disposed after this manner.

3, 1711	iciracy unp	neu airer ruis manner.
I	. 1	One
5	v	Five
10	Х	Ten
10	L	Fifty
100	C	a Hundred
500	CI	Five Hundred.
1000	CID	a Thousand
5000	135	Five Thousand
0000	CCIOO	Ten Thousand
0000	IOOO	Fifty Thousand
0000	CCCIDDO	a Hundred Thoufand
N :		The

These are the Figures of the Riman Num- I from one to five, and then from Pive to bers together with their fignification and value; for as Pliny observes the Ancients had no Number above a 100000, but when they reckon'd higher, they fer down this Number twice or thrice, from whence also comes the Custom of counting by these Phrases, Bis, ter, guater, quinquies, decies centena millia.

For the better understanding the Roman Numbers we must consider. 1st. That there are but & different Figures which are the & first. and that all the rest are compos'd of the I. and the C, yet so that the C, is always turn'd toward the I, whether it be before or after, as is eafy to be feen. 2dly. That when ever there is a Figure of less value before another which is of greater value, the former fignifies that you must take so much off from the latter : As IV. Four, XL. Forty, XC. Ninety. From hence it appears, that there is no Number which may not be express'd by the Five first Figures. 3dly. That in all these Numbers the Figures encrease gradually, 1st. By a quintuple Proportion, and then next by a double of the last before it : Thus the 2d. is 5 times as many as the 1st, and the 3d. is twice as many as the 2d. the 4th. is 5 times as much as the ad and the 5th, twice as much as the 4th, and fo of all the reft. 4thly. That the Figures begin always to multiply on the right fide, after such a manner that all the as which are put on that way are counted by Fives, as those which are on the other fide are counted by Tens: And fo we may easily find our all fores of Numbers how great loever they are. Thus when an Author of the last Age, in a Lift of the Roman Empire, had fet down the names of its Citizens, in the following Figures contrary to the Cufrom of the Ancients CCCCCC13000000-E)DODDOD. CCC1000. CCloo. taking the C next to the I on the left Hand for a 1000 or the first 3 which is on the right Hand for 500, and fo going on to the end by a decuple Progression in each Figure, on ; one or on the other fide, I perceive quickly that there are here in all, one Million, Five Handred Millions, a Hundred and Ten Thousand Cittaens: Which may be thus express'd in the draile Figures, 1500110000.

Now if we sellect upon this way of accompting, we may eafily understand, that it had its original only from hence, that Men having begun at aft, to reckon upon the Fingers, they counted till it came to five upon to that Number, they made of them both Ten, which is the double of the former: and this is the true Reason why the Progression in these Numbers is always

Ten.

All the Remen Figures themselves are also owing to the fame original. For what can be more natural than to fay, that the I is the fame thing as if a Man shew one by holding forth one Finger only, andthat the Figure V. is the same thing as if a Man catching the 3 middle Fingers, should hold forth only the little Finger and the Thumb, as containing the whole Hand, and that if you add to their the fame two Fingers of the other Hand join'd to either at the top, they will make as it were' two V's, whereof one will run across under the other, and so make an X, which signifies

Manutius shews also that all the other figures are deriv'd from the first, because an V is no. thing elfe but two I's join'd at the bottom. fo an L is nothing but two I's, whereof the one is perpendicular and the other horizontal, and if to thefe you add a third at the top [then they fignifie an Hundred by that Figure, in Lieu of which the Transcribers for the greater eafe made use of a C. If a fourth I be join'd to the other three fo as to make a square thus, I this Figure fignified five Hundred, in lieu of which they us'd afterwards, ift. the ID, and then the D. At last by doubling this Square, [][] they made their Thousand, instead of which the Copiers either for Ornament or better Convenience, began first to round the Figure. and make it with one froke of their Pen thus. 60 and after that, thus, e, from whence it comes to pais, that we often meet with an Eight, made horizontal, or a Greek Omega, to fignifie a 1000. But afterwards they mark'd it thus, CID. and then thus, CD. and at laft, because this has a great Affinity with the Gathic M. they us'd a timple M. to denote a. Thousand, as the C. a Hundred, and the D. for Five Handred. And from hence it comes to pass, that there are just Seven Letters which' are us'd for these fort of Numbers, viz. C. D. I. L. M. V. X. unless you will add to them the Q. alfo, which fome have us'd for five Hundred, according to Vellius. We must also observe there are some who maintain, that when there is a line - above the Figures, this makes them fland for fo many Thousands, as V, is Five Touland X. is Ten Thousand. I know not whether any examples of this can be found among the ancients; but as it is certain that the way of one Hand; and then having added the other accompting maintain'd by Priscian, who thought that for fignifying the Tens of Thoufands, we must place an X between C thus. CXD is altogether falle and contrary to Antiquity, and that his Error proceeds only from his Ignorance of the true original of this | between two C's thus CLO, or the like, way of reckoning, which he had a mind to accommodate to our prefent way, which encreases always by a decuple Progression. But if at any time there be found an L

The ARABICK.

1 One.

2 twe.

3 three.

4 foure.

5 five.

6 fix.

7 Seven.

B eight.

9 nine.

11 eleven.

12 twelve.

13 thirteen.

14 fourteen.

15 fifteen.

16 fixteen.

17 feventeen.

18 eighteen.

19 nineteen.

20 twenty.

40 thirty.

40 forty.

50 ffry.

60 jixty.

70 leventy.

So dighty.

oc ninety.

100 a hundred.

200 two hundred.

300 three bundred.

400 four bundred.

sco five bundred.

700 leven hundred.

800 eight hundred.

900 nine bundred.

1000 a thoufand.

2000 two thousand.

2000 three thouland.

ADDO four thouland.

soon five shoul and.

7000 leven ther fand.

8000 eight thou and.

0000 nine thouland.

The year 1606, one

thoufand fix hundred ninety fix.

10000 ten thousand.

6000 lin thoula d.

600 fix hundred.

to sen.

tis only a Fault of the Transcribers, who finding in these Cases the I to be commonly bigger than the C, mistook it for an L.

GENERAL TABLE

Of Characters for Numbers.

		~ · ~ 1110-C130
GREE		R	OMAN.
d. or I	y . ,	1	Unum.
β'. II Š		11	duo.
y III ne	ís	III	tria.
. HII 4	waes :	IV	quatuor.
ы п/	16	V	quinque.
у. пт		ÝΙ	fex.
	2	VII	feptem.
4. 11111 2.	71)	vi i i	octo.
o'. niii in		1 X	novent.
	106	ix a	decem.
	Are	χı	accem.
	Sug	χiι	undecem
	arellere.	XIII	duodecen
J. Allii. n			tredecim.
		XIV	quatuorde
	rrinai dena	χV	quindecin
	લ્થ કે લ્ લ	XVI	fexdecim.
A A DITT	angisting.	XVII	feptemde
O ATTITUE	winding.	XVIII	octodecim
	eaxaiding.	XIX	novemded
	ag:	XX	viginti.
λ. ΔΔΔ πο	AKOPTA	X X X.	triginta.
u. 4144 70		X L	quadragin
y'. [Δ] 201	THEOTIE	L	guinguagi
[A] A (C)	Kep] z	LX	fexaginta.
	beinxerla	LXX	feptuagint
وه ددد ادا م	Soixool z	LXXX	octoginta.
4. 17/7777	eváxovla	ХC	nonaginta
H in	יתיי	C	Centum.
у. нн ла у. ннн ма	KOGIG.	C C ·	ducenta.
7'- HHH per	a Kó gi da	ččc	trecenta.
ч нини 716	na caniala	CCCC	quadringe
o ini r	7 70 26 MA.	D, er, 13	quingenta
X HH E	z zásia.	D'C', 13	fexcenta.
4. HHH 62	dries	DCC	feptingent
. H ННН си	TH YACLO	DCCC	octingent
Э. H Нинн ы	sta viera	DCCCC	noningen
φ. X 2/	λ14	M, or, CIO.	mille.
¢ Χ χί β, ΧΧ Α΄	MAIR	M M.	bis mille.
	243.00	34 34 34
	Leanidiying		ter mille.
	A STANCE	MAN WE WE	quater m
	THRISTA	CCI O, M V	quinquies
X X X	200	V I IVI	fexies mil
XXX in	anginia	VIIM	lepties mi
(X) X X X day	/= K194 \ (&)	A -T T T 1AV	octies mil
9. [X] XXXX 2.	שועולועים	IXM:	novies mi
, Μ, μα	ieua ~	XM. or CCIOO	decies m
nd the axis xex	resor Beano-	Annus (M DC	XC VI)
€1050	e de compresso e		fexcen

Unum. duo. tria. quatuor. quinque. eptem. άo. lovent. lecem. undecem. luodecem. redecim. luatuordecim. uindecim. exdecim. ptemdecim. ctodecim. ovemdecim. iginti. iginta. uadraginta. uinquaginta. xaginta. pruaginta. ctoginta. onaginta. entum. ucenta. recenta. uadringenta. : uingenta. excenta. ptingenta. ctingenta. oningenta. : nille. is mille. er mille. nuater mille. quinquies mille. exies mille. . epties mille. cties mille. ovies mille. lecies mille. :: (C VI) millefimus:

fexcentefimus no-

nagelimus fextus. ..

ARISTOTELES, the Son of Michemachus a Physician, and Phestia: He was very deformed; but he was one of the greatest Genius's of his Age. He studied 20 Years under Place the Philosopher, and was Praceptor to Alexander the Great, by whom he was ve-IV much eleem'd. He was the Author of the Sect of Philosophers, called Perspateticks : He died at 62 Years of Age, and some think that he threw himfelf into the Strairs of Eurippur, out of Vexation because he could not comprehend the Caufe of its Flux and Reflux He is call'd the Genius of Nature, and Plate nam'd him the Philosopher indeed. His Books lay a long while conceal'd at Athens, and were not transported to Reme, till after the taking of that City by Sylla; this Treasure was preferv'd and brought to Light by the means of Tyrannion the Grammarian, and Anaronicus the Rhodian. Lucian rails at him in his Dialogue of the Dead, and introduces Alexander speaking thus to Diogenes. "Why dost "thou weep poor Fool, fays Diogenes, did not " Arifiotle teach thee, that all this is but Va-"nity? Alexander answers him, what dost " thou fay, Diogenes, of him who was the ba-" fest of all my Flatterers ; pray do not force " me to publish his Faults, and to tell thee "how he hath abused my good Nature, and " the extreme Passion I had for Learning. "Sometimeshe cajol'd me for my Beauty, some-" times for my Riches, which he was so har-" dy as to rank in the Number of good things, " that he might neither be afhamed to ask nor "receive them. This is what I learn'd by "his Infractions. To take these things for " good which are not fo the Lofs of which "does now afflict me. The same Author tells " usalfo, that Ariffule, did only give a rude " Draught of the Ait of Parafites. His Do-Strine which is now in the Schools, has met with various Entertainment, fometimes good, and fomerimes bad : On this Subject the Reaflotelis Fortuna.

Arithmetica, see before Aristoteles.

Arms, Arms, which Men made use of, either for artacking others, or defending themselves. 'Tis certain that the Arms of the ancient Heroes, as well Desensue offensive, were of Copper or Brafs. This is what the Poet Lucatius tells us. "The first "Arms says this Poet, were Hands, Nails, "Teeth. Stones, and Sticks: Afterwards from invented Arms of Iron or Brass; but "those of Brass, were st. usd."

der may confult. Mr. de Lanney de varia Ari-

Arma amiqua manus, ungues, dennesq; fuere. Es Lapides, & item situarum frazmina, rami; Posseriatferri vis est artig; reperta. Sed prior eris erat quam ferri cognisus ujus, Lucr. 1. c. v. 1382.

Tubal-Cain, one of the Postericy of Cain. according to the Scripture, was the Mafter and Pather of the Smiths, and of all those who work'd in Iron and Steel, Tubal-Coin fuit Mallester & Paber in cuntia opera area & ferri. Gen. 4. 8, 22. Now this Tubal-Cain was the Vulcan of the Pagant, as Diederus Siculus tella us, [A Vulcano fabricationem eris, auri, ferri, argenti, & caterorum omnium qua ignis operationem rejiciunt inventam.] lib. 5. p. 341. Jose-phus fays that Moses was the first who arm'd any Troops with Iron, and that he gave them in Egypt the Buckler and the Head-piece. Plut arch relates in the Life of Theleus, that Cinon, the Son of Militades having a mind to carry the Bones of this Hero from the Ifle of Seyres to Athens, found the Point of a Lance which was of Brass, together with a Sword of the same Metal. 'Tis certain also from the former Paffage of Lucretius, that Arms of Iron and Steel were used among the Greeks and Remans, both for their Cavalry and In-

They divided their Infantry into those that were heavy arm'd, and those that were light arm'd, whom they call'd Velites, and who had caffing Weapons: Such were the Slingers who threw Stones, the Darters who cast the Javelin, and the Archers who shot with Bows; these had their Head covered with a Murion, carried a little sound Buckler upon their Arm, and a short dagger by their fide. Under the Emperors, Trajan, Adrian, and Antoninus Pius, thefe Velites, or Skirmithers wore a Corflet of Iron, or a Curiafs, adorn'd with Scales refembling Fishes, like that of the Archers: But the Slingers were clad in nothing but their usual Habit, having the lappet of their Coat tuck'd up to put Stones in it : The Archers, or fuch as drew the Bow, were armed with a Helmet upon their Head, and Armour adorn'd with Scales. having on their right fide a Quiver furnished with Arrows, on their left a Dagger, or Sword, holding a Bow in their Hand, with which they shot their Arrows.

As to fhe Souldiers which were heavy arm'd, their Head was guarded with a Cafquet or Helmet of Iron, which came down very low before, and behind defeended as far as their Shoulders: Their Body was arm'd with a Coat of Mail, tolgether with Knee-Pieces and Bracelets. They carried on their Arm a Shield 2 Foot broad, and 4 Foot long frengthened with an Iron Plate that went round about it: In the middle was an Iron-boß jurting out very ferviceable to keep off Blows [or glance of Darts and Stones.] They had alfo a Sword by their left Side, and a Dagger which cur with two edges. Befdes all this they were armed with a Dart, and two Spears a Foot long, having Iron Spikes at the top.

The Greeks were not fo heavy arm'd: they carried long Pikes, or Sariffa's [a peculiar fort of Spear which was used by the Macedowint which were Staves 18 Foot long, wherewith they forced their way across the Battalions of their Enemies. Die, in the life of Antoninus Caracalla the Son of Severus, refares that the Macedonian Phalanz [being a Four fquare Army confilting of 8000 Footmen fet in close Array] in the time of Alexander the Great, made use of a Salade or Headpiece made of the raw Hide of an Ox, and had their Body cover'd with a Jacker, or Coat of Mail, made of Flax or Hemp twifted into Cords, and 3 times doubled [which were called Thera:es trilices, from the number of Cords fix'd one upon another] Homer in the 3d. Book of his Hinds, arms thus the famous Paris : He fire put on his Greaves, or the Armour of his Legs; then he clothed himself with the Coat of Mail, tied his Sword by his Side, took his Shield, and armed himself with a Helmet adorn'd with Feathers of divers Colours. Now follow the Arms of the Roman Cavalry. A Horieman carried a Lance in his right Hand, and a Shield on his left (which was an ancient kind of offensive Weapon, made in the form of a light Buckler, which the Horse of the Houshold who fought with a Lance, in former times carried on their Arm) his Body was cover'd with a Coat of Mail (which is a piece of Armour made in the Form of a Shirt, and wrought over with many rings or little marks of Iron) which came down as low as his Knees: His Hands were cover'd with Gantlets (which were large Gloves of Iron for arming the Hard of a Horseman) and his Fingers covered with thin Plates of Iron, join'd together in the Fashien of Scales; and his Arms with Bracelets (a Piece of defensive Armour which cover'd the Arms) as also his Knees with Greaves (a kind of Boots, or Armour for the Legs) on his Head he wore a Morion with a Creft adorn'd with Plumes of Feathers and various Figures of Beafts-upon it. Their Horse were arm'd with a Coat of Mail and Plates of

The light Horfemen carried a Javelin, or Half-Pike in their right Hand (which Javelin was 5 Foot and a half long, and had a Head of Iron with three edges which was farp-pointed) and in their left Hand they held a great Shield, and wore a Calque upontheir Head.

There were also some Throwers of Darts which were light arm'd. They carried on their Back a Quiver full of Arrows; and had a Bow out of which they were to shoot them: They wore a Sword on their left Side, and some of them had a Dagger on the right side; their Head was arm'd with a Casquet, and their Legs with Greaves.

The ancient Names of the Greek and Roman. Arms and Weapons with their Explication.

A Slinger was one who threw Stones with a Sling. The Slingers were a part of the Roman Militia.

1. A Sling is an Instrument made up of two Strings, having a little Pouch like a Net in the middle for holding the Stones that are thrown out of it.

2. A Dart is a missive Weapon, made of Wood, that is arm'd with a sharp-pointed from at the end, which is thrown with the Hand.

3. A little Shield, or a kind of a round Buckler, wherewith the Infantry in former times was arm'd.

4. Pilum, The ancients called any Shaft of Wood armed with Iron by this Name, and fo all forts of Arrows and Darts which they let fly were called Pila

5. A Dagger is a large Ponyard, which anciently they us'd in fighting.

6. A Salade, is a flight covering for the Head, which the light Horsemen wore It differs from a Helmet in this, that it has no Cress, and is hardly any thing but a Weapon.

7. A Morion, is the Armour of a Souldier being a Pot which he wore upon his Head to defend it: It was used by Foot Soul-

8. A Curiass, is a defensive Armour made of a Place of Iron very well beaten, which covers the Body from the Neck down to the Waft, both before and behind.

9. Greaves, a kind of Boots or Armour for the Legs.

10. A Bracelet, a piece of defensive Armour which covers the Arm.

11. A Pavice, is a Piece of defensive Armour which the ancients wore in the Wars, it was the larget fort of Bucklers; whose two fides bended inwards, like the Roof of a House, or a shed of Boards for Souldiers; and so it differed from a Target.

12. A Target, in Latin, Pelis, is a Buckler us'd by the Remans, which was bended in the Form of a half Moon, and of an oblong Fi-

13. A Coat of Mail was a piece of Armour made in the Form of a Shirt, and wrought over with many little Rings of Iron.

14. A

14. A Jacket is a fhort Coat which the Cavalry in ancient times wore over their Armour and Curiaffes; it was made of Cotton or Silk ftirch'd between two light Stuffs ; and fometimes also of Cloth of Gold.

15. A Head-Piece, is a Piece of defentive Armour for covering the Head and Neck of a Cavalier, which is otherwise called a Hel-

The offensive Arms or Engines which the Romans made use of in attacking Places.

A Rhalestra, a great Engine for throwing of Darts; the Invention of it is attributed to the Phanicians. Veretins fays that in his time Scorpiones, which M. Perrault has translated Arbalefires were called Manubalifia, to diflinguish them from their great Balifie or Catapultæ which were not portable, after the same manner as our Harquebuffes and Piftols are dittinguished from Cannon.

2. Balifta, an Engine which the Ancients made use of for throwing Stones; it differ'd from the Catapulta in this, that the latter threw Darts, but both of them let fly after the fame manner. 3. Aries, the Ram, was a vast long Beam, frengthned at one end with a Head of Iron, which was hung on two Chains, wherewith they us'd anciently to batter the Walls of Cities. There were 3 forts of them, one was hang'd upon Ropes, another run upon Wheels, and a 1d. Sort was fuffain'd by the Arms of those who plaid it. When the Carthaginians befieg'd Gader, they judg'd it expedient fuddenly to demolish a Castle which had been taken, but wanting proper Instruments for that purpose, they made use of a Beam which feveral Men bore up with their Hands, who thrust forward the end of it with so great Violence against the top of the Wall, that by their redoubled Blows they beat down the uppermost Lays of Stone, and so descending from one Lay to another, they at last demotish'd the whole Fortification. After this a Carpenter of the City of Tyre, called Pephal-29-2007, taking the hint from this first Experiment, hang'd one Beam to another, like a Bahance, and by the force of the many great blows which the Beam gave while it was play'd, he batter'd down the Wall of the Ciry of Gades. Cetras the Chalcedonian was the first who made a Car of Wood which was driven upon Wheels, and upo u this Car he rear'd up many Posts standing upright, and Beams lying a-cross, whereof he made a Hur, and having hang'd a Ram in it, he cover'd it over:

the Engine for battering down the Wall-: Since that time this Hut was call'd a Tertoife to the Ram, because it advanc'd but very flowly. Such were the first Estays of this kind of Engine ; but Polydus the Treffalian improv'd them to the highest Perfection at the Siege which King Amyntas laid to Byzantium, who invented also many other forts of them. which might be made use of with very much eafe.

. Atheneus, in his Book of Machines, fays that Geras the Carthaginian was the Inventor of the basis of this Engine, and he adds, that this Architect did not hang the Ram up in it. as Vitravius explains it, but that it was born up by many Men who thrust it forward: He fays also that some others supposed it to run upon Wheels; besides, Turnebus had reason to think, that Vitravius took from Athenaus the greatest part of what he relates here of Warlike Engines, though Cafaubon holds that Athe. neus liv'd a long time after Vitruvius, and grounds his Opinion upon the relation of Trebellius Pollio, who fays that the Emperor Galienu caus'd many Cities to be fortified by Byzantine Architects, whereof one was called Chedamas, and the other, Athenaus. Voffius follows the Opinion of Turnebus, because Athe. naus's Book is dedicated to Marcellus, who liv'd before Vitravius.

4. Catapulta, a Warlike Engine, which the Ancients us'd for casting the larger fort of Darts and Spears upon their Enemies. Some hold that the Catapulta was invented by the Syrians.

5. Corvus Everfor, the demolishing Crow, which was also called the Crane. It does not appear by the Descriptions we find in the Ancients. of the Engine called the Crow, that it could be of any use for demolishing; J. Pollux and Polybius ipeak of an Engine which is called the Crane, and another called the Crow, but both the one and the other were made for hooking in, drawing too, and taking away by Force; for the Crane of Pollux was us'd on the Theatre for raifing Weights, and the Crew of Palybins was employ'd for grapling the Ships of the Enemies in a Fight.

. 6. Sambueus or Sambuea: This Engine is fo call'd from a Greek Word which fignifies a Triangular Instrument of Musick, made in the Form of a Harp, for this was a Triangle composed of Strings that made one of its Sides, and of the Body of an Engine, which made the other Two. The Warlike Engine of this Name was the same with that which we now call a Portable-Bridge. When this Bridge of the Sambuca was laid down, it was supported by Ropes, and thus the Besiegers with Ox Hides, to fecure those who play'd made use of it for passing over from their Turrets

ARM Turrett of Wood unto the Walls of the I of a Bow, to fet on Fire any military En-

y. Scerpiones, were the larger fore of Balifia's. which the Ancients made use of for attacking and defending Walls; they were Engines made up of unequal Circles, and were called Services, either upon the account of the effelt they producid, which was to wound with little Arrows, like a Scorpion which wounds with a finall Sting, or elfe upon the account of the Figure of their Bow, which represented two Arms bending backwards like the Feet of a Scorpion. After this mannor Ammianus Marcellinus describes the Scarsion, which he supposes to resemble a Belista, rather than a Catapules, for he fave, that the Sterpies was made for throwing Stenes by the help of a Wooden Beam which he calls Stylu, and which was join'd in the Ropes that were fasten'd to the two bended wooden Beams, (which are like those that are us'd in the Engine for fawing) after fuch a manner that the Styles being drawn back by 4 Men, and after that let go, it throws out the Stone which was in one of the Slings fasten'd to the end of the Styles.

B. Helepalis, was a Turret which deffroy'd Cities King Deputries, who was called PolisHetes: uson account of his refolute Attacks for taking of Cities, caus'd Epimachus an Architect to build an Melapolis against the Rhodians: It was 125 Foot high, and 40 Foot broad. cover'd with Hair-Stuff, and Hides lately flead off. Diagnesus rendered this defign of it ineffectually against Rhades, and freed the City. He brought the Helepolis into the City. and fet it up in a publick Place with this Infeription ; Diagnesus made this Present to the People of the Spoils of their Enemies.

9. Teftude, a Tortoife, is an Engine which the Ancients made use for undermining and battering of Places. It was a Fence made of Wood that run upon Wheels which ferv'd to cover the Souldiers when they were at work. Facere Teffudinem was a kind of scaling us'd among the Ancients, which was done by the Souldiers when they flood close together, and cover'd themfolves with their Bucklers, for so they made a kind of Ladder for their Companions by which they might climb up upon the Walls. The Invention of this Teftude is attributed to Artemen the Son of Cla-LORNENCS.

10. Mallesli, or Pyrebeli, according to Nonwas and Vegetius, were Engines fet on Fire by a mixture of combullible Marrer wherewith they were befmear'd, and which being clos'd at the end, according to the Deferi-Prior of Ammianus Marcellinus, were ther cur gines or Ships on which they lighted. Cafar in his Commentaries fays, that the Gods fir'd the Camp of Q. Cicere, by throwing into it with Slings fuch Balls of Earth as were kindled before they were thrown.

Armifalii, a fort of Dancers in Armour, who dane'd the Dance called Pyrrichs, which is perform'd with Arms, by keeping time while they strike their Swords and Javelins against their Bucklers.

Arquites, Archers, who shot Arrows our ofa Řow.

Ars, an Art, is a Collection of Precepts. Rules, Inventions and Experiments, which being observ'd give success to our underrakings in any Affairs, and render them useful and pleafant. In this Sense Art is divided into two Branches, whereof one comprehends the Liberal, and the other the Mechanick Ares.

The Liberal Arts are the Sciences, fuch as Poetry, Musick, Painting, Philosophy, Mathemaricks, Architecture Civil and Military. Physick, Geometry, Arithmetick, &c.

The Mechanical Arts are those which require more the Labour of the Hand and the Body, than of the Mine.

Thetres fays, that in the time of Noch a certain Ægyptian call'd Vulcan found out Fire. and invented those Arts in which Fire is employed, and that the Greek Poets having been Educated in Egypt, transported them into Greece, and attributed the whole Glory of these Arts to their own Nation.

Tis certain that Neal was the first Inventor of all Arts, as well as of the cultivating of the Vine; yet it cannot reasonably be deny'd. but that during the Sixteen Ages which pass'd between the Creation of the World and the Deluge, Men had invented many Arts and Sciences which Noah could not be ignorant of, having liv'd Six Hundred Years before the Deluge; thefe therefore he reftor'd after the Deluge, or elfe invented fome of thefe Arts a new.

Artemifin, was the Wife of Maufolus King of Caria: When he was dead and his Body burnt and reduc'd to Alhes, Artemifia mix'd their Alhes with fweet-scented Waters, and drank them up, because she thought she could not better teffifie the extreme Love the had for her Husband, than by drinking his Ashes, and making her felf by this means his Sepulchre. Yet fhe built him a flately Monument in the City of Halicarnaffin, enrich'd with Images of Marble, which was accounted one of the Wonders of the World, and a Mafter-Piece of Architecture. This Work has fo.

far merited the approbation of all Ages, (that all the magnificent Monuments of Kings and other Heroes are nam'd from it, Maufoles. Artemifia died 2 Years after her Husband. for grief that fhe had loft him. We must not here conceal a brave Aftion which the did after the Death of Maufolus, which was this. "Having taken upon her the Govern-" ment of the Kingdom, the Rhedians could " not endure that a Woman should reign " over all Caria, and therefore they equipt out " a Fleet to make themselves Maiters of the "Kingdom. But Artemifia being inform'd " of ir, gave orders that a Fleet of Ships " should lie hid in the little Harbour which "the King had caus'd to be cut, toge-"ther with Gally-Slaves, and fuch Military "Men as had been accustom'd to fight at " Sea, and that the rest should appear open-" ly upon the Ramparts. Then the Rhodians "approaching with their Fleet very well "equipp'd, as it was just ready to enter into "the great Harbour, the Queen gave a fignal from the Walls to give them to under-"frand that the City would furrender. "Whereupon the Rhodians left their Ships " and went into the City, and immediately Artemifia caus'd the little Harbour to be open'd, out of which came the Fleet, and " went into the great Harbour, where the " Rhedians had left their Ships ; thefe her Fleet " carried away with them into the open Sea, " after they had furnish'd them with Seamen " and Souldiers; and at the fame time the "Rhodians having no means left of escaping " were 2lt kill'd in the publick Place wherein " they were found thut up. Nevertheless "the Queen went ftreight to the Ifle of " Rhedes with the Ships of the Rhodians; and "the Irhabitants feeing the Ships return "crown'd with Laurel, receiv'd their Ene-" mies, whom they took for their own Peo-" ple returning Victorious: But Artemisia pos-

History, from whom I have taken this History, fays that the Manikum was built in the City of Halicarnassur. "Aithough Manight hu, lays he, was born at Malissur, at the resolved to fix his abode at Halicarnassur, seems bituation, and very coavenient for Commerce, as having a very good History bour. The Place on which it flood, was bending after the manner of a Theatre; and in the lower part of it which was near the Harbour he designd to build a pubbic Exchange, bur in the middle of the Decivity of the Hill, he made a great and wide Street, in which was built have a weeklent Work called the Maniskum, which excellent Work called the Maniskum, which "is one of the 7 Wonders of the World. There is a Medal of Queen Armssia, which on the Reverse has the Figure of the Pyramid of the Mausdaem which she built for On one side of it there is the Face of the Princess, having her Hait encompassed with a Royal Diadem; on the other there is the Pyramid of the Mausdaem, and on the rop of it there is a Man standing upright leaning upon a half pike, and upon the lowermost Leg of the Pyramid of the rise the Greek Letter 6. to signific the Affection which Armssia had for her Husband, together with shese words APTEMIXAE BASIAISEME.

There is also another fort of Medal of Brass on which there is the perfect and entire Figure of the Mausokum.

ARTEMISUM, a Temple in Italy, in the Forest of Aricia, whose Original was as follows. "Pyladus and Orester having suffered Shipwrack when they were just ready to be Sacrified, kill'd those that guarded them, and unastacred K. Thous; and after that carried away captive the Priestles of Diana." and the Goddesh her felf to whom they were to be offered in Sacrifice: They landed in Italy, and builts Temple to Diana, which was called Artemissum, or Dianusm, where Slaves are Sacrified to that Goddess, and whose Priest ought to be a fugitive Slave.

ARVALES, the Fratres Avales, Socalled ab arvis, i. e. from the Fields, because they Prefide over the Sacrifices that were offered to Bacchus and Geres for the Preservation of the Finits of the Earth. Fal. gentiss gives the following Account of their Original. "The Nurse of Remulus called : Act Laurentia, had a custom of offering every Year a Sacrifice to defire of the Gods a plentiful Crop, and in doing this fhe was accompanied with her 12 Children: " But one of them being dead, Romultus who " was very willing to countenance this De-"vorion of his Nurse, put himself in his stead " to fill up the number of Twelve, and gave " this Society, the Name of the Tweive Arval " Brethren, which they have kept ever fince. They held their Atlemblies commonly at the Capitol in the Temple of Concord, or in a Wood confecrated to the Goddess Dia, about 5 Miles diffant from Rome, and which lies in that way which now is called Via Campana. They were a Crown made of Lars of Corn tied up with a white Ribbon. Those who were promoted to this Dignity w re made

Noble, and exempted from all Offices in the City and from Taxes. Some Authors have thought that they had the Authority of determining the Limits of Lands and Inheritances; but others arribute this Authority to certain Persons who are also called devotes Suggradies.

AR USPEX, One that divin'd by Infpection of the Entrails of Beafts, which the Ancients kill'd in Sacrifice to the Gods, from which they drew Prognosticks of future Events.

AR USPICINA, Divination by the Baraili of Bealts flain to the God's. This fort of Divination is very ancient, and was practised by the Children, Expitant, Greeks and Africant, and afterwards by the Inflam, who became most excellent in it. From them the Romann learnd this Science; Ronnlus at first instituted Three Arthylicet, one for each Tribe, into which he divided his People; afterwards the Seance ordain? I that a certain number of Young Men of a noble Family should be sent to Instance. Cuero limits the Numbers to Six, Valcius Maximus makes to of them, and some others 12.

Tis faid, that Tager the Son of Genius and Grandion of Yapire raught the Tufant this Art, and Cicere in the Al. Busk of Divination relates to us something of the Fabulous Story of this Tager. "aiz. That when a Peafant "was tilling the Ground, the Coulter of his "Plough happen'd to cut deeper than was "ulual; and then he saw a Clod assume the Figure of a young Infant, whom the Inhabitants called Tager, and that this Tager infirtheted the Peafant presently how he "might predict things to come by Animals: This is also consum d by Ovid.

Indigina dixere Tagem, qui primus Hetrus-

Edocuit gentem casus aperire futures, Ovid. lib. 15. Metam. v. 558.

This Art took its Conjectures of things future, either from the Motions of the Animal which was to be facified, or from its Entrails which were pulled out, or laftly, from the Fire into which they were thrown after they had been carefully examind.

It was observed whether the Animal went without strugging to the Sacrifice, whether it did not make unusual Noties at the time of Immolation, or whether he did not g.t away out of the Hands of those who led it.

After this the Estrai's were examin'd which the Mulpa pull'd our, fuch as the Liver, the Heast, the Sp'een and the Reins, their Co'our was carefully confider'd, and trick enquisy made whether these was any Spot or B'emith in them.

After this there parts were cast into a Fire newly kindled, and than the Diviner look'd carefully whether the Smoke and Flame afcended tregether like a Globe, and whether they parted, one going to one fulk, and the other too another. From all their Signs they took Prognoficky good and bad which moved them either to purfue or delift from any Undertaking.

Prefiges also were riken from confectated Wine or Water wherewith the Häline was sprinkled, and it was observed whether the Wine of which the Libation was made, did not lose its Colour or Taft; as it happend to Dide, who at the time of factificing found the Wine changed into black Blood, that it was corrupted in the Vessel into which the had put it, as Wrigit Pelates.

Latices ingrissere sucros.
Fusaque in obsenum se vertere vina cruorem.

Encid. 1. 4. v. 455.

And thus it happen'd allo to Xerxes, who on the Eve before he attack'd the City of Sparta, faw the Wine which was pour'd out for him to drink, three times chang'd into a very bad Blood, as Valerius Naximus tells us, Infulum name paten a jus vinum, in languism, not [ench, fad itrum as territe conversion.]

We must not think that Wisemen among the Roman gave credit to these solish Fables about the Inspection of Entrails, which were believed only by the ignorant People, as Giero tells us in his ad. Book of Divination. [Antipicina ego Reipublice kanfa communique Religionis colendam confe, fed fell famms.]

Princes made use of it to keep the common People and Souldiers in their Duty: So did Agefilans, according to the Relation of Plurarch : " For he being in Baypt, and perceiving the "Souldiers to be wavering in their Duty, thought fit to confirm their flaggering Faith by writing on the Palm of his Hand in great Greek Characters, NiKH, which fignifies V. dory; and after this having flain a " Victim, he took its Entrails recking hot in-" to his Hand, and held them there to long " " till thefe Characters were imprinted upoh, " them, and then having shown them to all " the Army he remov'd their Fears and gave "them freth Courage, by this word which appear'd upon the Entrails of the Vittim, " f r now they all believ'd that the Gods did promile them Victory.

At, is deriv'd from Exaccording to Verre, 'and formerly Affin was us'd for the Nominative: It fignifies the weight of a Roman Pound; which was only 12 Outles.

At, a piece of ancient Roman Money, made at off. of Copper in a Lump which weigh'd a Pound, and which did not begin to be a famp'd till the time off Servine Letter, and did always retain its weight of a Pound on- fithe third part of this nil the ad. Punick War against Carthage, when they began to com fix Assesout of a Bound, each weighing a Ounces, according to the Testimony of Pling; and because the weight of an A was different at feveral times, when Authors would express the After of a Pound-weight, they fay, As grave, which is not the fame thing with Rute, as Buteus thought, for Rude is oppos'd to Signature, which fignifies Money, whereas Grave respects only the weight, and cannor agree both to one and t'other. Now because at first they weigh'd their Money, from thence came the Words Impenfe, Expences, Difpenfator a Steward, and Libri-pens a Treasurer.

Tis not eafy to know certainly when the Romans first began to make use of SilverMony: Pliny writes that it was five Years before the firft Punick War, and Varre thinks that Servins Tullus was the first that brought it into tile.

An As according to our Money at prefent in Value a Half-penny-farthing, as may be feer in the Tables annex'd to the late Combridge Dictionary.

An As is us'd alfo for any entire thing. which is divided into twelve parts, as an Inheritance, an Estate, in which case the parts are called Ounces: Which Observation will help us to understand many Expressions fcatter'd in Latin Authors, as Haves ex affe, a general Heir, or an Heir to all the Goods; Beres ex beffe, an Heir to two Thirds ; Hara ex semiffe, an Heir to one Moiery; Hares ex dadrante an Heir to 3 Fourths, and fo of the rest which may be callly understood by the following Table.

Ai, call'd alfo Libra and Pendo, 12 Ounces. I think divisible by 12. Deuna, 11 Ounces, fo call'd Because there wants an Ounce.

Decume, 10 Ounces, that is to fay decem Uncia.

Dodrans, 9 Ounces, Lecaufe deeft quadrams.

Beffes or Beffis 8 Ounces, because deeft triens, according to Varro.

Septunes, 7 Ounces, as much as to fay feptem uncia. Semiffie for Semiaffis, fix Ounces.

Quineunx, 5 Ounces. Trient, 4 Ounces, i. e.

The whole and entire Eleven Twelfths.

Ten Twelfths.

Five Sixths. Nine Twelfthes

Three Fourths. Eight Twelf.hr Two Thirds. Seven Twelfibe.

A half Pound-Six Twelfths.

Five Twelfths. Four Twelfthi

Suntrans, 3 Ottnets. Sextens, 2 Ounces. Sefrient, for Sefquinneia, 1 Ounce and a

Until & att Chance.

One Third. One Phay b. Out Sizzi. One Einhib.

On The Ath.

ASAROTA, a fore of Floor. Plus fays, that painted Pavements, wrought artiffcially, came from Greet, and that among the reft, the Paventent of Pergamu, which was done by Sofus, was the most Carious. This word Martes, fignifies that which is not forest away. [ab d Privaties & emigs] and, tais Mame was therefore given it, because they faw upon the Favement the Crumbs, and other things which fell from the Table while they were at Mear, so lively represented, that they feem'd to be Realiries, and that the Setvants took no Care to Iweep the Rome clean, This Payement was made of small Shells painted with divers Colottes, and that which was moft admir'd in it, was a Dove drinking, whose Head cast a shadow upon the Water. Monfieur Pertault rejects this opinion of Pling about this word, and thinks it more probable, that there black Pavements which by realon of their drines drank up all that was fpilt upon them, should rather be call'd doden me cither becaufe it was neithen convenient to fweep them, of Wipe them with Spunges, as they did other Floors, as effe because they appear'd not to be fwere ASBES TOS, i. e. tittembuftible, is a fort of Stone, of which Cloth was made which would not burn, though it was thrown into a great Fire. Pliny mentions a Flan that grew in the Indies, which he calle afbeftun.

Some think that the dead Bodies of the Romans which were burnt, were wrapp'd up in this Cloth to preferve their Alhes. Bue Pliny affures us, that it was kept for the Kings of those Countries upon the account of its scarceness.

Strabe and Plutarch relate that the like Cloth was also made of the Stone Amianim. and that some at that time had the fecret of Spinning it, which is not incredible, as many perswade themselves, since it is a Stone that may be all drawn out into Threads.

ASBOLUS, a Centaur which Heresles hang'd upon a Gibbet.

ASCANIUS, the Son of Asness and Creufa, who came with Amar his Father into Italy. After the Death of Eneas, Ascanist was belieg'd in Lavinium by Mezantini after such a manner that he few he could not long selend himfelf : Wherespon he fent to bint to fide for Peace, which was effer'd him ifdeed, but tipen very diffeonourable Terms; and therefore he resolve to use his utmost endeavour to oppole him by a vigorous Sally : But before this was put in Execution, he obferv'd a good Omen; for having made a Digal'd from the right to the left in a ferene Day, which gave him great Encouragment to execute his delign. Having therefore for this end made choice of a very dark Night he made some falle Attacks upon the weakest of the Enemies Quarters, but his chief affault Was upon the Place of the greatest frensch. Which was lels carefully guarded. This Stratagem fucceeded very well for him, for his Enemies were defeated, and Mezentus his Son loft his Life upon the Place. After this Vidory Afetiini went and built the City of Mis longs 36 Years after Lavinium, in the Place which was mark'd out to him by the is little Boar-pigs of the white Sow. He feitin'd at Years.

Sub Acia dedicavit. Monfieur Spin in bie Antiquities of the City of Lyon, Chap. 4. Says, " we have hitherto feid nothing of this Phrafe, " fub Acis dedicare, which we meer with fo "often in Inferiptions upon the Tombs of the ancient Pagani. Monlieur Cherier, who " has deferib'd the Antiquities of Vienne, explains it very ingenioully : oud, fays he "fignifies in Greek a Shadon, from whence comes the word ande, and in Latin Acia. "which fignifies a Place without a Shadow ; and "it was usual with the Amcients to fet up their Tombs in an open Place, or in a Place

" without a Shadow.

Tis true the generality of Antiquaries use the word Africe for an Infirament, wherewith they at and polificat the Stone which was to be laid tron Graves: From whence it comes to país that in the Laws of the 12 Tables we have this Claufe. Rogum Afria ne polito, that me Bould not polift the Minuments of the dead. But this Law was difus'd and the Romans growing more powerful and rich, would not lofe their Pomps and Vanities even after their Death : Witness the many stately Maufolen, which are to be feen in all Italy and other Provinces of their Empire. Some think that a certain Figure made in the form of an Ax, which We often meet with upon ancient Inscriptions, is that Alia whereof we are now speaking. Garchard in his first Book of Funerals, speaking of these words tells us, "that the Law of the 12 Tables forbad to polish the Wood of " the Funeral Pile, but that this Law was " fibr at all oblery diand that every one caus'd

"the Wood of the Funeral Pile to be po-"lish'd, and adorn'd it with Pictures made " of Wax of divers Colours; to which Cuftom adds he, we may refer thefe 3 Words fub Ascia dedicare. I de not think continues he. that the Roman added at the end of their Epitaphs thefe Words to thew that the Ma . ble had been polish'd, for as much as the 'Ax which is there represented is not a Tool proper for polishing Marble or Stone, efpecially feeing that part of the Stones where thefe words, and that Figure is to be found. " are rough and unpolish'd.

ASCLEPIADES, a Greek Physician. of whom we read this Inscription at Rolle, L. ARUNTIO SEMPRONIANO

ASCLEPIADI. Imp. Domitiati Medico. T. F. L. In Fronte P. XX. In Ar. P. XX.

Authors mention two of this name who were Physicians: He who was Physician to Demitian pollibly was the last of the two, and he who was Gireto's Friend, the first. But here we must observe, that these Greek Phyficians when they came to Robe, took upon them a Pranomen, the name di a Family, and a Surname, although in their own Country they had only one Name or Surname. And the Reason of this was, became their Freedom being given them at Rome, they were incorporated into the Tribes, and adopted into the Families of the Republick. Thus Melepiades, who according to the Cufforn of the Greeks had but one name, affirmed here 3 preceeding Names, Lucius Aruntius Sempronlands, that of Afelepiades continuing fill as an Agnomen or 2d. Surname.

Reinefins, in his Inscriptions publiffi'd a little while ago, makes this Aclepiades different from him, who is mention'd by Anthors as famous for the Books he wrote about Medicaments; and he thinks that he who is meant in this Infeription was the Son or Grandson of Arantius the Physician, to whom 250 Seffertis magne, were given as Plint tells us at a Reward, book 9. of his Hiftory.

There is a 3d. Aclepiades according to an . Inscription which we find at Arignan.

C. CALPURNIUS ASCLEPIADES. Prufa ad Olympum Medicuis. Parentibus & file fratrib. Civitate VII. à divo Trajano imperavit.

Notes III. Nonas Martias, Domitiano XIII. Coi. endem die que & der eine VERONIA CHELIDON. com que vizit en LI.

fludierum & merum caulâ.

probatus à viris clariff. adjedit Magistratibus Pop. R. ita ut in aliis & in Prov. Alis — in erna Indicum Vixit ann. L X X.

"CAIUS CALPURNIUS AS-"CLEPIADES, a Physician of the Ci-"ty of Prusa at the Foot of mount Olympus, "obtain'd of the divine Emperour Trajen, " Cities for his Father and Mother, himfelf " and his Brethren ; and was born the 5th. "Dav of March, under the 13th. Confulfhip of "Domitian, on the very fame day that his "Wite VERONIA CHELIDON " was born, with whom he liv'd 52 Years " being approv'd by Persons of the first Quality " upon the account of his Learning and good " Behaviour, he was Affestor to the Magi-" strates of the People of Rome, not only in " Afia, but a fo in other Provinces. He liv'd "70 Years.

This Acceptades was never made a Freeman, as Reinefins thinks, fince he took upon him the name of CAIUS CALPUR-NIUS ASCLEPIADE S, and there is no Lin the Inteription to fignifie that he was Libertus. His Country was the Ciry of Prula. which is full to this Day call'd Pruffs in By soinia, at the Foot of Mount Olympus. From this Place the off Alclepiades originally came. who was Ciero's Friend, and the Author of a Sect which pretended to cure Difeates by a moderate way of living rather than by Medicines; for Strabo and Galienus fay, that he was of the City of Prula in Bythmia: And if we compute the Times in which thefe 2 Afelepiadas's liv'd, he who is meant in this In-Scription, might be Grandson to the former. and inherit his Learning and Reputation: fince he obtain'd by the Bounty of the Emperor Braim, probably upon the account of delivering him from tome dangerous Difeales, the Possession of 7 Cities, which is a very remarkable particular of History. He was born under the 13th Confuthipor Dunition, which answers to the Year from the building of Fime DCCCXL, and to that of our Lord, LXXXVIII, and he died in the 70th. Year of his Age under the Empire of Antoninus Pin, in the Year of 3 me DCCCCX, and confequently he was Phylician under Traign. H. d. anur, and Antoninur, an l'allo under many Magifrates, which shews that he was in a free Condition and highly effeem'd.

Binises there ? Alche adei: who were Phyficialis, we find also another call'd TITU's ÆLIUS ASCLIPIADES, in Gruter, who was made free by the Emperor i and one nam'd PUBLIUS NUMITO-

RIUS ASCLEPIADES, a Freeman and Sextum-vir of Verms, and laftly one LUCIUS FONTEIUS FOR. TIS, of the Race of the Afelepiades's, or at least of their Profession; for in succeeding times the Name of Asclepiades was us'd for the Title of a Sect, or of Professors of Phyfick.

AST

- ASCOLIA, certain Games in Honour of Bacchus, at which People danc'd upon Gost-skins, which were blown up like Bladders and anointed with Oyl, that fo the Dans cers might make the Divertion more Plealant to the Spectators by their Fall, ASPHODELUS, the Daffodil, an Herb which has a strong Smell when it is in Flower. Lucian thinks that a Meadow was planted with these Daffodils in Hell, through which the River of Oblivion runs.

ASSA vox. d.

ASSA TIBIA, The Voice alone : One Finte alone, without being accompanied with the Voice

ASSARIUS or ASSARIUM. the fame with As among the Ancients, fays Charifius. Dionyfius Halicarnaff:us also fays, that Affarium was a piece of Money of Copper, of a Pound-Weight : Yet Hefychius explains it to be 70 xezder, a little piece, and according to Suidar awaera are offenel, little Pieces of Money of Copper. Agricola in B. 2. de pend, takes it for the half of an At, which he confirms by Josephus and Waserus; but of an As minted, and reduc'd to half an Ounce, fo that this would be no more but the 4th. part of an Ounce. 'Tis certain that it was a very little Piece, and fo much its Termination sufficiently shews, that it is only a Diminutive from Alis

A S S E U M, a Stove or Bagnio, a Place where the Air only is heated to make People (weat.

ASTARTA, or ASTARTE, The Goddess Affarte is call'd in Scripture, Albiaro b, which fignifies Sheep or Flocks. Scaliger thinks that this Name was given her upon the account of the Multitude of her Vidims. den Sydoniorum. Sancheriathen favs that the Godde's Affarte is Venus-Grania, or the Moon, which is the fame with Vines-Urania, or Ca'eftis ; Aftarten l'enerem Phanices pradir tant: They fay a'fo that she has the Head of a Bull, as a token of her Sovereignty, which agrees to the Crefeent or New Moon.

This made Bechart believe, that fhe was le the Goddels of the Greeks, which was transform'd into a Cow. Giere in B. 3. De Natura Berum would have her to be Vimu, and having diftinguish'd many Vinus's, he lays, that Vinus of Syria, or Tyre, Was Affarte, Quarta Venus Spria Tirogue concepta, que Affarto weather. This is also the Opinion of Saider: 1 upon which Account he is rarely visible, and But Sr. Auftin on the contrary thinks that Afterte was June, which he proves from the Judgment of the Carthaginians, who could not be ignorant of the Religion of the Phanicians, & fervierunt Baal & Aftaria; Thefe are the words of Scripture which this Father explains of Jupiter and June, in Lib. Jud. 9. 16.

Lucian, on the contrary fays that Allarte is the Moon, although he relates that the Phanicions made her pass for Europa, the Daughter of King Agenor, who was carried away into Candia by Jupiter when he was transform'd into a Bull. "There is also a great Temple " in Phanicia, among the Sidenians, which is " dedicated to Affarte, whom I believe to "be the Moon; although a Priest of the "Temple told me, that the was Europa, the " Sifter of Cadmus and the Daughter of Age-"ner, who disappear'd I know not how; " and that afterwards the People of the Coun-"try built her a Temple, and gave it out " that Jupiter had ravish'd her for her Beauty. " She is still to be seen engrav'd upon their "Money, fitting upon a Bull; but there "are some who do not believe that she is the "Person to whom this Temple is dedi-"cated.

There is some Ground to conjecture that in this Case we have an Example of the Cufrom of the Phanicians mention'd by Philo. the Interpreter of Sanchiniathon, viz. that they gave to the Stars the Names of their Kings, and fo they paid Religious Worship to them as well as to the Stars. They might then attribute to the Daughter of King Agenor the Temple built in Honour of Affarte, i e. according to Lucian, to the Moon. Jolephus speaks of the building of the Temp'e of Hercules, and of that of Affarre at Tyre, whose Names are manifeltly deriv'd from this Divinity : fuch as.

ARISTARTUS, BELOA. STARTUS, i.e. BELUS ASTAR-TUS.

ASTRA, the Stars, Luminions Bodies, which move in the Heavens above the Elementary Region. Porphery had reason to fay, that the Ancients admiring the extraordinary Beauty and Splendor of the Star V-nui, thought that by her Influence she contributed very much to Generation, which mov'd them to represent her under the Figure of a Woman of extraordinary Beauty. This Planet Venus is also call'd the Star of the Shepherds. It is call'd Lucifer or the Morning Star. when it goes before the Sun, and Velser, when it follows him. M. reury is another Planet which scarce ever parts from the Sun, the Ancients confounded him fometimes with the Sun, and faid that this Planet was as it were his Soul and Intelligence, for which reason they made him the Teacher of Wisdom and Knowledge.

From whence it appears that the Gentiles look'd upon these Stars as living and intelligent Beings, and that they managed their Influences by their Intelligences.

Horace Calls learned Men Vires Mercuriales, as being more plentifully enrich'd with the Gifts and Influences of Mercury. In this Sense we must understand the beginning of the first Book of Manilius, where he says that the Stars know and work our Destiny by their Wifdom and Influences.

Helychius fays, that the Babylonians call'd the Star Mercury, Sechez. The Western Nations were no less perswaded that Mercury was a Star that had Dominion over Reason, Discourse and Understanding.

The Gaules mention'd by Cafar in his Commentaries, regarded more the Fabulous History of Mercury, than the Nature of the Star that goes under that Name. From the same Principle it was, that the ancient Representations of Mercury had neither Arms nor Legs, to give us to understand, if we may believe Plutarch in this Cafe, that the Wit and Wisdom of the Mind alone can compass all things, without the help of the Senfes, and the Members of the Body : [Propterea Mircurios Seniores Sine manibus & fine pedibus fingunt, boc obscuras quasi per Enigma inducentes haud quaquam à senibus requiri at corporis ministeria obeant, aummedo eratio fit efficax & facunda.

ASTRÆA, the Daughter of Jupiter and Themis, the Guardian of Justice. The Poets have feign'd that she descended on .Earth in the Golden Age; but when Men in fucceeding times became corrupt and perfidious, this Divine Woman re-ascended into Heaven, and was p'ac'd in the Zodiack in the Sign Vices.

ASTRAGALUS, a Greek Word, and a Term of Architecture, is a little Round Menlaing wherewith the top and bottom of Pillars are adorn'd, which is made in the form of a Ring or Braceler: Somerimes it is cut in the Shape of little Beads, from whence it has the name of a Chapler.

ASTROLABIUM, an Affrolabe, is a Mathematical Instrument that is flat after the manner of a Sphere describ'd upon a Plain. It ferves chiefly at Sea, for observing the height of the Pole and of the Stars ; it hangs upon a Ring, and hath an Alhidade, or moveable Rule furnish'd with little Pins, which Thews the heights upon the Circle which are on its fides being divided into 369 Degrees. There is a hole within its Limb, wherein divers Plates are, on which are, markd the Azimuths and other Circles, for making various Observations; and that at the top which is pierc'd through, and is therefore call'd degree, serves to make many Observations on the Stars.

ASTROLOGIA, Aftelegs, a Conjectural Science, which teacher us to judge of the Effects and Influences of the Stars, and which pretends to forerell all fores of Events. It is a very vain and uncertain Science.

ASTRONOMIA, Africany, which treats of the Nature of the Heavens and the Stars The Athiopians, as tis faid were the first who discover d this Science, because their Air is very clear and they have not fuch change of Seafons as we have : Besides that this Nation is very fubtil and furpalies all others in Wit, and Knowledge. Afterwards they improv'd this Science with great Application of Mind, for they measur'd the Course of each Star, and diffinguish'd the Year into Months and Sealons, regulating the Year by the Course of the Sun, and the Months by the Motion of Moon. Moreover they divided the Heaven into 12 Parts, and represented each Constellation by the Figure of fome Animal, from whence proceeds the Divertity of their Religion and Gods, for those who more particularly observ'd te Proprieties of the Ram ador'd ir, and fo on of all the reft.

The Chancars were above all others addicled to this Science, infomuch that they would be esteemed the Inventors of it. As for the Greeks they learn'd it from Orphew, who gave them the first Light into it, though but obfourely, and under the Veil of many Mysteries and Ceremonies: For the Harp upon which he celebrated the Orgia [i. e. the Bacchapstra] and plaid Hymns and Songs, was compos'd of Seven Strings which teprefent the Seven Planets, upon which Account the Greeks plac'd it in the Heavens after his Death and have called a Constellation by its Name. And therefore he is painted fitting upon a Haro, encompais'd with an infinite number of Animals, which are a Representation of the Calcilial Fires.

In the time of Array and The flet the Grelewere arrived to great Knowledge in Aftronomy; and the People of Arga having decreed that their Empire flould be given to him who was most skirled in it. The flet discovered to them the Propriecies of the Ram, from whence forme took occasion to key, that he had a Ram or Go'd: Array observed the Course of the Spinum Mabile, which caused him to be preferred before highly

val. The fame Judgment is to he given as Reliepsham, for its not believ'd that he ever had a winged Horfe, but only that his Mind foaring up into Heaven, made many nice Observations about the State. The same is to be fail of Phrymy the Son of Ashemar, whan is fail to have gon through the Air upon a Golden Ram. Dadalm and his Son were likewife very learned in Astrology, for one of them confounding himself in this Science parhaps gave Occasion to the Fable: Alsh Passham, hearing her Father discourse of the Celetical Bull and the other States, fell in Love with his Doctrine, which gave occasion so the Poets to say, that she was enamous'd with

There are some who have divided this Science and alligned to each Aftronomer his different part. Some have observ'd the Course of the Moon, and others the Morion of the Sun, or of fome other Planets, with their different Influences Thus it was with Phasten and Endywier, whereof the former left us this Art imperfect by his untimely Death, and the latter perform'd his Part so well that he is faid to have lain with the Moon, and enjoyed har Love. From hence it is that the Poets make Anes to be descended of Venus, Miner of Jupiter, Alcalaphus of Mars, Autolyens of Mercury, because they were born under these Planets, and because they always retained fomething of that Planet which was afcendane at their Birth, therefore Mipes was a King, Aneas was a beautiful Man, Afcalapless was valiant, and Autolysus thierish. Neither must we imagine that ever Japiter did chain up Satters, or throw him down headlong into Hell, as ignorant People believed, but the former part of the Fable was feign'd upon the account of his flow, and fluggilla Motion; and the vast distance of the Æther in which he moves, from this Earth, was taken for the Abyls of Hell. All that the Poets fay of the Adultery of Mars and Venus, and the manner of discovering it, is taken from Aftrology; for the frequent conjunction of these 2 Planets gave occasion to these Fictions.

Tywgw, the great Lawgiver of the Lacedemonians, fram d.his Common-wealth upon this Model of the Stars, and forbad his Citizens to march out to Battel, before the full Moon, because then its Body is more vigorous.

The Arcadians are the only People who would not entertain Aftronomy, because they were fuch Fools as to think that they were born before the Moon.

ASYLUM, annar, a place of Safety where none durft fieze a Criminal that flies to it.

Some

Some pretend that the first Afrium of Greece was that which was defign'd by the Oracle of Jupiter Dedonaum, mention'd by Paulanias, who affures us that the Atheniam obey'd the Oracle, and granted their Lives to all those who field for Refuge into the Areapagus to the Altars of the Goddesses.

The fame Paulanias tells us, that the Phlia-Gans very much rever'd a Temple of the Goddess Hebe, to which this Privilege was granted, that all Criminals should find there the Pardon of their Crimes, without any Exception whatfoever; and that they fasten'd their Chains to Trees which were before the Temple. This Author elsewhere mentions a Temple of Minerva in Peloponnesus, where Criminals were fo strongly protested, that none durst so much as demand them back again: But this Historian has also given us what is more remarkable concerning the Antiquiof Sanctuaries, or Places of Refuge : For he fays, that because Neoptolemus the Son of Achilles had put Priamus to Death, although he retir'd near the Altar of Jupiter Herciense, yet he was kill'd near the Altar of Apallo of Delphos; from whence it is called the Punishment of Neoptolemus, when one fuffers the fame Mischief which he had done to another. Thus the Afila of Altars and of Temples was ancient in his time. About the time of Solemon, and of the Foundation of the Temple of Jerufalem; there is an Afylum mentioned in the Book of Kings.

But the Alylum of the Altar among the Ifradius is far more ancient than that of the Temple of Solomon, and the time of Homer or the Trojan War, for it is mentioned in Exodus, as a thing establish'd in Mose's Days.

The Afylum of the Temple of Diana at Ephflus, was one of the most Famous. Strabo tells us, that feveral Princes allowed it fometimes a larger, and fometimes a less extent beyond the Temple itself.

There were whole Cities of Refuge among the Ifracliter, which were counted Afglum's; allo the League of the People of Smyrna, with King Scheeur thews us, that that King granted the Privilege of being an Afglum to the whole City of Smyrna.

The whole Island of Samothrace likewife enjoyed the same Privilege according to Titus Livius.

Horodows affures us, that from the Trojan War there was a Temple of Heredies in Azppe, whither Bond-flaves fleed, and after they had received the Marks or Badges of that God, to whom they had devoted themfelves, they could never be retaken by their Mafters.

statius has made a curious Description of "that their Temp'e consecrated to the Perthe African, and Alter of Clemency, foun""finn Diana was built by Gyrus, and konouded by the Posterity of Hercules, who were particularly careful of that Protection.

Sic facrosse leco commune animantibus agris

Confugium, &c.

There are some Authors, that attribute Assists to Gadmus, who invented that Expedient to People his new City of Thebes, which Remulus imitated, when he built Reme, for he left a place cover d with Wood on purpose, between the Capitol and the Tarpeies. Rock, which he promised to make a safe Assistant to all Persons that sled thither, whether Slaves, or Freemen, as Ovid tells us in his 3d. Book of his Fasti.

Romulus at faxo lucum circumdedit Alto Cuilibet huc dixit, confuge tutus eris, v. 431.

Catilote huc dixit; confuge tatts eris, v. 431.

"This Afflumar Rome remained facred, and was not violated till the Reign of Augustus, and Therita, who feeing its abuses, abuses, lished it. For the Liberty of Afflum's, as Tacitus reports, Lib. 3. of his Annalis, was come to lo great an height, that ar Rome, and in the Cities of Greece all the Temples were full of Debtors, Fugitives, and Criminials, so that the Magistrates could not regulate them, nor slop the Fury of the People, who defended these Superstitions, as the most facred Mysteries. Upon which account it was resolved that the Provinces thould send their Deputies to the Se"nate."

" The Ephelians came first in, and represen-" ted, that apollo and Diana were not Born in " the Isle of Delas, as the ignorant People be-" lieved, but that they had in their Country " a River, and facred Forest, where Latona be-" ing big with these Deities, was happily deli-" ver'd : that Apollo had fled into that place to " avoid the Anger of Suprece after he had con-" quer'd the Cyclops, and that Bacchus having " vanquished the Amazons did pardonall those "who had escaped to the Altar. That Her-"cules being Mafter of Lydia did enlarge the "Immunities, and Privileges of the Tem-" ple. Then the Magnefians were heard, who " pleaded that Se pio after the Defeat of sin "tiochus, and Sylla after the Victory ove: Michridates, had rewarded their Fidelity " and Courage with an inviolable African, " in the Temple of Diana Leucophryna. The " People of Aphrodifium and Stratonice, alledged their Privileges granted them by Ce-" far, and confirmed by singuftes for the Ser-"vice they did their Party, and were pub-"lickly commended for continuing con-"frant in their Alliance during the Par-" thian Invalion. The Deputies of Hierocafa-"rea derived their Afylum's higher, and faid, "that their Temp'e confecrated to the Per" Captains, who had enlarged the Privilege " of whom they had two Temples in their "Ifand, they defended also the Privilege of " that of Jupicer of Salamis built by Teucer, when " flying from the Anger of his Father Tela-"mon, he took Sanctuary in their Coun"try.

"The Senate fays Tacitus retrenched this "fhould be graven up in Brazen Tables, and " put in their Temples to preserve the Me-"mory of this Regulation, and to prevent "any Attempts for the Future, contrary to "the Determinations of the Senate under a

" pretence of Religion.

Afterward it was discovered, adds Taci-" tus. which was concealed with much Grief, "for the more Vitious tock the Liberty to " reproach the Virtuous, and to stir up envy "against them, by embracing the Statue of the Prince. The Magistrates themselves " upon this account were afraid to offend "their Slaves and Freemen, which ob-" liged Seffins to declare in a full Senate, that " Princes were like the Gods, but the Gods "would not hear wicked Mens Prayers, "nor allow a retreat into their Temples to "the Feet of their Altars, or to the Capitol, " for Criminals to abuse them.

These Declarations were the cause that thele words were fet and engraven upon many Statues, à serve tangine fas est, as I have feen thefe words written upon a Statue of Mars. Mavortio lacrum hoc fignum; à ferve sangi ne fas eft.

At last Africa's would protect on'y those who were guilty of small Faults, for notorious Offenders were taken by force from the A tars and Statues of the Gods, and often burnt, as Plautus teaches us in his Comedy, entitled R UDENS, where he makes Latrax fpeak thus to the Old Demons.

L. A. Mihi mon licens mens Ancillas Veneris dè arâ abd scere ?

D.A. Non licet, ita eft Lex apud nor. L A. Imo basce ambas bic in arâ ut vivas

comburam, &c. Ast. 3. Sc. 4. ATALANTA, the Daughter of Schaneus, King of the Isle of Scyrus, who being of an extraordinary Beauty, attracted feveral Lovers to her, whom after the had overcome in a Race she pur to Death, for as she excelled all in her time for fwiftness, so she resolwed to marry none but him, that should excel her in running. Hippomener the Son of Mars entred the Lifts, with her and gained the

"red by Perpenne Hauricus, and feveral other | Victory, by casting three Golden Apples. which Venus had given him out of the Garden "of ir two Miles round on every fide. The of the Helperides in her way, for the stopping "Inhabitants of Cyprus maintained the Glory to take them up, her Eyes were dezled with "of the Goodess of Paphos, and Amathusia, their shining, and he overcame her by this Stratagem, and enjoyed his Love, but lying with her in the Temple of Cybele, the Goddels was angry at the action, and metamorphosed them, the one into a Lion, and the other into a Lioness.

ATE, a Propheress or Goddess, according to Plutarch, In his Banquet of the leven wile Men, whom Jupiter cast down headlong from Heaven to Earth at the Birth of Hercules. wherein June deceived him. Homer makes Are the Daughter of Jupiter, who was fent to Men to be the Source of all Evils, in the Company of the Lite the Daughters of Jupiter, who comfort them, but because they are very old, lame, and blind, they come often verv late.

Homer also makes mention of Ate, whom he affirms to be a Goddess formidable to Men. Gods. and even to Jupiter himfelf, although fhe is his Daughter. And after he has related the Surprize that June put Jupiter in, when the caufed Eurystheus to be born before Hertules, which gave him Power over Hercules, he fays, that Jupiter being angry with Ate cast her down headlong from Heaven to Earth, swearing that she should never return thither again. So that Ate concerns her felf wholly with humane Affairs. Illico corripuit Aten, & juravit firmum juramentum, nunquam in Olympum, de Calum fellatum redituram Aten, que omnes infortunio afficit, i mivrets da rot, fic fatus eficit d Calo fillato, manu retans fulgur, mex autem pervenit ad opera bominum. It is evident, that the name of this Goddess comes from draw, wecco. who if Homer makes the Daughter of Juniter, 'tis because no Evil happens to us, but by the permission of Providence; that if this Goddess was heretofore in Heaven, and was banished out of it, 'twas because the Division among the Angels was but once made, when they became Evil of Good, as they were created, and by their own Sin separated themselves from the Company of Blessed Spirits. The Banishment of Ate to the Earth signifies nothing else but the terrible Essects of divine Juilice, which thews itself only upon the Earth, because that's the only Theatre of In-

ATELLANÆ COMOEDIÆ. Atellan Comedies, or Farces, which were acted at the end of Comedies to divert the People. The Original of these Farces was an Atella, a City of Apulia in Campania, between Capua and Naples, whose Inhabitants were very Satyrical, and full of filthy, and obscene words.

These Farces were acted by the Youth in | tertus under the Name of Palemm or Por-Masquerade, as Festus observes, and Titus Liviss adds, that the Atellans would not fuffer any to act their Farces that were Stageplayers or Comedians, for they were not removed from their Tribe as infamous, nor prohibited from going to War, as other Comedians were. Tertin Species eft fabularum latinarum, qua à civitate Ofcorum At-Ilà, in qua primum capta Atellana dicta funt. Diomedes the Grammarian, Quod genus Indorum ab Ofcis acceptum tenuit juventus, nec'ab histrionibus pollei paffa eft ; edinstitutum manet ut actores Atellanarum, nec tribu moveantur, & fipendia, tanquam expertes artis ludicra, faciant.

ATELLANI VERSUS, Verfes, of which thefe forts of Farces were compoled, which were very free, and a little lascivious.

ATHAMAS, King of Thebes, and Son of Æslus. He married Nobels, by whom he had two Children, Phryxus and Helle, Nephele being turned mad by Bacchus, Athamas divorced her, and married The milto the Daughter of Hypfaus, by whom he had Sphincius, and Orchomenus, but being also divorced from her, he married In the Daughter of Cadmus, by whom he had Learchus and Melicatus. Themisto being very angry to fee her felf fo fupp'anted refolved to put Ino's Children to Death, and hiding her felf in a Place of the Palace, the flew her own Children instead of her Rivals, being deceived by the Cloaths which the Nurfe had put on them. This cruel Mistake made her flay her felf : Ino being thus rid of Themisto's Children, contrived to take off Nepheles's Children, whom she hated, and to that end procured a Famine in her Country, being advised to parch the Corn, and not fow it, which caused a Famine and a Plague. Athamas fent to confult the Oracle at Delphos, how he might be delivered from their Evils, but his Meffengers being bribed by Ino, told him that the Orac'e had ordered that he should facrifice his Son Phryxus, who offered himfelf voluntarily to Death, notwithstanding Athemas was against it. But as they went to facrifice him, the Accomplices discovered to Athamas the Malice of Inc. who immediately delivered her, and her Son Meli- 1 certus to Phryxus to be revenged on her, but as he was going to put them to Death, Bacchus whom she had nursed delivered them, by covering them with a Cloud. Athamas was punished with Madness by Jupiter, and flew his Son Leanchus, whom he took for a Lyons Whelp -In effaped with her Son Melicertus, and cast her felf headlong into the Sea, where Neptune Deifyed them ; Ino under the name of Leacethea. or the Mother Mutata, and Meli-

A THEN Æ A, Feasts at Athene dedicated to the Honour of Minerus, of which fome were kept every Year, and others every Five Years, according to the Institution of Eri-Ethonius, King of Athens, as Paufanias fays.

ATHENÆUM, a Place at Athens confecrated to Minerva, where the Greek Poets went to make an Offering of their Works. as the Latins confecrated them in the Temple of Apollo. This Place was like a publick School, where they taught the Liberal ATHENÆ, Athens, the most famous City of Greece, fituated in that part of Achaia. which lies upon the Coast, from whence it was called Ade and after Attica. The first Founder of it was Cecreps in the time of Moles. from whence it was called Cecropia or Imia. from Ion the Son of Xuthus, and afterwards Athms from Minerus, for ASign in Greek fignifies Minerva. This City was famous for Learning, and Eloquence, and the Defence of all Greece, lays Lucian in his Praife of Demofthenes. "I might, adds he, speak of the Gods, to " whom it owes its beginning, their Amours, " Decrees, Dwellings, Presence and Mysteries. I might speak of its Laws, Decrees. Affemblies, Colonies, Victories and Trophies, which are fo great and many, as " well by Sea, as by Land, that he must be " more eloquent than D mofthenes, which can " fufficiently describe them.

It was governed by Kings, for the Space of 460 Years, of whom the first was Cecrops. but their Power degenerating into Tyranny. the People shook of the Regal Yoke, which ended in Codrus. They were governed for a long time after, by 500 Magistrates, named PRYTANES, who ruled by turns, so at a time, and after by Nine Magistrates, of whom the Chief was called ARCHON. This Government did not continue above 460 Years, and their Commonwealth or fomewhat like it being often interrupted by Tyrants, who assumed an absolute Authority. This City anciently fo great is now reduced to a small Castle, and a few Fishermene Huts, but the Ruins of it gives us a sufficient Proof of its Antiquity.

Varre gives this Account of the Original of the word Athens, "An Olive Tree, favs "he, growing up out of the Earth on a fud-"den in a certain Place, and a Spring of "Water rising in another, these Prodigies " aftonished the King, who sent to Apollo at " Delphor to know the Signification of them, " and what he should do. The Oracle an-" fwered that the Olive Tree fignifyed Mi"nervs, and the Water Neptune, and it ber." gin, where they fet her Image of Gold and tonged to them to fee from which of those two Gods they would name their City.

"Foot high, who engraved on her Shield."

"Hereupon Cecrops affembled all his Citi-" zens, as well Men as Women (for the Wo-" men at that time had a Voice in their " Councils.) When then they came to vote, all " the Men were for Neptune, and all the Wo-" men for Minerva, and because there was one " Woman more, Minerva carried it, and the "City was named A:bens, which is taken " from that of Minerva, whom the Greeks call "A Snya- Neptune being incensed at it depo-"pulated the Country of the Athinians with "his Waves, and to appeale him fays the fame " Author, the Women suffered 3 fore Punishments. First, that from that time they " should never have a Voice in their Coun-" cils, the 2d. that none of their Children " should bear their Name, and lastly, that "they should not be called Athenians but " Articks.

"Turo gives us also an historical and not fabuleus. Reason of the Name of Athens, and tells us that there happened fo great a Difference between Neptume and Minerva about it, that Apollo durft not be an Arbitrator between them, but left the Decision of it to Men, as I point did that of the three Goddesfes to Para, and adds, that Minerva carried it by the number of Votes.

A THENIENSES, the Atheniams, a People of Artica, whose this City was Athen, very civilized and polited by Learning, and being brought up in the Poverty of Philosophy, were such Enemies to Luxury, that they reformed even Strangers who came among them, so far were they from suffering themselves to be corrupted by them.

They particularly honoured the Goddes Minerva, to whom they builta Temple, where certain Vigniss kept Celefial Fire near the Image of the Goddes, and their Money, as also their Banners here her Image. They also gave a special Worship to Gera, appointing a Feast to her, during which time the Worsen were not allowed to marry, and abfained from eating, lying upon the Ground Nine whole Days. They put Malefastors to Death, by making them drink the juice of Honoles.

We read in the Discourse of Philbūraius, of the Nativity of Marcus. That the Rhodinar wanting five for the Sacrifices, the Goddess he wanting five for the Sacrifices, the Goddess left them, and went to the City of About, to which the gave her Name. The inhabitents having a fine and polithed Mind gave her a particular Worship, building her a Temple in their Castle, under the name of Parthons, which signifies a Viriance of Parthons, which signifies a Viriance.

"gin, where they fer her Image of Gold and "Ivory made by the Hands of Phidian, 39
"Foot high, who engraved on her Shield,
" or Buckler, the Battel of the Amazan, with
"the Abanian, as allo that of the Giants "with the Gods, and upon her Slippers the Fight between the Centaurs and Lapt."

The Athenians, fays Elian, wore Purple Garments, having their Hairs tyed with Ribbons of Gold and Silver, adorned with golden Grafhoppers.

Thucydides in the beginning of his History, calls the Athenian, Taylophoper, that is to fay, Warers of Grashoppers, and the reason he gives for it is this. He says 'twas to distinguish Free men from Slaves. Lucian tells us the same thing. Tretze teaches us, that the Grashoppers which the Athenians wore, were to show, that they were great Speakers, and very prolix in their Discourse.

ATHLET Æ, Weislers, or Combatanis, courageous and strong Men, who addicted themselves to bodily Exercise, as running, sighting and others of like Natures, among the Greeks, and Remans, and for whom the Ancients appointed Prizes.

These Arbies were in great esteem among the Greeks but were infamous at Rame, for some time Ulpian the Lawyer freed them from the Marks of Infamy.

This is the way, by which they were matched in the Plays of the Cirque. " They "took an Earthen Por, into which they put " certain Balls about the bigness of a Bean,on " which was fet an A,or a B,or fome other Let-" ter, and always two Letters alike. Then. " the Champions come forth one after another, " and made their Prayer to Jupiter, before "they drew, and then put their Hands into " the l'or, but the Herald of the Plays ftretch-" ing out of his Rod hindered them from read-" ing their Tickets till they were all drawn. " Presently one of the Judges, or some other " Person took every ones Bail, and joined " them together who had the fame Letters ; " If the Number of the Athleta were odd, he " that had the fingle Letter was to fight with " the Conqueror, which was no small Advan-" tage, because he came fresh to the Com-"bate with him who was weary. Their Food was Barly Bread, which was the Reason they were called Hordearii, i. e. Barly-eaters, and alfo another fort of Bread, called Colipbia, of no-Au, Membra, and iera, Robufta, because it made their Bodies throng and robust. Some fed them with foft Cheefe, and Dromeus was the first who fed them with Meat according to the Testimony of Pausanias in his Eliaca, who gives us the History of Four famous Athleta.

of extraordinary Strength, of whom the first was POLYDAM A Sthe Theffalian, who in his Youth encountred and flew a Lion of a vast Bigness, which harboured in Mount Olympus, and infested the whole Country round about. Another time he took a fierce Bull by the hinder part, and pulled off both his Feer, and with one hand he stopped a Chariot in its full Course. The 2d was Mile of Grotona, who knocked down a Bull with a Blow of his Fift, after he had carried him a long way upon his Back. The third was THE AGENES the Thafian, who took a Brazen Image off its pedeftal, and carried it a great way. The 4th. was EUTH I-M US a Native of Lorris in Italy, who fought against an evil Spirit, which very much diflurbed the Inhabitants of Themesia, and conquered him, infomuch that he married the Damofel, who was carrying to be facrificed to ir. and freed the Country from that mischievous Damon.

A THO S. Mount Abor, fituate between Macedonia and Thrace. Xerxic cut away through it to make a Paffage for his Army, when he went into Greece. Lucian relates that the Armychited Dinacrates, who was in the Army of Alexander, offered him to cut Mount Athor into the Shape of a Man, who should hold in his left Hand a great City, and in his right Hand a Ciftern which should receive the Waters of all the Rivers which fell from that Mountain, and to convey them into the Sea.

Alexander commended his curious Defign, but did not allow of the Place, because there were no Fields about the City to furnish the Inhabitants with Corn for their Subsifiance.

A T I S, a Young Man of Phryzia, of extraordinary Beauty, who was paffionately loved by Ophele the Mother of the Gods. The Poets make her run in a Fury to Mount Ma, being transported with Love, and fearching the Forests and Rocks for him, riding in a Chariot drawn by Lions, and followed by the Corphanter, who make the Mountain resoundher Cries, and Revellings; the made him Overseer of her Sacrifices upon condition that he should preserve his Virginity, but having violated it, Ophele to punish him for it, made him for mad that he wounded and would have flain himself, if that Goddels had not changed him into a Pine-tree.

There is a Temple in Spria, faith Lucian, dedicated to Rhea, or Cybde, by Aiu, who first taught Men her Mysteries, for all that the Lydians, Phrygians, and Samothracians knew of them, came from him who was a Datian. After Rhea had made him an Eunuch, he lived like a Woman, and affumed that Habit, and in this Garb he went over the World, and divulged her Ceremonies, and Myfleries. When he came into Syria, and faw that the Temple on this fide of Euphrates would not entertain him; he flayed there, and built a Temple to the Goddefs, as is to be observed from many things for her Statue flends upon a Chariot drawn by Lions, fine heiding a Drum in her Hand, being adorn'd with Towers, as the Lydiam paint her.

By the Fable of Air the Favourite of Cotile, who was afterwards made an Eunoch died, and was raifed again. Julius Finicis underflands Corn, and the other Fruits of the Earth, which are cut with an Hook, or Sickle, die in the Granary, and rife again by the Seed which is sown in the Earth.

A T IS. OF CAPETUS SYLVI-US, OF ÆGYPTUS. Dissyssus named him, Cepetus; Eulebius, and Livy call him only Ais, and Cossissorus term him, Ægypius, a King of the Latins, over whom he reigned 39 Years.

ATLAS, King of Mauritania, who becaufe he was much addicted to Aftronomical Observations, gave occasion to the Fables. which will have Atlas hold up the Heaven. and that Hercules took his Place for a Day to ease him, because Aclas being the first, who taught the Course of the Sun and Moon, the fetting and rifing of the Stars, and all the Motion of the Heavens, which he had difcover'd with much Ingenuity and Labour. The Painters and Carvers in Memory of it have represented him as holding up the Heavens upon his Shoulders. Ovid tells us. that Atlas was changed into a Mountain by Perfew, at his Return from his Expedition against the Gorgens, for refusing to entertain him, but Hyginus fays, that Atlas having fided with the Giants in the War against Jupiter, when he had overcome them, the God confirained Atlas for favouring them to bear the Heavens upon his Shoulders.

Indeed there were 3 Atta's, the 1st. King of Italy. the Father of Etitira the Wife of Corytus. The 2d was of Armalia, the Father of Main, of whom Mercury was born. The 3d. of Mauritania, Brother of Prometheus, of whom we have already spoken.

Heredotus knew no other Atlas, but a Mountain in Africa, which feemed to touch the Heavens by its heighth, fo that the neighbouring People called it the Pillar of Iteaven, and derived their Name from it. But Diadorus Siculus tell us, that in the furthermod Parts of Africk, Helperus, and Atlas two Brothers had Flocks of Sheep with red Wooll, from whom the Poets took occasion to make thefe red Sheep to pais for golden Apples, because the Greek Word waxa signifies Sheep and Apples. Hesperides gave his Daughter Helperis in Marriage to Atlas, who had 7 Daughters by her, who were called Hafperides or Atlantiades, who Buffrie King of Expt fole, but Hercules travelling through Africk conquered Bufris, recovered Atlas's Daughters, and restored them to their Pather. Atlas to require this Favour taught Hercules Aftrology, in which he grew famous, and gave him a Celestial Globe. Hercules carried this Science and Knowledge into Greces, and the Greeks feigned that Atlas fupported the Heavens, and was released from it by Hercules.

11516

ATLANTIDES, the Daughters of Atlas, whom the Greeks call'd Plesades, and the Latines, Verrilia, were plac'd among the Stars. They thew the convenient time for putting to Sea, and are a fign of the

ATREUS, the Son of Pelops, King of Mysena and Argos. He made his Brother Toyeltes eat two of his Children at a Feaft, viz. Tantalus and Pliffnenes, to be avenged of him. Threstes made an escapa fearing the Cruzlty of his Brother Acress. The Poets tell us, that the Sun abhorring fo great a Wickednets, hid himseif, and retreated back into the Eresthaus, the natural Son of Thyestes revenged the Death of his Brother u pon Atrau, whom he flew with his Son Agamenmon, at his Return from the Siege of Troy, by a correspondence with Clytennefire his Wife.

ATRIUM, is generally taken for all the loward parts of the House. Virgil ules this Word in the fame Signification as Vitruour when he writes.

Porticibus longis figit, & vacus atria luftrat. Aneid. lib. If. v. 528.

Apparet Domus nitus, & atria longa patescunt. Ibid. v. 483.

For 'tis easy to see, that Virgil in that Place understands by Airia, all that can be feen within the House, through the Gare when it is open, as the Courts and Porches. Victuoius applies to all the kinds of Arriums two Ranks of Pillars, which make two Wings, that is to fav, three Walks, one large One in the middle, and two narrow Ones on each

ATROPOS, one of the three Destinies, which cut the Thread of Mans Life. See PARCAS.

ATTALUS, King of Pergamus, who at his Death made the People of Rome Heirs of his Kingdom, and of all his Wealth by Will, which raifed a great Diflurbance at | to come ab avibus from the Birds of Prey of Rome, and cauled a war in Alia, for Therein. Gracebus Tribune of the People, demanded that the Goods of Analus might be diffributed among the People. The Senate opposed this Demand, and ordered the Conful to put Gracchus to Death, which he refused to execute. but Scipie Naffica Chief Prieft of Japiter, throwing his Garment upon his Head, faid, they ther love the Good and Preservation of the Common-wealth, let them follow me, and going immediatly up to the Capitol, he was followed by the Senators, who flew Gracchus and all his Parties in their Seats in the Capitol. Ariflonicus, who affirmed himfelf to be the Son of Actalus, and in that Quality thought to enjoy the Eltare, which the Renams claimed as Legatees of the King, was an occasion of a 2d war in Alia.

ATTELLANÆ, Sec ATELLA.

ATTILIUS REGULUS, a Reman Conful, who won many Victories against the Carthaginians. He flew with a Stone toft out of a Balifia, a Serpent of a very great bigness and fent the Skin to Rome, which was 26 Foot long. The Carthaginians fent an Embaffy to Sparta to defire a General, who fent them Xanthippus, who defeated the Raman Army, and took Regulus Pritoner. But after they had loft a Sea Fight, and fuffered leveral other misfortunes, they lent their Emballadours to Rome, with Regulus their Prifoner, to detire a Peace, but he disswaded them from it. This generous Roman would return to Carthage to keep his word : the Carthaginians being angry with him, because he had not obtained a Peace for them, pur him to death by a new kind of Punithment. They drove an Hogshead full of great Nails. and having put him into it, rowled him about to long, till he died with the repeated

These was one Marcus ATTILIUS. a Duum-vir, whose Office it was to keep the Books of the Sibyls, whom Tarquinius caused to be thrown into the Sea, fow d up in a Leathern Bag, because he had permitted Petranius Sabinius to copy out thele Books, and this manner of Punishment was afterward infli-Eted on Parricides. Et juftiffime quidem, quia pari windicata parentum, ac Deorum violacio, expianda eft. It being just that an Offence against Parents should be punished after the same manner as an Offence against the Gods.

ATYS, fee ATIS.

A VENTINUS, Mount Aventime, at Rome, which was 13300 Foot in Compais. Authors give us feveral Originals of the Word. Nevint will have the Name Aventing

Teler, and the adjoining Marshes, who roofted there at Night. Virgil feems to confirm this Opinion (peaking of it. Dirarum n dis domus Opportuna volucris.

Æneid. Lib. VIII. v. 233

Titus Livius maintains that this Mountain was called Aventine from AVENTI-NUS, King of Albany who was buried there. Others think 'twas called Aventine, ab adventu. from the great concourse of People, who came thirher to facrifice to Diana, who had a Temple built there. This Mountain had feveral other Names according to Fifter, it was called MURCIUS, or MURCUS, Labius Pictor calls it alio REMURIUS, from Remus, to whom Remulus confecrated it after his Death, not permitting any Persons to dwell upon it, because the Auguries were not favourable to his Brother. It was also called the Hill of Diana, because of her Temple that stood upon it. Ancus enclosed it with Walls and gave it to the Latins for their Habitation, but it was not reckoned within the Precincts of Rome, till the time of the Emperor Claudius, about 800 Years from the Foundation of it, contrary to the Judgment of the Diviners, who held that Place as unfortunate, because of that which happened to Remus, who was buried there, and because of the Birds of Prey that lodged there.

Temp'e of Diana, those of Bma Dea, Victorious Hercules, Queen Juno, Luna, Victoria, Libertas, and an Altar to Japiter Elicius.

AVERNUS, the Lake Avernus in Campania near Baie and Patroli. This Lake fent forth such ill Vapours, that a Bird could not fly over it but it died, Fabulous Antiquiry hath dedicated this Lake to Pluto, and believed that it was the Entrance into AVERRUNCUS DEUS, the God which averts Misfortunes, and evil Acciduts. The God to whom the Romans prayed to avert, and remove any Evils that threatned them. Apollo and Hercules were of the Number of these Gods among the Greeks, as Cafter and Pollux among the Roman and they were from hence called improsmuos, that is to Gay who turned away Evil.

AVES, Birde, which the Sooth-fayers confulted in all Undertakings of the Common-wealth, observing their Chirping, Flying, and the manner of their feeding, and from hence they foretold, the good, or ill success of their Attempts. There were some Birds of a good and happy Omen, and others which they called Ofines from whose chirping they presaged, and others called, Prapetes, whose flight they observed. An Eagle flying on the right Hand was an hanny Omen, on the contrary, if a Vulture happen to overturn an Eagles Neft, and tread upon the Eaglets, this fignifies Trouble and Ditgrace, as it happened to Tarquinius Superbus. and to Dionysius of Syracuse, who lost his Kingdom after an Eagle had taken a Javelin by Force out of the Hands of one of his Souldiers and cast it into the Water. But I shall speak of this more at large under the word AUGUR.

AUFEIA, a Fountain, whose Waters were excellent to drink. It has its Rife in the Mountains of Atruzzo, and runs up to Rome, after is has passed through the Country of the Marfi. And the Lakes Celanus, Ancus Martius brought it to Rome, and for that reafon 'tis called after his Name, Aqua Mar-

AUGEAS, or AUGIAS, King of Elis, rich in great Cattel, having Stables, in which he kept continually 3000 Oxen, infomuch, that the Dung and Filth which was heap'd together for leveral Years, filled the Air with Infection. Augens agreed with Hercules to cleanse his Stables, allowing him the tenth part of his Flocks. Hercules performed it by the means of the River Alphous. by turning an Arm of it, and making it run rhrough the Stable, it carried away all Upon this Mountain fland, besides the the Dung. This made the Stable of Augeas to become a Proverb, to describe an infamous Man full of all forts of Vices, as Lucian has done in his fa'fe Prophet. " According to the " Example of Hercules I will labour to cleanse "the Stable of Augens, and I will shew you "fome Filthiness, by which you may guels "how great a Quantity of Dung there was " which 3000 Oxen had raifed in the space of " feveral Years, but I fear we shall be both "ashamed, I for discovering so many Villa-" nies, and you for inviting me to it.

Augist not making a graceful Acknowledgment of the Service that Hercules had done him, and refusing to make good his Word, Hercules flew him.

AUGILES, a People of Cyrene in Africa, who worshipped no other Gods, but dead Mens Ghosts, whom they invoked in all their Affairs, and in all their Undertakings, and by whom they fwore fitting upon their Sepulchers.

A U G U R. a South-fayer, which comes ab avium garritu, the Chirping of Birds. Neverthelets this word is of a more large Signification, being taken for all those, that foretel things to come by the Heavens, or the effects of Nature.

This Art is very ancient, for it is forbidden by Mifes in Leviticus, Chan 17 and in " Deut. Chap. 18. It was in very great esteem among the Chaldeans, who made it a particular Profession, the Greeks learned it of them, and afterwards the Tulcans became very expert

The Romans valued it so highly, and thought fo well of this Science, that by a Decree of the Senate it was expresly ordered, that the advice of the Augurs should be exactly followed, without the least deviation from it, as we learn from Cicero in his 2d. Book de Legibus AUGURI PARENTO, Romulus d'd not begin tobuild Rome, till after he had confulted the Augurs, and the other Kings fo lowed his Example in this, having for that end fent for the most skufu; Augurs of Hetruria, to inftruct the young Romin Nobility in that Science, for they did not think it fit to make the Art common, least it should become contemptible, and mercinary, as Gicero tells us, Ne ars tanta propter tomitation hondinum à Religionis Autoritate abdu contro ad provedem, atque quastum. Remulus made a College of a Augurs only taken out of the 3 Tribes, into which he divided the Pe p'e of Rome at first. Servius Tullus added a at . They were all of the Linage of the Nobility, to the Year 454, when under the Confulfhip of Q. Apolius, and M. Valerius Corwines, the Tribunes of the People demanded that the Commonalty should be raised to the Dignity of the Augurs, which was granted afrer fome Contest, and five of the Peop e were advane'd to that Office, and fo the College of Amours was made up of nine Persons till the time of Star, who increased the number to according to Flores, and Titus Livius, and a cording to others to 24. They were goverand by a Person who was called Marifler Colleg i Auguram. Bandes the publick Augurs the Puperors had fome peculiar to themselves, v. ich had their dweiling in their Pa-

The Augurs were at first chosen by the People divided into Curie or Parishes, yet we find that when any one of them died, two of the most ancient chose one of those who studied the Science of Augury, and prefented him to the whole College, who received him after lixamination, and confulted an Augury upon that account to know the Will of the Gods.

Nivertheless we have an Example in Titus Living of an Augur chosen by the People, but force fay it happened only because there was a Contest among the Augurs about the Ele-Stion, for 'tis evident, that the College had Right to choose till the Year 651, when Mirize being Conful the third time, and Lucius Aurelius Oreftes, Gu. Domitius Antbarbus, Tri-Lune of the People being angry with the Au-

I gures, because they did not choose him to that Dignity, caused a Law to be made called Demitia, which gave the right of choofing the Augurs, Chief-Priests, and other Priests to the people of Rome assembled by their Tribes, that he might make the grester Confusion, and fatishe his own Passion the more, as Cicero speaks in his ad. Book of the Agrarian Law.

This was easy for him to do in the Confulthip of Marius, who owed his Dignity and Fortune to the Tribunes of the People, Sometime after Sylla repealed the Domitian Law. and reffered to the Augures the Right of Ele-Stion, but Titus Atticus Labienus Tribune of the Peoples under the Confulfhip of Ciero and Antonius, repealed this latt Law, and reflored the Domitian, which he effected by the Solicitations of Julius Cafar, who thought that if he restored to the People who loved him, the Liberty of chooling Chief-Priefts and Augurs, he should himself be infallibly chosen Chief-Priest, which accordingly happened after the Death of Mesellus Pius, when Cafar was dead, Antonius being Conful, he abrogated the Domitian Law a fecond time, and received Sylla's, that he might have M. Almis lius Lepidus cholen Chief Priest, whose Son he had married to his Daughter.

The Face of Affairs foon changed again, and the Domitian Law was reflored by a Decree of the Senate, which nulled all the Acts of Antonius made on that account, in the Confulthip of C. Vibius Panfa, and Aulus Hirtius, but Augustus having put an end to the Civil Wars. abouthed the Domittan Law for ever, and refiored the ancient Privileges to the August and other Priests, till at last the Emperon affuming an absolute Authority, took to themselves the right of making Chief-Priefts and Augurs, which continued till the Empefor Triedofius as is evident in Pliny Junior, who requeited of Trajan that He would ploufe to honour him with the Dignity of one of the? Epuloues, which were a fort of trieffs, of whom we shall speak in their proper Place.

The Person who was chosen to be an Argur, ought to be of a blameless Life, and fair Reputation, as well as without any bodily Defect. The Ordination of an Augur was not to be reverfed, and he could not be de prived of the Dignity upon any account Whatfoever. He made a Magnificent Feaflat his Entrance upon the Office, to all the reft of the College called Cana Auguralia.

Their Authority and Power fufficiently appears by this Conflitution taken out of the Law of the XII Tables, where it is exprelly oreered, that nothing should be undertaken without them, and whatever they approve of condemn shall be approved or condemned. Que Augur injusta, nefasta, vitiofa, dirave dixerit, irrita, infeftaque funto, quique non paruerit capitale efto They had Power to diffoive Affemblies and remove Magistrates, as Livy relates in several Places. C nful i Augures vitissum Dictatorem pronunciarum. The Judgment of one Augur only was not to be depended on, but all the College being met, was to pronounce the Judgment together, upon the matter propounded, as Alexander ab Alexandrofays. Sed tamen foli Auguri fine Collegio nufpicia interpretari non liquit, totum enim Collegium confere de fenrentiam ferre decebat. Which was enacted to prevent any Inconvenience that might as ite, by the Ignorance or Malice of a fingle Perion, who might be corrupted.

The Senate might meet in no Place, but what was confecrated by them, and if while it was affembled, they observed any Sign of ill Luck, they had a Power to difmits it, as also to depose any Magistrate, when his Eleation was made contrary to the Solemnity of

There were several Sorts of Auguries, and diverse Ceremonies observed in taking of them.

To understand this, we are to know, that the Word AUGUR, taken in a general Signification, comprizeth Divination by the Entrais of Beafts, which they flew; but to take it in its proper and natural Signification, in fignifies only, a Prediction by Birds, of which there are three Sorts. AUGURIUM AUSPICIUM, and TRIPUDIUM SOLISTIMUM.

When the Auguries favoured any Action, they called them Profpera, and the sugares being confulted, answered id aver addicum; but when they opposed it, they rermed them adversa, infaulia, & piacularia, and the Augur answered, id aves abdicunt.

If the Auguries prefented themselves before the Augurs fought them, they were called Oblativa, but if they appeared not till begged, they were termed impetrita

The Auguries which were taken from certain Appearances in the Air, were the most confiderable, and fo'emn of all others, as not being capable to be reiterated the same Day. and diffolved Affemblies, if a Magistratedefired to prevent an Affembly of the People, or put it off to another time, he would fet up in the Crofs-ways that he observed the Signs of the Heavens that day, and so that wholly put off ; alio die dixerit,

But the Senate perceiving the Abuse, which that Custom had brought in, ordered, that notwithstanding these Notices, an Assembly from fitting.

This Sort of Augury, which they called Augurium de Calo, or, Jervare de Calo, was taken from extraordinary and fudden Signs, which they observed in the Heaven.

Now among these Signs there were some called Bruta, or Vana, which foreshewed nothing, others were called Fatidica, which portended Good or Evil, and of these last, some were called Confliara, which happened when they were deliberating about any Affair, and feemed to advise it others Audoritativa or Autheritatis, which came after the thing done, and confirmed or approved it.

Lastly, there were others called; Postularia. which obliged to repeat the Sacrifices, and other Monitoria, which admonished what to

All times, and every Day of the Year were not proper to take Augmies. Plutarch tells us, that Metellar the Chief-Priest, forbad to take Auguries after the Month of August, because the Birds shed their Feathers at that time : Or in any Month of the Year immediately after the Ider, because the Moon then began to decrease, or on any Day after

The Place on which an Augary was taken. was a rifing Ground, and for that Reafon was called, Timplum, Arm, or Auguraculum, according to Fillus. There was a Field fer apart for it a little distance from Rome, called Ager effains, as Servins upon Virgil observes.

When all things were fitly disposed to take an Augury, and after all Ceremonies were performed, the Augur entred into his Tent or Pavilion, cloathed with his Augural Robe. called Lana or Trabea, holding in his right Hand his Augural Staff called Lituus, crooked at the top much like a Bishops, or Abbots Crosser, where being fer down, he casts his Eves round him, and divides the Heaven into Four Parts with his Staff, drawing a Line from the East, named Antica, to the West. named Polica, and another Cross it from, South to North, called Dextra and Siniffra.

This Ceremony being performed he facrificed to the Gods, making this Prayer to them, as it is related to us by Livy, at the Election of Numa.

Jupiter Pater, si est fas hanc Numam Pempilium cujus ego capu: tenco, Regem Romæ effe,ut tua ligna nobis certa er clara lint inter cos fines quos feci. This Prayer being made, the Augur returned to his Seat and poked about very attentively to observe from what Part, and in what manner the Sign from Heaven appeared.,

There was a deep Silence for that time. every one joining his Prayers and Vows fummoned in due form, should not desist to the Prayers and Vows of the Augur. This shews us the meaning of that Latin Expression, sedere Augurem, which is as much as to say to attend the Augure, or some sign from Heaven to know the Will of the Gods about any undertaking.

When he faw any Lightning appear, or heard any Clap of Thunder from the left Side, that was taken for a favourable Prefage, as Virgil teaches us.

Audiit & Cali genitor departe forena. Intenuit Lavum, Æneid. lib. IX. v. 630.

Denatus explaining these Verses assures us, that what they heard from the less side came from the right of the Gods. Quia sacrificantis Latus lavam, dextrum est ejus, qui possulta largiur.

If there appeared nothing but a Wind, they trock notice from what Quarter it came, supposing that the Winds were the Messengers of the Gods, which discovered their Will to Men, as Seasius teaches us, &c.

Bellorum proferre diem

Which is confirmed by Lutiatius, who tells us that the Augure knew future things, by the blowing of the Wind. Solent Augures ventorum flatieus futures cognoscere.

When the Augur had received some favourable Presiges, he came down from the Place on which he frood, and declared it to the People in these Words. Id aues addisonse, the Gods approve it, the contrary is, id aues addisons. the Gods disalow it.

They observed, that the Gods confirmed a Presage by some new Sign, as Virgil makes Eneas speak to Anchises.

Da deinde aunilium Pater, atque hac omnia

firma. Æneid. Lib. II. v. 691.

All that we have faid about taking diagnetes from the Signs of Heaven, is likewife practified in the diagnete taken from the chipping or flight of Birds. The diagn diffinguishes with his diagnet Staff the Regions of the Heaven and Earth, in which compass he intends to take an Augury, having first made a Prayer to the Gods. This diagney is called Ofeinum, and they that take it Office.

The different manner of the flying of Birds, makes them fometimes be called imifra, an iii Omen, fometimes Functive or Acule, Fatal, and which prohibit any Action; sometimes Drvie; which thew a Difficulty in the Execution; sometimes Rumera, which hinder it, and sometime Intera, which betoken some Impediment, and lastly, sometimes Altera, when a second Presage destroys the first.

The Ancients were so much addicted to these Superstitions, that they never would undertake any thing without taking a sign from the Birds. In the great Affairs of the Common-wealth, they confulted the Signs of the Heavens, in those of Wars, the chartering, and flight of Birds, and their manner of eating their Mear, and for that end they fed Poultry in Coops, which they called holy Pullen, and which they fetched commonly from the Island of Eubea, and he that had the keeping of these Poultry. Was called Pullerium, suith Citers.

The Conful gave him Notice, who had the Care of this Poultry to get all things ready to take the fign; then he flung Corn to the Poultry, if they ear it greedily, moving faftwith their Feet, and crowding abour, this was a favourable Omen, but if on the contrary, they refused to eat or drink, it was, an unfortunat Sign.

an unfortunat sign.

This is the Form which they used in taking a Sign. They always consulted some skilful Persons in those sorts of Divinations. "Quinte Fabi, te vale mihi in Maspicio esse, or in Musiciam adhibier, dictio si scenario, and sind would affir me in taking a Sign; tell me, "it all the Ceremonies used in the like Case, "have been exactly observed, and if the Sign be not defective. He answered, Silentium, offe videtur, nothing is wanting. DIC 170, "si passiuntur Avuil qual aut ubi? Attulic in "caves pulse Fullarium. Tell me, whether "the Birds eat or no? They eat and the "Poultry keeper hath brought the Pullen into," the Coop.

The Veneration for Auguries, was fo strongly imprinted on the Minds of the Remans, that they looked upon thems Impious. Perfons, who contemned or derided them, attributing the Misfortunes which happened to Cleudius Pulchers, to the Anger of the Gods, who seeing that the Poultry would not eat, threw them into the Sea, saying in Raillery, They'l drink at least if they will not eat.

There was a College of 300 Augurs, at AUGUSTUS, Othervisu Cafar furnamed Angufus, by the Senate, an Epithet, which the Romans gave to their Gods, as well as Emperors. He was the Son of Offavium the Prator, and Accia, great Grand Child of Julius Cafar who adopted him. Observe what Vetravius says in his Presace to his Six Booms of Architecture, which he dedicated to him.

"When I confider, Sir, that by Vertue of your divine Genius, you are become "Mafter of the whole World, that your in"vincible Valour has vanquished all your "Enemies, and gloriously protected your "Subjects, for which all Nations pay Home"age to you, that the People and Senare of "Asserted build the Assurance of the Peace

"which they enjoy, upon the Wildom of your Government only. When I restell upon "the large Extent of your Mind, whose "cares are not confined to the Affairs of "state, but has regard to the most minute
"advantages of the publick, I observe, that "you are not content to make the City of "Rome the Mistress of so many Provinces,
"as have submitted to her, but you make her
"admirable for the excellent Structure of her "great Buildings, and that you will have their Magniscence to equal the Majesty of "your Empire.

indeed there never was a Prince, that was more Magnificent in his Buildings, or more Liberal than Augustus, having built many Temples to the Gods, at Rome and elsewhere.

He cemposed several ingenious Works, which discover his Personal Learning, but they are lost through the Injuries of Time, As his Exhertations to Philosophy. 13 Books of his Life, the Funeral Orations of Julia his Aunt, Osavia his Sister, Druss Marcellus and Agripa, his Treatises of Government, a Poemon Sieity, the Tragedies of Jax and Achillus, and several other Greek and Latin Works, which he read, says Successius, in the Senate, and before the People.

Being Conful the fixth time, and feeing his Power established by the Defeat of Lepidus and Antonius, which put an end to that cruel Tri-umverate, he abolished the Laws which he had made in his Usurpation, and made others, says Tacitus, by which the People might live in Peace under his Empire : He died at Nols in the 67th. Year of his Age, and left only one Daughter, and she very loofe and wicked. His Will was brought to the Senate by the Vestal Virgins; he made Tiberius and Livia his Heirs, adopting him into the Family of the Cefars, and giving her the Title of Empress. He gave to the People of Reme, 43500000 Sefferces, a 1000 to every Souldier of his Guards, and gon to them in the Legions. His Body was carried to the Fire upon the Senators Shoulders, and burnt in Mars's Field, which he had appointed for his Burial. He refuled the Dignity of Dictater and King, and was content with a more modest Title, the Prince of the Senate. His Funeral being performed, Pemples, and Divine Honours were appointed him, not only at Rome, but also almost in all Places with Sacrifices and Prieffs.

A Society of 25 Priefts was inflituted in Imitation of that, which Thus Tarimintroduced long before at Rome, to prefere ve formething of the Religion of the Sabins. This TONINI.

Society consisted of 21 of the chief Men of the City, which were chosen by Lot, and Tiberius, Drafus, Claudius and Germanicus were added to them.

One Month in the Roman Calendar, which before was called Sexillis, was named from him, Augustus. He was the first that bore the name of Patter Patrie, according to the Testimony of Pliny, which Title also Ovid gives him.

Sancte Pater Patria, tibi plebs, tibi Caria

Hoc dedit. Faft. Lib. II. v. 127.

Tiberius his Successor began to build him a Temple at Rome, which was finished by Cali-gula, and repaired by Antoninus Pius, as his Meduls shew.

AUGUSTALES, and SODALES AUGUSTALES. Augustines, or a Society of Priests, instituted in Honour of Augustus, after the Romans in Flattery had ranked him amongst the Number of the Immortal Gods. It was the Emperor Tiberius, who founded this Seciery or College, which he called A U G U. S T A L E S, to offer Sacrifices in the Temple he had built for him, appointing a Revenue for their Subfistence. This was not only done at Rome, but also in the Provinces of the Gauls, and chiefly at the City of Lyon. where he had a Magnificent Temple built to him at the Expence of Twelve Cities, in which was a Statue for every Province, to to shew to Posterity; that they all had contributed to the adorning of that Temp!e.

Tis credible, that that Temple flood where now is the Abby of Aifnay at that Place, where the Saws and the Rhome join, for there are yet some Ruins of it, which are Cast Pillars, as is justified by a certain ancient Marble, which is to be seen at Lyons in the Church of St. Peter belonging to the Nuns.

JOVI OP. MAX.
Q. ADICINNIUS URBICI.
F.L. MARTINUS SEQ.
SACERDOS ROMÆ ET AUGUST.
Ad aram ad Confluence Aravis, & Rhedani
FLAMEN

VIR IN CIVITATE SE.
QUANORUM.

Thus Flatte, v and Superstition increasing, communities of Priests were at length instituted in Honour of the Emperors whom they defined after their Death, and called them by the general Name of Angustales, or by the Name of the Emperor to whose Service they were consecrated, as FLAVII, ADRIANALES, ELIANI, ANTONINI.

Bur that which made these Societies more eminent and famous was this that the new Emperors themselves entred among them in Imitation of Tiberius, who entred himfelf into the number of the Priefts of Augustus, and caused Drulus Germanicus and Claudius to do the like. Mre also did the same, and therein was followed by other Emperors.

AUGUSTALIA, Feafts, celebrated O.fob. 12. for the happy Return of Auguffus to Rome, after he had lettled Sicily, Greece, Syria, Afia, and Parthia in Peace, and to that end an Altar was built with this Title.

Fortuna Reduci.

AUGUSTALES, Plays instituted in Honour of Augustus. The publick Plays, fays Tacitus, newly confecrated to the Memory of Augustus were interrupted at the first Show by the Emulation of the Actors. This Prince had before shewed, that he was much pleafed with these forts of Diversions in Favour of Macenas, who was passionately in Love with a Mimick, named Batillut.

AURELIUS, Marcus Awelius, the Roman Emperor, who was adopted by Antoninus. His Medals represent him with a grave and modest Countenance, which the Philosophers affected. He imitated them with their long Beard, and was furnamed the Philosopher, to honour him for the Inclination which he had for their Learning and way of living. The title of the Speech of Athenagoras who was fent to this Prince to make an Apology for the Christian Religion, is in thele Terms. TO THE EMPE-RORS MARCUS AURELIUS ANTONINUS, AND LUCIUS AURELIUS COMMODUS, ARMENIANS, SARMATIANS, AND WHICH IS MORE, PHI-LOSOPHERS. And the beginning of the Life of Marcus Anrelius written by Capitolinus is in th-fe Terms. MARCO ANTONINO IN OMNI VITA PHILOSO-PHANTI VIRO. He allo often repears this Sentence of Plate. That those States are most flourishing where Philosophers ruled, or where the Rulers fludied Philosophy. He was a meek Prince, a Wife, Prudent, Soher, Liberal, and great Captain. He was fickly through his Application to Study.

AURELIA PORTA, the Aurelian Gate, above the Janiculus, to called from one Aur liut, a Person who had been Contul. 'Tis called at prefent, St. Panerace Gate

AURELIANUS, an Hungarian, (fome affign Dacia or Mysia for his Country) a Man of an obscura Birth. He was raised to the Throne by the Legions, after he had with Honour, which was the Reason that the Senate and People received him with great Applause.

He fubdued the Scythians and Marcomanni. after which Victory he exercited great Cruelties at Rome, upon all Sorts of People. Nevertheless he did one Act of Clemency, when he rook the City of Tyana in Cappadocia. "He met with to great Oppositions, that he "Iwore in his Wrath, he would not leave " fo much as a Dog alive. He got into the " City by the Treachery of One of the Inha-" bitants, and when the Souldiers began to " plunder, and put all the Citizens to the "Sword, according to his Refolution he told "them, that he would allow them to kill " all the Dogs.

He made War with Zenobia, who kept the Eastern Enpire after her Husband Odenatus. The Oneen knew all the Oriental Languages perfectly, and spoke the Greek and Latin in their Purity. Trebellius Polite fays, the was the fairest and most valiant of all Women. the made the whole East to tremble, beat the Leiutenants of the Emperor Gallienus, and maintained a fout War against the Romans, in which the Emperor Aurelian conquered herand carried her Captive to Rome. Several blamed him for this Action, but hewrote a Letter to the Senate and the Peopleof Rome to excuse himself, and in it gives fuch a Commendation of this unfortunate Princefs, as if she were one of the most formidable Enemies, that the Empire ever had.

After this famous Victory, Aurelian built a Temple for the Sun at Rome, and enriched it with the Spoils of the Palmyrians, and the Images of the Sun and Belus which he brought from Palmyra, as Herodian affures us.

He was flain between Byzantium and Heracles. as he went to the War against the Persians, by the most valiant Men of his Army, who believ'd this a false Slander of his Secretary, named Menefibeus, that he fought their Livesin the 6th, or 7th year of his Reign.

AURIGARII, AURIGÆ, AURIGATORES, Coach-men, who in the publick Plays of the Cirque disputed with the Competitors, with whom they contended in driving the Chariots for the Prizes, which were proposed. They made up certain Colleges, or Societies, which are diffinguished by Colours, of which we read the 4 Principal in Genters Inscriptions, viz. Ruffatam, the Red, Prainam, the Green, Venetam, the Blew, and Albatam, the White. The Ancients thought that the 4 Seasons of the Year were represented by them, in which Nature takes a new Habit, or as we now speak, evepassed through all the Offices of the Army | ry Troop representing one of the Seasons by its colour, the Green, the Spring, the Red, the Summer, the Blew, the Autumn, and the White, the Winter, because it is covered with Snow and Ice.

AUS

AURORA, the Mother of Memnon. The Poets have feigned her to be the Day-break, which gives notice of the rifing of the Sun above our Hemesphere, as Orpheus speaks, affahteid Die Traves. She was the Daughter of Hyperion, and Thia, as Hefted tells us in his Theogonia, and according to others of Titan, and the Earth. Some give her the Epithet of Augura Sipog , Torch bearer, because of the Light the imparts to the Earth, as also Adu-Brightness. The Poets represent her drawn in a Chariot, having her Fingers dropping with Dew. The Fable is that having one Day at the rifing of the Sun cast her Eye upon Tithonus the Brother of Lamedon, a young Prince of fingular Beauty, the fell in Love with him, and carried him into Ethiopia where the had Memnon by him.

AURUM, Gold, a yellow Metal, the most thining, ducti'e, heavy, and precious of all Metals. It is taken out of the Mines in 3 Forms. 1. Of Grains, of which fome are round, others broad and long. 2. In a kind of Stone. 3. In Duft, or Sand. The most famous Country for finding of Gold is Caribana in Peru, and Pallivia in Chili. Pliny fays, that Gold was brought into the indier by flying Aunts; but he wir misinformed.

The Poets have feigned Awam to bothe Son of the Sun, as being its best Production, Pindar fays, that Gold is a bright hire that fhines in the Night.

Homer compares it to the Graces, for there is nothing to agreeable and we'come as Gold. which Thirthimfelf makes use of to gain the Favour f his Mittreffes, as he did to Dange, by changing himfelf into a shower of Gold.

Gold was very scarce at Rome at first, but it became more common afterwards. Appian tells us, that m'ins Calar brought from the Gauls to Rome 100 Markes of Gold in 2822 Crowns by the Victories which he had gained there, and this Gold was called Aurum Coronarium.

The Go'd which the Conful Cepie took our of the Temp'e of Jupiter at Theloufe, amounting to 900-0 o of Gold, but it proved unlucky to him, being defeated by the imbri. whence came the Proverb, AURUM THOLOSANUM, to fignifie a fatal Thing, wh h brings Ill-luck.

AUSPICIUM, it was a kind of Augury mongh the Ancients, when they confidered the Flight and Chirping of Birds, to know whither any Undertaking which they were about, would prove Happy, or Unfor tunate. Pliny attributes the Invention of Au-

Spicium to Tirefias the Tothan, who studied the Flight of Birds, ab avium alpettu; and of Augury to Caras, ab avium garritu, from their Chipping, and Chattering. Clemens Alexandrinus will have the Phryzians to be the first who observed the Flight of Birds, which they called, Prapeter, as those were call'd Ofeines, who observed their Chirping, and manner of Eating.

In this Senie we must understand this Verse of Horace, lib. 111. Od. 27.

Oscinem corvum prece suscitabo Solis ab ortu.

The Three most considerable Birds, were the Raven, the Crow, and the Owl, as also the Eagle, Vultur, and Kite.
Romaius instituted Aufpicia at Rome.

A USPEX, he that took the Auspicium

by the flight of Birds, fee A U G U R. AUTUMNUS, Autumn, the ad. Seafon of the Year, when they gather the Grapes.

and Fruits.

Hand in his Theogonia makes the Seafons the Daughters of jupiter, and Themis, and counts but three, as Orpheus does, in which Poldias follows him, having carved but 3 Statues of these Goddelles. The Experians owned by three, Spring, Summer, and Autumn, a owing each 4 Months, and reprefenting them by a Rote, an Ear of Corn, and an Apple, or Grape. Nonnus about the end of the E'eventh Book of his Dionyflacks, reckons 4 Seal ins in the Year, as does Philefloata, Winter, Spring, Summer, Autumn. The Sections lay he, have Eyes of this Colour of dryeu Rofes, the Dau, hters of the inconflant Year, twift of Foot, as a Storm of Wind.

There is at Medon an Autumn of Marble. made by one vr. James a Native of Angoulefme, under the bigure of a young Man Crowned with Vine Branches, and Grapes, which he made at Rome in the Year 1550.

S the 2d. Letter in the Alphabet in all. Languages, the Hebrewscall it Beth, and the Greeks, Beta, and the Latines, Be, as the English do, and its Pronunciation imitates the . Cry, or Bleeting of Sheep.

This Letter is in the number of those Confonants, which we call Mutes, because they have a Sound more low, and indistinct than others.

B. and P. have fo near a Relation one to a. nother, that Quintilian tells us, that in obeinuit. Reason Requires, that we write a b, but the Ears can hear nothing but a p. optimus. This is the cause that in ancient Infcriptions. and old Glossaries; these two Letters are of tem put one for epocinus, gipen, for sbfeus, obtimus, for epocinus, gipen, for plebs, ppfleus, for publicus, and the like. Hence it is, that we fill write fuppers, for fubpens, eppens, for obposs, and feveral Nations often pronounce one of these Letters for the other, as the German, who say, passen vinum, for benum winum, and the like.

The Greeks often change these two Letters, one for the other, and Phienreb assures us, it was usual with the Priests of Delphot to say, Balwe, for when, and Bings, for magnitude of the same that as often as it follows an S. we fill change b into p. seribo, serific, as the Greeks say, Anisa, Anisa, Anisa, S. B. lays, Prissan, can never be put before S. in any Syllable.

'Tis in conformity to this use that the Lation have taken paico, from βόσω, pape, from βάβω, buxus from πύζΘ, pade, from βίλο, puteus, from βίλο, and the like; as the Greekes have taken πύργω Turru, from the Phenician word Boure.

'Tis also common to these two Letters to creep into words without occasion; as abjores, for appres of finality, for affendie, by fentul for e-fientul, and from hence it comes, that from urre, we say computers, and according to Nonnine, tellore is used for celese.

From kence allo it comes, that the Greeks tometimes translate those Latin Words, by a B, that begin with V, as Bakings, for value.

But this affinity of B with V, does but little favour the Pronunciation of the Spanistrds, and Gascoiners, who alway pronounce V for B, and B for V.

And although this Error be no small one, yet 'us more ancient, than it is commonly thought; for not only Admanstiva Ipeaks very particularly of it in Caffidorus, but we reter with many Examples of it upon Old Marble, as BASE for VASE, CIBICA, for CIVICA, and in like manner V is put for B, VENEFICIUM for BENEFICIUM for BENEFICIUM; SIBE for SIVE. And in the Pandects of Florence, Au to for a see, VOBEM, for BOVEM, VESTIAS, for BESTIAS, and the like.

But besides this Resemblance that B has with V continuant, it has the same with F, or $\delta$, for we say Bruges for Fruges, as Cicero orderves; from $F$\text{spin}$ comes from and on the contrary we say, fiftere for sibilare, from whence come the Branch word Siffer; af nobic is used for ab nobia, and we still write Suffere for subfrer, sufficie for subfrer, sufficie for subfrer, sufficie for subfusia. And according to Pesser, Album is derived of Super alort of white Scurfe, or rough Tettar; and from Super comes Anno Bamong the Greek is a Numeral Letter, and fignifies Two, but when an Acure Accent is fet at the bottom of it, it expresses Two Thousand.

BAAL, or Rel, is named the most frequently in Scripturei of all the False Gods. The Hebrew or Phenician Word sigsignifies a Lord. It was commonly used by the Africans in Carthage, as descending from Tyre in Phenicia, as Servius explains these Words of Virgil.

Impieveritque meropaieram, quam Belus & omnes A Bela folisis. Kneid. Lib. I. v. 733. and uses these words. Lingua Panica Bal Deus dictiur, apud Mijrios autem Bel dicisur Saturnua, & Sol. All these proper Names, whether African or Affrian come from it, Annibal, Astrobal. Adherbal.

Servius Was not the only Person, that believed that Baal was Sasurm. Eusebius speaks the same in his Chronicon. There arms XXIX. Asspriarum Ren primus Belus mortuus oft, quem Assprii Deum municarunt, & alli dicans Sasturum. Inophilus Archbishop of Antioch, tells us also that the Eastern People Worshipped Chro-

But if on the other fide, Servius fays, that Bai is the Sun, he has fome that defend his Opinion. Helysbiur tells us, that Bina, fignifies naces, & Bankles Phrygierum lingud (Rex) The fame Author adds, that in Cree the Sun was worsnipped under the name of Abelius. The Emperor Heliogabalus feems to have had both the Names of the Sun, MAIOS, and Bal, or Bel united in his. Selden, from whom this is taken fays that Heliogabalus comes from Hagel Band, id eft Retundus D.us, which agrees with his Image, which was according to Heredian a round Stone in shape like a Cone. Eusebins is of the same opinion, or at least affures us, that it was the Opinion of Souce. niathen, who fays, that it was to the Sun, that the Name of Beelfamen, that is to fay, the King of Heaven, was given.

We must not believe that these two Opinions are contrary to one another, because the Phenician take Sayum for the Sun, as Serwing tells us in the same Place, Assurance, guem condem or Solem dicume Jununingue chassis.

BABYLO, Babylon. The Scriptures gives us this account of the Original of this City.

The Orgia, Bacchanals, Liberales, and Dis-

"When Men were multiplied after the af-" ter the Flood, they departed from the Eaft, " and found a Plain in the Country of Shinar, "where they fettled themselves. Then they " faid one to another, come, let us make Bricks, "and burn them in the Fire. Then they "took Brick instead of Stone, and Slime in " flead of Mortar, and said, let us build us a "City, and a Tower, whose top may reach " unto Heaven, and let us make our felves "fooken of, before we are separated one "from another. But the Lord came down " to fee the City and Tower which the Chil-"dren of Men had built, and faid, let us go "down, and confound their Language, that "they may not understand one another, and " from hence it was called. Confusion.

This City thus named Confusion is Babylon, and profune Hiftory much celebrates it, by which it feems that the Giant Nimrod was the Founder of it. This the Scripture had intimated before, faying. "That Babylon was "the Chief of his Kingdom, although it was " not come to that Point of Grandure, which "the Impiety and Pride of Men had deter-" mined to bring it. Bidinur and Sabellieus confound it very unfitly with Sufa, and others with Bagdat, or Bagdet, or Bagadet in our times, for the one was fituate on the Banks of Emphrates, and the other flands on the fide of Tygris, some Ruins of it are to be seen at this Day, Forty Miles diffant from this latter. as the Authors who have feen it reftify. Joleshus will have it, that this Work was undertaken, that they might have a Retreat from an other Flood if it should happen, but that's only the Imagination of this Author. Some make Semiramis the Foundress of this City. but the only increased and beautified it. having encompassed it with a Brick-wall cemented together with Slime, after the had built several beautiful Ædifices with very pleafant Gardens, in which she set on work more than 200000 Men for feveral Years.

BABYLONIC1, Buylonians, a very voluptuous People, who worthipped the Fire. They washed their Bodies after their Death, and wrapping them up in Cerecloth covered them over with Honey. Ninus, one of their Kings, being slain in the Battel which he lost with Zerosifiers King of the Battel which he lost with Zerosifiers King of the Battelians, was buried in a Tomb, and Oil Belut caused himself to be put after his Death into a glass Urn full 4f Oyl, which he ordered to be inclosed in a Magnificent Monument.

BACCHANALIA, Bacchanals, celebrated in Honour of the God Bacchas, and which were called Liberales, or Orgie, or Distributes.

nyfiacs are usually taken for the same, but there was a difference between those Pagan termones, for the Feashs of Libr, or Libra, were celebrated in Honour of Libr or Bucklu every Year on March the 17th. when the Young Men between 16 and 17 Years Old, put off their Garment bordered with Purple, called Pratests to take the Taga virilis from the Hands of the Prætor with a Surname, which made them capable of going to the War, and of the Offices of the Commonwealth. But the Backhanali were kept every Month, and the Dionysiacs or Orgie every Three Years, which gave them the name of Trietrics.

Macrobius, in the first Book of his Saturnalia, Chapter 18. Having proved by good Reasons that Bacchas and Apple are but one thing, adds, that the Bacchamits were celebrated every two Years upon Mount Parnissus, dedicated to Apallo, and the Moses, where the Satyrialstifted.

Authors refer the Institution of the Feast of Bacebus to the Atheniams, which passed at first for very honest Plays, and Metriments among the Pagam. They carried a Barrel of Wine wound about with Vine-Branches loaded with Grapes. They drew an Hee-Goat by the Horns, to facrifice him with a Basker full of Figs and Grapes, having their Heads crowned with Vine Branches, and the Baceba which were the Priests of that God, held in their Hands Staves twifted with Ivy, dancing and wantonly playing in the Streets, and crying Evobe, that is to say, an happy Life.

But these Feasts were in length of time changed into a licentious use of all Sorts of Debaucheries.

Varro tells us, that in certain Places of Italy, thefe Feafts of Liber or Bacchus were celebrated with fuch Liberty, that they worshipped in Honour ofhim, the Privy Members of a Man, and that not in fecret to preferve themfelves from Difgrace, but in publick, to glory in their Wickedness; for they placed them honouraby upon a Chariot, which they drove through the City, after they had first curried it through the Country. But at Lavinium there was a whole Month fpent in the Feafts of Liber only, during which time the greatest Fi'thinesses were acted, till the Charior had croffed the publick Place, and was come to the House where it was appointed. that the thing it carried should be put ; after which, the most honest Matrons of the Ciry, was obliged to go and crown that infamous Depotitum before the whole Multi-

The Romans were not more moderate in these

these abominable Practices. It was a certain the Hebrew word Thaha, that is to fay, to Greek, of a base Birth, a Priest, and Diviner, skilful in the hidden Mysteries of these Sacrifices, as Livy fays, who first fettled this Feast in Tuscany, and from thence it came to Rome. A Company of married Women only, met in the Night to celebrate those Mysteries of the God at first, but a Woman named Paucula of Pauua, a Stage-Player by Profesfion, admitted Girls and Boys of all Ages, and conditions to them, who in the darkness of the Night defiled themselves with all Sorts of Abominations, and Lewdnesses, but at last the Diforder and Loofeness of these Feafts grew to high, that the Confuls Spurius, Posibumius, Albinus, and Quintus Martius Philippu, made fecret Enquiry into the Superfition of their Bacchanals, which they performed in the Night with fuch abominable Lascivousness, and utterly abolished them, having found Seven Thousand Persons of that infamous Society.

Nevertheless part of those Superstitious Ceremonies were again effab ished according to the Humour of those Times, and an ele Woman went about crowned with Ivy having a Company of other rearing Women to attend her, who imitated hir in her Gate, and lafcivious Postures, who all cried out with a loud Voice, Evobe.

She carried a Cake made with Honey, of which the gave a Piece to every one the

The Athenians also celebrated a Feast to Bacehus, during which the young Maids carried gilt Baskets full of Fruit, and this Feaft was called CANEPHORIA, and the Maids CANEPHOR Æ, from the two Greek Words, which fightfy to carry a Bafker. The regimbians put a Serpent into this Basker, for the Celebration of their Mysteries, dedicated to the Worship of Bacchus, This is what Catullus would have us to understand by rais Verse.

Pars obliura cavis celebrabant Orgia Ciftis. They had a Cover, that they might preferve the Mysteries of Bacchus, and hide them from the Eyes of those, that were not initiated, whom they treated as Pro-

BACCHA, Priesteffes of Bacchus, Manades, Baffarides, or Thyades, the Ministers of the God Bacchus, who celebrate his Orgia or

The Bacche, which accompanyed the Troops of Bacchus, took their Name from the Hebrew Word Paca, which fignifies to lament and howl, for Lamentations, Cryings, and Howlings were very common in the Mysteries of Eacthus. They were also called Thyades from cry and run up and down. They are also named Mamallonides, from the Hebrew Memallelar, i.e. Praters and Talkative-Persons.

These raving Women were clothed with Tygers and Panthers Skins, with their Hair all loofe, throwing their Head backward. They were crowned with Ivy, carrying in their left Hand, a Thyrfe, which was a Pince Staff. Tacitus speaking of one of these Bacche, fays, Ipfa orine fluxo thyrjum quatiens, and Sidenius Apollinaris describing the Troops of Barchus, makes mention of the Thirle, Tie ger-skins, and Drums.

They went through the Mountains in the Company of Bacchus, crying out like mad Perfens, and often repeating Evole Bacche. that is to fay, let Bacchus live happily. (An Epithet, which was given him by Jupiter, when in the War with the Giants, Bacchus being transformed into a Lion, vented his Fury on them, and tore them in pieces.)

BACCHUS, the Son of Jupiter and Semcle. Apollodorus in his third Book of the Original of the Gods, gives us this Relation of the Nativity of Bacchus. " Cadmus, fays he. " had Four Daughters, Antinoe, Ino, Semele, "and Agave, with a Son named Polydorus, Ino married Athamas, Antinoe Ariflaus, and " Agave Echion. As for Semele, Jupiter was " in Love with her, and withdrawing him-" self from the Embraces of Juno, he gained the Favour of his Mistress. June envying "the Happiness of her Rival, disguised her felf to cheat her, and taking the Shape of " Beroc Semele's Nurse, the informed her that to be affured of the Love of Jupiter, the ought " to pray him to shew himself to her, in all "his Glory. Jupiter having confented to it. "Semele was not able to endure his Splendor "and Majesty, but the Fire of his Lightning " laid hold on the Roof of the Chamber, " and confumed it. All that could be done in this Surprize, was to fave the Child " (for the had been big fome Months) and to put him very hot into Jupiters Thigh. " where he fulfilled his time, at the end of "which he came out, and was put into the " Hands of Mercury, the Messenger of the "Gods, and the Confident of their Love, who " carried him first to Inchis Aunt, and to her 'Husband Athamas, to take care to nurse " him and bring him up, but Morofe June, resolving to shew her Displeasure to them, " caused Athamas to flay his eldest Son Learchus as he was a hunting, taking him for a " Deer, whereupon Ino cast her se finto the " Sea with her Son Melicerta. Then Jupiter " to free little Backbus from the Fury and Per-" secutions of June changed him into an HeeGoat for a certain time. When he recover'd " his first Form, Mercury carried him to the " neighbouring Nymphs of the City Ny/a in " afia to complear his Education, who na-" med him Dieny fus from the Name of his "Father and of his Country. Lucian lays, that Bacchus affumed the Shape of an Hee-Goat, to furprize Penelope, the Daughter of learns, whom he forced in Arcadia, and had Pan by her.

The Theology of the Egyptians, and ancient Greeks teaches us, that Bacchus or Dionyfur is an Emanation or divine Power, and confounds him with Phebus, Apello, Plute, Apis, Anabis, and Ofyris.

It also confounds him with Janus, and Neab, and reprefents him by a Triangle, which is a Figure of the Divinity according to the Ancients; and Plutarch undertakes to prove, that Bacchus is the God of the Hebrews. and that all the Observations of the Jews are nothing else but the Ceremonies of Bac-

Homer as well as all the rest of the Greek Poets makes Bacchus the Son of Jupiter and Semele; but Pausanias delivers the rest of his Story after a different manner. "The Inha-"bitants, faith he, of the City of Brafias hold "that Semele having brought forth Bacchur, "Cadmus her Father being angry at it shut " up both the Mother and the Child into a " Chest, and threw them into the Sea, which " cait them upon the Coaft of the Brafians, " who taking it out of the Water, opened it, " and found that the Mother was already " dead, but the Infant being alive, they cau-"fed it to be nourifhed and brought up. "They add, that Ino wandring at that time "was his Nurfe, and they shew a Cave, " where she nursed him, which to this Day " is called Bacchas's Cave. Upian in Athe-" neus's Dipnosophistes, after Euhemerus of the " Ifle of Coos, in Book 30. of his History, relates that Cadmus the Grandfather of Bacchus. was Cook to the King of the Sidenians, and having debauched a dancing Maid of that Kings, named Harmonia, he had by her Semele the Mother of Bacchus.

Lucian in his Dialogue between Jupiter and June makes them fpeak thus. June. "I am "alhamed, O Jupiter, to have such a drunken " and effeminate Son, as this of thine is, "who is always in the Company of certain " mad Women, and who are more masculine "than he. Jupiter. But this effeminate Man "has conquered Thrace and Lydia, and fubje-" Eted the Indies to himfelf, having made the "King Prisoner with all his Elephants; and " which is most strange, he did all this with "his leaping and dancing among the Women, at the found of the Drum and Flute. and for the most part drunk. If any One dare speak of his Mysteries, he will take them in his Chains, and Agave herfelf, has "torn in Pieces her Son Penthius. Is not " this Great and Worthy of Jupiter? What " will he not do when he is fober, fince "he does fo great things when he is "The fame Lucian in Bacchut, relates his " Expedition to the Indies thus: Bacchus fays "he, attempted the lualer, notwirhstanding "the Raillery of some, and Compassion of " others who believed that he would be crush-" ed by the Elephants, if he elcaped the Fury " of their Arms, for his Army was only made "up of Women moved with divine Fury, " who instead of Bucklers carried Drums, " and Cymbols; for Javelins, Staves twifted a-"bout with lvy; for Arms, Garlands of "the fame Tree, and for Armour, Skins of "Hinds and Panthers. They were attended " with a Troop of Satyrs, who did nothing "but leap, and skip like Kids, whose Tails and Horns they have. Bacchus also had "Horns and was without a Beard, cloathed " with Purple, and gilded Buskins, and ha-"ving Vine Branches loaden with Grapes, woven between his Locks of Hair. He " rode in a Chariot drawn by Tygers, which was all he had terrible; his Two Lieute-" nants were, the One a little old Man with "a flat Nose, trembling all over, cloathed in "Yellow, with large upright Ears, and a " great Belly, riding for the most part of his time upon an Ass, and for want of that " supported by a Staff, but in all things else "a great Captain; the other a Satyr with " Horns, his Thighs hairy, with the Beard and Feet of an Hee-Goat, holding in his 'left Hand a Flute, and in the other a crook-'ed Staff, and runs through all the Plain. " leaping and dancing, and much terrifying "the Women, for he was hasty and passio-" nate, and when he came near them, they "ran with their Hair flying about their "Shoulders, crying, Evohe, as acknowledg-"ing him for their Master : Nevertheless " these mad Women, among their other ex-" ploits, tore Flocks in pieces and eat their " Fleih raw.

"The Indians feeing fuch a ridiculous "Crew, more fit for a Ball than for a War-"like Encounter, disdained at first to take " Arms, and thought to fend their Women " to fight them, for fear they should difgrace "their Valour by fuch an unworthy Vi-" ctory, but when they understood, that that "Army, though ridiculous, kindled a Fire " every where (for Fire is the Dast of Bec-

"chru, which he hath borrowed from the "Thunder of his Father) they armed them-"felves in halt, and mounting upon their " Elephants came full of Rage and Anger to " encounter these Incendiaries.

"When they came in fight of them, they " put themselves in order for Battel, cove-"ring the Front of their Troops with their E ephants.

" Bacches also mustered his Army, and fet " Silene on his right Hand, which is that " great flat Nos'd Captain above mention'd; " and Pan on his left, and plac'd himfelf in "the middie, after he had disperted the Sa-" tyrs every where, as many Officers, and "Captains, and given them for their word, " Evoke. Immediately the Bacche founded a " Signal with their little Drums and Trum-"pers, and a Satyr having blown his Horn, " the Als of Silene began to bray lo terribly, " that being joyned with the howling of the Bacchæ (who then discovered the Iron of " their Thirfes, and the Serpents they were gir-" ded withal) the Indians and their Elephants "fied before they were within reach of " their Spears, and to they were defeated, and Diodoris in his fecond Book of his Antiquities gives an historical Relation of Bacchiu, and tells us, that the most wife of the Indians 13v. that Bacchus invaded their Country with a great Army from the Western Parts, and that he over-ran all the Indies, not finding any City that dare oppose him; but the great Hears of the Country much incommoding his Army, he left the Plains, and retired with his Army into the hollow of the Mountains, which he called the Thigh, which gave an occasion to the Greeks to feign, that Jupi-Her put him into his Thigh. He taught them afterward how to plant, and dress a Vinevard, caused several Cities to be built among them, and furnished them with Laws, and died after he had reigned over them 52 Years.

Antiquity has given Bacchus feveral Names. He is called BIMATER, that is to fay, One who had Two Mithers, viz. Semele and Jupiter, in whose Thigh he fulfilled his Time, after he was taken out of the Belly of his Mother. He was named Dionysius, from Aide n Num, from Jupiter his Father, and the City ityla, where he was nurfed. Diodorus places this City in Arabia, or in Ægypt on the Confines of Arabia, Arrian, and Quintus Curtius fay 'tis in the Indies, of whole Opinion is Pomponius M la, thus speaking of it. "The "fairest and largest of all the Cities in the " Indies, is Nyfa, where Bacchus was nursed, " which gave occasion to the Greeks to feign " that he was flur up in Jupiter's Thigh. Pliny speaks of another City called Nyls. Which is in Caria. Stephanus reckons Ten of the fame Name in feveral Kingdoms.

Some give him the name of Liber, either because he rejoices, and frees the Mind from the Troubles of Life, or because he obtained Liberty for the Country of Bastia.

He is also surnamed BROMIUS and The Besuffe, from Fear or and this Besette from Thunder, being born of a Mother, who was confumed by Jupiter's Thunder.

He is called LY AUS from the Greek word Aven to drive away, or because Wine excels Grief.

Laftly, some give him the Epithet of Evan. which in the Indian Tongue fignifies Ivv. which is confecrated to him. We fee him fometimes represented to us in the Shape of a Child, holding in his Arm a Bunch of Grapes, and fometimes in the Form of a Man carrying a Pine-branch. We have a reverse of a Medal of Severus, and Julia. where is the Figure of a Chariot drawn by Two Panthers, in which is fet a Young Man holding a Pot in his left Hand, and in the other a Tygers Skin, to shew us, that Bacchus was the Conqueror of the Indies, and other Eastern Countries, because he is pictured in a Triumphal Chariot with a Dartin his Hand, and his Enemy proftrate at his Feet. The Philotopher Albricus tells us, that fome have painted Bacchus with the Face of a Woman. with naked Breafts, and Horns on his Head, crowned with Vine-leaves, and riding upon a Tyger, carrying a Pot in his left Hand, and a Bunch of Grapes in his right.

Some picture Bacchus both Male and Female, as is visible on the Consular Medals of the Caffian Family, which shew us the Figures of Liber, and Libera, i.e. Bacchus both Male and Female. Orpheus in his Hymn against Mile has positively afferted, that Bacthus was ever thought to be of both Sexes: as the greatest part of the Gods are. He had a Magnificent Temple at Rome, in which they facrificed to him Hee-Goats, because they destroy the Vine-branches, and eat the Grapes, as Virgil teaches us.

-Baccho Caper omnibus aris Caditur, Georg. II. v. 380.

BACCHUS, the Son of Jupiter and Semele, otherwise called Dionysius, from the fland Dis, now Naxus, after he had over-run all the East with his Army, subdued the greatest part of the Indies, and taught Men the use of Wine, was put by them into the Number of the Immortal Gods; but when. the Thebans disputed his Dignity, publithing that he was not the Son of Jupiter, but of some Man who had left his Mother, he filled their Women with a divine Fury, to that they ran with their Hair flying about their Shoulders loofe into Mount Cytheren, crying Evole. Tirefias and Cadmus were by this Action convinced of his Divinity, and none but Pentheus opposed it, discourling of the Superstition of the Orgie, and labouring entirely to abolish them; at which the God heing provoked, made him mad also, and drove him into Mount Cytheren, where he was tom in pieces by the Theban Women, who were before turned Furies, and took him for a Lion, and his Mother Azave was the Woman that cut off his Head, not knowing who he was.

The Tyrrhenians, famous Pirates in the Mediterranean Sea, as they were robbing upon the Coasts of the Egean Sea, met with Bacthus upon the Shore, and having taken him Captive, thought they had got a confiderable Prize, whereupon they began to infult over him, and to offer him tome Indignities; but the God feeing their ill Deligns, changed them into Dolphins to punish them, as we learn from Philoftrates in his Character of the Tyrrhenians.

B A C

Tretzes thinks that Noab lived at the fame time with the Bacchus of the Indians, and Ofiru of the Azyptians, and that he had for his Servant, Mercurius Trilmegiftus, who was the first Inventer of Learning, and Arts, from the Instructions which he had received from Noah, who had preferred Arts, Learning, and Sciences, which had been invented, and exercifed, during the 16 or 17 Ages which preceded the Deluge. The fame Author fays elfewhere, that near the Mountains of India, are to be feen the Pillars of Bacchus, not of the Bacchus of Thebes in Greece, but of Egypt, who found out the dreffing of Vineyards, who bears the Name of Ofiri, and is no other Person but Noah. Prope montes India columna quedam constitute funt, columne Dionysi, non Thebani, fed Vini Inventoris.

Vollius thews us the Similitude there is between the History of Mofes, and Fable of Bacthus, "Mofes, fays this learned Man, was "born in Ægypt, and Orpheur in the Hymns "attributed to him, testilies the same of Li-"ber or Bacchus, making him the Son of the " Goddels Itis, and faying that he was born "upon the Bank of the River Nile, where " Moles was exposed. His Nurses may also re-" present to us the Sister and Mother of Moser, " to whom Pharash's Daughter entrufted Mofer to be nurfed.

" Moles after his Birth was first exposed "upon the Banks of Nile in a little Aik made " of Bulrushes woven together. Pausanias al-

" fo relates that the Brafiate in Lacedemonia in "Greece, affirm that they took their Name "from the little Boat, or Ship, wherein Bacchus being shue up, was cast upon their Coaft, and Tu cuficad, Incola en Jermonibus " vulcarunt, que neutiquam alii Grecorum Populi confitentur ; Semelem quidem joui Liberum pa-"trem peperiffe, a Cadino vero deprehensam cum puero recens. Nato in arcam conjectam, cam arcam eftu jactatam in fines luos ejectam.

"The Name of Major comes from his being taken out of the Waters, (Mofes i.e. extraitus) Orpheus in his Hymns, or in his Mysteries, "gives to Bacchus the name of M.jes, and calls him a Person born of the Waters, is portuire.

" ofeles had two Mothers, One that bore "him, and another that adopted him, and " educated and kept him in the Kings Palace 45 "Years, and we know the Reason, why Bachie was called, Duite, a Child of two " Mothers, because Jupiter compleated what was wanting of his time.

" Bacchus was educated in a Mountain of " Arabia, called Nyfs. Diodorus Siculus, and " feveral others make mention of it, and we " know, that Mofes lived Forty Years in Ara-" bia before he returned into Agypt to take " upon him the Conduct and Government of "the Children of Ifrael. Mofes also is well "known to have frequented Mount Sinai, which by a small Transposition of Letters, "is Nysa, and 'tis possible that Mountain " might have those two Names. Voffius also observes, that the Alexandrian Chronicle fpeaking of Twelve famous Mountains ufes thefe Words, Now G. Eina de AgoCia. " Some fay that Nyla was a City, which should upon Mount Meros, which fignifies in Greek, wie G, a Thigh, and from thence came the Fable of Jupiter's Thigh. Others think, that Nysa stood upon the side of a " Mountain, which the Hebrews call, Jarkere " bar, crura Montis.

" Plut arch speaks of the Banishment of Bac-" chis, which is apparently the Flight of "Moses into Arabia, after he had flain an " Ægyptian, who was about to kill an innocent " Ilraelite.

"But the Poet Nonness, who has written " the Fable of Bacchus at large, speaks plainly of the Flight of Bacchus towards the Red "Sea, yadorov, Esuspains im Sirale nous Se-" Adone. He could not have tooken any thing " more politive, nor more exactly like the " History of Moses, stripped and freed from "the Disguise of the Fable of Bacchus.

" Mofes had many Battles in Arabia, and " gained glorious Victories, alfo Diedorus " Siculus relates out of the Poet Antimachus, "how Bacebas found a Potent Enemy there, which was Lycurgus King of Arabia, who " had resolved to destroy him, and all his " M-nades, or Baccha.

"The Army of Bacchus, which over-run " all drabia with him, was made up of Men " and Women, according to Diodorus Siculus. "Wa know allo, that Mofes paffed through all "the Deferts of Arabia, with an Army of " 600000 fighting Men, but it was followed "With a much greater Number of Women and Children.

"Orpheus in his Hymns, Euripides in his " Baccha, and Sophecles in certain Verses fet " down by Strate, fay, that Bacebur had upon " his Forehead the Horns of a Bull raveinger, " woecuiror G, which agrees with the Horns of Light, i. e. those luminous Rays which " came from the Face of Mofer, when he returned from Converting with the Ora-" cle of God. The Hebrews give this Ray of " Light, the name of an Horn, Koren, whence " comes the Ki-ge, of the Greeks, and the Cor-" nu of the Latins; to which agrees the Latin " Tranflation, qued cornuta effet facies Mojis.

" Mofes ftruck the Rock which his Rod, "and there came out a Stream of Living " Water : now Euripides in his Bacche, fays as "much of a Baccha that followed Bacchus; " Thyrsum autem quadam arripiens percussit Pe-" tram, anue procellit humor.

" One of the most faithful Servants of Me-"fer, is Celeb, who gave such illustrious "Proofs of his Courage and Fidelity, when " he went to observe and discover the promi-" ted Land, and brought back with the other " Spies, that famous bunch of Grapes: In hke manner the Poets make a Dog to have "been the Companion of Bacches, the He-" brew word Celeb fignifying a Dog. Nonne " relates the Discourse of Bacchus, when he "translated his Dog to the Stars, and made " a Constellation of it, called Mars or the " Little Dog, which contributes to the ripe-" ning of the Grapes.

" Orpheus gives Bacchus the Title of a Law-" giver, Gemosoe & attributing to him a dou-" ble Law, as if he alluded to the Two Ta-" bles of the Law of Moles, or to Deuterenomy " which is one of the Books of Moles. Laftiv " Volus observes that 'tis absolutely neces-" fary, to diffinguish between the Bacchus of " the Indians, and Bacchus of Egypt and Ara-" bia. which is Majer, and acknowledges that "thele are, as it were the two Originals, " from which the Greeks have taken the Co-" py of their Bacchus of Thebes, who is much " that of the Indies.

with Bacchus, as well as Diodorus Siculus, when tells us, that Cadmus made the Baftard Son of his Daughter Semele to pais for the Son of 74. piter, and for another Ofiris, and how Orphens brought all the Worship of Ofiris, or Dienyfint, and Bacchus into Greece.

The same Authors relate elsewhere, that Cadmus was obliged by the Commands of his Father Agenor, King of Phanicia, to go and find out Europa his Sifter, stolen away by Jupiter, and not finding her, he staid in Brotis, where he built the City of Theber. and that Simele conceived by Jupiter and had Bacchus by him ; but Eulebius tells ne at the tame time, that the Greeks had done nothing but copied out the Actions of other Nations more ancient than themselves : and Diederus Siculus owns in the fame Place that there was another Bacchus more ancient, named SABAZIUS, the Son of Jupiter and Proferpina, whose Mysteries were celebrated in the Night.

This BACCHUS SABAZIUS was a Phanician, and one of the Gods Cabiri. according to the Scholiast of Apollonius of Rhodes. Quidam ferune Cabiros prius fuisse auos, feniorem guidem Jovem, & Bacchum, Tuniorem. We have proved that Noah was the first to whom the Affyrians or Babilonians applyed the History or Fable of Bace

Cicero mentions five feveral Bacchur's. Dienyilos maltos habemus, primum à Jove & Proferpina Natum ; Secundum Nilo, qui Nysam dicitur interemiffe ; tertium Caprio patre, eumque Regem Ale prefuisse dicunt, cui Sabania funt infituta ; quartum Jove & Lund, cut facra Orphica putantur confici ; quintum Niso natum & Thione. à que Trieterides constitute outantur. De Natur. Deor. lib. III. 'Tis not eafy to diftinguish all these Bacchus's. Diederus Siculus makes but one of the first and third of Cicere, faying, that Sabazius was the Son of Jupiter and Proferpine; the Fourth is the fame with that of the Greeks; He that reigned in Afia, may well be that of the Affiriant. Cicero had no Knowledge of the Bacchus of the Arabians, which they call URO-TAL.

Diodorus Siculus distinguishes between several Bacebus's, but allows the greatest Antiquity to him of the Indies, where Wine was first found out. Nonnulli tres diversis temporibus extitife afferunt, & fun cuique facinora attribuunt ; inter ques emnium vetuftiffimus natione Indus fit. Hic qued Sponte ob benignit tatem Aeris, & Jolis temperiem regio illa vilater than that of Beyps, as this Posterior to sium fertiles est, primus racemos torcularibuse pressit, & emolumenta wini observavit. His that of the Indies.

Eusebius has observed that Osiris is the same sile Bacchus aiunt, arms per universim orbem ciscumtulit, & vineas conferendi rationem edocuit. 'Tis hard not to acknowledge, that this is the History of Nosh, who planted Wineyard in Armenia, which may pass for one part of the Indies, for fome give the Name of Indies to all the Eastern Provinces. Diodorus fays, that Bacchus is faid to be born twice, because the Vine was before the Deluge of Deucslion, and grew again after the Deiuge, when all thought it was dead.

Philoticatus affures us, that the Indians held that their Bacchus came to them out of Allyria, wherefore the first Bacchus was the Agrian, and to can be no other than Noah.

The Lybians according to Diodorus, had alfo their Bacchus the Son of Jupiter Ammon, and Amalthea, whom they also paint with Horns. They maintain that he was much mdre ancient than the Egyptian or Gracian, although Diodorus owns, that the Gracian, though the last swallowed up all the rest, fo that their Antiquity was then almost for-

The Romans never knew any but the Bacthur of Greece, the Memory of all the rest being quite lost through their very great Antiquity.

Policionius the Dictator vowed, and built a Temple to Liber and Libera.

Nonner thinks that the feveral Names of Bachus are for the most part the Names of the true God, which the Impiety of Idolaters attributed to their false Gods. Dionifius may come from Jehova Miffi, that is to lay, Donninus vekillum main. IACCHUS may come likewife from Jehova or Jao, for fo the Greeks fometime pronounce Jehova. ADONEUS plainly comes from Adonas. ELELEUS comes from El, Elehim, that is to fay Deus Deorum. HYES comes from bu es, i.e. ipfe ignis. ATTES comes from atta es, i. e. tu ignit, for Baccines was born according to the Fable among the Fires of the Thunder of his Father Jupiter. Bacchus is often represented by the Poets under the Form of a Bull, because God is often called in Scripture, Abbir, which fignifies the Strong, and a Bull. E V O-HE is a Term, which the Scripture uses in speaking of Drunkards. Cui ve, tui evobe. iu qui vino immerantur. BASSAREUS comes from Batfar, which fignifies, to gather the Vintage. DITHYRAMBUS comes from the Syriack, dithere abban, which is the fame with Ji ma rue i. e. who hath Two Fathers. IACCHUS come from the Syriack Janks or Jacco, which is the fame with Pur La-

Hens, and fuch is Bacchus often represented. 'Tis feigned that he was born of Jupiter's Thigh, because 'tis a Phrase used among the Hebrews to express ordinary Generation. Nasci de famore Patris. If some say he was, born upon the Mountain Merus, unege, 'tis because the word fignifies a Thigh, or rather because the Hebrew Tongue casts those parts of Mountains, Jerra, Jarkete, Thighs, which we call the Sides. If Baschus has been called BRISZEUS, and BRESS ÆUS, it comes from the Sprinck bres acubla, that is to fay, lacus mellis, for all the Ancients have made Bacchus the Inventor of Honey. As to the name LIBER, Buchart heileves, that it is an Imitation of the H.brew Word Her, kurim, which fignifies Noble and Free Perfons, as in Ecclefinftes, Filius Hurim, is the fame with Filius Heroum.

BÆTYLIA, rough and fhapele's Stones, which were the first Starues, which Men began to adore. This Namecomes evidently from Bethel, which was the Name which Jacob gave a Stone, upon which he laid his Head to fleep, and which he dedicated in the Morning to God, pouring out Oyl upon it, in Memory of the Vision he had seen of a Mysterious Lad-

BALISTA, a Sling, a Warlike Engine, which the Ancients used to cast Stones with Slings, fays Vitruviu, were made after diverse manners, though all used to the fame Purpole. One fort was framed with Levers, and Bars, another with Pullies, another with a Crane, and others with a toothed Wheel. This Engine was made much like a Crofs-Bow, which cast Bullets.

BALNEÆ, or BALINEÆ, Baths, to bath and wath in, very common among the Greeks, and Romans.

Two things are understood by this word. the Buildings, in which these Baths were inclosed, called Balnearia, and the Tubs wherein they bathed.

'Tis not certainly known, who brought in this Custom of Bathing, but 'tis plain that the Greeks used it before the Romans. We also find that the Carthaginians had fome Baths for Persons of Quality, and others for their common People.

The Romans at first used Baths, very seldom, contenting themselves to wash their Feet, Arms, and Hands every Day after Travel, unless on Feasts, when they washed their whole Body.

In these early times when Luxury had not difordered their Manners, they did not aim at any Magnificence, or Pleasure in building Baths, but afterwards things came to fuch an excess, that in the time of Sylla, a certain Man named Sergius Orata built a Bath hanging in the Air, at great expence. Hic eft Sergiui Orata, qui primus Baineas penjiles leabuit.

M. Agrispa to gain the good esteem, and favour of the People of Rome, caused an 170 publick Baths to be built in that City, with all the Ornaments and Magnificence imaginable.

But the most extravagant Expences in building Baths, was in the time of the Emperor singular, when they appeared as fo many Ciries for their valt extent, and for the Variety of Apartments which they contained, the one being for Summer, and the other for Winter.

The most famous Baths were these of M. Agrippa, Nero, Domitian, Alexander Severus, Vilos ian, Titus, Gordian, Aurelian, and Train, but that of Amoninus Caracalla, which was built at the Foot of Mount Avenine and that of Dieclesian, did much excel all the reil before mentioned, in Grandeur and Beauty.

The Romans went into the Baths for their Health, conveniency, and often for their Pleature only, for they thought that the Bath conduced very much to their Health, by provoking Sweat, and helping Digeftion, fo that when they found their Stomachs over-charged with Meat, they went to the Bath, as weleurn from Juvenal's First Satyr. where he inveighs against those who having gorged themselves with eating, were forced to go into the Baths to relieve themfelves.

Pana tamen prajent, cum tu deponis amielus Turgidus, & crudum pavemem in Balnes portas. V. 142.

They found also, that a Bath was good to refresh themselves after some considerah'e Faiigue or Travel, as Celfus the Phyfician tells us, which makes Plautus fay, that all the Baths in the World were not dufficient to remove the Weariness he felt, Nunguam adepol omnes balinca mihi hanc laffituainem eviment.

The Bath in like manner was very convenient to cleanse the Body from Filth, and any Naffiness, which stuck to it; the Ramms having not the use of Linnen, they made their Limbs, more supple and vigorous, being rubbed and anointed, after they had left the Bath.

In fine, nothing was more furprizing, than the largeness and couldiness of these Baildings; 'tis too little fays Ammianus !

Marcellinus to compare them with Cities because they equalled whole Provinces. Lavacra in modum Provinciarum extru-

These stately Buildings contained Porches. Walks, Groves, Fish-Ponds, Tennis, Courts, Halls, and infinite Variety of A. partments, some to undress in, others for iweating, and others to be rubbed and anointed in with the most costly Per-

The most rare and precious Marbles were used in building these Places; in them they raifed many Pillars and feveral Figures of Jafper, Alabaster, and Porphyry; Gold, and Azure shined from all parts. The Floors. and Ceilings were of inlayed, or Motaick Work; Arabian Perfumes filled those Places with their Odours; the Waters fell by degrees, and by their Fall made very pleafant Cataracts to the fight, which were after received into Cifterns covered with Silver, and went away through Pipes of the fame Materials; the Roofs were of Stone. and the Walls were plaistered over in the fide with a Cement, called Maltha, from whence the Walls were called, Malthati

The Water was carried into these Baths through Pipes, which came from the Aquedusts of the City, and fell into spacious Cifterns, which they call by a general Word Baptisteria, lavacra, lavabra, & alvei. There were three forts of them, One for hot Water, another for warm, and another for cold.

These Baths were so large, fays Lipsius, that in those of Antoninus Caracalla 1800 Persons might bath themselves without any Inconvenience.

" Lucian gives us the Description of a Bath " which Hippiar, an excellent Architect, made, "which I think fit to fet down here. It "was built upon a very fleep Ground, " which he had levelled at the bottom, " with a Foundation suitable to the largeness "of the Building, which was well joined from top to bottom for long continuance. "The building answered to the extent of "the Place, and agreed very well with the plat Form in all its Proportions. At the "entrance of it was a large Porch, into which they afcended infenfibly by broad "Stairs. Through this they paffed into a great Hall, which would hold all the Ser-" vants very conveniently: On the left " Hand were Chambers for Pleafure, ha-"ving in them private places very conve-"nient, and very lightsome. Then were "Apartments for Persons of Nore, which "had on their fides Wardrobes to undress in. "In the middle was a ledging very lofty, "and open, where were fet Three Baths of " cold Water; it was lined within with La-"mick Stone and adorned with ancient "Statues of Marble, of which, One repre-" fented Health, and the other Æfeulapius : " from thence they went into an Oval A-"nartment, where they at first felt grateful "Heat, which increased by little and lit-"tle. From hence they palled to the right "Hand into another lightfome One to "anoint themselves, which had Privacies on "both fides, to receive those that came " from the Exercises. Farther was another "Apartment, more beautiful and conve-"nient than all the rest, as well to stand, " as to lie down or fit in. Then there was "an hot Anti-Chamber, lined with Numidian "Stone, which led into the last Apartment which shined on all Sides. This had "likewife Three Baths of hot Water, from "whence they might pass into the cold "Baths through a Stove, without going "through the Places by which they came "in. Thus ends the Description of the " Bath of Hippias.

Some have reckoned Six Hundred and Seventy publick Baths at Rome, and Eighty Two private Ones. Publiar Victor counts Eight Hundred and Sixty Publick Ones.

Besides the Water-Baths to wash in, there were dry Stoves in an Hall, whose Roof was made in a Semicircle, in the midd'e of which was an Hole to let in the light, with a Buckler hung up in it, by means of which they could encrease or lessen the Heat, by letting it down, or raifing

This Place was called LACONICUM, because the Lacedemonians were the Inventors of these dry Stoves for sweating, using them ordinarily from the time that Apellonius Tyanaus forbad, by the advice of the Ephori hot Baths, which were of little use, unless to make Men lazy and effeminate. Senica the Philosopher calls these Places, Sudatoria, and sometimes Sphariferia, from their Spherical and round Figure, as Suetonius calls them in the Life of Velperian. Cicero names them Affa, and Cornelius Celluc. Affas Judationes; they were very prefitable for Digestion, and by sweating to drive out a Quantity of Water from all parts of the Body, which made them more aftive, and better difposed.

There were in the Both diverse Cham-the Stoves. Some were for undreffing called? by the Greeks awolumera, and by the Latines. Speliatoria, that is to fay, Chambers of Spoil: others for wiping and drying the Body, after having been in the Baths, and others for rubbing and anointing, named in Greek. and in Latin, Unatuaria.

Pitravius describes to us the manner of making these Stoves.

" Hot, and warm Stoves favs he, ought to "have their Windows out of the reach of "the cold, or if the Place will not bear it, "turned to the South, because the time for bathing according to Cultom, is from "Noon to the Evening. It should be con-trived that the hot Bath for the Men, and "that for the Women, thould be near one " another, that they may both heat with the "fame Furnace. There must be placed upon this Furnace, three large brazen Vef-"fels. One for hot Water, the other few " warm, and the third for cold, and there " Vellels to ordered, and disposed, that that " which holds the warm Water, shall go fo "far into that which contains the hor, as "to take its heat from it, and in the like " Proportion shall the cold Bath go into the " warm ; the Under-part of the Baths shall " be heated by one Furnace only. This Bath ought to be lightforme above, that it be not "darkned by those that are about it. The " Sears about the Bath should be so large, as "to hold those who wair, till the first Comers was are in the Bath come out

Although Baths were built for the publick, yet there were forte, at which certain Fees were paid for bathing in them, which for that Region were called Balneas meritorias, but what they gave was but a fmall Matter, viz. the Fourth part of an Affir. quadrans, which was paid to the Keeper of the Barlis, which gave Occasion to Source to call the Baths, Rem quadrantariam, and Horace po fay, Lib. 1. Sat. 3. Dum tu quadrante Lavatum

Only Infants under 14 Years of Age paid nothing, as Juvinal teaches us in this

Nec pueri credunt, nisi qui nondum are lavantur. Sat. 2. v 152.

It was not permitted to go into the Bath at all Hours of the Day, but only at certain fixed Hours.

The Emperor Adrien published an Edict. forbidding to open the Bath before Two a Clock in the Afternoon, Alefs in cale of Sickness, ante estavam boram in publico nebers for several uses, as there were also in minem, nisi agrum lavare jussum eft. (Now the Eighth Hour was our two a Clock in the Afternoon, because they began the Dayfrom our Six a Clock in the Morning, or thereabours.)

The Hour for going into, and coming out of the Bish, was made known by the Sound of a Bell, which was called, Tintin-nobulum, as these Verses of Martial restific.

Redde pilam, sonat es Thermarum, ludere per-

Virgine vis fola lotus abire domum.

Give over playing at Ball, the Bell founds for the Bath, for if you hold on your Play ye cannot bath your felves unless in the cold Bath, called Pirgo. (which was a Water that came to Rome.) Mart. lib. XIV. Epigr. 161.

from hence we learn, that the Romani did not go into the Baths, till after Noon ordinarily, un'els upon the Account of Sickness, because then they were more fiee, and less troubied with Business, for they alberted the Morning to wait upon, and court the Facour of the Grandees of Rome, and to follow their own business, after which they sat loberly, and then either took their Ease, or went to some Exercise, and to take their Pleafures. From whence they went into the Bath to dispose them for their Supper, as Passing tellings in this Verie.

His mane edictum post pranaia Callirhoen do.

I allow, fays this Poer, thele loofe Fellows to go in the Morning to the Prators Court to hear the Judgment there, and after Dinner I permit them to court the Women, for Callithee was a famous 'Harlet, or rather (according to another Interpretation of this Verle of the Perfue) I permit them to go into the Bath, because Callithics was a famous Fountain of Albem, and
'so by an clust Figure common among the 'Poets, Callithee is taken in general for a 'Bath, Perf. Sat. 1, 20, 114.

After they had bathed, they had their Boad ribbid, and the Hair pulled off with Pincers, or finall Twitchers of Silver, and than rubbed them with a Pumice Stone to import the Skin, which they anointed with a perfamed Oyl, pouring it out by Drops, out of a fmall Veff.!, which they called Gurun, Ganz, dappela, or Leeptha, or Leeptha

They often mide a Collation of Fruits, and talked of things pleasant, and diverting, from whence it came that the Baths were called Girvela Balmes.

BALNEARIISERVI, the Servants belonging to the Bath. Some were appointed to heat them, which were called Arrenal to heat them, nacateres; others were called Capfarii, who kept the Cloaths of those that went into them; others were named Alipse, whose Care it was to pull off the Hair, and others were called Usiliarii, who anointed and perfumed the Body.

BALSAMUM, Balm, a Shrub of fadia, which is of great use in Medicines. When the Boughs of it are full of Sap, they make an Incision with a Flint or Possiberd (for it will not endure Iron) and there diffils out of it a thick Juice of a Pleasant Smell, and it is used in the Cure of several Wounds, and some Distempers of the Body.

BALTEUS, a Belt, a large Girdle of Leather afed to carry a Sword, and a Dagger infet with Boffes of Gold, Silver, or Copper.

BAPT E. Abenian Priests of the Goddeß Cayytte, who was the Goddeß of La civicusiness, and whose Feaths and Sacrifices were kept in the Night, with all the Beastliness imaginable. Eupola was thrown into the Sea by the Priests, for having made a Comedy in which he discovered the filthy Actions, and lewd Conversations.

BARBA, the Beard, the Hait that grows on the Face. The Romans for a long time wore it without flaving or cutting, and the time is not exactly known, when they began todo it. Time Urvins teems to tell us, that this Cultom was in use from the Year 369, for speaking of Manhius Capitalinus who was taken Prisoner, "He relates that the greatest part of the People being troubled at his Imprisonment, changed their Cloaths, and let their Beards, and "Hair grow. If this were so, then we may infer that out of times of Mourcing they had their Hair cut and their Beards shaved.

Nevertheles Verro speaks clearly, that the first Barbers came out of Swily to Reme, in the Year 454, and that a Man called Tiermus Memor brought them. From that time the Young Men began to have their Beards cut, and Hair, till they came to be 49 Years old; but it was not a lowed to be done above that Age, says Itiny. Scipic Africans that himself shaved all his Days, and Aurusus did the Same in Initiation of him.

The Young Men did not begin to flave themselves, till they were Twenty or Twenty one Years of Age, as did Nro and Calige-la, but Augustus did not do it, till he was Twenty five Years old.

The Day wherein they were shaved the first time was a Day of rejoicing, and they were careful to put the Hair of their Beard into a Silver or Gold Box, and make an Offering of it to fome God, particularly to Jupiter Capitolinus, as Niro did, according to the Teltimony of Suetonius.

Only the Philosophers let their Beards grow, and wore them very long, without cutting, or shaving.

BARDI, Bardi, ancient Poets among the Gulls, who described in Verse, the brave Adions of the great Men of their Nation. They were so called from one BARDUS, the Son of Drayis, who reigned over the Gault.

There were Four forts of Men comprized under the general Name of DRUIDES, viz. The VACERES, who attended upon the Mysteries of their Religion; the EUBAGES, who were employed in judging of Proligies; the BARDES, who celebrated in Verse the Heroical Actions of their great Men; and the SARRONIDES, who administred Justice, and instructed the young Gault in the liberal Arts and Sciences.

BASILICA, a Greek Word that fignifies a King. Palace; it was a publick Building at Rome, magnificently railed, in which they administred Justice. It was covered, and by that a Basilica was distinguished from the FORUM, which was a publick Place open to the Air.

In these Basilica's were large Halls with Roofs, and Galleries raised upon rich Pillers. On both sides of these Galleries were Shops, where the finest Wares were fold. In the middle was a large Place for the Conveniency of Men of Business and Merchants, as is at a little distance from the Palace at Para.

The Tribunes administred Justice there, as well as the Contum-wiri. In them were also Chambers built, where the Lawyers and Pleaders maintained by the Common-wealth resided, to answer to all Points of Law, when they were consuited. This is doubtless, what Citero means, Epil. 14. 116. 2. ad Att. Bajiliam hake, now illims frequentia spring memory. Decay the min his Country-house, as if he were in a Bajilia.

The principal Enflica's at Rome were thefe, Julia, Porcia, Pauli, Sissimini, Sempromii, Gaii, Lucii, & Argentariorum, the Bankers.

Others were also built for the Conveniency of Traders, and Merchants near the great Roman Place. The Scholars went their to make their Declamations, that they might appear, and have the more Auditors to hear them, according to the Testimony of Quintilian Lib. 12. Chap v.

Large and spacious Halls were first called Bassilita's, because they were made for the People to meet in, when Kings administred Justice themselves; afterward, when they were left to the Judges, Merchans built them for themselves; and lastly, they were taken for Churches by the Christians. Then it happened that they built most of their Churches in the Fashions of Bassilita's, which differed from the Temples of the Ancients, in this, that their Pillars stood without. Bassilica's were for Tradesmen and Pleaders, as now the Halls of a Palace are, where they administer Justice.

BASSAREUS, and BASSARI-DES, Epithets given to Bacchus, and the Bacche, from the long Robe Bafgara, which they are faid to wear, as Hefychius, and Pelluce teach us; and as we learn from the Statues of Bacchus. Phornatus, and Aeron, the Scholiast of Horace, think that this Word Baffara, comes from a City of Lydia, called BASSARA, from whence the Fashion of t came

The Grammarian Comutus upon Perfius will have them to be so called from Foxes skins, which in the Ibratian Language are called Baffares, with which the Bacche were cloathed,

BATTUS, a certain ridiculous Poet,

BATTUS, a certain ridiculous Poet, who used the same Repetitions frequently in his Poetry, which has given occasion to call a Discourse full of Repetitions, Battology, from his Name.

It was also the Name of a Shepherd of the City of Pylar, who was changed by Mereny into a Touchstone, because he had not kept his word with him about the Thest, which he made of the Sheep of Admetus's Flock, kept by Apille to his Disgrace.

BATUALIA, Fencers, exercifed with blunt Arms; for we say, rudibus batuere, to fight with dull Weapons, or in jeft.

BATHILLUS, a Buffoon and very good Dancer, whom Mecens loved to an excellive Degree. He made him his Freeman, and he lived in the time of Augustus and New.

BEELPHEGOR, of whom it is spoken in the Book of Numbers, that a Part of the Ifnedites gave themselves to the impure and execrable Worship of that false God, and that God took a dreadful Vengeance on them: Initiatalque Israel Besiphagor, accides onusquisque proximos suet, qui initiati sunt Beelphegor. Tis probable that the God which was honoured upon Mount Phegor or Phogor, was Saturn, according to Theederet. St. Terom believed, that Beelphegor was the God Priapus. Fornicati funt cum Madianitis, & ingressi Junt ad Beelphegor idolum Madianasarum, quem nos Priapum possumus appellare. He fays also the same thing, writing against Jovinian. Proprie quippe Phegor lingua hebraa Priabus appellatur.

BELIDES, Belides, or Danaides, were the Fifty Daughters, of Danaus, the Son of Belus, furnamed the Old, who flew their Husbands, the Sons of the King of Egypt, the first Night of their Marriage, except only One, named Hypermnestra, who did not flay her Husband Lynceus.

BELLEROPHON, otherwise named HIPPONOMUS, fon of vilausur King of Corinth; he flew his Brother Beller, and from thence was furnamed Bellerophon, as much as to fay, the hurtherer of Beller. After he had committed this Murther he fled to the Court of King Pretu, who received him favourably, but his Wife falling in Love with him, and not being able to induce him to fatisfy her unchaft Defires, the accused him to her Husband for attempting her Chattity. The King being angry at the Action, but unwilling to break the Rules of Hospitality, which he had allowed him, contented himself instead of flaying him, to fend him to his Father in Law Jobates King of Lycia, with Letters fignifying his Condemnation. Jobates wilking to execute the King's orders, fent him to fight against the Chimera, but he brought it to an happy end by the help of his Horse Pegalus; the King admiring his extraordinary Valour, gave him his Daughter in Marriage. The Fable adds, that being defirous to fly up into Heaven by the Help of his Horse Pegalus, he was cast down Headlong by Jupiter, to punish his proud Rashness, and being made blind by his Fall, he died a wandring Vagabond.

Homer gives us this Account of Bellerophon. in the Sixth Book of his Iliads, v. 160. Oc. "BELLEROPHON, the most "beautiful and valiant of the Argives, was " paffionately loved by Antis the Wife of " Pratus, who being not able to perswade "him to vield to her unhawful Defires, " went to her Husband and told him. You must either dye, or put Bellerophon to "Death, who has attempted my Chastity, although 'twas she her self, that had sol-" licited him to love her.

" Pratus was very angry, but would not " put him to Death, but fent him with privare Letters to his Father-in-Law in Lycie. "which ordered him to put him to Death. "He went into Lycia under the Protection "of the Gods, where being arrived near " the River Xanthus, the King looked fa-"vourably upon him, and gave him all "the Honours imaginable. He stayed " Nine Days together with him, facrificing "every Day an Ox. At the end of that time he asked him the Reason of his com-" ing, whereupon he immediately gave him "the Letters of Pratus his Son-in-Law, and "having read them, he fent him to fight "the Chimers (an horrible Monfter to behold, for he had the Fore part of a "Lion, who vomited Fire and Flames, the " middle of a Goat, and the Tail of a Serpent.)

BEL

He subdued this Monster by the Protection of the Gods, and killed it. After " this Victory he went to War against the " Solymi, and then against the Amazons, and " because he returned Victorious, King Je-"bates fent an Ambush to kill him, but "he defeated them all. This induced the "King to give him his Daughter in Mar-"riage, for the fake of his Courage and

" Vertue.

"But to return to the Allegories of this " Chimers, and Bellerophon. Palephates fpeaks thus of them. Some fay that Bellerophen 'rode upon a winged Horse, which is both "ridiculous and unpossible, unless they could lend him all the Feathers of the " fwiftest Birds. Others would have us alfo believe, that Bellerophen flew the Chimara of Amisodar, a Monster which had the Fore-part of a Lion, and the middle of a Goat, and the hinder-parts of a Ser-" pent. Others will have it, that it had on-" ly the Three Heads of these Creatures, "which is less credible. This then is the " Foundation of all these Fistions.

BELLEROPHON, was a young Man of Corinth, very beautiful, and liberal, who having fitted a Ship which he named Pezalus, he went to coast along the Phrygian Shore, where at that time reigned Amiledar, near the River Xanthus, along by which there arises a Mountain named by the Inhabitants, Telmeffus, to which there is an Afcent from the Plain on two fides of it. On the fide next the City Xanthus, there were very good Pastures, but on the side next Caria it was barren, and inaccessible; in the middle there was a Gulf, from whence there came out at certain times Flashes of this Mountain is joined another, named Chimers, upon which there was a Lion, and at the Foot of it a great Serpent, which did much harm among the Flocks, which fed thereabout, as well as to the Shepherds, and Inhabitants round it. But Bellerophon landing on these Coasts with his Ship, named Pegasus, because it was a good Sailer, and very swift in its Course. went to those Mountains, and ferting the Woods on Fire, destroyed those Monsters. which gave an Occasion to the Fable to fay, that Bellerophon being mounted upon Pegasus, had killed the Chimara of Amilo-

BELLONA, the Goddess of War, the Wife, Mother, or Nurse of Mars; some will have her to be Minerva, and Pallas. This false Deity was so much honoured by the Cappadocians, that they built a Temple to her in the City Comma, and her Prieft, or Sacrificer was the first Person in Honour and Dignity next to the King. She is painted in Armour with a menacing or furious Countenance, holding a Trumpet, and a Whip in her Hand, and fometimes a lighted Torch.

Appius Claudius, who was after ffricken blind for having profaned the Priesthood of Hercules, built her a Temple at Rome, according to the Vow he had made to her in the Battle against the Samnites. This Temple was in the Circus of Flaminius near the Carmental Gate. In it, foreign Embaffadours were admitted to audience, and they hung up their Bucklers, and other Arms, as Appius did according to Pliny. Poluit in Bellona ede Majorum luorum Clypess.

There was near this Temple a Pillar named BELLICA, from which the Conjuls, or Herald cast a Javelin, as far as they could, as if they had cast it into the Enemies Countries, to declare War against

The Feast of this Goddess was kept upon the Fourth Day before the Nones of June, because on that Day, Appius dedicated a Temple to her.

The Priests of this Goddess, which from her Name were called Bellonarii, drew Blood from all parts of their Bodies, to appeale her with that Sacrifice. Some thought that they had a Gift of Prophecy, to foretel the great Events of War. For that end they entred in a Fury, and holding naked Swords in their hands, they cut deep Gashes in their Arms, and Thighs, and with the Magician Conon a little after, that he might

Fire, and Flames and Clouds of Smoke. To Blood that iffue out of the Wounds, meking a Sacrifice to Bellong, not giving her any other Victims, as Tibullus tells in their Verses, > Hac ubi Bellone motu est agitata, nec acrem Flammam, non amens verbera torta timet. Ipfa bipenne fuos cadit violenta Lacertos. Sanguineque effulo spargit inepta Daam Statque latus prafixa veru, flat faucia pellus, Et canit Eventus, quos Dea magna movet.

BELUS, the Ancients do not tell us very clearly, what fort of Deity Belus

Helychius fays, that it was the Heaven, or Jupiter, and that the Sun was called Bela.

St. Jerom, and St. Isidore are of Opinion. that Saturn was named Belus.

Herodian in the Life of Maximinian affures us, that the People of Aquileia gave the Sun the Name of Beles. Some Manuscripts and Inferiptions call him Belinus or Bele-

The God Baal, or Baalpheger, who is mentioned in the Old Testament, was the fame Belus, who was the Author of the Idolatry and Priesthood of the Chaldeans.

There was another Belas the Son of Neptune, who married Isis after the Death of Apis her first Husband, when Cecrops reigned at Athens. Ærretus and Danaus were his Sons, and thence it comes to pass, that the Fifty Daughters of Danaus were called B E-LIDES

BEEL, or BELUS, fays Parro, is the fame with Jupiter the Son of Saturn. He was the first as St. Cyril tells us in Lib. 3. against Julian the Apostate, who took upon himself the Name of God, and set up Idolatry, causing Temples to be built, Altars to be made, and Sacrifices to be offered in Honour of himself, which his Son Ninus, and Queen Semiramis much promoted.

BERECINTHIA, the Name of a Mountain, and City in Phrygia, where Cybele the Mother of the Gods was most zealoufly worshipped, and was from thence named Berecinthian.

BERONICE, Berenice, Queen of

Ægypt, and Wife of Prolomeus Euergetes her own Brother, who having vowed her Hair to the Goddess Venus, if her Husband returned fafe from a Voyage, which he made into Asia, consecrated and laid up her Hair in the Temple of the Goddels to fulfil her Vow, but it being not to be found, the sain the Favour of the King, who was an- ordered to be given to the Bealts, damest al gry for the loss of it, perswaded him, that it was put among the Stars, and changed into those Seven Stars, which appear in the Form of a Triangle at the Tail of the Czleftial Sign, called the Lion. Callimachus made a Greek Elegy upon this Subject, which Catallas has turned into Latin.

BEROSUS, a Chaldean, to whom the Athenians erected a Statue with a gilded Tongue, upon the account of his excellent Bredictions.

BES, or BESSIS, the Mark, or 8 Quinces, part of the Affis. BES, for BIS, which is Two Triens, which are each Four in Walue.

BESTIÆ, Beafts, either wild, or domestick Creatures, which were pretented at Rome, in the Plays of the Amphitheatre, for Shows to the People.

Some pleafed the People with hunting of these Beasts, in which they made them fight with Men, or one with ano-

Vopilcus has given us a curious Description of an hunting, which the Emperor Probus made upon the Circus, after his Triumph over the Germans. 'He gave, fays he, a e great hunting, where the People got an " advantage by the Havock made in it. He "canfed his Scu'diers to pluck up Trees by "the Roots, and by covering them with "Earth, fet them again, so that the Circus "feemed on a fudden to become a flourish-"ing Wood, which he filled with Oftri-"ches, Stage, Wild Boars, Bulls, and Wild-"Goats. All these Beafts were left to the "People, and every one catched what he "pleafed. Another Day he gave an hunt-"ing of an Hundred Lions upon the Am-"phitheatre, which being let out, made a "Noise like Thunder with their terrible "roarings. In the same Place an Hundred "Lybian Leopards, and as many Syrian; and "an Hundred Lichs, and Three Hundred "Bears, were presented fighting toge-"ther.

Men entred the Combate with fierce Beafts. The Fencers and Slaves fought artificially with Lions, and Leopards, and often conquered and flew them.

Criminals also, who were condemned, were exposed to Beasts without any Arms to defend themselves, and often they were bound, and the People were pleafed to fee them torn in pieces, and devoured by those Mangry Creatures. This was the most usual Punishment, which the Pagan Emperors inflifted upon the first Christians, whom they

Some Freemen also to give proof of their Skill and Courage would fight with Women themselves, according to the Relation of Suetonius, would dare to divert the Emperor, and People, by engaging with the most cruel Beasts.

Lastly. These Creatures were made to fight one with another, Lions with Bears. Rhinoceros's with Elephants, which would thew much Activity and Cunning in to great BIAS, of Priese, a Philosopher, and one of the Seven wife Men of Greece. The City. where he lived, being taken, he fled, and would not carry any of his Goods with him. His Fellow Citizens asked him, why he did not take his Goods with him, he replyed. "All that is mine, I have with me: meaning his Wisdom and Mind.

BIBLIOTHECA, a Library, a Room filled with Books.

The Kings of the Race of Attalus, being Lovers of Sciences and Learning, built a Library at Pirgamus. King Prolemy did the like at Alexandria. Plutarch writes, that the Kings of Pergamu's Library contained Two Hundred Thousand Volumes, but was much inferior to that of the Kings of E. gypt, which Aulus Gellius affures us had Seven flundred Thousand; and Gallen tells us. that the Kings of Egypt were so very zealous to increase the number of the Books of their Library, that they would give any price for the Books, which were brought them, which gave an Occasion of forging abundance of Books, and attributing them to fuch Authors, as did not compose them. that they might put a greater value upon

This Library was burnt by the Romans in the first War, which they made in Egypt. Auleus Gellieus fays, that it was fet on Fire through mere carelessness, and that not by the Roman Soldiers, but by their Auxiliary Troops; which he may be thought to speak, that he might free his own Nation from the imputation of fo barbarous an action, fince the Perfiant, as illiterate as they were thought', spared the Library of Athens, when Xerxes had taken that City, and fet it on fire.

The Roman Emperors erefted diverfe Libraries at Rome with great expence, and much magnificence; and Augustus caused a beautiful and spacious Gallery to be made in Apollo's. Temple, that he might put sherein a Library of Greek and Latin Books.

BIBLIS, The Daughter of Miletus and the Nymph Cyane, who being fallen in Love with her Brother Caunus, and finding no way, to enjoy him, banged herfelf. Ovid in his Metamorpholes fays, that the Gods changed her into a Fountain, which bears the fame Name.

BIGÆ, a Chariot for Rucing, drawn by swo Horfes a-breaft.

BIGATI NUMMI, Pieces of Money, stamped with the Figure of a Charior drawn with Two Horses a breast.

BISSEXTUS, the Odd day, which is inferted in the Kalendar every fourth Year, that the Year may equal the Course of the Sun. This Intercalation, or Interpolition was found out by Julius Cafar, who having observed, that the Sun finished its course in Three Hundred Sixty Five Days, and about Six Hours, added one whole day every Fourth Year, that he might take in these Hours, and this Day he inserted next the 23. Day of Fibruary, which at that time was the last Month of the Year among the Remans. It was called BISSEXTUS, because the Sixth of the Ca'ends of March was then twice counted, bis fexto Calendas Marsias, and that Year had 366 Days

BITO, and CLEOBIS, the Sons of Argia, the Priesters of June. When their Mother was going to the Temple of that Goddess in a Chariot drawn with Oxen, and the Oxen moved too flow, thefe Brethren drew their Mothers Chariot to the Temple of June, and their Mother when the had facrificed to the Goddels, begg da Reward for her Children, who voluntarily fubmitted their Necks to the Yoke. This was granted; for when they had feafted plentifully upon the Sacrifice, they lay down to fleep, and were both found dead together without Pain, and had the Honour of that

BITUMEN, a black Juice, which will grow hard, by putting into Vinegar, yet will fwim upon Water. It cannot be cut with Iron, nor Brais, nor will it mix with Menstraous Blood. The People of the Country affure us, that Bitomen runs together on heaps, and is driven by the Winds, or drawn to the Shore, where it is dried both by the heat of the Sun, and ! the Exhalations of the Earth, and then they cut it, as they do Stone or Wood. There was fuch an Abundance of it at Babylon, fays Vitravius, that they used it for Morrer to . build their Walls.

BOCCHYRIS, King of Egypt. He. was so just in his Judgments, that according to Diodorus, the Egyptians made use of his Name, as a mark of just and upright Judgment. 'Tis said that in his time (which was in the Days of Romulus and Remus, the-Founders of Rome) a Lamb spoke.

BOEDROMIA, Feafts, which the Athenians celebrated every Year in Honour of Apollo, for the Victory which Thefens gain -ed over the Amazons. From it Apollo had the name of Boedromius.

BONA DEA, the good Goddess, named by the Ancients, Fatua, or Senta. This Deity was had in great Veneration by the Roman Ladies. She was Dryas the Wife of Faunus, of an exemplary Chaftity: They facrificed to her in the Night, in a little Chappel, into which it was not permitted to Men to enter, or be present at her Sacrifices : whence it is that Citero imputes it to Cledius as a Crime, that he had entred into this Chappel in a Difguise, and by his Presence had polluted the Mysteries of the good Goddess.

This Sacrifice was kept Yearly in the House of the High-Priest, and that by his Wife with the Virgins confecrated to the Good Goddels. By her, some understand the Earth, and 'tis for that reason, that she is facrificed to by the People, because nothing is fo dear to them as the Fruits of the Earth. This is no just Ground, why the Romans might not understand by this Deity an ancient Queen of Italy, named Fauna, for most of the Heathen Gods had a double Relation in this kind; and this was the Occalion of it.

It is certain that in the primitive Times. all their Worship terminated upon material Beings, as the Heaven, Stars, Earth, Sea, Woods, Rivers, and other things of the like Nature, which the first Men through Ignorance believed to be the fole Caufes of all the Good or Evil that happens in the World: Bur as Opinion can find no flop, when once the Bounds of Nature are passed over. the religious Respect, which they entertained for these Beings, extended itself with more Reason to the Persons themselves, who had invented this Worship, and had perswaded | others to it. This Adoration increased more and more in following Ages, through the Respect which Antiquity begets, and great Preeminence it gives to all things, and because Men have always had an Inclination to think the Gods like themselves, for this Reason, which Gicero gives (which is) that there is nothing, that appears so excellent to Man, as Man himself, they came by Degrees not only to deify the Inventers of these Worships, but also to confound them with the Deities, which they had found out. Hence it came to pais, that the fame God was worshipped in several Places of the World under different Names, as all the Mythologists confess, because they bore the Name of those eminent Persons, who had each of them fettled their Worship in those Countries. Wherefore 'tis probable, that 'twas Fauna, who first began the Worthip of Teres (or the Earth) at least in Italy; fince the was after confounded with that Deity there. She was called Bona Da, or the Good Goddels by way of Excellency. and that for the best Reason in the World. because there is no being that does Men more good.

If the Sex of this Queen were not enough to make us think this Deiry rather to be a Female than a Male, fince they are often not diffinguished, yet that which bears Fruits as the Earth doth, hath to much greater likeness to a Woman, than a Man, that we need fearch no farther for a Reafon; and this is the manifest cause, why Women were only to perform her Service, and Men totally excluded. This Non-admission might also proceed from this Story. That this devout Queen was so chast, that no Man, but her own Husband ever faw her, nor knew her proper name, for the was called Fauna in after Ages for no other Reason, but because her Husband's name was Faunus. In Respect therefore to her fignal Chastity it was, that all Men are forbidden to be prefent at her Worship, the High-Priest himfelf in whose House it was performed, and who was the Chief-Minister in all others. not excepted; for he was obliged to depart out of his House before they began, and carry along with him all the Men which were there, of what Quality soever they were. All Pictures also which represented any Male were covered; the vestal Virgins were fummoned to it. Of all Plants with which the House was to be adorned, onlythe Myrtle was forbidden, because it was consecrated to

Penus, and her Service began just at Night.

— Velari piëtura jubetur Quecunque alterius Sexus imitata figuram eft. Juv.

BOOTES. Charles's Wain, a Constellation in the Heavens called by the Greeks. Ardophilax, which fignifies, the Keeper of the Bear, because he drives a Chariot drawn by Fourteen Stars after the manner of an Ox-

BOREAS, the North Wind, called also Aquile ; it blows between the Griental and the North Solflice. The Poets feign him to be the Son of Aftreus, and falling in Love with Orythia, ftole her, that he might have the Enjoyment of her.

Philofirates makes Boreas the King of the Winds, who fent his Two Children, Zethes (that is to fay, a strong Blast, and Calais i.e. a gentle Gale) in the Expedition to Colchos. "But Apollonius Rhodius gives us a more particular Account of this Fable. "The Children of Boreas, says he, were al-" fo in the Expedition at Colches. He begat them of the Nymph Orythia, whom he " fole from Athens.

These Two Persons had gilded Scales, which covered their Shoulders, and Wings on their Feet, with a long Purple Head of Hair. They drove the Harpies which much molested Phineus King of Thrace, into the Island Strophades, but were warned by Iris, to delift from the Pursuit, that they might not hurt Jupiter's Dogs, as the Harpies

Paulanias tells us, that the People of Megalopolis in Greece, gave as great Honour to the Wind Boreas, as to any God whatfoever, because he had affisted them with a great Force against the Attempt made upon them by the Lacedemonians.

They dedicated, fays the fame Author, in his Eighth Book, Page 513, an Altar to the Wind Boreas, and the Citizens offer'd a Sacrifice to him every Year. Borea are dicate est, cui anniversarium Megalopolitani sacrum faciunt, &c.

When Homer fays, that the North Wind was transformed into a Stone-Horse, and covered feveral fine Mares, of which he begat Twelve Colts fo swift and light, that they could run upon the tops of flanding Corn without breaking it, and upon the Waves of the Sea without making any Impression upon them, 'twas becaute he really believed that they were ces of the Wind.

Virgil relates that as a true Story of the Weft Wind, which Homer Speaks of Boress, as · Fable.

BOS, an Ox, a Beaft, which the Ancients offered in Sacrifice to feveral of their Deiries, as Jupiter the Chief of their Gods, and fuch an Ox according to Homer ought to be Five Years old. Yet Plusarch affures us, that Solon forbad by his Laws, that Oxen should be facrificed; but Alian explains it of Oxen used in plowing.

Oxen were also sacrificed to Cybele the Mother of the Gods, and those Sacrifices were for that reason called Tauropolia, to return Thanks to that Goddess of the Earth, for teaching Menthe Art of taming those Creatures, and using them in tilling

the Ground.

The Greeks also offered black Bulls to Neptune, to denote the raging of the Sea when it is moved.

The Superfition of the Ancients proceeded to far as to offer Hecatombs, or Sacrifices of an Hundred Oxen to Jupi-

Strabe teaches us, that thefe Hecatombs came from the Lacedemonians, who every Year offered a Sacrifice of an Hundred Oxen in the name of an Hundred Cities. which were under their Command and Governmenr.

But these Expences appearing too great to fome Perions, they educed their Sacrifices to Twenty five Oxen, and Juppofed through a Childish Distinction, that because these Oxen had each of them Four Feet, it was sufficient to make an Hecatomb, that there was the number of an Hundred found in those parts.

One of the Ancients finding himfelf in great Danger upon the Sea, through a Tempest, promised to offer an Hecaton b, if he escaped; but being not able to discharge his Vow by reason of his Poverty, he contrived to make an Hundred fmall Oxen of Dough. and to offer them to the Gods that had delivered him. Some attribute this false Hecatemb to Pythageras; for Diogenes Larring tells us, that the Philosopher having found out a new Demonstration in his Trigonometry, offered an Hecattomb of these Artificial Creatures to the

BRABEIA, the Rewards, which the Ancients gave to Actors, Dancing-Wo-

Mares, that would conceive by the Influen | men, Jack-puddings, Vaulters, and Stage: players.

> BRABEUTES, was he, who in the publick Shows and Plays, ordered them, provide the Expence, and distributed the Rewards.

> BRACCE. Breeches, the Linnen which covers the fecret Parts, as our Linings, This word is from the Celta, who gave the Name of Gallia Bracata to that part of France called afterward Gallia Narboneniis. They were a fort of Breeches, or as others think, a fhort Gown: Mr. Du Cange accounts them, that part of the Cloaths, that cover the Thighs, as our Breeches do; that the word comes from Brace, or Brace, because they were short. Salmafius will have it to be derived from Begins, and others think it comes from the Hebrew Beret, which fignifies a Knee, because that Garment reached no further than their Knees.

> BRACHIALE, a defensive Armour to fecure the Arm.

The Compleat Horsemen of Old wore them. The Smitz-Foot also do so now. but they are only the Pike-men.

BRACHMANES. Brachmans. Philosophers, and Poets among the Indians. Strabo gives us an elegant Description of thefe Brachmans, and represents them to us, as a Nation devoted as much to Religion, as the 7ews were.

" As foon as their Children are born, their "Doctors come and bless their Mothers. "and give them fome virtuous Instructions. "While they are in their Infancy, they ap-" point them Masters, and accustom them to "a thrifty way of Living. They teach "their Philosophy in Woods, and allow " none to marry, till they are Thirry Seven "Years of Age: Their Life is very labo-" rious and mortifying, but after that they al-"low fomething more Liberty. Their Do-" Strine was, that this Life is only a preparation and passage to an eternal and happy Life to those who live well; That "the joy, and grief, good and evil of this "World are but Dreams and Fantoms. "They were much of the fame Opinions " with the Greeks; that the World had a " beginning, and should have an end. That "God made it, governs it, is present in it, " and fills it.

" Strabe afterward relates a Discourse, " which Alexander the Great had with one "of the most famous Brachman, named Cala"nut, who laughed at the rich Garments
"of allexander, telling him, that in the "Golden Age, Nature produced a great
"Plenty of those things, but now "papite" had changed the State of Affairs and ob"liged Men to procure themselves another
"fort of Plency by Arts, Labour, and Thrisetiness; that Men began to abuse this "fecond Favour, which was a just Reason to think that the World was now quite
"changed."

"St. Clement of Alexandria speaks of the Brachmans almost in the same manner as Strako. He assures us that they would not eat any living Creature, nor drink "Wine; observed a continual Continuecy, eat but once a Day, and some of them only once in Two or Three Days; and that they looked upon Death, as a Passage into another Life.

BRANCHIDÆ, the Priests of Apollo Disymeus, who uttered his Oracles near the Promontory of Ionis. This Name was from one Branchus a Torifalian, who affirmed himself to be the Son of Apollo, and to whom Sacrifices were offered, as to a God.

BRIAREUS, one of the Giants, the Son of Calum and Terra, who had an Hundred Arms according to the Fable. He was chosen by the Sun and Notune, to decide their difference about the Territory of Corinth, which he adjudged to Neptone, and gave the Sun the Promontory above the City.

BRITANNICUS, the Son of the Emperor Claudius and Meffalma. His Mother-in-Law Agrippina, raised Nore to the Empire, to his Prejudice, by means of Tiberius. He was poisoned at the Age of Fourteen Years by Nero's Order. The Account which Tacitus gives of him, is this. "Among " other Pattimes, which the Youth used at "the Feast of the Saturnalia, there was a " certain Play, in which they made a King, "who commanded all the Company. It fell "to Niro's Lot to be chosen, who gave tri-"fling Commands, fometimes to one, and " fometimes to another; but when he came " to Britannicus, he ordered him to rife up, " and reherfe some Verses, thinking to make " him laughed at ; but he not feeking to ex-"cufe himfelf, began a Poem, wherein he " complained of the Wrong done him, and " described the Misfortune of a Prince, who "had been deprived of his Kingdom, where "by he moved the Compalion of all pa"fent. Then Nere being nearly touched
"with this Affront, refolved to kill him imi
"mediately by poifoning him, and to that "ned gave a Commission to the Captain of the Praverian Band, named Police, who
"the Praverian Band, named Police, who had in his Custody, that famous Woman for poisoning, named Loculia, whom he had before made ute of, to destroy the Fa"ther of Britamics."

"It was a Custom for the Emperors, "Children, to dine with the other Princes. " who were of the same Age, at a Table " that was not ferved with fo much State, Wherefore to prevent that the Person " who was to tast Britannicus's Meat and " Drink should not be poisoned, they gave "him fome Drink a little too hot, which " when he had tafted he gave to the young "Prince, who refusing to drink it, they "gave him some cooler Water, which was poisoned, and seized all his Members in " fuch a manner, that he loft his Speech, and "Life in an Instant. He was carried into " Mars's Field with very little Ceremony, "but in fo great a Tempest, that the Pco-" ple took it for a mark of the divine An-"ger, who detefted so black and infamous an Action.

BRONTES, one of the Cyclops, who wrought in Vulcan's Forge, so called from the Greek Word Beern's which, signifies Thunder, because of the Noise and Clatter, which he makes upon his Anvil. Hessed makes him the Son of Carlom and Tirra, as well as the other Cyclops, Styropes, and Proacmen.

BROTHEUS, the Son of Vulcas and Minerca, who feeing himfelf derided for his Deformity, cast himself into the Fire, preferring Death before a contemptible Life.

BRUMALIA, the Saturnalia, which were kept at the Winter Solftice, or upon the florrest Day of the Year. See SATURNALIA.

BRUTUS, the Name of feveral Remans. Lucius Innius Brutus, the Founder of the Liberty and Common-wealth of Rene, which had been governed by Seven Kings Succeffively. He had feemed till the Death of Lucretia to be of a very dull and flow Wit, but the Death of shar famous Woman changed him on a fudden, for he delivered a function Oration in praise of her so well that the People looked upon this Proof of his excellent Wir, and Boquence for a Prodigy, and Miracle from the Gods. The People at the Conclusion of this Speech cried out, L I BERTY, and made Braiss' Consul, giving him an absolute Power. He was slain in a single Fight with Arms, the Son of Tarquinin, but slew his Bnemy at the sametime. The Roman Mastern lamented him, and wore Mourning for him a whole Year, acknowledging him the Revenger of the violated Ghastity of their Sex, in the Person of Largais.

M. and Decisi Brutus, were the Institutors of the Shews of Gladiators at Rome, which before had never been used in any Mans Memory. They introduced them in Honour of the Funerals of their Fathers.

According to Florus these Shews did not begin till Three Years after.

There was another Bruius of the same Ramily, who was one of the Murtherers of Julius Cefss. He was driven from Rome by Anthony, and killed himself in the Philippick Field, a little time after.

BUCCINA, a fort of Trumpet, used by the Romans in their Wars.

BUCEPHALUS, the Horse of Alexander the Great, that is to fay, Ox-head, because of his Cross-fight, which made him fly, and Fiery, or because he had a Neck and Head like a Bull. He would not fuffer that any Person should mount him but Alexander, In the War with the Indians, he exposed himself to the Enemies Darts to fave his Master, and finding himfelf wounded, he fled out of the Battle, and when he had carried Alexander to a Place of Safety he died, at which this Prince was much troubled, and made a Magnificent Euneral for him. In the Place where he was buried, he built a City, which he named from him Bucephalia, twas in the Indies, as Pliny relates, lib. 6. c. 10.

BULLA, a Boss, or Ring, or Medal, which the Remans wore upon their Breast, and was used as an Ornament for such as rode in Triumph. The Children of the Nobility wore it with their Garment, called Prairies, bordered with Purple, and never went without it, till they put off that Garment, as Persus tells us.

Cum primum pavido custos mihi purpura cossit. Bullaque succinttie Laribus denata pependic. Sat. V. v. 30.

Pliny discovers to us the Original of this Ornament thus. He fays, that the Son of Tarquinius Priscus, the Fifth King of Rome, when he was but Fourteen Years of Age, shewed an extraordinary Courage in the War against the Sabines, and flew one of his Enemies Captains with his own Hand. His Father commended this Action before all the People, and as a Reward of it, gave him a Robe edged with Purple, and adorned with this Bulla, or Ring, which he hung upon his Breast, and came down as far as his Stomach, as the Popish Bishops Croffes do. In these Bulle they had Prefervatives against Enchantments, and Witchcraft. In after times it became a Custom to give this Ornament to Noblemens Children, animate them by this Badge of Vertue to behave themselves valiantly in War, and at the same time to preserve them from the Contempt of Men.

These Bulls were made in different Shapes, as we may observe, but chiesly those that were worn against Enchantments, for they often resembled the Privy Parts of Beasts.

and Men.

BUSIRIS, the Son of Neptune, who under a Pretence of entertaining Strangers flew them, and offered them in Sacrifice to Jupiter, which flirred up Hercules to kill him, to revenge that eruel Inhumanity. Hence this Name was made Proverbial, to express such as love Murther and Bloodfied.

BUSTUM, *Pile of Wood, or the Place where the Bodies of dead Persons were burnt in ancient times. They whose Business it was to preside over it, were called BUSTUARII.

BYRSA, the Tower of Caribage. The Word is Greek, and fignifies a Skin, because 'ris said, that Dide flying from the Anger of her Brother came into Africa, and boughe as much Ground of Jarbas, as a Bulls Skin could cover, but she contrived, to cut the Skin into Thongs, and by that Means gained a large piece of Ground, big enough to build a Cassle on, and named it BYRSA, as we understand from Virgil, Liber. 3. Eastl. 19, 274.

Mercatique falum falti de nomine Byrfam. Taurine quantum peffeut circundare terge,

This Denatus explains of the Leather Money, which anciently was in use, and with which Dide paid King Jarbas for the Land the bought of him.

C

The third Letter of the Alphabet, and one of those Consonants, called Mutes.

It is pronounced different ways, but ufually like a K, unless before the Vowels, A, O, and U, when 'tis pronounced fometimes like an S, and then a little Line is drawn from the bottom of it C, which the Printers call a C with a Tail, but the French a Cedille.

C. is a numeral Letter among the Ancients, and stands for an Hundred, but with a Line drawn over the top, C, it fignines an Hundred Thousand.

. When we meet in History with a fingle C, it denotes Conful, when with a double CC, it for the most part signifies Confules.

This Letter has a near Relation to G, and Q for G, is but a diminurive of C, in the Judgment of Quintilian, fo like are they one to the other, for of xulspring, we make Guternator, uniG., Gloria, and of Egi, affum. Quintilian further adds, that 'tis not material whether Gaius or Gneius, be written with a C, or a G, and of pernicere, (which is still in use in Sacrifices) is made perrigere, and the like.

There is the like Affinity between C. and Q, so that several Grammarians have cast out Q, as a superfluous Letter, affirming that C, and V, are fufficient to express whatever is written with Q, and 'tis. worth our Observation, that the Greeks have no Q, which is taken from the Cook. or Ropps of the Syrians, and in French it has not a different Pronunciation from a fingle K, or C, before A, O, and U.

This Letter was accounted a fad, and faral Letter among the Ancients, because they made use of it, in the Sentences of Criminals, being fet upon their Tickets, or Ballots, for, I condemn the accused, Con-demu.

Among the Gruhe, this Letter his the Shape of the Round C Sigma, much will in the ancient Monuments engraven in the Times of the Roman Emperors from Author to Conflantine.

CABALA, an Hebrew Word which fignifies Receptio, which is a secret Knowledge, that the Jews pretend to receive by Tradition and divine Revelation, by which they explain all Mysteries of Divinity and all the Operations of Nature. They fpend most of their Time in making Mysterious Comparisons of things to the Letters of the Hebrew Alphaber, in which they flew much Ingenuity, but within as much Vanity and Superstition. Dr. Robin Fludd an English Man has made large Difcourses and Apologies for it, in his Nine great Volumes, which may be conful-

CABALIST A, a Cabalift, one who is well skilled in the Jewift Cabaliftical Learns

CABALLUS, the Horse Pogajue, to which the Fable has given Wings, as he flew to Mount Helicen, he caused a Fountain to rife out of a Rock by a Blow of his Hough, from whence it was named Hippocrene, or the Fountain of the Horfe. It was confecrated to Apollo and the Mufet, and upon that account its feigned that the Poets drank of that Water to make their Poems to be admired and approved. Perfine would have us to understand thus much by the first Verses of his first Sa-

Nec fonte labra prolui Gaballino : Nec in bicipiti fomniaffe Pernaffo Memini, ut repente fic Posta prodirem.

I never dipped my Lips in the Waters of the Fountain of the Horse Pegasus. I do not remember, that I ever flept upon. Parnassus, which has Two Tops, that I might immediately commence Poet.

The Quirinal Mount at Rome was called Caballus, in the time of the Roman Emperors, because of the Marble Statue Alexander the Great, taming his Horse Buce phales, fet there.

CABIRI, the great Gods of Samethrace. Varre calls them Divi petenter, and they are the same which the Samethracians Dame.

mite, the : penterful Gods, which are Colum and There. Apellonius in the first Book of his decesses, will have these Gods to be Pour in Number, to which he gives these barberous Names, though forbidden to discover them. AXIEROS, which is Ceres, AXIORERSA, which is Freferpina, AXIOKERSOS, which is Pluto, and CASMILLUS, or CA-MILLUS, which is Mercury. Others My, they were but Two, JUPITER, and DIONYSUS, fome think, they were called Cabiri from certain Mountains of Phrygia, which have the fame

CIB

The Fragment of Sanconiathon quoted by Enfebrus, tell us, that at Berith in Pharnieis. they worshipped certain Gods called Cabiri. from the Hebrew Word Cabir, which fignifies Great and powerful. We are also taught the Fate of Troy. He adds that Ement from the same Fragments, that the Gods Cabiri, were the Sons of Jupiter, and were called DIOSCURES, i. e. Children of Jupiter, SAMOTHRACES, becaufe they were worthipped in the Isle that bears the Came Name.

Heredotus relates, that Cambyfes being in Egypt, and treating whatever the Egyptime counted Holy with Contempt, and Ra-Hiery, went into the Temple of the Cabiri, and laughing at their Images, burnt them.

The other Nations of the World imitated the Egyptians, and had their Cabiri, as well as they, whom they honoured in their Temples.

The Scholiast on Apellenius Rhodius, says, that there were at first but Two Cabirs, Jupiter, and Bacchar, but names others afterward, wiz. AXIEROS, AXIOkERSA, and AXIOKERSOS. and Fourth named CASMILLUS, which is MERCURY.

M. Bochart derives these Names from the Hebrew Tongue, for he tells us that A X I-EROS, is the same with Achasi eritz, that it to fay, the Earth is my Possession, so that it can be no other but Cores, A X I O k E R-SOS, and AXIOKERSA, my Pof-Sellion is Death and Destruction, which are undoubtedly Plute and Preferpine; as for Colmillus he was rather a Minister of the Gods Calari, then one of them, for Platarch fays, that the Greeks and Romans gave that Name to a young Officer in Jupiter's Temple, as the Greeks gave it to Mersury. Servine will have it, that in the Tofcan Language, Moreny was called Cafmillar, as being the Minister of the Gods.

Strabe mentions the Opinion of Some. who held that there were but Three Gods Cabiri. as also Three Nymphs Cabiri. Cabires tres. & tres Nymphae Cabiridae. And tis certain that there were at first, but Three Cabiri, as Tertullian afferts politively in his Book de Spectaculie. Macrebius is of Opinion. that the Gods, which Emas carried from Trey into Italy, were thefe Gods Cabiri. and 'tis for this Reason that Virgil calls them the great Gods.

Dionysius Halicarnassaus relates at large from the Credit of Callifratus, the Story of these great Gods, which Dandamus carried out of Arcadia, into the Isle of Samethrace, and from thence to Trey, where he placed them with the Palladium, which contained carried them afterward into Italy. Heroditus gives the Name of Cabiri to the God's of Samothrace, and favs, that they were the Pelasgi, and Athenians together, that carried them into Samethrace.

CACA, the Sifter of Cacus, worshipped by the Romans in a little Chappel, called after her Name, where the Vestal Virgins went to offer Sacrifices.

CACUS, the Son of Vulcan and Medu-(a. whom the Fable represents to us with Three Heads, casting Fire and Flames out of his Nostrils, as Plutarch tells us. Cacus according to History was the Servant of Evander, a very wicked Man, who committed great Robberies. He attacked Hereales, as he returned out of Spain, and robbed hith of most of his Cattel, drawing them into his Cave by their Tails, that his Robberty might not easily be discovered; but Hirsules having found it by Cains's Sifter, and by the lowing of the Cattel, he flew the Thief and buried him in his Cave throwing it down upon him. Herailes in Gratitude built an Altar to JUPITER the FINDER, near the Gate called Trigenuins, and facrificed a Bull to him upon CADAVER, a dead Corpfe. Lucian in his treatife of Mourning has made a pleasant and useful Description of the Ceremonies used about dead Persons, and "After the nearest Relation has received "a dead Person, and closed his Eyes, his next Bulinels is to put a piece of Money into his Mouth to pay the Rerry-man of Hell, who is Charen, but never considers whether it be Money that is current in that Country, fo that in my Opinion he had better give him nothing, than that he frould be confirmed to fend it back again. After this Ceremony he washes the Body of the dead Person with warm Water, as if there were no Water below, " or that he were to affift at a Festival, at "his first Arrival : Besides this, he per-"fumes him, crowns him with Flowers, "and nuts him on his best Cloths, either 44 because they fear he will dye of cold by "the way, or that otherwise he will not be treated according to his Quality. All " is accompanied with Complaints and " Mourning, Tears and Sobs, to agree with "the Mafter of the Ceremony, who orders all "Matters, and recites with fuch a mournful "Voice all his former Calamities it would " make them weep, if they had never feen him. "Then some tear their Hair, others beat "their Breafts, or icratch their Faces, " some rend their Cloaths and cast dust up-"on their hieads, or fall down upon the "Ground, or throw themselves against the "Walls. So that the dead Man is the most " happy of all the Company, for while his "Friends and Relations torment themselves, "he is fet in some eminent Place, washed, "cleanfed, perfumed, and crowned, as if he " were to go into Company. Then his "Father or Mother if he had any, leave "the Gompany and go to him to embrace "him with fuch ridiculous Lamentations, as would make him burft with Laughter, "if he could be fensible of it. There are ferme, who at the Death of their Rela-Trions, kill their Horses and Slaves, to send them for their Use into the other World, " and burn or bury with them, their most " valuable Goods, as if they would be use-"ful to them. Nevertheless, all that these "People do, is neither for the Dead, who "ean know nothing of it, though they "cried Ten Times as loud, nor for them-"felves, for then they might act in Silence. "So that, if it be not done meerly for " Custom sake, 'ris only for fear they should "be thought to have no Friendship for, or "good Opinion of their Neighbours. " If he could be fenfible of what they do, "doubtless he would fay, why do ye lament "me so much, and torment your selves for me, who am happier than you? Is it "besaust the Darkness wherein I am frights you, or because you think I am smothered with the Weight of my Tomb? But "a Dead Man has nothing to fear, fince now "he is past all Apprehensions of Dearb. and my burnt or putrified Eves have no need to fee the Light. Besides, were I miserable, what good could all your Complaints do, or the imitings of your Breaks to the Tunes of Instruments, and this crowned Tomb, these Tears, and Lamen-"tation of Women? Do you think this "Wine which you pour out, runs down to "Hell, or is good to drink in another "World ; as for the Beafts which you bur. " in Sacrifice one part of them rifes in Smoke and the rest is confumed into Ashes, which " are very indifferent Food.

"This fort of mourning for the Dead, was much alike at Rome and Greece. But "their Burials differ according to the Die" verfity of Nations; for the one burn, or bury them, and the other embalm them, "I have been prefent at the Feafls in "Egypt, where they fer them at the end of their Table; and fometimes a Man or "Woman is forced to deliver up the Body of this father or Mother to conform to that Cultom.

"As for Monuments, Columns, Pyramids, "and Inferiptions, nothing is more use "lefs; there are fome that celebrate Plays "in Memory of the Dead, and make Funeral Orations at their Burials, as if they "would give them a Certificate or To "frimonial of their Life and Manners.

"After all this, formetreat the Company, where the Friends comfort you, and defire you to eat. How long fay they, will you lament the dead? You can'trecall them to Life again, by all your Tears?
Will you kill your felves with Despair for your Friends, and leave your Children Orphans? You ought at leaft to eat, because by this means you may moura
the longer. Thus far Lusian
the longer. Thus far Lusian

When the Body is laid upon the Pile of Wood to be burnt, fome Perfon opens his Eyes, as it were to make him look up to Heaven, and having called him feveral Times with a loud Voice, his next Relation fets Fire to the Pile of Wood with a Torch, turning his Back upon it to shew that he does that Service for the Dead with Regret.

Pliny is of Opinion, that burning of the Bodies of the Dead, was not ancient at Ruste. We do not, fays he, find, that any of the Cernelian Family were burnt, till Sylle: but Pliny feems to contradict himfelf, when he writes, that King Name forbad to pour Wine upon the Fires, which were kindled for the burning of the Dead ; and Platurch affures us, that Nums did ftrictly forbid that his Body should be burnt after his Death, but he ordered Two Tombs of Stone to be built, in one of which his Body should be laid, and in the other those holy Books which be had written about Religion, and the Worship of the Gods, which is Proof that burning of Bodies was very ancient, and that it was at least used in his Time. The Laws of the XII Tables, which were made Three Hundred Years after the building of Rome, which forbad the Burial, or burning of Bodies within the City, does not at all favour the first Opinion of Pliny, for nothing else can be concluded ; but that there were Two ways of disposing of dead Bodies in use, burying, or burning, and both were forbidden within the City to avoid Infection, and fecure it from the danger of Fires, which might happen by that means.

Citero caches us, that the Custom of burying Bodies was introduced at Athens, by George, and that they buried them with their Faces to the Wift, whereas at Migara they turned their Faces to the East. The Custom of burying Bodies lasted a very long time throughout all Greece, and that of burning them came from the Ginnosphilit of India, who had used it long before.

The Espitians embalm the Bodies of the Dead, to preferve them from Corruption. The Espigians had diverfe ways; sometimes they cast them into the Currents of Brooks and Rivers, sometimes they burnt them or put them in Earthern Vessels, according to the Testimony of Herodorus and Strabs.

The Indians eat them, that by this cursious Secret, they might give them a fecond Life by converting them into their own Substance.

Those People whom Hersdotsu calls, the Macrobies, or Long-lived dry the Bodies, then paint their Faces with white, and so-restore them to their Natural Colour and Complexion.

Then they wrapt them up in a Pillar of Glas, in which having kept the Body a whole Year they set it up in some place seer the City, where all might see it.

Disdaus Sicular relates that there were certain People, who after they had burnt the Bodies, put their Aftes and Bones into Statues of Gold, Silver, and Earth, covering, them over with Glafs.

The Garamantes busy their dead on the Shore in the Sand, that they may be washed by the Sea.

When the Body of the dead is confirmed by the Fire, and all prefent have taken their laft farewell, Valu aternum not coording, quo Natura valuerit, fequenur, the nearest Relations gather up the Ashes and Bones, which they sprinkle with holy Water, and then put them into Urns of different Mater, to set them in their Tombs, pouring out Tears, upon them, which being catched in small Vessels, called Lacrymavia, they are likewise reposited with the Urn in the Tomb.

It is very uncertain how they could gather the Ashes, and keep them mingling with those of the Wood and other things, which were burnt with the Bodies. Pliny mentions a fort of Lienen which grows in the Indies, called by the Greeks, shefter, soften and a Cloath that will not burn, although it be cast into the Fire. In this the Body being wrapped up, the Ashes of it may easily be kept together without mixing with those of the Wood; but this is not probable, since the same Pliny tells us, that this Cloth was very rare, and was preserved for the Kings of the Country only.

Perhaps they made use of another Cloath made of the Stone Amiantus, which Pliny says, they had the Art of spinning at that Time, and Plusach assures us, that in his Age there was a Quarry of that Stone in the 1se of Negropout, and the like is sound in the 1sle of Cyprus, Times, and asserted

They might have also some other Invention, as to set the Body upon the Fire in a Coffin of Brass or Iron, from whence is was easy to gather the Ashes and Bones that were not confumed.

CAD MUS, the Son of Menn, King of Phamicia, who was fent by his Father to find out Europa, which Jupiter had taken away, but not hearing of her after feveral long and dangerous Voyages, he went to consult the Oracle of Delphi, who ordered him to build a City in the Place, whither an Ox flouid lead him. And preparing in the first place to facrifice to the Gods, he seen his Companions to the Fountain of Direc, which was near, to fetch him some Water, but they were devoured by a Dragon. Minerus to comfort him for this Lois, advised him to go and flay the Monster, and to fow its Teeth upon the Earth. This being done, he faw armed Men immediately to grow up, who flew one another, except Five who furviving that Slaughter helped him to build the City, which he called Thebes, and reigned there feveral Years. He married Harmonia, oraccording to Ovid, Hermione, the Daughter of Mars and Venus, by whom he had several Children, which came all to miserable ends. Cadmus was expelled out of Thebes by Amphien, and went into Europe with the Phanicians. 'Tis faid that he brought with him Sixteen Letters of the Greek Alphabet, that he taught to write in Profe, and that he was the first that fer up Images in the Temples of the Gods He was changed into a Serpent with his Wife, through the Anger of the God Mars, because he slew the Dragon which kept the Fountain of Dirce.

Cadmus was one of the Gracian Heroes. of which the Pagans often made their Gods.

Bochart informs us, that Cadmus was one of those Cadminites, of whom Mojes speaks in Genefis. The Name of Cadmonites, was given them, because they lived about Mount Hermon, which was the most Easterly Country. It is probable that Hermione Cadmut's Wife might have taken her Name from that Hill. And because these People were part of the Hivites, it was feigned that Cadmus and Hermione were changed into Serpents, because the Sprinck Word Hevaus fignifies a Serpent. The Fable fays, that Cadmis having fown the Serpents Teeth, there came up armed Souldiers, which flew one another, and there furvived Five of them only, which subdued Bastis. Beckert ingeniously conjectures, that these are only Allusions to the Phanician or Hebrew words, for these Two Terms, feni name, fignify both the Teeth of Serpents, and Points of a Sword. Hyginus tells us, that Cadmus found out Steel first at Theber, as also the Metallick Stone, of which, Steel and Copper is made, still called Cadmia. The armed Souldiers were at length reduced to Five. because the word Hames signifies Five. It imports also s Soldier girded, and ready for Battle, because the Souldiers girded their Body about the fifth Rib.

Nevertheless some Interpreters of Pindie relate, that Cillians and Hermine lived to a very old Age, and were by the special Pavour of the Gods carried into the Elyffer Fields in a Chariot drawn by two Dragons, which doubtlets was the Occasion of the Eubemerus, of the Isle of Gos, in the third Book of his facred Hiftory, will have it that Cadmus was the Cook of the King of the Cydenians, one of whose Maids, a Player the Flute he debauched, and had by her Semele, whom she put in a Chest with Barchus, and cast her into the Sea, because the prostituted her felf to Jupiter!

CAD

Such as have allegorized this Fable, fav. that Cadmus was a very valiant Prince, who conquered the Kingdom of Bastia, by force of Arms, which was then governed by a King named Drace; that he endeavoured to divide it among his Subjects, but they quarrelled and destroyed one another, and fo he invaded the Kingdom. This History made the Poets feign that he flew a Dragon, and fowing the Teeth their sprung up Men, which killed one another.

CADUCA BO NA, Efcheats, Goods which are forfeited to the Kings Treasury. by the Laws of Escheats which were made in the Time of Augustus, to encrease the Treasure, which was exhautted by the civil Wars. These Laws were contained in seven ral Articles.

1. That all Persons who lived a fingle Life, should enjoy no Legacy, if they did not marry within the time limited by that Law, and if they did not, whatever they had bequeathed to them by Will, should be paid into the Treasury.

2. That those who had no Children should lose one Moyety of what was left them by Will, and this is that which the civil Law calls, Pans orbitatis.

3. All that was given by Will to any Person, who died in the Life of the Tellator, or after his Decease before the Will was opened, was an Escheat, and belonged to the Treasury.

4. Every Heir, who was negligent in revenging of the Death of him, whole Effate he inherited was deprived of hisInheritance, and it came to the Treasury. In a Word, Caducum, in the sense of the civil Law is meant of any Legacy, or Gift of Inheritance, which is void, There is a Title in the Civil Law. de caducis tollendis.

CADUCA

CADUCA AUSPICIA, Vain | Signs by Birds, which are of no Ufe.

CADUCA VOTA, & CADU CE PRECES, Fruitless Vows, and vain Presers which are not heard.

CADERE CAUSA, or LITE, to lefe his Suit or Caufe. An ancient Term of Law.

CADERE VOTIS, to make Pows in vain which are not heard. To hope

CADUCEUM, an Heralds Staffe. The Wand which Mercury according to the Fable received of Apollo, in exchange of the Seven-stringed Harp, which he gave him, was fo called.

The Poets speak of many Vertues, which this Wand of Mercury had, as to lay Men afleep, and to raife the Dead. The Word comes from the Latin Cadere, which signifies to fall, because this Wand had a force in it to appeale all Differences, and make Mens Arms to fall out of their Hands, as Mercu-77 proved by Two Serpents which were fighting, for he threw it down between them, and they were Friends, and from that time ofercury always carried it as an Enfign of Peace.

This Wand according to the Egyptian Mythology was streight, adorned with Two Serpents twining round it, and as it were joined together about the middle of their Bodies which feek to kifs one another, making an Arch of the highest part of their Bo-

The Amhassadours of Rome sent to make Peace carried a Wand of Gold in their Hand, and were upon that account called Caduceateres, as those who were fent to declare War, were called FECIA-LES.

The Ancients have attributed many wonderful Effects to the Cadmaans, alluding, to the Rod or Staff of Moses, with which He did fuch Miracles in Egypt, before Phareah, and the Magicians of that Coun-

CÆCIAS, the East Wind, which blows from the Parts where the Sun rifes, and raifes Clouds, from whence comes the Proverb. It is attended with Mischief, at the Cecias with Cleats.

CACILIUS, of Evirus, who was the Freedman of Atticus a Roman Knight. He taught Grammar at Rome and was the first who read Virgil and the other Latin Poets to his Scholars.

There was another of that name, who was a Gaul, who has written of the Civil-Law, and of the fignification of its CECUBUM, a Town of Campania, whence came the excellent Wines which Horace and others of the Poets speak so often of. Their Vineyard was destroyed by Nere; as Pliny relates.

C & D E R E pignere; or Sellionem pignorum instituere, or pigners auctione distrabere (In the Roman Law are used to signify) to. iell by Auction, or by Parcels, the Goodswhich were feized from any one.

CÆLIUS, one of the Seven Mountains of Rome, so called from Celius Vibenus King of Tuscany, who affished Remulus against the Latins. This Mountain was inclosed within Rome by Tullus Hostilius, who built his Palace there. There were many beautiful Temples upon it, viz. That of Faunus, Venus, Cupid, and the Fourth to the Emperor Claudius.

CENIS, the Daughter of Elatheus, one of the Lapitha, who was beloved by Neptune, and changed into a Man that was invulnerable. He fought against the Contaurs for the Lapitha, and received no Wound, but he was crushed by the Fail of some great Trees. Virgil informs us that the refumed her Sex after his Death, but Ovia will have her changed into a Bird.

CARUS, was called by the Greeks the God of Opportunity, and by the Latins, of Occafion. The Elians confectated an Altar to him. Calliftratus the famous Carver has represented this God under the Form of a fair young Man, having his Hair loofe, and blown about by the Gales of the Wind, and holding a Rasor in his Hand. A certain Poet also calls him the youngest of Saturu's Children. Phadrus in his witty Fables has described him in the Shape of a Man with Wings, having Hair on the fore part of his Head, but being bald behind, that none can regain him when he has fuffered him. once to pass him, because he went so swife, that he could run upon the edge of a Razor | turned the Reman Empire. Cafer was ever without hurring himfelf.

CÆSA & PORRECTA, these are the Entrails taken out of a Sacrifice, when it is opened, which the Sacrificer confiders attentively, before he into the Kingdom of Pontus, where he concasts them into the Fire, to observe whether there be any Blemish, which may inrerrupt the Sacrifice, or cause it to be renewed, and from hence arises the Proverb used by Cicero, Epift. 18. lib. 5. ad Atticum. Hulta imo omnia, quorum napakanov ne quid inter Cafa er porretta, ut aiunt, oneris mihi addatur, aut temperis. You fee all that is in my Letters, refer to this Head, That being upon the point of learning my Office and relinquifting my Government, none shall involve me against my Intention and Design in new Affairs, and to oblige me to remain in my

CÆSA, and RUTA, some understand by thefe Words, Things moveable, which are not fastened either by Hooks or Nails to the Foundation, or any part of the Building, as belonging neither to the Mason, or Car-penter's Work. "Cum ades Paternas vende-"res, ne in rutit quidem, & cacis solium tibi " paternum recepisti. When you sold your Fathers " House, you did not reserve so much to your " felf out of all his moveables, as the Chair wherein CÆSAR, Caim Julim, Who was the first Reman Emperor.

He was the Son of Lucius Julius Cafar, a Roman Conful and Prætor.

This Word Cafar, was the Surname of the Julian Family, either because the first of them was cut out of his Mothers Belly, or because he was born with much Hair : or laftly, because the Grandfather of Caim flew an Elephant, which in the Punick Language is called Cafar.

CAIUS JULIUS C ÆSAR, was of a good Stature, he had a pale Complexion, brisk Eyes, a large Nofe, some thing rifing, all Marks of a great Soul; a lover of Honour and Command. Being made Conful he went into Gallia, and fubdued it by Force. He first creffed the Sez, and made old Albion, now England, to pay tribute to the People of Rome. He made Pompey and Craffus Friends, by marrying his Daughter Julia to the former; but afterward they quarrelled in fuch a manner, as begat a civil War, which had almost overthe Conqueror, and utterly routed all Pen. pey's Forces in Egypt, and in the Pharfalian Field, and so he got the Government into his Hands,

He marched from thence into Syria, and quered Pharnaces, vanquished Juba with Scipio, and Cato in Africa. Returning to Reme he triumphed Four Times together, viz. over the Gouls, Ægypt, Pontus, and Africa, and further a fifth Time for fubduing Pempey the younger in Spain.

After all these Victories he was chosen perpetual Dictator, and proclaimed Emperor, which so stirred up the Hatred and Envy of the Noblemen of Rome, that they conspired against him and slew him in the Senate-house, having given him Twenty Three Wounds with their Daggers, of which he died. Brutus and Caffins were among the Conspirators. He was Fifty Six Years old at his Death. Dr. Andreas an Italian, a Scholar of the famous Argeli, has given an excellent description of him in writing upon the Medal of this Emperor. " It is my Opinion, fays he, that Julius Ce. " far being of a tall Stature, and having "brisk Eyes, and of a pale Skin, was of " a passionate Disposition, but a little me-"lancholy; his large Nose a little rising "between the Eyes, his Nostrils turning " fomething upward, and flat on the top, " make his Note fomething like an Eagle's, "which denotes great Courage, a lover of "Glory and Empire. His brisk and black " Eyes, his Forehead a little finking in the middle, shew, that he was a Man of great " Defigns, and confrant in his Undertakings : "his Head was well shaped with Two ri-" fings behind and before, and his Forehead "lean, all which joined together discover "his Fitness for Study and Eloquence. " He was bald on the fore part of his Head, which fignifies his Inclination to love; " from whence it became a common faying " of his Souldiers which they fang at his Re-" turn from the East, O ge Romans, we have " brought you the bald Adulterer.

There never was any Man, who had more Valour, feariefs Boldness, and Courage, than he, nor greater Experience in warlike Affairs, or the Art of governing, by which he fubdued 300 Nations, took 800 Cities, and conquered 3 Millions of Men in feveral Battles.

He was very resolute and daring, which made him to cross the Rhine and the Ocean to attack Germany and England, though the Wars of the Gauls, were not yet finished.

tions of Plays, and Triumphs, in which he ex-'ceeded all that had been before him, and fwalformation of the Time and Laws, the former of which is an hard Work ftill, and the other his Death prevented him from finishing, as also his should be broken, or dislocated by them. Eloquence in his learned Commentaries, which the Cauls.

He was the mildeft Prince in the World, and their Dignities, and often heaped new Honours Senate decreed, that in grateful Acknowledgment, a Temple should be built to Clemency, fam, I conquered.

CESAR OCTAVIUS, furnam'd Augustus, the Nephew of Julius, and adopted by him: His Stature was tall and proper, he had a comely Face, a tweet and modest Look, a Nose gently rifing near the Forehead, his Hair fomewhat cur.'d. He succeeded Julius Cafar, and was Heir to his Name as well as his Vertues, and happily finith'd those Departs of Monarchy the other had laid. He reveng'd his Death upon his Murderers, who died all a violent Heath, and fome of them by the fame Dagger wherewith they had affaffinated him. This I rince had a generous Soul, and a charming and infinuating Wit. He His Eye-brows joining over his Nofe, according | in the middle. to fome Phyriognomitts, fignified his Inclination

Life, in the Judgment of Hippocrates, and fome Winter. Phylicians: But, perhaps, his Sobriety made aof Age, although he was often troubled with Rheum, the Sciatica, the Gout and Gravel.

Sucremius also remarks, that he commonly fell other fide of the River: fick about his Birth-day. See Augulus.

He shewed his Magnificence in his Prepara- | Wrestiers made use of when they fought at Fifty-cuffs in the publick Games. Calepin is miflaken, when he fays that it was a kind of Club. lowed up, if I may fo iay, in that prodigal Ex- for it was only a Strap of Leather, frengthned pence, all the Roman Bravery, and Wealth. The with Lead, or Plates of Iron, wherewith, after large Reach of his Wit was proved by his Re- the Manner of Chains lying a-cross, they encompuls'd the Hand, and also the Wrist and part of the Arm to guard them from Blows, left they

CASTUS or CESTUM, a Girdle which he has left of the Civil Wars, and the War with I the Poets and Painters have given to Venus and Funo: Trus Pallas in Lucian advises Paris to take away Venus's Girdle, that he might the better we may fay, that his whole Life was nothing but Judge of the Beauty of the Three Goddeffes; a continual Example of Mercy and Bounty; for | because, adds she, Venus is a Magician, who keeps he not only pardoned his Enemies thro' the forme Charm conceal'd within her Girdle. This Greatness of his Mind, but he restored them to Word comes from the Greek nearly, which fignifies a Girdle, or any other Work embroider'd upon them; which made Cicero fay, that he had with the Needle, which was commonly wore by conquer'd Victory, because he freely deprived Women. It was a large Strap, which serv'd for himself of that which the had given. Where a Girdle, made of Wool, and which the Husband fore 'twas nothing but Justice to him, that the juntied for his Spoule the first Day of their Marriage, before they went to Bed; as we learn from Fiomer, Ause d'à massevine Carne; and ohis Device was, Veni, Vidi, Vici, i. c. I came, I vid, Castique fallaci zona recincta manu. And this relates to the Girdle of Venus, which Tuno borrow'd of her to entice Jupiter to Love; for this Girdle, fays Homer, B. 14. Of the Iliads, contains the Paffion. Withes and Charms, by which Venus unites the Hearts of new-married People; which made Martial lay,

> Ut Martis revocetur amor fummique Tonantis, At: Juno perat celton, & ipla Venus. Lib. 6. Epig. 13.

Some Authors fay, that this Castus of Venus was a little liller or Diadem, wherewith the Heads was prudent and brave without Offentation, of Deities were encompas'd, which had a Point

CAYX, King of Taracinia, the Son of to Vertue; others thought that this was a Sign | Incifer, or the Morning-Star, and Husband of of his Inclination to Study, because it denotes | Alcione; who going to consult the Oracle about M-lancholy, and there must be a little of that the Government of his Kingdom, was Shipor study : He was a Lover of Learning, and wreck'd at Sea; which fo fentibly touch'd his had a pleasant Way of Writing both in Profe Wife, that for Grief the threw her felf Headand Verte, from whence it was that in his Time long into the Sea : But the Gods having Comthere were such able Men, as Virgil, Horace and patton on them, chang'd them both into Birds, call'd Halyons, (i. e. Kingsfifters) who make The Teeth of this Prince being finall and thin the Sea calm when they haven their young enes fet, according to Suesonius, prognofticated flort in the Sea-rufhes, during the flurpet: Storms of

Lucian in his Dialogue, entituled, Aleyon, remends for this Defect, fince he liv'd to 76 Years lates the Fable after another manner, for he introduces Socrates, speaking thus to Cherephon, whose pleasant Sound had struck his Ear from the

"Tis Aleyon, fays Socrates to him, who is fo CASTUS, a large Gantlet mide of a raw "much extoll'd, of whom this Fable is told: That Hide, adoined with Lead, which the ancient 'the Daughter of Eolus having left the brave *Cayx her Husband, the Son of the Morning-flar, in Allom water. Shooes were made of the wasted her self with fruitless Complaints, until Skins of Cows, Calves, Deer, Goats, Ce. from · Halcyon-Days.

CAIUS or GAIUS, a Surname given to many illustrious Romans, upon the Account of the lov their Parent telt at their Birth, a gandio pa-

CAIUS, furnam'd Offavius, the Father of the Emperor Augustus, who defeated the Fugitive Slaves, and deftroy'd those that remain'd of broider'd and enrich'd with Pearls and Dia-Cariline's Conspiracy.

CAIUS MEMMIUS, a Curule .Edile, who first celebrated the Feast Cerealia, or the Leftival of Ceres, as appears by this Motto, Memmius adilis Cerealia primus fecit.

CALABRA CURIA, the Calabrian Court, built by Romulus upon Mount Palatine, near his own Habitation, according to Varro; or according to others, near the Capitol, in the Place where the Magazine of Salt now is. It was call'd Calabra, from the Larin Word Calare, which fignifies to call together; because Romulus defign'd this Place for the general Affemblies of the People; but fince that time, the Rex facrorum fummons the Senate and People to meet there, to give them Notice of the Days for Games and Sacrifices. You may confult Macrobius about this Word, Lab. 1. Saturnal. and Festus.

Head-dress of the Roman Women.

Vaco. fignifies to call together, or affemble the oftendere eum voluisse. They made use also of People, from whence comes the Word Calenda, Wood, whereof they made Wooden Shoes, and which is as much as to fay, the first Day of each Sandals or Galloches, which were the Shoes of Month, because he who presided at the Sacri- the Poor, and of Parricides when they were shut fices, affembled the People in the Capitol, after up in a Sack, as Cicero tells us, Si quis parentes of he had observ'd the New Moon, to fignifie to siderit vel verberavit, ei damnato obvolvatur os them the Feafts and Games of that Month.

the People, who were call'd together for the E- Shoes which were used by the Ancients. lection and Confectation of Prietts, and for Wills CALCEI, Muller, Solea, Sandalia, Corburwhich were made in the most ancient Times of ni, Caliga, Galica, Crepida, Socci, Perones, Othe Commonwealth, in the Presence of the Peo- cree; to which we may add those which were inple, as Theophilus fays, in Book 2. Inflin. See troduc'd by Custom, borrow'd for the most part Comitiz.

Ancients, which was different from ours both in biada, Amiclaida, Anaxyrides, Arpides, Laconica, Matter and Form : It was made at first of a raw 1. ymphides, Persica, Scythica, Ibbicratides: Ot each Hile, with all the Hair on, which they call'd or which we shall speak according to the Order Carbainas crepidas: But in fucceeding Times, of the Alphabet. the Hides were prepared, curried, and steep'd the Gods mov'd with Compassion, chang'd her whence comes the Raillery used by Martial, of into a Bird, which fill fearches on the Waters one who had a Cap of fine Leather, to whom for him, whom she cannot meet with upon he says, that his Head was shod. They made Earth. And to recompense her Love, while use also of the Bark of a Tree, which they wove he makes her Neft and hatches her Young, the or knit, as Martianus Capella tells us, Cakeon Winds are fill, and the Sea is calm, even in the pratered ex papyro textili subligavit; which 's sharpest Weather of Winter : And so to this are also mention'd by Benedictus Balduinus, in Dav, these fine Days are call'd from her Name Book 3. de Calceis antiquis. These fort of Shoes were especially used in Egypt, for the Priests wore them when they facrified to the Gods: They made them also of Broom and Rushes, and they were call'd spartei and juncei calcei, which Fashion came from Foreign Countries; and these the Spanish Peasants wore, as Pliny testifies. They made them also of Flaxen Cloth very white, emmonds. Hiftory informs us, that the Emperor Antoninus, furnam'd Philosophus, and his Succesfors till Constantine's Time, wore Shoes of this fort. They made use also of Mettals to make Shoes, as Iron, Brafs, Gold and Silver. Empedocles wore Shoes or Slippers of Brass: which gave occasion to that Apostrophe of Lucian, in his Dialogues to him, God preferve you good Master Slip shoe. The Romans had Shoes of Iron, but they were used for the Punishment of Christians, during the Persecutions. They put great Nails into them, which they caus'd to be made red hot, as was done to St. Bafil, ferres crepidas ignitis clavis confixas calceatus. They wore also Shoes of maily Gold, and others which were only gilt. Plantus, in his Bacchides, speaks of a very rich Man who wore Shoes, whose Soals were of Gold: Etiam rogas qui soccis babeat auro suppatium folum. Julius Cafar wore Shoes of Gold, and others which were only CALANTICA, a Kerebief, the ancient gilt, according to the Testimony of Seneca, Qui excusant eum, negant id infolentie fallum, aiunt CALARE, from the Greek Word καλέω jocculum auratum, imo aureum margaritis diffinilum folliculo lupino, folca lignea pedibus inducanti. CALATA COMITIA, an Affembly of Here follow the Names of the feveral forts of

from the ftrange Fashions of divers People's CALCEAMENTUM, the Shoe of the which are the Campagi, Phacafia, Sicyonia, Akira

CALCEUS, which we now call a Shoe, The Shoes of Senators, Patricians and their was different from ours in this, that it covered | Children, had something like a Crescent at the half the Leg, and was open in the Fore-part, End, which made the Figure of a C, to shew, and was tied with Thongsor Straps, which they that they were descended of the Number of called corrigias calceamenti: This may be easily the first 100 Senators or Fathers which Romu-

Et concurrentibus anfis Vinclorum pandas texunt per crura catenas.

This Shoe was extream close upon the Foot. when they had a mind to be handfomly shod, and thence it was called terfum calceum or tentipellium, and it was a Sign of Carelefiness or Poverty, to have a Shoe too big, and your Feet loofe in it and bagging out, laxum calceum, follentem, or follicantem, which made Ovid caution his Miffress to take heed that her Shoe was not Nec vagas in laxá pes tibi pelle natet.

Thus St. Jerom fays, that all the Care of worldly Men was to be handsomly cleath'd and shod, laxa pelle non folliat. To shun this, they took care to tie their Straps close, as Tibullus tells us, Ansaque compressos alligas arita pedes, and to ftuff them with Locks of Wool, and fuch like Things, as we learn from Tertullian, Stipabant tomento: upon which Words Rhenanm fays, Stipant ne fol very common in his Time. licer calcens, they ftuif it with Wool for fear left in it.

The Toe of the Shoe ended in a Point bendcalceis repandis.

ftreis should cuff him with her red Patten, folea she went barefooted. obiweabere rubra.

observ'd from the Passage of Sidonius Apollinaris, lus instituted after the building of his new City; Plutarch gives other Reasons for it, Besides, this Crescent was upon the Instep. and ferved to rie the Shoe close, as now our Buckles do, if we will believe Balduinm. who pretends to prove it by this Verse of Statins.

Primaque patricià clausit vestigia luna.

And by the Authority of Triaguellus upon the fifth Book of Alexand. Neap. Lunula, fayshe, in calceis erant fibula eburnea ad instar Luna corniculantes. These Crescents were made of different Matter, as Gold, Silver and Ivory adorn'd with Diamonds and other precious Stones.

The chief Roman Magistrates were commonly red Shoes, on Days of Ceremony and Triumphs. The greatest part of Writers will Omnis bis cura in vestibus, si bene cleant, si pes in have the Emperor Dioclesian to be the first who wore precious Stones upon his Shoes, and that he presented them to be kiss'd by those who did him Reverence. Yet we find that Heliogabalus wore them before him, as also Alexander Seusrus; and Pliny speaks of this Cuftom as an Abuse

The Slaves wore no Shoes, but went barefoot, it should have Wrinkles and the Foot turn about and for that Reason they were called cressis, or gypfati from their dufty Feet. There were also iome Free-men that went barefooted, and Taciing a little backwards, which they called caheum tus observes, that Phocion and Caso Usicensis and roftratum, repandum, uncinatum, and those who many others walk'd without Shoes; but these wore them so were called unipedes, as Tertullian | Examples are rare, and generally speaking all tells us in his Book de Pallio C. 5. Such were Persons that were of a free Condition walk'd the Shoes of Juno, as Cicero informs us, cum always shod, except at some religious Solemnity, or in the Time of some publick Calamity; The common Citizens were black Shoes, and for we learn from Hiftory, that when the great the ordinary Women wore white: And there- Mother of the Gods was wash'd, the People went fore Lipfing feems to be mistaken, when he en- in Procession barefooted, and that the Roman deavours to prove that the Shooes of the Romans Dames put off their Shoes at the Sacrifices of Vella. were white, and grounds his Opinion upon a Tersullian relates, that the Pagan Priefts very Paffage of Martial, where 'tis faid, Calceus can- often order'd Processions to be made barefooted didior fit prima nive. But this learned Man in a Time of Drought : Cum flupes calum & ares doubtlese did not take Notice, that in this Place annus, nudipedalia denunsianiar. The principal Marial blames Cecinna, because he had a very Roman Knights at the Death of Julius Caper ganafty Gown, and wore shoes as white as Snow: thered up his Afhes, and being clad in white What is arrivm'd by Horace and Juvenal is more | Tunicks they walked barefoot, to fignificat once probable therefore, that they were black. Ne- both their Respect and Sorrow. Lycurgus and vertheless 'tis true, that some Men wore white the Lacedemonian young Men went always bare-Shoes under the Emperors, for we read in Spar- foot, and the Atolians and Hernicians, a Peotianus, that Alexander Severus forbad Men to ple of Italy, had one Foot flood and the other use them, and permitted the Use of them only naked, as also the Magicians in their Magical to Women, who were also some that were red, Mysteries: Virgil and ovid tell us, Unum exusa and some of other Colours, which made Perfins pedem vinclis. 4. Aneid. Horace speaking of caution a young Man to take heed left his Mi- Canidia that famous Magician, acquaints us that

Pedibus nudis, passoque capillo.

CALCULUS, this Latin Word fignifies Flint stones instead of Counters, for reckoning and Presents exchanged between them in Token up any Sums whether multiplied or divided in of Friendihip. their Computations, either in Astronomy or Geometry. The Kings of Lacedemonia gave lastris, was kept on the first Day of January, and their Suffrages with Two small Stones, and the there was great Rejoycing, because the New Romans marked their fortunate Days with a Moon happen'd on that Day, and it was comwhite Stone, and unfortunate with a black Stone, ____ Albo autnigro notanda Iapilio.

CALENDE, the Calends. The Romans called the first Day of each Month by this Word, lendar. which comes from the Greek Word xantani CALENDARIUM, a Calendar; an Al-2000, because reckoning their Months by the manack which contains the Order of the Days, Moon, there was a Priest appointed to observe Weeks and Months, and shews the Festivals the New Moon, who having feen it, immediately gave notice to him who prefided over the Sacrifices; and he prefently called the People together in the Capitol, and declared unto them how they must reckon the Days until the Nones, of a civil Life. They took great care to write pronouncing Five times this Word x2x20, if they happen'd on the Fifth Day, or Seven times if they happen'd on the Seventh Day. There Calends, or first Day of each Month, were conferrated to Juno, upon which Account the was turnam'd Calendaris Juno.

The Greeks had no Calends as the Romans had, and therefore when one would fignifie a Time that should never happen, they made use of that Expression, ad Gracas Calendas, i. e. at latter brought this way of Speaking into Fashion, as Suermius relates, upon the Occasion of certain Debtors, who were become infolvent, Cum ali. and Senate. quis nunquam exfolucuros significare vult, al Calenlas Grac & foluturos air. Inftead of the Name of Calends, the Gereis made use of the Word Neopavia, i.e. the Day of the New Moon, which was the same thing with the Calends among the Famans, as this Passage of Plutarch in the Life of Galba plainly proves, επηλθε Λαλέσ

The Calends of January were more confider-Although the Calenda of Junuary was a Pestival Paragraph before the Calendar of Julius Casu. Day for them, yet they did not fail then to begin any new Work, every Man according to his Profession, that they might never be idle the rest of the Year, having begun it with

The Magistrates entered upon their Office a Stone, because the Ancients made use of little on this Day, and Feasts were kept everywhere,

The Featts of the Calends, fays Manbew Bamonly believ t, that if they diverted themselves well at the Beginning, they should pass the whole Year the more merrily. This Day brought no Sorrow to any but only to Debtors, who were oblig'd to pay their Interest and Arrears, upon which Account Horace calls them trifles Cawhich happen during the Year. The Roman People at first had no Calendar, for it was only in the Hands of the Priests, from whom they learned the Festivals, and the other Solemnities down in it every Thing that happened each Year, and marked moreover the Days on which there were Pleadings and on which there were none; And therefore this Calendar was called Faftus, or in the Plural Number, Fasti, and also Annales publici, because in it were fet down the most confiderable Actions of the Great Men of the Commonwealth: And from hence come these lordinary Forms of Speech, Conferibere nomina fastis, or Referre in fallos & in annales publicos, Lamnus, or never. Augustus was the first who it e. to transmit your Memory to Posterny. Cn. Flavius, Secretary to A pius Claudius, gave the People a Calendar in Despite of the Priests

Romuius was the first who divided Time by certain Marks, to serve for the Use of the People that were subject to him, and being much more ikiliul in Military Affairs than in Affronomy, he made the Year commence with the Spring, and gave it only Ten Months, whereof the first was the Month of March, and next after that was A pril, May, June, Quintilis, Sextilis, September, ι αμηνία το αρώτο μηνός, ην Καλένδας 'laveagias October, November, December. He gave 31 Days to each of their Four Months, March, May, Quintilis and ollober, and only 30 to each of the other able than the Calends of the other Months, be- Six, to that they made altogether 304 Days, which caute they were particularly confectated to Juno was that Duration of Time wherein, as he imaand the God Janus; upon which Account the gin'd, the Sun run through all the differed Sea-Romans then never fail'd to offer Vows and Sa- fons of the Year, as may be feen in the following crifices to these Two Deities; and the People Calender. But as to the Division of Months into being clad in new Gowns, went in Crouds to Calends, Nones and Ides, and the Manner of the Tapeian Mount where Janus had an Altar. reckoning their Days, see hereafter the Seventh

The CALENDAR of Romulus, containing 10 MONTHS,

			ind conf	jung	9. 30.	, 0	7 I 3.
-	tarch.	, 	pril.		lay.	7-3	func.	1 9	uintiim.
	Kalend.		Kalend.		Kalend.	1-1	Kajeno.	1 1.	Kalend
1.	VI	2.	IV	1.	VI	2.	IV	2.	VI
2. 3.	v	3.	111	3.	v	3.	iii	3.
4.	ıv	4.	Prid.	4.	iv	4.	Prid.	4.	īV
4.	iii	1 2	Non.	7	Ш		Non.	5.	Ш
5. 6.	Prid.	5.	VIII	5. 6.	Prid.	5. 6.	VIII.	6.	Prid.
7.	Non.	7: 8.	VII	7: 8.	Non.	7: 8.	VII	7. 8.	Non.
7: 8.	VIII	8.	VI	8.	VIII		VI		VIII
9.	VII	9-	v	9.	VII	9.	.v	.9.	VI
10.	VI	10.	IV	FO.	VI	10.	III	10.	v
12.	٧	11.	III	11.	.v.	11.	Prid.	12.	īv
	IV	12.	Prid.	12.	111 111	13.	Id.	13.	iii
13.	III -	13.	Id. XV III	13.	Prid.	14.	XVIII	14.	Prid.
14.	Prid. Id.	14.	XVII	14.	Id.	15.	XVII	15.	Id.
16.	XVII	15.	XVI	15. 16.	XVII	16.	XVI	15.	XVII
10.	XVI	17.	XV	17.	XVI	17.	XV	17.	XVI
17.	XV	19.	XIV	13.	XV	17.	XIV	17.	XV
19.	XIV	19.	XIII	19.	XIV	19.	XIII	19.	XIV
20.	XIII	25.	XII	25.	XIII	20.	XII	25.	XIII
21,	XII	21.	XI	21.	XII	21.	Χt	21.	XII
22.	, X1	22.	x	22.	XI	22.	X	22.	χι
23.	x	23.	1X	23.	X	23.	IX	23.	X IX
24.	ıx	24.	VIII	24.	IX	24.	VIII	24.	VIII
25.	VIII	25. 25.	VII	25.	VIII	25. 26.	VII VI	25. 26.	VII
26.	VII	25.	VΙ	25.	VII VI	20.	v	25.	νί
27.	VΙ	27.	v	27. 28.	VI V	27.	iv	27. 23.	Ÿ
28.	V IV	29.	IV III		ıv.	29.	iii	29.	ίV
29. 30.	111	29. 30.	Prid.	29. 30.	iii	30.	Prid.	30.	ш
31.	Prid.	1 300	11145	31.	Prid.	1 3		1 31.	Prid.
-2
	Scztilis.	Sept	ember.		ber.		vember.		ember.
1.	Kalend.	1.	Kalend.	1.	Kalend.	j 1.	Kalend.	1.	Kalend.
2.	lV	2.	IV	2.	VI	2.	17	2.	IV III
3.	Ш	3.	III	3.	v.	3.	III	3.	Prid.
4.	Prid.	4.	Prid.	4.	1V 11 1	4-	Prid. Noa.	4.	Non.
5. 6.	Non.	5. 6.	Non.	5. 6.	Prid.	5. 6.	VIII	5. 6.	VIII .
٥.	VIII VII	٥.	VIII	7	Non.	7	VII	7.	VII
7- 8.	VII	7. 8.	vi	7. 8.
						8.	VL.	18.	VI
					VIII VII	7. 8.	VL.	7. 8.	v
9.	v	9.	v	9.	VIII VII	9. 10.	v IV	9. 10.	V IV
	V 1V	9. 10.			VII VI V	9. 10. 11.	V IV III	9. 10. 11.	V IV III
9. 10. 11.	V 1V 111	9. 10. 11.	. V IV	9.	VII VI V IV	9.	V IV III Prid.	9. 10. 11. 12.	V IV III Prid.
9. 10. 11. 12.	V 1V	9. 10. 11. 12.	V IV III Prid. Id.	9. 10. 11.	VII VI V IV III	9. 10. 11.	V IV III Prid. Id.	9. 10. 11. 12. 13.	V IV III Prid. Id.
9. 10. 11. 12.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13.	VII VI V IV III Prid.	9. 10. 11. 12. 13.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII	9. 10. 11. 12.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14.	VII VI V IV III Prid. Id.	9. 10. 11. 12. 13.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	VII VI V IV III Prid. Id. XVII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVII XVI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16.	VII VI V IV III Prid. Id. XVII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVII XVI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVII XVI
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII XVII XVII XVI XVI XVI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII XVII XVII XVI XVI XVI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17.	VII VI V IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XVI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII XVII XVI XVI XVI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17.	V IV III Prid, Id, XVIII XVIII XVII XVI XVI
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XIV XIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XVI XIV XIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17.	VII VI V 1II Prid. Id. XVII XVII XVI XVI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 19.	V IV III Prid. Vd. XVIII XVIII XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XIV XIII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XIII XIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XII XIII XIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19.	VII VI V IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XVI XX XIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XV XIV XIII XII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19.	V IV III Prid. td. XVIII XVII XVII XVI XVI XIV XIII XIII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	V IV III Prid, Id, XVIII XVII XVI XVI XVI XIII XIII XI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII XVI XVI XVI XIV XIII XIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20.	VII VI IV IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XVI XV XIII XIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20.	V IV III Prid, Id, XVIII XVII XVI XVI XVI XIV XIII XIII X	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 19. 20.	V IV III Prid, Id, XVIII XVII XVII XVI XVI XII XIII XIII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 20. 21.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVI XVI XVI XIII XIII XIII XIII	9. 10, 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XII XII XII XI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21.	VII VI IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVI XVI XIV XIII XII XII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XV XIV XIII XII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 19. 20. 21.	V IV III Prid. td. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XXI XII XII XI XXI X
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. • 20. 21. 22. 23.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XV XIII XIII XII XI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XIV XIII XII XI X IX VIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23.	VII V IV III Prid Id XVII XVI XVI XIV XIII XII XI XXI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVII XVII XVI XIV XIII XII X	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23.	V IV III Prid. td. XVIII XVII XVII XVI XV XIV XII XII XI XI X IX VIII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XIII XIII XI XI XI XI XI XI XI XI XI X	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XII XII XII XI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23.	VII VI V 1V III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XVI XII XII XII XI XXI XXI XXI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24.	V IV III Prid, Id, XVIII XVIII XVII XVI XIV XIII XII XI XI XI VIII VIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23.	V IV III Prid, Id. XVIII XVII XVII XVI XII XII XII XI IX IX VIII VII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25.	V 1V III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII XVIII XVI XVI XIII XII XI XI XI VIII VII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XIV XIII XII XI X IX VIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23.	VII VI IV III Prid Id. XVII XVI XVI XIII XIII XII XI IX IX VIIII VII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XXI XIII XII XI XI XI XI YIII VII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 19. 20. 21. 22.	V III Prid. td. XVIII XVIII XVIII XVII XVI XIV XII XII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 27.	V 1V III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII XVII XVI XIII XIII XIII XI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 18. 19. 22. 23. 24. 25.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XIV XIII XII XI IX VIII VI VI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 27.	VII VI V 1V III Prid. Id. XVII XVII XVII XIII XII XI XI VIII VII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVI XIII XIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 27.	V IV Prid V XVIII XVIII XVIII XVII XVII XVII XVI
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XV XIV XIII XII XI XI VIII VII V	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XV XIIV XII XII XII XII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26.	VII VI V IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVII XVII XX XX XII XII XII XII XI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XIV XIIV XII XI XI XI VIII VII V	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 27. 23.	V III Prid. td. XVIII XVIII XVIII XVII XVI XII XII XII
9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 25. 27.	V 1V III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII XVII XVI XIII XIII XIII XI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 18. 19. 22. 23. 24. 25.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVII XVI XVI XIV XIII XII XI IX VIII VI VI	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 27.	VII VI V 1V III Prid. Id. XVII XVII XVII XIII XII XI XI VIII VII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26.	V IV III Prid. Id. XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVI XIII XIII	9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 27.	V IV Prid V XVIII XVIII XVIII XVII XVII XVII XVI

III Prid

'Tis true, there needed no long time to dif- I wanted of the Solar Year confifting of 365 Days cover that this Account was too short, and that and Six Hours. Of these the Greeks made Three his Year must begin long before the Solar Year, Months, each whereof had 30 Days, which they and therefore to reduce these things into Order, called auconipos, and which they intercalated he ordain'd that all the Days which were over after the Third, the Fifth and the Eigh Years; and above what he had reckoned in this Calender, should be inserted amongst the rest without any Name, by way of Intercalation, which was done with little Care. But under the Reign of Sixth of the Kalends of March, i. e. on the 24th Numa Pompilius the Calendar was first reform'd. of February; and the first Month intercalated This Prince had private Conferences with Py he made to confift of 22 Days, and the next of ebagoras, from whom he learn'd many things concerning Aftronomy, which he chiefly applied of Four Years might make up the Number of to this Purpole; and he followed very near the fame Order which the Greeks then observed in the Division of Time. 'Tis true, that instead of 354 Days, which they gave to their common Years, he gave to his 355, because he would have the Number to be odd, out of a superstitious Opinion which he learned from the Egyptians, who had an Aversion to even Numbers which they accounted unfortunate: And therefore he took away one Day from each of these Six Months, April, June, Sextilis, September, November and December, to which Romulus had given 30 Days, that they might have but 29, and left to the rest at Days which they had before; and then adding these Six Days to the 51, which Romulus's Year of 204 Days wanted, to make up his own Year of 355; he made them in all 57 Days; which Number he divided into Two to make of it Two other Months, which he placed before the Month March, viz. January confifting of 29 Days, and February of 28, Which . Month he delign'd for the Sacrifices which were offered to the Infernal Gods, to which this even Number as being unfortunate feem'd most properly to belong.

Thus he made the Month of January, which he plac'd at the Winter-folflice, the first Month of the Year, instead of March which was the first before, and which Romulus had placed at the Vernal Equinox: And to make this Inflitution everlafting, he made use of the Intercalation of 90 Days every Eight Years, which Number was made up of the Eleven Days and a Quarter, which the Lunar Year confifting of 354 Days | Paragraph before Cafar's Calendar.

but Numa made Four Months of them, and intercalated one every Two Years, after the Feaft called Terminalia, which happened on the 23, that so the whole Intercalation in the Space 45 Days, which was equal to that afed among the Greeks in their Olympiads. This Month intercalated every Two Years was called Mercedonius, and the Intercalary February.

The Year of Nums which confifted of 355 Days, ending one Day later than the Greek Year, it was easie to observe, that fince their Beginnings were fo far from agreeing together, they would in a little time recede very far from one another: And therefore the same Numa, to obviate this Inconvenience, ordain'd, that in the Space of Eight Years the whole oo Days should not be intercalated, according to the Custom of the Greeks, but only 82 Days, which were to be inferted in this Order: At first in the Space of Two Years an Intercalation was made of 22 Days, next after that, an Intercalation was made of 23 Days, at the Third time an Intercalation was made of 22 Days, and at the Fourth an Intercalation was made of 15 Days only, in lieu of 22 which should have been inserted, this Deduction was necessary to take off in Eight Years time, the Eight superfluous Days he had added to his Year.

Numa's Year therefore confifted of Twelve Months, viz. January, February, March, April, May, June, Quintilis, Sextilis, September, October. November and December, whereof Seven had 20 Days, and the reft 31, except February which had only 28, which may be feen in the following Account of his Calendar. But as to the Division of Months into Calends, Nones and Ides, and the Manner of reckoning Days. See hereafter the

The CALENDAR of Numa Pompilius, containing 12 MONTHS, and consisting of 355 DAYS.

1.	Anuary. Kalend.		February. March.				April.		May.	-1-	June.
2.	IV	1 2				, I.	Kalend.	1 1.	Kalend.	1 1.	Kalene
3.	iii	3.		2.	VI V	2.	IA	2.	VI	2.
4.	Prid.	1 4		3.	17	3.	III	3.	v	3.	111
5.	Non.	17		14	III	4.	Prid.	4.	IV	1.4	Prid.
5. 6.	VIII	1 8.	VIII.	5.	Prid.	5.	Non.	5.	111	3:	Non.
7. 8.	VII	1 7	VII		Non.		Viii	6.	Prid.		VIII.
8.	VI	8:	VI	8.	VIII	§:	VII	7: 8.	Non.	8:	VII
٥.	v	9.	¥		VII		VΙ		VIII	1 8.	VI
9. 10.	IV	10.	ΙV	10.	VI	9. 10.	V IV	9.	VII	9.	v
LI.	111	111.	111	11.	V V	11.	17	10.	VΙ	Ió.	IV.
12.	Prid.	12.	Prid.	12.	ιν	12.	III Prid.	11.	v	11.	111.
13.	Id.	13.	Id.	13.	iii	13.	Id.	12.	IV	12.	Prid.
4	XVII	14.	Id. XVI	14.	III Prid.	14.	XVII	13.	ш	13.	Id. XVII
۱ ۶ .	XVI	15.	ΧV	15.	Id.	1 ::*	XVI	14.	Prid.	14.	XVII
6.	XVI	16.	XIV	15. 16.	IIVX	15. 16.	XV	15.	1d.	15.	XVI
8.	XIV	17-	XIII	17.	XVI	17.	Χίν		XVII		ΧV
8.	XIII	17.	XII	18.	χv	13.	XIII	17.	XVI	17.	XIV
9.	XII	19.	Χį	10.	Xiv	19.	XII	13,	ΧV	18.	XV XIV XIII
٥.	ΧI	20.	X	20.	XIII	20.	AII.	19.	XIV.	19.	XII
11.	х.	21.	11	21.	XII	21.	XI X	20.	XIII	20.	XI
2.	1X	22.	VIII	22.	Χί	22.	îx	21.	XII	21.	X
3.	VIII	23.	VII	23.	x	23.	Viii	22.	Χï	22,	IX
4-	VII	24.	VI	24.	ix	24.	VII	23.	X	23.	AIII
5. 6.	VI	25.	v	25	VIII	25.	νί	24-	IX	24.	VII
6.	v	25.	IV	25. 25.	Vii	26.	Ÿ	25.	VIII	25.	VI
3.	IV	27.	111	27.	VI	27.	īv	25.	VII	26.	v
3.	III	27. 29.	Pr.d.	27. 28.	v	28.	ш	27. 25.	VΙ	27. 23.	IV
9.	Prid.	1		29.	Ϊ́ν	29.	Prid.	29.	V IV.		ш
,	riid.	1		30.		-9.		1 22.		29.	Prid.
			Compile	30. 31.	III Prid.			30. 31.	III Prid.
	intilis.		Se ztilus,	30. 31. Sej	III Prid.	08	ober.	30. 31.	III Prid.	Deca	mber.
2ui	intilis. Kalend. VI	1.	Kalend.	30. 31. Sej	Prid.	0 8	ober. Kalend.	30. 31.	Prid. ember. Kalend.	Deca	mber. Kalend.
2ui	intilis. Kalend.	I. 2,	Kalend. IV	30. 31. Set	Prid. tember. Kalend.	08 I. 2.	ober. Kalend.	30. 31. Nov L. 2.	Prid. ember. Kalend.	Deca	mber. Kalend. IV
2ui 1. 1 2. 3.	intilis. Kalend. VI	I. 2. 3.	Kalend. IV III	30. 31. Sep 1. 2. 3.	Prid. Otember. Kalend. IV III	08 I. 2. 3.	ober. Kalend. VI	30. 31. Nov 1. 2. 3.	Prid. Prid. Ember. Kalend. IV	Deca 2. 3.	mber. Kalend. IV III
2ui 1. 1 2. 3.	intilis. Kalend. VI V	1. 2, 3. 4.	Kalend. IV III Prid.	30. 31. Sep 1. 2. 3. 4.	III Prid. Otember. Kalend. IV III Prid.	08 1. 2. 3. 4.	ober. Kalend. VI V	Nov 1 2. 3.	Prid. Prid. Kalend. IV III Prid.	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid.
2ui 1. 2. 3.	intilis. Kalend. VI V	1. 2, 3. 4.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non.	30. 31. Sep 1. 2. 3. 4.	Prid. Kalend. III Prid. Non.	08 1. 2. 3. 4.	ober. Kalend. VI V IV III	Nov 1 2. 3.	Prid. Ralend. IV III Prid. Non.	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non.
2ui 1. 2. 3.	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III	1. 2, 3. 4. 5. 6.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII	30. 31. Sej 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6.	otember. Kalead. IV III Prid. Non. VIII	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6.	ober. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid.	Nov 2. 3. 4. 5. 6.	Frid. Ember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII
2ui	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII	1. 2, 3. 4.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non.	30. 31. Sej 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6.	otember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VIII	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6.	ober. Kalend, VI V IV III Prid. Non.	Nov 2. 3. 4. 5. 6.	ember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII
2ui	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VIII	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8.	otember. Kalead. IV III Prid. Non. VIII	O& I. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8.	ober. Kalend, VI V IV III Prid, Non.	30. 31. 80. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8.	Frid. Ember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI	Decci 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII
2 mi	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV	30. 31. Sej 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6.	Diember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI	O& 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	ober. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII	30. 31. Nov 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	Frid. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI	Decci 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	Mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI
2 ui	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV IIV	30. 31. Sep 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	Detember. Stalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI VI VI IV IVI IVI	O& I. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8.	ober. Kalend, VI V IV III Prid, Non.	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	Frid. Ember. Kalend. IV Prid. Non. VIII VII VI V IV	Decci 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI
244 2. 3. 4. 5. 5. 7.	intilis. Kalend. VI V IVI Prid. Non. VIII VII VII VI VI	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV III Prid.	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	Diember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI VI IV	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	Kalend, VI V IV III Prid, Non, VIII VIII VI	30. 31. Nov 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10.	Frid. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI V IV III	Decci 1. 2. 3. 4- 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI
2 ui	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI VI VI IV III	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV IV III Prid. Id.	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	Detember. Stalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI VI VI IV IVI IVI	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10.	ober. Kalend, VI V IV III Prid, Non, VIII VI VI VI	30. 31. Nov 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11.	Ember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV IV IV IV Prid.	Decce 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV III Prid.
2 mi	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV IV IV IP Prid.	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV IV III Prid. Id. XVII	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.	III Prid. Stember. Kalead. IV IV IV IV IV IV IV I	08 I. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. II. II. 12. 13.	Aber. Kalend, VI V IV III Prid, Non, VIII VII VII VII III III	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13.	Ember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV III Prid. Id.	Decc 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV III Prid.
2 ui	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Non. VIII VI VI IV III Prid.	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 15.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI V IV IV IV IV IX A XVIII Prid. XVIII XVIIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIIII XVIIIII XVIIII XVIIII XVIIII XVIIII XVIIIII XVIIII XVIIIII XVIIII XVIIIII XVIIIIIII XVIIIII XVIIIIII XVIIIII XVIIIIIIII	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14.	III Prid. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV IV IV IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVII	08 I. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14.	ober. Kalend. VI V IV IV Prid. Non. VIII VI VI VI IV IV IV III Prid.	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13.	III Prid. Ember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV I	Decci 1. 2. 3. 4-5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Nos. VIII VI VI IV III Prid. Id. XVII
244 22. 3. 5. 5. 6.	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI V IV IV III Prid. Id. Id.	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI V IV IV IV Id. XVII XVII XVII XVII	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12.	HII Prid. Kalead. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VIII VI VI IV I	08 I. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14.	ober. Kalend, VI V IV III Prid, Non. VIII VI V IV III III Prid, Id,	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14.	III Prid. Ember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV IIV III Id. XVII XVI XVI	Decci 1. 2. 3. 4-5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. VIII VIII VIII VIII IV IVIII Lid. XVIII XVIIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIIII XVIII XVIIII XVIIII XVIII XVIIII XVIIIIIII XVIIII XVIIIII XVIIIIII XVIIIII XVIIIIIII XVIIIIIIII
244 22. 3. 5. 5. 6.	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV IV IV IV IV VIII VI VI IV IV IV	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVII XVI XVI XVI	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16.	HII Prid. Kalead. IV HII Prid. Noa. VIII VI VI IV III JV IV III KALEAD. IV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV I	08 I. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. II. II. 12. 13.	Aber. Kalend, VI V IV III Prid, VII V IV III Prid, Id, XVII XVII	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	III Prid. Ember. Kalend. IV Prid. Non. VIII VIII VI IV IV IV IV IV I	Decce 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI IV IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVI
2ui	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV Prid. Non. VIII VIII VIII VI IV IV IV IX IA Lid. XVIII XVI XVIII XVI XVIII XVI XVIII XVIIII XVIIIII XVIIII XVIIII XVI	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 13.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI IV IV IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XV XIV XIII	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16.	HII Prid. Kalend. IV IV IV IV Prid. Non. VIII VI VI VI IV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV I	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	ober. Kalend. VI VI IV III Prid. VIII VI IV III VI VI VI VI VI VI VI VI	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	HII Prid. comber. Kalend. IV HII Prid. Non. VIII VI IV IV III Jend. KVII KVI KVI KVI KVI KVI KVI K	Decce 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. VI VI VI Prid. IX III Prid. XVIII XVII XVIII
244 22. 3. 3. 3. 3. 3.	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV IV IX XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI	1. 2. 3. 4. 5.6. 7.8. 9.0. 112. 14. 15.6. 173. 19.	Kalend. IV Prid. Non. VIII VIII VIII VIII Prid. Id. XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XXIII XIII	30. 31. 2. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	HII Prid. Kalead. IV IIV Prid. Non. VIII VIII VIII VIII VIIV III LIC. Id. XVII XVI XVI XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19.	Aber. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI V IV III Id. XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XV	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	HII Prid. Ember. Kalend. IV Prid. Non. VIII VIII VIIV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV XV XV XV XV XV XVIII	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI IV IV III A XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVIII
2ui	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV Prid. Non. VIII VIII VI IV III A VIII VI V IV III V Id. XVII XV XIV XIV XIV XIV XIV XIV	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 14. 15. 16. 17. 13. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV IV IV IX XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XIII XIII XIII XIII XIII XIII	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	HII Prid. Kalend. IV III Prid. Prid. Non. VIII VI V	Off 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18	ober. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI V IV	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15.	HII Prid. Ember. Kalend. IV Non. VIII VI VI IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XVI XVI XIII XXII XXII XXII XXII XXII XXII XXII XXII	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	Kalend. Kalend. IV III Prid. VIII VI IV III Prid. IXV IXV XVI XVI XVIII XIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII X
244 2. 3. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4. 4.	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI IV IIV III Id. XVII XVI XVI XXII XXIII	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19. 19	Kalend. IV Prid. Non. VIII VIII VI IV IV IV Id. XVIII XVI XVI XVI XVI XIII XII XII XXI XX	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20.	HII Prid. Kalead. IV IIV Prid. Non. VIII VIII VIII VIIV IIV IIV III AVIII XVII XV	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19.	ober. Kalend, VI V IIV IIV Prid. Non. VIII VII VII VII VII VII VII VII VII V	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 56. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18.	HII Prid. Ember. Kalend. IV IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI V IV IV IV IV IV V IV IV	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20.	Kalend. Kalend. IV III Prid. VIII VI IV III Prid. IXV IXV XVI XVI XVIII XIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII X
2 ui	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV Prid. Non. VIII VIII VIII VIII VIII VIII VX VIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XXIII	1. 2. 3- 4- 5- 6. 7- 8. 9- 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 19. 20. 21. 22.	Kalend. IV III Prid. VIII VI IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIIII XIIIII XIIIII XIIIII XIIIII XIIIII XIIIIII	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22.	HII Prid. Kalend. IV HII Prid. Noo. VIII VII VII VII VII VII VII VII VII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XXII XX	Off 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18. 18	ober. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI V IV	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21.	III Prid. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI III Prid. Lt. XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XXII XXII XXII XX	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21.	Kalend. Kalend. IV III Prid. VIII VI IV III Prid. IXV IXV XVI XVI XVIII XIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII X
241 1	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV III Prid. VII VI VI VI VI VI VI VI VI	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23.	Kalend. IV Prid. Non. VIII VII VI V IV III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XV XIV XIV XIII XII XX IX IX	30. 31. Sep 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	IIII Prid. Kalend. IVI Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IVI Prid. KVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XXI XXI XXI	Off I. 2. 3-4-5-6. 7. 8. 9-0. 111. 123-114. 155. 117. 118. 120. 21. 223.	ober. Kalend, VI V IIV IIV Prid. Non. VII V IV IV IV IV IV IV V IV V IV IV IX IX XVI XVI	30. 31. L. 22. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 112. 13. 14. 15. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. 22. 22.	HII Prid. Ember. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV IV IV VI VI VI V	Deca 1	Kalend. Kalend. IV III Prid. VIII VI IV III Prid. IXV IXV XVI XVI XVIII XIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIII XIIIII XIIII X
2ui	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV IV IIV Prid. Non. VIII VI V IV III VI V IV III A V III V IV IV IV IV IV IV XV XV XV XIV XI	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 13. 19. 21. 22. 23.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI IV IV IV III Ld. XVII XVI XVI XVI XII XI X	30. 31. Sep 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 20. 21. 22. 23. 44. 45. 46. 46. 46. 46. 46. 46. 46. 46	HII Prid. Kalend. IV HII Prid. Noo. VIII VII VI VI VI VI IV HII XVII XVII X	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115.	Experience of the control of the con	30. 31. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	III Prid. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI V III VI V IV III Id. XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XV	J. Deca 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 114. 15. 117. 18. 19. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22.	mber. Kalend. IV Kalend. IV IVI Prid. IVI IVI IVI IVI IVI IVI IVI IVI IVI IV
2ui	intilis. Kalend. VI VI IV IIV IIV VIII VIII VIII Prid. XVIII XVIII XVIII XI XVIII XI X IX X IX X IX X IX X	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 13. 19. 21. 22. 23.	Kalend. IV Prid. Nom. VIII VI VI IV IV IVI IVI IVI XVI XVI XV	30. 31. Sep 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	IIII Prid. Kalend. IVI Prid. Non. VIII VII Prid. KVII VIII VIII VIII XVII XVII XVIII VIII VIII	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115.	ober. Kalend, VI V IIV IIV Prid. Non. VII V IV IV IV IV IV IV V IV V IV IV IX IX XVI XVI	30. 31. Xov 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23.	IIII Prid. Ralend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV	Decci 12. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22	Kalend. IV Prid. Nos. VIII VI IV IV IV IV IV XVI XVI XVI XIII XIIII XIII XIIII XIIII XIII XIIII XIIIIII
2ui 3	intilis. Kalend. VI V IV IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI V IV III Id. XVII XVI XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XII X	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 112. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 119. 20. 122. 23. 24. 25. 26.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV IV IV IV IX III A XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XV	30. 31. 5ct 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 19. 20. 21. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22	IIII Prid. Kalead. III Prid. Noa. VIII VI V IV IVI III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XV	OH I. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 112. 113. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115	Example Control of the control of th	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. 22. 23. 24. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	III Prid. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV III VI XVI XVI XVI XVI XV	Dead 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	mber. Kalend. IV IV IV IVI VI VI III Prid. Id. XVII XVI XVI XV XIV XV IX
2ui	intilis. Kalend. VI VIIV IIV IIV VIII VIII VIII Prid. XVIII XVIII XVIII XXIII XXIII XXIII XXIII XXIII VIII	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 112. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 119. 20. 122. 23. 24. 25. 26.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Nom. VIII VI VI IV IVI Prid. Id. XVII XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI X	30. 31. Sept. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	IIII Prid. Kalend. III Prid. Non. Non. VIII VII Prid. XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVI	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11	Kalend, VI V IV IV Prid, VI V IV V IV IV IV V IV IV IV XVI XVI X	30. Xorv 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 24. 24. 25. 26. 27. 27. 28. 29. 2	IIII Prid. Ralend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VII VI IV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV IV	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 17. 16. 17. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI IV III III Prid. IX IX IX IX IX VIII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI
244	intilis. Kalend. VI VI IV III Prid. Non. VIII VIII VIII VIII VIII XVIII XVIII XVIII XXVIII XXVIIII XXVIII XXVIIII XXVIII XXVIII XXVIIII XXVIIIII XXVIIII XXVII	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 910. 11. 113. 14. 15. 119. 20. 119. 222. 23. 225. 226. 223.	Kalend. IV IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV IV IV IV IV IV IX XVI XVI	30. 31. 561 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	III Prid. Kalead. III Prid. Noa. VIII VII VI VI VI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI X	OH I. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 112. 13. 115. 115. 115. 115. 115. 120. 121. 122. 122. 122. 122. 122. 122	Eber. Kalend. VI V IV IV IVI Prid. Non. VIII VI VI VI VI IM III A VI III VI	30. 31. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. 22. 23. 24. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	III Prid. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI IV III VI XVI XVI XVI XVI XV	Deca 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 17. 16. 17. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22. 22	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI VI III Prid. XVIII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI VIII
2ui	intilis. Kalend. VI VIIV IIV IIV VIII VIII VIII Prid. XVIII XVIII XVIII XXIII XXIII XXIII XXIII XXIII VIII	1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 112. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 119. 20. 122. 23. 24. 25. 26.	Kalend. IV III Prid. Nom. VIII VI VI IV IVI Prid. Id. XVII XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI X	30. 31. Sept. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	IIII Prid. Kalend. III Prid. Non. Non. VIII VII Prid. XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVII XVI	08 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11. 11	Experience of the second secon	30. 31. Nov 2. 3. 4- 5- 6. 7. 8. 9- 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	HII Prid Comber. Kalend. III Prid Non. VIII VIII VIII Prid. XVII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI	Dead 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20. 20	mber. Kalend. IV III Prid. Non. VIII VI IV III III Prid. IX IX IX IX IX VIII XVI XVI XVI XVI XVI

rity to this Law, he appointed the High-priefts Officer, which had each 31 Days in Numa's Cato put it in Execution, and enjoyn'd them to fig- lendar; but to make room for the Ten Days, nifie to the People the Time and Manner in. which this Intercalation of extraordinary Days he added I wo Days to each of these Three must be made: But these Priests, either thro' Months, January, Sextilis and December, which Ignorance or Malice, brought the Account of had only 20 Days before, and to he made them Time and other Matters depending upon it into fo great Confusion, that the Festivals happen'd at tuch Seasons as were directly opposite to the Times of their Institution, and the Feasts of Autumn fell out in the Spring, and those of Harvest in the Middle of Winter.

This Diforder came to fo great a Height, that when Julius Cafar was Dictator and High-prieft, after the Battle of Fhwfalia, he thought the Retor mation of the Calendar to be a Thing well worthy of his Care, and necessary for the good Government of the Empire: And for this purpose he fetch'd one Sosigenes from Alexandria, who was esteemed the best Astronomer of that Time, and he by the Order of the Emperor, after he had several times corrected it himself, declared that the Destribution of Time in the Calendar could never be settled as certain and unalterable, unlessa principal Regard was had to the Annual Course of the Sun, and that it was necessiry for the Future, by a Method contrary to that which had been hitherto practifed, to adjust the Lunar Year by the Motion of the Sun, rather than accommodate the Course of the Sun to the unequal Laws of the Moon's Motion. And because it passed then for a thing certain among Aftronomers, that the Annual Period of the Sun's Courie was precifely 365 Days and Six Hours, therefore he relolved to give the whole Time of 365 Days to the Year in his Calendar, referving the S.x Hours to the End of Four Years, when they made a whole Day, which he then added to the rest by way of Intercalation; to that this Year dil not confift of 365 Days, as the other Years did which he called common, but of 366 Days. And three according to the Initiation of Numa Pompilius, the Intercalation of the Month Mercedonius was made towards the and of February, the same Sofigeres by order of the Emperor, wed the tame Time for the Intercalation of this Day, which happened to fall out on that Day which they called Regifugium, because the famous in ancient I imes had drove to pais, that the Julian Year in an succeeding their Kings out of Come on that Div, and on the Times hath this preferved the lame Beginning, Day which follows another Festival called Terminalia, i.e. on the 24th Day of February, or to speak in the Language of the Ranans, on the Sixth of the Calends of March; and because this Day was called the fecond Sixth of the Calends, which in Lain is Biff xius, therefore the Year in which this Intercatation was made, was called

Biffextile or Intercalary. He chang'd nothing in the Order nor Names of the Months, nor yet in the Number of Days 1 ed, Nempeex Edido, yet, quoth he, by vertue

And to add the greater Weight and Autho- in these Four, viz. March, May, Quintilit and whereby the Solar Year exceeded that of Numa. equal to the other Months which had 31, but he added only one Day to their Four Months. April, June, September and November, and fo made them consist of 30 Days, and to the Month of February he left 28 Days for the common Years, and 29 for the Year called Biffextile, that fo there might be no Change made in the Ceremonies of the Sacrifices, which were offered in this Month to the Infernal Gods.

As foon as these Things were thus order'd. and Sofigenes had maifhed his Work, the Emperor publish'd an Edick, wherein he fet forth the Reformation he had made of the Calendar, and commanded it to be used through all the Roman

And because of the Negligence of those to whom the Care was committed of distributing the Intercalatory Months, the Beginning of the Year was then found to anticipate its true Place 67 whole Days, therefore this Time must be tome way thent to restore the first Day of the next Year to its due Place at the Winter-foiffice. and to this end I wo Months were made of these 67 Days, which were ordered to be intercalated between the Months of November and December, from whence it came to pais, that the Year or the Correction of the Calendar by Julius Cafar, which was called the Julian Correction, comifted of 15 Months and of 445 Days; and uponthis Account it was called the Year of Confunon, because in it that great Number of Days was to he absorbed which brought so great Consusion into the Account of Time.

But to accommodate the Matter in some measure to the Genius of the Romans, who had been to long accustomed to the Lunar Year, the Emperor would not begin his Year precifely on the Day of the Winter forftice, but only on the Day of the New-Moon which followed next after it, which happened by Chance at the time of this Correction of the Calcular, to be about Eight Days after the Solitice, from hence it comes i.e. the first Day of January, which is about Eight Days after the Sulftice of Capricorn.

Julius Cafar drew a great deal of envy upon himselt by this Correction of the Calendar, of which we have an Inftance in that picquant Kalllery of Cicero upon this Occasion; One of his Friends discourang with him, happen'd to say, that Lyra was to let to Morrow, Cras Lyra occidit, faid he, to whom Cicero immediately reportof an Edict. Yet this did nowise hinder this Months which was inftituted by Numa Pompi-Reformation from being generally received and lius, and fuch as we have fet down before. observed after the Death of Casar, which hapthat Mureus Antonius in his Confulship order'd, and these Four April, June, September and No. that the Month called Quintilia, which was that vember have only 30, but February for the comin which Julius Cafar was born, should bear his mon Years has only 28 Days, and for the In-Name, and for the Future be called Julius; as tercalary or Biffextile it has 29. it happened afterwards to the Month Sextilia, to which was given the Name of Augustus, called Litera Nundinales, is continued without mitted a confiderable Error in the Observati- Meetings were held that were called by the Roon of the first Years, for not understanding mans Nunding, and which returned every Ninth this Intercalation of a Day was to be made e- Day, to the end that the Roman Citizens might very Four Years, they thought that the Fourth Year was to be reckoned from that wherein the preceeding lutercalation was made, and not Government: These Letters are so placed, that from that which follow'd next after it, by which if the Nundinal Day of the first Year was under means they left only Two common Years in the Letter A, which is at the 1st, the 9th, the flead of Three between the Two Intercalary 17th, the 25th of January, &c. the Letter of Years, from whence it came to pass, that they the Nundinal Day for the next Year must be intercalated Twelve Days in the Space of 36 D, which is at the 5th, the 13th, the 21st of Years, whereas Nine only should have been in- the same Month, &c. for the Letter A being tercalated in that Space, and io they put back found at the 27th of December, if from this Day the lieginning of the Year Three Days: Which we reckon Eight Letters, besides the Letters being observed by Augustus, Successfor to Julius B, C, D, E, which remain after A in the Month Cafur, he presently caused this Error to be a- of December, we must take Four other Letters mended, by ordering that for the first Twelve at the Beginning of January in the next Year, Years no Intercalation should be made, that by A, B, C, D, and so the Letter D, which is first

Calendar which some curions Antiquaries have of the Fourth B, and so on of the reft, ungathered together out of divers Monuments that less their happens some Change by the Init might be published. There are Six different : tercalation. Columns in it; the first contains the Letters which they called Nundinales, the Second notes the second Column, we must know, the Days which they called Easti, Nefasti and Comittales, which are allo figuified by Letters; of Causes or sitting of Courts,) was not allowed the Third contains the Number of Meto, which among the Romans on all Days, neither was the is called the Golden Number; the Fourth is for Prætor permitted on every Day to pronounce the Days in Order, which are marked with Arabick Figures or Characters, the Fifth divides Do, Dico, Addico; but these Days were called the Month into Calends, Nones and Ides, accord- | Fafti, on which the Courts fate to administer ing to the ancient Way of the Romans; and the | Justice, quibus fas esset jure agere, and these were Sixth contains their Festivals and divers other called Nefath, on which this was not permitted, Ceremonies, of which we shall treat more largely hereafter.

In this Calendar, to which we have given the Name of the Calendar of Julius Cafar, although it appears to have been made fince Augustus's Time, is to be feen,

2. These Seven Months, Fanuary, March, pened the next Year atter it. And to give the May, Quintilio or July, Sextilio or August, Oliogreater Authority to this Ulage, it fell out also, ber and December have each of them 31 Days;

3. This Series of Eight Letters which we have both which Names are still continued down to Interruption from the first to the last Day of the . Year that there might always be one of them to 'Tis true, the Priests by their Ignorance com- fignishe those Days of the Year on which those come out of the Country to the City to be informed of what concerned either Religion or this means these Three superfluous Days might found in the Month of Fanuary will be the 9th be absorbed, and Things might be restored to after the last A in the Month of December pretheir first Institution, which continued ever- ceeding, and consequently it will be the Nundifince without any Interruption, until the End of nal Letter, or that Letter which notes the Days the last Age, when some thought themselves set apart for these Meetings, which may be also obligd to take Pains in making another Cor- called by the Name of Faires or publick Markets. Thus by the fame way of Calculation the Nun-Here follows the Copy of an ancient Roman dinal Letter of the Third Year will be G, that

4. To understand aright what is set down in

That to fue one at Law, (which we call trying these Three solemn Words, or this Form of Law, quibus nefas elfet, as we learn from these Two Verles or Ovid, Ille Nefaftus erit, per quem tria verba filentur; Festus erit, per quem jure licebit agi.

i.e. That Day was Nefastus on which there Three L. The same Order and Succession of the Words were not pronounced, Do, Dico, Addico, CAL to Day, and that Day was called Faftus, on which it was lawful to fue at Law, or try a Caule.

called Comitiales, which were marked with a C, on which the People met in the Campus Martius, for the Election of Magistrates, or treating about the Affairs of the Commonwealth, and these Days were so called because the Assemblies of the People held on them, were nam'd Comitia. There were also some set Days on which a certain Prieft, (who was called among them Rex Sacrorum) was present at these Assemblies : And laftly, on a certain Day of the Year they were wont to cleanse the Temple of Vesta and carry off all the Dung in it, which was done with fo much Ceremony, that it was not lawful on that Day to try Caules.

This being supposed, 'tis no wife difficult to understand what is contained in this Column, for where ever we meet in it with the Letter N, which fignifies Dies Nefastus, this denotes a Day on which Justice could not be administred, or if we meet in it with the Letter F, or Fastus, that fignifies a Court-Day; or if we meet with F. P. or Fastus prima parte diei, that fignifies that the Court fits on the former part of the Day; or it we meet there with N. P. or Nefastus prima parte diei, that fignifies the Court does not fit on the former part of the Day; or if we meet there with E. N. or Endozercifus feu intercijus, that fignifies the Court hits some certain Hours of the Day, and not at other Hours; or if we meet there with a C. that denotes that these Affemblies were then held which were called Comitia, or if we meet there with these Letters Q. Rex. C. F. or Quando Rex comisiavit, fas, they fignifie, that the Court does nit after the Priest called Rex has been present at the Comitia; or laftly, when we see these other Letters Q. S.T. D. F. or Quando ftercus delatum, fas, they fignifie, that the Court does fit immediately after the Dung is carried out of the Temple of the Goddels Velta.

5. The Third Column is for the 19 Figures of the Numbers of the Lunar Cycle otherwise called the Golden Number, which tignifie the New Moons through the whole Year, according to the Order in which they were thought to hap-Figures were thus disposed in his Calendar.

6. The Fourth notes the Succession of the Days of the Months, by the Numbers of the Arabick Figures or Caracters; but then we must not imagine that they were thus disposed in the Tables of the Falti, i. e. in the Calendar used by fent, and differn what are the Days as we now left Part of their Affairs both publick and private,

as who should say among us, The Court does not fit | reckon them, to which the Festivals and other Days of the Romans might correspond.

7. The Fifth Column contains that famous Di-Befides, there were certain Days which they vision of the Days of the Months into Calends, Nones and Ides, which was in use among the Romans; and though this Division was not into equal Parts, as were the Decads used by the Greeks, but into very different Portions of Time, yet this Variety is well enough expressed in these Two Verles.

Sex Maius Nonas, October, Julius & Mars.

Quatuor at reliqui. Dabit Idus qui libet ofto. e. Thefe Four Months, March, May, July and Odober, have Six Days of Nones, and all the rest have only Four; but in every one of them there are Eight Days of Ides. This must be underftood after this Manner, that the first Day of each Month was always called the Calends of that Month; after that in Four Months, March. May, July and Oduber, the Seventh Day of the Month was called the Nones, and the Fiftenth the Ides, whereas in other Months in which the Nones lafted but Four Days, the Fifth was called Nona the Nones, and the Thirtenth Idus the Ides; the other Days are reckoned backward from the Beginning of the next Month, and the Number always lessens as you come nearer to it.

The Days which are after the Calends until the Nones take their Name from the Nones of the Month current, the following Days which are between the Nones and the Ides, take their Name from the Ides of the fame Month; but all the reft from the Ides until the End of the next Month, take their Name from the Calends of the next Month: All which we shall explain more at large under the Word Menfis.

Befides, you may opierve, that the Tables of the Falti, by which the Romans described their Months and their Days throughout the Year, in Process of time were called by the Name of Calendar, because this Name of Calends is found written in great Characters at the Head of each Month.

8. The last Column contains those Things which chiefly belong to the Religion of the Remans, fuch as the Festivals, the Sacrifices, the Games, the Ceremonies, the fortunate or unfortunate Days, as also the Beginning of the pen in the Time of Fulius Cafar, when their Signs, the four Cardinal Points of the Year, which make the Four Seafons; the Riting and Setting of the Stars, &c. which were very much much opferv'd by the Ancients who made use of them for a long time, to denote the Difference of the Seatons, inftead of a Calendar; at leaft, until it was reduced into a more regular Form the Ancients, for they had no Knowledge of any by the Correction of Julius Cafar. We find in fuch thing: Yet we thought it convenient to most of the aucient Books, that they govern'd place them here, that we might the better com- themselves wholly by the Observation of the Ripare the Manner of naming and reckoning Days ling and Setting of the Stars, in Navigation, in that was used by the Ancients with ours at pre- tilling the Ground, in Physick, and in the great-

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. JANUARY. Under the Protection of the Goddess Juno.

=
Nundinal Letters ABODEFGE	1	Golden Number.	1
i.		3	1		,
12	Days.	>			•
1	5	1/1/2			•
13		nbe	1
13	l	7.	1
A	F	1	i I	Kalen.	Sacred to Janus, to Juno, to Jupiter and Esculapins.
B	F	_	2		An unfortunate Day. Dies Ater.
ld	С	IX	1 3	: III	Cancer Sets.
D	C			Prid.
E	F	XVIII		Non.	Lyra rises. Aquila sets at Night.
F	F	VI	6		-you these significant regards
G	C
H	С	XIV	8	VI	Sacrifices to Janua.
A		Ш	وا		The Agonalia.
В	ΕN		Ιώ		The middle of Winter.
lcl	NP	XI	ιı		The Carmentalia.
Ď	C		12
E	NP	XIX	13		The Trumpeters make Publications thro' the City in
F			14		Wicked Days by Order of the Senate.
G		i •		XVIII
H	C	'xvı		XVII
IA	c c	v	17	XVI	The Sun in Aquarius.
R	Č	1	ı 8		I no out in arquarins.
	Č	XIII
lŏl.	Č	II	20
F	00000000		21	XII
F	Č	X	22	XI
	č	Λ.	23	X	Lyra fets.
H	Č	XVIII	24
A	Č		25		Festi Sementini, or the Feast of Seed-time.
R	Č	V 11	26	ווע	·
Ы	Č	χv	27	וע	To C. C
K	Ċ		28	\boldsymbol{v}	To Castor and Pollnx.
CDEFGHABCDEFGHABCDEF	F	17		IV	Facility to show a series on the
	F	XII	29	III	Equiria in the Campus Martius. The Pacalia.
	F		30		Fidicula sets.
[c]		1 /	311	Prid.	To the Dii Penates.

The CALENDAR of Julius Casar. FEBRUARY.

Under the Protection of Neptune.

Nundinal Letters. I A	Days.	Golden Number.
H	N	IX	I Kalen! To Juno Sospita, to jupiter, to Hercules, to Diana. Th
A	N		2 IV Lucaria
B	N	XVII	3 III Lyra fets, and the Middle of Leo.
C	N	VI	4 Prid. The Dolphin sets.
D			5 Non. Aquarius rises.
E	N	XIV	6 VIII
F	N	III	7 VII 8 VI
BCDEFGH	N N	ХI
븬	N	VI	The Beginning of the Spring.
A	N	XIX	II III Genialic Games. Artturus rifes.
P	N	VIII	12 Prid.
A B C D	NP	V 141	13 Id. To Faunus and Jupiter. The Defeat and Death of the Fab
E	C.	XVI	14 XVI The Rifing of Corvus, Crater and the Serpent.
F	NP	V	S XV The Lupercalia.
	END		16 XIV The Sun in the Sign Pisces.
Н	NP	IIIX	17 XIII The Quirinalia.
A	C	l II	18 XII The Fornacalia. The Feralia to the Gods Manes.
B			19 XI
lc.	C	x	20 X
BCDEFGHAB	F		21 IX To the Goddess Muta or Laranda. The Feralia.
Ē	C	XVII
F	NP	VII	23 VII The Terminalia.
G	N	1	24 VI The Regifugium. The Place of the Biffextile.
H	C	XV	25 V Arcturus rises at Night.
A	EN	١V	26 IV
В	NP	1	27 III Equiria in the Campus Martius.
C	C	XII	28 Prid. The Tarquins overcome.
	1	1
		1
 		1	' _

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. MARCH.

Under the Protection of Minerva.

- 1	Nundinal Letters D	1	Golden Number.	1
.	idi		den
١.	a	Days.	≥
- 1	Le	5	im.	1
ı	Š		ber.
ŀ	ä	NP	. 1	!_	Kalen.	The 16
ĥ		F	'	2	1	The Matronalia; to Mars, the Feast of Ancylia.
1		Ċ	IX	3		The second Pifces sets.
ĺ	3	č	1	1 4	4	The record Pipes lets.
li	3	Č	XVII			Arthurus fets. Vindemiator rifes. Cancer rifes. [Priest.
- 14	۹	NP	V	6	Prid.	I he Veltaliana. On this Day III Cofar may constal II'll
- [1	В	F	l		Non.	To Ve-Jupiter in the Wood of the Asylum. Pegasus rises.
K		F	XIV	8	VIII	Corona Tiles.
1		C	Ш	9		Orion rifes. The Northern Pifces rifes.
]		c		10
k		C C	ΧI	1 I	V IV
E		EN	XIX	12	III	The Openium of the C
1		NP	VIII	13	Prid.	The Opening of the Sea.
Ė		NP	V 111	15	Id.	The fecond Equiria upon the Tyber. To Anna Parenna. The Parricide. Scorpio sets.
Ī	1	C	XVI		XVII	10 Anna Parenna. The Parricide. Scorpio sets.
E		NP	v	17	XVI	The Liberalia, or Bacchanalia. The Agonalia Milvius fets.
E		C	l	18	XV	The Sun in the Sign Aries.
		N	XIII	19	XIV	The Quinquarria of Minerva, which last 5 Days.
C		C	l II	20	XIII	* *
F	4	C	١	21		The 1st Day of the Century. Pegasus sets in the Morning.
B	١.	N	X	22	XI
	1	NP OP	V17111	23	X	The Tubilustrium.
C	1	QR C	XVIII VII		IX VIII	The Wilmin to the Mark Control [Equinox.
Į,	1	C	VII	25 26	VIII	The Hilaria, to the Mother of the Gods. The Vernal
E	1	NP	xv	27	VI	On this Day Crear made himfelf Made CAL
k	١,	C		28	v	On this Day Cæsar made himself Master of Alexandria. The Megalesia.
E	1	C		29	IV
4	V	C	XII	30	III	To Janus, to Concord, to Salus and Pax.
æ	ı	$c \mid$	_	31		To the Moon, or Diana upon the Aventine Mount.
•	-					, and the stream taled it.

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. A P R I L.

Under the Protection of the Goddess Venus.

Nundinal Letters. OOHHO	Days.	Golden Letters.
121	- 	1X	1	Kalen	To Venus with the Flowers and Myrtle. To Fortuna
121	N	IA	2	IV	The Pleiades set. [Virila.
P	c c	373711			I
E	C	XVII			The Megalesian Games to the Mother of the Gods, for the
E	С	VI	4	Non.	[Space of 8 Days]
G		3711		VIII	To Fortuna publica primigenia.
H	NP	ΧIV			The Dirth of Apple and DIAMA.
A	N	Ш	8		Plays for Casar's Victory. Libra and Orion set.
В	N	χľ.			1
C	N	V.	9	IV	Cerealia. Ludi Circensis, the Circensian Games.
D	N	1717	li i	1 777	nour of Ceres for a Lays
E	N	XIX VIII			The Mother of the Gods brought to Rome. Plays in ho-
F	N) A 111	•	1	To Jupiter Victor, and Liberty.
G	NP	V 1/1	13	XVIII	10,0,0,000
Н	N	\ v	1:3	XVII	Englished Of Foralcalla.
Α	NP	١ ٧	1:2	XVI	Augustus saluted Emperor. The Hyades set.
В	N	XIII
CD	N	AIII	18		Equiria in the Circus Maximus. The Burning of the Foxes.
P	N	1 "		XIII	Cerealia. The Sun in the Sign Taures.
E	N	l x	12	XII	1
F	N NP	\ ^	2		Paliliana, or Pariliana. The Nativity of Rome.
G		xvii		- 1	The second Ageniana, or Agenalia.
H		VII		_	The first Vinalia to Jupiter and Venus.
A		1 	2	1
В		l xv	2	TI	Robigalia. Aries fets. The middle of the Spring.
15	NE	lîv		o VI	The Dog-star rises. The Goat rises.
C D E	F	1 '	2	·	I saims Emis on the Mont lacer.
I.E	NP	XII		8 IV	The Floralia for the Space of 6 Days. I ne Goat 11165 in
F	C	1 11		g III	The Dog-star lets at Night.
G H		1 *		o Prid.	To Vesta Palatina. The first Larentalia.
l H	f	1	P	T'
4	•	1

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. MAY.

Under the Protection of Apollo.

Numdinal Letters. ABCODER GHABCODER GHABCODER G	Golden Number.
3
AN	IX	1 Kalen. To Deu bona. To Lares prastites. Ludi Floria for	the
$B \mid F$		2 VI The Compitalia. [Space of the 3 Da	ays.
C C	XVII	3 V The Centaar and the Hyades rife.
D C	VI	4 IV 5 III Lyra rifes.
E C	W117	5 III Lyra rifes. 6 Prid. The Middle of Scorpio fets.
F C G N	XIV	7 Non. Virgilia rifes in the Morning.
H F	111	8 VIII The Goat rifes.
AN	χı	9 VII Lemuria at Night for the Space of 3 Days. The Lu	mi-
B C		no VI	ria
CN	XIX	II V Orion fets unfortunate Days to marry on.
D NP		12 IV To Mars the Avenger at the Circus.
E N		13 III Lemuria. The Pleiades rife. The Beginning of Sumn	ner.
F C	XVI	14 Prid. To Mercury. Taurus rifes.
G NP	V	15 Id. To Jupiter. The Feast of the Merchants. The Birth	101
H		[Mercury. Lyrati	iies.
A C B C C C		17 XVI
BC	II	18 XV
	\ _v , '	The Sun in Gemini.
D C E NP	Х	20 XIII 21 XII The Agonalia, Or Agoniana Of Janus.
F N	XVIII
G NP		23 X The Feria of Vulcan. The Tubilustrium.
HCREX		24 IX
C.F.	1
1.1 -	xv	25 VIII To Fortuna publica. Aquila rises.
B C	IV	26 VII The second Registugium. Arthurus sets.
c c	İ	27 VI The Hyades rise.
ABCDEFG	XII	28
EC	1	29 11
FC		30 111
c c	IX	31 Prid.

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. JUNE.

Under the Protection of Mercury.

751
15	1	. 20
喜	. 1	lde
12	ĎΙ	2			· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
Nundinal Letters. I	Days.	Solden Number			. •
15	٠ ١	20			1
1è		ber
151	!	•		17 1	To War and The Control of the Contro
1H		XVII		Kalen.	To Juno. To Monera To Tempestas. To Fabaria. Aquila.
A	F	VI	2		To Mars, to the Goddess Carna. To Hyades rise. [rises.]
В	$C \mid$		3		To Bellona.
C	C	XIV	٠i		To Hercules at the Circus. [Father]
D	N	III .	. 51	Non.	To Fides. To Jupiter Sponsor, or Deus sidius, holy half
[F]	N		6	VIII	To Vesta. [rus rises.]
E F	N	ΧI	7	VII	The Piscatorian Days in the Campus Martins. Arth-
G			8	VI	To Intellectus, at the Capitol. [ing of Asses.]
H	N ·	XIX	وا	ν	Vestaliana. The Altar of Jupiter Pistor. The Crown-
A	Ň	VIII			Matralia, of Fortuna fortis. The Dolphin tifes at Night.
В	N		11	III	To Concord. To Mother Matuta.
C	N	XVI		Prid.
l	N	V	13	Id.	To Jupiter Invictus. The lesser Quinquatrus. The Begin-
ΙE	N	١ ,		XVIII
F		xIII	1 4	YVII	The Carrying of the Dung out of the Temple of Vesta. The
]F	2.ST	Am	1,)	12.11	[Hyades rife.
	D.F.	1 ,,	1. 4	XVI	L'iyants ille.
G	C) II	1		0
H	C	۱.,	17		Orion rifes.
Α	C	X	18		The whole Dolphin rises.
B C	С	١.	19
C	С	XVII			To Minerva upon Mount Aventine. The Sun in the Sign
D	С	VIII	21		To Summanus. Serpentarius rises. [Cancer.]
D E F G H	C	1	22		1
F	C	XV	23	IX
G	C	IV	,24	VIII	To Fortuna fortis. The Summer Solftice.
H	C	1	25	VII
Α	C	XII	2.6		The Girdle of Orion rifes.
: B	C	Ī	27		To Jupiter Stater and Lar.
C	Č	1	128		1
I,	F	IX		III	To Quirinus on the Quirinal Mount.
E	F	1 '''			To Hercules and the Muses. The Poplifugia.
/E	, _F	'	34	11,1a.	10 11c total and the stages. The total parties.
					1 HC

The CALENDAR of Julius Casar. QUINTILIS, or JULY. Under the Protection of Jupiter.

121	1	ي ا
Nundinal Letters.		Golden Number in a	Days.	>			•
12	3	um
17		ber	ŀ		· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
1	N	XVII	'	Kalen	Removing from one House to another.
G	N	VI	2	VI	removing from one floure to another.
H	N		3	V
A	NP	XIV	4	IV	Corona sets in the Morning. The Hyades
В	N	ĬΠ	5	III	The Poplifugium.
C	N N	χí	7	l	Ludi Apollinares for the Space of 8 Days. To Fortuna Fe- The Nona Caprotina. The Feast of Maid-servants. Romu-
D	N	Λ.	8	VIII	Vitulatio, or wanton Rejoycings. The [list disappear'd.]
F	EN	XIX	و	1	Cepheus rises at Night. [Middle of Capricorn sets.
G	С	VIII	10		The Etesian Winds begin to blow.
Н	C		11	V
A	NP	ΧŇΙ			The Birth of Julius Cæsar.
R	C	V	13 14		To Fortuna Feminina. The Merkatus, or Mercuriala for
GH A B C D	NP	XIII		1	To Castor and Pollux. [6 Days.
E		II	16	XVII	The foremost Dog rises.
E F G	C	١	17		The fatal Day of the Battel of Allia.
G	C	X	18
H		V.711		XIV	Lucaria, Games lafting 4 Days.
A B	C	VII		XIII	Plays for Cæsar's Vistory. The Sun in the Sign Leo.
lc	C	'"	22	1	. '
C D E F		l xv		1	The Games of Neptune.
E	N	IV	2.4	1
F	NP	١	2		Furinalia. The Circensian Games lasting 6 Days. Aqua-
G	C	XII	20		The little Dog-frar rises. Agnila rises.
G H A B	C	1 '	28		Zignia 11165.
B	C	IX	29	1 '
C			30	III.	Aquila sets.
li	C	וועאל	. 	Prid.

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. SEXTILIS, or AUGUST. Under the Protection of the Goddess Ceres.

1-
Number of Letters, Independent of Land Company of Land Compan	Days.	Golden Letters.
10	N	VI	1 Kalen.	To Mars. To Hope.
151	20	XIV	2 IV	Feria, upon the Account of Casar's subduing Spain.
	č	ill	3 III
	C C F F		A Prid.	The Middle of Leo rises.
F	Ę	ΧĬ	5 Non.
131	· -	ΔI	8 VIII
PI	C	XIX	7 711
H	C	VIII	8 VI	Soli Indigeti on the Quirinal Mount.
m	NP	VILL	OV
	C	XVI		To Opis and Ceres.
E	6	V	11. 111	To Hercules in the Circus Flaminius. Lyra fets. The Be-
2	6			The Lignarelia. ginning of Autumn.
17	C C C NP	XIII		To Diana in the Sylva Aricina. To Vertumnus. The Feast
1	IVP		14 XIX	The Dolphin in the Morning. [of Slaves, and Ser-
P	F C	. 	IS XVIII
IX	č	x	16 XVII
111	C NP	^	17 XVI	Portumnalia to Janus.
1	C	xvIII		Consualia. The Rape of the Sabine Virgins.
E	FP	VII	I O XIV	The last Vinalia. The Death of Augustus.
Ы	C	V	20 XIII	Lyra fets. The Sun in the Sign Virgo.
121	NP	xv	21 XII	Vinalia Rustica. The Grand Mysteries. Consualia.
В	EN	îv	22 XI	Vindemiator rifes in the Morning.
C	NP	1 	23 X	Vulcanalia in the Circus Flaminius.
	C	XII	24 IX	The Feria of the Moon.
HHL	NP	I	25 VIII
E	C	1 -	26 VII
G	NP	IX	27 VI	Volturnalia. Etesian Winds
H	NP		28 V	To Victory in the Court. Sagitta sets. The End of the
A	F	xvii	29 IV	1
	F	vi	30 III	The Ornaments of the Goddess Ceres are shown.
7	F.	1. ' .	31. Prid.
υ.		•	17

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. SEPTEMBER.

Under the Protection of Vulcan.

Nundinal Letters 10	Days.	Golden Number
١	7.7	XIV	.	Kalen.	To Jupiter Maimattes. Feafts to Neptune.
띰	N N	ili	2		To the Victory of Augustus Feria.
E F	NP	111	3		Dionysiaca, or Vindemia.
Ġ	C	χı	13	Prid.	Roman Games for the Space of 8 Days.
H	F	 	5	1 1
A	F	XIX	16		To Erebus a Ram and a black Sheep.
B	Ċ	VIII	7
C	C		8	VI
D	C	XVI	وا	V	The Goat rifes.
E	· C	٧	10	IV	The Head of Medusa rises.
F	C	l	11		The Middle of Virgo rifes.
G	N	XIII	12		The Middle of Arthurus rifes.
H	NP	П	13	Id.	To Jupiter. The Dedication of the Capitol. The Nat
A	F	l	14	XVIII	The Tryal of Horses. [fix'd by the Prator
В		X	15	XVII	The Grand Circensian Games, dedicated for 5 Days. Th
C	С	1	16		Departure of the Swallow
BCDEFGHABCDEF	C.	XVIII
E	C C	VII	ı 8		Spica Virginis rifes in the Morning.
	C		19		The Sun in the Sign Libra.
G	C	ΧV	20		The Merkatus for the Space of 4 Days. The Birth of
	C	IV	21		[Romulu
H	_				1 4 1 m/c C
A	C	3717	22		Argo and Pifces fet.
A B	NP	ХII	23	IX	The Circensian Games. The Birth of Augustus. The Con
H A B C	NP C	XII I	23 24	IX VIII	The Circensian Games. The Birth of Augustus. The Cen The Autumnal Equinox. [raur rises in the Morning
HABCD	NP C C	I	23 24 25	IX VIII VII	The Circensian Games. The Birth of Augustus. The Con
HABCDEL	NP C C		23 24 25 26	IX VIII VII VI	The Circensian Games. The Birth of Augustus. The Centre Autumnal Equinox. Fran rises in the Morning To Venus, Saturn and Mania.
HABCDEF	NP C C C C	I	23 24 25 26 27	IX VIII VI VI	The Circensian Games. The Birth of Augustus. The Centre Autumnal Equinox. [ranr rises in the Morning To Venus, Saturn and Mania. To Venus the Mother, and Fortuna redux.
HABCDEFG	NP C C C C	I IX XVII	23 24 25 26 27 28	IX VIII VI V IV	The Circensian Games. The Birth of Augustus. The Cer The Autumnal Equinox. Fran rises in the Morning To Venus, Saturn and Mania.
HABCDEFGHA	NP C C C C	I	23 24 25 26 27	IX VIII VII V IV III	The Circensian Games. The Birth of Augustus. The Centre Autumnal Equinox. [ranr rises in the Morning To Venus, Saturn and Mania. To Venus the Mother, and Fortuna redux.

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. OCTOBER.

Under the Protection of the God Mars.

	Days.	Golden Number.
Bi	N	111	1	Kalen.
ld	F		2	VI
b	C	XI	3	V	·
E	C		4	IV .	Bootes fets in the Morning.
F	Č	XIX	5		The Ornaments of Ceres shown.
icl	Č	VIII	6	Prid.	To the Gods Manes.
딥	F	1	7	Non.
I	FCCCCFFCC	XVI	1 8	VIII	The bright Star Corona rifes.
R	Ċ	v	وا	VII
6	C	٠	lió		Ramalia.
K	١ -	XIII	11		Meditrinalia. The Beginning of Winter.
=	NP	11	12		Augustalia.
-	NP		13	1	Fontinalia. To Jupiter Liberator. Games lasting for 3 days.
	NP	x	14	1 - 1
2	NP		15		The Merchants to Mercury.
I A	F	XVII	die	XVII	Popular Games. Artturus fets.
6	C	VII	γ.	XVI
P	C	1 "	lié	XV	To Jupiter Liberator. Games.
K	NP	xv	1.	XIV	Armilustrium.
1	144	iv	1,3	XIII	The Sun in the Sign Scorpio.
E	C	1 	2	XII	Plays lasting 4 Days.
F	CC	XII
1	1 %	l ï	2	T	To Liber Pater. Taurus sets.
12	1 6	1	2	1
6	1 %	IX	2	TI
12	1 %	1 22	15	6 VII
F	1 %	XVI			Plays to Victory.
15	1 %	ľvi		8 V	The lesser Mysteries. Virgilia set.
15		1 		g IV
ľ		XIV		ill	The Feria of Vertummus. Games consecrated.
ŀ	00000000	III		Prid	110 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10
1	J, C	1 111	_:3	115714	. JULIAN IN 1903

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. NOVEMBER.

Under the Protection of the Goddess Diana.

Number of Letters, ABCDEFGHABCDEFGHAECHER OF LETTERS OF		Days.	Golden Number.			The Hanquet of Twoiter. The Circensian Games. The
A	1	N		-	Kalen.	The Landact of July 1881 The Contemporary
B	١	F	XI	2	IV III	Arthurus fets at Night. [Head of Taurus fets.] The Fidicula rifes in the Morning.
C		F		3	7/1	The Platenta Thes in the Morning.
ĺĎ	1	_	XIX		Prid. Non.	Neptunalia. Games lasting 8 Days.
뱐	1	F	VIII	5	VIII	Trepramitia. Games fateing o Days.
ŗ		F.	xvi			A Show of Ornaments.
12	1	C	V	7 8		Scorpio rises with a clear Light.
l A	1	C C	Y	و ا	l 1
lB	1	Č	XIII	Ιó
16	:l	Ċ	II	11	III	The Shutting up of the Sea. Virgilia set.
Ic		C	1	12
E		NP	X	13	Id.	A Feast commanded. The Lettisternia.
° F	1	F		14	XVIII	The Tryal of Horses.
- IG	ì	C	XVII			Popular Games in the Circus for 3 Days. The End of Seed-time for Corn.
1	ij	C	VII	16		The End of Seed-time for Corn.
IA.	4	C		17		The Merkatus for 3 Days. The Sun in the Sign Sagittarus.
l l	1	Č	IV	•	YIII	A Supper of the Priests, in Honour of Cybele.
15	1	6	110	19	XII	The Horns of the Bull fet.
Ė	1	č	l xII		1 707	The Liberalia. Lepus fets in the Morning.
F	1	00000000	I I	22	1	To Pluto and Proferpina.
k	3	Č	-	23	IX
Ī	1		IX	24	VIII	Bruma or Brumalia, for the Space of 30 Days.
1	N	C	1	29		The little Dog-star sets.
I	3	C C C C	XVI			Formal Comificants the Coulednam and to the Greeks
K	4	С	VI			Funeral-Sacrifices to the Gauls dug up, and to the Greeks , [in the fore boarie .
1	1	C	1,,,,,	28	1	Em the jet a second
- 1	=	Ċ	XIV	2	JII o
- 1	۲	F	III	139	Prid.

The CALENDAR of Julius Cafar. DECEMBER.

Under the Protection of the Goddess Vesta.

_					The second of th
Nundinal Letters	Days.	Golden Number.
GH	$N \setminus$	ΧI	I	Kalen.	To Fortuna Feminina.
			2	IV
Α		XIX	3	III
В		VIII	4	Prid.	To Minerva and Neptune.
C	F		5	Non.	The Faunalia.
P	С	XVI		VIII	The Middle of Sagittarius sets.
Ŀ	C C	٧	7		Aquila rises in the Morning.
F	C		8
G	C	XIII	9		To Juno Jugalis.
BCDEFGHAB	C	11	10	III	A Company of the Company
	NP	х	11		Agonalia. The 14 Halcyonian Days.
C	EN NP	^	12	Id.	The Family on the Monte Passe
Ď	F	XVII	13		The Equiria, or the Horse-Races. Brumalia. Ambrosiana.
E	NP				Brumalia. Ambrofiana. Confualia. All Cancer rifes in the Morning.
E F	C	V 11	13	XVII	conjunitie. All carter thes in the informing.
G		xv	17		The Saturnalia, lasting & Days.
H		iv	18		Cygnus rises. The Sun in the Sign Capricorn.
A		1	19		Opaliana.
В	C	XII			Sigillaria lafting 2 Days. [Wine mix'd with Honey,
C	NP	I	21		Angeronalia. The Divalia. To Hercules and Venus with
D	C	İ	22		Compitalia. Feria dedicated to the Lares. Games.
E	NP	IX	23	X.	The Feria of Jupiter. Larentinalia, or Quarentinalia. The
E F	C	1	24	IX	Juvenalia. Sports. [Goat fets.
G	C	XVII	25	VIII	The End of the Brumalia. The Winter Solftice.
H	C	VI	26	VII
· A	C	1	27		To Phabus for the Space of 3 Days. The Dolphin rifes in
B	C	XIV	28		[the Morning
c	F	Ш	29		Aquila sets at Night.
	F	1	30		Canicula sets at Night.
Æ	F	XI	31	Prid.

were now become Mafters of the World in the a caliga ad confutatum pervenisse: Thus Agrippina Time of Augustum, to cause this Correction of the caused her Son Caim to be nam'd Caligula, be-Calendar made by Julius Cafar, to be every- cause he being born in the Army, she caused him where receiv'd, and to introduce the Use of it among all Nations, even those which were most gain their Good-will by this Complaisance. remote, at least so far as concern'd the Political Diffribution of Time. For this Reason the Middle of the Leg, and had at the Top the Fi-Greeks did no longer make use of a Lunar Year, guie of the Head of a Lion or Leopard, or only nor make their Intercalation of a Month and a of the Muzzle of these Animals: It was garnish'd Half to each Olympiad. The Egyptians also were with little Nails of Iron, and sometimes even of oblig'd to fix their Thos to the nift Day of their Year, which moved before through all the Seafons, and to fix it for ever to a determinate Point. In like manner did the fews, for they rium, and the Officers that diffributed it were quite left off their way of intercalating of a Month in the Space of 120 Years, as they had been used to do, and submitted to the Intercalation of a Day once every Four Years.

'Tis true, the Observation of the Julian Calendar brought no other Alteration into these so they did of Vitellius according to the Relation Countries, but each of them ftill retain'd the of Tactine, in L. 3. of his Hiftory. free Use of their own Customs and Traditions for Divine Worship. Thus the Fews continued in the ancient Observation of the Law, without changing any thing as to their Sibbath, Festivals, tum, ut etiam gregaris milites caligas auro sufor Ceremonies; and herein the other Nations of figerent. the World did initate them, although they were fubject to the Roman Empire.

The primitive Christians made use of the Division of Time according to the Custom of the Romans, to whose Power they were tubiect, except fuch Cuftoms as were peculiar to the City of Rome, or favoured of their blind Superstition and Idolarry. They kept therefore the fame Names of the Months, the fame Number of their Days, the fame Divition of these Days into Calends, Nones and Ides, and the fame Intercalation of a Day every Four Years, in the Year which was called Biffextile or Leap-year. They lett out the Nundinal Letters which were used in the Calendar of the Romans, and in their flead placed other Letters to fignific every hely Sunof their Dies tatti, Nefasti or Comisiales, because they were employ'd only for some Uses peculiar Abhorrence the Festivals and Games of the Ro-Devil, and in their flead introduced the Feaths and Ceremonies of the true Religion.

that were worn by a common Roman Soldier in his own in the Room of them. In fine, he was a time of War, from whence the Word Caligatus | Monster of Cruelry and Prodigality. His own comes to fignifie a common Soldier: And thus we Servants killed him after he had reigned Four must understand that Passage of Suetonius, in the Years. Life of Augujeus, Coronas murales fape estam caliof the Lucinies Cities; and also that Proverb the Hymns made in Honour of the Gods. which Seneraules, speaking of Marin, that from

It was not difficult for the Romans, when they a common Soldier he arrived at the Confulfhip. to wear these Buskins like a common Soldier, to

These fort of Shoes came up as high as the Gold and Silver, and had a Sole of Wood. There was a Fund fer apart for providing these Nails for the Soldiers, which was called Clavacalled Clavarii, of which Number was the Father of Suesonim.

The Soldiers did very often defire of the Emperors the Clavarium, i. e. the Money of this Fund, for buying Nails to adorn their Shoes:

Justin tells us, that all the Soldiers of Antiochus's Army caused their Buskins to be adorn'd with Nails of Gold, Argenti certe aurique tan-

CALIGULA CAIUS, the Fourth Roman Emperor, the Son of Germanicus and Agrippina, he succeeded Tiberius in the Empire. He was furnamed Caligula from the Military Shoes which his Mother caused him to wear in the Army, and which were called Caliva. He had an ill-shaped Body, a small Neck, a large Forehead and flender Legs; he affected tometimes, fays Suctonius, to put on a terrible Countenance, to ftrike a Dread into the Minds of those who came near him; his Chin turned up, which was a Sign of Cruelty, but he would put on a modeft Look, which was only a Copy of his Countenance, fays Tacitus, to cover his naked Deligns. He gave an Example of all forts of Vices, and committed the most enormous Crimes. He enday throughout the Year. They took no Notice deavoured to gain the Good-will of the People by Largesses and Shows of extraordinary Expence and Magnificence. He caused a Bridge to the City of Rome; but they rejected with to be built upon the Sea a Mile long with Moles. upon which he erected Towers and built Houses. mans, as being Ceremonies confecrated to the out of a foolish and ridiculous Fancy, that by this means he had subdued this Element. He caused many of the Statues of the Gods to be maimed. CALIGA, a Boot or Buskin, a fort of Shoes breaking off their Heads, that he might place

CALLIOPE, who was the Mother of Orgasis tribuis, that he often gave the Mural Coro- pheus, and the first of the Nine Muses, according net to common Soldiers who first scal'd the Walls to the Poets, who presided over Harmony, and CALLISTO, the Daughter of Lycan, I who confumed my Goods; and after ther King of Arcadia, and a Nymph of Diana who fuffered her felf to be debauched by fueiter: whereupon the Goddess being angry, chang'd her into a Bear: But afterwards her Lover placed her in the Heavens; and this is that Constellation which is called the Great Bear.

CALUMNIA, Calumny, of which the A sbenians made a Deity, and to which they built a Temple. Lucian has given us an Emblem of Calumny, in a Dialogue under the same Title. Apelles, fays he, being accused by a Painter Scribes, where she was working Hangings with e jealous of his Glory, that he had conspired a rigures in them. gainst Prolomy, and caused the Revolt of Tyre, and the taking of Pelulium, and being acquitted from this Acculation by one of the Painter's Accomplices, Prolomy was to fentibly touch- his Share the rich Countries of Syria and Egyp, ed with Sorrow for what was done, that he and all Affrica, as we read in Genefis, yet he gave Apelles 100 Talents, and deliver'd up the Accuser into his Hands, to do with him as he Nephews, and planted there such Vices as were 6 should think fit. Apelles therefore to be revenged on Calumny which had done him such an ill leaby, and was driven thence by Janus. Fulling tura, made the following Picture. He painted does not reckon him among the first Founders a Prince with large Ears, as commonly Midas's of the Italians. are painted, fitting upon a Throne encompatfed with Suspicion and Ignorance, and while he is in was much addicted to Hunting, and was never this State, he reaches out his Hand a great Way fo well pleased as in shooting with a Bow. She off to Calumny, which advances towards him, having a Face very bright, and sparkling with extraordinary Charms and Enticements: She holds in her Left hand a forch, and with the other drags an innocent young Man by the Hair, who holds up his Hands to Heaven and implores its Affiftance: Before her marches Envy with a pale Face and squinting Eyes, which set off and dress up Calumny to make her the more acceptable: After her comes Repentance under the Figure of a Lady in Mourning-Habit, with her into the Place of the Assemblies at Rome, which Garments rent, which turns her Head towards were afterwards called Rostra, being the Triba-Truth, who weeps for Sorrowand Shame.

CALYPSO, was one of the Nymphs, the Daughter of Oceanus and Tethys: She reigned in the Isle of Ogygia, where she entertain'd Ulysses kindly, when he was cast upon it by a Storm. They lived together for Seven Years in great Privacy : But Ulyffes at last forfook it, and pre- the Invasion of the Gauls. He arrived at Rome ferred his own Country and his dear Penelopy to his new Mistress. as he was going out of the Isle of the Blefled, . Ulyffer took him afide and gave him a Letter them on a sudden, forced them by this Surprise to Calpajo, without the Knowledge of his Wife, and that he arriving within Three Days after in the Isle of oggie, broke open this Letter for fear left this crafty Knave thould put some had given Notice to the Romans of the Arrival Trick upon him, and he found written in it what follows: I thould not have left you before, but that I infer'd 6hipwrack, and hardly try of the Phases. When I returned home, Romans in Acknowledgement of fo many Bene-I found my Wife courted by a fort of People I firs, erected to him an Equestrian Statue in the were killed, I was affaffinated by Telemachai whom I had by Circe. At prefent I am in the Ifle of the Bieffed, where I remember with Grief the Pleafures we enjoy'd together, and wish that I had always continued with you, and had accepted the Offer you made me of Immortality. If I can therefore make an Ricape, you may reft affured that you shall see me again. Farewel. He delivered this Letter to Calpple. whom he found in a Grotto, fuch as Homer de-

CHAM, or CHAMESES, the Son of Noab, who brought upon himfelf his Father's Curse by his Reproaches; although he had for made Inroads into the Countries pofferfed by his not known before. He continued Ten Years in CAMILLA, the Queen of the Volfei. who came into the Help of Turnus and the Latins against Aneas, and fignalized herself by many brave Exploits: She was treacherously killed by Arontius, as we learn from Virgil, in L'11. uf the Ancids.

CAMILLUS, Camillus Furius, an illuficious Roman, who was called a second Romalus for reftoring the Roman Commonwealth. He vanquished the Antieta in a Naval Fight, and caused the Prows of the Ships to be brought nal for Orations. When the Capitol was belied ged by the Gauls, he was chosen Dictator, although he had been banished by his ungrateful Country-men. Affoon as he heard this News, he folicited the Ardeasa to come in to the Affistance of Rome, and invited all Italy to oppose in that very Moment when the Citizens were weighing 2000 Pounds of Gold in Performance Lucian in L. 2. of his true Hiftory fays, 'That of a Treaty they had made with the Gauls to oblige them to raife the Seige: But he charging to draw off with Shame and Lois.

After this Defeat and Deliverance of Rome, he made a Model of a Temple for that Voice which of the Gauls, and which they had flighted : He infituted Sacrifices to it under the Name of Deni Locutius. He caused also a Temple to be built a escaped by the Help of Leurosbeus in the Coun- to Juno Monera, and the Goddels Matura. The that was never done to any Citizen before. He Bell, to go and fup together. died of the Plague at Eighty Years of age.

CAMILLUS, or CASMILLUS, was the Minister of the Gods Cabiri: Thus Plutarch fays, that the Romans and Greeks gave this Name to a young Man, who ferved in the Temple of Jupiter, as the Greeks gave it to Mercury : Mi nistrantem in ade Jovis puerum in flore atatis dici Camillum ; ut & Mercurium Gracorum nonnulli Camillum a ministerio appellavere. Varro thinks that this Name comes from the Mysteries of the Samothracians. Macrobius informs us, that the young Boys and Maids, who ministred to the Priefts and Priefteffes of the Pagan Deities were call'd Camilli and Camilla : Romani quoque pueros puellasve nobiles & investes, Camillos & Camillas appellant, Flaminicarum & Flaminum præministros. Servius fays, that in the Tufcan Tongue Merthe Egyptians; and came from the East into the their Privy Parts. West. Bochart thinks that this Word might be deriv'd from the Arabick chadama, i. e. ministrare : Affinity with the Phanician and Hebrew Tongues. wherein this Term fignifies Priefts or Augurs.

CAMOEN Æ, the Nine Mules, the Daughters of Jupiter and Mnemolyne, so call'd from the Superbus challeng'd to himself the Use of it Sweetness of their Singing.

Veffel which was made in Campania.

CAMPANA, alone, or NOLÆ, Bells. Pancirellus fays expresly, that they were not in- and particularly a great Field cover'd with Corn vented until about the Year of F. C. 400, or without the City, which they confecrated to the 420, when they were first found out by the God Mars, by throwing all the Corn into the Bishop of Nola in Campania, call'd Paulinus : Tiber ; Ager Tarquinius qui inter Urbem & Tibe-And that for this Reason they were call'd Cam- rim fuit consecratus Marti, Martius deinde campus pme from the Country, or Nole from the City fuit. Liv. where they were first used: But Salmuth upon ancient Error to think that Paulinus first invented the Use of Bells, fince they were in use from to the Topography of Cluverius. It had on one the Times of Mofes; for the High-Prieft among lide the Tiber, and on the other the Quirina of Proferpina among the Athenians, call'd Hiepublick Baths, to give Notice of the Time when was broad. they were open'd and shut up; as may appear from these Verses of Martial, L. 14. Epigr. 163.

Redde pilam : sonat æs tbermarum : ludere pergis i Virgine vis fola losus abire domum.

Market place of Rome, which was an Honour tain Greeks who affembled at the Ringing of Adrianus Junius affures us, that the Ancients used Bells for the same End as we do, that they rung them at the Death of any Person, as is done to this Day, out of a superstitious Opinion, which was then generally received, that the Sound of Bells drove away Devils. They made ule of them also against Enchantments, and particularly after the Moon was eclipfed, which they thought came to pass by Magick: Thus we must understand these Verses of Juvenal,

- Fam nemo tubas atque ara fariget, Una laboranti poterit sucurrere Luna.

CAMPESTRE, the Lappet of a Gown, or lower part of a Caffock, that went round the Body; a fort of Apron, wherewith they girded cury was call'd Camillus, as being the Minister of themselves, who perform'd the Exercises in the the Gods. This Word Camillus obtained among Campus Marrius, which reach'd from the Navel the Tuscans, Remans, Greeks, Samosbracians, and down to the middle of their Thighs, to cover

CAMPUS MARTIUS, a large Place without Rome, between the City and the River And 'tis well known, that the Arabick has much | Tiber. Some Authors affirm, that Romalus coqiecrated it to the God Mars, from whom he faid Grotius derives Camillus from Chamarim Writings he was descended, and that he devoted it to the Exercises of the Roman Youth. Others, as particularly Tisus Livius, think that Terquinius and that when he was driven away upon the CAMPANA SUPELLEX, an Earthen Account of his Cruelty, and the impudent Rape of his Son committed on the Body of the chafte Lucresia, the Romans conficated all his Goods,

This Field contain'd all that great Plain which this Paffage of Pancirollus tells us, that it was an reaches to the Gate call'd Popolo, and even as far as the Pons Milvius, or Ponte-mole, according the Jews had a great many little Bells of Gold Mount, the Capitol and the little Hill of Garat the lower part of his Garment, to give No- dens. Its lowermost part was call'd Vallu Martice to the People when he entred into, and tia, which reach'd from the Arch of Domisian when he came out of the Sanctuary. The Prieft | as far as the Gate Popolo. Strabo speaking of the Beauties of the City of Rome, takes particular rophanius, rung a Bell to call the People to Sa- Notice of the Field of Mars, which was of a crifice. The Romans likewise had a Bell in the prodigious Compass, and much longer than it

In this Field the People affembled to chuse Magistrares; Review was taken of the Armies, and the Confuls lifted Souldiers. This Place ferv'd also for the Exercises of the Youth, as to ride the Horse, to Wreftle, to shoot with the Bow, to throw the Quoit, or Ring: Plutar b in his Book of Sympifiacts speaks of cer- And after these Exercises they bath'd themfelves in the Tiber, to refresh themselves, and little Officer of very small Esteem among the to learn to fwim.

chie, or Sea-fights, which were shown there for and other Judicial Acts, very much like our Retheir Pleasure and Diversion. Here also were gifters or Deputy-Registers. They were paid to be seen the Statues of illustrious Men, and a by the Roll for their Writing; as Salmasius has vaft Gallery built by Antoninus Pius, together obsery'd when he relates a Passage out of the with that Pillar 70 Foot high, whose Ascent was Laws of the Lombards: Volumus ut nullus Can-106 Steps, that were enlightned by 36 Win- cellarius pro ullo judicio aut scripto aliquid amplius dows. Here also was the Obelisk, which Augu- accipere audeat, nist dimidiam libram argenti de flus fetch'd from Egypt, that supported a Sun- majoribus scripti; de minoribus autem infra dimidial: Moreover, in this Place were to be feen diam libram. Doubless this Officer was a very the Arth of Domitian, the Amphitheatre of the inconfiderable Person, since Vopifcus tells us, Emperor Claudius, the Naumachia of Domitian, the Manfoleum of Augustus, the Sepulchre of Marcellus his Nephew, the Trophies of Marins, Governour of Rome, Prafedium Urbi unum & Canand a vaft Number of Sepulchres and ancient cellariu fuit fecit, quo judius nee cogitari potuit Monuments all along the River-lide.

At one End of this Place there was a little the People and their Estates in the Year 319.

to build the Campus Martius, and inclose it which were call'd Cancelli forences; and that afwithin the City. He offer'd to make the Septa terwards those were call'd Chancellors, who sate or Inclosures, into which the People entred one in the first Place between these Bars. The Reby one to give their Votes, of Marble, which he- gifter in Sea-Port-Towns, i.e. in the Maritime fore were only of Wood: But the Civil Wars Places in the Levant, was also call'd Chanwhich fell out unexpectedly, hindred the Exe. cellor. cution of this great Delign.

to her Honour.

Veftal Virgins, which were lewd Proftitutes, seven Branches, three on each side and one in were enterr'd alive.

Hannibal encamp'd when he beneg'd Rome, which ancient Romans, has given seven Branches to he might early have taken, if he had not been their Candleftick, as foleph did to that in Solofrighted with vain Dreams and Fancies, which mon's Temple; but then he allows to it only hindred him from continuing the Siege; for the Romans perceiving the Siege to be railed, and I greater than the reft, and represents the Sun, their City by this means to be deliver'd, upon as the fix other do the Planets. This Candlestick this occasion burst out into a very loud Laughter, with the Vessels and other Rarities of the Temand henceforth erected an Altar to the God of ple at Ferufalem, ferv'd for Ornaments to the Laughter.

this Name in the Roman Empire, had neither | Temple of Peace, together with the Sacred Velthe Dignity nor the Power of him whom we now less of the Temple of the true God. call Chancellor in England; for he was only a

Romans, who fate in a Place flut up with Grates In this Place the People beheld the Nauma- or Bars, to write out the Sentences of the Judges that Numerianus made a very shameful Election, when he preferr'd one of these Officers to be aliquid, nec dici. Monf. Menage fays, that this Word comes a Cancellis, from the Bars or Latrifing Ground, call'd Mons Citorius, or Citato- tice, within which the Emperor was when he rum, on which the People mounted to give their administred Justice, because the Chancellor Votes at Elections. Very near to this was the Rood at the Door of that Apartment, which fe-Town house, where Foreign Ambassadors were parated the Prince from the People. M. Du receiv'd, lodg'd and entertain'd at the Charge Cange following herein the Opinion of Joannes of the Commonwealth, during the Time of their de Janua, thinks that this Word comes from Ps-Embally, as Time Living relates upon occasion of lessine, wherein the Tops of Houses were stat, the Macedonian Ambassadors, Macedones deducti and made in the Form of Terrass-walks, having extra Urbem in villam publicam, ibique en locus & Bannisters with cross Bars, which were call'd lautia prabita. In this Place also the Censors Cancelli; and that those who mounted upon made the first Affessment, and the Enrolment of these Tops of Houses to repeat an Oration, were call'd Cancellarii; and that this Name was In Cicero's Time C. Capito made a Proposal extended to those who pleaded within the Bars, CANDELABRUM, a Candleftick. The CAMPUS FLOR E, the Field of Flora, Candleftick of the Temple at Ferusalem which a Place confecrated to that Goddefs, wherein was of Gold, which weigh'd 100 Mina, i.e. were shown the Games call'd Floralia, instituted Pounds, differ'd from the Candlestick of the Romans, in this, that the latter had but one CAMPUS SCELERATUS, a Place Stem with its Foot, and one Lamp at top, wherewhich was near the Porta Collina, where the as the Candleffick of the Temple of Solomon had the middle, together with seventy Lamps, as CAMPUS RIDICULI, a Place where Fosephus says. Du Choul, in the Religion of the feven Lamps, whereof that in the middle is Triumph of Tiem and Velpalian, after the Sack-CANCELLARIUS; he who went by ing of Jerusalem; and it was laid up in the the Defence of the Commonwealth.

In the first Year of their Canvassing, they they declar'd to them, that they defir'd to ob- then the Tribunes would exclude them. tain fuch an Office by their good Opinion of from defiring a Favour of the People, but every one was not admitted by the Magistrate to put in his etition in publick on the Day of Election. For, as toon as the Magistrate had seen the Petition of the Candidate together with the Recommendation of the People, he call'd together the Ordinary Council of Senators; and after they had examin'd the Reatons he offer'd for defiring such an Office, and inform'd themselves of his Life and Behaviour, the Magistrate gave him leave to put in for the Place, in these Terms, rationem babebo, renuntiabo; or else he rejected him, and aniwer'd, rationem non babebo, non renunsiabo, i. e. I will have no regard to you. We have an infinite Number of Examples to this purpose: Ajconius Pedianus writes, that Catiline defir'd the Confulfhip of the People at his return from Africa; and yet the Conful Volcarius, having call'd the Senate together, declar'd, that he was by no means to be admitted. C.Mar-

CANDIDATI, the Candidates, of fuch the Confuls protested that they would have no as aspir'd to Offices in the Commonwealth; regard at all to his Name, non renuntiabe. This were so call'd from the white Garment they Opposition was so powerful, that it prevail'd were oblig'd to wear during the two Years of above the Favour of the People, and even above their folliciting for the Place. This Garment the Authority of the Tribones, It was never was to be wore fingly without any other Cloaths, known that any Man did more powerfully folaccording to the Relation of Plutarch, in the licite, or had greater Favour shown him than Life of Coriolanus, to avoid any Suspicion the Pelicanus had for obtaining the Consulthin, for People might have of conceal'd Money for pur- he was supported by the Tribunes, and favour'd chaing Votes, and also that they might the by the People; and yet the Conful Pifo declar'd more easily show to the People the Scars of with a loud Voice, in the Presence of the Peothose Wounds they had received in fighting for ple, as Valerius Maximus relates it, that he would not name him at all, non renunriabo.

The Tribunes also very often opposed the ask'd leave of the Magistrate to harangue the Candidates, when the Magistrate appear'd not People, or to make a Speech to them by some to be sufficiently inform'd of their Desects, or of their Friends. At the End of these Speeches plainly dissembled his knowledge of them, for

The most general and essential Defect which them, and pray'd them to have regard to their excluded any Person from Offices, was his bad Ancestors, and the Services they had done, of Life and wicked Actions: A second Defect which which they gave a large Account: This was render'd any Perion uncapable, was the want of call'd profiteri nomen fuum, and this Year was that Age which was prescrib'd by the Laws to call'd annus professionis, which was wholly em- every one that should obtain the Offices of the ploy'd in making Friends among the Grandees, Commonwealth. Tacinus informs, that at the and Populace, either by Games and Feafts, or Beginning of the Commonwealth the Person's by building some Work for the Publick, or by Age was not at all consider'd, but any one was defending at the Bar fuch as were fued. At the admitted indifferently to Dignities, and even Beginning of the second Year they return'd to to the Consulfhip, the Young as well as the Old; the Magistrate with the Recommendation of the but in succeeding Times they were forc'd to People, which was commonly express'd in these make Laws, which prescrib'd a certain Age for Terms, rationem illius babe, and they pray'd him Offices. One must be 27 Years of Age to be to fet down their Names in the Lift of Candi- Quaftor, 30 to be Tribune; and the Office of dates, which they call'd, Edere nomen apud Pra- the Major or Curule Edile could not be adminitorem aut Confulem: And there was this diffe- fired by any one under the Age of 37 Years; rence between profiteri apud populum, & profiteri nor of Prætor under 39, nor of Conful under and Magistraium, i. e. Bemeen declaring their 43 Years of Age: But according to the Opini-Intention to the People, and petitioning them for on of Juffus Lipfius none could be Quaftor until an office, and being admitted by the Magistrate to he was 25 Years old, nor Tribune or Edile Mapetition for it; that no Person was ever hindred jor until he had entred upon the 27th or 28th Year of his Age; nor Prætor until he was 20 Years old, nor Conful until he had entred upon the 43th Year of his Age. Nevertheless they did very often dispense with the Rigor of these Laws; for Scipio was made Conful at 24, and Pompey at 34 Years of Age.

There was also a third Defect which render'd them uncapable of Offices, and that was when they endeavour'd to obtain the greater Offices before they had paffed thro' the leffer: Thus it was forbidden that any one should put in for the Office of a Contul, until he had first passed thro' the other inferior Offices: Upon which account Cicero in his Book, entituled, Brutus, calls the Petition of Cafar for the Office of Conful, An over-hafty and unutual Petition, Extraordinariam & pramaturum petitionem ; because he had been formerly no more than Edile: And we learn from History, that Sylla testified so great a Zeal for the Observation of this Law, that he kill'd tius Rutilius put in for the Office of Cenfor, but | Q Lucretius Ofella with his own Hand, for delian Account of the Years which were prescrib'd for the several Offices.

The Magistrate having admitted the Pretender to put in a Petition for the Office, he made it his Business to find out Friends, which were of great Credit and Authority among the Grandees of Rome, and the Populare, that by their Interest he might obtain it. To this end they made use of all manner of Civilities, and the little Arts of pleafing, to gain the Good-Will of the Voters; they courted private Perfons, not only with Complements but Gifts, and in the corrupt Times of the Commonwealth, they came at last to that pas, as to purchase openly the Votes of the Tribes: For buying their Votes, they made use of three forts of Persons, who were call'd Interpretes, Divisores, Sequestres Interpretes, i. e. Brokers who help'd to make the Bargain, per quos pattio inducebatur, fays Aconius Pedianus; Divifores, Diftributers, Jaris. Sueconius adds, that afterwards he left who divided the Money among the Tribes, and to the People only the Power of naming the In-Sequefires, Persons in whose Hands the Money serior Magistrates, reserving to himself the was deposited, to give it to the Voters, in case | Right of naming to the greater Offices, Calar they did not fail to give their Votes according comitia cum populo partitus eft, ut exceptis Confuto Agreement. To remedy this Disorder, many Laws were made, which were call'd leges de rum pro parte dimidia, quos populus vellet, renusambitu; but ftill they found out from time to time feveral ways to evade them.

The time of Election being come, the Magiftrate appointed an Affembly to be held three | Tickets in his Name among the Tribes, who feveral Market days, that so those in the Country, who liv'd in the Municipal Cities and Colonies, and had the Right of Voting, might have time to come to the City. When the Day of Election was come, the Candidates or Pretenders to Offices, being cloath'd in white, were prefent very early in the Morning, accommanied with those who befriended them, at the Quirinal Mount, or upon the little Hill of Gardens, again, yet they never made use of it afterwards; call'd Collis Horsulorum, which overlook'd the and the Senate did only take care to proclaim in Campus Marsius, that so being upon a high Place, the Campus Marsius such as were chosen to the People might the better fee them. From thence they descended into the Campus Marsius, where they continued their Sollicitations and Canvaffings; as Horace informs us in these Verfes.

- Hic generohor Descendat in Campum petitor : Moribus bic meliorque famil Contendat; illi turba clientium Odar. L.3. Od. 1. Sit majer.

Then the Prefident of the Affembly after he Months for Instruction. had named aloud the Pretenders to the Offices, and related the Reasons which every one had mong the Greeks, at which all the Maids that to fland for them, call'd the Tribes to give their were to be married, offer'd to this Deity Baf-Yotes; and these being counted, he who had kets full of little Pieces of Work wrought with ring the Confulfhip, before he had exercised the smost was declar'd Magistrate, who after this Office of Quartor or Prator. The Reader may Declaration never fail'd immediately to return confult the Word Amus, where we have given | Thanks to the Assembly, and from thence he ascended to the Capitol, there to fay his Prayers to the Gods.

This good Order was a little chang'd under the Emperors. Augustus canvass'd for his first Confulship, after a Manner something new, being no more than 20 Years old; for he cauled his Army to march near to Rome, and fent a famous Embaffy, to defire the Office for himfelf, in the Name of the Legions; and the Captain of this Embaffy, call'd Cornelius, perceiving that the Answer to his Petition was delay'd, laid his Hand upon the Hilt of his Sword, and had the Boldness to speak these Words, Hie facier, & non fecerisis.

In process of Time, when Augustus was advanc'd to an absolute Power, he himself canvals'd for those whom he had a Mind to favour, until he went to give his Voice in his Tribe, and these Candidates were call'd Candidati Calattis competitoribus, de catero numero candidatotiarentur. Moreover, he encroach'd upon the People's Power of electing to Offices, which he had granted them, by making them disperse by this means were forc'd to chuse such as he recommended to them. & edebat per libellos eircum Tribus missos scripsura brevi. Casar Distasor illi tribui: commendo vobis illum & illum, ut veftro luffragio luam dignitatem tengant.

Tiberius, Succeffor to Augustus, took away the Right of Election from the People, and transferr'd it to the Senate : Nero reftored it to them Offices, thinking by this means still to retain tome Shadow of the ancient Manner of Elections.

Of all the Magistrates which were chosen, none but the Cenfors entred immediately upon the Discharge of their Office, the other Magifrates continued tome Months before they entred upon it. in which time they were inftructed in the Duties belonging to them; for they were choien in the Beginning of August, and they did not enter upon their Office till the First of Fanuary, and fo they had the Space of Five

CANEPHORIA, a Feaft of Diana a-

they were weary of their Virginity, and had a Delire to tafte the Pleasures of Matrimony. The Athenians also celebrated a Feast to Bacchus, during which the young Women carried Bafkers, or little Chefts of Gold full of Fruit, from whence this Feaft was called Canephoria, and the Women Canephora, Basket-carriers. Suidas speaks of these Baskets consecrated to Barchus. Ceres. and Proferpina; as also the Poet Theocritus in his Idellia. They had a Cover to preserve the Mysteries of Bacchus, and conceal them from the Eyes of those who were not initiated into them, and who upon that account were treated

CANIS, the Coelestial Dog, is a Constellation, of which there are two forts; the Great Dog call'd Sirius, which is a Conftellation confifting of Eighteen Stars, according to Prolomy, of the Nature of Jupiter and Venus, the principal Star whereof is held to be greater than any other Star, nay, than the Sun it felf: The little Dog, which is otherwise call'd Canicula, or Procyon, has only Two Stars, whereof one is of the first Magnitude, and of the Nature of Mars, which is the Cause of the great Heats in Sum-in the Temple of Asculapius, and which was consecrated to the God Pan. The Romans never fail'd to crucifie one of this Kind every Year, because the Dogs had not given Notice by their barking, of the Arrival of the Gauls, who be- rizon. fieg'd the Capitol, which was intended for a Punishment to the Species; whereas on the contrary, to do Honour to a Goole, they carried one of Silver in an Elbow-Chair, laid upon a Pillow, because she had advertised them of the Coming of the Gauls by her Noise. Alian relates, that the Egyptians held the Dog in great Veneration, because they look'd upon it as a Symbol of the Coeleftial Dog, whose rising gives encrease to the Nile. This Author says else- dida Capena, and Martial, Capena, grandi porta where, that there was a Country in Eibiopia, where they had a Dog for their King, and they took his Fawnings or Barkings to be Signs of his Good-will; and for his Authors he cites Hermippus and Aviforte. Plurareb also speaks of this barely Airs ; and Caffodorus names him Egyptus. Dog which some of the Eshiopians held for a He reign'd 24 Years. King, and to whom all the Nobility paid Ho-

CANOPUS, the Sovereign Deity among the Egyptians, of whose Original Suidas gives Nations, concerning the Supremacy of their be killed by his own People; from whence we may

the Needle, and by this Offering fignified that | Gods; and while each Nation maintain'd that their own God was Supreme, it was at laft decreed, that he among the Gods who should conquer the reft, should be acknowledg'd for sovereign over them all: Now the Chaldeans adored the Element of Tire, which eafily melted down or confum'd all the other Gods, made of Gold, Silver, and other fufile or combustible Matter; but when this God was about to be declar'd the Sovereign Deity over all the reft, a certain Prieft of Canopus, a City of Egupe, food up, and advised them to take an Earthen Pot that had many little Holes made in it, fuch as the Egyptians used for purifying the Water of Nile; then having flopt up these Holes with Wax, he fill'd it with Water, and placed it over the Head of the God which they adored, whereupon the Contest was presently begun between it and the Fire, whose Heat having melted the Wax, the Water run out immediately and extinguish'd the Fire; whereupon the God of Canopus was acknowledg'd for the Sovereign over all the Gods among these Na-

CANOPUS, is also a Star, which we have no knowledge of, fays Vitruvius, but by the Relation of those Merchants who have travell'd to CANIS, a Dog, an Animal which was kept the uttermost Parts of Egypt, as far as these Countries which are at the End of the World, (and in the other Hemisphere) because it turns round about the South-Pole, and so is never visible to us, since it never rises above our Ho-

> CAPENA, a Gate fo call'd at Rome, according to Festus, from a Neighbouring City near the Fountain Egeria: It was also call'd Appia, because it was the Gate thro' which they went to the Via Appia; and Triumphalis, hecause the Generals to whom a Triumph was decreed, made their Entrance into the City thro' this Gate, and Fontinalis from the Aquadults which were raised over it; when e Juvenal calls it maquæ pluit gutta.

CAPETIS SILVIUS, King of Alba. Dionysius calls him Capetus: Eufebius, Titus Livius, Meffals and Facobus, of Augol, call him

CAPIS SILVIUS, King of Latium: He is faid to have laid the Foundation or Capus in CANICULARIS PORTA, a Gate at the Terra Laboris, tho' others attribute this Rome, according to Festus, where Dogs of Red Foundation to the Trojan Capis, the Father of Hair were facrific'd to the Dog flar, to ripen Anchifes; but without any probability. Suetonius speaks of certain Plates of Brass, which were found at Capua, in the Tomb of Capis, in. that Year that Julius Cafar was kill'd, on which the following Account : 'There arole, fays he, Greek Letters were engraved, which fignified, one Day a great Controversie between the E- that at such time as the Bones of Capis should be Exprians, Chaldeans, and the Neighbouring discover'd, one of the Pesterity of Julius should draw an uncontestable Proof that Capis was not | fent to defire of the Romans aff their Maids to be 2 Trojan, for if he had, 'tis very probable, that given in Marriage, which they refused to grant; Greek Characters would not have been used in and thereupon the Gauls presently declared Was

CAPITOLIUM, or MONS CAPI-TOLINUS, the Capitol, or the Capitoline | Senate, and put the Remans in great Trouble and Mount, which was called at first Saturnim, because Saturn dwelt there; afterwards it was called Tarpeim from the Vestal Virgin Tarpeia, who was fniothered there under the Bucklers of the Sabines; at last Capitolium, from the Head | posed to the Senate, that she and the other Feof a Man called Tolus, which was found by the male Slaves should be sent to the Latins instead Workmen when they were digging the Foundation of the Temple of Fupiter, who upon this Account was called Jupiter Capitolinus. This Mountain was the most considerable of all those | Slaves resorted to the Enemies Camp, who upthat were at Rome, as well for its Extent, as on their Arrival presently fell a drinking and for the Buildings that flood upon it, which were rejoycing. When Philotic perceived that they one Fortress and Sixty Temples, whereof the were plunged into an Excess of Riot, she climbmost famous was that dedicated to Jupiter under this Title, F. Opt. Max. which was begun my Tarquinius Prilcus, finished by Tarquinius Saperbul. Torch, they came presently and fell upon the dedicated by Horatius Pulvillus. It was burnt | Latins, and finding them buried in Wine and 424 Years after its Dedication: Sylla begun to Luxury, they eafily destroyed them. In Merebuild it, and Quinsus Casulus finished it, and mory of this Victory the Romans ordained that confectated it anew. 330 Years being expired every Year a Feftival should be kept at the after the Renewing of this fecond Confecration, Nones of July to Juno, who was called Caprotina the Souldiers of Vinellius fet it on fire, and Vejpafish caused it to be built again. In this Caprificus. These Female Slaves having by this Temple Vows were made and folemn Oaths. here the Citizens ratified the Acts of the Emperors, and took the Oaths of Fealty to them. Treat to their Miffrelles without the City, and laftly, hither the Magistrates and the Gene- where they foort and left with them, and throw rals that kept a Triumph came to give Thanks Stones at one another to represent the Stones to the Gods for the Victories they had obtained, wherewith the Latins were overwhelmed. and to pray for the Prosperity of the Empire.

Twelve Signs of the Zodiac, into which the Sun enters at Winter-folftice. The Poets feign that on the Brink of the Grave and just ready to die, Capricorn is the God Pan, who to avoid the Purfuit of the Giant Typhon, changed himself into a who are condemned to die, are called Capuls-He-goat, whose lower Parts were of Fish. Fu- res rei. piter admiring his Cunning placed him in the Heavens under this Figure. Others think that Septimine Severm and Marcia: He was declar'd Capricorn was the Foster-brother of Funiter: for Amalthea to whom he was put out to nurse ha- Gera his Brother by the Father's Side. In his ving no Milk of her own, fuckled him with the Milk of a Goat, which Jupiter in Acknowledgment for the Kindness placed among the Signs nours, whose Wife and Son were instructed in of the Zodiac.

of their Neighbours, and therefore entred into have usurged the Sovereign Power by Parricides a League with the Gauls, and refolved utterly having laid his Hand upon his Sword on purpose to defroy the Roman Empire; and that they to draw it and kill his Father, when he was one against them. This War happening just after their late Misfortune mightily perplexed the Confternation, who could not relolve with themselves thus to abandon their Daughters. While they were in this Consternation, a certain Woman-flave called Philoris or Tutola proof the young Roman Maids, being drefs'd up in Cloaths like them. This Delign was approved and prefently put in Execution, for those Female ed up a wild Fig-tree, and having from thence given a Signal to the Romans with a lighted from the wild Fig-tree, which in Latin is called Stratagem preserved the Empire, were set at Liberty; and on this Day they give always a

CAPULUS, a Bier, on which the Bodies CAPRICORNUS, Capricorn, one of the Dead were carried to the Grave, from whence it comes to pais that old Men who are are called Capulares senes; and those Criminals

CARACALLA, Antoninus, the Son of Cafar, and made Partner in the Empire with Youth he had sucked in the Principles of Chriftianity, having Evodus for one of his Goverthe Christian Religion. Thus at hest he gave CAPROTINA JUNO, and CA- good Signs of a very sweet Disposition, which PROTINE NONE; the Occasion of procured him the Love of every Body: But giving this Name to Juno, and to the Nones of his Father having removed from his Perion those the Month of July, which were called Caprotine, that inspired him with a Relish of true Piers! was a follows. The Gants having drawn off their choaked that good Seed he had received, and Army after they had fack'd Rome, the Lasins had made a Monfter of him when he thought to a mind to make an Advantage of this Misfortune, make him a great Prince; for he intended to might give some Colour to their Defign, they Day coming behind him on Horse-back, and

him had not cryed out and hindered him. The Horror of an Action to black brought Severes into fuch a deep Melancholy, that he died in it within a Year after. Caracalla being thus advanced to the Empire, killed his Brother Geta Rome. Montiefins, who had much ado to find in his Mother's Bosom, that he might reign out some Signs of these Cariasides, which Pling alone without any Partner upon the Throne. fays were placed by Diogenes, an Athenian Ar-He cut off the Head of Papinian a celebrated Lawyer, because he would neither excuse nor defend the Murder of his Brother; which Ex- which were buried in the Ground as high as ample of a generous Courage in this Lawyer, the Shoulders on the Right-fide of the Parties. who was then Prafedtus Pratorio, should make in Demi-relief, and which suffain'd upon their Christians blush, who so easily excuse the Crimes | Heads a kind of Architrave of the same Stone. of Kings when they have Hopes of rifing at | This kind of Cariatides is still to be feen at Court. We have some Medals of this Prince, Bourdeaux in a very ancient Building which they which represent to us what kind of a Person he call Tuteles; as also in the old Louvre at Paris was after he came to be Emperor. For when in the Hall of the Smils Guards : They are Stawe observe in his Medal, the Space between tues Twelve Foot high, and support a Gallery his Eye-brows knit, his Eyes funk in his Head, enriched with Ornaments which are very well and his Nose a little turned up at the End, cut, done by Goujon, Architect and Engraver these Marks make up the Countenance of a to Heavy II. Man who is thoughtful, crafty and wicked, and indeed he was one of the cruellest Men in the World: Besides, he was addisted to Wine and Venm, viz. Aglaiz, Eughrospue and Thalia. They Women, sierce, insolent, hated by the Soldiers, are painted young and beautiful, with a smiling and even by his own domestick Servants, infomuch that at last he was killed by one of his own Centurions called Martiali, in the 43 Year of his Age, and the Sixth Year of his Reign. It might seem wonderful that so wicked a Prince should be placed among the Gods, as we learn that he was by the Title of Divine, which was given him, and by the Confectation we see in his Medal, but that we have this to fay in the Case, that Macrimu who succeeded him, and was the Cause of his Death, had a mind by doing him this Honour to clear himself of all Suspicion of this Murder, or rather, that this was an Age of Slavery, and the People being enflaved beltowed the most fordid Flatteries upon the worft of Princes.

CARIATIDES, Statues in the Shape of Women without Arms, habited genteelly, which ferved for Ornament and Support to the Chapiters of Pillars in Edifices. Vitruvius in L. 2. C. 1. of his Architecture, relates the Story of them thus, 'That the Inhabitants of Caria, which was a City of Peloponnesse, in former times 'had joyn'd with the Perlians when they made War against the People of Greece; and that the Greeks having put an End to that War by and ruin'd, and all their Men put to the Sword, I rynome. their Women should be carried away Captive :1 and that to make the Difgrace the more re-had certainly done it if those who were about 1 ment they had endured, and to inform Posterity what it was, the Architects of that Time inflead of Pillars, placed this fort of Statues in publick Building. Some remains of this fort of ancient Statues are still to be feen at chitect to ferve for Pillars in the Panthem, relates that he faw Four of them in the Year 1680.

CARITES, or the Three Graces, which were Three Sifters, the conftant Companions of Countenance, clad in fine thin Stuff, without a Girdle, and holding one another by the Hand-

Seneca explains to us this Picture. He favs. They are painted young and beautiful, because their Favours are always agreeable for their Novelty, and the Memory of them can never be loft. They are clad in fine thin Stuff, because the Kindness they do you ought to be without Distimulation or any Disguise, and thould proceed from the Bottom of the Heart : Their Garment is not girt about, because Benefits ought to be free and unconftrained: They hold one another interchangable by the Hands, to show that Favours should be reciprocal.

We ought to believe that the Graces were only Moral Deities. Paufanias has written a large Discourse about them, wherein he says, that Eseocles was the first who consecrated Three of them in Baoria; that the Lacedemonians knew but Two of them, Clira and Phaenna; that the Athenians allo held Two of them in Veneration. Auxo and Heremo: that Homer marries one of the Graces to Vulcan without giving her any other Name, though he elfewhere calls her Pahibae: Laftly, that Hefiod nam'd the their glorious Victories, declared afterwards Three Graces, Euphorsyne, Aglais and Ibalis, and to the Cariates, that their City being taken makes them the Daughters of Jupiter and En-

CARMENTA, the Mother of Evender. and one who was a Prophetels, from whence the 'markable, their Ladies of Quality should not be had her Name Carmenta, a carminibm, because 'fuffered to put off their Garments, nor any of the ancient Sibyls gave their Oracles in Verse. their usual fine Dresses. Now to make the Ca- A Temple was built to her at Rome, wherein 'riases an everlasting Monument of the Punish- Sacrifices were offered to her: A Festival also was inflituted to her, which from her Name; the Roman Dames affembled together, and was called Carmentalia.

ty well to Themis; for Servim fays, that the was the Senate, that they granted them the Pricalled Nicofrata, and that the affumed the Name | viledge of being carried in a Litter to the Shows of Carmenta, because the gave her Oracles in and into the City. Plutarch thinks, that for Verse, that she was the Mother of Evander, the this Larges they had only the Priviledge of ha-Son of Pallas, King of Arcadia; and laftly, that | ving Funeral-Orations after their Death. Yet the was killed by her own Son, or according to we read in History, that the Right of the Litothers, the inftigated her Son to kill his Father ter was taken from them, which provoked them Pallas; which forced Evander to flie away into fo much that they would no longer keep Com-Italy: Evander patrem fuum occidit, susdente ma | pany with Men. This is what Ovid and Plutre Nicoftrata, que etiam Carmentis difta eft, quia tarch tell us. Upon this Account the Senate to carminibus vanicinabatur. Ovid relates this Hi- appeale them, was forced to reftore their an-Rory after such a manner as is something more cient Priviledge unto them; and then they cauto the Advantage of Evander, in his L. 1. fed a Temple immediately to be built to Car-F. 461. He makes him an innocent Fugitive, menta, called by the Greeks Themia and Ivicoand one that was always maintained by the Pro | ftrate, at the Bottom of the Capitol, and anphecies of his Mother, whom he made a Goddess | pointed a Prieft for it called Flamen Carmentalia. of in Italy. Virgit lays as much in L. 2.

Me pulsum patria, pelagique extrema sequentem, Fortung omnipotens & ineludabile fatum His posuere locis, matrifque egere tremenda. Carmensis Nympha monisa, & Deus aucto Apollo

Dionyfim Halicarnallam fays, that Evander made this Voyage into "haly Sixty Years before the ferried over the Souls of the Dead in his Boat. War of Troy, and that Evander was the Son of a Nymph who was named or furnamed Themis, because she foretold Things to come. Nympha Arcadia filius Evander, quam Graci Themin fuife dicunt, & divino afflarn inftintam, i. e. That Evander impoling upon the Simplicity of the Aborigines, who were still wild and incivilized, made his Mother pass among them for a Propheteis and for the Themis of Italy, and so obliged them to pay her Divine Honours. Plusarch alfo in his Romen Queftions fays, that Carments was named Themis; and he adds that the River, and then they were to be ferried was furnamed Carmenta, as who should fay, Carens mente, because the Livine Spirit of Prophecy assumed the Place of the Humane Spirit; and that Verses are called Carmina from her Name Carmenta, because she prophesied in Honour of Carmenta, which are folemnized faying, that Dide founded Byrfa the Caffle of twice in the Month of Fenuary, viz. the first time on the Eleventh (or the Third of the Ides, as may be feen in the Roman Calendar.) because then this Deity perswaded her Son Evander to leave Arcadia, and to go and dwell at fish; the fecond time this Festival is cele- and the latter, that it was built 72 Years after brated on the 15th of the same Month, the Rome; whereas, if we may believe Vigenere, Occasion whereof is variously reported.

Some fay, that when a Prefent was to be made to Apollo of Delphos, of the Tithe of the actioncy of what was necessary to make it up, 24 Years according to Polybius, and 22 according brought in to the Magistrates their Ornaments Carmenta, fays Pather Thom tin, an wers pret- of Gold and Silver; which was fo pleafing to and hence the Gate of the City which leads to this Temple was also called Porta Carmentalia." CARMA or CARNA, a Deity which prefided over the good Habit of the Body. A Sacrifice was offered to her on the first of June, together with a Pottage made of the Meal of Beans and with Bacon.

· CARON, the Ferry-man of Hell, who according to the Fable, that they might afterwards be judged by Rhadamanthus and Minos the Judges of Hell. He received an Obolus from all the Dead for their Paffage, and for this Reason the Ancients put always this Piece into the Mouth of the Dead, that they might have wherewichal to pay the Ferry-man. Virgil describes him to us as very ancient and far, having a long Beard and very bufhy. The Souls of those who had no Bur'al, were to wander for the Space of a Hundred Years on the Side of CARTHAGO, Carthage, the Capital City of all Africk and the Rival of Rome. It was founded by a Tyrian called Charcedo, which confounds the Mealures of Virgil, who had a mind that Dide should be the Foundress of it. Per-CARMENTALIA, Feafis inflituted in haps this Difference may be accommodated by Carthage, and fo the Poet without any great Crime might firetch this to the City. But how to reconcile what Vigenere fays with what Velleius Paterculus and Justin say, I know not, for the former fays, that Carebage was built 45 Years, Rome was founded after Caribage more than 200 Years. This City bore the Brunt of Three great Wars against the Romens, which were called the Plunder of the City of Veii, there being a De- Punick or Carthaginian Wars. The first flasted to marropius: The fecond under the Conduct of own Mother, and her adulterous Lover, as al-Hannibal lasted Eighteen Years, in which the fo the Murderer of his Father. Roman Empire was fo shocked, that it was re- | CASSIDARIUS, He who had the Care come by the foft Pleasures of Capua, and there- at Rome. by gave the Romans such a time of Respite, that | CASSIOPEA, the Wife of Cepbens, magnificent Cicy, which had with fo much Vi-Rome. It lasted only 660, or 700 Years.

CARTHAGINENSES, the Carthagito whom no Credit is to be given; from whence came the Proverb, Punica fides, Punick Faish, to fignifie Knavery, or a deceitful Promise.

They facrificed their Children to their Deities in the Presence of their Mothers, who were to behold this cruel Spectacle with a Stoical Conftancy, and without any Compassion.

Word with him, Apollo was very angry with her, and fo ordered the Matter, that though the spoke the Truth in what she predicted, yet the never was believed: And this was the Caufe of the Ruine of her Country, as Virgil tells us, L. 2. of the Aneids, V. 246.

Tunc etiam fatis aperit Cassindra futuris Ora, Dei juffu, non nunquam credita Teucris.

She was ravished at the Sacking of Iroy by Ajax the Locrism, although the had embraced the Statue of Pallas.

Booty of the City or Troy, Caffandra fell to the The Fable gives us an Account, that Jupiter be-Share of Agamemnon, by whom the was carried away into his own Country, and by the Way the gave him Notice, that he was to be affaffinated by his Wife Clytemnestra, and her adul- length brought to Bed of Two Eggs, in each trous Keeper Agilibm: He gave no Credit of which there were Two Twip-Children: In at all to this Prediction of his own Misfortune; but after he was come to his Palace, when he was going out of the Bath to fit down at Table, his Wife Clytemnestra clave his Skutt with the Blow of an Ax, having first entangled him in a Shirt without a Bosom; and afterwards Tyndarides. falling upon Caffindra, the killed her after the same manner : But Oreftes the Son of duced to the very Brink of Ruine. But at laft and Overfight of the Salades and the Armour for Hannibal their formidable Captain was over- the Head, which were kept in the Arsenals they repaired the Losses they had suffered. In King of Ethiopia, who incurred the Indignation the third War Carsbage was utterly destroyed of the Nereides for being accounted more beauby the Grandson of Scipio Africanus. There tiful; which was the Cause why her Daughter went out of the City no more than 5000 Per- Andromeda was exposed to a Sea-monster, that fons, who were the only fad Remains of this fo the Mother might be punished in the Daughter: But Perfeus at his Return from Libya, refgor deputed the Empire of the World with cued her from the Jaws of this Monster, when it was just ready to devour her; and in Acknowledgment of this Kindness, Cepbem gave her to nians, or the Inhabitants of Carthage, who are him in Marriage. Caffiope was taken up into accounted a fort of faithless People in the World, Heaven by the Favour of her Son-in-law, where the Aftronomers represent her to us as fitting upon a Chair in the Milky-way, between Cepheus and Andromeda, who touches our Summer Tropick with her Head and Hand. Virruvine has given us the following Description of these Conftellations.

Perseus leans with his Right-hand upon Cas-CASSANDRA, the Daughter of Pria- fiope, holding with the Left, which is over Aumus King of Troy, who was courted by Apollo for right the Waggoner, the Head of Gorgon by the her extraordinary Beauty. This God bestow- Crown, and placing it under the Feet of Androed upon her the Gift of foretelling Things to meda: The Right-hand of Andromeda is over come, in hopes that the would grant him her the Conftellation of Caffiope, and the Left over greatest Favours ; but she not keeping her the Northern Pifees. Caffiope is in the Middle, and Capricorn has the Eagle and Dolphin above it, which are dedicated to them.

CASTALIUS FONS, the Castalian Fountain in Phocis. scituate at the Foot of Mount Parnassus, which the Poets feign'd to be dedicated to Apollo and the Muses, which from thence were furnamed Castalides.

CASTITAS, Chaftity, which the Romans made a Goddess of, and which they represented in the Habit of a Roman Lady, holding a Scepter in her Hand, and having Two white Doves at her Feet.

CASTOR, the Son of Tyndarus, King of The Greeks having divided among them the | Iaconia, and of Ieda the Daughter of Theftim. ing fmitten with the Beauty of Leda, tranfformed himfelf into a Swan to enjoy her Embraces, who growing big with Child, was at the first Pollux and Helena were included of Tupiter's getting; and in the other. Caftor and Clytemnestra of Tindains's: All these Children though gotten by different Fathers, were nevertheleis called from the Name of one of them

Caffor and Poliux were brave and of great Courage, for they cleared the Scats of Pirates, Exmonnon, coming in by Steatth, killed his carried off their Sifter Helena by Force, when the was ravished by Theseus, and they went with whereas Simonides, who wrote their Encominant Falon to the Conquest of the Golden Fleece. Caftor being descended of a Mortal Father was Phedra recites this History more at large in the killed by Lynceus: but Pollux his Brother being descended of Jupiter, was Immortal. They were placed in the Number of the Dit Indigetes, or Genitales, by the Greeks and Romans, because they descended originally from the Country.

Diodorus Siculus relates, that the Argonauts being deftreffed with a great Tempest, Orpheus made a Vow to the Gods of Samothracia, whereupon the Storm immediately ceased, and Two Coeleftial Fires appeared over the Heads of Caftor and Pollux, who were amongst the Argonauts; from whence comes the Cuftom of invoking the Gods of Samothracia in a Tempest, Vatienus. and or giving the Names of Caftor and Poller to those Two Coelestial Fires.

Lucian in the Dialogue of Apollo and Mercury bring in Apollo speaking thus upon the Occasion of these Two Brethren. Apoll. Can you learn upon one Horse and leading another, runs full to know Cajior from Pollux, for I am always de- speed, and at the End of the Race leaps nimbly ceiv'd upon the accont of their Likeness. Merc. He who was Yesterday with us is Castor. Apoll. How can you discern them, they being so like

Merc. Pollux has a Face black and blew by a Blow he received in fighting, and particularly at Bebryx in his Voyage with the Argonauss. led, with which the Ancients used to throw fa-Apol. You'll oblige me to tell me of Things par- velins twelve or fiften Foot long. The Deticularly, for when I see their Eggs-shell, scription of a Catapulta, says M. Perrault in his white Horfe, Spear and Stars, I always confound | Notes upon Vitruvius, is understood by no Body, them together, but tell me why these Two Bro- tho' many great Persons have applied themthers never appear in the Heaven at the same selves to it very carefully, as Justim Lipsim has Time. Merc. Because it being decreed that observed. The Descriptions which Atheneus, theie Two Sons of Leda should one be Mortal, Ammianus Marcellinus, and Vegetius have given and the other Immortal, they divided their of it; the two Figures, which are in the Book good and bad Fortune like good Brethren, and of a nameless Author, entituled, Notitia Im-To live and die by Turns. Apoll. This is a great perii; that which Will. de Choul Tays, he took Impediment to their Love; for, so they can ne- out of an ancient Marble, that which Lipsim ver fee, or discourse one with another. But saw in the Arsenal at Brussels, and those which what Art or Trade do they profes? For every are drawn on Trajan's Pillar do none of them one of us hath his Business: I am a Propher, my agree with the Description of Virtuvius. Cafe Son is a Physician, my Sister a Midwite, and Cijaranus, who is the first who after focundant thou art a Wreftler. Do they do nothing, but drew the Figures of Virtuvius with the greatest eat and drink? Mer. They succour Mariners in Exactness, has not attempted to draw a Cast a Tempest. Apol. That's a necessary Employ- pulsa, but when he had translated and explained ment, provided they perform it well.

carrying on his Victories in Perfia, facrificed one cundus declares, when he gives us his Figure of Day to Caffor and Pollux, instead of Hercules, to it, that he did it not to explain the Text of Viwhom that Day was dedicated by the Macedo- truving because it did not agree with it, and niens; and that while the Feaft lafted after the he owns that he did not understand either his Sacrifice was over, he talked sometimes of the own Figure, nor the Text of Virruvius. great Actions of Cafter and Pollux, and at other | All that we know in general of the Carapula

times of Hercules.

befel Scopes, because he had spoken contemp- finition is not observed by latter Latin Au tibly of these two Brethren Dioferides, being thors, who have always expressed both these crushed to Death by the Fall of his Chamber, Engines by the Word Biliffa. Lucan tells us, was called out of them by two unknown Persons 4th Book of his Fables, Fab. 22. The Greek and Roman History is filled with the miraculous Appearances of these two Brethren, either to obtain a Victory, or publish it when it was gained. for they were feen fighting upon two white Horses at the Battle, which the Romans sought against the Latins near the Lake Regillm.

But Cicero tells how we must credit these Relations: He fays, that Homer, who lived a little after these two Brethren, assures us, that they were buried in Macedonia, and consequently could not come to declare a Victory obtain'd by

The Romans did not omit building them a magnificent Temple, where they facrificed to them white Lambs, and appointed a Feaft to be kept in Honour of them, at which a Man fitting upon the Horse which is in his Hand, having a bright Star upon his Hat, to shew that only one of the Brothers was alive, because, indeed, the Stars of Caftor and Pollux are to be seen above our Horizon, and fometimes not.

CATA PULTA, a Warlike Engine fo cal-Vitruvius as far as that place, he leaves the Arrian fays, that Alexander, while he was Work, and Benedidus Jovius finished it. 30 is this, that they were made to cast favelins, as Cicero relates a wonderful Judgment, which Baliffie were used to cast Stones, tho' this Die

Force, that they would pals thro' feveral Men Jupiter in Greece, and was the Author of Idolaafter another, and would carry them quite try. He began to reign at About 375 Years crois the Danube.

who came from the City Tufulum, from whence the Neighbouring Country by Mount Pernalfus.

was their Original.

M. CATO, the Cenfor, named at first Prifvery learned. He has left us his Books of Hufhandry, which are written in pure Lasin. He died very old.

He reformed divers Abuses which were crept See Harpyie. into the Management of the Revenues of the he flew himfelf in a Fit of Despair, being 48 Years of Age, after he had read Plato's Treatife of the Immortality of the Soul.

Gates of Rome, so called from the Red Dogs, diery, which he ordered as he pleased: He also which were facrificed there to appeale the Heats had a Power to fummon all the People together of the Dog-star.

CATULUS, the Surname of the Ludatian Family, from the Word Casus, crafty and judi- vourites of Jupuer, who faying that that great first of that Family, who conquered the Cartha- Metamorphofes, v. 280. ginians in a Sea-fight, in which they loft 600 of their Ships. There was a Poet of that Name born at Verona, whose Poetry is elegant and foft, but very lewd and fatyrical. He composed some Elegies and Epigrams, which still remain.

fame Family, who was Conful with Marius in brew fignifies a very bard Stone. his fourth Confulfhip, whom he forced to kill his Death upon Marius, Junior.

Bones covered with Fat.

of Abens, which was first called Cecropia from Patricians, viz. Papyrius and Sempronius. Censui that a Catepules cast Javelins with so great a his Name. He was the first that worthinged before the Siege of Troy. The Floud of Deuce-CAT O, the Surname of the Porcian Family, lion happened in his Reign, who was King of This Deluge overflowed only Greece; as that which happened before under Ogyges, did Egypt cus, and after Caso from his excellent Wildom, only. He was the Author of Idolatry in Greece, and strictness of Manners. He executed all the and the first that acknowledged Jupiter for a God, Offices in the Roman Commonwealth with Re- appointing him Sacrifices: He brought up the putation and great Integrity. In fine, he was Cuttom of burying the Dead, as Cicero observes in his 2d Book de Legibus.

CELENO, one of the Seven Pleiades, the Daughter of Atlas, and the Nymph Pleione. CATO UTICENSIS. Caro of Utica, She was also one of the Harpyes, the Daughter and Nephew's Son of Cato the Cenfor, lived a of Jupiter and Terra, of whom Virgil has given very frict and severe Life like his Great Uncle. us a Description in the 3d Book of his Ancids.

CELERES, were 200 young Men, whom Commonwealth, and the Military Discipline. He Romulus chose to attend his Person, that they refused at first to join with Pompey, but at length might be at hand always to defend him, and united with him against Cajar. After the Battel execute his Commands. He called them Ceof Phar falls, were Pompey was defeated, he fled leres, i. e. ready and active. This Body of Men to Utica, which was in King Juba's Dominion, guarded him in all Commotions of the People, but not being able to bear his great Misfortunes, and made him able at all times to oppole any Attempts of his Enemies.

The Captain of this Guard was called Tribunus Celerum, and he was the second Officer of CATULARÍA, the Name of one of the State, for he had the Command of all the Sol-into the Campus Martius.

CELMIS, or CELMES, one of the Fa-God was a Mortal Man, was changed by him in-O. LUCTATIUS CATULUS, was the to a Diamoud, as Ovid tells us in his 4th Book of > Te quoque, nunc Adamas, quondam fidiffime parvo Celme four.

There was another of that Name, and of the This Word comes from Chalamis, which in He-

CENSOR, a Roman Magistrate, which himself by eating live Coals. Sylla revenged numbred the People of Rome, and who was the Correcter of their Manners. The Occasion of CAUCASUS, a Mountain in the Nor- making this Officer in the Commonwealth of thern Parts of the Indies, near the Calpian Ports, Rome was this: The Confuls feeing themselves where Jupiter bound Prometheus, according to wholly taken up with Affairs of State, and not the Fable, to punish him for making Man, and being able to attend so many different ausmesses, imposing upon him at a feast, by giving him the Senate to ease them propounded to make Centors in the Year after the Building of Rome CEBUS, a certain Monster which had the 311, in the Consulship of M. Geganius Macrinus, Face of a Satyr, and the Body of a Dog and and T. Quintius Capitolinus, whose chief Office it should be to take an exact View of the Peo-CECROPS, the first King of Athens, who ple of Rome, and value the Estate of every Cilived in the Times of Mojes. He built the City tizen. First they created Two Censors of the agendo populus suffragiis prafecis Censores; abs re their Collegue happened to die, or would refign appellati. &c. Liv.

and were chosen by the great Council called bunes imprisoned the latter, and no Body would Comitia Centuriata, as the Confuls were, Cen- follow the Example of the former. fores quinto quoque anno creari folabant, says Afconius Pedianus.

the Confuls at laft, and the Dictator Mamereus flood by Mars's Altar, and thanked the People Emilius shortened it, and brought it to Eighteen for the Honour they had done them. Then Months. The Cenfors hating Mamercus for they went up to the Capitol, were they took thortening their Time, blotted him out of his Possession of their Office, and received the En-Tribe, and put him among the Cerites, or those figns of it. They rook an Oath to do nothing who pay Tribute.

that they should be Noblemen born, but this Equity and Right. continued only 100 Years; for, after the People were allowed to be made Confuls, and other lifted in taking the Number of the Citizens. great Officers, we fee, that Caius Marsius Ru- and their Estates, and the other in reforming silius, who was the first Dictator chosen from Manners, and rectifying Abuses. among the People, was also created Censor with Mantius Navius; and at length the Dictator and Effate of every Person, as also of their Q. P. Philo made a Law, by which he ordained, Children and Slaves, being very careful to place that one Cenfor should be chosen out of the levery Citizen in his Tribe or Century accord-People. 'I'is aifo observable in History, that Q. Pompeius, and Q. Metellus were both taken Years, either higher or lower, according as from among the common People.

Before the second Punick War, it was had been any thing but an Adile, was chosen fumed. Cenfor and High-Prieft at the same time, but afterwards they never choic any to that Office lick Sacrifices, and caused confectated Geele to but fuch as had been Confuls.

This Office was never executed more than the State to execute that Office twice.

time of their Office, or would voluntarily re- of a Right of Voting, and making them pay fign it, his Collegue was obliged also to resign Taxes as Strangers. it, althorthere was no Law which commanded it, but a Cuftom established by a Religious were obliged to give an Account of their Acti-Death of his Collegue C. Julius had put M. we read in Livy, that the Tribune Appius Me-Cornelius Meleginenas into his Place, that he sellus imprisoned both the Censors M. Furius Phimight retain his own Office, it happened that lus, and M. Assilius Regulus, because when he Rome was taken by the Gauls, which was impu- was Quæftor in the foregoing Year they had reted to that Action of Papyrius; whereupon all moved him from his Tribe, and made him pay those that succeeded him, lest their Office if Taxes. A Law then was made to oblige them

Tis true, that Appius Claudius Cacus and Ani-They continued in their Office five Years, lius Seaurus would have kept it, but the

When the Cenfors were chosen in the Campus Martius, they immediately seated themselves in This length of Time became a Grievance to their Sella Curules, or Chairs of State, which either for Hatred or Favour in their Places: To attain this Dignity, it was at first required, but in all things to follow exactly the Rules of

Their Office had two Parts: The first con-

They kept an exact Register of the Name ing to his Effate, removing them every five their Effate was increased or lessened.

They punished a fingle Life with heavy Fines. not necessary to have executed any great Office chiefly fince the Law of Furius Camillus, who before to be a Cenfor, because we learn from forbad it, that the City of Rome might be a-Livy, that Publius Licinius Craffus, who never gain peopled, which the Civil Wass had con-

> They also regulated the Expences of the pubbe kept in the Capitol.

The other part of their Office was to reform once by the same Person, and we read in Vale- Manners, populi mores regunto; and to that end rius Maximus, that M. Ratilius being made Cen- they took a View of the three Degrees of Men, for a fecond time, reproved the People sharply which made up the Commonwealth, viz. Senafor having fo little Respect to the Laws of their tors, Knights and People. They nad a Power Ancestors, who had thought it convenient to to put those out of the Number of the Senators shorten the Time of that Office, because it whom they judged unworthy thro' their corrupt made them too powerful, and fo they acted Manners, and place others in their room. They contrary to them, in choosing a Man a second could take their Horses from the Knights, and deprive them of their Pay, which they received Plinius Junior, did the same in refusing it, from the Treasury, when they fived not like because he judged it not for the Advantage of Persons of Honour. They could remove the Citizens from their Tribe, by turning them If any of the Cenfors happened to die in the down from an higher to a lower, depriving them

Altho' their Power was very large, yet they Scruple: For when Incins Papirius, after the ons to the Tribunes, and the great Adiles; and to give their Reasons, why they had degraded a lequum; but if on the Contrary he had any thing riving him of his Priviledges.

But this Office decreased in its Power with the Declention of the Commonwealth. Under City of Rome, but also of other free Cities, which the Emperors it was wholly laid aide, because had a Right to the Roman Freedom, whose they assumed to themselves all those Functions: for Suctionius relates, that Augustus took a View any thing to object against their Manners, they of the People with I en Men, which he required deposed them, deprived them of their Right of the Senate, which was practifed by the other of Voting, and made them subject to Taxes, Emperors as far down as Theodofius, who endea- erarios fieri & in Ceritum tabulas referri, (bevoired to restore it, but the Senate opposed cause the Inhabitants of that little City Cares him, and from that time the Cenforship was in- gained indeed the Title of the Roman Citizens, fenarably annexed to the Imperial Power.

CENSURA. The Conforship, the Office or Dignity of Cenfor. We may judge how was appointed upon a certain Day in the Camconfiderable this Dignity was at Rome by Plu- pas Martius to be present at the Sacrifice of Lusarch's Words, in the Life of Marcus Caro, 'That he demanded the Centorship ten Years after he had been Conful, as the Perfection of Honour, the Appointment of Servius, and offered a Saand the highest Degree to which a Roman Citizen could be preferred, because this nigh Sta- ficed a Boar, a Sheep and a Bull, to implore tion was the Crown of all Offices, and of all the Authority which could be had in the Go- had made, and that they would preferve the 'vernment of their Commonwealth.

CENSUS, the general Survey of the People of Rome, which was performed every five Years firam conditum, i. e. the Survey finished. by the Cenfors. King Servius appointed this Survey, and he was the first that caused the People to be numbred, that he might know exactly how many fighting Men he was able to a fabulous Monster feigned by the Poets, who raife, and what Suins of Money he could raife have applied that Shape to those who invented

Every Citizen of Rome, or he that had the Right of Freedom, was obliged to give a true Account of all his Estate, Children, Slaves and Freemen, upon pain of having their Goods confiscated, which he concealed.

The Cenfors on their part were obliged to keep a perfect Register of all these Matters. and to be very careful that no Stranger should pungo, and raves, taurus. be regiltred unawares, Ne quis in cenforias tabulas irreperes.

This Survey was made every five Years thro' all the Orders of the Commonwealth, viz. the Senates, Knights and People. The first was Ledio & recitatio Senatus: the second. Censio. recensio & recognitio; and the third, Census, or Lustrum. For the Censor being set in his Chair of State commanded the Purilvant to call over the Senators by their Names, legebant or recitabant Senatum. They rased out of the Lift the Names of those whom they intended to depose for their ill Manners, and put others in their Place taken out of the Knights, which they expressed by these Words, legere in Senatum.

Then they took a Survey of the Knights, whom they called over one by one, and if they had nothing to object against their Behaviour. the Cenfor said to every one, prateri & tradus

Citizen, and branded him with Difgrace, by de- to blame him for, they took away his Horse and his Pay. Equus adimebatur. After this they went on to jurvey the People, not only of the Names were fent to the Cenfors: If they had but had not obtained a Right to vote.)

The Survey being thus ended, an Affembly ftration. The People came in Armies and were divided into Classes or Centuries, according to crince called Suovetaurilia, because they facrithe Gods to be pleafed with the Survey they Commonwealth in its Splendor and Honour. And with this Ceremony the Survey ended, Lu-

CENTAURUS, a Centaur, half a Man and half an Horse, which had its Female Centaur, half a Woman and half a Mars. This is Riding, or the Art of Horsemanship, so when it's faid, that Chiron the Centaur was the Mafter of Achilles, no more is meant but that he was the Man who taught him to ride an Horfe: and the Fight of the Centaurs is a Battle of Horlemen. The Word comes from the Greek xirtaup . which is compounded of xertin

Lucian describes the Picture of a Centaur drawn by Zeuxes, of which he affirms, that he faw a Copy at Arbens, the Original having been carried away by Sylla.

' It is a Female Centaur lying upon the Grass, of which, the Part like a Beaft is firetched out on the Ground, and that like a . Woman is half raifed and supported by her Elbow. She lays her Hind-feet at length, and folds up her Fore-feet, bending the one and leaning on the Ground with the other, as Horses do when they are about to rise. She inclines a little to one Side that the may let her young Ones fuck, of which the holds one in her Arms which the fuckles with the Breaft of a Woman, and the other hangs upon those which she has like a Mare. Upon the Top of the Picture flands an He-Centaur, as Centinel, who appears but half, and thew them a Lyon's

"Whelp which he has taken. Although he leems ! felves in hunting on Horfe-back, but chiefly in terrible Head of Hair, besides that, he is all hairv, but his Wife is as lovely as he is favage. and hath one half of her Body like the fine Mares of Theffaly, which were never yet tamed, and the other half like the finest Woman in the "World, fave that her Ears are ftraight and Father, and the other more tame and humane.

were ever any Centaurs, nor Hippocentaurs, nor Onocensaurs, that is to fay, half'a Man and half an Ass. Lucian also is of the same Opinion, otherwise, that Ixion, King of Theffalr, being but speaks more plainly than Lucretius, when he fays, Et populum Pholoe mentita biformem.

For 'tis certain, that it is a Lye or Fable that there were ever any fuch monftrous People.

and of their Battles, is but a Fable built either | felves to fight these Bulls, and did it with so upon the Idea of some such Monster, or upon fome new Invention of Fighting on Horse-back, in which these People did excel all others.

Plutarch fays in his Banquet of the Seven Wife-men, that a Shepherd brought them in a Basket, a Child which a Mare had brought forth, having the upper Parts of the Body like a Man and the lower like an Horse.

Pliny also affirms the same Things, and says, that he himfelf had feen an Hippocentaur, Which was brought from Epppe to Rome, embalmed efter the manner of those Times with Honey. Phlegon the Trallian relates the same Story, and Tacirus seems to allude to it, when he says, that the Birth of some Monsters did foreshew the Death of the Emperor Claudius.

St. Ferom gives us a Description of an Hippocentaur which St. Anthony met in the Delirt, when he went to feek for Paul the Hermite. The same St. Ferom writing against Vigilantius, begins his Discourse with a Diffinction of Two forts of Monsters, of which the one was really produced, and the other feigned by the Poets, and puts the Centaws among the Creatures that were true, but monftrous.

The Truth is, that the People of Theffaly called Centaurs, were either the first or the most expert at taming Horses, or fighting on Horseback, which is the Reason that they bare the Name of Hippocentaurs. Their King named Centaurus was the Brotner of Piritbous the famous Friend of Thefeus, and fought with the Lapitha which were commanded by Polypases the Son of Pirithons at the Seige of Troy. In Times of Peace these People exercised them-to smile, yet he has a fierce Aspect, and a cafting Bulls upon the Ground by taking them by the Horns.

Fulius Cafar was the first that introuced this fort or Hunting into Rome in the Shews, as Pling teftifies, and was imitated in it by Nero, as we learn from Suctonius.

Lucian tells us also, that Ixion, King " sharp, as a Satyr is painted. Of her Two of Thessaly, whom Jupiter invited to a Feast of young Ones, one is favage and hairy like the the Gods, because he was a very brave Man and good Company, fell in Love with June and that Fupiter to deceive him formed a Cloud Incretius would never believe that there into the Shape of Juno to gratifie his Paffion in some measure, and by these Embraces a Centaur was produced. But Palepharus tells the Thing one Day upon Mount Pelion, faw feveral mad Bulls which he durft not come near, and which made a Destruction in the Country round about: he promised a great Reward to him that could drive away these mad Creatures, and immediately some young Men of a little Village, in the Mountain called Nepbele, i. e. 4 What Ovid speaks of the Nation of Centaurs, Cloud, getting upon their Horses, offered themgreat Success that they killed them all, and from this Victory they were call'd Centaurs, from REPTET and Tave , as much as to fay, Bullfighting. Haar Treezes is of Opinion, that this Jupiter who loved Ixim was a King, who had a Wife of very great Beauty, with whom Ixion fell paffionately in Love, and the discovering Ixion's Kindness to her Husband, he put one of her Chamber-maids named Nepbele, or a Cloud in her Place, by whom he had a Son named Imbrus and furnamed Censurus, of xsv Two and aveas that is to lay, pricking a Slave.

'Mr. Abbot Feuretiere relates this Story otherwife: 'A King of Theffaly, fays he, having fent some Horse-men to seek his Bulls, that were gone aftray, they that faw them on Horse-back (it being a Thing new and extraordinary at that Time) thought them to be made up of a double Nature, a Man and an Horse, which was the Original of the Fable of the Centaurs and Hippocentaurs.

CENTENARIA COENA, a Feaft wherein the whole Expences could be no more than an Hundred Ales, which was a Piece of Roman Money. See As.

CENTESIMA USURA, The Humdredth Penny, One per Cent.

CENTONARII; it was a Military Trade, and they were fuch as provided Tents and other Equipage for War, called by the Remans Centones, or else those whose Bufiness it was to quench the Fires which the Enemies Engines kindled in the Camp. Vigetius in his Fourth Book speaking of an Engine used in the Camp to make a close Gallery or Fortification, Men, with different Arms, and Liveries fays, that for fear it should be set on Fire, they covered it on the Out-fide with raw or fresh Hides or Centones, i. e. certain old Stuffs fit to or Companies, of which 40 were appointed to refift Fire and Arrows: For Julius Cafar in the Third Book of his Commentaries of the Civil War, fays, that the Soldiers used these Centones to defend themselves from their Enemies Darts The Colleges of the Centonarii were often joined with the Dendropbori, and the Mafters of the Timber-works, and the other Engines of War, called Fabri, as may be feen by an Infcription of a Decurion of that College.

AUR. QUINTIANUS DEC. COLL. FAB. & CENT.

That is to fay, Aurelius Quintianus. Decurion of the College at the Mafters of the Engines and Centonaries.

CENTUM, a Numeral Word, a square This is the Number which begins the Third Column of the Arabian Characters fet in an Arithmetical Order, 100.

CENTUM-VIRI, may be called the Cours of 100 Judges, which were Reman Magiftrates chosen to decide the Differences among the People, to which the Prætor sent them as to the highest Court made up of the most learned Men in the Laws. They were elected out of 35 Tribes of the People, Three out of state. each, which makes up the Number of 105, and although at length the Number was increafed to 180, yet they still kept the Name always of the Court of 100 ludges, and their Induments were called Centumviralia Audicia. These Magistrates continued a long time in the Commonwealth, as also under the Emperors Vespasian, Domitian and Trajan: Under the laft of these they were divided into Four Chambers each having 45 Judges.

CENTURIA, a Censury, a Part of a Thing divided or ranked by Hundreds. The People of Rome were at first divided into Three Tribes, and these Tribes into 30 Curia, but Servius Tullius contrived the Institution of a Cense, i. e. a numbering of the Citizens of Rome with an Account of their Age, Children, Slaves and Estates, as also in what Part of the City they dwelt, and the Trade they followed.

The first Cense was made in the Campus Martius, where were numbred $0000 Men able to bear Arms, as Livy tells us, and Fabius Pillor, ing to Dionyhus Halicarnaffaus,

This Roll coming into the Hands of Servius, he divided all his People into Six Classes, each containing feveral Centuries, or Hundreds of cording to the Proportion of their Effates.

The first Class was made up of 80 Centuries guard the City confifting of Men of 45 Years and upwards, and the other 40 were of young Men from 16 to 45 Years old, who bore Arms. Their Arms were all alike, viz. the Head-piece, the Back and Breaft-plates, a Buckler, a Javelin, a Lance and a Sword. These were called Claffici in the Army, and were more honourable than those which were said to be infra Classem, as we learn from Aulus Gellius. They were to have 100000 As's in Estate, which make about 1000 Crowns of French Money. Alconius Pedianus makes their Estate to amount to 2500 Crowns.

The Second. Third and Fourth Class were made up each of them of 20 Centuries, of which Ten were more aged Men, and Ten of the younger fort: Their Arms were different from Number made up of Ten multiplied by it telf. the first Classis, for they carried a large Target inftead of a Buckler, a Pike and Javelin. The Estate of those of the Second Class was to be 700 Crowns a Year, of the Third 500, and of the Fourth 200.

The Fifth Classis contained 30 Centuries, which had for their Arms Slings and Stones to throw out of them, and Three of them were Carpenters and other Artificers necessary for an Army. They were to have 125 Crowns E-

The Sixth was a Century made up of the Rabble or fuch as were exempted from Service in War and all Charges of the Republick: They were called Proletarii, because they were of noother use to the Republick but to stock it with Children: They were also named Capite Cenfi. because they gave their Names only to the CENTURIATA COMITIA. Those Comitie or Affemblies of the People of Rome by Centuries, where every one gave his Vote in his Century.

These forts of Assemblies were first instituted. by Servius Tulius, who divided, as is above faid, the People into Six Classes and each Classis into Centuries.

These Assemblies had a great Share in ordering of all State Affairs, for they were fummoned together to make great Officers, to approve any new Law, to proclaim War against any People, and to implead any Citizen of Rome after his Death.

They also chose the Consuls, Prætors, Cenan ancient Historian tell us, or $4700, accord- fors, and sometimes the Proconsuls and Chief

> Livy tells us, that P. Cornelius Scipio was fent. Proconful into Spain by one of these Atlemblies.

t belonged to the Confuls only to summon Heavens, which is expressed by these Latin them together by the Authority of the Senate. Words, Jubebat fibi in auspicio ese. After he had who allowed or forbad them as they pleafed, far fometime looking round about him to fee and the Dictator and Chief Priest had no Power I what appeared in the Air, the Conful spoke to to do it in the Absence of the Consuls but only by Commission.

These Assemblies were held without the City of Rome in the Campus Marsius, and one Part of Iwered, Silensium ese videsur; nothing hinders the People were armed during their Meeting it, but if the contrary happened, obnuntiabat, for fear of any sudden Invasion, and a Standard he said, that the Signs did not approve of that was fet up on the Capitol which was not taken Affembly. down till they had ended.

When the Senate had ordered this Assembly, the Confus appointed it to meet after Three free Fairs or Markets, which made 27 Days, that fuch as had any Right of Voting might have sufficient Notice: This they called edicere nor de calo servaffe velit.

When any Law was to be approved in these to make one, shewing them the Necessity and Advantage of the Law, which they termed Conprobation of the Law, it was hung up in Publick | the Votes given according to the Laws. Three Market days, the Preamble of it being in these Words, quad bonum, faustum, felixque Reipublice, populo, liberifque corum effet: And thus the Laws of the Twelve Tables were propounded.

Market-days, he that proposed it, either himfelf or by some able Orator distinctly explained fell was called the Prerogative Tribe, because all the Circumftances and Advantages of it. This Action was called promulgatio legis per trinundinum; and discovers to us the Difference observed till the Year DCXV, when Gabinius between these Two Latin Expressions, proponere the Tribune of the People made a Law, that -legem, which is to fet up, and promulgare legem, they should for the Future do it by Balots or to explain it viva voce, as also between these two Tickets; this Law was called lex Tabellaria. Phrases, Lator legis, and Autor legis; the first The People much liked this Change, for bewas he that barely propounded the Law, and fore they could not give their Votes freely, the other was he that perswaded the People to left they should incur the Displeasure of their accept it, after he had proved the Benefit, and Great Men whom they were afraid to disoblige. Diefulnels of it to them.

Affembly being come, the Conful went early in gir, datque eam libertatem, ut quod velint faciant; the Morning into the Capitol, or some other and in his second Book of the Agrarian Law. bigh Place, being attended with the Augur, he calls this way of Voting, vindex libertatis & whom he ordered to observe the Signs of the principium justiffima libertuis. Yet, even this him in these Words, Dicito fi filentium effe videtur: Tell me whither there be nothing that prevents this Assembly : to whom the Augur an-

This first Ceremony being finished, this Magistrate set up his Pavilion, or Tent in the Campus Marting, where he made a Speech to the People to exhort them to respect the Good of the Commonwealth only, and to do nothing thro' Humour or Interest in the Matters that should be propocomitia in trinundinum. This Appointment was fed to them, and then fent them every one to published by Bills fet up in all the great Towns, their own Century to give their Votes, Secediti or in the great Streets of Rome on the Three in censurias vestras, & de iis deliberate. Then Market days next following: In them the Mat- the Centuries separated themselves one from ters to be treated of were let down and the lef- another, and gave their Votes viva voce, till the fer Officers were forbidden in the Conclusion of Year DCXV, after the Building of Rome, when them to make any Prefages upon the Day of Balots or Tickets were commanded, which they their Meeting: In edito Confulum, quo edicunt | put into an Earthen Pot or Urn, made for that quis dies comitiis Centuriatis futurus fit, fic scri- purpose. Every Century had its President, bisur ex veters formula; Ne quis Magiffrasus mi- named Rogasor, who gathered their Votes. After they had confulted a while, the Conful called the first Classis to give in their Votes. If they Affemblies, this was the Order observed; He were all of a Judgment, he called none of the that propounded it, who was called Rogator legis, other Classes, because the first had a greater made a Speech to the People, or caused another Number of Men than all the reft, and so their Voices carried it: But if their Votes were divided, he called the second Classis, and all the rest cione declarare; if the People declared their Ap- in their Order, till he had the tull Number of

The Advantage which the first Classis had above the other was often the Caufe of Tumults. because they could not endure that their Votes should be at any time ineffectual. To prevent which they contrived this expedient: They made While it hung thus in Publick for Three all the Classes to draw Lots who should be accounted first, and that upon which the Lot their Judgment was first had in all Matters.

. This way of giving their Votes was frictly Grata est tabella, says Cicero in his Defence of The Day appointed for the Meeting of the Plancus, qua frontem operit, bominum mentes tetiret, tabella vitiofum occultaret juffratium.

then-pot the Prerogative Classis, he order- Horns. ed the Herald to pronounce it with a loud! Voice, and then they went into an inclosed Piece of Ground, over very narrow Bridges, and as they entered, certain Persons called Diribitores, Pluro's Palace in Hell, and suppose him to be gave each of them Two Tickets, which they produced from the Giant Typho and Echidna. out into the Urn or Earthen pot fet on the He was bound in Chains by Hercules, and farther Side for that end.

This done, the Conful numbered the Votes. and declared the Officer chosen in these Words. Quod bonum fauflum, fortunatumq; fit mibi, Magi- with his Robberies and Murders, and forcing all stratuique meo, populo, plebique Rom. talem Confulem, aut Pratorem renuntio. I publish, that I them when he had conquered them. Thefeus fuch an one is chosen Conful or Prætor by Plurality of Voices.

Notwithstanding, all these wife Cautions, as had Interest, and would have a Law rejefted or a Person condemned, contrived, that no Ticket should be given to absolve a Man or Rices of bona Dea.

Sixty in a Legion.

at it and killed his Wife Procru.

water and laying it in the Sun upon the Grafs Mount Ida. in the Spring time, that it might be often moistened with the Dew, forwant of which it must citi Mylta, because they might not discover their be continually iprinkled with Water. All this Religious Rites. The Sacrifice offered to her was done to refine the Wax, by driving out was without Wine, as we learn from Plautus in the Honey which was mingled with it and made his Aulularia Act 11. Scen. VI. it vellow.

fed with Walls, which was used to walk in. in aliasum eft. it were the Tombs of thole famous Men who died in Defence of their Country, and many Statues erected in Memory of them with Inferiptions, which published their great Actions, and the Praises they deferred for them.

anciently inhabited by a very cruel People, binus is much perplexed with these Two Author had its Inconveniences, as Cicero himfelf owns Which Venus changed into Bulls, as Ovid fave in his third Book of Laws : Non fuit latebra dands in bit Tenth Book of his Metamorphofis. Ceraftis populo, in qua bonis ignorantibus, quid quijque fen- lignihes in Greek, bearing Horns, and this Ille was so called from the great Number of Moun-When the Conful had taken out of the Ear- tains in it, whose Tops something resembled > CERBERUS, Pluto's Dog, who had Three Heads and as many Necks. The Poets feign him to be the Keeper of the Gate of brought out of Hell, as Homer fays.

> CERCYON, the Arcadian, a famous Robber, who infested all the Country of Attica Travellers to fight with him, and then killed flew him in the City Eleusina. Ovid Lib. 7. Metamorph.

CEREALIA, & CEREALES LUfoul cealings could not be prevented, for such DI, Fealts and Plays appointed in Honour of Ceres. Memmius Adilu Curulu was the fickt Inftitutor of these Feasts, as appears on a Medal on which is the Effigies of Ceres holding in receive a Law, as it fell out in the Cale one Hand Three Ears of Corn, and in the oof Clodius, who had prophaned the Religious ther a Torch, and having her Left-Foot upon a Serpent with this Inscription, Memmin JE. CENTURIO, a Consurion, a Roman Of- dilis Cerealia prairies fecis. The Athenians long ficer which commanded an Hundred Soldiers; before had kept a Feast to her, which they calthere we e Six Centurions in one Cobors and led The mophoria & Eleufis, upon this Occasion. Ceres fearthing all Places for her Daughter Pro-CEPHALUS, the Son of Acolus, and ferpina, came to Eleufina, where she undertook Husband of Procris, the Daughter of Erichtheus to be the Nurse of Triptolemus, the Son of King King of Atbens. He was carried away by Au- Elufius, and when he was grown up the taught rora who was fallen in Love with him: She him the Art of fowing Corn and making Bread. could not perswade him to a Compliance, yet In Requital for so great a Benefit he appointed Process was very jealous of him, and contriving her a Feast, and Priests called Eumolpides from to watch him as he returned from Hunting, the his Son Eumolpus. Crowns of Flowers were not hid herfelf in the Bushes, but Cephalus suppo- used in this Feast, but of Myrtle and Ivy, befing it had been some wild Deer, shot his Dart cause Proserpina was stolen while she was gathering of Flowers; they carried light Torches, CERA PUNICA, white Wax, which was calling Proferpina with a loud Voice, as Ceres whitened by dipping it feveral times in Sea- had done, when the was fearthing for her upon

The Priefts of this Goddess were called Ta-

Staph. Cererine, mi Strobile, bas funt fafture CERAMICUS, a Place in Albens inclo- nuprias? Strob. Qui? Stanh. Quia temeti nibil

> . Sta. Are you celebrating the Marriage of Ceres? Strob. Why ask you that? Stapb. Because you have brought no Wine.

Yet Cato feems to affirm the Contrary, and will have Wine to be used in the Sacrifices of CERASTIS, the life of Cyprus, it was Ceres: Postea Cereri exta & vinum dato. Lam-felf, flies to the Diftinction of the Greeks and Romans, and fays, that the Greek Women facrificed without Wine, but the Romans used it: Yet Plantus, who was a Roman, is against offer Ulages and Ceremonies of Agypt. This Hiing Wine to Ceres. After the Sacrifice was over, they made a magnificent Feaft where every one diverted themselves as far as was convenient, in seeing the Sports of Fencers and Horseraces, over which the Adiles presided. Nevertheless, the Roman Women being cloathed in White, expressed the sorrow and Complaints of Ceres's Mourning for the taking away of her Daughter Proferpina, holding Torches in their Hands.

CERES, the Daughter of Saturn and Rhea. Varro fays, that Ceres was fo named from the Word Geres, because she bore all forts of Fruits; que quod geris fruges, Ceres. Others derive her Name from creare, because she raised Fruits. Vollius thinks, that the Name Ceres comes from the Hebrew Word cheres, that is to fay, arare. In Scripture we meet with the Word Geres to fignifie the Fruits of the Earth, from whence comes the Greek Word yapus, which is one of the Names of the Earth in Helychius. 'Tis probable that from this Hebrew Word Geres and the Greek views, the Name of Ceres is derived.

Ceres is called the Law-giver, legifera, because before Men had the Use of Corn they lived upon Acorns in the Woods without Law or Government; but after Corn was found out, they divided and tilled the Land, which was the Original of Government and Laws, as Servius affures us. Leges Ceres dicitur invenisse, nam & facra ipfins The mophoria, id eft, legum latio vocantur ; Jed boc ideo fingitur, quia ante frumentum inventum a Cerere, paffim bomines fine lege vigabantur: Que feritas interrupta eft, pofiquam ex agrorum discretione nata funt jura.

Ceres was the Mother of Proferpina, and yet both of them are the Earth. Rhea is the Mother of Ceres, and yet neither of them are any thing but the Earth. Truths are real and natural, but Genealogies are poetical and figurative. Some consider the Earth in diverse Respetts, and will have Rhea to be the Globe of the Earth Ceres the Surface, which is fown and reaped and Proferpina is the Hemisphere of our Antipodes. This is the Opinion of Vollius.

Diodorus Siculus relates, that the Ægyptians from Tradition believe, that Is is the same with Ceres who found out Tillage and the Uie of Corn, and published most just Laws, from whence the became an Egyptian Goddels: But because he could not quite conceal the Truth he owns that it was Ereditheus, who failed out of Aggr into Greece with a great Quantity of every Year in Argos, and the leffer once in rities opposite one to the other, and to free him | Corn to relieve it in a Time of Famine, and the Grecians in Requital of so great a Benefit made him their King, and he appointed the Rites of eres at Aibens, according to the ftorian fays also in the same Place, that the coming of Ceres to Athens was nothing but the Transportation of Corn from Agypt into Greece: Deam illo tempore in Atticam veniffe traditur, quo fruges ejus nomine infignes Atbenu funt importata, quarum femina tum Cereris beneficio quafi denuo reperta videantur. There is the fame Reason to believe, that the Wandering of Ceres through all the World, was nothing else but the Transportation and Giving of Corn to all the World, either the first time when it was first sown, or in Process of time when Famine had made the Land barren. For if there were some Places which imparted their Corn to other Countries, and by Consequence were affirmed in a Poetick Stile to be the Country of Ceres, they were without doubt Ægypt and Sicily, but chiefly Agypt, because of the Overflowing of the Nile. The true History thereof is this, that Iss, Queen of Agret is the same with Ceres, and that she communicated Corn and the Art of Tillage to other Parts of the Earth. Finally, in Confirmation of what has been faid, the same Author adds, that the Ceremonies and Antiquites of the Agyptians are alike. I pass over other Places in the same Author where he endeavours to answer the Reasons which Sicily, Artica and the Isle of Crese and Agypt had produced to challenge to themselves the Giory of having been the Places of the Birth-place of Ceres, which was the Inventor of Corn. Herodorus confesses, that the Rites of Ceres, whom he calls the Law-giver, were brought out of Agypt into Greece.

CER

The Cities of Greece, as Paufanias says, but chiefly Athens and Argos disputed together, as the Agyptians and Phrygians did, about the Beginning and Antiquity of the Rites of Ceres and the Gift of Corn. He tells us, that the Mysteries of Ceres and Isis were so secret, that it was not permitted to any to fee her Statue except her Priests, and he adds elsewhere, that it was not allowed to any who were not admitted to those Religious Rites to inquire into them, much less to be present and Spectators at them. He speaks also of another Temple of Ceres, into which only Women might enter, affuring us, that the Mysteries and Sacrifices of Ceres Eleufina were the most facred that Greece had. Some distinguish the great Mysteries, which they call TEXES from the leffer, which theycall mornera. The great Ones were observ'd Five Years at Eleufis, the former in the Spring | Chariot drawn with Two flying Dragons. and the latter in Autumn, as if they had a Refpect to the Approaches or Departure of the the City Care, who entertain'd the Vertal Vir-Sun. The lefter lafted Nine Days, and after it | gins when they fled from Rome in the Invafion they celebrated feveral forts of Combats.

was honoured, as she was at Rome and in other of Rome to these People, yet without any Li-Parts of the World, where she had a Statue cense to vote in their Assemblies or to execute which no Man ever knew more of than if there never had been any; Men never went into her hence arises the Proverb, In Certsum tabulas Temple, but only Women and those Virgins referre alighem, to deprive a Citizen of his Right who performed all the Offices of Briefts. Sacrarium Cereris est apud Casanenses eadem religione qua Roma, qua in cateris locis, qua prope in toto orbe terrarum. In eo facrario intimo fuit fignum Cereris per-antiquum, quod viri non folum sujufmodi effer, fed ne effe quidem feiebant. Aditus enim in il facrarium non eft viris : facra per mulieres & vingines confici folem.

If we will find out the Original of the Myfteries of Ceres Eleusina, we must remember that the Invention of Plowing is attributed by burnt with an Iron Spit, which is ftill done in some to Ceres, who taught it Triptolemus, by others to Jacobus. For the great Mystery of Bacchus instituted by Isis or Ceres, who came gures, are made black to represent the Shadows. in after times out of Agnt into Greece, was This Author is yet of Opinion, that we might the Worship of a Phallus, or the Privy-member still retain the Word Ceroftrata, because for of ofiris, which could not be found by Isis after the more easie burning of the Wood, it is rub-Trebon had put him to Death, and to which Ceres or Ifis gave those infamous Honours.

St. Augustine in his Seventh Book de Civitate Dei, spears thus of Ceres: ' Amongst the Myfteries of Ceres, the most famous are those of · Ceres Eleusina, which the Athenians celebrated with much Pomp.

All that Varro fays respects the Invention of Corn, which he attributes to her, and the Stealing of Proferpina by Plute, fignifies only the Fruitfulnels of the Earth. This Fruitfulnels, adds he, failing for some time, and the Earth becoming barren, gave Occasion to this Opinion, that Pluto had ftolen the Daughter of Ceres and kept her in Hell, i. e. Fruitiulness it felt; but after this Calamity, which had caused publick Grief, when Fruitfulness returned, Pluto was thought to reftore Proferpina, and fo publick Feafts were appointed to Ceres.

We have feveral Medals upon which Ceres is represented to us. That of Memmius Edilis Curulis thews her to us fitting, holding Three CERTES, a People of Italy, inhabiting of the Gauls. The Romans acknowledged this Cicero tells us, that at Catanea in Sicily Ceres | Benefit, and granted the Freedom of the City any Office in their Commonwealth, and from of Voting.

CEROMA, a Mixture of Oyl and Wax. a Sear-cloth, with which the Wreftlers rubbed themselves. It not only made their Limbs more fleek and less capable of being laid hold of, but more pliable and fit for Exercise.

CÉROSTROTA, In laying: Salmasius thinks it should be read Cestrota, as coming from the Greek Word Kiorpa, which fignifies an Iron-Spit, because the Divisions in the Wood are our In-laying, when by the Help of Fire the little Pieces of Wood which make up the Fibed with Wax. Philander derives this Word from κέρας, which fignifies an Horn, which is much used in In-laying, being died of several Colours.

CHALCIDICA, Banqueting - bouses; some are very cautious, says Mr. Perrault, to know what this Word fignifies. Philander thinks, that this Greek Word fignifies the Places where Money-matters were decided, or the Office for the Mint, supposing that Word comes from xaxeds, Brafs, and Sixu, Juflice, Some will have it read Causidica, as much as to say, an Hall for pleading. Festus informs us, that Chalcidica was a fort of Building first found out in the City of Chalcu; Arnobus calls Chalcidica the fine Halls, where the Poets feigned, that the Pagan Gods Supped. Barbaro and Baldus think it a proper Name for that fort of Buildings, which Dion fays, was erected by Julius Cafar in Honour of his Father. Palladio follows Barbaro in his Defign, and draws this Building in the Fashion of the Judgment-seat, described by Vivuvius in the Temple of Augujtus, which was joined to the great Church Torch in her Left. Another of C. Volteius re- of Fano. But Aufonius interpreting a Verse prefents her in a Chariot drawn by Two Ser- in Homer, where he speaks of an old Woman pents, having Torches in her Hands, and fet- who went up into an high Place, makes use of ting her loot upon a Sow, which is ordinarily Chalcidicam to express υπερώου, which fignifies offered in Sacrifice to her, because that Beait in Greek an upper Room, Cifaranus and Caporali deftroys the Corn. Her Statue also is carved think alto, that Chaleidica is a Noun Adjective, in the Habit of a Roman Matron with a Crown and lay, that in longitudine Chalcidica implies, of Garlands and Ears of Corn, holding in her that a Palace built in a spacious Place, ought Hand a Crown of Poppies, and riding in a to have the fame Proportion with the great [CC2]

Churches of the City of Chalcis; but the true kept its Name, for so Orphess calls it in Ovid. Confirmation of the Text will not bear that Interpretation. Let us then take the Opinion of M. Perrault upon these Words: 'Being as-'fured by the Testimony of Ausonius, that Chalcidica was a lofty Place, which we call the first Story, I think, that these Chalcidica's were in the Highest Heavens, who raised all these large and lofty Halls, where Juffice was admi-'niffred, erected at the End of their Palaces, even with the Galleries through which they

the I leaders walked.

the greater Asia, who above all others practi- which according to Moles, animated the Wafed the Art of Aftrology. The Prophet Datters of the Chaos and covered them in some niel was instructed by them. They worshipped the lire. The fews likewise affirm, as ferom fays, that these Words of Scripture, which say, that Abraham came out of J'r of the Chaldees fhew, that he was miraculously delivered out of the Fire, into which the Chaldeans had cast him because he resused to adore it. 'Tis credible that these Chaldeans did worship the Sun and Stars, which they looked upon as Eternal Fires, and that in keeping a perpetual Fire burning upon their Altars, they defired to keep and preferve a Resemblance of them continually betore their Eyes.

CHAOS, Confusion, a Mixture of all the Elements, which the Poets feign was from all Eternity, before the Stars were placed in that Order in the which they now appear.

Manilius confesses, that Hesiod makes the World to be produced out of this Chaos in his Theogonia, where after he has pray'd the Muses He then observes, that it was God who gave to teach him what was the Original and Be-Night came out of the Chaos, and the Heaven and Day sprung out of the Bosom of Night. fused, yet it is no hard thing to find that it is actly follows this Order in God's Works, as a counterfeit Description of that of Moses in they were all performed in the Six Days. Genefis. The Chaos which was a confused Heap Laftly, He describes the Creation of Man as of all Things, was before all other Beings in the chief Piece of his Workmanship, in whom their proper and diffinct Nature. The Holy he put some Rays of his Holineis. Divinity. Spirit which rested upon the Chaos, was that Dominion and Sinctity, yea, his own Image, Love which Hefiod mentions. The Darkness that is to say, an Understanding penetrating covered the Chaos, and this is what the Poet into Heavenly Truths and Eternal Love. calls Erebus and the Night, for the Greek Word Eps39 comes from the Hebrew Harab. which fignifies Darkness. The Day as well as the Heaven proceeded from the Chaos or the Earth, because the Stars were really in the Chaos, as were also the Heaven and Firmament before God took them out of it. Hell alto itself role out of the Chaos, and

Per chaos boc ingens, vastique silentia regni.

Oppian affures us, that it was fupiter, that dwells Bodies and all the Parts of this vaft Universe out of the confused Chaos, Zeu µaxap is N σε πάντα, κ' έκ σέθεν έρρίζονται, Jupiter beate, went out of one Room into another, and where in te omnia, & ex te orta funt. We may explain that of Love, which Oppian speaks of CHALD & I, the Chaldeans, a People of the Agreement of second Causes. The Spirit, measure, according to the Hebrew Text, to make them fruitful, may be accounted for Love.

Diodorus Siculm mixing Fable, Hiftory and Philosophy together, makes the World to proceed from Chaos, as also do Euripides and Plutarch.

ouid among the Latin Poets speaks very distinctly of the Chaos, which was before the Creation of the World.

Ante mare & terras, & qued tegit omnia colum, Unus erat toto natura vultus in orbe, Quem dixere Chaos, rudu indigestaque moles, Nec quidquam nisi pondus iners; congestaque

Non bene juntarum discordia semina rerum.

Order, Dittinction and Light to this dark Chaos. ginning of the Earth, the Gods, Rivers and We may fay, that this Poet follows Mojes closely, Seas, he brings in the Muses answering, that fince he separates first the Heaven and Air Chaos was the first Being, that the Earth fol- from the Earth, makes the Waters to fall into lowed, then Hell and Love; Darkness and the hollow Places of the Earth, out of which he causes Trees and Plants to spring; after this he forms the Stars, produces Fithes, Fowls, and the Beafts of the Earth, and concludes his Six Days Although this Chaos of Hefiod is very con- Work with the Creation of Man, for Ovidex-

> Sandius his Animal, mentisque capacius alta. Deerat adbuc, & quod dominari in catera pollet. Natus bemo eft. Sive bune divino semine fecit Ille opitex rerum, mundi melioru origo, &c.... Finxit in effigiem moderantum cunita Deorum: Pronosue cum ibeltent animalia cætera terram.

Os komini sublime dedit, calumque tueri Juffit, & erectos ad fidera sollere vultus.

conversed, that he gave them Dominion over ly, Out of the Frying-pan into the Fire. all the World, being of a Divine Original aniand governed by his Laws.

Name of Chaos to Hell, nollis aterna chaos, a- Horse Pegasus. The Original of this Fable is versa Superis regna; he shews us, that that Part taken from a Mountain of Lycia of the same of the World still retains the Name of Chaos, Name which casts out Flames, the Top of it as having in it Darkness, and Confusion of all was a Desart where nothing but Lions inha-

COGNATIONIS, The Kinsmens Feast. was marshy, was full of Serpents. So Ovid This Feath was to be kept in the Month of Fe- | tells us, bruary in the Ruftick Calendar, which still remains at Rome upon an ancient Marble, but in Constantine's Time this Feast was called Charistia, which tignifies the fame thing. Valerius Maximus, L. 2. C. 1. N. 8. teaches us what it was: 'Our | And because Bellerophon was the First that dwelt Ancestors, says he, appointed a solemn Feast, which they called Chariftia, in which none met flew the Chimera. Pliny fays, that the Fire of but Kinimen and near Relations, that if there that Mountain was nourished with Water, and were any Difference among them it might be could not be extinguished but with Earth or ended most easily in the Mirth of a Feast, Mud. Some say, that this Monster had Three Convivium etiam solemne majores instituerunt, id- Heads, the one of a Lyon, the second of a que Chariftia apellaverunt, cui prater cognatos & Goat, and the third of a Dragon, because that affines nemo interponebatur; ut fi qua inter necef- Mountain had Three Tops or Three Points, . farios querela effet orta, imer facra menfe & inter which refembled the Shapes of these Creabilaritatem animorum famoribus concordiæ adbibi- tures. tis tolleretur. Ovid also may be consulted about

CHARITES. See Carites.

CHARMIS, a Phytician of Marfeilles, who being ambitious to out-do others, condemned warm Baths, and bathed his fick Patients in cold Water, even in the Winter.

CHARON. See Caron. Poets to feign that Charybdis and Sylla were two a Serpent's Head. terrible Sea Monsters, which swallowed up Ships; Strabo says, it was a Mountain of Lycia which and changed into that Gulph, which is scituated the Foot Serpents. in one of the Streights, upon the Coasts of | Plutarch will have it to be the Name of an

of them, for Scylla comes from Secol, which tig- the Middle, whom Bellerophon conquered. nifies exitium, and Charybdis comes from chor abdem, i. e. foramen perditionis.

Strabo gives the Name of Charybdis to a Place in Syria, between Apamas and Antioch, where Metam. 1. the Orontes finks into the Ground, and runs 40 Stadia, before it rifes again. These Words, In-These Verses clearly express that the History cidit in Scyllam cupiens viture Charybdin, are beof Genesis teaches, that Man was created an come a Proverb, to express, To fall from a less holy and religious Creature, with whom God into a greater Mischief; or as we speak common-

CHIMERA, a fabulous Monster, which mated by his Spirit, honoured with his Image, has, as the Poets feign, the Head of a Lion, the Belly of a Goat, and Tail of a Serpent, which, When Seneca in common Speech gives the they fay, Bellerophon subdued riding upon the bited, the Middle had good Pastures, which CHARISTIA, or DIES CHARÆ fed Plenty of Goats, and the Foot of it, which upon that Mountain, 'twas feigned, that he

> — Mediis in partibus bircum, Pellus & ora lea, caudamque serpentis babebat.

Hefiod in describing a . Chimars, says, that this Monster had the Parts of Three Creatures, a Lion, a Goat, and a Dragon, Ante leo, retroque draco, medióque capella.

This Monfter was nothing else but a Chiming of . Words, for there were Three Captains which CHARIBDIS, a Gulph in the Sicilian Bellerophon subdued, Agrus, Argalus and Tosibis, Sea near M. fina, now called commonly Galofa- whose Names tignifie these Three forts of ro, into which Ships being driven by Tempetts, Creatures, Ayrus comes from ari, which figniare wrecked by the Rocks that lie hidden under fies a Lion, Arzalus from arzal, which is a kind Water; which has given an occasion to the of Wild goat, and Tosibis is as much as to fay, and that 2 Women having robbed Hercules of his cast out Fires, upon the Top of which there Oxen were firicken with Thunder by Fupiter, were Lions, and in the Middle Goats, and at

Arch-pirate who robbed in a Ship that had The Hebrew Original of these two Names the Figure of a Lion in the Fore-part or Bow, discovers plainly enough, who were the Authors of a Dragon on the Poop, and of a Goat in .

CHI

CHIRON, a Centaur, the Son of Saturn an Arrow by Apollo and Diana, because her and Phillyra. Cato tells us, that Saturn being Mother preferred her felf before Latona. Overy much in Love with that Nymph, was vid, Lib. 6. of bis Metamorphotis. afraid left Rbea his Wife should surprize him 'CHORUS, the Chorus in a Comedy was in the Pursuit of his Amours, and therefore but one Person only, who spoke in the ancient changed himself into an Horse that he might Composures for the Stage; the Poets by Deenjoy her, which was the Cause that Chiron grees added to him another, then Two, afterwho was begotten of her, was born half a Man and half an Horse. Others makes him the Son of Ixion and the Cloud he embraced instead of Chorus, and were only so many Lestures of Juno. He became an excellent Physician, and Vertue, for as Horace says, they ought to envery skillful in the Knowledge of Simples, courage the Good, reconcile Enemies, pacifie Musick and Military Discipline. Achilles was educated by him, and was made a skillful Wariour, for he fed him only with the Marrow of Lions and Bears, that he might put into him the Strength and Courage of those Creatures, and taught him to ride an Horse and hunt, as Preparatives for War. He learned Phylick of Afculapius and Aftrology of Hercules. Clemens Alexandrinus tells us, that Chiron taught Men to worship the Gods, and sacrifice to them, the Method of administring Justice one to another, and the Form of Oaths.

He was wounded by Hercules with an Arrow dipped in the Blood of Hydra, which fell of the Twelve Signs of the Zodiac, called Sa- her Head. gittarius.

places him in Hell.

drink and Sleep, and the Pleature of Life con- thele Verses of Silius Italicus. fifts in Change. Menip. But how did you bear Death after you had left Life for it? * Chir. Without any Trouble, because there is fuch an Equality among the Dead as I like well, as in a popular State where one is not greater than his Neighbour; and 'tis not material to me whether it be Day or Night, and besides, there is this Advantage here below, that we are not troubled with Hunger or Thirst, or other Inconveniences of Hu-

CHLORIS, a Goddess of Flowers, called

There was another of that Name, the Daugh- he dreffed Vines, and Olive-Trees. ter of Ampbion and Niobe, who was flain with wards Three, and at last more: So that the most ancient Comedies had nothing but the the Enraged, applaud the Juft, and command Frugality, Juftice, Laws, Peace and Fidelity in keeping Secrets; intreat the Gods to debale the Proud, and pity the Miserable.

Ille bonis faveatque, & concilietur amicis, Et regat iratos, & amet pacare timentes. Ille dapes laudet menfæ brevis; ille falubrem Auftitiam, legesque, & apertis otia portis. Me tegat commiffs, deofque precetur, & oret. Ut redeat miferu, abeat fortuna superbis. De Arte Poet. V. 195.

CHRYSAOR, the Son of Neptune and by Chance upon his Foot, and put him to fo Medufa, who had Gerion by Callirboe, accordgreat Pain by that Poison, that he could not en- ing to Hyginus; but Hesiod in his Theogonia dure to live, although he was Immortal, where- makes him to be born without a Father, of the upon the Gods in Compassion made him one Blood of Medusa, after that Perseus had cut off

CICERO, M. TULLIUS, M. F. M. N. Lucian in his Dialogues of the Dead, where- COR. CICERO; Marcus Iullius, Marci in He brings in Chiron and Menippus speaking, Filius, Marci Nepos, Cornelia tribu Cicero. Thus was Cicero, the Prince of Roman Eloquence, call'd: ' Menip. I have heard, O Chiron, that the' Marcus was his Pranomen, because he was the 'you were Immortal you wished for Death, elder Brother: Tullius was the Name of his Fahow could you defire a Thing so little to be; mily, because he was descended of the ancient · loved? Chir. 'Twas because I was weary of Family of the Tullii, who were of the Kings of the Life. Menip. But were you not fatisfied and Volfei, as we read in Eufebius's Chroniton. Plupleased to see the Light? Chir. No, because tarch derives his Pedigree from Tudus Attius, I did every Day the same thing, eat and King of the Vollei; which is confirmed to us by > Tullius ærates raptabat in agmina turmas, Regia progenies, & Tuilo fanguis ab alto : Indole prob quanta Juvenis, quantumque daturus Aufoniæ populis ventura in fecula civem ! Ille super Cangem, super exauditus & Indos, Implebit terras voce ; & furialia bella Fulmine compescet lingue, nec deinde relinquet Par decus eloquii cuiquam sperare nepotum.

MARCI FILIUS, his Father was called Marcus Tullius, who being a Man of a weak Conby the Romans Flora, who was married to the stitution, spent his Lite for the most part at Ar-Wind Zephyrus. Ovid in bis Fifib Book of Fasti. pinum in Learning. Q. Calenus failly afferts, that he exercised the Trade of a Fuller, and that

MARCI NEPOS, the Grandson of Mar- | dins, and flie from Rome into Exile. But the cut, who dwelt at Arpinum, and who opposed Senate and all good Men bore his Absence so M. Gratidius the Author of the Lex tabellaria, impatiently, that they caused him to be recalto give Vote by Scrutiny.

CORNELIA, of the Cornelian Tribe, which was one of the 35 Tribes of Rome into which all the People were divided, and which included the Inhabitants of Arpinum.

CICERO, because he had a Wart like a Chick-pea upon his Face. He was born on the Third of the Nones of Fanuary in the Confulship of Servilius Cepio, and C. Astilius Lepidus and Cafar was formed to the Ruine of Serranus, 103 Years before Jesus Christ, and in the Year of the Building of Rome 617. His abandoned by Offavius Cajar to the Refentment Father was named M. Taliius and his Mother of Antony, whom he had made his Enemy by his Helvis and not Olbis, as some fallely read it | Philippisks; so that he was banished, and purin Plutarch, as Eufebius and Paulus Diaconus fued to Death by Popilius Lanatus, whose Life in the Supplement to Eutropius prove.

Learning, as he informs us himfelf in his E- | Cajeta. His Head and Hand were brought to piftle to Titinnius. 'I remember, lays he, that Rome, and laid by Antony upon the Orators in my Child hood one Plotius taught Latin Bench, from whence he had often spoken to the at Rome, I was troubled that I was not one of his Scholars, because he was an ingenious Man and taught very well, but I was diverted | Wife of Aniony, having uttered a thouland Refrom him by the Opinion of very learned proaches against these sad Relicks, pulled his Men, who thought that the Greek Learning improved the Mind better: Equilem memsria ral times thro' with her Bodkin. He was flain teneo pueris nobis primum Latine docere capiff: in the 63d Year, 11 Months and 5 Days of his L. Plotium quendam: Al quem cum fierer con- Age, upon the Ides of December, in the Year curfus, quod fludiosiffimus quifque apud eum exer- of the Building of Rome 710. ceretur, dolebam mibi idem non licere. Contineexistimabant Gracis exercitationibus ali melius ingenia posse. He studied Philosophy under Phi- second Book de Divinatione. His Epistles are lo the Academick, Law under Scavola, Rhetorick under Apollonius Molo. He travelled into Greece, and tarried Three Years at Atbens, Ascalon, a Person of rare Eloquence. He mar the same time with his Brother Cicero. ried Terentia, and divorced her afterward, alftate, with which he paid his Debts.

Caviline by his Vigilance and Care, for which never came out but in the Night. he gained the Name of Pater Patrix. He accused Clodius, and prosecuted him vigorously, born in a mean Place, but great for his Vertue but at length he was forced to yield to the and Courage; as he was plowing a Field of prevailing Interest and the Fierceness of Clo- Four Acres the People of Rome made him Diftaled toon. At his Return he found a Civil War kindled between Cesar and Pompey, and although at first he embraced Cafar's Party, yet at last he turned to Pompey, but after the Battle of Pharfalia he was reconciled to Julius Cafar, who was flain a little after in the Senate. Oifavius Cafar, furnamed Augustus, fucceeded him, and when that cruel Triumvirate of Anionius, the Commonwealth and all good Men, Cicero was he had faved a little before. He cut off his He came very young to Rome, where he Head and his Right Hand, having taken him as fpent his first Years in studying the Greek he was slying in his Litter towards the Sea of People, and delivered his eloquent Orations for the Defence of the publick Liberty. Fulvia the Tongue out of his Mouth, and pricked it feve-

We have several of his chief Pieces of Orabar autem dolliffimorum bominum auftoritate, qui | tory, but many are lost through the Injury of Time, of which he gives us a Catalogue in his inimitable.

His Brother Quintus came to the same unhappy End as himfelf, for he was also one of those where he applied himself to Phadrus and Zeno that were banished with him, and being be-Two Epicurean Philosophers, and Antiochus of tray'd by his own Servants, he was killed at

CIMMERII, a certain People of Scythia, though he had Children by her, viz. a Son na- which inhabited a Part of the Kingdom of Ponmed Jullius, and a Daughter called Jullia and tus near the Bolphorus, called after their Name Tulliola, and married Popilia, who was very the Cimmerian; because they dwelt in a Counyoung, rich and handsome. Terentia said, he try compassed about with Woods and always married her for her Beauty, but Tiro, Cicero's covered with thick Clouds, which caused a great -Free-man tells us, that it was for her great L- Darkness, it gave an Occasion to the Proverb, which calls great Darkness Cimmeria Tenebra, The great Defert of this excellent Man being fuch as were in Agypt. Festus and some Aujoined with his Eloquence, raifed him to the thors with him fay, that there were certain Peochief Offices of the Commonwealth; he was ple of that Name in Italy between Baje and first Prætor, then Quastor and Conful, and in Cuma near the Lake Avernus, who dwelt in his Consulship he diffipated the Conspiracy of Caves under Ground, never saw the Sun, and

CINCINNATUS, a Roman Captain

tor, which they had not done but that the | He exercised so much Cruelty and Rapine, Affairs of their Republick were in a desperate that he became intollerable among his own Condition. He accepted of that Dignity un- Soldiers in his Army who thereupon flew him willingly, and having fettled the Publick Af- at Ancona. fairs in Seventeen Days, he left it freely, and returned to his Plough as before.

CINCIUS, a Senator of Rome, who caufed the Lex Fannia to be received, by which he moderated the superfluous Expences of pub to Augustus, as an Acknowledgment of his Falick Feafts. He was also the Author of the Law which was called Lex Muneralis, made against such as bribed the People with Money to obtain any Office; it forbad those who canvaffed for any Offi e to come clad in Two Garments into the Affemblies, to prevent their hiding of Money they used to bring to buy from a Mountain of the same Name in the CINERARIUM, an Earthen-pot to gather the Ashes and Bones of burnt Bodies.

CINERES and RELIQUIÆ, the Afhes and Remnants of the Bodies burnt at Rome. When a Body was burnt, the Mother, Wife, Children, or other Relations of the Dead, cloathing themselves in Mourning, gathered the Ashes and Bones that were not contumed by the Fire. They began it by in-Duty which they were about to pay him, then in the first Night of their Marriage. washing their Hands and pouring Milk and Wine upon the Fire, they gathered the Ashes was after used both by the Greels and Latins. and Bones and sprinkled them with Wine and The Fable makes Cinyras King of Cyprus, and Milk. The first Bone which they gathered will have him to be the Inventor of the Inwas called Os rejectum, according to Vario, or firument called Cinyra, as Suidas fays, in Ciexceptum, because it was made use of to finish | nyra, at the Time or the Trojan War. Lastly, the Remainder of the Funerals. The Reliques It fays, that he contended with Apollo about being thus sprinkled, they put them into an the Excellency of Singing and Mulick, which Urn made of different Materials and wept over was his Ruine. But the Truth of Scripture it; they carched their Tears in small Glasses, and of History shew the Halshood of this Facalled Lacrymatoria, which they put at the Bot- ble, deducing the Antiquity of Mulick and of the tom of the Urn, then the Priest sprinkled the Musical Infrument Cinyra from the Ages be-Urn and all present to purifie them with a fore the Houd. Laban who was several Ages Branch of Rolemary, Laurel or Olive, (as A. before the Trojan War, makes mention of this neas did at the Funeral of the Trumpeter Mi- Instrument in Genesis, C. 31. fenus) and dismissed the Assembly with these words, I licer, you may go, or depart.

the Ashes and Bones of the Dead could be ga- rich, that he gave Rice to the Proverb, The thered when they were mixed with fo many Riches of Cinyras, to fignific a very rich Animals and other Things, which were burnt Man. with the Body, but we may find this Difficulty cleared under the Word Cadaver.

CINNA, a Roman Captain who was Conful Four Times in the Days of Sylla and Marius. He was expelled out of Rome by Cneus Power as foon as he entred into the City. But Oftavius, because he endeavoured to recall the that Great Man scorning to enslave his Counbanished Slaves and make them free. He join- try would never go into Rome, but choic raed with Marius and the banished Slaves, and ther to live in voluntary Exile than to be for invading Rome made a great Slaughter among injurious to the Commonwealth. the Citizens.

There was another of this Name who was much beloved by Cafar Augustus, and preferred by him to the great Offices of the Commonwealth; when he died he left all his Goods your. Some reckon a third of the same -ame, who was pulled in Pieces by the People at the Funeral of Julius Casar, because he was suspected to have been one of the Conipirators against him.

CINIHIUS, an Epithet given to Apollo Ifle of Delos, where he was brought up, and where he had a Temple.

> Cinthius aurem Vellit & admonuit. Virg. Bucol.

Apollo pulled me by the Ear and admonish-

CINXIA, an Epithet which the Poets give Juno, because they make her the Godvocating the Dit Manes and the Soul of the dess that presides over Marriages, when the Deceased, praying him to accept that pious Husband takes away the Girdle from his Spoule

CINYRA, is an Hebrew Word, which

CINYRAS, King of Cyprus, who committed Incest with his own Daughter Myrrbs, Here we might observe the Difficulty, how which he had by Adonts. He was a Man so

> CIPPUS, a Roman Prætor, who returning Victorious to Rome, teemed to have Horns upon his Head. The Diviners being confulted about this Prodigy, they faid, it foretold his Regal

Perfeit the Daughter of Oceanus, who married they went in the Morning to the Capitol, the King of the Sarmata. She was famous where all the Furniture for the Plays was for Magick and Poisoning, if we may believe ready, from whence they returned in good the Poets, she poisoned her own Husband that Order, and passed through the publick Places the might reign alone, as also several of her and principal Streets of Rome, and from thence Subjects to try the Strength and Effects of her to the Circus, where they took feveral Turns Poilons, which caused them to revolt from to shew the Pomp of the Plays the better, her, and drive her out of the Kingdom in Difgrace.

She went and dwelt in an Isle near Tuscany, upon a Promontory which was called by her Name, The Cape of Circe; there she fetched sed rode, and several other Chariots after them. down the Stars from Heaven by her Charms, of Phoreus into a Sea-monfter, as also Picus, King of the Latins into a Bird called a Woodpecker: The Navy of Ulyffes being cast upon rheie Coafts, fhe by her Inchantments, chanfent to view the Country, upon which he was to enter the Lifts. cast by a Tempest.

Mercury kept Ulyffes from falling into the should offer to be Friends with him, and entertain him, and engage her felf by the Great Colour. Oath of the Gods not to hurt him in any thing. Ulysse followed Mercury's Advice exactly, and Circe restored his Companions to dron, and others for another. their former Shape.

the Circus much used at Rome, in Imitation of took an Urn into which they cast Balots of the the Olympick Games in Greece; these last were Bigness of a Bean, on which was written an dedicated to Jupiter, and the former to the A or a B, or some such like Letter, and always God Confus or the God of Counsels. They Two of a Sort: Then the Champions came were vowed on the Seventeenth of the Calends up one after another and made their Prayer of Ollober, (i.e. Sept. 15.) and shewn the 9th of the to Jupiter, and after that they put their Hand tame Calends (i. e. Sept. 23.) These Games con- into the Urn; immediately one of the Judges tinued Five Days.

The first was the Race of Chariots, which Fighters was unequal, he that had the odd Letwas the most ancient and chief of the Roman | ter was to fight the Conqueror, which was no Exercises and Divertisements, as it was or the small Advantage, because he came fresh to fight Greeks. I he second was Leaping, who should leap against one who was already tired. This done, heft and higheft. The third was Quoits, which the Lifts were opened at the Sound of the Trumwas a Piece of Stone or Plate of Iron, which | pet, and when the laft Signal was given by the they cast as far as they could. The fourth was hanging out a white Flag, they entred the Lift, Wreftling, in which Two Wreftlers naked and and they run who should get first to the End of their Bodies all anointed with Oil, laid hold upon the Race: They were to turn first seven times, on another, and endeavour'd to throw each other and afterwards five times about certain Pofts upon the Ground, by tripping up one another's without touching them, in which they flewed Heels. The fifth was Fighting at Fifty-cuffs, great Art. This is what Horace tells us in thefe at which they armed their Hands with great Verses: Straps of a raw Ox-hide with Boffes of Lead, which they called Cellis, with thefe they ftruck each other imartly, and often killed one another.

CIRCE, the Daughter of the Sun, and Upon the Day appointed for these Plays

Before them went the Chariots which carried the Images of the Gods, and of the most illustrious Romans; then came other Chariots, in which the Roman Ladies most finely dref-

After this the Statues of the Gods were and miraculously changed Scylla the Daughter brought into the Circus, and the Roman Ladies took their Places to fee the Sports.

Thole, who were to fight, appeared in the Starting-place for the Race, riding upon their Chariots drawn with Two, Four or Six Horses ged all his Companions into Hoggs, which he a Breaft, who expected nothing but the Signal

There were usually Four Companies of Fighters, or Four Squadrons diftinguished by fame Misiortune, having given him the Herb the Colours of their Garments. The First Moly to preferve him from her Charms, and Squadron was called the Green, the Second at the same time admonishing him, that when the Blew, the Third the Red, and the Fourth fhe struck him with her Red he should draw the White. The Emperor Domition added his Sword and threaten to kill her till she the Gold Colour and Purple to make Two other Squadrons who bore the Name of their

> The Spectators were divided into Parties for the Combatants, some wagering for one Squa-

The Names of the Combatants were drawn CIRCENSES LUDI, the Plays of by Lot, and matched after this manner: They took every ones Balot, and matched those that Five forts of different Games were shewn: had Letters alike: If the Number of the

> - Metaque fervidie Evitata rotis. Od. 1. Lib. 1.

in an Alphabetical Order.

CIRCIUS. See after Circus.

or Oval Figure, erected by the Ancients to other Circus's were, with several rows of exhibit Shews to the People. There are some Benches one above another, Galleries, Porches, Ruines of the Circus's yet to be feen at Rome, Shops, and other Buildings: It bore the Name Nilmes, and other Places. The Romans were of the Conful that built it. The Senate often great Lovers of the Circenfan Games, as this met there when they came down from the Ca-Verse of Juvenal testifies,

- Arque duas tantum res anxim optat, Penem & Circenfes.

Some will have the Name to come from Circus, there. to whom Terrullian attributes the Invention of them. Caffiodorus fays, that Circus comes from circuisus. The Romans at first had no other Circus for their Races, than the Shoar of Tiber, with the Bank on the one fide, and a Pallifade blew down their Houses; yet these People of Swords flanding upright on the other, which thought themselves much benefited by it, bemade these Races dangerous, as Servius ob cause it cleared the Air. Hear what Senecasays ferves: From hence it is, that Ifidore fays, that of it; Galliam infeffat Circius, cui adificia quafthele Sports were called Circenfes, from circum fansitamen incola gratias agunt, tanquam falubrienfes : But Scaliger laughs at this Etymology, tatem cali fui debeant ei. Divus certe Auguftus Tarquin was the first that built a Circus at Rome templum illi, cum in Gallia moraretur, & vovit & between the Aventine and Palatine Mounts, as fecie. Dionyfius Halicarnaffaus tells us. It was 2205 Foot long, and 950 Foot broad, which was the Reason it was called the Great Circus.

Julius Cafar adorned it with rich and magnificent Buildings, which he encompaffed about calls them Flying Chairs. with fine Canals of Water, called Euripi, to represent Sea-fights in them. The Spectators, the sports conveniently, for they fat on Benches one above another, in the Form of an nill, so that they which fat before did not hinder those behind from seeing. Augustus enlarged the Circus, and crected a great Obelisk of 125 Foot high. The Emperor Claudine built Ornaments of Martain Fountain, whose Water inspired Men to deble for the Dens of wild Beafts, deligned for the liver Oracles, when it was drank, but it also Fleasures of the People, which till that time shortned their Lives. were made only of Earth or Wood. Caracalia caused divers parts of it to be painted and gilded, returning home by Land, after Trey was taken. And laftly, Heliogabalus covered the Floor with with Amphilocus, the Son of Amphilaraus, passed Gold, and Silver-Duft or Sand, and was troubled through Claros, where he found much more exhe could not do it with Ivory; likewife by an pert Diviners than himself; for, when Cakba excessive Luxury he filled the Pits with Wine, to try one of them, asked him, How many Pigs and represented a Sea-fight on it, as an ancient a Sow, that was big, should bring forth, Moppes, Historian relates.

or Devotion built for the Ornament of the Ci- to give an Answer in his turn to this Question. ty : That of Flaminius was the most famous for How many Figs a Fig-Tree had, and Mopfus tel-Plays, and for the Glasshouse, where they had ling him how many, he was so discontented, that the Secret to harden Chrystal, so as to resist he died of Grief to see himself out-done in his Fire. Those of Antoninus and Aurelian were

I will explain the other Plays of the Cirque, adorned with curious Obelisks, and divers other Ornaments.

CIRCUS FLAMINII, the Circus of CIRCUS, a great Building of a Round Flaminius was a large Place compassed about as pitol. It was appointed for some Sports, as the Apollinaries, and Horse-races, and for the Af-Cemblies of the People by their Tribes, which was the most general way of meeting, because the 35 Tribes, with the Inhabitants of the City included all the People of Italy, which met

CIRCIUS, the Wind, which is about the Caurus, and is called North Weft. Augustus built a Temple to the Wind Circius among the Gauls, who were much troubled with it, because it

CISIA, Coaches with two Wheels. The Ancients had these Coaches with two Wheels. which they called Cifia, which they used for greater Conveniency and Expedition. Cicers CITHERON, a Mountain in Baotia, at whose Bottom the River Asopus runs. It was confecrated to Bacchus, and his Orgia were celebrated there, as ovid tells us, Lib. 3, of bis Metamo phofis.

CLAROS, a small City of Ionia, heretofore famous for the Oracle of Apollo, who from them was furnamed Clarius. There was a cer-

Strabo informs us, that Calchas the Diviner wno was the Diviner, answered, That she should Some fay, there were Eight Circus's in Reme, have but three, two Males, and one Female, of which leveral were either through Vanity which proved true. But Calchas not being able MANGE, & Lot, because it fell to Apollo in the Division. Some Authors say, it comes from ghaist, to weep, because Manto the Daughter of Tirefiss the Diviner, to whom the Foundati on of that City is attributed, flying from Thebes after the Epigoni had deftroyed it, landed in those Parts, where pouring out her Tears. she made a Fountain, which gave Name to that Place.

It is also an Isle in the Archipelago, between Tenedos and Soio, dedicated to Apollo, as Callimachas testifies in these Verses,

*Ω πόλλων, πολλοί σε Βοπδρόμιον καλέκσι, TIONNOI JE KNEPICY, &C.

CLAU DIA, a Vestal Virgin, who taking Prodigy, that happened thus: For she seeing the Ship, which brought the Statue of Cybele, the Mother of the Gods, flicking in the Sand, fo dess to clear her in Publick, and immediately caffing her Girdle upon it, the pulled it to Land without any trouble, which undeceiv'd the Peo ple, ovid, i. 4. Fastorum.

who paved the Way called from his Name, Via Entrails of Beafts. Appia, and made the Conduit at Rome: as also Appins Claudius Cacus, and Appins Claudius one of the lewdest Princesses that ever lived, Ciaffinus, who made himself Dictator. See for she was married to Silius in publick, while

CLAUDIUS PULCHER, who loft the Battle against Afdrubal, at the Seige of Lili- Niece, who poisoned him some Years after with baum. His Defeat is attributed to the Contempt, which he cast upon a Presage made from | Woman famous for Poisoning, and the Empethe Holy Poultrey; for when the Coop was ror's Phylician, named Xenopbon, who pretendbrought before him, that he might take the ing to help his Vomiting, put a poison'd Fea-Augury himself, he perceived, that the Poul- ther into his Throat, of which he died. trey were not at all moved by the Corn they gave them, whereupon he cast the Coop and known over all the World, whom all learned holy Poultrey into the Sea, faying these Words | Men agree to come nearest the Majesty of in Raillery : Let them drink, fince they will not Virgit of any that have endeavoured to imitate was the Son of Drulus, the Nephew of Tiberius, own Art. Nearchus derives this Word Claros from | Claudius in his Apocologratofis, where he imputes to him all imaginable Defects. Sueronius tells us, that he was not ill made. It is true, that he had weak Legs, and a Trembling in his Head, but these Defects were caused by Poison given him when he was young, which made him simple, forgetful and timerous, so that he gave himself up to be governed by his Freemen: He had a fat Neck, and his Lips were always foaming with Spittle, which, some think, is represented upon his Medals, as well as mentioned by Historians, with all other Signs of Weakness, which betrayed the Defects of his Mind. Nevertheless he feemed defirous to make amends for thefe Imperfections by his Study, for he applied himfelf closely to the Greek Tongue, History and Grammar. He likewise composed a Book before his Reign, to prove the Necessity of adding Three Letters to the Latin Alphabet, and when he was Emperor he put them into it with too much Care in dreiling her felf, caused her ease, but they died with him, for we find them Behaviour to be suspected, and her Chaffity to only in the Inscriptions of his Time. He exebe questioned; but she deared her self by a cuted the Office of a Censor with great Severity, and reftrained the Liberties of the Theatre by most rigorous Edicts: He was exasperated by the Infolence of the People, who publickly that it could not be got ashoar by all the Arts affronted the most eminent Reman Ladies; and and Labour they could use, pray'd to the God- Publius Pomponius, who had been Conful, because he had made a Play which was acted. He forbad also lending Money to the Children under Age, because to save themselves from the Hands of their Creditors, they were tempted to CLAUDIANA; the Claudian Family, very il- leck the Lives of their Fathers. Afterwards he luftrious among ft the Romans, from which feveral finished the Aquaiuds, begun by Caligula, which of the Emperors were descended, as Clandin | brought the Water from the Simbruin Fountains and Nero. It came from Appins Claudius, King | into the City, and made fome Regulations in of the Sabines, from whom came Appins Claudius, the Science of foretelling Things to come by the

> He put his Wife Mcfaline to Death, who was her Husband was alive. He after married Agripping the Daughter of Germanicus, and his own a Dish of Mushrooms by the Help of Locusta, a

CLAUDIANUS, Claudian, a Poet him, and to have been least intested with the CLAUDIUS, the Roman Emperor, who | Corruptions of his Age. His Investives against Ruffinus and Eutropius are the best Pieces he and Uncle of Caligula, whom he succeeded has written, and perhaps nothing can be more after his Death. Seneca has given us a Descrip- compleat in their kind. Scaliger in his Treation of the Person and Intellects of this Emperor | tife of Poetry, says, that he was tired with the meanels of his Matter, but he supplied all De-1 CLELIA, whom Dionysius Halicarnassens fefts by his Readiness of Wit, for his Fancy is names Valeria, and makes her the Daughter of happy, his Expression apposite, his Verse un- the Consul Valerius, being delivered for an affected, his Judgment accurate and his Orna- Hoftage to King Porferna for the Security of ments pleasant for their Ingenuity.

L. Genuzius and L. Emilius Mamercus, in the when the was brought back to him by the Year 4352, according to the Julian Account, Conful Valerius, admiring her Courage, gave 3690 of the World, and 362 before Fefus Christ, her an Horse finely equipped, and this is the the Plague continuing to lay wafte Rome, com- Reason of the Statue on Horse back, which the pelled the Romans to flie to the Ceremony of Romans have confecrated to Clelia's Vertue in driving a Nail, which had never been done be- the via Sacra. fore but to keep an Account of the Years, according to an ancient Law, That the Great Pre- Ancients made a Goddels, and which they tor fould drive a Nail on the Third Day of pictured holding a Branch of Lawrel in one September. From this Time th's Political Cere Hand and a Spear in the other, to shew that mony was turned into Superfittion, and fimple Gentleness and Pity belonged only to victorious People were made to believe, that this Action Wariours. The Romans dedicated a Temple would be effectual to avert publick Calamities, to her by the Order of the Senate, after the and to faften them, as I may fay, with this Death of Julius Cafer, as Plutarch and Cicero Nail.

ven into the Wall behind the Chappel of Mi- Tiberius and Vitellius caused her to be stamped nerva, in the Capitol, on the Right-hand of upon their Moneys. the Temple of Aupiter Capitolinus; and to perform this Ceremony a Dictator was made.

VIUM, or TUNICA-CLAVATA; and upon her Chariot to the Temple. And these ANGUSTUS-CLAVUS, or ANGU-Jare the Men which Solon calls the most happy, STI-CLAVIUM. a Gown or Coat, which in his Answer to Crasus in Charon, or the Conthe Roman Senators and Knights and High- templator. See Biro. Priefts wore, upon which were fet Buttons having Heads like Nails, more or less wide, ac Daughter of Prolomy, surnamed Dionysius, the cording to the Quality of the Persons or Of- last King of Fgypt. She was first beloved by fices. This Coat thus adorned with Buttons Julius Cafar, who gave her that Kingdom ain the Shape of Nail-heads was a Mark of Di- gain after he had conquered it, and by him the ftinftion, Senators were them large, and so had a Son named Cafario, but after Mark Anwere called Laticlavii inflead of Senatores, as stony fell fo paffionately in 1 ove with her, that Suctonius calls them Bini Laticlavii, for Two he was not content to give her the Provinces Senators, and when they were degraded this of the lower Spria, Phanicia, the Isle of Cyprus, &c. Coat was taken from them; on the Contrary, but promifed to give her the whole Roman Knights were a Coat with Buttons more nar- Empire in Requital of the Pleasures he had row, and from thence were called Angusti- with her: For Love of her he diworced his clavi.

from thence it was called Junica rella, where- War against him. Antony, though he had the as the Knights wore a Girdle about it. The Priefts likewife might wear the Coat with Victorious Arms of Cafar near the Promontors large Buttons when they facrificed, called from of Adium: Cleopatra fied to Alexandria in A. thence Laticlavus Sacerdotalis.

with large Buttons was bestowed as a Mark of willing to be made use of as a Captive to the Honour and Diffinction upon the Governours Conqueror's Triumph, the killed her felf by of Provinces and such as had served the Em- the biting of an Alp upon the Tomb of Arperor faithfully, as the blew Garter and Mar- tony her Lover. that's Staff is in France.

They laid afide this Ornament in Times of publick Mourning or Calamity as a Sign of Sorrow.

a Truce, the cast her fell into the Tiber and CLAVUS, a Nail. In the Confulfhip of swam over on Horse-back. King Profenna, CLEMENTIA, Clemency, which the relate. The Poet Claudian describes her as This Nail was made of Brass, and it was dri-the Gardian of the World. The Emperors

CLEOBIS and BITO, the Children of the Prieftels of Argos, who died both at the LATUS-CLAVUS, or LATI-CLA- fame time after they had drawn their Mother

CLEOPATRA, Queen of Egypt, Wife offavia the Sifter of Augustus, which so The Senators did not gird this Coat, and much incensed that Prince that he declared Affistance of the Egyptian Army, fell by the gyps, and seeing that she could not gain Ca-In the Times of the Emperors the Coat lar's Favour to her Children, and being un-

CLEP

CLEPSYDRA, an Hour-glass made with such Bonds of Love, as the one might live Water. The Use of Clepfydra was very ancient without Contempt, and the other without among the Romans, and there were feveral Envy. forts of them which had this in common to CLIMA, or INCLINATIONES them all, that Water ran by gentle Degrees MUNDI, and INCLINAMENTUM, through a narrow Passage from one Vessel to a- a Climate, which comes from the Greek Word nother, in which rifing by little and little lift. naively, that is to fay, to decline; it is intended ed - pa Piece of Cork which shewed the Hours to mark the Difference there is between the in different Ways.

the first is that which Plutarch takes notice of, that the Water passed through with more or terial Sphere gives us of this Distance, for less Difficulty, according as the Air was more the Countries which are diffant from the Pole or less thick, cold or hot, for that hindred the or Æquinottial seem to decline or bend some Hours from being equal; the other is, that the Water ran faster at first when the Vessel from whence the Water came was full than at laft; and to avoid this Inconvenience, it was, that Oronses found out his Clepfydra, which is a small Ship flotting upon the Water, which empties it felf by a Syphon which is in the Middle of it, for the Ship finketh according to the Quantity of the Water which comes out of the Syphon, which makes it always run with the fame Force, because it always receives the of the Aquator, according to the Number of Water near the Surface. We make use of Twelve Hours by which the longest Day is Hour-glasses of Sand instead of the Clepfrdra encreased from the Aquator to the Polar Cirof the Ancients.

Clepsydra were more especially used in Winter, because the Sun-dials were not useful in that Scason.

The second fort of Clepfydra was such, as without changing the Dial made the Hours reckoned no Climates there. The common fometimes longer and fometime shorter by the People call the Country that differs from a-Inequality of the Index or Hand, which depended upon the Management of the Water, as Virtuoius fays. This was performed by making the Hole through which the Water paffed larger or smaller; for in the long Days when the Hours were longer, the Hole being made narrower, it convey'd but a little Warer in a longer time, which caused the Water to rise and fall flowly, and to made the Counterpoize which turns the Axle-tree, to which the Index or Hand is fastened, to move slowly.

CLIENS, a Client, among the Romans was a Citizen who put himself under the Protection of some Great Man, who in Respect of that Relation was called a Patron. This Patron affifted his Client with his Protection, Interest and Goods, and the Client gave his Vote for his Patron, when he fought any Of fice for himself or his Friends. Clients owed Respect to their Patrons, as they did owe them their Protection.

CLIENTELA, the Protection which the great Roman Lords allowed the poor Citizens. This Right of Patronage was appointed by Romulus to unite the Rich and Poor together in Countries of the World according to the Di-They were all subject to Two Inconveniences, stance they bear from the Pole or Æquinoctial Line, by reason of the Idea which the Mamore, and others less towards the Æquinoftial or Poles.

The Ancients knew but Seven Climates, which passed through Meroe, Siena, Alexandria, Rhodes, Rome, Pontus and the Mouth of the Boriftbenes. Paris is in the Sixth Climate, Averroes who lived under the Fifth Climate preferred it before all others. The Moderns, who have failed much farther towards the Poles, have made 23 Climates of each Side cle, for they allowed the Difference of Half an Hour between one Place and another to make a different Climate, and so reckoned 24 Climates; and beyond the Polar Circle the Length of Days encreases so fast that they nother, a Climate either for the Change of Seasons or Nature of the Soil, or People that inhabit it, without any Relation to the long Days of Summer.

CLIO, one of the Nine Muses who teaches to fing the Encommuns of Illustrious Men. She has taken her Nime from the Greek Word xxé@-, which fignifies Glory or Renown. She is faid to be the Daughter of Jupiter and Minemosyne, the Goddess of Memory.

CLO AC A, 4 Sink, or Guster under Ground, by which the Filth of the City of Rome was carried away. Tarquinius Superbus finished the great Sink, which Tarquinius Priscus had begun, which reach'd as far as the Senators Bridge, and emptied it self into the Tiber. The Channel was very wide, and to make it, he was forced to dig thro' the Mountains, and Vaulted it over in leveral places of the City. It was built of great Stones in the Form of an Arch, so well faftened and cemented together, that the continual running of Water and Filth had not endamaged it in the Space of Seven Hundred Years. There were many other Sinks in the

M. Caso and Val. Flacus Cenfors built one up- crased Buckler; or rather Clypius with an i is a on Mount Avenine. There were Officers ap- Buckler for fighting ; and Clypeum, or Clupeum, pointed to take Care of these Works, and to one of those Bucklers vowed to the Gods: But have them repaired, who were called Curatores Pliny, and others of the Ancients laugh at these Cloacarum Urbis.

Roman of the ancient Family of the Clodi, a very debauched Man, who committed Incest Goib. 'The Senate, says he, decreed this Emwith his Sifters, and fell in Love with Pompeia the Wife of Cafar. He was found one Day in the Palace in the Habit of a finging Woman, among the Roman Ladies, who celebrated the Mysteries of Ceres, of which he was accused by the Tribunes, but he escaped the Rigour of the Law by causing himlelf to be chosen Tribune. He was one of Cicero's greatest Enemies, who so persecuted him, as to cause him to be banished, and sell his Goods. He was flain by Milo sometime after; and Cicero undertook the Defence of Milo, and was inccessful in it.

CLOTHO, One of the Three Destinies, who spin the Life of Man according to the old Fables. Clorbo holds the Spindle and draws the Thread. She is represented in a long as far as the Wafte. Gown of divers Colours, having a Crown on her Head fet with Seven Stars, holding in her leave the Memory of their brave Actions to Hand a Spindle. Lucian places Clothe in Hell with Charon, and makes her to keep the Regilter of all the Dead, that Charon brings over on Bucklers. Homer speaks of several made in his Boat.

Clorbo. 'So it is, O Charon, ship this Croud, and in the mean time I will take my Register, and franding at the Wharfs, I will ask every one his Name, House and Town. Mercury 'shall take Care to put them in Order, according as they come in. Let us begin with their Pofferity. little Children, who have nothing to answer 'me, as I have nothing to ask them.

ler, a piece of defenive Armour which the was found a Silver Buckler which weighed One Ancients used, and carried upon their Arm to Hundred and Thirty Eight Pound, upon secure them from the Blows of their Enemies: which the famous Afarubal of Barcha, one of The Figure of it was Round, Oval, or Sex-the chief Commanders of that War was drawn, angular. In the middle of it was a Boss of and that Buckler, which was called Clypeus Mu-Iron, or of some other Mettal with a sharp tius, was put into the Temple of the Capitol,

Point. Devoted Bucklers, which were defigned to re- burnt. present a memorable Action of some ancient Hero, and to preferve the Memory of it in umph, which Titus Quintius obtained for the a Temple of the Gods, where it was hanged. Victory, which he had gained over Philip, King The Names which the Latins gave these Buck of Macedon, the Father of Demetrius, Ten Sillers were, Clypea, Clypes, Clypei vosivi, becaute ver Bucklers, and one of folid Gold, which were they were like the Bucklers used in War. Some found among the Spoils of the Enemies, were ancient Grammarians, that they might feem carried before him. more accurate than others, say, that Clypeus in the Masculine Gender signifies a Buckler for Ciry, which all fell into this Common-lewer.] the War; and Cipeum in the Neuter, a could Niceties.

CLODIUS PUBLIUS, a Noble Trebellius Pollio uses these two Words, in a complaifant way, in his Life of Claudius the peror a Golden Buckler, which they ordered to be fet up in the Palace of the Capitol, and upon which this i mperor was drawn as far as his Breaft. Illi Clypeus aureus, five, ut Grammatici loquuntur, Clypeum aureum Senatus tosius judicio in Romana curia collocatum eft. tiam nune videtur, expressa thorace ejus vultile

Salmafius upon this Passage shews, that these confecrated Bucklers were also called by the Greeks, Difei, Cycli, Afpides, which fignifics properly the Bucklers used in War; Pinaces which is Tables ; Stylepinatia, Tables hung upon Pillars ; Protomata, the upper Parts of a Man; Opla, among the Thebans, Arms; and Stetharia, among the Moderns, Bufts or Pictures

The ancient Heathens were very defirous to their Pofferity, and to that end contrived to have the Hiftory of their Ancestors graven upby the most curious Artists, and among others Achilles's and Ajax's; from whence came the Custom of making them of Metal, that they might hang them in their Temples as a Monument of their Victories and other remarkable Actions, or at least to leave their Effigies to

Livy tells us, that at the Conquest of the Carthaginisms under the Command of L. Mar-CLYPEUS, & CLYPEUM, & Buck- times, the Romans got much Spoil, among which to leave the Memory of that Conquest to Poste-CLYPEI, & CLUPEI VOTIVI, rity, and remained there till the Capitol was

The fame Author relates, that in the Tri-

Bucklers were dedicated and fent to the Capitol. Suesonius in the Life of Domitian, relates, that the Senate to shew how odious the Memory of that Tyrant was, commanded that. his Bucklers should be taken out of the Tem-Antoninus Pius dedicateda very noble Buckler to his Predecessor Adrian.

These Bucklers did not only represent the Portraitures or Bufts of thefe Eminent Persons, but all their History was engraven on them. Of this fort there were many at Cyzicum in the Temple of Apollonides the Mother of Attalus and Eumenes, upon which were engraven Hiftories in Relievo. Upon one of these Bucklers Pelias and Neleus, the Sons of Nepsune, were drawn, who delivered their Mother from Imprisonment, as Plutarch affures us. Some Medals shew us, what Fashion these consecrated Bucklers were of, and among others the Reverse of a Medal of the Emperor Augustus, to whom the Senate and People of Rome had consecrated a Buckler, in Remembrance that Phrases, King of the Parthians had fent him again the Enfigns of War which he had taken in his Victory over Crassus and Mark Amony, supposing that Augustus had not obliged him by Force to reftore them: This pleased him so much, that he built a Temple to Mars the Revenger in the Capitol, where these Military Ensigns were confecrated with this Buckler.

Velpalian also has made another Medal with a confecrated Buckler fastened to a Pillar between Two Lawrel-Trees, by the Order of the Senate; which is tignified by these Letters Ex S.C. Ex Senatus consulto. These Two Lawrels referred to those that were planted at the Emperor's Gate the first Day of the Year, or when they had obtained some Victory.

Dio speaking of the Honours which the Senate bestowed upon Augustus, says, that they ordered Lawrels to be planted before his Palace, to flew that he was always victorious over his Enemies; whence it is that Pliny very properly calls a Lawrel Cafar's Porter, the only Ornament and faithful Guardian of their Palaces: Gratissima dominibus janitrix Casarum, qua sola & domos exornat & ante limina excubat.

There remains still another facred Buckler, But, Tays he, Scipio calling the Spanish Hoflages, whom he had taken Prisoners, comforted them in their ill Fortune, and told them, that they were come into the Power of the People of Rome, who took more Delight in gaining Healts by Kindness than in making the Commonwealth were not wholly Masters

Some Years after in the Confulfhip of Marcus them Subjects through Fear, and who loved Tucius, and P. Junius Brutus Twelve gilt more to have Foreign Nations for their Allies and Friends than to lay upon them an heavy Bondage. Then having taken the Names of all their Cities, he caused a List to be made of 'all the Prisoners, inquiring of them their Name and Country, and fent out Posts all Ways, that every Family concerned should come and receive his own, furrendring up to the Governours of the Cities that were prefent, their Citizens, and advising Caius Flaminius the Treasurer to treat the rest with all imaginable Civility. At the same time a very aged Matron crowded through the Throng of Hoftages to caft her felf at his Feer; (the was the Wife of Mandonius the Brother of Indibilia, King of the Illergeta.) Her Petition mixed with Tears and Sobs was, that Scipio would please to recommend the Care of the Ladies to his Guards, and when Scipio answered, they should want nothing convenient for their Subliftance, she replied, 'tis not that that I am concerned for, for in this Difgrace we ought to be contented with any thing, but that which diffurbs me is the Youth of these my Daughters, for as for my felf Age secures me from all the Infolences which they may juftly fear. (They were the Daughters of Indibilis, young and fair.) Then Scipio answered her, I cannot but follow the Cuftom of the People of Rome, and the exact Discipline which is observed in my Troops, that does not luffer any Man in the leaft manner to violate the Respect which is due to your Sex, but your Vertue and Constancy, which even ill Fortune cannot triumph over, oblige me to take a more particular Care of your Perfons. Then he committed them to the Keeping of a Man whose Fidelity was well known, and gave him a Command to shew as much Respect and Favour to them, as if they were the Wives of his best Friends. 'A little after, there came to him a young Woman from among the Priloners, of such 'a perfect Beauty, that fhe drew Respect from 'all the Spectators. Scipio being informed of her Country and Family, found that she was betrothed to a young Prince among the Cel-'siberi named Allucius, with whom she was pas-'fionately in Love. At the same time he called her Parents and the Husband defigned for this beautiful Virgin, with whom he had this on which is represented that victorious Action Discourse. Young Man, my Soldiers hawhich Scipio Africanus did at the taking of New 'ving discovered your Espoulais to me, and Carriage in Spain; it is related at large in Livy: having learned that you love her affectionately, which her Beauty eafily perlwades me to believe, I am willing to tayour your Paffion, although to speak freely to you, if I were permitted to enjoy the Pleasures of Youth, 'especially in a lawful Love, and the Cares of

of my Heart, I should desire your Sponse; Cassandra, the conspired immediately with the who so very well deserves the Affections of gystus the Son of Theeses, who was her Gallant, a fine Gentleman; but you know that she has to put them both to Death; and so while he quital I defire of you is, that you will be derer of his Father. Friends to the Commonwealth, and if you have | CLYTIA, a Nymph, and the Daughter as much Esteem for me, as the People of your of Oceanus, who was loved by Apolio and after-Nation had for my Father and Uncle, fatisfie ward forfaken by him, because through Jeayour selves, that all the Romans equal us in loutie to Orcania she discovered the Love of that Vertue, and that as there is no People in all God with his Danghter: This Defertion was the World whom you ought to fear more for fuch a Grief to her, that he died of Sorrow, an Enemy, fo there is none that you can with and was turned into a Flower called the Helia-"more for a Friend. This young Prince being prope, which remembring the Love which the aftonished at this exceeding Bounty, and trans- bore to him, turns it self always on the Side ported with Joy, took Scipio by the Hand he is of to fee him. and pray'd all the Gods to reward this Action, whose Merit he could never sufficiently ac- Romans as were born with some Blemish on their knowedge. In the mean time, the Parents Bodies, or some other natural Desect, which of this fair Lady seeing that he would free the Latins call Navus. them without Ransom, brought him a confiderable Sum, and offering it to him pray'd dees of the Chersonesus, which joins to Carias, him to accept of it as a Testimony of their Gratitude, affuring him, that it would be as Praxiteles of white polished Marble; whence it great a Favour to them to accept it, as it was is that Horace calls her Venus Cnidiana. to release his Prisoner to them without using the Right of infifting upon Conquest. Scipio | zen named Horatius, who alone opposed the Inpretending that he was overcome with their valion of the Tuscans when they were ready to urgent Intreaties, ordered the Money to be enter into Rome over the Bridge Sublicius, till 'laid at his Feet, and turning himself to Aliu- it was broken down; and then he caft himself cius, faid unto him, I give you this over and immediately into the Tiber, being much woundabove the Portion which your Father in Law ed in the Thigh, and elcaped to the other Side. will give you, take it from my Hand as a fe- The Conful Publicola in Gratitude erected his cond Portion with which I prefent you. So he ordered the Sum which had been presented him to be carried to him, and him to lead 'away his Miftress. In fine, This young Prince being loaded with the Prefents and Honours the laid upon him, returned home, and there extolled the Merits of Scipio, who was more 'like a God than a Man, and knew not only how to conquer by Arms, but by Kindness and "Favours.

Polybius who lived in the Time of this famous Roman, and was particularly acquainted with him, relates this Action in a fewer words: He adds these remarkable Ones, which he spake to those Soldiers who presented this fair Lady the Victory over the Peloponesians, to whom the to him: 'If my Fortune were limited to that Oracle had promifed it, if they did not flay of a private Person, you could not offer me their Enemies King. The Atlenians being Con-'a more acceptable Present, but being, as I now am, the General of an Army, you could might honour his Memory the more. So endone bring me one more disagreeable.

CLYTFMNESIRA, the Daughter of Tyndarus, and Wife of Agamemnon, having heard wealth was governed by yearly Magistrates to from her Brother Palamedes that her Husband the Time of Salon the Law-giver. had brought a Concubine with him, which was been treated by me with the same Respect, was sacrificing to the Gods for his Return, C. as if the were with her Father in Law or her semnestra flew her Husband Agamemnon and own Parents; I have kept her carefully for Cassandra with an Ax, but her son Orestes re-'you, that I might return her to you a Pre- venged the Death of his Father Agamemnon by e fent worthy both of you and me; all the Re- flaying the Debaucher of his Family and Mur-

CNEUS, a Name given to fuch among the

CNIDOS, a Sea-Town on the utmost Borfamous for the I emple where is the Venus of COLLES, the Surname of a Roman Citi-Statue of Copper in Vulcan's Temple.

COCYTUS, one of the Riversof Hell according to the Poets, which comes from these Greek Words rapa n' xwxveiv, to weep, lament and Groan. Homer places this River in the Cimmerian Country, and will have Hell to be this very Country of the Cimmerians, one Day's Journey from Circe, which is a Mountain in the Country of the Latins.

CODRUS, the last King of Athens, who lived in the Days of Samuel. He devoted himfelf to Death for his Country, for going in Difguife into the Midtt of his Enemies, they flew him unknown, and by his Death his Councrymen got querors would not have another King, that they ed the Kingdom of the Heraclide, who were descended of Hercules, and their Common-of whom Horace speaks.

Rumpantur ut ilia Codro.

COELIUS, a Mountain which was first, called Quercetulanus, because of a Forest of Oaks which was upon it. It was afterward called Calies from Calius Vibenna, who brought an Aid of Infcans to one of their Kings, (either to Tarquinius Priscus, or some other, for Histo-Market, because his Soldiers were very numerous; and the Street is still called by their Name, The Tujcan-Street.

This Mountain was built and made one of of Tiberius, which was at a Senator's House nafrom to great a Conflagration.

COELUS, or COELUM, the Heaven, & prandia, & cunas, commessationesque. &c. which the Greeks call spares, either from open video, to fee; or from the Hebrew Word Or, that is to fay, Lucere, to shine, or our, which is urere, to burn in Flame, from whence the Latins have also derived Aurora.

This Heaven was the first Object of false Worship, and Men took it for an Universal Nature, which it contains; whence it bears the Name of Jupiser, as if Jupiser were the Soul, and the Heaven, the Body of the whole Universe. This was the Opinion of Ennius when he faid, Aspice boc sublime candens, quem invocant omnes Fovem.

Pournutus makes spards to come from E.G. that is to fav. a Guardian or Confervator, because the Heavens and the Stars were the first false Gods, who were honoured as the Confervators of the World.

COELUM, the most ancient of the Gods. had for one of his Children Time named Saturn, who with a Cut of a Sickle deprived his Father of his Genitals, which he cast into the Sea, and by the Froth which came of the Stirring of the Waves Venus was born.

have deprived his Father Calus of his Genera- lectation. tive Faculty by caftraring him, it is because in They supped usually about the Ninth Hour Time the Fruitfuiness or the Heavens ceased to in the Day time, that is, about Four a Clock

There was also a very bad Poet of that Name, and Multiplication of Creatures once formed to Venus, and fo 'tis feigned that Venus was born of the natural Parts of Calus and the Froath of the Sea; as Macrobius, Aiunt Saturnum abeidiffe patris pudenda, quibus in mare projectis, Venerem procreatam, que à spuma unde coaluit. Accodire nomen accepis.

COEN A, Supper from neive or neive, i. c. communes, because the Ancients usually supped together in Companies, but dined alone: Supper was the best Meal. They broke their Fast rians do not agree about it,) and received this in the Morning very lightly with a Piece of Bread Mountain for his Habitation with the adjoining dipped in pure Wine, which Meal they cal-Fields as far as the Place where there is now a led fentaculum, and in Greek axpatious and ακρατισμές, from ακρατ Θ, which fignifies pure Wine. The fecond Meal was the Prandium or Dinner from weathe Morning and Evdlor, or from the Divisions of Rome: It was burnt in the apierov, which fignifies plain and very moderate. Reign of Tiberius, but he rebuilt it, and or They had a Fourth Meal, which they made dered that instead of Mount Calius, it should sometimes, which they called Commissatio or he called Augustus's Mount, because the Statue Commessatio, a Collation or a Meal after Supper. Suctionius makes mention of these Four Meals in med funius, was the only Preservative of it his Life of Vitellius, Epulas trifariam semper. interdum quadrifariam dispersiebat : in jentacula.

These Suppers were made after different Manners. There was one called Cana rella. a Splendid Supper, with which the Roman Nobles treated their Miffresses and Friends, who had attended them in their Vilits, or in the Execution of their Offices. They that would avoid the Expence and Trouble of these Suppers, gave them Bread and Meat inflead of them, and this Distribution was called Sportula. Domitian took away these Allowances, and restored the Feaft called Cana relles for Suesonius tells us, sportulas publicas suffulis, revocata canarum rectarum confuesudine.

COENA DAPSILIS, a plemiful Feaft, whether this Word comes from dapes, which fignifies Dainties, or the Greek Word falinera, Abundance of all Things.

COENA ACROAMATICA, from the Greek appoaluata, which fignifies pleafant and merry Discourse. It was a Supper at which many witty Jells were spoken for Diversion.

There was moreover, COENA AD VENTIIIA, INTERVALLATA, NOVEMBIALIS, & DUODENA-Tis no hard thing to guess why Calum is RIA, called by the Greeks Swofenalles befaid to be the first of the Gods, and the Father cause the Guests were Twelve in Number. of Saturn or Chronos, fince 'tis evident that the cloathed like Gods and Goddeffes. There was Motions of the Heavens make and measure the also another Supper called Pontificalia, which the Duration of Time. When Saturn is faid to High-prieft made upon the Day of his Con-produce new Beings, leaving the Propagation in the Afternoon, but in the Spring and Autumn about Three a Clock, and in Winter at filled with Wine, having made their Libations Two; for the Romans, as well as Greeks, often out of it, according to Sil. Ital. changed their Time, supping sometimes at one Hour and sometimes at another, as we may obferve in their Authors. They put on a Garment when they fat down to Table called Veftis canatoria, or Pallium canatorium, of which Mar. End of that Treat which Dido gave Aneas. tial makes mention.

There was then a Table foread between Three Beds, upon which they eat: another which they used for a Cup-board called Abacus, upon which they fet Glasses, Fruits, &c. Varro speaks of Four forts of Tables, that on which they eat, another square one called Urwarium, on which they fet their Pots, Dishes, Flagons and Baions; a Third called Cylibantium, from the Greek zu'a, Which signifies a Drinking-Cup or Bowl, and the Fourth called Cartibulum, whereon they cut the Meat, which was after ferved up in Portions to each Gueft. Round about the Beds and Tables was a kind of Bench a little raised, upon which they set their Children who eat with them, as Suetonius testifies in the Life of the Emperor Claudius. C. 32. Adhibebat omni cana & liberos juos cum pueris, puellisque nobilibus, qui more vezeri ad fulcra lettorum fedentes vescerentur. They used no Table cloaths, they had Servants which were employed to wipe the Table when they took away the Dishes and set on another Service, and others were appointed to fweep away what fell from the Table and the Spittings, others held great Fans to cool them or drive away the Gnats, and others gave them Drink and Meat; as Horace tells us.

His ubi sublatis, puer alte cinclus, acernam Gaufape purpureo menfam perterfis, & alter Sublegit quodeunque perer inutile, quodque Poffet canantes offendere.

Sat. 8. Lib. 11.

They were ferved usually with Three Courses; The first Course when they sat down to Table was called Antecena, or Guftatio, at which they fet on Mulberries, Eggs, or fuch like Things; the second was called Cana, or Capus Cana, when they fet on more dainty Meats, and the third was the Difert, called Bellaria, Menfa pomorum; as we read in Suesonius, Canam ternin ferculis prabebas, focaking of Augustus. At the Beginning of their Meal they drunk a Glais of Creek Wine, but Cafar at the Feafts which he made for the People had Four forts of Wines brought, viz. of Chios, Lesbos, Falernum and M. mertinum. At the Beginning and End of the Supper they made Libations of Wine to their Gods, and then drank every one out of a very large Bowl which was

Nec priùs aut epulas aut munera grata Lyai Fas cuiquam tetigiffe fuit, quam multa precarue In menfam. facrum libavit bonorem.

Virgit speaks of the Libations made at the Lib. 1. Æneid, V. 727.

Postquam prima quies epulis, mensaque remota Crateras magnos stanuunt, & vina coranant. His Regina gravem gemmis auroque poposcit, Implevitane mero pateram.

- Tum falta filentia tellis. Aupiter (bolpitibus namre dare jure loquuntur). Dixit, & in menfa laticum libadit bonorem : Primaque libato summo tenus attigit ore: Tum Bitiæ dedit increpitans.....

Post elii proceres, &c. We have the Description of a Wedding by Lucian, in a Dialogue, entituled, the Lapitha.

'The Guefts being all come, and it being time to go to Supper, the Women who were many, and the Bride in the midft, coverd with a Vail, took the Right-hand, and the Men fat down quite opposite to the Ladies: At the upper End the Banker Lucrisus, then Ari-Staneius; afterwards Zenothemia and Hermo: After them fat down the Peripatetick Clode mus, then the Platonist, and afterwards the Bridegroom, then my felf, Zeno's Tutor after me, then his Pupil.

'We eat our Meat pretty peaceably at firft; for there were a World of Dithes, and those well dres'd. After having indulg'd our Appetite for iome time, came in Alcidamas the Conich: The Mafter of the House bid him Welcome, and wish'd him to take a Seat by Dionyjodorus, 'You would think me very effeminate, faid he, should I sit down at Table. or lie almost along on a soft Bed, and Purple Cuthions, as it one went to fleep, and not to eat. I will fland, and feed my felf here and there after the Manner of the Scythians, &c. In the mean while the Healths went merrily round, and they entertain'd one another with various Discourses. The Servants delaying to ferve up a new Courfe, Ariffancem unwilling a Moment should be lost without Divertisement, had a Buffoon introduced to make the Company merry. He began to shew a Thoufand extravagant Poftures, with his bald Head and Body all disjointed, and to chaunt Verses, in Agyptian Dialect, after which he tell to breaking his Jefts upon the Company, every Man laughing at what was faid, and taking all in good part. The last Service was brought up, which was to every Man a Fowl and a piece of Venison, Fish and the Disert; in a word, 'everything that might be honeftly eat or car-

COG

COGNOMEN, a Sirname. It was properly; mily, abdicated his Confulfhip, and retired to gree in the same race in eadem gente. For ex- might be banished out of Rome. ample, when Livy faid that the race of the Potitians was divided in twelve Families; for Gens to the Assembly of some Societies and Corporaand Familia, were as the whole, and its parts. Those that were of the race were called Genrile; and those of the same Line or Family were ly called Colleges, that had their Patrons and called Agnati: As we may observe in the Royal Governors. They were Instituted by Muma, Race of France, often divided in several Bran- COLLEGIUM AURIGARIOthe Family, cognomen familia.

humanitatem & prudentiam intelligo.

are no Sirnames that we call cognomina, and di- the Winter, covered with Ice and Snow. flinguish the Families, but were given at first COLLEGIUM AUGURUM, The given upon some like account.

Name of the Race, or the Tribes in the Abla- of nine persons till the time of Sylla, who intive case, as C. Verres Romales; Servius Sulpitius creas'd their number to fifteen according to Flo-Lemonia; that is, ex Romulea ex Lemonia Tribu,

The Romans plac'd fometimes the Sirname of COLLEGIUM ESCULAPII and And sometimes the Sirnames became Names, they entertained one another. as Valerius Maximus tells us.

the remainders whereof are yet feen at Rome.

bus. But Collatinus being of the Tarquinian Fa- ros was given to Silwanus, in an ancient Inscrip-

the name that diftinguish'd the lines of a Pedi- Alba, that all called by the Name of Tarquinius

COLLEGIUM, College, A Name given tions. The Romans had Companies of Workmen, Tradefinen and other Callings, formerches, as Valois, Bourbon, Orleans, Montpenfer, &c. RUM and AURIGARUM, The College, fo when 'tis faid the Family of the Cafars was of of the Coachmen, who in the publick Games of the Julian Race, Julian is the general Name of the Circle, disputed with their Adversaries, the Race, nomen gentis, and Cefar is the Name of the Prize proposed to the best Drivers. They composed Colleges or Societies, that were di-The word Cognomen includes also the Sirnames stinguished one from another by Colours : Gregiven upon some particular account, as when ter in his Inscriptions mentions sour princi-Salult fays of Scipio; Massinissa in amicitiam recep- pal colours, Russatam the red; Prasmam the ins a Public Scipione, cui postes Africano common green; Ventana the blue; Albatam the white. Tis thought the Ancients would represent by who was Sirnamed Atticus, because he had been these colours, the four Seasons of the Year, in brought up a Scholar at Athem, tells him; which Nature puts on new cloaths; each Par-Teque non cognomen Athenis folum deportaffe, fed ty representing a Season by his colour : The Green represented the Spring, the Red the Sum-If we consider this, we shall find that there mer, the Blue the Autumn, and the White upon some particular occasion, seeing the pro- College of the Augurs: Romulus was the first Instiper Names themselves, prammina, were at first tutor of this College, which was composed of three Men, to whom Servius Tullius added ano-These Sirnames were hereditary to all the ther; and it continued so till the Year 454, posterity of the same Family; however, they for then, during the Consulthin of Q. Apuleius might change them, or add some other new Pansa and M. Valerius Corvinus, the Tribunes of the Name to them; and fometimes, besides the People created five Men more, taken out of the Name of the private Family, they took the people: And now this College was composed rus, or twenty four according to Alexander ab Alex.

the private Family before the general Name, HYGIR, The College of Biculapius and eignomen antenomen gentis, fays Manucius; and fo Health, It was a Society or Congregation of 60 Tully said Gallo, Balbi Cornelii, Papum Emilium; persons, who at certain days in the Year met and Livy, Paulus Æmilius Cos, and the like; tho' at an appointed place to offer Sacrifices, in the Gallus, Balbus, Papus and Paulus were the Sir- behalf of those that were willing to implore names of a Family, and not the Forenames, the help of Esculapius and Health, and there

COLLEGIUM DENDROPHO. COLISEUM, 'tis the Amphitheater that RORUM, The College of the Dendrophori. This Vepatianus built in Rome, and his Son Titus De- College is often recorded in the Ancient Indicated. Philander's opinion is, that this word scriptions upon Marble, and yet 'tis hardly Califeum, is faid, quasi coloseum, because of Nero's known what fort of people these Dendrophori Gloss that was near it; tho' that Name be nei-were. The Learned are divided upon this ther general nor common to other Amphithea- point. Salmafius in his Commentaries upon ters, but particular to that famous Amphytheater, the life of Caracalla, written by Sparfianus fays, that the Dendrophori were those Men, who in COLLATINUS, Simamed Tarquinius, the processions made in the honour of the Lucretia's Husband, the first Man that was made Gods, carried Branches of Trees, accord-Conful with Junius Brutus, after the Kings were ing to the Ætymology of the word Dendriven away out of Rome, for the Rape commit- drophores feropopop , which fignifies, he that carted on Lucretia, by the Son of Tarquinius Super- ries a Tree; wherefore the Epithet of Dendropliocommonly represented carrying a Branch of a on the reverse whereof we read Genie Colonie Pine-tree, or some other tree.

The title of the Theodolian Codex, concerning the Heathen and their Temples, feems to fa- in Ionia, especially for the antient Temple of vour this opinion in the 20th Law. "TIS just, Apollo Clarianus, which (if we except that of fays the Text, that all the places, that the Ephefus) was the most remarkable of all Ionis, "Dendropheri, and other Heathen Professions have tho it was not quite finished, as Pausanias tella possessed, and were appointed for the keep- us, in his Achaicks, but yet very famous for "ing of Feafts and distribution of Money, be the Oracles that Apollo pronounced there. The Temple was not built in Colopbon itself, but in ing first banished the Error that had given Clares, a little Town in the Territory of Cale "birth to them. According to this opinion phon. There was also a Mountain and a Wood Dendrophori was not the name of a Trade, but dedicated to Apollo Clarianus. of Religion or Superstition.

part of the Learned hold, is not unlikely, for Coloss of Rhoder was a statue of Apollo, so high, they fay that the Dendroph:ri were Timber- that Ships past with full Sails betwixt its Legs. Merchants, who dealt especially for the use of It was the workmanship of Chares, Disciple of the War and Engines. Wherefore they were the renowned Lysippus; he was 12 years about commonly joined in the same College, with it, and it was overthrown by an Earthquake those that had the care of the Engines and ne 56 years after it was erected; they loaded 000 ceffary Timber for the Camp, called Fabri, and Camels with the Brass this Coloss was made even with those called Gentonarii, which was a of. The basis that supported the statue, was of Trade for the War. These Centimarii were a Triangular Figure, its extremities were fijoined together with them, in the 8th Title of Stained with 60 Pillars of Marble. There the Theedestan Codex, by which the Emperor was a winding Stair-case to go up to the too Constantine commands, that in all the Towns of it; from that place one may discover smia where the Dendropheri shall be found, they shall and the Ships that went into Egyps, in a great be received into, and re-united to the Corpo- Looking-glass that was hung about the next nation of the Centonarii and Master Builders, of the statue. called Fabri. 'Tis true, that from hence we COLUMNA, Around Pillar to bearm cannot certainly know what was their Trade. a Building, or adorn it. There are Pillan but it seems that it was a Society of Workmen, made of Wood, Stone, Marble, Brass, Jasper. who had a near relation with those that sup- Lapis Lazuli, &c. There are some wreathed plied the things necessary for the Camp; where- channelled, detached, &c. to make them apfore they were created by the Senate, or were pear bigger, or more agreeable to the fight. under the direction of a Quindecim-Vir, or one of The diversity of these Pillars give the name to the Fifteen Men, whose Office is fully descri- the five orders of Architecture; the Tuscan. bed in another place.

Military Trade, were those Men who fur- 127 Pillars all of a piece, and 60 Foot high, nished the Army with Tents, and other train which had been erected at the charges of in of War, called by the Romans Centones.

The College of the Masters of the Timber | COLUMNA TRAJANI, The Piand warlike Engines, called Fabri and Tignarii, lar of Trajan. This Pillar was fet up in the was a Body of Workmen, who furnished the middle of a place that the Emperor Trajan had Timber necessary for the Army both by Sea adorned. It was 128 Foot high; they went my and Land.

no at Rome upon Mount Quirinal, near the Tem- it in baffo relieve, the noble Acts of that Prince up of some Inhabitants of Rame, who were sent Parthians; and after his death they brough into the conquered Towns, built without the his Ashes in a'Golden Urn from Seleucia, a Town City of Rome. These Colonies were called after in Syria, where he dyed, and placed the Urn on the Names of the Emperors that founded them, the top of the Pillar. not only by the general Name of Cesar or Au-gustum, for these Titles were common to all the Pillar of Antoninus. This Pillar was in the Field Emperors; but were also called by their pro- of Mars, and was 176 foot high, with a Stairper Names that diftinguished them from their case of 106 steps, and 56 Windows, and a status Ancestors; fo the Colony of Patras is called at the top of it representing Antoninus.

tion recorded by Gruter, because this God is Neroniana, in a Medal that we have of Nero. Nermiana Patrenfis.

COLOPHON. A Town very famous

COLOSSUS, A Coloss, a statue of a However, the contrary opinion, which most Prodigious size, and the shape of a Gyant. The ed in another place.

Dorick, Ionick, Corinthum and Composite
The College of the Centonarii, which was a

In the Temple of Diana of Ephofus, there was many Kings.

to it by a Stair-case of 185 Steps, and 45 Win-COLLINA PORTA, the Gate Colli- dows. There were represented round about The Senate fet up this Pillar in honour d COLONIÆ, Colonies; they were made Trajan, in the time of the War against the milliary Pillar; the Antients made use of this Pillar to mark out the Miles or the Leagues was raifed in the Provinces, and fent into the from one place to another.

lars of Hercules. These Pillars are two Mounthese 2 Pillars to serve for limits of his exploits. tures, and other escheats, or goods of mortmain.

Rome, where the Highways of Italy mer.

first those persons who waited on the Magi- fore the Emperor Gordian's time some compafirates in Provinces, as Treasurers, Lieute- nies of Guards, but he raised some more, both nants, Secretaries, Provosts, Registers, and all horse and foot, for his own guard, to attend other inferour Officers, whereof we have always his person, wherefore they were called many instances, even in the time of the Com- Protestores domestici presentales. They were in all monwealth. In the Emperor's time this word 3500 chosen and strong men, born in Armenia. was employed to express those that were of Justinianus added to that number 2000 more. the Family, or the attendance of the Prince; who were called Supernumerarii. They were according to this fignification, the Councellours commanded by three Officers, the first was of State were called COMITES CON- Comes, the second Tribunus Protettorum, and the ŠISTORIANI.

COMES ORIENTIS, The Go-15 Provinces under his Government, and the for the maintenance of the Prince. particular Governours gave him an account according to their mildemeanour.

the Provinces.

is now in England.

der, who was called Comes or Caput Schole.

ralities or alms of the Prince, which he destri- the Forum Romanum, or the place of Rome. buted among the Souldiers and the people. In This place was covered, and there was a ted two Treasurers to manage his Reve- Romans were ingaged in. From this place

COLUMNA MILLIARIS, Alnues, and both were called Comites. The fond of this grant or bounty money Prince's Coffers, called Arca Largitionum; the COLUMN & HERCULIS, The Pil-collectors established to collect this money were called Exactores, Canonicarii. tains lituated at the mouth of the straight of COMES PRIVATARUM RERUM Gibraltar, one called Calpe, the other Abyla, both DOMUS DIVIN Æ, The Treaturer of oppolite one to another The fabulous Anti- the cafual forfeltures: He gathered the money quity thought that Herculet himself had set up that fell to the Prince by chance, as forfei-

COLUMNA AUGUSTI, The gol- COMES DOMESTICORUM Eden Milliary, a pillar that Augustus fet up in QUITUM & PEDITUM, A Collonel of the Archers of the Emperors guards, esta-COMES. This word Comes fignified at blifhed by the young Gordian. There were bethird Primicerius Protestorum.

COMES PATRIMONIJ, Treavernour of the East. This Governour had furer of the Demesn, he received the money

COMES CASTRENSIS BALAof their respective administration, and if any TIJ, The Lord High Steward of the Princes of their had prevarricated, he punished them Houshold. Hetook care of the Prince's Table, and commanded all the Officers and wait-COMES REI MILITARIS, He ing Gentlemen of the House, called in genecommanded the Soldlers in the Armies, and ral Mensores, i. e. Mensa Regis Servientes; he comhad an equal authority with the Captains of manded also the Lampadorij, i.e. those that lookt after and carried the Lamps, &c.

COMES STABULI, The Great Ma- COMITIA. Affemblies of people , fter of the Horse. He was to take care that which were threefold; for either they were the Provinces should deliver the Horses, that made up by Wards or Carie, and then were they did owe every year to the Emperor , called Comitia Curiata, or by Tribes Comitia wherefore these Hories were called Equi Cano- Tributa, or by hundreds, Comitia Centuriata, acnici. This Officer was very much respected in cording to the division of the Roman ,cople. the Roman Empire, as the Great Constable was In the first Assembly, where they chuse the formerly in France, or the Muster of the Horse inferiour Magistrates, no man was allowed to vote but the Citizens of Rome. In the two o-COMES SCHOLARUM. This Of-ther Affemblies, not only the Citizens of ficer was an inspector over all the subaltern Rome had a right to vote, but also the Inhabi-Officers of the Emperor: there were eleven tants of the Colonies and Municipal Towns. classes of them, that were employed about the In these great Assemblies they chose the great Affairs of the Prince, in the Provinces and the Magistrates, and took into consideration the Armies. Each classis had his chief Comman- most important affairs of the Commonwealth. Vide infra Centuriata, Curiata, and Tributa ..

COMES SACRARUM LARGITI- COMITIUM, The place where the ONUM, The Treasurer of the gifts and libe- Assemblies met at Rome. It was one side of the time of the Commonwealth these Treasu-kind of Scaffold or High and spacious Theatre ters were called Questors. Some Emperors called the place f r Orations, adorned with suppressed them, and some others restored Bows, or four Decks of Ships taken from the them again; but Conflantme the Great institu- Antiates, in the first memorable Sea-figh: the

they administred Justice, made Speeches, pro- | a Roman Emperor. The Inclinations of his poted Laws to the people, and generally mind were worfe than the Shape of his Bomade all their deliberations with them. There dy; for he had nothing of his Fathers good they did choose also most part of their Magi- nature, tho his Face had something of his frates, wherefore the Candidates when they features. His cruelties and debaucheries, in came to this place, used to lay aside all their opposite to the clemency, sobriety and wisdom grandeur, and shewed themselves familiar with of Marcus Aurelius, perswaded the people than all forts of people, careffing and intreating he was not his legitimate Son, ad that his fome of them, bribing the others, and making Mother had got him by a Gladiator, whom their best to get a vote, being accompanied in she loved : and really he pretended to bea these occasions by such of their friends and skilful Gladiator himself, a good Coachman relations who had the greatest interest.

article. posed with art, either in prose or verses, to re- Marcus Aurelius took notice of his ill nature, present some humane action, agreeable and and used all his endeavours to correct it, having not cruel. The Comedy was first acted in provided the best Masters for him, but nature tome Villages, as it appears by the word the word the villages, as it appears by the word the villages and the villages are villages. The villages are villages are villages and the villages are villages and the villages are villages. Polydorus Virgil and Ludovicus Vives affirm that men about him, because their presence and the Remans had their Comedy from the Greeks. care were troublesome to him, and a bridle to The first representation of Comedy at Rome his loose way of living. His vanity was was under the Confulship of Caius Sulpitius Peti- brought to such an excess, that he would be cus, and Caius Licinius Stolon, 390 years fince the | called the young Jupiter, and the Roman Hercufoundation of Rome, and 364 before the co- ler, affecting with an unparallelled Foppery to ining of our Saviour. They were afted for dress himself in a Lions Skin, and to wear a the first time in the Island of the River Tiber, massy Club like Hercules. At last Commediu beand afterwards upon Stages, Miffala and Caffius, came fo incommodious to all Mankind, that he one of Cafar's Murtherers, being then Cen- was kill'd by his own Servants, they not being fors; as 'tis related by Valerius Maximus Appia- able to bear any longer his extravagancies. The nus, and St Auftin, l. 1. de civitate Dei.

"that which is entituled Plutus, he tells us, that livered from a Monster, and an enemy to "that God, having at first a clear fight, did look all men. " only upon just men, but that Jupiter having "blinded him. Riches fince that time are in- a thousand Encomiums, so far, that they cal-" differently thared among good and bad men. led his Reign the Golden Age, and bestowed "It was fome time after attempted to reco- upon him the Epither of Hertules, calling him "ver his fight, but Penia, which is poverty it- the invincible and the Peace-maker of Man-" felf opposed it, shewing that Poverty being kind. There remains still a Medal of this " the Mistress of Arts, Sciences and Vertues, ambitious Prince stampt at Nicca, with these "they would be in danger of being loft if all words written in the Ring thereof. Be-"men were rich. They would not hearken to Gileury TO Repued's d Rootlo Euturne, i.e. All the "her wholtom advice, Plutus recovered his world was happy under the Empire of Commo-"fight in the Temple of Esculapius, and from dus. " that time the Temples and the Altars of the "Gods, even of Tove himfelf, were forfaken, Medal, and of another great one of Brass, both " all men facrificing to the only Plutus.

The ancient Comedy was a Satyr, to banish vice, and countenance virtue.

kept within the bounds of Laws, lege regi, he Skin, and called Hercules Commodianus, and to doth not fay that it should be suppressed.

Fiftions as the Modern have done fince, but ploit he had performed at Sea; the other Firepresented the dealings of men, not sparing gure represents a Woman, whose head isdrefeven the names of persons.

and a good Player. Some Authors give this COMMODUS. See after the following description of him, that he had a wild look sparkling eyes, and an ill composed discourse. COMOEDIA, a Comedy, a Play com- like a Drunkard, whose actions he was imitating. Senate and the people did express an extraor-Ariflophanes has excelled in Comedies; in dinary joy for the fame, feeing themfelves de-

During his life, they flattered him with

We have befides on the reverse of a Golden stampt for the same Emperor. these words. PROVIDENTIÆ AUG. with two flands ing Figures, one representing Commodus like When Horace fays that Comedy should be Hercules (for he affected to be dressed in a Lions have Sacrifices offered unto himself as if he Donatus affures us, in his Book concerning had been a God) his right Foot upon the fore Comedy, that antient Poets did not bring in Deck of a Ship, in remembrance of fome exfed in an Elephants Skin, with a Serpent at COMMODUS, Son to Mircus Aurelius, her Feet, which was the ordinary emblem, the in Elephants. She prefents Commodus with a "many Balls as there was Slaves, and as many handful of Ears of Corn, to flew the vigilancy "Effigies as there were free Persons in the Faof that Prince in fending to Africa and Egypt " milies, that they might not hurt the Living, for the Corn that Italy and the whole Empire |" and be contented with these Offerings. Alexandria ever fince the time of Augustus.

Ouiver, with this motto HERCULI RO- moleftus Familia.

MANO AUGUSTO. "Hercules, Rontifex Maximus, Tribunitia poteflati mong Feaftings and Pleafures. "XVIII. Imperator VIII. Conful VII. Pater " Senatuique Commodiano felies l'alutem.

gemans used to represent Africa abundant " & finularis content; they offered them as might stand in need of. Wherefore Lampridius | Dioxysius Halicarnasseus tells us in his Antiquifays in the life of Commodus, that he fitted out ties, that this Feaft was celebrated after the Saa fleet every year for Africa, that in case the furnalia, viz. at the beginning of January, and Corn of Alexandria fell short, they might be that it was proclaimed in these words, Die nono Supplied from Africa. Before the Reign post Kalend. Jan. Quiritibus Compitalia erunt. This of Commodus, they fent out of Haly to fetch Corn Feast was kept by the Slaves, according to the from Africa, but there was neither a Company Institution of Servins, in remembrance of his of Corn Merchants fettled, nora Fleet appoint. Fortune, that being born a Slave, yet he beed for that purpose, as there has been one for came King of the Romans. And Tally fays, in the 7th Book of his Epiftles to Actions, that he There was also Gold, Sliver and Brass frampt would not go into the House of Albus. left he by the order of Commodus, whereon his Head is should be troublesom to his Slaves, who were represented covered with a Lions skin, and on about Solemnizing the Compitalia, Ego quoniam the reverse appear a Bow and Arrows, and a Compitalitius dies eft, nolo eo die in Albanum venire

COMUS, the God of rejoycing and feaft-He delign'd to change the name of the City ing, and President at Dances and Debaucheries. of Rome, and have her called after his name Philostratus in the third Book of his Pictures, re-Commodisma, and therefore in his Letters he prefents him young and fair, with a red face took the following titles, "Imperator Casar Lu-by too much drinking, a lighted Flamboy in "sius Elius Aurelius Commodus Augullus, Pius, his hand, which he holds down to the very "Felix, Sarmaticus, Germanicus, Maximus, Bri- ground, and feems to burn his Legs with it. "tannicus, Paccator orbis terrarum Invictus, Romanus He is crowned with Garlands of Flowers, a-

CONCORDIA, Concord; a Divini-"Patria: Confulibus, Pratoribus, Tribunis Plebis ty much respected among the Romans, Tiberius dedicated her a Temple in Rome, which he COMPITALIA. The Feast's institutional built by order of Livia his Mother. On the ted by Serving, which were commonly kent in Coin or the Medals of the Emperors, there is the January, the day before the Ides (which is the figure of Concord, holding up a Cupwith one twelfth day of the month) and in May the fixth hand, and the Cornucopes, or Horn of Plenty with day before the Nones (which is the fecond day the other, to flew that plenty of all things araccording to the old Roman Calendar.) This tends a State, where the People live in good word Compitalia, comes a compies, for at fuch correspondency and concord. She is also redays in all the crofs ways both of the Town prefented by two Images holding one another and Country they offered Sacrifices to the Gods by the right hand. On the Medals of Marc-Larer, which were certain Damons, or Dome- Anthony, we fee Concord under the Emblem flick Gods, protectors or keepers of the family of two Serpents ty'd below, and raifing up in lies. Macrobius tells us in his Saturnalia, that the figure of a Bow, to compass an Altar, on they Sacrificed formerly young children to these which lies the head of Augustus, to represent the Later and Mania their mother, for the conferva- concord of the Triumvire. On the Medals tion of the whole family. But Brutus, having of Cafar Augustus, Concord holds with one expelled the Kings out of Rome, interpreted hand the Horn of Plenty, and with the other otherwise this Oracle of Apollo, ordering that the presents some Fruits to Lepidus, Anthony, instead of the heads demanded by the Oracle, and young Cefar Trium-virs, with this Motto. they should take Poppy's heads, and in this Salus Generis Humani. The Crow was particufense he would have the Oracle to be inter-larly confecrated to Concord, as Ælianus preted. And the fame Author tells us, that relates, for he tells us, that it was the cuftom instead of children, that were before immola- among the ancient Remans, when they married ted to these Gods, they made efficies of men to call upon the Crow; that is to fay, the Conand women with straw, which they did offer cord that should be between married People. in Sacrifice, with fome round woollen Policianus in his Milcellaneous Works confirms balls, for to many flaves as there was in the fa- this opinion, and tell us, that he has a Medal mily: as Feftus reports, " Quibus tot pile, quo: of the young Fauftina, Marcus Awclius's Daugh-"capita fervorum; tot effgies, quet effint liberi, po- ter, on the reverse whereof was represented a mbantur, ut vivis parterent, & effent his pills Crow, the Symbol of Concord, with the word

CONFARREATIO, the Ceremony of the Knights and Senators carried the Bed usthe Confarreation was observed in certain Mar- on their shoulders along the Holy Street, as far riages, by eating together a Cake of Wheat, as the Old Market-place, (where Magistrates Tacitus tells us, "It was the custom to Name us'd to refign their Offices) attended with three Perions of a Patrician Family, whose mournful Songs, and the notic of Instruments. "Fathers had observed in their Marriages the Afterwards they carried him out of the Town "ceremony of the Confarreation, but that into the Field of Mars, where was a Funeral " cannot be practiced now, because this Cere- Pile, dres'd and prepared with sweet Perfumes. " mony was neglected, or is too hard to be pract- The outlide of the Funeral Pile was adorn'd "ifed, or rather out of the little care they took with Joiners Work, and rich Stuffs embroider-" of things belonging to Religion, or in fine, ed with Gold, with Ivory Statues and several " because Priests and their Wives had a right Pictures. This sumptuous Monument was di-"to be emancipated from the Paternal Au- vided in three Stories, and the Corps was laid " thority, in confequence of that Dignity.

Money, which the Roman Emperors distributed Honour of the Dead. And after the Games from time to time among the People, and this were over, the Successor to the Empire, hold-Liberality was called among the Lasins Congiari- ing in his Hand a burning Torch, fet the Faum; but the largeffes that the Emperors bestow- neral Pile on fire, and immediately after an ed among the Soldiers were called Donatioum. Eagle was feen flying up from the top of it, in Tacitus speaking of young Cafar tells us, that he the middle of the Fire and Smoak; This Eagle gave the Congiarium to the People, and the Do- carried away the Soul of the Dead into the nat. wam to the Soldiers, Congiarium populo, Dona- | company of the Immortal Gods (as they thought) tivum Militibus dedit. During his Reign he be- and then presently they worshipped him, eredflowed often this Liberality upon the People, ed Altars to his Honour, and ordained Priests and gave them thirty little Sefferces to each of and Sacrifices for him at Rome, and the other them, sometimes 40, and sometimes 150, as Cities of the Empire. Seneca makes a pleasant 'tis recorded by Suetonius. Children were not Jest upon the Apotheosis or Deisication of Clarexcluded of this Liberality in the Reign of Au- dius, which deserves to be the Readers curiofity. gustus, though before that time, Children that | CONSECRATIO PONTIFIwere not above twelve Years old, had no fhare C U M. The confectation of the Roman Pontiffe

ing fix Sextaries, the Sextary two Hemines, and They let him down into a hole, drefled in the Hemine nine Ounces, and was about his Priestly habit, and covered the hole with our Gallon.

nifies Duft. There was some dust kept in this ther Ministers attending the Sacrifices, brought place for the Wrestlers, who were used to upon the plank a Bull adorned with Garforead some upon one another, that they might lands of Flowers, and having thrust the take a better hold upon the anointed Bodies of Knife into his Throat, his blood was their fellow-wrestlers.

CONSECRATIO, a Confecration of the Roman Emperors by the Senate and the People after the Emperor was dead. These are the littlelf with it. After this ceremony, they took Ceremonies observed at this Consecration or Deification, at they are related by Herodianus.

The Emperour being dead, the whole City fad and mornful was complaining of her lofs. him to his Houfe, where was a great Feet They fet a waxen Statue of the Emperor upon a Bed of State, at the entry of the Imperial Palace: The Senators were at the left hand dreis'd in Mourning Cloaths, and on the Right flood the Roman Ladies dress'd in whiteCloaths, keeping all a fad and mournful filence for feven Mire infulatus festa vittis tempora Day together. During that time, the Phylici- Nectens, corona tum repexus aurea, ans came from time to time to feel the Pulle of | Cinita Gabinio Seried fultur rega : the Patient, faying that his Illness was worse Tabulis Superne firata texunt pulpita, and worfe. The feventh day being expired, Rimola rari pigmatis compagibus, they published his Death, and all things being | Scindart fubiate wel terebrant aream, prepared for his Obsequies, the chief among crebroque lignon perforant acumuns.

in the middle one; then they began the Horfe. CONGIARIUM, a certain Sum of Race, and the Fights of the Gladiators in Prudentius relates in what manner the highest CONGIUS, a kind of Measure contain- Priest was consecrated among the Pagent. a plank bored through in many places; then CONISTERIUM, nores in Greek fig- the Vidimarius, or the Butcher-prieft, and the ofhed, poured upon the plank, and dropt down through the holes of it upon the Pont ff, who did rub his Eyes, Nofe, Ears, and his Tongue him out of the hole allover bloody, and faluted him with their words , Salve Pontifex Maxim; and having changed his cloaths, conducted ready for them, the description whereof we have from Macrob.

> Summus Sacerdos nempe sub terram scrobe Acid in profundum confecrandus mergitur, Pateat minutis ut frequens hiatibur : Huctaurus ingens fronte torva & hifpida Satis revinctus aut per armos floreis. Aut impeditus cornibus, deducitur : Hicut flatuta eft immolanda bellua. Pellus facrato dividunt venabulo. Eruffat amplum vulnus undam fanguinis Ferventis, inque texta pontis subditi Fundit vaporum flumen & late afluat. Tam per frequentes mille rimarum vias Maplus imber tabidum rorem pluit, Defoffics inthe quem Jacerdos excipit Guttas ad ommes, flurpe Subjectiani caput, Et vefte & omni putrefactus corpore ; Oui nos Supinat, obvias offert genas, Supponit aures, labra, nares objicit, Oculos & ipfos proluit liquoribus, Nec jam palato parcit, & linguam rigat ; Postquam cadaver sanguine egesto rigens Compage ab illa Flamines retraxerint, Procedit inde Pontifex visu herridus, Oftentat udum verticem, barbam gravem, Omnes falutant atque adorant entilis.

CONSENTES DII. They were Gods which the Heathens thought Members of the Councils of the Gods, and principally of Jupiter. St August lib. 4. de civit. Dei. cap. 23.

CONSTANTINUS, firnamed MAG-NUS. Confiantine the Great, Son to Confianti- Lucius Junius Brutus, and Lucius Tarquinius Collatiwand Helena. He defeated Maxentius the Ty-1 nus, were created Confuls in the year of the rant with the standard of the cross, the fign | creation of the world 3545, Julian Period 4205, whereof appeared to him in the air, with these before the birth of our Saviour 509, and from words written upon it, er Touravina, in hoc the foundation of Rome 244. Tarquinius Collavince. He was instructed in the Christian Religion, and baptized by Silvester Bishop of Rome. He gave liberty to the Christians, built many Churches, and endowed them very richly. He gave to Pope Silvest r and his Succeffors the City of Rome to be their own, with all the Imperial Badges, after he had transferred the Seat of the Empire to Constantinople, called the New Rome He died in the fixty fixth year of his Age, and the 31st of his Reign.

CONSUALIA. Feafts infliruted by Romalus, according to Livy, when he stole the Sabine Virgins; for he had found an Altar under ground, favs Plutarch, dedicated to God Confus, or the God of Counsel; and this Altar was always kept covered till the Feast of Con-Justia, when they had Horse-races in Neptune's

CONSUL, a Soveraign Roman Magifirate, that was created upon this occasion. Lucretia, Collatinus his wife, having been ravished in a country house by the fon of Tarquinius Superbus in the absence of her husband, came to Rome, and cast her feit at the feet of Sourius nius: and withal told them," 'Tis for you to "revenge your honour, for mine shall be " wash'd presently with my own blood, which " I will shed pure to the Gods. , After she had spoken these words. she thrust a Dagger into her breaft, and expired in the presence of the whole affembly. This tragick death exasperated the people, and encouraged them to attempt the recovery of their liberty, and to shake off the Royal Arthority. Wherefore they establish'd a kind of Government mixt of Aristocracy and Democracy: the people chose every year two Magistrates, whom they call'd Confuls, because they took care of their Country, and gave counsel to their Country-men. They enter'd upon this publick office the thirteenth day of December. Their garments were enrich'd with Purple, like those of the Kings : and were attended like them with Listors or Serjeants, who carried bundles of Rods or Axes; they owned no Superiours but the Gods and the Laws; but when the time of their Magiftracy was expired, they were liable to be impeached before the people, and to give an account of their administration. The Senate was the Councel of Confuls, and judg'd of all forts of affairs, but without prejudice to the right of appealing to the people.

The first Authors of the Roman Liberty, viz. tinus was put out of his Office before the year of his Confulship was expired. Brutus forc'd him to leave it off, because he was of the Tarquinian Family, and Publius Valerius was chosen in his room to fulfil his time.

The Confuls were chosen every year in the Field of Mars, by the Roman people affembled by hundreds. In the first times of the Commonwealth, no man could pretend to this dignity, but fuch as were of the Patrician Family. viz. Noblemen: but afterwards the people obtained that one of the Conful should be taken out from among them, and Sextius was the first Consul chosen out of the people, notwithstanding the opposition of the Nobility, as it is related by Livy. Comitia Confulum adverta nobilitate babita, quibus L. Sextius de plebe primus Consul fastus eft, in the year 388. Plinius Junii tells us. that Liemins Stole who had been Tribune with Sextius, was the first Conful taken out of the people; but all other Authors are of a contrary opinion.

This Magistrate wore a Gown edged with purple; he had the priviledge of fitting upon Lucretius her father, and entreated him to call the Sella Curulis, or a chair of State made of his friends, before whom the plainly related Ivory, carrying in his hand a Royal Staff of how the had been abused by the son of Tarqui- Ivory, called Scipio Eberneus, with an Eagle at the top of it, as a Badge of his dignity and to Jupiter, Confulibut, que die Magistratus iniere, power. Twelve Mace-bearers went before immedantibus singulis Jovi broven, ut soles. The him for a months time, (for the Confuls had Sacrifice being over, they came down to the agreed among themselves, that the Twelve Senate with the same attendance, where, in Mace-bearers should go only before one of the time of the Emperors, they gave thanks to them, lest they should fright the people) the Emperor, and took the Oath of Allegiwhich time being expired, there should be ance; and few days after thanked the people then but a Sergeant walking before him, from the place appointed for publick Speeches. and the Mace-bearers should follow him, car- This ceremony ended with a largess of Money rying neither bundles of Rods nor Axes, as or Provisions, which they bestowed upon the Suctonius relates, Antiquum retulit morem, ut quo people, and fent some presents to their Friende. mense sasces non haberent, Accensus aute cum iret, which were called Munera Consultaria, and littore pone sequerentur. Which was only practiced when the Confuls were both at Rome : the Emperors Zeno and Leo, forbad these lifor in the Provinces each of them kept the beralities, and instead of it, ordered they badges of his Power.

three Years of Age, which was called Tempus people with Shews, Fights of Gladiators, Wild legitimum; but this was not always observed, Beafts, and other Spectacles, of which the Refor Valerius Corvinus was but three and twenty mans were fond almost to folly. Years old when he was chosen; Scipio Africanus was chosen at four and twenty, as also vinces where they should govern, or that the were forty three Years old.

Besides, it was requisite he should have exercifed other Offices, as that of Quaftor, Edilis, and Preter, which was no better observed than the prosperity of the Armies of the Commonthe first required condition, for Pompey had ne- wealth, then went out by the Gate through ver had been a Quelier nor Preser, when he ob- which they were to repair to their respective tained the Confulfhip.

great extent, fo long as the Commonwealth Officers likewife with their Armoury on. At subsided; as it appears by these words of the their going away, the Commonwealth fur Law of the twelve Tables, REGIO IMPERIO nished them with all things necessary for their DUO SUNTO : 11QUE PRÆEUNDO, JUDICAN- Journey, Houshold-goods, Furnitures, Cook, DO. CONSULENDO, PRÆTORES, JUDICES, Gre. Augustus paid them a Summ of Money, to CONSULES APPELLANTOR: MILITIAE SUM- furnish themselves with all these things. They MUM JUS HABENTO: NIMINI PARENTO. This were not allowed to leave their Province. gives them a Royal Power, as Tully calls it in nor the command of the Armies, without the third Book of the Laws; viz. a supream an express order from the Senate, neither be Authority above all the other Magistrates ; fa- fore their Successors were arrived there. At frigium dignitatum, fays Livy, and the same Au- their return they made a Speech to the peothor calls also their Power Immaderate & Infini- ple , which ended by a protestation that they ta potestas, an infinite and unlimited Power.

the Emperors, who took upon themselves the time of their administration. Itaque abitum whole Soveraign Power, leaving only to the Consulatu, jurafti te nibil contra leger feciffe, fuyu Confuls the badges of their dignity, and the the younger Pluy to Emperor Trajan. power of calling the Senate, and administring justice to private men.

In the last times of the Commonwealth, and under the Emperors, they entered upon was annual, except in case of death or some their Magistracy the first day of January, be- misdemeanour of the Conful; for Quintin ginning with it the year, which was called af- Cincinnatus being Dictator, forced Lucius Minn ter their name. The Senate in a Body, and tiss then Conful, to quit his office, becausebe the people, came very early to their Houses to did not prevent the Enemies from belieging warms them, then accompanied them to the him in his Camp. Captul. Spartianus calls that ceremony Official He who succeed um novorum Consulum, & Auspiciis intereffe, be- tinued no longer in it, than the time his Precause being arrived at the Capitol , they took decessor was coenjoy it; and sometimes there the Augure, and each of them facrificed an Ox was none chosen to fill up his place; for when should pay a certain summ for the repairing of A Conful was commonly chosen, at Forty the Aqueducts. They used also to entertain the

After they had drawn Lots about the Pro-Marius, Pompey and Augustus, all before they Senate and the people had appointed them without drawing Lots, (which was fometimes practiced) they went to the Capitol to make their vows and prayers, nuncupabat wota, for Provinces, having put on their Armour, and Their Authority and Power was of a very attended by their Mace-bearers, and other had done nothing, neither against the Laws But this authority was much leffened under nor the good of the Commonwealth in all the

CONSUL ATUS, The Confulfhip, the office or dignity of a Conful. During the time of the Commonwealth, the Confulfhis

He who fucceeded the deposed Conful, con-

Cima was killed, Carbo his Colleague ferved | chofe every year two Soveraign Magistrates, out his time; as also Sextus Cafar in the room | called Confuls, because they bestowed their of Rutilius his Colleague, killed in the War of Counfels and care upon their Country. Their the Confederates.

alteration in the year DCCVIII. of the foundation of Rome: for having quitted his Confulfhip before his year was out, to finish what Trebonius: and the first of them being dead the last day of his Consulship, he put in his room Caninius, for the remainder of that day : and this gave occasion to Tully, to say of him in a joking way, "that he had shown so great a vigi-"lancy in his Confulfhip, that he never flept "all the while he was Conful.

Augustus followed the example of his Predeceffor, that he might gratify many people, as Sustanius fays in his life; for of his fix Confulfhips, fome lasted nine months, fome six, fome others four or three months. Tiberius and Claudius shortened yet this time, and the Emperor Commodus made five and twenty Confuls in one year.

Yet, to keep fomething of the antient cuftom, they chose always a Conful at the Caends of January, and the year was called after his name. He was called Conful ordinarius, the others were called Suffetti. This explains us what Suetonius fays in the life of Domitianus, In fex Consulatious unum ordinarium tantum geffit; and what Symmachus fays, Delatus eft a clemenmade Conful the first of January.

should be for a whole year, making yet some titular Confuls, as Julius Cefar had done, ac- tia. cording to Suetonius.

Caffiedorus relates a formular made use of by the Emperors in conferring the dignity of a Conful, which may be feen lib. 6. Ep. 21.

A Catalogue of the Roman Confuls.

And an Abridgment of all the memorable deeds, that were transacted during their respective Consulate.

He Romans having driven away Terquimius Superbus, refolved never to fuffer any more the Government of Kings, and established a kind of Government mixt of Calendars of the Capital record two Con-

authority was equal, and had no other limits, Under the Reign of the Emperors the time but the time. They were cloathed with purof the Confulship was not fixed, it lasted often | ple like Kings, and had Serjeants as well as but two or three months, and sometimes lon- they, or Mace-bearers, carrying bundles of ger. Dien tells us, that Julius Cefar made this Rods with an Ax bound up in the midft of them, owning no Superiours but the Gods and the Laws. The Senate was the Council of the Confuls, and judged of all forts of afremained of it, he created 2. Fabius and C. fairs; but there was appeal from them to the people. They had also other Judges and inferiour Magistrates, of whom we shall speak in the fequel of this Book. This change happened in the year of the creation of the world 3545. of the foundation of Rome 244. and before the birth of our Saviour 509.

The first Consuls were the Authors of the publick liberty, viz. LUCIUS JUNIUS BRUTUS, and LUCIUS TARQUINIUS COLLATINUS ; This last was not only forced to quit his Confulship, but also to go out of Rome, because his name was the same with that of the banished Tarquinius, and PUBLIUS VALERIUS was chosen Consul in his room, to make an end of the year.

Brutus having called the people together, and caused them to take an Oath, that they should never submit themselves to the Royal Authority; afterwards he increased the Senate with three hundred new Senators, and was killed at the head of the Hørse, fighting against Aruns Turquinius his Son. The Ladies mourned a whole year for him, because they tissimis Principibus ordinarius consulatus, he was lookt upon him as the Revenger of violated chastity in the person of Lucretia. Valerius Constanting the Great restored the antient chose for his colleague in the room of Bruther custom, and ordered that the Confulship either Titus Lucretius , as Livy says , or Spurius Lucretius Tricipitinus Father to Lucre-

> Anno Mundi 3547. Rome 246. M. HORATIUS PULVILLUS, P. VALERIUS. Horatius dedicated the Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, which Tarquinius had built: he fignalized his courage at the Siege that Perfema King of Tuscany had laid before Rome; who having feized upon Janiculum Castle attacked the Sublician Bridge which had a communication with the Town. and had almost got possession of it. but Horarius alone made head against the Enemies at the entry of the Bridge, whilst his own men were cutting it down behind him, and then threw himself down into the Tiber, and got fafe into the Town, having received no wounds in the very midft of the Darts his E. nemies flung at him.

A. M. 3548. R. 247. M. VALER VOLUSIUS. PUBLIUS POSTHUMIUS TUBERTUS. The Ariflocracy and Democracy; the people fulls after these; viz. Spur. Largius Flavus or Rulerius; Cassindorus, P. Valerius. Plutarch agrees The Consuls besieged Fidenas, and proclaimed with Livy, and adds the Sirname of Tubertus war against the Latins, who had sided with all to that of Posthumius, which Livy doth not men- the Enemies of Rome. tion. These two Consuls got two great Victories over the Sabines, for which they obtain'd T. or LAERTIUS FLAVUS. The Latins hathe Honour of publick Triumph.

A. M. 3559. R. 249. Publius Valerius, Publicels, Titus Lucretius Plutarch records this Dictator, to resist them. The Armies did en-Confulship as the fourth of Valerius, and counter near Lake Regillus, where there was a Dionysius Halicarnasseus puts M. Horatius in the bloody and obstinate Fight, and it was reported room of Iucretius. During this Confulfhip, that Gafter and Pollux had fought for the Re-Appius Claufus a Sabine, who was afterwards mans under the shape of two young Horsemen. named Claudius, came to shelter himself at Rome, and that they had themselves brought to Rome with those of his Party to the number of five the news of the Victory obtained by the Rethousand: He was received in the Senate, man. The Senate ordered the honour of Triwhere he took a place as Senator, and the freedom of Citizens was bestowed upon the other Men that came along with him, with two Acres of Ground to each of them, upon the AUGURINUS. They dedicated the Temple Banks of Anio.

A. M. 3551. R. 250. MENENIUS AGRIP-PA LANATUS, PUBLIUS POSTHUMIUS quinius and Manilius engaged seventeen Com-TUBERTUS. Valerius Publicola died in the beginning of the following Year, crowned with Glory and Bleffings; the Roman Ladies mourned for him as they did for the death of Brutus. The Sabines made an Irruption into the Roman Territories, Posthumius the Conful made head against them; but they forc'd him to retire to a disadvantageous place, where they NUS. This Year was very fortunate to the bessey d'him; yet Agrippa's Colleague got him Commonwealth. The Letin, weakned by maoff, and vanquish'd the Sabines. The great ny frequent losses, banished out of their Coun-Triumph was decreed to Agripps, and the leffer try Tarquinius Superbus, being then fourfcore and called Ovatio to Posthamius.

A. M. 3552. R 251. VIRGINIUS OPI-TER TRICOSTUS. SPUR. CASSIUS VI- Cume at the Court of Ariftodemu, where he CELLINUS. These Confuls defeated the Arun- died few days after. All the Roman people tions, and cut off the Head of all their Ge- were reduced to thirty one Tribes. The Sanerals, after they had led them in Triumph. bines renewed the War. The Senate created a The Lands of the Arunians were destributed to Dictator to maintain it, viz. Aulus Posthumin the People, to punish them for the plunder A Company of Merchants was settled at Reme. they had committed in the Reman Country.

dorus reckons two Years less; but this supputa- to bring them to an Agreement, appointed tion agrees with Eutropius. Upon the rumour the People to decide their Quarrel, who be that Manilius, Tarquinius's Son-in-law, was mak- flowed that honour upon M. Lefforius a private ing a powerful League against the Romans to ancient Centurion. restore Tarquinius, the Senate re-united the authority of the Confuls, in the person of one Magistrate whom they created, and called him Diffator. He had power of life and death over by the indebted persons was renew'd, and bethe Romans, and had four and twenty Li- came so strong, that a Dictator was created to Stors walking before him. The first that quell it. Upon the rumor of this domestick; was honour'd with this Office, was T. Largius. diforder, the Sabini, the Equi, and the Volks during which all things were quiet.

There was nothing confiderable done this year,

*, and T. Heremius Aguilinus: and instead A.M. 3555. R. 254. T. ÆBUTIUS HELof Marcus, the Roman Calendars record T. Va- LUA, C. or L. or P. VETURIUS GEMINUS.

A. M. 3556. R. 255. CLELIUS SICULUS. ving made a Confederacy with the people called Volce, the Romans made Aulus Postbumius umph to the Dictator.

A. M. 3557. R. 256. AULUS SEMPRO-NIUS ATTRATINUS, M. MINUTIUS of Saturn, and instituted the Feasts called Saturnalia for the 17th day of December. Tatmonalties of the Latins against Rome.

A. M. 3558. R. 257. AULUS POSTHU. MIUS ALBUS REGILLENSIS, T. VIRGI-NIUS TRICOSTUS. A War was proclaimed against the Volce.

A. M. 3559. R. 258. APPIUS CLAUDI-US SABICUS, M. or P. SERVILIUS PRISten years old, as being the author of their Miffortunes. This unfortunate Prince retired to and the Temple of Mercurius their Patron was A. M. 3553. R. 252. POSTHUMIUS CA-dedicated. The Honour of this Dedication MINUS ARUNCUS, T. LAERTIUS. Caffe-was contested by the two Confuls, the Senate

A. M. 3560. R. 259. AUL. or C. VIRGINI-US COELIMONTANUS, T. VETUSIUS VETURIUS GEMINUS. The Sedition rais'd A. M. 3554. R. 253. SERVIUS SULPITI- confederated themselves, and took the Field; US, M. TULLUS or TULLIUS LONGUS. and as the Confuls would raise Forces to march. against their Enemies, the People refus'd to iff themselves, and retir'd in a body upon the

which was the greatest Army that ever Rome giving over the facking of Rome. had on foot, and defeated the Volca.

Mountain, four Miles from Rome: Menenius for the years of the World 3565 and 3566. it; but if the Members should cease to afford the Heruici. to the deliberation of the Senare, and the orders by the Emperor Nerva; but they concern the of the Confuls. Nothing could be concluded limits of the Lands, and have no regard to the without their confent, which they notified by Divisions thereof. putting a T below the order; and on the con- A. M. 3569. R. 268. SERGIUS CORNE-

in Sicily.

unequal distribution of the Corn that was a Statue in the Temple of Ceres. that were tent to him, nor hearken to the ad- lated it himself in the ninth.

Mounts Esquilinus and Aventinus. The Soldiers vice of the Pontiffs; but only was prevailed likewise refus'd to take the Oath: Upon this with by the Prayers of Veturia his Mother, and the Senate was forc'd to create M. Valerius Dicta- Volumnia his Wife. Wherefore he brought tor, Publicola his Brother, who pacified all the Volce again into their Country; but a while things, being extreamly lov'd by the People after they put him to death, because he had and Souldiers; he rais'd ten compleat Legions, berray'd them, in quitting their Conquests, and ad on foot, and defeated the Volca.

A. M. 3564. R. 263. SPUR. NAUTIUS

A. M. 3561. R. 260. SPURIUS CASSIUS RUTILIUS, SEXTUS FURIUS MEDUL-VICELLÍNUS, POSTHUMIUS CAMINUS LINUS. The Calendars of the Capitol reckon ARUNCUS. The people in a mutiny against two Consuls before these, and mention Q. P. the Senate, went out of Rome, and incamped Sulpitius Camerinus, Spurius Largius of Laertius Flain a tumultuous manner upon the facred vus: C. Julius Julus, and P. Pinarius Mamertinus.

Agrippa, a very eloquent man, went to the fa- A. M. 3567. R. 266. T. SICCINIUS ABIcred Mountain, where he represented to the NUS, C. AQUILIUS TUSCUS. The first people, that the whole Commonwealth was Conful made war against the Volce, but got no but one Body, whereof the Senate was the great advantage over them, fays Livy, tho' Di-Head and the Stomach, which alone feem'd to onyfius Halicarnaffeus affirms that he throughly defivallow down all that the firength and the skill feated them; the Roman Cavalry having fought of the other parts could get, but that it was on foot at the head of the Infantry. Siccinius only in order to destribute the same to all the obtained the great Triumph, and Aquilius the rest of the Body, to nouish and strengthen Ovation for the advantages obtained over the usual aliments, they would shortly be de- A. M. 3568. R. 267. SPURIUS CASSIUS prived themselves of strength, heat, and life it VICELLINUS, PROCULUS VIRGINIUS felf. The People having hearkened to this just TRICOSTUS. Cassius propos'd the Agrariancomparison, yielded to the proposals of agree- Law, which was the cause of a World of Diviment that were made to him, whereof the fions at Rome. This Law ordered that all the chiefest was, that popular Magistrates should Lands gain'd from the Enemies, should be be created, who were called Tribunes of the Peo- | divided among the People; but it was rejectple, and that they should be facred and invio- ed. The Roman Civil Law mentions two Agralable. They had power to oppose themselves rian Laws, one made by Julius Cafar, the other trary, when they opposed themselves to it, LIUS MALLUGINENSIS or COSSUS, O. they did write this word leto. Their power FABIUS VIBULLANUS. The Quafters Fais more fully described under the word Tri- bius Caso and Lucius Valerius sued Cassius, and impeach'd him for high Treason; which was pro-A. M. 1562. R. 261. T. GEGANIUS MA- ved against him, and he was thrown headlong CERINUS, P. MINUCIUS AUGURINUS, from the Tarpeian Rock at the end of his Con-Rome was afflicted with great Dearth, which fulfhip: Some were for punishing his Crime grew still more raging by the injustice of Ari- even in the persons of his Children, but they flodemus, Tyrant of Cume, who feiz'd upon the could not carry it; and this moderation passed Corn that the Roman Magistrates had bought afterwards for a Law at Rome, that the Crimes of the Fathers should not be punish'd in the A. M. 2562. R. 262. M. MINUTIUS AU- persons of their Children, till the time of the GURINUS, AULUS SEMPRONIUS AT Wars of Sylla and Marius. The Estate of Cassius TRATINUS. The People grumbled at the was forfeited, and applied to the fetting up a

brought to Rome. G. Marfus firmamed Corisla- A. M. 3570. R. 269. CÆSO FABIUS, L. mus from the taking of Coridi, endeavouring to EMILLIUS MAMERCUS. Caffodorus desuppress the murmuring and complaining of notes by a K. what Livy expresses by a C. Cafe. the people, was banished out of Rome. Coriola- | The Temple of Castor and Pollux was dedicated, nur retired into the Country of the Folce, and which had been devoted after the Battle on the made war against his own Country, which he Lake of Regillus. Lroy tells us, that fome Aubrought very near to its raine. He would thors before his time, affirmed that this Battle neither be perswaded by the Ambassadours was fought in the tenth Consulship, the' he re-

ВЬ 2

NUS L, VALERIUS POTITUS VOLUTIUS. means the people of Rome were cased of the The Vestal Oppia was buried alive, being con- want of Provisions, they had suffered by reason viced of Incontinency. The War of the Vol- of their troublesome Neighbourhood. The ce, obliged the Confuls to raife Forces, but Tribunes of the people renewed their inflances the Tribunes of the people opposed them : to obtain the Agrarian Law. Menenius resisted whereupon by an order of the Senate, the I- them, but they impeached him of Misdemeavory chair of the Confuls were carried out nour in his Office, whereupon he was fined of the Town, where they lifted Souldiers, twenty Crowns, but he was fo fenfibly conconfiscating the Estates of the Citizens who cerned at this affront put upon him, that he refused to obey. The Tribunes alledged the died a while after with grief. Laws agreed upon on the Sacred Mountain, A. M. 3579. R. 278. L. or C. NAUTIUS but it was to no purpose, for by the very RUTILIUS, P. VALERIUS PUBLICOLA fame Laws their power had no further extent The Tribunes, encouraged by the misfortune ofthan the compass of the Walls of Rome, so that Momenius, attempted to impeach Servilius at the their Veto was of no effect.

A. M. 3572. R. 271. Q. FABIUS VIBUL-LANUS, C. JULIUS JULUS. The War against the Volca was carried on. The Veientes made incursions into the Campania of Rome.

A. M. 3573. R. 272. K. FABIUS VIBUL-LANUS, SPUR. FURIUS FUSCUS or FU-SUS. This year Xerxes went into Greece, ac- of the Ovation. An account of the people was cording to what Dionysius Halicarnasseus relates, taken, and Rome had a hundred and three thoubut Dierus Siculus reports, that it was under the Confulfhip of Spurius Caffius, and Proculus Virginius Tricofius, which was the 24th Confulfhip; and according to his supputation the last year of the seventy third Olympiad.

A. M. 3574, R. 273, M. FABIUS VIBUL-LANUS, CNEUS MANLIUS CINCINNA-TUS. The War of the Volce, the Veientes, and demned, had not the Senate ordered Genutin the Equi, became more dangerous by the to be stabb'd in the night in his own house. conjunction of the Tascans. The Consuls to op- The people highly resented this affaipole them joined both their Armies: they engaged them, and got the victory, but with a considerable loss; wherefore the Consuls refused the Triumph, that the Senate had ordered them, being too fenfibly moved for the lofs the Commonwealth had fuffered, to be to procure a Law to be made, for the election

TILUS. This year the Fabian Family alone fo that the Law did not pass. made War against the Veientes under the command of Cafe.

A. M. 3576. R. 275. L. ÆMILIUS MA-MERCUS, C. or Q. SERVILIUS STRUCTUS Letterius, according to Dienyfius Halycarnaffen, AHALA. The Fabians continued the War against the Veientes, while the Romans were engaged with the Tuscans .

TUS. The Veientes having drawn the Fabiant to be added to the two former. into an Ambuscado, gave them such an A.M. 3584. R. 283. L. or T. VALERIUS overthrow , that of all that numerous Family POTITUS , T. ÆMILIUS MAMERCUS. only a child of fourteen years of age, Sonto The Tribunes accused Appius Claudius for despe-M. Fabius, remained alive.

A M. 3571. R. 270. M.FABIUS VIBULLA- [were driven out of the Janiculum, and by thefe-end of his Confulfhip, but he cleared himfelf of their accusation. A. M. 3580. R. 279. L. FURIUS MF. DULLINÚS, C. . Á. MANLIUS VOLSO. The Veienter bought a Truce of forty years. and parted upon that account with a great deal of Gold and Corn. Manlius received the honor

fand heads of Families

A. M. 3581. R. 280. L. ÆMILIUS MA-MERCUS, OPITER, VIRGINIUS, or VO-PISCUS, or C. JULIUS JULUS. The 2ribunes renewed their accusations against the Patricians, and Genutius one of them impeached Manlius and Furius, and they had been confination, and rose in an open sedition, and made Volero Tribune in the room of Genutius.

A. M. 3582. R. 281. L. PINARIUS MA-MERTINUS, P. FURIUS FUSUS, or ME-DULLINUS. The new Tribune Volere endeavoured defirous of the glory of a Triumph.

A. M. 3575. R. 274. K. FABIUS VIBUL-LANUS, T. VIRGINIUS TRICOSTUS RU-LANUS, RU-LA

A. M. 3583. R. 282. APPIUS CLAUDIUS

SABINUS, T. QUINTIUS CAPITOLINUS. The Tribune Victorius according to Livy, or accused Claudius as a most violent man against the Plebeians : and this accusation obliged the Senate to confent, that the election of the A M. 3577. R. 276. C. or M. HORATI- Tribunes should be made in the affembly of the US PULVILLUS, T. MENENIUS LANA- people by Tribes; but Pife got three Tribest ing the Roman people, and abetting the mur-A. M. 3578. R. 277. AULUS VIRGINI- ther of the Tribun: Genutius. Claud.us appeared. US TRICOSTIUS, SPURIUS RUTILIUS in the Affembly, where nothing was deter-SERVILLIUS STRUCTUS. The Voientes mined, and a while after he died of a fickness. His Obsequies were performed in the usual US GALLUS SEXTUS, SERVIUS SUL-Tribunes.

CUS. AULUS VIRGINIUS COELIMON- ing corrupted. TANUS. The Sabini and the Volca made an TANUS. The Sabini and the Volce made an A. M. 3594. R. 293. APPIUS CLAUDI-irruption into the Roman Territories, but were US SABINUS, L. VALERIUS PUBLICOLA. repulsed with loss.

to meet him, and ordered him the triumph.

his dependencies thereof.

GILLENSIS. The Romans were in peace ments. both in Country and in Town, because of an

The City was purified, and the Citizens were numbred, who were found to be one hundred nineteen heads of Families. and twenty four thousand two hundred and were not numbred.

flaughter on both fides.

thereof, with many other persons of note.

* SPURIUS VETURIUS CRASSUS. The appointed in his place. Tribune Tarentillus proposed the famous Law jected, tho it was very acceptable to the peo- ballicus fays fix and thirty years.

manner, for persons of his rank, with a Fune- PITIUS CAMERINUS AVENTINUS. Rome ral Speech, in spight of the opposition of the was frighted by several prodigies, a Cow spoke, it rained Flesh, which was feen du-A. M. 3585. R.284, T. MINUTIUS PRIS- ring fome days upon the ground without be-

Four thousand five hundred flaves got into a A. M. 3586. R. 285. T. or P. QUINTIUS Body, and took up Arms against the Romma CAPITOLINUS, Q. SERVILIUS PRISCUS. people. The Confuls would raife Forces to The Confuls chased the Sabini and the Volca, oppose them, but the Tribunes kept the people and Quintius took Actium, the Senate came out from lifting themselves, so that they were forced to have recourse to the Confederates. A. M. 3587. R. 286. T. ÆMILIUS MA- The Slaves chose for their General Appius Ar-MERCUS, Q. FABIUS VIBULLANUS. The denius, a Sabine by Birth, and under his comfirst obtained this Magistracy, being yet mand, they seized upon the Capitol, which but four and twenty years of age, because of they stored with Arms and Provisions. Vahis rare merit. He gave to the people the lerius the Conful came thither to attack them, Town of Adium with his Territory, and all but was killed. The Senate tent in his room Lucius Quintius Gincinnatus, Father to Cafe, who A. M. 3588. R. 287. Q. SERVILIUS PRIS- difarmed the flaves, and made a cruel exam-CUS. SPUR. POSTHUMIUS ALBUS RE- ple of them, by the horror of their punish-

A. M. 3595. R. 294. C. FABIUS VIBUL-Epidemical Disease that raged amongst LANUS, Q. L. CORNELIUS MALUGI-NENSIS. They made an end of the tenth A. M. 3589. R. 288. Q. FABIUS VIBUL- account of the people, which began the tore-LANUS, T. QUINTIUS CAPITOLIN US. going year, and found a million three hundred thirty two thouland four hundred and

A. M. 3596. R. 295. L. MINUTIUS AUtourteen heads of Families without the Or- GURINUS, L. or C. NAUTIUS RUTILIphans, and those that had no Children, who US. The people called Equi forced the Conful Minutius to quit the Field, and befieg-A. M. 3590. R. 289. AULUS POSTHU-ed him in his Camp. The Senate in this fad MIUS ALBUS, SPURIUS FURIUS ME-|conjuncture, durft not call back the other DULLINUS FUSCUS. The people called Conful Nautius from the Frontiers of the Sa-Equi fought Furius, routed his Army, wound- bines, wherefore they made Dictator L. Quined him, and obliged him to retire upon a hill tius Cincimnatus, whom they took from ploughwith the rest of his Army, where they besieg- ing in a little Field, having lost the rest of ed him. T. Quintius Capitolinus chosen Pro- his Estate by the injustice of the peopleconful, came to the affiftance of the Conful, He chofe for General of the Horfe a brave and brought him off, but there was a great man, oppressed like himself, called L. Tarquiniur. These two illustrious poor men A. M. 3591. R. 290. L. ÆBUTIUS HEL- raised an Army in fixteen days, lead it against LUA, P. SERVILIUS PRISCUS. The the Enemies, whom they defeated, and plague raged at Rome, the two Confuls died brought the vanquished under the Yoke ; they triumphed, and deposed Minutius from his A. M. 3592. R. 291, L. LUCRETIUS Confullhip, and Q. Fabins, who had got fo TRICIPITINUS, T. VETURIUS GEMINUS, I much glory during his former Confulthip, was

A.M. 3597. R. 296. Q. or P. MINUTIUS called by the name of the Author Twentian, AUGURINUS, M. or C. HORATIUS PUL-This Law ordered the creation of five Magi- VILLUS. Ten Tribunes of the people were strates, according to Livy, or ren according created instead of five. Livy fays, that this to Dionysius Hallicarnasseus, to moderate the au- alteration was made two and thirty years thority of the Confuls; but this Law was re- after the creation of the first Tribuner; and Sa-

A. M. 3598. R. 297. L. or M. VALERIUS A.M. 3593. R. 292. P. or T. VOLUMNI- MAXIMUS, SPURIUS VIRGINIUS, COE-

fions kept the Romans at rest. Dionysius Halicar- quit their Office, and the Ancient Consulary nafleus mentions here a Sedition rais'd at Rome, Government should be restor'd : which was occasioned by a violent Plebian called Icellius, perform'd, and the Mediators of the Peace whom a Lictor had us'd too roughly. were made Confuls. The Senate gave Mount Aventinus to any man that would build there, ('tis a Hill within the TITUS, M. HORATIUS BARBATUS. 4 compais of Rome, containing about twelve Fur- pius and Oppius Decemviri killed themselves, to longs or fifteen hundred paces of Ground.)

TICANUS, C. VETURIUS CICURINUS # CIMINUS. The Tribunes renewed the Law

T. rentilla, but to no purpose.

FONTINALIS. Romilius who was Conful the foregoing year, was accused for having com- gainst their will. manded to a dangerous post the Tribune Siccius, and was fined for the fame. A Law was made, US EXQUILINUS, T. VIRGINIUS COELIgiving leave to every Magistrate to impeach the MONTANUS TRICOSTUS. There was noother Magistrates, who should be convicted of thing considerable done this year against the having done any thing, either against the Law | Enemies; only the Tribunes grew hot against or the Discipline. Three Deputies were sent the Patricians. into Greece, to fetch the Laws of Solon, and instruct themselves in the Customs of the Republick of Athens, and other most famous Com- things continued quiet within and without. monwealths of Greece. These Deputies were Postburnius Albus, Aulus Minlius, P. or Servius Sul- PITOLINUS, AGRIPPA FURIUS FU.

RATIUS TERGEMINUS, SEXTUS QUIN- advance as far as the Esquilinian Gate, destroy-TILIUS VARUS or QUINTIUS. The ling all that they met in their way, but Confid Plague and the Famine raged to much in the Quantim drove them back to their own Frontied Town and in the Country, that the Conful A. M. 3610. R. 309. M. GEGANIUS AUGU. Quintilius, three Tribunes, an Augure, and the RINUS, P. CURIATIUS, or C. FURIUS FL Priost of Quirinus died of it.

A. M. 3602. R. 301. L. or T. MENENIUS LANATUS, P. SEXTIUS CAPITOLINUS. The Deputies who were fent to Greece came back again and brought the Laws of Solon.

A. M. 3603. R. 302. APPIUS CLAUDIUS CRASSÍNUS, T. GENUTIUS AUGURI-NUS. Livy, Dionysius Halicarnasseus, Cassiodorus, and Sabellicus make no mention of these Con- free, and that the Plebeians should be admitted fuls, they are only recorded in the Calendars of the Capital. The People took a distaste of thority as the Consuls had. the Confulary Government; whereupon the Senate created ten Soveraign Magistrates called Decemviri to govern the Commonwealth, and to examine the Laws of Solon, which were called the Laws of the twelve Tables, because they were engraven upon twelve Tables of Brass. They were at first chosen out of the number of Patricians. Appins Claudius President of the Affembly, got himself to be one of the Decemviri. These new Magistrates exercised their Magistracy with all forts of violence and bunes were Patricians, and kept their Office but tyranny, during three years together, fays Caf- three Months, because the Auspices at their fodorus, or during two years, according to Sa- Election were found delective, whereupon they bellieus and Dionylius Halicarnasseus: Whereupon made an inter-rex to preside in the Assemblies, LIMONTANUS. A great dearth of Provi- Ito agree, that first of all, the December should

A. M. 3606. R. 305. L. VALERIUS POavoid the thame of their Condemnation; one A. M. 3599. R. 298. T. ROMILIUS VA. for being the cause of the death of Virginia. and the other for having order'd a Veteran Sol. dier to be whipt beyond all measure, and without cause. The other Decemviri banish'd them-A. M. 3600. R. 199. SPURIUS TARPEI- felves. The Conful Horatius routed the Sabiai US CAPITOLINUS, AULUS ATERINUS The Senate would deny him the honour of Triumph out of hatred, but he triumphed a-

A. M. 3607. R. 306. SP. or L. HERMINI-

A. M. 3608. R. 307. M. GEGANIUS MACERINUS, C. JULIUS JULUS. All

A.M. 1609. R. 308. T. QUINTIUS CA-SUS. The Volca and the Aqui took opportuni-A. M. 3601. R. 300. P. CURIATIUS or HO- ty from the civil Divitions of the Romans, to > SUS, or C. QUINTIUS, or CURTIUS PHILO. Canuleius Tribune, of the People propos'd, that it might be lawful for the Patriciani to Marry into Plebeian Familes, and that the people might chuse the Confuls out of the body of the Senate and their own. The Senate was force to pass this Law, but in ambiguous words; for it was order'd that Marriages should be to the Military Tribunate, with the fame Au-

Military Tribunes.

With the Authority of Consuls.

NNO Mun 3611. R. 310. AULUS SEM-PRONIUS ATTRATINUS, L. ATTILL US, T. CECILIUS. These three The Valerius and Horatius prevailed upon the People in which they created two Confuls for therelanensis, L. Sempronius Attratimus.

Chariot.

LANUS, POSTHUMIUS OEBUTIUS HEL- Romulus. LUA CORNICEN. A Colony of Romans and of Quintius were restored to the Ardentes.

bune Petilius propos'd the Agrarian Law, but to committed in his person by Servilius.

stributing Corn and Money amongst them.

A. M. 3616. R. 315. TITUS QUINTIUS took it by force of Arms. was forc'd to name Military Tribunes. -

MILITARY TRIBUNES.

A.M. 3617. R. 316. ÆMILIUS MAMER-CUS, TITUS QUINTIUS Son to CINCINthe Volce. The Senate fent fome De wies to cured the tranquility of the City. Fidens, to know the reason of such a sudden alteration; but the Edenates killed the Depu- MERCUS, L. FURIUS MEDULLINUS ties; whereupon Confuls were created.

CONSULS.

CERINUS, L. SERGIUS, who was afterwards fince the third Confuship of C. Julius and L.

maining part of the Year; viz. Papyrius Mugil- called FIDENAS. The Conful Sergius won a Bartle over the Fidenates, the Volca and the Falifei A. M. 3612: R. 311. M. GEGANIUS MA- on the Bank of the River Anio; but the Ro-CERINUS, T. QUINTIUS CAPITOLINUS. mans fuffer'd fo great a loss in this Engagement. The first Censors were created this year, who that they created Emilius Mamereus Dictator. were at first very little reputed, but afterwards who got the Victory over these three Nations. became the first Magistrates of Rome. The Con- after Coffus a Military Tribune kill'd Volumnius ful Greanins affifted the Ardenes against the Volca, King of the Volca in fingle Combat. The whom he brought under their yoke, and Clavi- Dictator triumph'd, and Cassi obtained the Tur General of the Volca followed his triumphal Ovation, or leffer Triumph, wherein he appear'd loaded with Spoils called Opima, the first A. M. 3613. R. 312. M. FABIUS VIBUL- that were feen in a Triumph fince the time of

A. M. 3619. R.318. M. PAPYRIUS or COR-Rutili was fent into Ardea, and the Lands that NELIUS MALUGINENSIS, L. PAPYRIwere conquer'd in the time of the Confulfhip US CRASSUS. The Plague raged at Rome, and the people was fo frighted by feveral pro-A. M. 3614. R. 313. C. FURIUS PACIL-LUS, L. PAPYRIUS CRASSUS. The Tri-peachment against Spurius Melius, nor the murther

A. M. 3620. R. 319. C. JULIUS JULUS. A. M. 3615. R. 314. PROCULUS GEGA- L. VIRGINIUS TRICOSTUS. The Plague NIUS MACERINUS, LUCIUS MENENI- was still violent, and gave an opportunity to US LANATUS. Rome was afflicted with Fa- the Fidenates and the Veientes to enter into the mine, and a very dangerous Sedition was fo- Roman Territories, and came as far as the Gate mented by Spurius Melius, an ambitious rich Man, called Collins, but the Dictator Aulus Sirvilius who bribed the favour of the People, by di-Structus, or Prifcus drove them away, and purfued them to Fidena, which he besieged, and

CAPITOLINUS, MENENIUS AGRIPPA A. M. 3621, R. 320. M. MANILIUS CA-LANATUS. The Famine grew more raging PITOLINUS, Q. SULPITIUS COSSUS, or than the foregoing year, and gave an opportu- CAIUS JULIUS JULUS, L. VIRGINIUS nity to Melius to exercise his liberality, and ad- TRICOSTUS. The Vienses frighted by the vance his ambitious practices. Minutius Com-taking of Fidens, fent Deputies to the twelve missioner for the Provisions acquainted the Commonalties of Tustany, to make themselves Senate with it, who created L. Quintius Cincin- fore of their affiftance against the Romans, who natus Dictator: He called Milius to answer for chose Emilius Mamercus Dictator for the second the fame, but being check'd by his Conscience, time. He ordered that the Censors should be he fled away. Servilius pursued him, and kill'd but one year and a half in their Office; The him in the place of the Assembly. The Tri- Censors, out of a revenge for this Order, taxed bunes exasperated so highly the people, under Manneress as soon as he had laid down the Office pretence of the death of Meliu, that the Senate of Dictator, the people grumbled at it, and would not approve of what the Cenfors had

TRIBUNES

A. 3622. R. 321. M. FABIUS VIBUL-NATUS, L. JULIUS JULUS. The Town LANUS, M POLLIUS, L. SERGIUS FIDENAS. of Fidena rebelled, and delivered up-herfelf to The plague, and the fears of a Famine fe-

A. M. 3623. R. 322. L. PINARIUS MA-SPUR. POSTHUMIUS ALBUS. The most confiderable among the Plebeians perfwaded the Tribunes to propose a Law, by which it should be forbidden to all men standing for offices to be drefs'd in white Gowns. Caffiodo-A. M. 3618. R. 317. M. GEGANIUS MA- rus mentions nothing of what was transacted Magistrate till the following Consulship.

CONSULS.

MENTO. The Volce and the Vienter having Truce of twenty years was granted to the joyned their Forces together, obliged the Veil. Romans to name for Dictator Posthumius Tubersus, who defeated the Enemies, took their Camp and fpoils, which he carried in his triumph. RUTILIUS FIDENAS, SERTUS JULIUS THE Conful Tallus dedicated the Temple of TULLUS or JULIUS. There was magnifi-Apollo.

A. M. 3625. R. 324 L. PAPYRIUS CRAS-SUS, L. JULIUS JULIUS. The people called Aqui defired to enter into alliance with the Reman people, but they were denied. The Senate prevented the Tribunes of the people in the delign they had to demand the releafe of Fines, for they releafed them to get the affection of the people, without being asked for by the Tribunes.

A. M. 3626. R. 325. L. SERGIUS FI-DENAS, HOSTILIUS LUCRETIUS TRI-CIPITINUS. There was nothing worth obfervation granfacted this year. A. M. 3627. R. 326. AULUS SORNE-LIUS COSSUE, T. QUINTINUS POENUS CINCINNATUS. An extream dry weather occasioned a fort of itch in Rome, of which few people were free, some new superstitions were taking ground among the people, but they were suppressed.

A. M. 3628. R. 327. C. SERVILIUS HA-LA STRUCTUS, L. PAPYRIUS MUGIL-LANENSIS. The Senate fent fome Heralds to Veil to ask of the Veientes fatisfaction for the goods they had plundered in the Roman Territory; and upon their refusal, a War was proclaimed against them.

NELIUS COSSUS. The last of them staid but only an Inter-rex, who was L. Papyrins 16 in the City to manage the affairs, and his gillanus, who obtained from the people that three colleagues went against the Veii, but they Military Tribunes should be elected. were vigorously repulsed. Upon this misfortune Amelius Mamercus was made Dictator, MILITARY TRIBUNES. who went to rescue the Military Tribunes. The rumour of this fuccess filled the Fidenates with hopes of recovering their liberties, therefore they killed all the Romans in CINNATUS, SEXTUS FURIUS MEDULtheir Colony, and joyned themselves to the LINUS, AULUS SEMPRONIUS ATTRA-Viii. The Dictator fought them, routed, and TINUS, M. MANLIUS. The Tribunes of pursued them so closely, that the Romans got the people renewed the Agrarian Law, but Figurius, not fo much as the name of any promifcuously with them into Fidera; took it, and put the Inhabitants thereof to death, The Dictator made an end of this War in fixteen days.

A. M. 3630. R. 329. AULUS SEMPRO. NIUS ATTRATINUS, L. QUINTIUS M. 3624. R. 323. T. QUINTIUS POE CINCINNATUS, L. FURIUS MEDULLIS NUS CINCINNATUS, CNEUS JULIUS NUS T. HORATIUS BARBUSUS. A

> A. M. 3631. R. 330. C. CLAUDIUS CRASSUS, SPUR. NAUTIUS, SERGIUS. cent games celebrated at Rome.

CONSULS.

A. M. 3632. R. 331. C. SEMPRONUS ATTRATINUS, Q. FABIUS VIBULLA NUS. Sempronius was like to lofe the Roman Army in the fight against the Volce, had not the valour of Sextus Tarpeius a Brigadeer faved it, for having possessed himself of a rising ground, he gave opportunity to the Conful to get off with the Army.

TRIBUNES.

A. M. 3633. R. 332. L. MANLIUS CA-PITOLINUS, Q. ANTONIUS MEREN. DA, L. PAPYRIUS MUGILLANENSIS. Hortensius Tribune of the people, charged Sempnnius with the ill fuccels against the Volce, but his colleague sopposed him.

CONSULS.

A. M. 3634. R. 333. Q. FABIUS VIBUL LANUS, T. QUINTIUS CAPITOLINUS Fabius defeated the Æqui, and the Senate MILITARY TRIBUNES granted him the leffer triumph. The Ith bunes proposed to chuse Quæsiors out of the commonalty of the people; but the Senses A. M. 3629. R. 328. T. QUINTIUS
POENUS CINCINNATUS, C. FURIUS, MARCUS POSTHUMUS, AULUS COR. that the following year they made no Confine,

A. M. 3636. R. 335. L. QUINTIUS CIN-

too wanton and too nicely dress'd; but she cleared herfelf of that acculation.

A. M. 3637. R. 336. AGRIPPA MENE-NIUS LANATUS, P. LUCRETIUS TRI-CIPITINUS, SPUR. NAUTIUS, C. SER-VILIUS. The people was busied about supprefling a conspiracy of many Slaves, who had relolved to fet on fire feveral parts of the City, and then feize upon the Tarpeian Rock, while the Citizens should be busied about putting out the fire. The two Slaves who had discovered the conspiracy were made free, and those who were tound guilty were put to death by feveral torments.

A. M. 3638. R. 337. L. SERGIUS FIDE-NAS, M. PAPIRIUS MUGILLANENSIS, C. SERVILIUS PRISCUS. The Equi shamefully defeated the Tribunes. The Senate made Q. Servilius Dictator, who marched prefently against the enemies, and whilst they were proud of their Victory, he attack'd them. fo briskly, that after having routed them he took Lavicum, and afterwards enter'd triumphing into Rome. A. Colony of fifteen hundred Romans was fent to Lavicum.

A. M. 3639. R. 338. AGRIEPA MENENI-US LANATUS, L. SERVICIUS STRU-CTUS, L. LUCR ETIUS TRICIPITINUS, SPUR. VETURIUS COSSUS: Rome was very quiet all this year.

A.M. 3640. R. 1319. AULUS SEMPRONIUS ATTRATINUS, M. PAPYRIUS MUGILIANENSIS, SPUR NAUTIUS RUTILIUS Q. FABIUS VIBULIANUS. The Tribunes renewed the Agrarian Law ; but in order to disappoint their design, the Senate tound means to fow division among them.

COSSUS, P. VALERIUS POTITUS, Q.FA. nelius BIUS VIBULLANUS, M. POSTHUMIUS mies. REGILL'ENSIS, QUINTIUS CINCINNA-TUS. The people Equi took the field, and feized upon the Town Vola, but a while after power took it again. The Tribunes proport to fend a Colony to Vola to supply it with the Tribunes are power to fend a Colony to Vola to supply it with the whole Senate; and being retired into the Camp to avoid the fury of the people, he was flon'd to death by his own fouldiers, who were angry, because he had fided with the Senate in this affair. This diforder occasioned the creation of new Confuls.

CONSULS.

COSSUS, or P. POSTHUMIUS REGILLEN- LRIUS MEDULLINUS, C. JULIUS JULIUS. SIS, L. FURIUS MEDULLINUS. The en- M. ÆMILIUS MAMERCUS: The War

Sompronius opposed it. The Vestal Posibumia | quiry after the accomplices of the murther was accused of incontinency, because the was committed on the person of Posthumine went on but flowly. The Tribunes complained of it. and the people grumbled thereat, but all was pacified.

A. M. 3643. R. 342. Q. FABIUS AM-BUSTUS, C. FURIUS PACILLUS. Livy doth nor mention these two Confuls, but Caffiodorus fpeaks of them.

A. M. 3644. R. 343. M. PAPYRIUS ATTRATINUS, 6 MUGILLANUS, C. NAU-TIUS RUTILIUS. There was a very great want of Provisions, and a contagious Distemper in the City, that fwept away a great many people.

M. M. 3645. R. 344. M. ÆMILIUS MA-MERCUS, C. VALERIUS. The Ægió plundered the Country, and came to the very Gates of Rome. The Conful Valerius repulsed them, and got great spoils from them. The Ovation or leffer triumph was decreed for

A. M. 3646. R. 345. C. or CN. CORNE-LIUS COSSUS, L. FURIUS MEDULLI-NUS. The Volici belieged Capuertana. The Tribunes would not allow the people to take up arms, but upon condition that they would choose Military Tribunes instead of Consuls. The Senate confented to it, upon condition that none of the Tribunes then in Office should

MILITARY TRIBUNES.

A. M. 3647. R. 346. C. JULIUS JULUS, C. or P. CORNELIUS COSSUS, C. SERVI-LIUS AHALA. The Volsci and the Equi took the Field with a dreadful Army, against A. M. 3641. R. 340. C. or L. CORNELIUS the Rommus, who immediately created P. Cornelius Dictator, who defeated the Eneinhabitants, but Possimumius opposid it, with all the Enemies they met in the Field, but were not able to re-take the Fort.

A. M. 3649. R. 348. P. CORNELIUS COSSUS, CN. CORNELIUS, COSSUS, FABIUS AMBUSTUS, L. VALERIUS PO-TITUS. Fabius belieged and took Anxw, now called Torracina. The Senate ordered, that for the time to come the Soldiers should receive their pay out of the publick Trea-

A.M. 3642. R 341. AULUS CORNELIUS PITOLINUS, AULUS MANLIUS, L. FU-

tle fuccess. Some Authors rank in this place well, that they got all the Military Tribus the Consulfhips of Aslus Manlius Volfe, and L. chosen from among the Plebeians, except only Farius Medullinus, but Livy mentions nothing Vetarius. The plague raged both in Town

TITUS, M. SERGIUS FIDENAS, P. COR- um by an order of the Daum viri. This Reli-NELIUS MAGULLINENSIS CN. COR- gious ceremony is explained under the world NELIUS COSSUS, Q. FABIUS AMBU- Lettifternium. STUS, SPUR. NAUTIUS RUTILIUS. The Town of Arcana belonging to the Volai was taken, and razed down to the ground.

A.M. 3653.R. 352. M. ÆMILIUS MAMER-CUS, L. VALERIUS POTITUS, APPIUS CLAUDIUS CRASSUS, M. QUINTIUS VARUS M JULIUS JULIUS, M. POSTHU raordinary high, and there being no visible MIUS, M. FURIUS CAMILLUS, M. POST. cause of it, its overflowing was taken for a HUMIUS ALBINUS. The Town of the prodigy: An Anger of Veil intimated to the Se-Veii was besieged, and block'd up during nate, that there was no other way for the Rethe whole winter, a practife unufual a- mont to take Veil, but the making a passage for mong the Roman, who made War only in this Water; thereupon the Senate fent to confurnmer time. The Tribunes and the peo- fult the Oracle of Delphi, ple grumbled atthis new practice; but Claudias Craffer represented to them in a Speech, that L. FURIUS MEDULLINUS L. SERGIUS Enemies were to be attacked at all times FIDENAS, AULUS POSTHUMIUS RE and feafons.

HALA. O. SERVILIUS, L. VIRGINIUS, plundered the Campania of Rome. Posthumin Q. SULPTITUS, AULUS MANLIUS, M. and Juliu routed them, and retook the spoils SERGIUS. The Valid feized upon Answer and fortified it. The Falidi and Fidenstre at tacked the Romans who belieged Vaii. The VUS, P. TITINIUS, P. MENENIUS, CR. attack begun with Sergiu's quarters, who GENUTIUS, L. ATTILIUS. Ticinius and suffered his Forces to perish, rather than to Genetic fell into an Ambuscado laid by the ask a relief of Virginius his colleague, with Falifi, and suffered a great loss by ir. The Selwhom he was then at variance. This mifun- diers incamped before Veii, chofe M. Farim Co standing was prejudicial to the State, and millss Dictator, and his election was approved thereupon the Senate ordered, that some other of by the Senate. Comillus marched immediately Tribunes should be created, tho it was then ately to relieve Titinias, whom the Enemies but the fifteenth day of July, whereas they kept belieged, and after he had defeated then, used to proceed to their Election upon the he returned to the Siege of Veil; and white thirteenth day of December. Servilin Abels he faw that the Town could hold no longe, was named for the remainder of that year

MILIUS MAMERCUS, CN. CORNELIUS the Soldiers, but also by all the Inhabitants of COSSUS, C. FABIUS AMBUSTUS, L. Rome that would go thither. Camillus mades JULIUS JULUS. The Tribunes were victo- triumphant Entry after the taking of Veii, and rious every where, and Valerius retook Anxwr. for the immortal memory of his archieve-VUS, L. MANLIUS, P. TITINIUS, P. ME- Queen on mount Aventinus. This 700 LIUS, L. FURIUS MEDULLINUS, L. PO- was Patroness of the Veienter, and after the tr

PILIUS VOLSO. Licinius was the first Mi- king of Veii, the Romans having entered into litary Tribune chosen out of the Body of the her Temple, and asked the Goddess if she was people. The Winter proved so very cold, and willing to go to Rome, her Statue made a fign there fell fuch an abundance of Snow, that the that she was consenting to it. Camillus dedifame is recorded in the history of that time, as cated also the Temple of mother Masuta, whom an extraordinary thing.

A. M. 3657. R. 356. M. VETURIUS L. TITINUS, P. MENENIUS PACILLUS, CN. COSSUS, P. CORNELIUS SCIPIO, M. GENUTIUS, L. ATTILIUS. The Tribunes VALERIUS MAXIMUS, C. FABIUS AM-

was continued against the Polici, but with lir- of the people watched their opportunity and Country. They had recourse to the book A. M. 3652. R. 351. C. VALERIUS PO- of the Sibyle, and celebrated the first Lettis tom.

A. M. 3658. R. 357. L. VALERIUS PO. TITUS. M. VALERIUS MAXIMUS. N FURIUS CAMILLUS. The interest of the Senate was fo great, that all the Military Tribunes were taken out of the Patrician Order. The Waters of the albanian Lake grew fo ex-

A. M. 3659. R. 558. L. JULIUS JULUS GELLENSIS, P. CORNELIUS MALUGI-A. M. 3654 R. 353. C. SERVILIUS A. NENSIS , A. MANLIUS. The Torent he fent to the Senate to know what he should A. M. 3655. R. 354. L. VALERIUS PO- do with fo rich a place, and the Senate order TITUS, M. FURIUS CAMILLUS, M. R- ed that it should be plundered, not only by A. M. 3656. R. 355. P. LICINIUS CAL ments, he marked out the Temple of June the Plutarch calls Lucothoea.

A. M. 3661. R. 360. P. CORNELIUS

BUSTUS, L. FURIUS MEDULLINUS Q. SERVILIUS. The popular Tribune Siccinus represented to the people that Reme was scituared in a barren and unwholfom territory, that the Country of the Veil was fruitful and pleafint, the sit wholesom, and a convenient SERVIUS SULPITIUS, M. ÆMILIUS, L. dwelling place for every thing, and advised FURIUS MEDULLINUS, AGRIPPA, FUthem to go and fettle themselves there ; some RIUS C. ÆMILIUS. M. Seditim a Plebeian, other Tribunes proposed that the Roman people head a voice, (which he thought to come should divide themselves in two parts, that from Heaven) that gave warning to the Reone part of them should remain at Rome, and mans of the coming of the Gauls into Italy. the other should go to inhabit Veii, but Comil- The Senate neglected this advice, as a Dream; le opposed both proposals as dishonourable to but the event justified that it was not a meer that City. A. M. 3662. R. 361. M. FURIUS CA- ed Rome. MILLUS, M. FURIUS MEDULLINUS, C. A. M. 3666. R. 365. The three Sons of AMILUS, L. VALERIUS PUBLICOLA. FABIUS AMBUSTUS, P. SULPITIUS that were conferated to Apollo.

CONSULS.

the people.

a great many people died.

MILITARY TRIBUNES.

A. M. 3665. R. 364. L. LUCRETIUS fancy, for the Gauls entered Italy and besieg-

SP. POSTHUMIUS, P. CORNELIUS. LONGUS, Q. SERVILIUS, P. SERVI-Comillar went to plunder the Fields of the LIUS, MALUGINENSIS. The Tribinary Falifa, and got a great booty in their Camp, went out to meet the Gauls, but they which he refused to deliver to the Soldiers : were vanquished ; for out of too much com-This unusual practice they bore with, out of fidence in their valour, they passed the River Allia, the great respect they had for him; but they and incomped at the Bank of it. There was a abhorred his severe virtue, tho they admired great saughter, and those who escaped caused it, says Loy. Comilles afterwards besieged For such a construction in Rome, that all the inhaldris, and during this siege, a School-master, bitants left the City, except some Officers and who had under his care the Children of the Soldiers, who got into the Copies, and some most considerable Families of the Inhabitants, Senators, whose great age had rendered them brought all these innocent creatures to the unfit for fighting, but whose great courage Camp of the Romans. Camillus, firuck with did not permit them to run away. These conhorror at this base perfidiousness, clapt the Ma- tinued in their Houses, and dressed themselves fier in Irons, and fent him back again, the in their Robes of Scare. The Gould furiously children whipping him along the way. This pursued the Roman, and came to Rome the aft of generolity mov'd so sensibly the Inhabi- same day that the Battle was fought, says Livy, tants of Faleria, that they furrendered them- or three days after, according to Platarch. They felves to the Reman, and willingly submitted found the Town open and without Inhabitants : to fo generous Enemies. The Senate fent a they got into it, fet it on fire in feveral Golden Cup to the Temple of Delphi, to return places, and killed those venerable old men, thanks to Apelle for the good advice he had whom they had took at first for the Domestick given him, to make a free passage for the wa- Gods of the Renams. They besiegedthe Capital, ters of the Albanian Lake. This Present, with and as they were scaling the Wall in the night, the Ambassador who carried it, was taken by the the Geese that were fed in the Temple of Jame, Pyrates of Lipari; but Timafitus their comman- made fo great a noise, that M. Manlius being der, being informed that the Ambassador was awakned by it, ran to the Rampart and repula Roman, he let him go free with the Presents sed the Gault. The besieged being in want of every thing, were forced to capitulate, upon condition of paying to the Gaule a thousand pound weight of Gold, or two thousand according to Pliny; and whilst they were weighing the Gold in execution of the Treaty A. M. 3663. R. 362. L. LUCRETIUS Camillus (who tho absent had been named Di-FLAVUS, SERVIUS SULPITITUS CA- Stator) arrived and charged the besiegers, of MERINUS. The Tribunes of the people whom they killed a great number. The Gauls renewed the proposal made two years before being retired, the Tribunes proposed again to of inhabiting Veii, but the Senate opposed go to inhabit Veii, and leave the imoaking ruit, and distributed the lands of the Veientes to ins of Rome, but Camillus prevented it, restored the service of the Gods, and marked out a A. M. 3664. R. 363. L. VALERIUS Temple in honour of that voice that they had POTITUS, M.MANLIÚS, afterwards called despised, when it gave warning of the coming CAPITOLINUS. A great Drought occasion- of the Gault, and instituted facrifices to it, ed a contagious distemper in Rome, of which under the name of the God Lecuinus. Pliny affirms, that a while before the taking of Rome, ed; but the people grambling at it, and they had numbred one hundred fifty two threatning the City with a Sedition, the Distill thousand five hundred and fourscore heads of tor thought fit to release Manhay.

PULLICOLA, L. VIRGINIUS, P. CORNE- PO FITUS, L. POSTHUMIUS, M. FURIUS LIUS, AULUS MANLIUS, L. ÆMILIUS, CAMILLUS, SERVIUS SULPITIUS. T L. POSTHUMIUS. The Roman remembring OUINTIUS CINCINNATUS, C. PAPYRIS that the eighteenth day of July, fays Livy, or US CRASSUS. M. Manking renewed his Inc. the fifteenth according to Sabellicus, they had treagues, and the Senate having won to their been defeated at Cremers, where all the Fabians Interest the Tribunes of the People. Manling were kill'd; and that upon the same day, they was summon'd again; he appeared, and was were routed on the banks of the Allie by the convicted of aspiring to a tyrannical Govern-Gauls, they did mark out that day in their Fasts ment, and condemned to be thrown headlong. or Calendar for a fatal and unlucky day, and from that fame Rock that he had defended a forbad by a foleannal decree to undertake any gainst the Gault in the Siege of the Capital ; his thing for the future, upon that day. Camillus House was rated, and they forbid his Familla was made Dictator to the reduced the Fulfit to to take for the future the fore-name of Marie. the Remans obedience, after they had maintain. The Plague and the Famine did a world of day ed their Liberty for feventy Years, fays Eures mage both in the City and the Country. ping. He marched afterwards against the Acqui. whom he overcame, as he did also the Tuscous: LUS MANLIUS, L. LUCRETIUS, L. AMI. His Triumph lasted three days together, for LIUS, M. TREBONIUS, SERVIUS SUIS having subdued these three Nations, and out PITIUS. Colonies were fent this year to Park of the Spoils that he had got, he repaid the Reman Ladies the price of the Jewels they had beman Ladies the price of the Jewels they had be- A. M. 3674. R. 373. SPUR, and L. PAPY. thowed to enrich the Offering, that the Reman RIUS, SERVIUS CORNELIUS MALUGE. People had made to Apollo.

A. M. 3688. R. 367. T. Q. CINCINNA-TUS, Q. SERVILIUS FIDENAS, C. JULI- the loss of Satricum, which was taken by flored US JULUS, L. AQUILIUS CORVUS, L. by the Velfei, and all the Romans of that Colony LUCRETIUS TRICIPITINUS. The Fields were put to the Sword. of the Agus, were plunder'd, and the Remans took from the Tufony, Carruefe and Consendera.

SERGIUS, L. MMILIUS, L. LICINIUS, M. FABIUS AMBUSTUS. Comillar with Parist MENENIUS, L. VALERIUS PUBLICOLA. bis Colleague made war against the Vollei, de C. CORNELIUS. The Tribes called Pometina, feated them, and took their Camp by floring Sabina, Stellatina, Amignfu were added to the former, and so made in all thirty five.

L. SERGIUS FIDENAS, L. QUINTIUS to make any defence; thereupon Camillus granti CINCINNATUS, L. HORATIUS PULVIL- ed them the freedom of Citizens of Rome. . LUS, T. VALERIUS. Gamillus and Valerius march'd against the Antiates, whom they de- LERIJ, C. SERGIUS, LICINIUS MANCE teated, and took Satricum.

P. CORNELIUS, T. and L. QUINTIUS CA- the people rais'd a Sedition, and demanded the PITOLINUS, L. PAPYRIUS CURSOR, C. release of Usuries; but the Senate denying, SERGIUS. M. Manlim attempted to make him- their request, they stopt the raising of Forces telf Sovereign of Rame, and in order to it, to oppose the Inhabitants of Praneste, who made spread abroad several reports against the Senate, Incursions to the very Gate Colling. Quinties who thereupon made Aulus Cornelius Coffus Dicta- Gincinnatus was thereupon created Dictator, and tor, who oppos'd Manlius, and fummon'd him to appear before the People, and discover the on the banks of the River Allis; but he vanplace where the Senate had hid the Gold, quish'd them, and took in twenty days nine of which he accused them to keep for themselves. their Towns, and Pranife their capital City Manlius shifted off this Question with ambigu- was surrender'd by Capitulation. ous Answers, which discovered his Calumny; A. M. 3677. R. 376. C MANLIUS, P.

A. M. 3672. R. 371. SERGIUS CORNES A. M. 3667. R. 366. AULUS VALERIUS LIUS MALUGINENSIS, P. VALERIUS

A. M. 3693. R. 372. L. VALERIUS, AUptine and Nepete.

NENSIS, Q. SERVILIUS, C. SULPITIUS, L. ÆMILIUS. Rome was a little mortified for

A.M. 2675. R. 274. M.FURIUS CAMILA LUS, AULUS and L. POSTHUMII REGIL ATM. 3669. R. 368. L. PAPYRIUS, CN. LENSES, L. FURIUS, L. LUCRETIUS, M. and because he found some Tusculous among the Prisoners, this was a sufficient reason A. M. 3679. R. 369. M. FURIUS CAMIL- for proclaiming war against them; but the LUS, SEXTUS CORN, MALUGINENSIS, Tufculant opened their Gates, without offering

A. M. 3676. R. 375. LUCIUS and R. VA. NUS, L. PAPYRIUS, SERGIUS CORNE. A. M. 3671. R. 370. AULUS MANLIUS, LIUS MALUGINENSIS. The Tribunes of march'd against the Enemy, who made a stand

wherefore the Dictator caus'd him to be arrest- MANLIUS, L. JULIUS PATRICIUS, C.

SEXTILLIUS, M. ALBINUS, L. ANTIS- |near the Lake Albanu; but Polybius, a Greek tage over the Tribunes.

prison for debt, so long as the war against the Nobles. Vella should last. A Tax was laid upon the People, for the lining with Stone the Ramparts of Rome.

A.M. 3679. R. 378. L. ÆMILIUS, B. VA-LERIUS, C. VETURIUS, SERVIUS SUL-PITIUS, L. and C. QUINTIJ CINCINNA-TI. The Tribunes of the people made feveral Demands to the Senate; i. That the Interest that had been paid by the Creditors, might be deducted from the Principal, and that the remaining part should be paid off at several times in three years. 2. That no Roman Citizen years without Magistrates of the first Order.

MANLIUS, SERVIUS SULPITIUS, L. Water. CORNELIUS, AULUS and CAIUS VALE-KII. The two last raised the siege of Tusculum. which was belieg'd by the Vilitrians,

A. M. 3686. R. 385. Q. SERVILIUS, C. VETURIUS, A. and M. CORNELIJ, Q. among the Patricians, and the other five among the Plebeians. This Magistracy was never before this time exercised, but by two men called Duum-viri, both Patricians.

A. M. 3687. R. 386. T. QUINTIUS, SER-VIUS CORNELIUS, SERVIUS SULPITI-US, SP. SERVILIUS, L. PAPYRIUS, L. VE-TURIUS. M. Furius Camillus was chofen Dictator for the fourth time, and to bring the people to reasonable terms, abdicated his Office, which the Senate conferr'd upon P. Manlius, ten Men, appointed to manage the affairs of Religion.

A. M. 3688. R. 387. AULUS and MAR-CUS CORNELIJ, M. GEGANIUS, P. MANthem. Livy fays that the Gault were beaten I emove that prodigy, upon which he freely

TIUS. The Vollci got this year some advan- born, from whom Livy has taken many things. affirms that the Gauls were not beaten, but came A. M. 3678. R. 377. SP. FURIUS, Q. and plundered the Country as far as Albanus. SERVILIUS, LICINIUS MANCINUS, M. and retired with a great Booty. The Senate HORATIUS, P. CLÆLIUS, L. GEGANIUS. | confented to the creation of a Conful out of The Tribunes of the people propos'd that all the body of the people, and the people agreed perions in debt should be relieved, and the Se- that a Presor, and two Ediles Curules should be nate consented that no man should be put in chosen out of the body of the Patricians or the

CONSULS.

A.M. 3689. R. 389. ÆMILIUS MAMER-CUS, L. SEXTIUS.

A. M. 3690. R. 388. L. GENUTIUS A-VENTINUS, Q. SERVILIUS AHALA. The Plague fwept away a great many People in Rome, and amongst them M. Furius Camillus. A. M. 3691. R. 390. T. or C. SULPITIUS

PETICUS, C. LICÍNIUS STOLO CALVUS. should be allowed to possess shove five hundred The Plague continued in Rome, but to stop it Actes of Ground. 3. That one of the Confuls they folemnized the Letistersium, and voted and for the future should be a Plebeism. The Seccelebrated for the first time the Senick Games, nate oppos'd these Laws, and the Tribunes on which were very inconsiderable at first, for they their fide would not consent to the creation of were neither compos'd in measur'd Verses, nor the Magistrates Carules; so that Rome was five attended with any other Musick but only some Flutes. The Tyber overflowed its Banks, and A. M. 3685. R. 384. L. FURIUS, AULUS, the whole Country about it was laid under

A. M. 3692. R. 391. L. GENUTIUS, L. ÆMILIUS MAMERCUS. Rome was ftill afflifted with Pestilence, and the Romans were forc'd to have recourse to the Ceremony of driving the Nail; which was only practifed at first, to QUINTIUS, M. FABIUS. The Tribunes mark out the number of years, according to propos'd to create ten Magistrates to take care the ancient Law; Let the greatest Prator drive of the affairs of Religion, and the Books of the the Nail the third day of September ; fince that Sibylt, and that five of them should be taken out time, this political ceremony was turn d'into fuperstition, and they perswaded the common people, that it had the virtue of turning away any publick Plagues. This Nail was of Brafs. and they drove it into the back wall of the Temple of Minerus in the Capital, at the right hand of the Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, and upon this ceremony L. Manlius Imperiofus Was made Dictator.

A. M. 3693 R. 392. Q. SERVILIUS HA-LA, L. GENUCIÚS. A great Abyss open'd of it felf, in the place where the Assemblies who to give some satisfaction to the People. met, they endeavoured all they could to fill consented to the creation of the Decem-vivi or it up, but to no purpose; they had recourse to the South-fayers, who answer'd, that this Absfr thould never be closed up, but by throwing into it that in which the Romans excell'd. Q. Curtius a young Roman Knight prefented himself to the LIUS, L. VETURIUS, P. VALERIUS. The Senate, which was in a great perplexity about Gauls came again into Italy, and M. Furius Ca- this Answer, who acquainted him, that the millus was chosen again Dictator to oppose Gods asked for nothing else, but a Reman to offer'd to lay down his Life to fill up that Pit ; and then compleatly Arming himfelf, riding M. POPILIUS LÆNAS. Popilius plunderes on Horseback, threw himself into the Gulph, the Fields about the City of Tyber, now Trook in the presence of all the People, who imme- after he had forced the Inhabitants to retire diately flung Flowers and Offerings into it, and within their Walls. Fabius offered Battle to a while after this Hole shut up of it felf, and the Falifei, but they mistrusting their Forces that place was fince called Lacin Currismus, for made use of a stratagem. Their Priests place an everlasting Monument of Curtius's bravery.

LO. The Gauls made a third irruption into lighted Torches in their hands. This free Italy; and upon the first advice of this Inva- chacle at first stopt the Romans, out of respect sion, they made Titus Quintius Poemus Dictator. to Religion, but that scruple being vanished. He with all the Roman Forces incamped upon they fell upon them, and overthrew the Enethe Banks of the Anie, in the fight of the Gands, mies and all their Bugbears. The Tufcan the River being betwirt them both: Then a afterwards joyning themselves to the Falifa. Gaul of a prodigious stature came up to chal- G. Marrius Rutilius was created Dictator, the lenge the Roman Forces to a fingle Combat; first of the Plebeians that enjoyed that Digni T. Manlins got leave of the Dictator to fight ty, he made C. Plantins a Plebeian, General of this Enemy, and fucceeded fo well, that he the Horfe, at which the Senate grumbled vekill'd him at one blow. The Gaul fell down ry much. The Dictator got an entire victory dead upon the ground, and Manlius kept for over the Enemies, and took eight thousand himself nothing of his Spoils, but a rich Collar Prisoners. The Senate would have denied for a Token of his Victory; from whence af- him the honour of Triumph, but he triumph terwards he took the Sirname of Torquetas, ed notwithstanding, and the people never bewhich afterwards diffringuish'd his posterity fore expressed so much joy. The Senate made from the other Menlii.

BALBUS, M. FABIUS AMBUSTUS. The tice of their defign to the people; who could Tiburtini were at war with Fabius, and called not come to any resolution for a long time: the Gault to their affiftance, who were then in to that the Commonwealth was governed by Compositio. The Armies engag'd near the Gate by eight Interreger.

Collina, and the Fight was lafting and bloody;

A. M. 3700. R. 399 C. SULPITION but at laft the Romans got the Victory. Q. Ser-PETICUS, M. or L. VALERIUS PUBLE vilius Hele was made Dictator.

A. M. 3696. R. 395. M. POPILIUS LÆ- the Ciry, till the latter end of the year, when NAS, C. MANLIUS IMPERIOSUS. The the Patricians used their interests for gering Inhabitants of the City of Tries, now Trueli, fca- the Confulthip for those that were of the book led Rome in a very dark night: This unexpect- in which they fucceeded. ed alarm put the Town into a great Confulion; but the Romans at last repuls'd their Ene- BUSTUS, T. QUINTIUS or M. PO. mies with loss.

BUSTUS, C. PLAUTIUS PROCULUS. Arms. The Tarquin were also routed, and War was proclaimed against the Tarquini- their Prisoners killed by way of retaliation snu, who had plundered the Roman Territo- The triumph was allowed to Pabins without ries; Fabius was beaten, and a great flaughter any opposition. A league was folemny make was made of the Romans, besides seven hun- with the Sammites. dred Prisoners, who were all put to death after the Fight was over: The Gauls coming PETICUS, M. VALERIUS PUBLICOLA. again, and incamped at Pedum near Rome, C. (Sabillicus mentions C. Martius Rutilius in Sulpitius was made Dictator, and got a victory stead of Sulpitius.) The Tussans, Ceratani, and TILIUS, CN. MANLIUS IMPERIOSUS. Dictator, who proclaimed War against the The Tribunes got a Law to be made to re- Ceretani, because they had joyned with the duce the use of money to one per Cent. Li- Tuscans to plunder the Roman Fields. The Ce cinius Stole the Author of the Law, whereby it retent frighted thereat, fent an Embaffy to was forbidden to possess more than five Rome to excuse themselves, and they were hundred Acres of ground, was himself con- pardoned upon consideration that their Town victed of possessing a rhousand Acres, and had been a place of Resuge for facred things, thereupon fined.

A.M. 1699.R. 198. M. FABIUS AMBUSTUS ced themselves at the head of their Batalions. A. M. 3694. R. 393. C. or C. SULPITIUS dreffed in their priestly habits, their heads PETICUS, C. LICINIUS CALVUS STO-furrounded with Serpents, and holding to all their endeavours to get two Confuls choice A. M. 3695. R. 394. C. PETILIUS LIBO out of their Body, but the Tribunes gave me

COLA. All was quiet within and withan

A.M. 3701. R. 400. M. FABIUS AM-PILIUS. Fabius defeated the Tiburtini, took A. M. 3697. R. 296. C. FABIUS AM- Salucium, and forced them to lay down the

A. M. 3702. R. 401. C. SULPITIUS the Vollei, raised a great many Forces, where A. M. 3698. R. 397. C. MARTIUS RU- upon the Senate created T. Manlius Torquate the Confulship among themselves, but they were brought again to the Law of Licinius, and | league with the Roman people. a Plebeian was made Conful-

A. M. 3703. R. 402. L. VALERIUS PUBLICOLA, a Patrician, C. MARTIUS use of RUTILIUS, a Plebeian. Five Commissioners Cent. were established for the regulation of Usuries, who were called Menfarii. C. Julius was elefted Dictator.

A. M. 3704. R. 403. C. SULPITIUS PETICUS, T. QUINTIUS POENUS CINCIN-NATUS. The Senate created M. Fabius Ambuffus Dictator, without any pretence whatfoever; but notwithstanding the opposition of the Senate and the Dictator, the Licinian Law chosen out of the Body of the people.

A. M. 3705. R. 404. L. CORNELIUS SCIPIO a Patrician, M. POPILIUS LOENAS, a Plebeian. Scipio falling fick, Popilius marched with the Army against the Gault, whom he put at first in disorder, and then attacked them in their Camp, where he forced them with an invincible courage. L. Furius Camillus was named Dictator.

A. M. :706. R. 405. L. FURIUS CA-MILLUS, APPIUS CLAUDIUS CRASSUS. The Goule came again this year, and incamped near Albano with a formidable power. The Reman raised an Army of forty two thousand Foot, and three thousand Horse. This Army incamped near the Gaul, and one of them challenging the Remans to a fingle Combat. M. Valerius 2 young Tribune, commanding 2 thousand men, offered himself to fight him. 'Tis related that during the fight a Raven came to the help of Valerius, and pearched upon his Head-piece, flying at the face of the Gaul, and pecking him, infomuch that Valerius killed his adversary. This false story probably is groundwho crested their Head-pieces with figures of Animals, thinking thereby to render themselves more terrible to their Enemies, and no doubt but Valerius had the figure of a Raven upon his Head-piece, and they have reprefented this Figure alive and moving, only to represent the agility of Val riw in this right. How- tor. ever it was, Valerius get the firname of Corviwww, which remained to all his posterity. The Senate went on with their Intreagues to clude the Licinian Law, and made F. Manlius Tequatus Dictator, but the people carried it for La-

4. M. 3707. R. 406. M. VALERIUS COR-

when Rome was burnt by the Gauls. The was then but three and twenty years of age-Towers and Ramparts of Rome were repaired, yet his want of the age was dispensed with and the Temple of Apollo was dedicated. A in consideration of the victory he had obtaingreat Rebellion broke out at the latter end of cd over the Gaul, whom he had killed the the year, because the Pairitians would keep last year. The Plague was very troublesom to the Romans. The Carthaginians made a

A. M. 3708. R. 407. T. MANLIUS TOR-QUATUS, C. PLAUTIUS VENOX. The use of Money was reduced again to half per

A. M. 3700. R. 408. M. VALERIUS COR-VINUS, C. PETILIUS LIBO. Valerius purfued the Volfci as far as Satricum, where he forced them, burnt the Town, and demolifhed its Fortifications. He obtained the Honour of Triumph, wherein he appeared attended by four thousand Prisoners.

A. M. 3710. R. 400. M. FABIUS DOR-SO, SERVIUS SULPITIUS CAMERINUS. was put into Execution, and a Conful was The Aranciam renewed the War, plundering the Country about Rome, whereupon L. Furius Camillus was made Dictator, who engaged and overcame the Aruncious, having first devoted a Temple to Juno Moneto, which was built in the place, where the House of Menlin Capitolinus formerly stood.

A.M. 3711. Ř. 410. C. MARTIUS RU-TILIUS, T. MANLIUS TORQUATUS Livy relates a great many prodigies that happened this year; for it rained Stones, and the Sun was eclipfed at noon. P. Valerius Publicola was chosen Dictator.

A. M. 3712. R. 411. M. VALERIUS COR-VINUS, AULUS & C. CORNELIUS COS-SUS. Valerius got a great Victory over the Sammites: he took one hundred and seventy Colours, and forty thousand Shields. The Carthaginians hearing of it, fent to congratulate the Roman people, and offered a Crown of Gold of five and twenty pounds weight to Jupiter Capitolinus.

A. M. 3713. R. 412. C. MARTIUS RU-TILIUS, Q. SERVILIUS AHALA. The Legions that were in Winter quarters at Caed upon the custom of the antient Romans, pus, confidering how pleasant and fruitful that Country was, resolved to make themselves masters of that rich Town, killing all the Inhabitants thereof: but Martins prevented that cruel and treacherous delign, removing the feveral authors of that enterprize by diverse Commissions. M. Valerius Corvinus was made Dicta-

> A. M. 3714. R. 413. C. PLAUTIUS, L. ÆMILIUS MAMERCUS. The Camp and the Country of the Volsai were plunder'd. Æmilius put all the Sammites Country to the Fire and Sword, and forc'd them to fue for Peace, which was granted them.

A. M. 3715. R. 414. T. MANLIUS TOR-VINUS, M. POPILIUS LOENAS. Valerius QUATUS, P. DECIUS MUS. War being

procham'd against the Latins, the two Confuls to be enacted, by which the Senate was to raifed their Forces, and marched toward the cute the Orders of the people, and that Enemies, who expected them near Capus. Both People should first declare their, opinion the Confuls separately faw a Ghost, who told cerning the Laws that should be proposed: them with a distinct voice, that one of the two got also enacted that one of the Censors shows Armies should perish, and the Commander of be taken out of the body of the People. the other should be kill'd. The Entrails of A. M.3717. R. 416. L. FURIUS CAMIL Victims foretold the fame; fo that both the LUS, C. MENENIUS NEPOS. The The Confuls agreed among themselves, that the first Consuls took the Town of Pedum, which of them that should find his Forces in a waver- milius had only invested. Afterwards that ing condition, should devote himself to the In- marched through all the Country of the Land fernal Gods to fave the Roman Army. The and feized upon a great many of their Town Son of Manliur the Conful, who was order'd to whereupon a Statue on Horseback was crede march with a body of Horse to observe the to each of them in the Market place at Rent Enemy, was challeng'd by the Commander of which never had been yet done for any person an advanced Pole: This young man, ambitious By the Advice of Comillar the freedom at of Glory, not thinking of the Prohibition the Citizens was granted to feveral of the Latin Generals had made, accepted of the Challenge, yet with this limitation, that they should Edled his Enemy, and brought the Spoils to his have no vote in the Assemblies. Camillus took Fathers feet, who barbaroully put him to death, Antium, from the Velfci, and brought to Reand facrific'd his own Son to the feverity of all the ftems of their Gallies, and fet them military. Discipline; from whence came this upon places designed for Orations, called & Proverb Manliana imperia, to express an extream fire or pro Roffris. feverity in point of observation of Orders. They A. M. 3718. R. 417. C. CALPURNIUS engaged the Enemy, the Fight was very bloody, SULPITHUS LONGUS, L. ÆLIUS PETL and the event uncertain for a long time; but CUS. The Senate forced the Confuls to Decius feeing that his Forces grew weak, and that name a Dictator to go to the relief of the their cottrage failed'em, fent for M. Valerius the cians , because they had been remiss therein; Pontiff and being drels'd in his Gown of State, they named C. Claudius Regillenfir, Minutia wie cover'd his Head, and put both his Feet upon convicted of having transgressed the Vestra a Dart; then lifting up his right hand to the rules in point of Chaffity. Q. Publim Phila height of his Chin, he devoted himself to the was the first Plebeian that was raised to the Infernal Gods, pronouncing aloud these words. Dignity of Prator. which the Pontiff distated him word by word, "Jonus, Jupiter, and you Fathers, Maris, Quiri SUS, CÆSO DUELLIUS.' The Tulcont now nus, Bellena, Lares, Domestick Gods, Gods Called Calvi in Terra Labaris, joyned the Selli-" Novencilles. Gods Indigites, Gods who have trams to make War against Rome, but they were "power over us and our Enemies; and you easily defeated at the first encounter. "Infernal Gods, I do invoke you, I adore you, A. M. 3720. R. 419. M. VALERIUS "and beg your pardon, vouchfafe to blefs the CORVINUS, M. ATTILIUS REGULUS endeavours of the Roman People, and grant Valerius belieged Calles, and took it by floring "them the Victory, and afflict with L. Emilius Mamereus was made Dictator to pre" fear and death their Enemies. And fo fide in the Affemblies. "I devote my felf to the Infernal Gods, A. M 3721. R. 420. T. VETURIUS, SPU: "and to the Earth, the legions of the Enemies, RIUS or P. POSTHUMIUS ALBUS. A "and their helpers, with my felf. Thus hav- Colony was fent to Calles. P. Cornelius Ruff ing spoken, he fent word to Manlius that he was created Dictator. The Plague raged in had devoted himfelf, then fourring on his the Ciry Horse into the midst of the Enemies, he revived the Souldiers courage, and got the victory NELIUS, CN. DOMITIUS CALVUS. A by his death. Monlins pursued the Enemies, Report was spread abroad, that the Gauls were possessed himself of their Camp, plunder'd the about making an irruption into Italy, whererich Fields of Capua, and made his Triumphal upon the Romans made M. Papyrius Crassus Difts entry into Rome.

MERCUS, QUINTUS PUBLIUS PHILO. Tribes were added to the former, viz. the Me The Confuls always had the best of their Ene- tianna and Scaptianna. mies. Q. Publim Philo one of the Confuls was named Dictator. He fignaliz'd himself in his CELLUS, T. or C. VALERIUS POTITUS Office by feveral publick Orders, to the great LACCUS. There was a great Mortality in

A. M. 3722. R. 421. L. or AULUS CORtor. Alexander King of Epirus, made a Con-A. M. 3716. R. 415. L. MILIUS MA- federacy with the people of Rome. Two

A. M. 3723. R. 422. M. CLAUDIUS MARmortification of the Patricians, for he caus'da Law Rome, and it was observed that it carried away none but men. The cause of this particularity tained a great victory, and got a rich boory. died. One hundred and feventy others were "do not prove prejudicial to the State.

A. M. 3724. R. 423. P. PAPYRIUS CRAS- wives and children, and cleared themselves. SUS. L. PLAUTIUS VENNO. Peace was tle Commonwealth of Fundi.

besieged the Town of Priverna, and took it. they had taken during the War. a Peace, and the freedom of Roman Citizens.

A Colony was fent to Fregella.

fer there some sacrifices, left the command of was elected Dictator. the Army to Exviut, expreisly forbidding him attack the Enemy, let the opportunity be e-PHILO, L. PAPYRIUS CURSOR. The was for a long time unknown, till a Slave de- The Dictator being return d to the Camp. clared to the Senate, that most part of the delign'd to put Fabius to death, but the whole Ar-Reman women had plotted to destroy all the my and the Senate itself used all their interest men, and for that purpose made use of a poy- to get his pardon, but the Dictator remained foned drink. Twenty of these women were inflexible; yet was at last prevailed upon by feized, who bring asked about the quality of the prayers of the whole people, to whom he tazed, who time asked about the quant to the drink that was found by them: they and fwer'd impudently, that it was good; they were commanded to try it themselves, and as foon as they had drank it, some indubitable marks of poison appeared, and soon after they drank they had drank it to the drank they had drank it to the drank they had drank it to the drank they had drank they had example "may the Gods grant that thy bad example apprehended, and publickly put to death. A A.M. 3730. R. 429. C. SULPITIUS LON-Different was created to drive in the nail, to ap- GUS, Q. ÆMILIUS or AURELIUS CEREpeafe the Gods by this Ceremony. Two Con- TANUS. The Sammites broke the Truce fuls were poy foned by their Wives, of which which was made for a year. The Tribunes of they died. This is the first instance of publishe people accus'd the Tusculans of being conlick Poyfoning. Cn. Quintitis was chosen cern'd in the Rebellion of the inhabitants of Priverna: but they came to Rome with their

A. M. 3731. R. 430. Q. FABIUS, L. FULgranted to the Samnites, the Volfei, and the lit- VIUS. They created Aulus Cornelius zrvins Dictator, who purfued the Samnites, and made A M. 3725, R. 424. L. ÆMILIUS MA- 10 great a flaughter of them, that they begged MERCUS, CN. PLAUTIUS. The Conful for Peace, offering to furrender up all that

He ordered the Governours Head to be cut off, A. M. 3732. R. 431. T. VETURIUS CAL-and interceded for the reft of the people: by VINUS, SP. POSTHUMIUS ALBINUS. his means the Inhabitants of Priveria obtained The Samites were fent back again, and Peace was denied unto them. Pontius their General A.M. 3726. R. 425. C. or P. PLAUTIUS raifed all the force he could, and incamp'd on PROCULUS, P. CORNELIUS SCAPULA, the top of Furce Caudine, called now Strette d' Arpeia, or Jugo di Santa Maria, or Vallo di A. M. 3727. R. 426. CORNELIUS LEN- Guardano. Pontius ordered ten, the most reso-TULUS, Q. PUBL. PHILO. Claudius lute of his Souldiers, to difguise themselves Marcellus, was chosen Dictator to op-like Shepherds, and gave them some Cattel to pose the Sammites Naulans. The Senate dispu-drive: these new Shepherds were taken by the ted his Election, but the people maintained Roman Forragers, who brought them before the Confuls. They were feverally examined, A. M. 3728. R. 427. C. PETILIUS, L. PA- and all affirmed that the Samnites were busied PYRIUS MALUGINENSIS, or CURSOR, at the fiege of Lucria. The Confuls de-Alexander King of Epirus was killed in Lucania, ceived by this false report, went down now called Basilicates. The fifth Lettisternium thro the narrow passage of the Valley; but as or Banquer was celebrated, because of the soon as they were got into it, the Sammites apgreat affairs the Romans had upon their peared upon the tops of the Mountains. They endeavoured all they could to pass the Defile, A. M. 3720. R. 428. L. FURIUS CAMIL- burthe passage was stopt with strongbarricadoes LUS, DECIUS JUNIUS BRUTUS SCÆVA. of Trees hewn down. Then they attempted to A War was proclaimed against the Marsi, and go back again, but they found their retreat Camillus marched against the Samnites; but he obstructed; so that they were taken like Wild fell fick, and named L. Papyrius Curfor Dicta- Boars in Nets. The Sammites brought them all tor, who being obliged to go to Rome, to of- under shameful subjection. M. Fabius Ambustus ver fo fair. Fabius leeing that the absence of Consuls of the foregoing year delivered themthe Dictator made the Samulter grow carelefs, felves up willingly to the Samultes, with the chofe rather to hazard his life, than neglect other Commanders who had figned the Treaty fo fair an opportunity of defeating the ene- of the Furce Couding, to wash away the shame mies. He attacked them in their Camp, ob-the Remm p-ople had been reproached with took ir, and conquer'd Pontius, and seven they sent some of their acquaintance to them. thousand of his men, and let fix hundred He- who made them so very drunk, that they flages at liberty, that were kept Priloner brought them in Waggons to Rome. After there.

CURSOR, or MALUGINENSIS, Q. ÆMI- go back again, but they were forbid upon pain LIUS CERETANUS. They named M. Æ- of death to go out of the Town, and were inities Papus Dictator. Papyrius put the Garrison allowed to mask themselves during three days of the Sammites to the Sword, which had been every year. Junius re-took Luceria, and killed driven from Satricum. A. M. 3735 R. 434. M. FOLLIUS FELCI-NA, L. PLAUTIUS VENNO. A Truce for MUS, Q. MARTIUS RUTILIUS. F about two years only was granted to the Sammites, fought the Tuscans and got the victory over instead of the Peace they fued for. A Roman them, but the Sammites got the day against the Governour was fent to Capus for the first other Conful. L. Papyrius Curfor was then cretime.

CUS, Q. ÆMILIUS BARBULA. The Roman Law began to be received in all Italy.

or SEMPRONIUS NAUTIUS RUTILIUS, the Statues of the Gods were to pass. M. POPILIUS LÆNAS. They made L. Æ. milius Dictator, who engaged twice the Samelected Dictator to fucceed him.

A. M. 3739. R. 438. M. PETILIUS LI-BO, C. SULPITIUS LONGUS. Caffodorus DIUS CAECUS, L. VOLUMNIUS FLAM-L. Papyrius Junior, Q. Publicius, Or Publius Chile. .The Confuls took the Town of Sora by treawere fent to Rome, where they were publickly publickly exposed to Sale. whipt, and then beheaded. The Senate crea- A. M. 3746. R. 445. L. CORNELIUS. ted . Menenius Dictator.

SOR, Q. JUNIUS BRUTUS BUBULCUS. to ftop the Plague.

DECIUS. Valerius made an end of the War Upon the absence of the Consuls, Cornelius Stiwith the Samnites. Appius Claudius came out of pie was created Dictator. The Temple of hisCenforship, during which the way called after Salus, devoted by Junius Bubulus during the his name via Appia was paved by his care. He | War with the Samutes, was Built. made also the Canal of Rome called Appian, which A. M. 3747. R. 446. L. POSTHUMIUS, brought the Anio into Rome, and was called Aqua T. MINUTIUS AUGURINUS. The Con-Claudia: it carried the waters to the very top fuls belieged Boviana, and took it. The Coloss of Mount Aventini. All the Positie died this of Hercules was found among the Spoils, and year, though they were thirty young men of was dedicated in the Capitol, having been that name in twelve Families.

A. M. 3742. R. 441. C. JUNIUS BRU-TUS BUBULCUS, Q. ÆMILIUS BARBU- GERIO, or SAVERIO, P. SEMPRONIUS LA. The Players upon Flures and other SOPHUS. The Peace was concluded with mufical Instruments quitted Rome and retired the Sannites. The Equi made some motions, to Evoli, because they were forbidden to out at last they disbanded their Armies so soon-concerning it. The War was renewed againft drink in Temples. The Senate defired them the Sammut, and Pappriur beneged Luccria, and to come again, but they refuted; whereupon the tumes of the Wine were over, they were A. M. 3734. R. 433. LUCIUS PAPYRIUS amazed to find themselves in it, and would 20000 Samnites upon the fpot.

A.M. 3743. R. 442. Q. FABIUS MAXI. ated Dictator, who triumphed over the Sam-A. M. 3736. R. 435. C. JUNIUS BUBUL- nites, and their stately Shields were laid by his orders in the place of the Assemblies; and this Ornament was fo taking, that they adorn'd A. M. 3737. R. 436. AULUS SPURIUS in the like manner the Streets of Rome, where

MUS, P. DECIUS MUS. Sabellicus mentimites; in the first engagement the advantage one neither of them. The Consuls got several was equal on both fides : but in the fecond advantages , one over the Samnices, and the ofight the Samnites were defeated. Q. Fabius was ther over the Umbrians, who were quite routed.

mentions two other Confuls before thefe, viz. MA. The Proconful Q. Pabius defeated the Sammites near Alif, and streightned them so much in their Camp, that they could not get chrey, and all the Inhabitants were put to the out of it, but upon condition of subjecting Sword except only two hundred and twenty themselves, and that their Consederates to the five of the chief Authors of the rebellion, who number of seven thousand men, should be

ARVINA,Q. MARTIUS TREMULUS. Co-A.M. 3740. R. 439. L. PAPYRIUS CUR- nelius was much straitned in his Camp by the Sammites and want of Provisions. Martius his Junus took Nola and the Fort of Fregelle. C. colleague hearing of the condition he was in. Betillius was made Dictator to drive the Nail, came to his relief; the Sammites marched out to meet him, and fought him, but they were A. N. 3741. R. 440. M. VALERIUS, P. | quite routed, and lost thirty thousand men.

first carried in the Confuls Triumph.

A. M. 3748, R. 447. L. SULPITIUS A-

as they heard that the Confuls were marching | Conful Manlius fell off his Horfe, and broke his nate and the Patricians had always kept very and Tarentins. fecret among themselves. He did also put out A. M. 3754. R. 453. L. CORNELIUS the Fassi and Calendars, that every one might SCIPIO, FULVIUS CENTUMALUS. The know the Ferie, or Holidays, and dedicated Romans fent fome Forces to the affiftance of the Temple of Concord. This encreased the the Lucani against the Sammites, whom they demortification of the Patricians, who had then feated near Boulans. nothing left fecret. Q. Fabius Cenfor, ender- A. M. 3755. R. 454. Q. FABIUS MAXIvouring to hinder the Mob from having any MUS, P. DECIUS MUS. The Sammites lott share in the elections of Magistrates, divided a Battle, in which three thousand two hunthe common people in four Tribes, which he dred of them were taken Prisoners, and four called the Tribes of the Town. The Senate thousand four hundred kill'd. was fo pleased with it, than they granted Fabius A. M. 3756. R. 455. L. VOLUMNIUS the firname of Maximu, which he had not been FLAMMA, APPIUS CLAUDIUS. The able to obtain by a great many victories he Confuls got a great victory over the Sammires. had not over the Samnites, Tuf. ans and Umbians. They killed feven thousand of the Enemies, VENTINUS, SERVIUS CORNELIUS LEN- was fent to Minturna, that lies at the mouth of TULUS. A Colony of four thousand men the River called then Liris, or Clanius, and was fent to Sors, and another of fix thousand to now Garillan. Albana. The freedom of the City was granted A. M. 3757. R. 456. Q. FABIUS MAXI-I orragers in the Den.

man fubjection.

against them. C. Flavius, Son to Cnew Flavius Neck, and M. Valerius Maximus succeeded him. a freed man, was raifed to the dignity of Edi- Rome was much pressed with famine, but was It Gurulis, notwithstanding the oppositions of relieved by the care of Fabius Maximus them the Patricians. Flavius to be revenged of Commissioner for the Provisions. Two Tribes them, published the Civil Law, which the Se- were added to the former, viz. the Annians to the Arpinates. They fent a small body of MUS, P. DECIUS MUS. The Tuscans, the Forces into Umbria to seprefs certain Forragers, Sammites, and the Umbrians leagued together, who retired into a deep Den that had two and madeWar against the Renden people. The ways to get in, the Roman Forces filled up Armies being in view of one another, a Wolf both ways with wood, and then fet it on that purfued a Hind, paffed in the fight of Fire, and fmothered two thousand of these both Armies; the Souldiers gave a great orragers in the Den.

A. M. 3749. R. 448. L. GENUTIUS A- and took two thousand Prisoners. A Colony

A. M. 3750. R. 449. M. LIVIUS DEU- that the Wolf retired on the Romans fide, and TER, C. ÆMILIUS. The Æqui not being the Hind on the fide of the Sammiter, who kilable to fuffer the yoke of the Romans, attack- led her. The Generals of the Roman Army ed the Colony of Albana, whereupon C. Janius improved this accident as a good omen, and Bubulcus was created Dictator to punish them, encouraged their Souldiers thereby. They told and in eight days time he suppressed them. them that the Wolf was an Animal consecrated He came back to Rome, where he dedicated to Mars, whom they adored as one of the Temple of Salus, which he had vowed dutheir first Gods. Then they recollected ring his Confulship. The Mirf rebelled, and the Fable of the Wolf of Remulu: the Hind, M. Valerius Maximus was made Dictator, who faid they, is confecrated to Diana, and the defeated them, and reduced them to the Ro- Samnites have doubt less provoked that Goddefs, by killing a creature that is under her Some record in this place M. VALERIUS protection. The Armies engaged with an CORVINUS MAXIMUS, and P. SEMPRO- extream fury, the Wing commanded by D. NIUS SOPHUS; but Livy doth not mention'em. Liu, not being able to relift the firength of A. M. 3752. R. 451. M. VALERIUS COR- the Enemies yielded every where; when Decius VINUS MAXIMUS, Q. APULEIUS PAN- devoted himself to the Infernal Gods, as his SA. They created four Pontiffs, and five Au- Father had done before, and flung himself gurs out of the body of the People: So that into the thickest Batallions of the Enemies; the people shared all dignities of the Common- and yet Fabius had much ado to get the best wealth with the Patricians, having besides the of the day. There was at Rome a quarrel be-Populary Tribunes over and above their share. twixt Women, which was like to bring on a Value in propos d the Law of appealing to the People from the Sentences of the Senate, Daughter, and Volumius his Wife, being awhen a Citizen was condemned to be whipt bout to perform her devotion in the Chappel of the Patrician Chaftity, which flood A. M. 3753. R. 452. M. IULVIUS TOE- in the Oxe Market, near the Temple of Heren-TUS, T. MANLIUS TORQUATUS. The Lin; the Patritian Ladies would not admit her, tho fhe was of a Patrician Family, becausethey Iman told them, 'twas more glorious to comfaid the had degenerated in marrying a Ple-Imand rich men, than to be rich himfelf. beian. Virginia would not submit this contest to the decision of the people; but she CADITIUS NOCTUA Colonies were built a Chappel in the long Street, which the fent to Ceftre and Adria.

miss fell fick, the Sammites attacked the Camp account of the Citizens of Rome, who were of the Conful Attilius, and being favoured by then encreased to the number of two hundred a thick fog, made a great flaughter of his seventy thousand heads of Families. men. Postbumius having recovered his health, went into Tuscany, and there routed the Tuscans CELLUS, C. NAUTIUS RUTILIUS. The in two several encounters, took many Towns, people not being able to pay their Creditors. and then made a triumphal Entry.

A. M. 3759. R. 458. L. PAPYRIUS CUR- tor Q. Horstiss pacified the fedition. SOR, SPURIUS CARVILIUS. The sam-nite raifed an Army more numerous and pow-TITUS MAXIMUS, C. ÆLIUS POETUS. erful than before. They affembled all their The Gault besieged Arctium in Tuscany. The Forces together near Aquilonia, and made a Conful Elius attempting to relieve the Town. retrenchment in the midst of their Camp with lost his Army and life there. boards and hurdles of rods wall'd together, cover'd with linnen cloaths, and armed them ÆMILIUS LEPIDUS. The Gauls, contrary with rich and fine arms. Papyrius engag'd them, to the Laws of Nations, murthered the Roman and killed three and thirty thousand three hun- Ambassadors, who were sent to them to dedred of them upon the foot, and made three |mand the prisoners took before Aritium, This thousand eight hundred prisoners. The Con- was the occasion of a bloody War, but the fuls triumphed. The nineteenth Luftram was Romans got the best on't. folemnized, and the account of the Citizens A. M. 3768. R. 467. C. SERVILIUS TUCheads of Families. The Romans being afflict- and killed the Commander thereof. ed with the Plague, fent an Embassy to Epidaurus with rich presents for Esculapius, in or- LABELLA, CN. DOMITIUS CALVUS. Doder, if possible, to bring him to Rome.

A. M. 3760. R. 459. Q. FABIUS GUR-Fabius fought the Samnites fo imprudently, that together. it was almost agreed upon to recall him; but joy. And this great man having restor'd the sed the Siege. former posture of affairs, obtain'd for his Son the honour of Triumph.

tants of Epidaurus to bring along with them the nity. God Æsculapius under the shape of a great Serpent, who presented himself to them in his NUS, T. CORUNCANUS NEPOS. Pyrrhus Temple, and followed them to Rome. He came into Italy; fought the Roman Army, and landed at an Island in the Tyber, and the Ro- defeated it by means of his Elephants, the Romans built there a Temple to his honour.

TU3. Curius triumphed twice, viz. over the and party. Sammites and Sabini. The first made an attempt A. M. 3773 R. 471. C. FABRICIUS LUS-upon the side ity of Curius, and offered him a CUS, Q. ÆMILIUS PAPPUS. One of fyr-

A. M. 3763. R. 462. M. VALERIUS, Q.

devoted to the Plebeian Chaftiry.

A. M. 3764. R. 463. Q. MARTIUS TRE
A. M. 3768. R. 457. LUCIUS POST
HUMIUS, ATTILIUS REGULUS. Pofibucelebrated the Cellus and Lufram, and took an

A.M. 3665. R. 464. M. CLAUDIUS MARrebelled, and retired to Janiculum. The Dicta.

A. M. 3767. R. 466. C. CLAUDIUS, M.

being taken, amounted to two hundred fixty CA. L. CÆLIUS or CÆCILIUS METELtwo thousand three hundred and twenty two LUS. The Tarentini took some Roman Galleys,

A. M. 3769. R. 468. Q. CORNELIUS DO. labella defeated the Gault, who came to beliege Rome, which obliged them to make peace with GES, DECIUS JUNIUS BRUTUS SCEVA. the Romans, which continued for forty years

A. M. 3770. R. 469. C. FABRICIUS LUS-Fabius Maximus, his Father, to prevent that dif- CUS, Q. ÆMILIUS PAPPUS. The Brutigrace, offered himself to serve as his Sons ans and Lucanians besieged Tauranum in Cala-Lieutenant. The Senate accepted of it with bria. Fabricius marched against them, and rai-

A. M. 3771. R. 470. L. ÆMILIUS BARBU-LA, Q. MARTIUS PHILIPPUS. The Ta-A. M. 3761. R. 460. L POSTHUMIUS, remtini finding themselves hard pressed by the C. JUNIUS BRUTUS BUBULCUS. The Romans, implored the affiftance of Pyrrhus King Roman Ambassadors got leave of the Inhabi- of Epirus, who was very glad of that opportu-

A. M. 3772. R. 471. P. VALERIUS LEVImans having never feen any before. Eutropius A. M. 3762. R. 461. P. CORNELIUS RU- fays that Pyrrhus advanced as far as Pranelle, FINUS, M. or ANNIUS CURIUS DENTA- and that in his march he increased his forces

rich present of Plate, instead of earthen Dishes his's Physicians came to Eibricius, and offered they saw him making use of: but this great to poyson the King; but the Consul was struck him back to his Master, with a full account of the Carshaginians had called to their assistance, his ill design. Pyrrhus was so pleased with the | besieged them in their own Cittadel. These generolity of the Cousul, that he tent him all the Prisoners he had taken at the defeat of Leginus. However, these mutual kindnesses did not make an end of the War; for they fought, and Pyrrhus again obtained the Victory.

A. M. 3774. R. 473. P. SULPITIUS SA-VERIO, P. DECIUS MUS. This fecond misfortune did not cast down the courage of the Confuls, they order'd their Souldiers to attack the Elephants only, which they performed with fuch fuccess, that those creatures feeling themselves wounded, ran away, put their own Souldiers in disorder, and gave the Romans an opportunity to get an entire Victory. Pyrrhus loft twenty thousand men, and was wounded in the fight.

A. M. 3775. R. 474. P. CORNELIUS RU-FUS, C. JUNIUS BRUTUS. Pyrrhus his confederates were punished.

A. M. 3776. R. 475. Q. FABIUS GURGES, C. GENUTIUS. Several Prodigies terrified the Roman people, and particularly a Thunderbolt, which struck off the head of the Statue of Jupiter Capitolinus.

A. M. 3777. R. 476. MANIUS, or M. CU-RIUS DENTATUS C. CORNELIUS DENTATUS. Curius engaged Pyrrhus defeated him, and killed three and twenty thousand of his Soldiers. The honour of triumph was permitted him, and four Elephants were shown the first time at Rome. After this overthrow Pyrrhus returned into Greece, and came no more into Italy.

. A. M. 3778. R. 477. SERVIUS CORNE-LIUS, M. CURIUS DENTATUS. C. Fabritius Cenfor, expelled P. Cornelius Rufinus a Confulary man out of the Senate, because he found fifteen marks of filver utenfils in his house.

A.M. 3779. R. 478. C. FABRICIUS LI-CINIUS or LUSCUS, C. CLAUDIUS CIN-NA. They numbred the people, and found two hundred feventy one thousand two hundred twenty four heads of Families. Ptolomeus Philadelphus sent an Embassy to Rome, to make a league with the Romans. Eutropius reckons this year to be the four hundred and fixty first after the foundation of Rome, and Cornelius Nepos the four hundred and seventieth. A. M. 3780. R. 479. L. PAPYRIUS CUR-SOR, C. SERVILIUS. The Vefful Scatilia was convicted of lewdness, contrary to the constitution of her order, and was put to death according to the laws.

A. M. 3781. R. 480. C. QUINTIUS GU-LOX, L. GENUTIUS. Eutropius mentions M. Felius Plefor in the room of Genutius, omitting the following Confuls.

with horror at his base treachery, and sent | CORNELIUS BLASIO, The Mainersini, whom Mamertini were Souldiers of Campania, who after having ferved under Agathocles, as Saballicus reports, or under Hiere, according to Polybius, were put in Garrison in Messina. They were so taken with the situation and conveniency of the place, that they resolved to settle there, and for that purpose killed all the male Inhabitants whom they came to relieve, and having feized upon all their effects, and their Wives, they began a new fettlement. They were called Mamertini, that is, the Children of

A M. 3783. R. 482. Q. FABIUS PICTOR, Q. OGULIUS GALLUS. There is nothing more recorded of these Confuls, but their

A. M. 3784. R. 483. SEMPRONIUS SO-PHUS, APPIUS CLAUDIUS CRASSUS. The Legion who had feized upon Rhegium during the Consulship of L. Æmiliu:, was now befieged and forced to furrender at discretion. All the Soldiers were beheaded. Polybius tells us, that this Legion confifted of Romans, but Florus says it was made up of the Inhabitants of Campania, and the Town of

A. M. 3785. R. 484. M. ATTILIUS RE-GULUS, L. JUNIUS LIBO. They begun to use Money at Rome, fays Eutropius, and the number of Quaftors was encreased.

A. M. 3786. R. 485. DECIUS JUNIUS MUS, CN. FABIUS PICTOR. Volfmia, one of the chiefest Communities in Tuscany, was oppressed by the Slaves, whom they had made free Decius subdued that Rabble, and punished

A M. 3787. R. 486. Q. FABIUS MAXI-MUS GURGES, L. MANLIUS.

A.M. 3788 R. 487. APPIUS CLAUDIUS O. FULVIUS ILACCUS. Aurelius Victor names Appeus Cl. Caudex, and fays, that he was Brother to Appius Claudius Cacus: but he could be but either his Son or his Nephew. The Mamertini, the greatest villains in the world, begged the affiftance of Romans, who affifted them rather out of policy and felf interest, than affection or justice. This year the barbarous show of the Gladiators began first; M. and Decius Brutus invented it, to grace the Funeral pomp of their Fathers. Florus mentions it not till three years after.

A. M. 3789. R. 488. M.VALERIUS MAXI-MUS, M. OTTACILIUS. The Conquest of Sicily was attempted, and four compleat legions were fent on that expedition. Valerius brought from the City of Catanea in Sicily the first Dial that ever was feen at Rome. It was A.M. 3782. R. 481. C. GENUTIUS, CN. fet up upon a Pillar over against the Rostra. eny, and this was the first time that the Roman | far as the coasts of Africa. Horse passed over the Sea. He gave Battle to the Carthaginiam, and vanquished them, and foot long whole Scales were so hard, that they by this enterprize had the honour to be the first of all the Romans that got a victory out of He fent the skin thereof to Rome.

A. M. 3790. R. 489. L. POSTHUMIUS, Q. MANLIUS. The Confuls took the Town of Agragas, tho it was relieved by Hanne General of the Carthaginians, with whom the Remans had a very bloody Battle .

A. M. 3791. R. 490. L. VALERIUS FLAC-CUS, T. OTTACILIUS CRASSUS. The Romans fitted out a Fleet, and put sixscore Galleys to Sea. This was the first Navy the in a fight, where they lost thirty thousand Romans eyer had. The Inhabitants were num- Imen, besides fifteen thousand that were taken bred, and amounted to three hundred feventy two thousand two hundred and fourscore heads of Families, according to Florus, but Eutropius's account amounts only to two hundred and ninety two thousand three hundred thirty

A. M.3792. R. 491. CN. CORNELIUS A-SINA, C. DUELLIUS NEPOS. Cornelius was treacheroufly befieged by Annibal, Duellius his colleague revenged the Treachery; for he funk many of the Carthaginian Galleys, took fifty of them, and chased the Admiral, with all the remaining Ships. After this great vi-Story, Duellius returned to Rome, where he had the first Naval Triumph. He was also allowed to have a Torch carried before him in the night, and players upon the Flute to attend

A.M. 3793. R. 492. L. AQUILIUS FLO-RUS, L. CORNELIUS SCIPIO. Cornelius defeated the Carthaginians in the Isle of Carfica, where Home their General was killed, fighting for the defence of the Town of Olbis. The Conful buried him very honourably.

A. M. 3794. R. 493 AULUS ÁTTILIUS COLLATINUS, Q. or C. SULPITIUS PA-TERCULUS. The two Confuls offered the CarshaginiansBattle before Palermo, but they refused it. TheConful Attilius, out of rashness, attempting to engage the Carthaginian Fleet, had a severe rebuke, but his Lieutenant by his prudence attoned for it. The Mands of Sardinia and Corfice furrendred themselves to the Romans after the taking of Caralla.

A M. 3795. R. 494. C. CORNELIUS. fir thirty two of the Enemies Galleys were | with them according to his Parole. The Car-

Claudius went over into Sicily with a fine Ar. funk, fixty four taken, and the rest chas'd as Attiliur destroyed a dreadful Serpent, fixscore were forc'd to make use of a Balifta to kill him.

A. M. 3796. R. 495. Q. CÆDITIUS, L. MANLIUS or M. ATTILIUS REGULUS. Neither Polybius, Eutropius, or Florus mention these Consuls. The Carthaginians having loft three Generals, and above eighteen thousand men kill'd in feveral Fights, besides five thoufand Prisoners, sent to Sparta to get a General. The Spartans fent them Xantippus, a prudent man and a great Captain, who beat the Romans Prisoners, with the Conful Regulus.

A. M. 3797. R. 496. M. ÆMILIUS PAU-LUS, SERVIUS FULVIUS NOBILIOR. The Carthaginians, proud of this Victory, pur again to Sea, and engag'd the Confuls near Camarine. The Fight was long and obstinate, but the Romans got the victory, and took a hundred and fourteen Ships of the Enemies. At their return home, they met with fuch tempeffuous weather, that they could fave but fourscore of their Ships.

A. M. 3798. R. 497. AULUS ATTILI-US, or according to Polybius, L. AOUILIUS, C. CORNELIUS ASINA. The Confuls betieged Palerma, the chiefest City of the Carthaginians in Sicily, and took it before it could be relieved. The Senate to repair the loss of the former year, put two hundred and forty Ships to Sea, which they fent to bring all that could be recovered of the first Fleet.

A. M. 3700, R. 408. C. SERVILIUS, C. SEMPRONIUS. Entropius and Sabellicus call the first by the Sirname of Capie, and the fecond by that of Blafus. The Remans loft two hundred and fifty Ships by stress of weather, upon which they laid up the remainder of their Fleet, except threescore Gallies, which they kept to guard the Coasts of Italy.

A.M. 3800. R. 499. C. AURELIUS COTTA, P. SERVILIUS GEMINUS. The Confuls went over into Sicily, but there was nothing remarkable done on neither fide.

A. M. 3801. R. 500. L. CÆCILIUS. L. FURIUS or C. CURIUS, fays Sabellicus. Eutropius gives the first the firname of Metellus, and C. ATTILIUS according to Caffiodorus, the second that of Pacillus. The Carthaginians or M. ATTILIUS REGULUS and L. MAN- fustain'd several Losses both by Sea and Land, LIUS according to Polybius, Eutrelius and thereupon they fent Ambassadors to Rome. and Florus. The Confuls put out to and the Conful Attihus Regulus, who was their Sea with three hundred and fifty Sail , and | Prifoner with them to treat for peace; but a hundred and forty thousand men. The the Conful diffwaded the Roman from ir, and Carthaginians came up to meet them with an I from exchanging the Prifoners, wherefore they equal force, but the success was not alike, fint back the Ambassadors : Regulus return'd theg night

harmians being exasperated with this denial. . cruel: they put him in a Vessel stuck full with nerous Roman expired.

A. M. 3802. R. 501. C. ATTILIUS RE-GULUS, L. MANLIUS VOLSO. The Confuls went over into Sicily, and befieged Lilibeum both by Sea and Land. Annibal got into the place with ten thousand men, and made a upon a white Horse. vigorous Sally, having burnt the Romans Engines.

A. M. 3803. R. 502. P. CLAUDIUS PUL-CHFR, L. JUNIUS. Claudius seeing that the fiege of Lilibaum took up a great deal of time, formed a design upon Drepanum a Sea-Town : but Aldrubal who commanded in the place, having notice of it, drew his Forces in a line of Battle at the mouth of the Harbour : Claudius was amaz'd to see his Enemy in this pofture; yet thought fit for the honour of the miral of the Carthaginians, who had infelted Romans to attack him, but Afarubal funk many the Coasts of Italy for five years together. The of his Ships, and took ninety three. The fu- Carthaginians had notice of these Sea preparatiperfitious people imputed this loss to the ons, and fitted out a like number of Ships. flight Claudius had made of the Augur of the facred Birds : for the Cage being brought before him that he might take himself the Augur. and feeing that the Birds did not flir towards and thirty thousand made Prisoners. This loss the Corn that was laid there for them, he threw the Cage and the Birds into the Sea, faying, "Let them drink, fince they won't eat. The people was number'd, and there was found two hundred-fifty one thousand two hundred every year during the space of twenty years. And twenty two heads of Families. Junius failed thus ended the first Punick or Carthaginian War, for Sicily with fixty Ships, thinking to reinforce his Fleet with the like number of Gal- according to Polibius, and two and twenty, acleys; but Cartala Admiral of the Carthaginians, cording to Eutropius. The Temple of Janus being inform'd of the course he was steering, flood off to Sea, and kept his Fleet under fail. to prevent the joining of the two Fleets; but CATULUS, AULUS MANLIUS TOR-foreseeing a great florm approaching, he re- QUATUS. The Consuls triumph'd over the tired under shelter. The Romans who had but Falisci, whom they defeated in fix days, havlittle experience in Sea affairs, feeing themfelves at liberty, attempted to join their Galleys; but they were on a fudden overtaken by fo tempestuous weather, that they lost most !TO, M. SEMPRONIUS TRUDITANUS. part of their Ships.

A. M. 3804. R. 503. P. SERVILIUS GE-MINUS, C. AURELIUS COTTA. The ple, of two hundred thousand Bushels of fiege of Lilibaum was continued without any Corn. confiderable fuccefs.

A. M. 3805. R. 504. L. CÆCILIUS ME-TELLUS, CN. FABIUS BUTEO. There lient to Prolomeus King of Egypt, to offer him a was a fight upon Mount Eryx, which Jurius succour of Forces, against King Antiochus; but had formerly taken. Sabellicus says that Junius he return'd them thanks, and would not accept feiz'd upon Erice, but in all probability be of it. One Licinus, fays Eutropius, about this mistakes the Mountain for the Cicy.

A. M. 3806. R. 505. M. FABIUS BU- the Roman Stage. TEO, M. OTTACILIUS CRASSUS. The A. M. 3814. R. 513. T. SEMPRONIUS I leet of the Confuls was scatter'd by a storm, GRACCHUS, L. CORNELIUS or L, VAand render'd unfit for any Enterprize.

A.M. 3807. R. 506. M. FABIUS, C. ATTIflew'd their relentment to Regulus, and in- LIUS. Florus thinks that the Prætors were first vented punishment for him both new and created this year; but this fort of Magistracy was in use in Rome the year before the Conpoints of Nails, and soll'd it about till the ge- sulship of L. Emilius and L. Sextius. One of them administred Justice to the Citizens of the Commonwealth, the other to the Foreigners that came to Rome. They were allowed to use Ivory Chairs, and were clothed like the Confuls, attended by fix Lictors, and rode

A. M. 3808. R. 507. A. MANLIUS TORQUATUS, C. SEMPRONIUS. The War continued in Sicily.

A. M. 3809. R. 508. C. FUNDANIUS. C.SULPITIUS GALLUS. Nothing remarkable happen'd this Year.

A. M. 3810. R. 509. C. LUTTATIUS, A. POSTHUMIUS. Lutratius got together two hundred Galleys, with five Banks of Oars each (Quinqueremes) to drive away Amilear Ad-The two Fleets engaged, and the Romans had the advantage. Eutropius fays, that thirteen thousand of the Enemies were kill'd, and two obliged them to fue for peace, which was granted, upon condition that they should quit Sicily, and pay two thousand Talents ready Money for the charges of the War, and two hundred which had continued four and twenty years, was shut up.

A. M. 3811. R. 510. Q. LUTTATIUS ving kill'd fifteen thousand of their men, and conquer'd half of their Country.

A. M. 3812. R. 511. C. CLAUDIUS CEN-King Hiere came to Rome to fee the publick Shews, and made a prefent to the Roman peo-

A. M. 3813. R. 512. C. MANLIUS, Q. or P. VALERIUS FLACCUS. The Romans time introduc'd Comedy and Tragedy upon

LERIU3 FLACCUS. The Romans accepted A. M. 3826. R. 525. L. APUSTEIUS. M. of Sardinia; which offered to furrender to them. VALERIUS MESSALA. The Gauls entred The Carthaginians were very much displeased into Italy with seventy thousand men, and the FULVIUS. Entropins favs, that the first of thousand eight hundred Horse. these Consuls was sirnamed Lentulus, and the fecond Flaccus. Fulvius made war in Liguria: burnt down the Forests, in which the Enemy engag'd the Romans, and quite routed them. used to retire.

RUS, P. CONELIUS LENTULUS. The the remainder of the Forces of Emiliar that Confuls routed the Ligurians, who were fo bold were behind them, fo that they were beaten, to attack the Roman on the plain.

A. M. 3817. R. 516. T. MANLIUS TOR-QUATUS, C. ATTILIUS BALBUS. The Roman fide Attilius was kill'd. Consuls chastiz'd the Sardinians, and Triumphed for the fame. The Temple of Janus was QUATUS, Q. FULVIUS FLACCUS. They ALBINUS, SPURIUS CARVILIUS MAXI- oblig'd the Confuls to retire, without having MUS, or according to Eutropius, CN. FUL- done any confiderable thing. VIUS CENTUNCULUS. War was pto- A. M. 3829. R. 528. T. MANLIUS TORclaim'd against the Illyrians, and the Confuls QUATUS, Q. FURIUS PHILO or C. FLAdisarmed the Ligurians.

A. M. 3819. R. 518. Q. FABIUS MAXI- into the Milaness, fought the Enemies with MUS, M. POMPONIUS MATHO. Tullia success, and made his triumphal entry, nota vestal Virgin was convicted of Unchastity, withstanding the opposition of the Senate.

and punish'd with death.

PIDUS, M. PUBLICIUS MALLEO. Au-theSenate design dto depose him, for some desect thors relate nothing of what was transacted of Formalities in his Election, and for that during this Confulfhip.

A. M. 3821. R. 520. C. PAPYRIUS MAS-down in the Calendars. SO, M. POMPONIUS MATHO.

King of Illyria, revolted from her, and joined rus King of the Gauls, with another party.

CENTUMALUS. Postbumius went into 11/4y- that the Adriatick Sea was become dangerous, rium, where having joined his Forces with because of the Piracies of the Italians. Rome those of Demetrius, he took the Towns of Apol- took hold on this pretence to proclaim war lonia and Corcyra, and many other places: against them. Whereupon Queen Tenca was forc'd to fue for A. M. 3832. R. 531. L. VETURIUS PHI-peace, which was granted to her, upon condi-LO, C. LUTTATIUS CATULUS. Hamtion that fhe should pay a yearly Tribute, and nibal laid siege to Saguntum. The Saguntines that the Towns then taken should remain to fent for succour to Rome. The Romans sent the Conqueror.

US CARVILIUS. The number of Prætors cepted of the war, that the Deputies declared was incresed to four.

ATTILIUS REGULUS. The Country ther to fer their Town on fire, and burn all taken from the Gaule was given to the their Goods and themselves withal, than fur-Soldiers; and that imboldened them to take frender to the Enemy. The Crew and the up Arms against the Romans, and Departies, Haminian way were finish'd. whom they had made King of Pharos joined his Forces with theirs.

Remans opposed them with an Army of eight A. M. 1814. R. 414. L. CORNELIUS, Q. hundred forty eight thousand foot, and fifty

A. M. 3827. R. 526. C. ATTILIUS, MA. MILIUS LEPIDUS or PAPPUS. The Gault but as they were returning home, they fell A. M. 3816. R. 515. C. LICINIUS VAR- between the Army of the Conful Attilius, and and loft forty thousand men in this engagement, with Corgolitanus their King; on the

A. M. 3828. R. 527. T. MANLIUS TORcarried on the War in Liguria and Lombardia: A. M. 3818. R. 517. L. POSTHUMIUS but the Plague and the continued Rains

MINIUS NEPOS. This last Conful enter'd Flaminius is not reckon'd among the Confuls. A. M. 3820. R. 519. M. ÆMILIUS LE- neither in the Fasti, nor by Cassindorus, because reason it may be, that his name was not set

A. M. 3831. R. 529. M. CLAUDIUS A.M. 3822. R. 521. M. ÆMILIUS BAR-MARCELLUS, CN. CÓRNELIUS SCIPIO. BULA, M. JUNIUS PERA. Demetrius King They made war against the Milane and Lomof Phares hearing of the preparations the Romans bards. Marcellus took Milan, and returned to made against Queen Tenca, Widow to Agron Rome with great booty, having kill'd Veridoma-

A. M. 3831. R. 530. P. CORNELIUS A. M. 3823. R. 522. L. or ANNÆUS ASINA, M. MINUTIUS RUFUS. Seve-POSTHUMIUS ALBINUS, CN. FULVIUS ral Merchants made a complaint to the Senate, Deputies to Carthage to complain of it; but A. M. 3824. R. 523. Q. FABIUS SPURI-the Carthaginians, against Hanna's opinion, acagainst them. The Inhabitants of Sanguntum A. M. 3825. R. 524. P. VALERIUS, M. being reduced to the last extremity, choic raNATOR, L. ÆMILIUS PAULUS. This in the Forest. year two hundred and feventy thousand heads Suburrana, and Collina.

SCIPIO, T. SEMPRONIUS LONGUS. The las of his own accord laid down his Conful-War being proclaimed against the Carthagini- ship, and deliver'd up his place to Q. Fabius ans, the Romans made publick processions to Maximus, who restored the affairs of the Reobtain the favour of the Gods. The Roman mans by dilatory methods. Army was four and twenty thousand Foot, and eighteen hundred Horse strong, all Romans born, besides four and forty thousand Foot, and four thousand Horse of Confederate Troops; and the Carthaginians were four- M. CLAUDIUS MARCELLUS. Marcellus fcore thousand Foot, and ten thousand Horse. met Hannibal near Nola, and engaged him, but Hannibal entered Italy with this Army, and he got no great advantage over him. The two came to the foot of the Alps about the fifteenth Scipio's did wonders in Spain. Cneus Scipio forc'd of Offober, and in nine days he got up to the the Camp of Aldrubal, and put a supply into top of them, in spight of the High-landers and Miturgis, which the Carthaginians had bethe Snow, cutting and splitting the Rocks that sieged. were in his way with Fire and Vinegar. Cor- A. M. 3839. R. 538. Q. FABIUS MAXI-nclin advanc'd against him, and met him up- MUS, T. SEMPRONIUS GRACCHUS. on the banks of the Teffina, where they enga- Rome was fet on fire and the Incendiaries could ged, and Hannibal was victorious. Sempronius not be discovered. Sifax King of Numidia came to relieve his Colleague, but he had no made a League with the Romans. Massimissa the better success.

A. M. 3835. R. 534. CN. SERVILIUS but he had fifteen thousand men kill'd in the he could not be forced to fight. Fight, and eight thousand made Prisoners. A. M. 3840. R. 539, Q. FULVIUS FLAC-Q. Fabius Maximus was made Dictator; his wife CUS, APPIUS CLAUDIUS PULCHER. and prudent conduct was suspected by the Ropower with the Dictator.

VARRO, L. ÆMILIUS PAULUS. The more refistance against him with his Engines, two Consuls offer'd battle to Hannibal, who than all the Arms of the Carthaginians. P. Sciwillingly accepted it. The Fight began with pio was delivered up to the Enemies by the an incredible eagerness, and was so bloody, Celtiberians, or the people of Arragon, and put that forty thousand Romans, with the Consul to death by the Carthaginians. Cneus his Brother nibal fent to Rome three bushels of those Rings, Armies of the Carthaginians. the Roman Knights were for a badge of their A.M. 3841. R. 540. CN. FLAVIUS CEN-Quality. This overthrow has render'd the TUMALUS, P. SULPITIUS GALBA. Ful-Village of Canna femous to posterity. M. Ju- vius belieged Capua, which surrender'd to him nius was created Dictator; They raised new after a siege of two years. He put to death Forces, and armed eight thousand Slaves, that fifty fix Senators, which were found alive, were bought for that purpose. To compleat the others being dead during the siege, and all their misfortunes, the Romans received ad- the rest of the Inhabitants were publickly exvice of the loss of the Army that Postbumius the pos'd to fale. Prætor commanded in Gaul, which was crushed A. M. 3842. R. 641. M. CLAUDIUS to death, and buried under the Trees of the MARCELLUS, M. VALERIUS LEVINUS. Forest Livana. The Gauli had half saw'd those This last Consul made an end of the Sicilian Trees, but kept them standing by means of war, by the taking of Agrigentum, which was

A. M. 3833. R. 512. M. LIVIUS SALI- the Romans, when they faw their whole Army

A. M. 3837. R. 536. T. SEMPRONIUS of Families were number'd in Rome. The GRACCHUS, MARCUS CLAUDIUS MARenfranchis'd Slaves, who had been hitherto di- CELLUS. The noise of Thunder being heard fiributed amongst Tribes, were divided into during the creation of the Confuls, the Senate four, which were called Equilina, Palatina, perswaded the People that this bad Omen was occasioned, because the two Consuls were Ple-A. M. 3834. R. 133. P. CORNELIUS beians. To avoid all disputes about it, Marcel-

---- Cunttando restituit rem. Enn.

A. M. 3838. R. 537. FABIUS MAXIMUS,

Son of Gala, a young Prince, seventeen years of age, defeated Sifax and killed thirty thousand GEMINUS, C. QUINTIUS FLAMINIUS. of his men. Fabius followed Hamibal every The Conful Flaminiss was fent against Hannibal, where, and encamped so advantageously, that Hamibal took Tarentum by the treachery of mans, who order'd by a Plebiscitum, that the Philomenes and Nice, two young Gentlemen of General of the Horse should bear an equal that place. Marcellus took Syracusa by storm, having layn before it for three years together. A. M. 3836. R. 535. C. TERENTIUS during which time Archimedes alone, made Emilius himself, were kill'd on the spot. Han- was a short time after overpower'd by three Ropes and other things, and let them fall on the last place belonging to the Carthaginiam.

P. Cornelius Scipio came into Spain as Proconful, | him) to be thrown among the Carebaginians : tho he was but four and twenty years of age. and at the fight of this fad spectacle Hamibal He took Nova Carthago by ftorm, and got a uttered these words, Now I deubt no more of the very rich booty both of Ammunition and missoriume of Carthage. Both Consuls tri-Provisions, besides many Hostages, that the umphed : Livin on a Triumphal Chariot, and Spaniards had delivered to the Carthaeinians. and among them a very beautiful young Lady. Scipie enquired about her Country and Family, and being told that the was betrothed to a young Geltiberies Prince named Alluciw, he fent immediately for her Parents and LO, Q. CÆCILIUS METELLUS. Scipie her Bridegroom, to whom he delivered up his Spoule, and fent them back again. Valerise Maximus relating this passage, calls the on his return from that journey fell so dan-Bridegroom Indibilis, instead of Allucius, but Polybius, who lived in the time of that Illustrious Romen, nor Livy do not confound him with Indibilia, whom they call King of the Mergetes.

A. M. 3843. R. 542. Q. FABIUS MAXI-MUS CUNCTATOR, Q. FULVIUS FLAC-CUS. Twelve Roman Colonies refused their usual Supplies of Men and Money; whereupon the Senate was obliged to have recourse to the Treasure called Erarium vice fimarum, which never was made use of but in very urging necessities. They took out of it four thousand pound weight of Gold, which were applied to the most pressing exigencies. Scipie went on with the Conquelts in Spain. He made a Confederacy with Indibilis, and Mendenius, the two greatest Princes of Spain, whose friendship he had gained by setting at liberty their Wives and Children, whom he had taken in Nova Carthago. He defeated Afdrubal, and poffes'd himself of his Camp. where he got a great booty.

A. M. 3844. R. 543. M. CLAUDIUS MAR-CELLUS, TITUS QUINTIUS CRISPI-NUS. Both Coululs fell into an Ambulcado of the enemy, where Marcellus was killed, and Crispinus so wounded, that he died in few days after of his wounds, having named Dictator T. Manlius Terquatus.

A. M. 3845. R. 544. C. CLAUDIUS NE-RO, MARCUS LIVIUS, whom Caffiedorus calls SALINATOR. Afdrubal Barcha came into Italy, to the relief of Haunibal his brother, and besieged Placentia, but hearing that the Carthaginiam from several Posts. Massaniffa: the Conful Livius was drawing near him, he raised the Siege, and encamped upon the banks of Metaurus in Umbria. Nere joined his Colleague with fuch of the Troops as were able to march, with the utmost diligence; and before the Carshaginians had notice of it. the Confuls offered Battel to Adrubal, who accepted of it, and was killed in this fight. with five and fifty thousand of his men, and five thousand made prisoners. New being returned to his Camp, ordered the head or Aj MINUS, T. CLAUDIUS NERO. Hannibal

Ners only on Horseback, because he had fought in the Army of his Colleague. Nero named Dictator his Colleague Living, to prefide in the Affemblies. A. M. 3846. R. 545. L. VETURIUS PHI-went over into Africa, having made a league with Sifex King of part of Numidia, and upgeroully ill, that they gave him over for dead. This false report being spread in Spain, Indibilis rebelled, and the Reman Army itself mutinied, and requested to return into Italy; but the recovery of Scipie calmed their minds. The Carthaginians priverted sifax from the Confederacy made with Scipio, and gave him to wife Sophmuba , Afdrubal Gifce's daughter, who was promised a long time before to Prince Mallanilla.

A. M. 3847. R. 546. P. CORNELIUS SCIPIO AFRICANUS, P. LICINIUS CRAS-SUS. Mago came into Italy to the relief of Hamibal. C. Offavins, Prator of Sicily, croffing the Sea, took eight Ships laden with Corn defign'd for Hannibal's Army. The Prator of Spain routed the Spaniards, and Indibilis their Commander was kill'd in the fight, wherein he behaved himself with a great deal of cou-

A. M. 3848. R. 547. M. CORNELIUS, whom Caffodorus calls CETHEGUS, P. SEM-PRONIUS TUDITANUS. Scipio besieged Utica; Sifax and Afdrabal came to relieve it with four and fifty thousand foot, and thirteen thousand horse. Scipio raised the Siege, and marched against them. A general review was made of all the Roman people, and the number of them amounted to two hundred and fiftteen thousand heads of Families.

A. M. 3849. R. 548. CN. SERVILIUS CÆ-PIO, CN. SERVILIUS GEMINUS. Scipio being reinforced with the Numidian horse that Ms anifs had brought along with him, beat took Sifax Prisoner, and pursued his routed Army as far as Cireba, the chief City of the dominions of that unfortunate Prince, which was delivered up to him, with all the Towns of Numidia, upon advice that their King was taken Prisoner. Scipio took Utica, which put the Carthaginians into fuch a consternation, that they fued for Peace. Q. Cacilius Metellus was elected Dictator.

A. M. 3850. R. 549. M. SERVILIUS GERdrubal (the only booty he had brought with returned to Carthage, and was made commenthat they should pay a yearly Tribute, to the ed. Remans, that they should keep but four Galleys A.M.3857.R.556. L.VALERIUS FLACCUS, he made his Triumphal Entry .

dians and King Attalus.

A. M. 3852. R. 551. P. SULPITIUS difadvantageous Peace. GALBA, L. AURELIUS COTTA. The A. M. 3858. R. 557. P. CORNELIUS and took two thousand Prisoners.

A. M. 3853. R. 552. L. LENTULUS, P. VELEIUS TAPPULUS. L. Bebius called Insubres, and lost fix thousand men.

ceden, but that interview had no effect ; for Enemies, served only to add a greater lustre at last they came to an engagement, wherein in the Raman Glory. the Romans got a Booty, tho the flaughter was A. M. 3860. R. not very great on either fide, for King Phi- FLAMINIUS, CN. DOMITIUS ÆNEOlip loft but two thousand men. After this BARDUS. The League above-mentioned victory Quintius belieged Carinth, but without began to discover its felf in Greece. Antischus any fuccess.

A. M. 3855. R. 554. CN. CORNELIUS Caffindarus doth not mention these two BRIO. Acilius went over into Greece with ten Confuls in his Chronology. The two thousand Foot, and two thousand Horse. Confuls made War, one in Lugaria, datischus expected him at the narrow paffage and the other in the Country of the Bail. of Timpe, where the Conful made a great Cornelius engaged the Ligarians and Milanefes, flaughter of the Maticks, then besieged Herabroke them, and killed fifteen thousand of cles, where the Esolisms after the defeat of them, and took feven thousand Prisoners, Temps, were retired. He reduced the place, and among them Amilear, their Commander, and forced the Enemies to beg Peace. the last of the Carthaginian Generals that remained in Italy. A battle was fought between King Philip, and the Conful Quintius, POS, whom Cossiderus call Africanus, to intina place called Gynocephalum in Thessalia, mate that he is the same who was Scipie's ful Cornelius triumphed over the Milaneses, gainst Eumens King of Armenia, and besieged and Minutius obtained but the small. Triumph Pergamus, the chiefest Town of that Prince's or Ovation on Mount Albanus.

by restored the liberty to Greece, causing the to King Antiochus, upon condition that he der of a very considerable Army, to oppose same to be proclaimed at the Olympick Sciois: The Armies engaged, but the Cartha- Games. A great many Slaves of the Romans ginians were beaten, and loft twenty thousand got into a Body and rebelled, and had coumen, and as many Prisoners. This loss obliged rage enough to make a stand against a Legion the Carthaginiam to fue again for Peace, which deligned to reduce them to their duty; they they obtained on the following conditions, were all difarmed and very feverely punish-in their Harbour, and that they should reim- M. PORTIUS CATO. Valerius fought against burse in ready Money, the charges of the the Boii, and killed eight thousand of them. War. Scipio came back again to Rome, where Cato being arrived in Spain, which Province was fallen to his share, routed forty thousand A. M. 3851. R. 550. CN. CORNELI- Spaniards, and brought the whole Country US LENTULUS, P. ÆLIUS PÆTUS. under the Roman fubjection. T. Quintius A Confederacy was concluded with the Rho- made War against Tyramus Nabis, besieged him in Sparts, and forced him to accept of a War was proclaimed against Philip King of SCIPIO AFRICANUS, T. SEMPRONIUS Macedon, because he had attacked Illyrium du-LONGUS. Flaminius withdrew the Garriring the Carthaginian War. L. Furius Prator fons of the Towns of Acrocorinthus, Demetriaof the Gauls defeated Amilear, and killed thirty | des and Calcidona, and fo restored an entire lithousand Gault, both Insubres and Caromani, betty to Greece, and the Greeks delivered up to him all the Remon Slaves.

A. M. 3859. R. 558. L. CORNELIUS MERULA, Q. MINUTIUS THERMUS. Prætor of the Gauls was beaten by the Gauls Merula brought up the Legions against the Beii, and beat them near Medeus. There was A. M. 3854. R. 553. SEXTUS ÆLIUS a powerful League made against Rome by PÆTUS, T. QUÍNTIUS FLAMINIUS. Antiochus in Afia, the Ætelians in Greece, and Quimins had a Parley with Philip King of Ms- Hamibal in Africa, but so many Confederate

559. L. QUINTIUS joyned the Atalians, and took Calsidens.

A. M. 3861. R. 560. L. CORNELIUS CETHEGUS, Q. MINUTIUS RUFUS. SCIPIO NASICA, M. ACILIUS GLA-

where the Romans were victorious. The Con- Lieutenant in Africa. Antiochus made War a-Dominions: but when he heard that the A. M. 3856. R. 555. L. FURIUS PUR- Conful was marching against him, he raised PUREO, M CLAUDIUS MARCELLUS, the Siege, and waited for him upon the Banks Son to Marcellus the Great. Flamin.us con- of the Phanician River, where he lost four cluded the Peace with King Philip, and there- and fifty thousand men. Peace was granted should not extend his Conquests on this: A. M. 3370. R. 569. CN. BEBIUS PAM. fide of Mount Taurus. Acilius Glabrio caufed a PHILUS, L. ÆMILIUS PAULUS. The Statue on Horleback to be made, and fet it diffolute life of the Priests of Isis, called Galli. up in the Temple of Piety, and confecrated occasioned an order from the Senate, importthe same to the memory of his Father, whom ing that the Temples of that Goddess, and the Statue represented. This was the first Serapu should be razed to the ground, but no Statue made of that precious Metal at man durst execute this Sentence of the Senate. Rome.

BILIOR, C MANLIUS VOLSO. Scipio molish that Nest of lewd people, and incoucame back to Rome, and was the first man that | raged the workmen by his Example. triumphed over the Afiaticks.

A. M. 3864. R. 563. C. VALERIUS MESSALA, C. LÍVIUS SALINATOR. The Senate fent ten Deputies into Aia, to fettle the Affairs of Proconful Manlius Volfo. bezzling the publick Money. Scipio Africanus ap - on then established. peared before the Assembly in white cloath, and having made the Eulogy of his great Atchievements, without excusing himself of the crime laid upon him, he ended his after his Election, not without suspicion of Speech with these words. "Upon this dayof having been poison'd by Quarta Hostilia his to the Captitol, and there he performed his Father-in-law.

facrifice. with horrid lascivioniness. Seven thousand Mountains. persons were found guilty of this shameful Greeks, were introduced into Rome.

had their revenge on the banks of the River Manlius fell upon them and defeated them, Treus, infomuch that out of five and thirty ken Prifoners.

fodorus relates some other Consuls instead of they were retired.

Philopam n died this year, tho Eutropius tells us that Hamibal died two years before.

out of a icruple of Religion : Therefore Paulus A. M. 3863. R. 562. M. FULVIUS NO- Emilius took himfelf an Ax, and began to de-

A. M. 3871. R. 570. M. BEBIUS PAM-PHILUS, P. CORNELIUS LENTULUS or CETHEGUS. There was found in Numa's. Grave three Volumes concerning Religion, Petilius the Prætor got them burnt without A.M. 3865. R. 564. M. ÆMILIUS LE- fcruple; whereupon he was impeached of PIDUS L. FLAMINIUS CRASSIPES, or Impiery and Sacrilege; yet he was found not C. FLAVIUS NEPOS. The Scipio's were both guilty, because he took an Oath, that these accused by the Tribunes of the people of em- Books tended to the subversion of the Religi-

A. M. 3872. R. 571. AULUS POSTHU-MIUS ALBINUS LUSCUS, C. CALPUR-NIUS PISO. This Conful died a little while "the year I destroyed Carthage, Rome's Emula- Wife, to get the Confulship for her Son, who "tor, let us go and give thanks to the Gods for the had by a first Husband, called Q. Fulvius "the fame. Having thus spoken, he went up Flaceur, who was chosen in the room of his

A. M. 3873. R. 572. Q. FULVIUS FLAC-A. M. 1866. R. 565. SPURIUS POST- CUS, L. MANLIUS ACCIDINUS of LUS-HUMIUS ALBINUS, Q. MARTIUS PHI- CUS. The Ligurii Appuani were transported to LIPPUS. The Confuls made an exact in- Sammium, for it was thought impossible to quiry into the new superstition of the Baccha- keep these sierce people in peace, so long as nalia that were celebrated in the night time they could shelter themselves amongst their

A. M. 3874. R. 573. M. JUNIUS BRU-Superstition. The Athleres, the delight of the TUS, A. MANLIUS VOLSO. Epulo King of the Ilirians took the Field, and by favour A. M. 3867. R. 566. APPIUS CLAU- of very thick foggy weather drew near the DIUS PULCHER, M. SEMPRONIUS TU- Camp of the Romans, and at the first onset for-DITANUS. The two Prætors of Spain were | ced the fame; but while he and his Army routed near Toledo; but a while after they were feasting in the Romans Camp, Conful

A. M. 3875. R. 574. C. CLAUDIUS PULthousand Spaniards, four thousand only es CHER, T. SEMPRONIUS GRACCHUS. caped, all the rest being either killed or ta. There was a Serpent seen at Rome with four feet, which was taken for a prodigy. Claudius A. M. 3868. R 567. P. CLAUDIUS routed the Istrians, and besieged them in Mela-PULCHER, L. PORCIUS LICINIUS. Caf- tie the chief Town of their Country, whither

A. M. 3876. R. 575. CN. CORNELIUS A. M. 1869. R. 568. M. CLAUDIUS SCIPIO HISPALUS, Q. PETILIUS SPU-MARCELLUS , Q. FABIUS LABEO. RINUS. Cornelius died in his Gonfulship, and There was nothing more remarkable this year C. Valerius Levinus was choien in his room. than an exact enquiry after the Bacchanalia, Conful Levinus forced the Ligurians to retire unand poisonings. Scipio Africanus, Hamibal and to their two Mountains, called Latum and Ba-. lifts, and there befieged them, but was killed at the beginning of the Fight. This misfortune rather encourag'd than disheartned the

Romans, who at last best the Enemy from those the Register of the Commonwealth took him

holds. PIDUS, P. MUCIUS SCÆVOLA. Caffiodomentions these two Confuls, the' there is nothing recorded during their Confulfhip.

A. M. 3878. R. 577 SPURIUS POST HUMIUS, Q. MUCIUS SCÆVOLA. Poly- and eighty two years before the defeat of Perbius doth not mention these two Confuls, and Seus. Paulus Emilius, as an exemplary punishyet Caffiodorus affirms that he has taken his Chro- ment of the Illyrians, quarter'd his Army in Capitol, where they are recorded.

ALBINUS, M. POPILIUS LÆNAS. Peace fifry thousand Inhabitants for Slaves. was granted to the People of Corfica, upon hundred thousand pounds weight of Wax.

A. M. 3880. R. 579. C. POPILIUS LÆ- in Rebellion. NAS, P. ÆLIUS LIGUR. A stormy wind A. M. 3886. R. 585. M. MARCELLUS, drove away fo great a quantity of Locusts into Apalia, that the Land was all over covered with them. The Roman people folemnly renounced the friendship of Perfeut King of Macedonia, hearing that he was forming a party in Asia against them.

A.M. 3881. R. 580. P. LICINIUS CRAS-SUS, C. CASSIUS LONGUS. Perfeus defeat- ing fuccefs. ed the Roman Army commanded by the Con-

A. M. 3882. R. 581. C. ATTILIUS SE-RANUS, C. HOSTILIUS MANCINUS. CA, L. MÁRTIUS FIGULINUS. The Alabandii out of a base and ridiculous flattery rank'd Rome in the number of their MESSALA, C. FANNIUS STRABO. Gods, built her a Temple, and instituted annual Games to the honour of their new created LUS, CORNELIUS CETHEGUS. Goddess. Mancinus got some advantage over Perfess.

A. M. 3883. R. 581. Q. MARTIUS PHI-Cenfors forbad the Farmers of the publick discovered in Macedonia. Revenues to renew their Leafe.

LUS, C. LICINIUS CRASSUS. Paulus Æmilius was chosen to have the conduct of the Macedo- LENTULUS, C. MARTIUS FIGULINUS. nion war, tho' he was then fixty years old. A. M. 3897. R. 596. P. CORNELIUS He found Perseur incamp'd, and well fortified SCIPIO NASICA, M. GLAUDIUS MARupon Mount Olympus, and forc'd him to re- CELLUS. move from thence, and afterwards engag'd A. M. 3898. R. 597. L. POSTHUMIUS him. The Macedonians, after a long and vigorous AL BINUS, Q. OPIMIUS NEPOS. refiftance, were at last overcome, and Perfeut A. M. 3899. R. 598. Q. IULVIUS NOfurrender d himself to Paulus Emilius, who led BILIOR, T. ANNIUS LUSCUS. him in triumph with his three Children; that A. M. 3900. R. 599. M. CLAUDIUS unfor unate Prince died in Irons, and two of MARCELLUS, L. VALERIUS FLACCUS. his Children before him. Theyoungest called A. M. 3901. R. 600. L. LICINIUS LUfor his Cierk : A fad fare of the lait Successor A. M. 3877. R. 576. M. ÆMILIUS LE- of Alexander the Great. Macedonia was then reduced to a Province, having been govern'd by thirty Kings, during nine hundred and twenty three years, but had no great name in the world, according to Justin, till one hundred nology out of the Calendars or Fasti of the threescore of their chiefest Towns, and at an appointed day gave them up to be plunder'd A. M. 3879. R. 578. L. POSTHUMIUS by his Soldiers, who fold one hundred and

A. M. 3885. R. 584. Q. ÆLIUS POEcondition that they should pay every year two TUS, M. JUNIUS POENUS. Memmius Prætor of Spain reduc'd some Spaniards that were

> C. SULPITIUS GALBA. Marcellus made war with good fuccess.

> A. M. 3887. R. 586. CN. OCTAVIUS NEPOS, T. MANLIUS TORQUATUS. A. M. 3888. R. 587. AULUS MANLIUS TORQUATUS, Q. CASSIUS LONGUS. The war was carried on in Spain with differ-

A. M. 3889. R. 588. T. SEMPRONIUS ful Licinius, fays Eutropius. This Battle was GRACCHUS, M. JUVENTIUS. Sempronius fought on the Banks of the River Penes. The reduced Thracia, and the Country along the Prætor Lucretius laid the siege before Coronea, River Danube into a Province, and brought and took it by from with the Town of them under the subjection of the Roman Em-

A. M. 3890. R. 589. P. SCIPIO NASI-A. M. 3891. R. 590. M. VALERIUS

A.M. 3892. R. 591. L. ANNICIUS GAL-

A. M. 3893. R. 592. CN. CORNELIUS DOLABELLA, M. FULVIUS NOBILIOR. A. M. 3894. R. 593. M. ÆMILIUS LEPI-LIPPUS, Q. SERVILIUS CAPIO. Perseus DUS, C. POPILIUS LÆNAS. The Roman: delired peace, bur it was denied him. The fent people to work in the Mines, that were

A. M. 3895. R. 594. SEXTUS JULIUS A. M. 3883. R. 583. L. ÆMILIUS PAU- CÆSAR, L. AURÉLIUS ORESTES. A. M. 1896. R. 595. L. CORNELIUS

Alexander, was very skilful in Joyners work, CULLUS, AULUS POSTHUMIUS ALBIand Turning, and writ fo good a hand, that NUS. Lucullus made war against the Celtiberism, and fent Scipio over into Africa, to defire | ving left fome Troops to block up the place fome Elephants of Maffaiffa.

MINIUS, M. ACILIUS BALBUS.

MANLIUS NEPOS. The reduction of Utical took the place, wherein feventy thousand gave fufficient occasion to the Romans for men were kill'd. Scipio return'd in the beginproclaiming war against the Carthagmians, ning of the Spring, to carry on the siege of They sent over the two Consuls into Africa with Carthage, and stormed another quarter of the one hundred and fifty Galleys, with five Oars Town, called Corron, wherein there was a in a feat, (Quiqueremes) one hundred with great flaughter for fix days and fix nights to fix Oars (Sextiremes) and fourscore thousand gether. The strongest hold of Carthage, call'd Foot, all Romans born, and four thousand of Byrs, was not yet taken, and there, those that their best Horse. The Carthaginians, surpriz'd could escape out of Megara and Cotton, had at these preparations of war, sent Deputies to made their retreat; but wanting both Provicomplain to the Senate of this infraction of a fions and Ammunition, they furrendered to peace fo folemnly fworn, and fo religiously Scipie as well as Afarubal, who was retired in kept on their fide. The Romans demanded the Temple of Esculapius. Five thousand three hundred Hostages, and that they should persons of both Sexes went out of Carthage. bring up all their Arms to the Confuls. The which were the deplorable remains of that Carthaginians obey'd exactly, they deliver'd up flately City, the Rival of Rome, which flourifftheir Hoftages and their Arms; confifting of ed for fix hundred and fixty feven years, or Arms for two hundred thousand men, such seven hundred, according to some Authors. as were used in that time, and two thousand Engines of war. When they were thus dif- CENTUMALUS, L. MEMMIUS. The A arm'd, Marfius told them, that he had orders chaises opposed Memmius with a good Army. to destroy their Town, but that he would but were overcome. The Conful pursued the give them leave to rebuild another Carthage on Victory, laid fiege to Carimb, and took it; he the firm Land, fourfcore Furlongs at least off razed its walls, and carried all its fine Ornafrom the Sea. The Carthaginians were thun-ments also to Rome. This year Scipio laid Carder-fruck at this cruel Declaration; and tho' thage even with the ground. Corinth flourishthey were without Forces and Arms they that ed for nine hundred and fifty years. up their Gates, and provided themselves with A. M. 3907. R. 606. Q. FABIUS MAXI-Arms as well as they could, making use (in MUS, L. HOSTILIUS MANCINUS. Fathat necessity) of their Wives hair, instead of bias routed Viriatus in Spain. ftrings for their Bows.

Town with Provisions.

not the Tribune Scipie brought him off. A. M. 3904. R. 603. SP. POSTHUMIUS fays Florus. ALBINUS, L. CALPURNIUS PISO. The A. M. 3909. R. 608. APPIUS CLAU-Carthaginians fent Ambassadours every where DIUS PULCHER, Q. CÆCILIUS MEfor relief; and made fuch progress therein, TELLUS.

that the Romans were amazed at it.

SCIPIO AFRICANUS. C. LIVIUS DRU- nis fell to Metellus, who vanquished Andrison. SUS. Scipio went over into Africa at the de- whom a King of Thracia delivered into his fire of the people, tho it was the Province of hands. This pretended King followed the his Colleague, and had under his command triumphal Charlot of the Conful, and afterfourfcore thousand Foot, and four thousand wards the Senate ordered he should be put Horse, with leave to raise such number of the to death, and gave the name of Macedonicus to Confederates as he should think fit. Scipio with the Conful who had overcome him. these Forces by night attack'd a quarter of Carriage, called Megara, on the land's side, CAPIO, Q. POMPEIUS or POMPILIUS Cook it by florm, and there he lodged himself, RUFUS. Florusci. 2., 1.7, says that this last and so kept the besieged from receiving Pro-Consultad dishonoured the Reman name in he marched with the remaining Forces against A. M. 3902. R. 601. L. QUINTIUS FLA- Afdrubal, who was very troublesome to him: Afdrubal not being able to withfrand him, got A. M. 3903. R. 602. L. MARTIUS, M. into Nephers, where Scipio befieged him, and

A. M. 3906. R. 605. CN. CORNELIUS

A. M. 3908. R. 607. SERGIUS SULPI-Afterbol took the Field with twenty thou-fand men, and from time to time supply'd the One Andrifan, who called himself the Son of Philip the fifth King of Macedonia, because he Mentius attempting to rid himself of this was like him both in shape and countenance, troublesome Enemy, fell inconsiderately into made some noise in Macedonia. The Romans at a defile, where he had certainly perish'd, had first despised him, but after he had defeated the Przror Juvetius, they were afraid of him.

A. M. 3910, R. 609. Q. CÆCILIUS ME-A. M. 1905. R. 604. P. CORNELIUS TELLUS, Q. FABIUS MAXIMUS. Macedavisions. At the beginning of the winter, ha- Spain, having caused Veriation to be murther'd for that purpose. Paterculus tells us that this Pempey was the first of his name that was raifed to the Confulship, and charges the Conful Capie with the murther of Viriatus. Eutropius affirms that the murtherers committed the fact of their own accord, and demanded a reward from the Conful's for the fame, who generously answer'd that they perswaded seventeen thousand Slaves, that he was fon to King Perfeus; but the Prator Tremelius defeated him, before he had encreased his faction.

A. M. 3912. R. 611. Q. CÆPIO, C. LÆLI-US. This last Conful undertook to get the Agrerien Law enacted; but when he underflood that it could not be done without raifing a great confusion in the Commonwealth, he gave it over : whereupon he got the firname of Sapiens.

A. M. 3913. R. 612. CN. CALPURNIUS PISO, M. POPILIUS LÆNAS, whom Florm and Entropius call Q. POMPFIUS LÆ-NAS. This last Consul was beaten in Spain by the Numantini, who might have quite routed him ; but had rather make Peace with him, than provoke the Romans.

A. M. 3914. R. 613. P. CORNELIUS CÆ-PIO or SCIPIO NASICA, D. JUNIUS BRU-TUS. This Conful beat the Celta, the Lustranians and the Galicians at Sea; and was thereupon firnamed Brutus Galacius.

A. M. 3915. R. 614. M. ÆMILIUS LEPI-DUS, C. HOSTILIUS MANCINUS, who carried on the flege of Numantis. Being gone out of his Camp against the Augur of the Auspices, the Numantini attacked the same, seized upon it, and having followed the Conful, overtook him in a narrow paffage, where they might have easily routed him, had he nor concluded a Peace with them: The Senate refused to ratifie that Peace, being disadvantageous and shameful to the Roman people, but fent Mancinus with his hands bound to Numantis, with the bundle of Rods, the badge of his dignity.

A. M. 1916. R. 615. P. FURIUS PHILO, SEXTUS ATTILIUS SERANUS. Numantia was besieged again. AM: 3917. R. 616. SERGIUS FULVIUS FLACCUS, Q. CALPURNIUS PISO. The fiege of Namantia was carried on, but very flowly.

A. M. 3918. R. 617. P. CORNELIUS SCI-PIO AFRICANUS, C. FULVIUS FLAC-CUS. Scipio starved the Numantini, and tho they made feveral vigorous fallies, reduced them to fuch extremities, that they burnt their Wives, Children, and all that they had | Elea, and as they were bringing him to Arimost dear and precious to them, even their fonicus, he designing to be killed, put a Sol-by one of his Servants, whom he corrupted Arms, and then rnn naked against the Arms ment of his triumph, but the bare name of Numantimus. Pliny fays that the booty of this rich Town was but feven thousand pound weight of Silver, and therefore Florus accounts it for nothing.

A. M. 3919. R. 618 C. MUTIUS SCAE-VOLA, L. CALPURNIUS PISO. The had no reward for crimes. A Macedonian Conful Murtus, who was a loarned Lawyer, perswaded Tiberias Gracebus to get the Agrarian Law to be received; he brought it about, after a great resistance from the Senate, who named Commissioners to share the Lands; but allowed but nine obeli a day to each of them to bear their charges. Attalm King of Pergamus gave by his last Will his Kingdom and all his goods to the Reman people. Tiberius Gracebus made use of this opportunity to flatter the people, and demanded that the Money of Astalus might be destributed among them. The Senate opposed his demand; but Gracchus went up the Capitol, and a great number of people after him. Then Scipio Nafica, Jupiter's High Priest cried out, Let those that are for the good and confervation of the Commonwealth follow me : and having put his Gown over his head. ascended the Capitol, followed by the Senators and the most rich among the Plebeians. The people made room for him out of respect to his Priesthood: but he and his followers making use of the Seats of the Temple, instead of Arms, knock'd down Gracches with three hundred more of his party. Arifionicus, who call'd himfelf the Son of Attalus, occasion'd a second War in Asia.

A. M. 3920. R. 619. P. POPILIUS LÆ-NAS, P. RUPILIUS. Spain having been abfolutely subdued by the taking of Numantia, it was reduc'd into a Province. Flarus 1. 2. c. 20. favs that this year King Attalus died. and gave his dominions to the Roman people. Judos Machabaus made a league with the Roman people: as we read in the book of the Machabees.

A. M. 3921. R. 620. P. LICINIUS CRAS-SUS, L. VALERIUS FLACCUS. Craffus went into Alia, to make war against Aristonicus, Attalus's pretended Son, who had feized upon the Kingdom of Pergamus. The Conful took greater care to lay hold upon the Treafures of Attalus, than to purfue Ariftonicus, who haiving rallied his Troops, fell upon the Romans and entirely defeated them. Eutrapius 1. 4. and Justinus 1. 36. fay, that the Conful was killed upon the fpot : but Valerius Maximus relates his death otherwife, and fays, that after his overthrow he was taken by fome Tiracian Soldiers between Smirna and diers eye out with a Switch he had in his the like good fuccels, except only that Athense. hand, whereupon the Soldier killed him; fo on was not taken alive, because the Soldiers died Crassus, the only Roman Conful who was being too eager to seize him, tore him in eyer taken alive in War.

CLAUDIÚS PULCHER, M. PERPENNA. Senate prevented it. This last Conful had order to revenge the affront that Ariftonicus had put on the Roman people. He belieged him in Stratonica, and took him Prisoner, having forced him to furrender for want of Provisions. The Conful preserved his life, that he might adorn his Triumph, but he was strangled in prison by three years standing. Eutropius reckons this order of the Senate.

A. M. 3923. R. 622. C. SEMPRONIcrime.

A. M. 3924. R. 623. CN. OCTAVIUS NEPOS, T. ANNIUS LUSCUS.

A. M. 3925. R. 624. L. CASSIUS LON-GUS. L. CORNELIUS CINNA. Jonathas, league with the Romans.

DUS, L. AURELIUS ORESTES. One of the flaves that manured the ground in Sicily, named Eunus, a Syrian born, not being able to FABIUS MAXIMUS. Opimius revoked all Prisoners were nailed to the cross.

him, and made use of the same means, that built a Temp'e to the Goddels Concerd. had to well fucceeded with Perpenna, he had pieces. Fulvius periwaded the Italians to ber A. M. 1922. R. 62r. APPIUS or C. the Freedom of Roman Citizens, but the

A. M. 3928. R. 627. C. CASSIUS LON-GINUS, C.SEXTIUS CALVINUS. The Allebroses. Hedui and Averni made war against the Marfinans, ancient Confederates of the Romans Sextiss who was fent to affift them, destroyed the Allobroges and their Allies, after a war of year to be the 627 ab urbe condita.

A. M. 3929 R. 628. Q. CÆCILIUS ME. US TUDITANUS, M. AQUILIUS NE- TELLUS, Q. QUINTIUS FLAMINIUS. PUS. Agailius made an end of the War in Carthage was rebuilt two and twenty years af-Alis, by poisoning the Waters. Scipto Nasics ter its ruine. Mitellus laid siege before Canta-Emilianus was found dead in his Bed, and by bricum in Spain, and as he was ready to ftorm marks that appeared upon his Body, it was it, the befieged laid the Children of Rethogener plain that he had been strangled; his own a Spanish Prince, who was on the Romans side. Wife, and Cornelia, the Gracchi's Mother, on the breach. Metellus moved to compassion were suspected of having committed that by the prayers of Rethogenes, rais'd the siege and retired.

A. M. 3930. R. 629. CN. DOMITIUS. C. FANNIUS STRABO. Gracchu, Tribune of the people, got Commission for rebuilding Carthage; and cast a line about it in seventy Brother to Judas Machabaus, renewed the days, and called her Junonia. Sextius built a Town in Gallia Narbonenfis, near a foring of A.M. 3926. R. 625. L. ÆMILIUS LEPI- mineral waters, which was called Aqua Sextia.

A. M. 3931. R. 630. L. OPIMIUS, Q. bear the misfortune of his condition, played Orders decreed by Gracehus, and particularly at first the Enthusiast, as being inspired by the the re-peopling of Carthage, giving out, that Goddess of Spria: and faid that he was sent it was not the will of the Gods, who had defrom the Gods, to free the Slaves; and to get | clared their mind about the fame by a Prodicredit among the people, he had in his gy, for a Wolf had pluckt out the stakes that mouth a Nut full of Brimstone, and setting were driven into the ground to draw the line it dexteroully on fire, he blew out Flames to about it; Gracchus maintained that that prothe great amazement of the vulgar. Two digy was falle and forged; and while they thousand Slaves and others oppressed with were arguing upon that point, a Listor spoke misery, joyned him, and with their help he so insolently, that he was kill'd by Gracchui's broke open the Prisons, and unfettered the Faction. The Conful and the Senate made a Slaves, crying out every where Liberty. By great noise for the death of this wretched man. these means he was in few days at the head thinking thereby to raise the people, but on of threefcore thousand men, and got ground the contrary they expressed their indignation, on the Remans. Perpenna being fent against that the Senate should make such a disturbance them, took them by Famine, and all the for the death of an insolent Lictor, who had made no feruple to knock down Tiberius Grac-A. M. 3927. R. 626. M. PLAUTIUS chur Tribune of the people, an inviolable Ma-HIPS/EUS, M. FULVIUS FLACCUS. A giffrate, even in the Temple of Jupiter. Af-Slave called Athenoin, a Sicilian born, and a terwards a fedition broke out in Kome, raifed Shepherd, killed his Mafter, and got out of by the faction of Gracekus and that of the Se-Prison as many Slaves as he could, and put nate. Opimius promis'd to give for the Head himfelf at the head of them, taking upon of Gracebus its weight in Gold, and the fame him the quality of King and Liberator of was brought to him, and was found feventeen the Slaves. Aga lius was ordered to punish pounds eight ounces weight. Then Opimia POS, C. PAPYRIUS CARBO.

COTTA.

A Colony was fent to Narbona.

last Consul triumphed over Dalmatia.

TA, Q. FABIUS MAXIMUS EBURNUS. spoke these words, O infamous Town, thou art to METELLUS, M. ÆMILIUS SCAURUS. down a very fine Theater, that Lucius Caffins All Arts ferving only for diversion were banished Rome, except playing upon the Roman foften'd and effeminated by the Luxury and Flutes, Singers and Dice players.

A. M. 3938. R. 637. M. ACILLIUS BAL-BUS, C. PORTIUS CATO.

who was fo cruel as to cause Hiempfal to be quit Africa. murthered in the Town of Thirmids. Adherthereby won them over to his interest.

L. or C. CALPURNIUS PISO. L. Opimius Jugurtha he rais'd the Siege. was fent to divide the Kingdom of Numidia: 1 A. M. 3944. R. 643. SERGIUS SULPI-The lowest Numidia, which is bounded by the TIUS GALBA, M. ÆMILIUS SCAURUS death with all his faithful Servants.

A. M. 3941. R. 640. P. CORNELIUS SCIPIO NASICA, L. CALPURNIUS BEin Afr.ca being brought to Rome, a War was proclaim'd against him, and the Consul Cal-

A. M. 3932. R. 631. P. MANLIUS NE- fent an Embaffy to Reme, to bribe the Senators and people with rich Presents: But his A. M. 3913. R. 632. L. CÆCILIUS Ambassadors were order'd to depart Italy in METELLUS CALVUS, L. AURELIUS ten days, and Juguriba was summon'd to appear at Rome in person to justifie himself. A. M. 3934. R. 633. M. PORTIUS CA- He came thither upon the parole of Caffine the TO, Q. MARTIUS REX. C. Cato, Grand- Præror, who had been fent to notifie unto him fon to Cate the Great, was fined for having the orders of the Senate. Memmins Tribune converted feveral things in Macedonia to his of the people accused him of having put to own use, which belonged to the Republick. death the two Sons of Massinista his Father and Benefactor; but he got off of this impeach-A. M. 3935. R. 634. P. CÆCILIUS ME-ment with Money. But upon advice that TELLUS, Q. MUCIUS SCÆVOLA. This Massives Son of Gulessa had been murther d by his orders, he was shamefully banish'd out of A. M. 1936. R. 635. C. LICINIUS GE- Rome; and at his going out of the Town he A. M. 3937. R. 636. M. CÆCILIUS be fold, if thou couldft find a buyer. Scipio pull'd had began, left the Remans courage should be Pleasures of the Greeks.

A. M. 3942. R. 641. SPURIUS POST-HUMIUS ALBINUS, M. MINUTIUS RU-A.M. 3939. R. 638. C. CÆCILIUS ME- FUS. Albimu was fent against Jugurtha, but TELLUS, CN. PAPIRIUS CARBO. Maffi- he came back to Rome, because the meeting niffa King of Numidia being dead, his Son Micipsa of their Affemblies or Commissa required his succeeded him alone, after the death of his presence, and left his Brother Aulus to com-Brothers Mastanabal and Gulossa. Micipsa had mand in Africa: Aulus out of a desire of gaintwo Sons Adherbal and Hiempfal; and his Bro- ing Glory, laid fiege to Stul, a Town impregther Multanabal had left a Son called Jugurtha, nable by its scituation; but Jugurtha attack'd by a Concubine, whom the efteem and love his Camp in the night, and made a great that the Numidians had for him, rendered fuf- flaughter of his men. Aulus retired upon a picious to Micipfa; but to get himself fure Hill with the scatter'd Remnants of his Army, of him, he adopted him, and made him an but Jagarthe besieged him the next day, and equal sharer with his own Children. A while forc'd him to surrender, upon condition that after this Adoption Micipla died, and left his he should pass under the yoke himself, and all Kingdom to his two Sons, and to Jugurtha, the rest of his Soldiers, and that he should

A. M. 2942. R. 642. O. CÆCILIUS MEbal took up Arms to revenge his Brothers TELLUS NUMIDICUS, M. SYLLANUS. death, but was beaten; he had recourse to Metellus went into Africa, which put Jugurtha the Romans, but Jugartha fent them Ambassa- under a consternation. Metellus seiz'd upon dours loaded with Gold and Silver, and Vacca a large Town, where he kept his Magazines, and then belieged Zams the chief Town A. M. 1940. R. 639. C. LIVIUS DRUSUS, of Numidia; but being perpetually haraffed by Sea, fell to Adherbal; but so soon as Opimius Jugurtha made great preparations of war, and had left Africa, Jugurtha invaded his Brother's attempted to corrupt the Roman Garrisons. Territories, where he destroyed all, and be- The Inhabitants of Vacca, irritated by the Cofieged him in Cirtha, the capital City of his verousness of the Romans, returned to the sub-Kingdom, and fo streighten'd him, that he jection of their ancient Master; but Merellus was forc'd to furrender. Jugurtha put him to retook that place, destroyed the Inhabitants thereof, and permitted his Soldiers to plunder it. Then he marched against Juguriha, whom he defeated, and forced him to re-STIA. The News of what Jugurtha had done tire to Bocus his Son-in-law, King of Mauritania.

A M. 3945. R. 644. L. CASSIUS LONjurnius was fent into sprins. This cruel Prince GINUS, C. MARIUS. This last Conful. He formed a defign upon Capfa, one of the for a long time inclosed their Vineyards with most powerful Towns of Africa, took it without relistance, and gave it up to his Soldiers kill'd in this bloody Fight. Florus favs. that to be pillaged. Afterwards he engaged Bosus Teutobosus their King was made prisoner and and Jugarsha near Cirtha, and got a compleat | led in triumph to Rome. victory over them. Bocus delivered up his Father-in-law to Marius, purfuant to a fecret US AQUILIUS. Marius preferr'd the fafety Treaty between them.

Hircanus King and Soveraign Pontiff of the him; and the glory of a fecond Victory, to Tews, renewed the confederacy with the Roman people. A. M. 3946. R. 645. Q. SERVILIUS SE-PIO. C. ATTILIUS SERRANUS. The Cimbri and Teutoni began to fright Italy. Some think these Nations to be the Scytha, others would have them to be the Germans of the North: They were three hundred thousand fighting men, belides a great number of Women and Slaves.

A. M. 3947. R. 646. Q. RUTILIUS RU-FUS, C. MANLIUS. The Cimbri and Tentewi defeated the two Confuls on the Banks of People, and oblig'd the Senators to take an the River Rhone. This loss brought so great | Oath, that they should follow the Laws made a fear upon Rome, that 'tis parallell'd by Hiftorians, with the fright that feiz'd the Romans, after they were routed at Canna by Hamibal: they were afraid the Gauls would come again to beliege the Capitol. Rutilius instituted Fencing Masters, to teach young the Prator Glaucia. 'Tis true that he shut up Soldiers how to handle their Weapons.

A. M. 3948. R. 647. C. MARIUS, C. filia; but he did so, to secure them from the FLAVIUS FIMBRIA. The people was in sury of the people, and save them under that great terror, and thought that no other man pretence; but the Senate having discovered but Marius was able to defend them against his design, fent some of his faction, who got the fury of the Cimbri, wherefore he was named Conful in his absence, contrary to the laws. Marisus came again to Rome, he triumphed over Jugurtha, and brought into the Exchequer three thousand and seven pounds Thracians rebell'd, and committed horrid cruweight of Gold, and five thousand seven hundred and seventy five pounds of Silver in the Mass, besides a great quantity of Gold and Silver Coin. He bestowed all the time of his Confulship, in making preparations for Metallus in several engagements defeated two this great and important Expedition again ft Brothers, called the Herculians, Authors of the the Cimbri.

A. M. 3949. R. 648. C. MARIUS, L AURELIUS ORESTES. The Cimbri rurn'd their arms against Spain, and so gave an opportunity to Marius to reinforce his Army. and bring it under a good Discipline. Orefter died in his Magistracy.

A. M. 1950, R. 649. C. MARIUS, L. LUCTATIUS CATULUS. Marius being inform'd that the Cimbri were marching towards Italy, went over the Mountains, and incamped on the banks of the River Redamus, now the Rhone: he engig'd them in Provence, and gave fuch an overthrow, that they loft one hundred thousand men, either kill'd or had the management of the Affairs of Mrica, I taken Prisoners. The Inhabitants of Marseille. the bones of the Cimbri and Toutoni, who were

> A. M. 3951. R. 650. C. MARIUS, MANIof Rome before the triumph that was ordain'd the glory of a victorious entry into Rome. he purfued the Cimbri, whom he engaged and routed in the plain of Verfelle, killing lixfcore thousand of them on the spot, and taking fixty thousand Prisoners. Marius in consider ration of this great Victory, was called the third founder of Rome.

A.M. 3952. R. 651. C. MARIUS, L. VA. LERIUS FLACCUS. This fixth year of Marius's Confulship was spent in Actions unworthy of him; for he feconded all the feditious proposals of Saturninus a Tribune of the by the people; which they did with this limitation, Si Leges funt: There was none but Metellus that refus'd to take the Oath. Pater. cultus and Valerius Maximus both justific Marine about the death of the Tribune Saturninus, and these two seditious men in the Court of He upon the tops of the Neighbouring houses. and kill'd them with their Darts.

A. M. 3953. R. 652. M. ANTONIUS, AULUS, POSTHUMIUS ALBINUS. The elties on the Ronans.

A. M. 3954. R. 653. Q. CÆCILIUS ME-TELLUS PIUS, T. DIDIUS. This laft Conful was fent to punish the Thracians, and Rebellion in Spain.

A. M. 3955. R. 654. CN. CORNELIUS. LENTULUS, P. or C. LICINIUS CRAS-SUS. Cn. Carbo went over into Gaul to observe the conduct of Crassius, because he had banished his Father. A while after, finding no fault therewith, he returned into Rome, and reported that his Father could not be guiltless, seeing he had been condemn'd by so just and moderate a man as Crassus.

A. M. 3956. R. 655. CN. DOMITIUS ÆNEOBARBUS, C. CASSIUS LONGI-NUS. Ptolomeus King of Ægyp: made the Reman people his Heir by his Will.

SUS, Q. MUTIUS SCÆVOLA or SCÆ- their rife from what follows. Marius stood the regulation of the Citizens.

BUS.

PULCHER, M. PERPENNA.

A. M. 3961. R. 660. P. or L. MARTIUS their Army.

A. M. 3062. R. 661. C. JULIUS CÆSAR, C. RUTILIUS LUPUS. The Confuls rais'd one hundred thousand men, whom they divided into feveral Bodies, that they might rether, yet they were worsted every where, any longer, he quitted the Town and went Cafar made a Law, granting the freedom of caus'd Marius and Sulpitius with their followers Rome to the Latins and the Confederates, as to be profcrib'd, and declared Enemies of Tully favs, in his Oration for Balbus

A. M. 3963. R. 662. CN. POMPEIUS STRABO', L. PORCIUS CATO. The war against the Inhabitants of Italy was carried on; There Cate was kill'd, and feveral Bodies of the Army defeated. The Italians feeing the good fuccess of their Affairs, erected a Commonwealth of their own, which they called the Italian Republick; and cium ; But Pompeius destroy'd their infant Rein the Affemblies.

A. M. 3964 R. 663. L. CORNELIUS SYLLA or SULLA, Q. POMPEIUS RUtroubles, which were occasioned by the Civil repealed. Marius and Cinna entred again into

A. M. 1957, R. 656. P. LICINIUS CRAS- | Wars between Marius and Sylla, which had VULA. They made a Law which was cal- for the command of the Army against Mithriled after their Names Licinia and Mucia, about dates King of Pontus, and Sylla pretended the fame, for being Conful, that Command be-A M. 1958. R. 657. CAIUS COELIUS longed to him; yet Marius made fo good an CALDUS, L. DOMITIUS ÆNEOBAR- interest for himself, that he carried it, being feconded by the Tribune Sulpitius. The Con-A. M. 3959. R. 658. C. VALERIUS fuls being offended at this proceeding, flort FLACCUS, M. HERENNIUS. All was all Employments and acts of Justice: But quiet in the Roman Empire under these Con- Sulpitius grew so insolently bold, that he attacked the Confuls in the Roftra, and kill'd A. M. 3960. R. 659. C. CLAUDIUS and overthrew all that would oppose his fury. Sylla could find no shelter, but in the House of Marius, from whence he was not permit-PHILIPPUS, SEXTUS JULIUS CÆSAR. red to go out, till he had passed his word to M. Livius Drusus Tribune of the people, at repeal what he had ordered. Marius sent one rempted to restore to the Senate the right of of his Lieutenants to Nola, to oblige the Arjudging in certain Caufes, which Gracehus had my to fwear fidelity to him, but Sylla preventgot from them, and given to the Knights. He ed it, and came to the Army before Marius's endeayour'd also to obtain the freedom of Lieutenant, whom he caus'd to be put to Roman Citizens for all the Inhabitants of Italy; death, as foon as he came into the Camp; but he was vigorously oppos'd: whereupon and having caus'd the Army to take an Oath the Inhabitants of Baly rais'd one hundred to him, he march'd directly towards Rome, thousand men, to obtain it by the force of land possessed himself of the Gate Collins, and fome other posts. The Inhabitants made at first some resistance from the tops of their Houses, but Sylla threatned them to set the whole Town on fire, if they offer'd to oppose him. Marius made a vigorous relistance in the fiff the feveral Nations of Italy leagued toge- facred street, but not being able to withstand and the Conful Rutilius was kill'd in an En-lover into Africa. All things being then at gagement. At the latterend of the year, Julius Sylla's command, he call'd the Senate, and the Roman People.

A. M. 3965. R. 664. L. CORNELIUS CINNA, CN. OCTAVIUS FLACCUS. After the Conful's election, Sylla fet out for Rome to make war against Mithridates, and began this Expedition with the defeat of Archelaus one of his Generals. Offavius expelled Cinna out of Rome, and substituted in his room Cornelius Merula, the great Priest of Jupiser. the capital City of this new State was Cornifi- After this affront Cinna retired into Italy, and perswaded the Italians to rebel, inticing them publick, and routed their chief Forces. The with the promifes of the freedom of Citizens, Senate granted the freedom of their City to and of being incorporated into the thirty five the Latin that were not of the League, but Tribes, that they might be partakers of all they were not incorporated into the thirty the priviledges of the Roman people: By this five Tribes, nor had the priviledge of voting means Cinna raifed a confiderable Army, and Marine joined himfelf to him They took the Town of Osia by treachery, and destroyed all the Inhabitants thereof. Afterwards Ma-FUS. Several prodigies threatned the Roman rius went over the River Tyber, leaving Cinna State with fome faul revolution. A woman on the other fide, and feized the Janiculum, was brought to bed of a Serpent, and great whereupon the Romans fent him Ambaffadours foundings of Trumpers were feen in the air: to defire him to come again to Rome; and to These prodigies were the forerunners of the that purpose the act of his banishment was

Ff 2

A. M.

A. M. 3966. R. 665. L. CORNELIUS twenty Listors, and a great Guard. At last CINNA, C. MARIUS. Marius died the 17th he quitted the Dictatorship, being guilty of day of his seventh Consulship, and Ginna got many Murthers, Assassinations, Prescriptions Valerius Flaceus elected in his room, who was and Banishments. ordered to go and make war against Mithridates: they made Fimbria, with the quality of LIUS, CN. ORTILLIUS DOLABELLA Prætor, his Lieutenant General, that he might These two Consuls are recorded in this order have a greater Authority. He fell out with in the Chronologies; but 'tis very likely that Placeus, who shamefully deposed him; but they were both Consuls, during the Year of this great Man was revenged of the Conful, Sylla's Dictatorship; for we find that there and got him murthered in a Well, where he were Confuls during the perpetual Dictators had hid himself. After his death, Fimbria ha- ship of Cafar, and the Soveraign Authority ving the fole command of the Army, purfued of the Emperours. Mithridates, and forced him to retire by fea to league.

A. M. 3967. R. 666. L. CORNELIUS CINNA, CN. PAPYRIUS CARBO. Cinna went on with his Murthers and Profcriptions. P. Lenas Tribune of the people, caused his ISAURICUS, APPIUS CLAUDIUS PUL Colleague Sextus Lucilius, to be thrown head- CHER. Sylla refus'd the Confulfhip and relong from the Tarpeian Rock.

A. M. 1969, R. 668. L. SCIPIO ASIA-TICUS, C. NORBANUS FLACCUS. The Triumph, with the Name of Mauricus. two Confuls with the young Marius, opposed feated them, and purfued Norbanus fo closely, that he belieged him in Capua.

A. M. 3970. R. 669. CN. PAPYRIUS upon he murthered himself. Then Pranelle the Character of Pro-consul. was delivered up to Sylla, who got all the Inthem by his name Cornsham. When he walk'd Conquests as far as the River Danube. Ho

Rome, and there made a very great flaughter, in the City, he was attended with four and

A. M. 1972. R. 671. M. TULLIUS SIL.

A. M. 3973. R. 672. L. CORNELIUS SYLLA FÁÚSTUS, Q. CÆCILIUS ME. TELLUS PIUS. This year all things were very calm.

A. M. 3974. R. 673. P. SERVILIUS tired into the Country, where he liv'd the A. M. 3968. R. 667. CORNELIUS CIN- rest of his days in quiet. The Conful Clau-NA, CN. PAPYRIUS CARBO. Sylla divi- dim went into Macedonia, where he died of ded Afa in forty four Provinces, and then re- a fit of Sickness. His Colleague passed over turned into Italy: Cinna marched against him. Mount Taurus, where the Romans never had but his own Soldiers mutinied, and killed been before. He brought Cecilis and Licis unhim in his Camp. Carbo would have no Col- der the Roman Subjection; and having in three years time performed the Expedition, returned to Rome, where he receiv'd the honours of

A. M. 3975. R. 674. M. ÆMILIUS LE-Sylle with two powerful Armies; but he de- PIDUS, Q. CATULUS LUCTATIUS, Sylla died : Lepidus would not permit the Magnificent Funeral deligned for him . because of the Murthers he had committed; yet CARBO, C. MARIUS. Sylla engaged Marius Catulus was allowed to pay to the body of his near Signium, and got a full victory, having Friend all the testimonies of his acknowkilled twenty thousand of his men, and taken ledgment. Pompeius growing in credit, sided eight thousand Prisoners. Offells one of with the Nobility, and marched at the head Sylla's Generals besieged Marius in Praneste, of an Army, that Catulus trusted him with where he retired after his defeat, and kept against Brusus, and besieged him in Modina. him to close that he could not get off; where- Pompeius got the Government of Spain, with

A. M. 3976. R. 675. M. ÆMILIUS LEhabitants together in the place of Arms, and PIDUS SCAURUS, DECIUS JUNIUS had them murthered by his Soldiers. Pliny BRUTUS. Scaurus made Laws to regulate affirms that Sylla found in Pranefle three the Expences of private men. Pampey and thousand pounds weight of Gold, and seven Metellus had several Engagements in Spain thousand pounds of Silver. Sylle came again with Sertorius, but Pempey was always beaten, to Rome, where he took the Name of Fauftur : and Metellus always victorious ; whereupon He caused himself to be created perpetual Sertorius passed a biting Jest upon Pompey, as Dictator, and obliged the Senate to approve Eutropius and Plutarch relate, If that old woman, by a decree, all that he had done, and all that faid he, rallying the Phyliognomy of Metellus, he should do afterwards. He changed many was not here, I would find this Boy to School, ancient Laws, and made new ones, and cre- meaning Pompey, who was then but a Youth. ated three hundred Senators, whom he chose A. M. 3977. R. 676. CN. OCTAVIUS himself out of the Equestrian Order; besides COSCONIUS, CN. SCRIBONIUS CURIO. he freed ten thousand Slaves, to whom he This last Consul succeeded Claudius in the Gogave the freedom of Citizens, and called vernment of Macedonia. He carried on his Nation.

C. AURELIUS COTTA. There was no- prisoner. fulate.

feated him in feveral Battels,

A. M. 3980. R. 679. M. LICINIUS LU- A. M. 3984. R. 683. Q. CÆCILIUS ME-

NELIUS LENTULUS. The Senate com- foodorus. The diffurbances between Hircanus and mitted the care of the war against Spartacus Aristobulus began this year, and were carried on to Craffus, who was followed by the most part fo far, that they occasion'd the destruction of of the Nobility. This General order'd a Jerusalem, and the fervitude of the Jews, as Trench to be made of fifteen Leagues long, Josephus their Historian relates. from one Sea to the other, to inclose Spattacus, A. M. 3985. R. 684. L. CÆCILIUS and prevent his escape; but he overcame this METELLUS, Q. MARTIUS VATIA REX. obstacle, by filling up the Trench in a certain This year was imploy'd in ordering and setplace with Fascines, in a very dark and cold tling the Provinces, that Appion had lest by his night.

A. M. 1082. R. 681. CN. AUFIDIUS SURA. Craffus puriued Spartacus, who retired towards the Alps, after having loft in several skirmishes. But two of Crassus's Generals pursuing him with too much precipitation were beaten, and the Army they commanded cut in pieces. This Victory was the cause of his ruin, for his Soldiers growing proud of these advantages, forced Crassus to an Engagement, and were quite routed, and Spartacus himfelf loft his life. Lucius was victorious in the famous Battle of Cizicema against Mithridates; his Lieutenant General beat the Fleet of the King, and Lucullus having fubdued Paphlagonia, Bithinia; Pontus, and taken Synopæ its capital City, he again defeated Mithridates near Cabra, and took away from him the lower Armenia. This unfortufount three years in these wars, and after-1 City of the Kingdom, which Tigranus had wards came to Roms to make his triumphal built. Tigrannes, who had belieged Ptolomais, entry. Offavius routed the Dalmatians, took hearing of the great progress of the Romans, Salonica,, and triumphed likewise over that rais'd the siege and march'd against Lucullus; but he was overcome, and Lucullus took the A. M. 3978. R. 677. L. OCTAVIUS, Town of Nifiba, where Tigrannes was taken thing remarkable transacted during their Con- A. M. 3983. R. 682. M. LICINIUS CRASSUS, CN. POMPEIUS. Pompey taking A. M. 3979. R. 678. L. LICINIUS LU- notice that Craffus's opinion prevail'd in the CULLUS, M. AURELIUS COTTA. Lu-Senate, made it his business to gain the Love cullus got a Commission to march against Mi-1 of the People, wherefore he restored the Trithridates, who had increased his Forces during bunes the authority that Sylla had taken away the civil wars of Marius and Sylla; yet he de from them; and referred the trial of civil and criminal Causes to the Equestrian Order.

CULLUS, C. CASSIUS. Spartacus a famous TELLUS CRETICUS, Q. HORTENSIUS. Gladiator got out of the Prisons of Capua, The Isle of Candia revolted and gave a fair opwith feventy of his Companions; and being portunity to Metellus to fignalize himfelf. He at the head of fixty thousand men, who join- subdued the whole Island in the space of three ed themselves to him, undertook to make war years, and afterwards obtain'd the triumph and against the Roman people. He routed all the the strname of Creticus. Appion King of Cyrene forces that oppos'd him; and beat Caffins the and Lybia died, and by his Will bequeathed his Prætor, who would diffute with him the paf- Territories to the Roman people, with the fage of the River Po, with ten thousand Towns of Prolomais, Cyrene and Bernice, says Eutrepius. The Capitol was intirely rebuilt, and A. M. 2081. R. 680. L. GELLIUS, COR- dedicated by Quintus Catalus, according to Caf-

Will to the Roman people.

A. M. 3986. R. 685. M. CALPURNIUS ORESTES, P. CORNELIUS LENTULUS PISO, M. ACILIUS GLABRIO. The Pirates grew formidable upon the Miditerranean. Sea. Pompey was ordered to clear the Sea of twelve thousand men, that Crassus had cut off them; whereupon he fitted out five hundred men of war, and raifed fixfcore thousand Foot, and five thousand Horse; with these Forces he cleared the Sea in forty days, and by this quick Expedition he got so far into the esteem of the people, that they gave him Commission to march against Mithridates and Tigrannes, to the prejudice of Lucullus, who having almost destroy'd them, deserved the honour of making an end of that war-

A. M. 1987. R. 686. M. ANNIUS or ÆMILIUS LEPIDUS, L. MANLIUS TOR-QUATUS or L. JULIUS TULLUS A. M. 3988. R. 687. L. AURELIUS

COTTA, L. MANLIÚS TORQUATUS. A. M. 3989. R. 688. P. JULIUS CÆSAR, nate Prince fled to Tigrannes King of the upper Q. MARTIUS. (Saluftius adds the firname Armenia, who stil'd himself King of Kings of Figulinas to that of Martius.) During these Lucuilus followed Mithridases inno Armenia; three Confulates, Pompey carried on the war belieged and took Tigranocerea the chiefest against Mithridates, and kill'd forty thousand of his Men, having loft himfelf but twenty I the number of the Confeiracy; but he me Soldiers. The reason they give of this great himself under the protection of the people. disproportion is, that they engag'd in the Carilin: at his going out of Rome, caus'd the night, and the Koman Soldiers had the Moon bundle of Rods to be carried before him, as behind them: So that their shadow being if he had been Conful, and with this state he carried near the Enemies, the Enemies blows got at the head of twenty thousand men, that could do them no harm. This Battle was Manlius had privately rais'd. Antonius affemfought in Alia Minor: Mitbridates escap'd with bled quickly an Army, and pursued Catiline two men only, and Hipficrates one of his with the utmost diligence, that he might Wives. A while after his own Son, had have no time to encrease his Forces, and overving rebelled against him, he killed himself took him in the plain of Pistois, where he enout of grief. After his death Pompey entred gaged him. The Fight was very bloody, the Territories of Tigranner, and incamp'd but the greatest part of the Conspirators was within fixteen miles from Artaxates his Capi- killed, with Catiline himfelf. Scaurus made tal City. Tgrannes being weakned by to ma- war against the Arabians, without any other ny losses, and fearing the Army of Pompey, delign, than that he might have an opportunicame to him and laid down his Diadem at his ty to plunder the rich Town of Petra, the feet; Pompey took it up and gave it to him chief City of their States; but he took fo again, and contented himfelf with fome Pro- ill measures, that his Army would have vinces of his Kingdom, with the best part of starved, had not Hircanus the High Priest of his Treasures, which he yielded to the Roman the Jews relieved them. Hircanus afterwards people. Pompey came a while after into Judea, became Mediator of the Peace between Aretas and inquired into the Quarrel between Hirca- King of the Arabians and the Romans; and the nus and Ariftobulus, upon pretence of being liege of Petra was raifed, upon condition of Mediator between them. Ariftobulus, to flew paying three hundred Talents to Somurus for how far he trufted him, put all his strong the charges of the war. M. Otho or Roscius Otho places into his hands, and made him feveral then Prætor, procured a Law, by which it rich prefents, and among other, a fine golden was order'd, that the Equestrian Order should Vine a very curious piece of work; but he was have a distinct place at the Theater, from deceived in the protection he expected from that of the people. Pempey: Therefore he armed what forces he A. M. 3991. R. 690. DECIUS JUNIUS could, and got into Jerusalem. Pompey pitch'd SYLLANUS, L. LICINIUS MURENA. his Camp at the very Gates of it, and carried Pompey triumph'd for feveral days together, on the stege vigorously: Ariflobulus, to prevent viz, over the Pirates, over the Kings, Mithrithe ruin of Jerussiem, came out to furrender dates, Tigrannes and Ariflobulus. The Sons of himself to Pempey; but while the Roman Ge- Mithridates and Tigrannes and Aristobulus himself neral was flattering this Prince with hopes, followed the triumphal Chariot. Gabinius his Lieutenant got into the place, and A. M. 3992. R. 691. M. PAPYRIUS after a slender resistance they open'd the Gates or M. CALPURNIUS PISO, M. VALERIthem after a fiege of three months. The Holy observes that this Conspiracy began in June, promiscuously killed with the Victims. Hir- when Catsline was defeated. canus was made high Priest, but was deprived A. M. 3993. R. 692. Q. CÆCILIUS of the Royalty. Pompey left the Treasure of METELLUS CELER, L. AFRANIUS. the Sanctuary untouch'd.

CERO, M. ANTONIUS. The City of Je- and married his Daughter Julia to Pompey. rusalem was taken during their Consultate. A. M. 3994. R. 693. C. JULIUS CÆSAR, Catiline began his seditious practices. Cicero M. CALPURNIUS BIBULUS. As soon as quell'd this dangerous Confpiracy at its very Cafar was made Conful, he proposed the Agrabeginning, having order'd fach as were guil- rian Law. Bibalas vigorously opposed these ty to be put to death., and obliged Catiline to novelties, but it was to no purpose; for his quit the Cry. Care, who was Tribung of the Collegene carried every thing, and also abupeople, and bore a hatred to Julius Cafar, be- fed him in his perion, cauling the Fafces cause he had an amorous Intresque with Porcia that were carried before Bibulus, to be broke to Pompey. The faction of Ariflebulus got into US MESSALA. Catiline was killed this the Temple, being refolved to defend them- year, according to Caffiodorus; but his opinion felves; but Pempey befieged them, and took does not feem probable; for Saluflus exprefly Temple was prophan'd, not only by the un-during the Confulate of Cefar and Martin. circumcis'd Nations that enter'd it, but also Besides, 'tis undeniable that Amhony comby the flaughter of the Jewish Priests, who were manded the forces of the Commonwealth,

Cafar asked the Confulates, and making in-A. M. 3990. R. 689. M. TULLIUS CI-terest for it, reconciled Crassus and Pompey, his Sister, would have his name set down in in the presence of Ethulus himself. Bibulus affront, and thut up himfelf in his own house, which is to be seen in his Orations. cauting his oppositions to be posted up by A. M. 3997. R. 696. CN. CORNELIUS night: wherefore the people feeing him no LENTULUS, L. MARTIUS PHILIPPUS. more, faid in jest, Julio & Cafare Cofs. Cafar form'd the famous Triumvirat with Cafar got the Government of Gaul for five Pompey and Craffus, which was so fatal to the vears.

PISO . AULUS GABINIUS PAULUS man. Cate and the Conful Martius his Father-The hatred of the Tribune Clodius broke out in-law attempted to break this league, but against Cicero, who had impeach'd him for could not accomplish it. having prophaned the Mysteries of Circs, be- A. M. 3998. R. 697. CN. POMPEIUS cause he went into the house of Calpurnia MAGNUS, M. LICINIUS CRASSUS. The dreffed in a Womans Apparel upon the ac- Confuls got an order, by which Gafar should count of Galantry. Cicero to avoid his fury remain in his Government for five years more, went into Gaul, where he ferved in the qua- Pomper should be Governour in Spain and Afrility of Cafar's Lieutenant. Clodius's anger ca, and that Craffus should have Syria and Efeemed to be over, because Cicero was out of jaypr, with the absolute power of making war his reach: but Cicero fell into the finare, for against what Nation foever he should think he returned to Rome, where immediately Clo- lit. Craffus was so impatient of being at war distractured him of having put to death Lensu- with the Parthians, that he put to Sea before lus, Cethegus, Sura and other accomplices of the Spring, in a very hard feafon, so that he Catiline, without having observed any forma- lost a great many of his Ships. He plunder'd lity of Justice : Upon this accusation Cicero the Temple of Jerusalem, which Pompey and was banished Rome, and his Houses both in Gabinius had spared out of respect, and carthe Town and Country were burnt down.

Alexander Son to Ariftobulus having made ted Silver. his escape out of Pompey's hands, came into Judes, where he rais'd ten thousand Foot, and and Appianus Abaris, guided Grassis and his Arfifteen hundred Horie, and then attack'd Ga- my into a dry and barren Plain, and expos'd binius, but was beaten. Alexander loft three him to the Parthians fury, who defeated him, thousand men, and retired into Alexandria, kill'd his Son, and the greatest part of his where he defended himself for some time; Soldiers; he attempted to escape in the dark, but at last was forced to surrender. Arishobe- but another Arabian, whom he had took for lus King of the Jews, with Antigonus his Son, his Guide, betrayed him also; for he guided escaped also out of the Prisons of Rome, and his forces during the night, so that the next would attempt to raise men in arms as Alex- morning they were in a great plain, in fight ander had done; but he had no better fuccess of the Parthians. Surena the Parthians Comthan Alexander, for he was brought again pri- mander pretended to be willing to come to a foner to Rome.

A. M. 3996. R. 695. P. CORNELIUS LENTULUS SPINTER, Q. CÆCILIUS furrounded him, and kill'd him with their METELLUS. Pompey taking notice that the Arrows. esteem the people had for him, was lessen'd by the Artifices of Clodius, refolv'd to be re- ment, he defeated the Sicambri and Ufipeles, veng'd of him, and to recal Citers out of his which were the people of Guelderland and Zubanishment, and restore him to all his Estate. phen, and laid a Bridge over the River Rhine, Clodius could never prevent it by his Veto or and paffed over into Germany, where he flay'd opposition, for the Senate ordered that all ex- but eighteen days, and came back again into ercife should cease till Cicero's return. Cledius Gaul, from whence he undertook the Conbeing afraid that this decree of the Senate quest of England. should be approved of by the People, raised . A. M. 3999. R. 698. APPIUS CLAUas many Men as he could to prevent it, and DIUS PULCHER, L. DOMITIUS ÆNEO-Pompey and the Senate likewife raifed forces, BARBUS. The death of Craffus created Jeaand engaged Clodies and his Men. The fight loufy betwixt Pompey and Cafar. Julia, Pompey's was bloody, but the Senate got the best ; Wife, and Caefar's Daughter, died in Childand Citero returned. The Commission for bed. And after her death, Pompey seeing that bringing Corn to Rome was bestowed upon Cafar's Victories had got him the love of the Pomper, as a reward in confideration of Cictro's people, could not bear his preference; wherereturn. A while after Mile murthered Clediur: fore he would have laid down his Employdurst not appear any more after so great an behalf of the murther of Clodies his Enemy.

Commonwealth, that at last it brought the A. M. 3995. R. 694. L. CALPURNIUS Roman people under the fubication of one

ried away two thousand Talents of consecra-

An Arabian, whom Plutarch calls Ariamenes, treaty with Crassus; whereupon the Consul advanced to the Parley, but the Parthian:

Cafar was more fortunate in his Govern-whereupon Cicero made a fine Apology in the ments; but Cato, who was Cafar's Enemy per-I waded him to the contrary.

A. M. 4080. R. 699. CN. DOMITIUS | Conful Marcellus, who made all his endeavours the Nobility of Gaul. The English made no he had been Cajar's Lieutenant. great refiftance; Cafivelanus their King fubmitted to the Roman. The people of Namus

LENTULUS, G. CLAUDIUS MARCELand Hainault took up Arms, and belieged Cice- LUS. The two Confuls favour'd the party ro in his Camp, but Casar came to his relief of Pompey, and proposed to recal Casar and last extremity. Afterwards Cafar went to- to Cafar, opposed boldly the Confuls, who two Legions of him, which Pompey fent him. they grew too hot. Labienus one of the chief-Scipio Hipfens and Milo ftood both at Rome, with eft General Officers of Cafar forfook him. open force for the Confulship; whereupon and went over to Pompey. The Confuls found the Senate named Pempey the only Conful, with out another way to bring their defign about : the power of chusing a Colleague.

MAGNUS. He chose for his Colleague Q. upon Rome; and that to revenge that affront, Cacilius Metellus. Pompey being a Widower it was necessary to fend two Legions of Catook Cornelia, Scipio's Daughter, for his fecond far's, and two other of Pompey's, with some Wife, and all his care was to make himself other Forces to make war against them. As fure of the Senate, to counter-ballance the fa- foon as Cefer had notice of this order, he vour of the people, who declared openly for fent two of his Legions, with two more than Cafar. He was continued Governour of Spain Pompey had lent him. Fabius came to Rome and Africa for four years; and Cafar obtain'd from Cafar, and delivered his Letters to the the Government of Gaul for the fame time. Confuls, who were hardly prevailed upon Many disturbances arose in Gaul, that kept by the Tribunes, that the same should be read Gefer very busie. He deseated Vertingenterix, to the Senate, and would never consent that belieged and took Avaritum now Bourges Bituri- his offers should be taken into consideration. cum, now the chiefC ity in Berry, and Alexia, but ordered to consider of the present state of near Vellacundirum (Auxerre), and forc'd Vircin- the affairs of the Republick. Leneulus one of gentoriz to furrender himfelf.

fed to fend a fuccessour to Calar, but Sulpitius's Proposal was then rejected for this time.

Cafar offered to disband his Army, if Pompey, mands. who was his declared Enemy, would also The following days the Senate met out of break his Forces. The Tribune Curio feeing the City, that Pompey might be present at that the Senate favour'd Pompey, made that the Assembly, for being Proconful, by his proposal to the people, who approv'd the Office he could not be at Rome. Then they fame, and Anthony Curio's Colleague, openiy raifed Forces throughout Italy, and took Moread Cafar's Letters in the presence of the ney out of the Exchequer to bear Pompey's people, notwithstanding the opposition of the charges. Cafar having intelligence of all

CALVUS, M. VALERIUS MESSALA. to prevent it. Marc. Antony, who was on Ca-Cafar went over a second time into England far's fide was made their chief Pontiff, and with eight hundred Sail, and all the choice of Galba was debarred of the Confulate, because.

and got him off, being then reduc'd to the disband his Army; but Cario and other Friends wards Rome, and fent to Pompey to borrow dismis'd the Assembly, upon pretence that they exaggerated the shame or disgrace that the A. M. 4001. R. 700. CN. POMPEIUS defeat of Craffus by the Parthians had brought the Confuls faid, that he would never forfake A. M. 4002. R. 701. M. CLAUDIUS the Commonwealth, if they would fperk their MARCELLUS, SERVIUS SULPITIUS RU- maind boldly. Scapie, Pempey's Eather-in-law, FUS. Marcellus upon Pompey's motion propo- Spoke to the same purpose, and said that Pompey would never forfake the Republick, if the Colleague, and the Tribunes of the people Senate would fland by it. Whereupon it opposed it, faying, that Cafar had obtained was ordered that Cafar should disband his Arhis Government for four years, which time my by a certain time, or otherwise he should was appointed by the Senate, and that it would be declared Criminal. Marc-Anthony and Q. argue much injustice and imprudence in the Massius Tribunes of the people opposed this repeople, to take his Government from him, folution. The Cenfor Pile and the Prætor while he was victorious, and before the time Roscius offered themselves to go to Casar, to appointed by the Senate was expired. The inform him how the affairs went, but they were not allowed to go, and all the proceed-A. M. 4003. R. 702. L. ÆMILIUS PAU- ings were stopt. They had recourse at last LUS, CACLAUDIUS MARCELLUS, Mar- to the last remedies, and to a Decree, by cellus. Cousin German to the last Consul of this which it was ordered, That the Magistratu name, proposed again to recal Cafar, and should take care of the safety of the Commonwealth. fend him order to disband his Army ; Emili- The Tribunes went out of Rome and retired as on the contrary, added to the reasons all to Casar at Ravenna, where he was expecting ledg'd the foregoing year by Sulpitius, that an answer suitable to the equity of his De-these proceedings, assembled his Soldiers, and , Ptolony caused him to be murther'd before he represented to them in a pathetical way the in- landed. Cefar was so concerned at the news justice of his Enemies, and exhorted them to of his death, that the murtherers thought ftand by him against their violence. The Sol- they could not avoid a punishment suitable diers cried out presently that they were ready to their Crime, but by the death of Calor to protect his Dignity, and that of the Tri- himself. Photimus the Eunuch, and Archalas bunes. Cafar trufting himself to their fideli- attacked Cafar, but Methridates King of Pergaty, brought them towards Rimini, where he mus came to his relief, and deliver'd him from met the Tribunes of the people, who came these Murtherers. to him to implore his affiftance.

open'd their Gates, and fent away Pompey's Garrisons. This great progress surpriz'd Pompey's Followers, and obliged them to quit Rome, and Cefar purfu'd them as far as Brundusum, where Pompey cross'd over the Sea with the Confuls. Cafar having no Ships to follow them, return'd to Rome. The Magistrates Lepidus Inter-Rex. who created C. Julius Cafar Dictator, who recall'd the banish'd Citizens, and restor'd them to the possession of their Estates: He laid down that great Office, after having kept it eleven days only, and then was made Conful.

A.M. 4005. R. 704. C. JULIUS CÆSAR. P. SERVILIUS VATINIUS ISAURICUS Casar had then no other thoughts, but to purfue Pompey; but first of all he thought fit to make himfelf Master of Spain, where Pompey had fortified himself a long while ago. He had several skirmishes on the Segra near Lerida, and so closely pursued Afranius one of Pompey's Generals, that he was obliged to difband his Army, composed of feven Roman Legions, and of a great many Confederates. Varro another General of Pompey's attempted to defend Calis and Cordua, but all the Neighbouring Provinces declared themselves for Cefar, so that he was forc'd to yield to his good Fortune, and delivered up his Forces, Ships, and all his Ammunitions. In the mean time Pompey got together a very strong Fleet, compos'd of feveral Squadrons from Afia, the Cyclades Islands, Corfon, Athens and Egypt, making in all five hundred Ships, besides the Tenders, and other small Ships. His Land Forces were not inferior to his Naval Strength, but he had dispersed his Army into several places, to keep the Provinces in his Interest; and had then with him but forty five thoufand Foot, and seven thousand Horse: Casar was not fo strong, for his Army consisted only of a thousand Horse, and twenty two thousand Foot. These two Armies engaged in Theffalia near Pharfalia, and Pompey's Army was defeated, and himself forc'd to escape in and Children. Sitius's Soldiers kill'd him and disguise to Amphipolis, where he attempted to Afranius by Casar's order, who spared the life rally his scatter'd Forces; but Casar pur- of Pompeia and his Children, and restor'd them fued him so close, that he had no time to do to their Estate. Scipie attempted to get into

A. M. 4006. R. 705. Q. FURIUS CALE-All the Towns of Italy where Cafar appear'd NUS, P. VATINIUS. Tho' Cafar was abfent from Rome, yet he was made Dictator the second time, and his Distatorship continued for a whole year. He reduced the Kingdom of Pontus into a Roman Province, and beflow'd the Government of it upon Celius Vincinianus. It was concerning this Victory that Cefar obtained over Pharmaces King of Pontus, and the Senators that remain'd there made that he wrote to his Friend Anicius, veni, vidi, vici, I am come, I have feen, I have overcome: to shew with what swiftness he had subdued the Kingdom of Pontus. Cafar return'd by way of Alia Miner, and gave the Kingdom of Besphorus to Mithridates King of Pergamus, and from thence came to Rome, where his presence was necessary : After his arrival he difbanded a great part of his Forces, giving one hundred Crowns to each Soldier, with Lands enough to live there rich and contented.

A. M. 4007. R. 706. C. JULIUS CÆSAR, M. ÆMILIUS LEPIDUS. Cafar did not Stay long at Rome, but went over into Africa at the beginning of January, where at first he was worsted by Labienus's Forces. Afterwards he drew the Africans to a Fight near the Town of Tapfus, where the Forces of Labienus and Afranius, tho' reinforc'd by those of Scipie, were cut in pieces. Cesar gain'd great Glory in this Battle ; for he got three Camps of the Enemies, kill'd ten thousand Men, or fifty thousand, according to Plutarch; made several Prisoners, and lost but one hundred and fifty Men. After this Victory Calar march'd towards Utica, where Cate commanded, who feeing all things in a desperate condition kill'd himfelf. Tubs got off fafe in the last battle with Petreius, and attempted to retire to Zams a Town of his own, very strong and well provided, where he had left his Wife, Children and Treasure, but the Inhabitants thereof shut up the Gates upon him, and made a prefent of all his Treasure to Casar. Afranius and Sylla had no better fortune, for they fell into a body of the Army, that Sitius, Cafar's Lieutenant commanded, and Sylla was made prisoner with Pompeia his Wife it, and fled away into Egypt, where King Spain, but the Winds and the Sea drove him back to Bonna, where Sittes was return'd, who him when he stole the Sabine Virgins, at the funk easily all his Ships.

He caused all the Goods of Juba to be fold, Flowers, and rested, and a Mule was facriney arising by them. Cafar return'd to Rome, represented the Games call'd Confueles, afterfecond over the Kingdom of Pontus and Phar- mentary on the first Verina. Ad id tempus Cin. naces, and the third over Africa and King Juba; censi spectaculo contenta erat civitas nostra, qued and in fo modest a manner, that there was primus Romalus raptis Virginibus Sabinis Confualium nothing feen in his Triumph, that could nomine celebravit. Vid. again this word, befeem to infult over the memory of those he fore the word Conful. had vanquished: The next day after these CONSUS. The God Confut, or the God of Triumphs, he entertained all the Roman Peo- Counfel, according to Servius's interpretation. ple at two and twenty thousand Tables, and Confus, says this Grammarian upon the 8th of gave them the diversion of a great many the Eneid, is the God of Counsel, who has Fights of Gladiators, and a representation of his Temple covered in the great Circus, to a Sea-fight. The Citizens were numbered they that Counfel ought to be kept fecret: and were found 32000 heads of Families, And St Austin lib. 4. de civitate dei, cap. 11. who had escaped the fury of the Civil Wars Confus is named so from the Counsel he gives ty, were retired into that part of Spain called the God of Cheating and Malice, for it was Ulterior or Batica, where Cafer pursu'd and de- he that inspired Romulus to ravish the Sabine feated them near Munda, killing thirty thou- Virgins, who came to Rome, to be present at fand on the foot, among whom were three the Games that were there represented, the thousand Roman Knights, and seventeen Field Sabines having been invited to them by Roman Officers, with Labienus and Atius Varus. After lus. Livy speaking of the Rape of the Sabines. this Victory Munds and Cordus were both be- "The Romans, favs he, celebrate still in our fieged and taken : Pempey's Sons died of their wounds.

A. M. 4008. R. 707. Q. FABIUS MAXI-MUS. C. TREBONIANUS. Calar crown'd with Glory after so many Conquests came to Rome, to make his triumphal Entry there; and then the Senate and the Reman people fubmitted to him, creating him perpetual Roman people. He reform'd the Calendar, re-Dæmon, keeper of fecret Councils. built and re-populated feveral Towns; and Varro confirms Livy's opinion, but Dyonyfour am, and fall in at Terracine. This great man time the Horses, Mules and Asses rested. in the midft of his Grandeur and Professive CONTUBERNIUM MILITARE. then fifty fix years old.

Feasts and Games instituted the tenth day of called Centuaria. August, or of March, as Ovid fays, in the third Book of his Fastorum, in honour of the God Con- Feast. fus, or God of Counsel, (as 'tis interpreted | CORAGIUM, The Obsequies of a Virgin. by St Auftin and Servius.) Romulus made use of Games that were represented at Rome, where Calar having subdued Africa, made it a Pro- he had invited the Sabines. During this Feaft vince, and subjected it to the Roman Laws. the Horses and Asses were crown'd with and made presents to his Soldiers of the Mo- ficed to this God. After this facrifice they where he triumph'd for three days together: wards named Romani and Circunfer, according The first day he triumph'd over Egypt, the to the report of Asconius Padianus, in his Com-

ON

Pompey's Sons, with the remains of his Par- or infpires men with; but Cyprianas calls him time this Feast and Solemnity, and call in Confusiis. There is an Altar under ground " very near the great Circus, where they make " Sacrifices, attended with great Illuminati-"ons of Fires and Lights; there are also ma-"ny Horse-races. Wherefore some name this God Hover Sap or Neptane, and Zeroi y flay or Earth-mover; affirming that for that rea-Diction, and render'd him such Honours fon his Altar was hid under ground, because that were only due to the Gods. Rame could Neptune, who is the Sea, incompasses the Earth. never get a more illustrious Master. He.ap- Others pretend that this Feast and Horse-Raply'd himfelf carefully to all that could con- ces were made in honour of Neptune; but that tribute to the grandeur and welfare of the Altar was confecrated to a certain Spirit or undertook to cut the Isthmus of Corinth, Halicarnassent tells us, that the Romans dedicawhich joined Merce to the Continent of Greece, ted a Temple to Neptune the Horse-tamer, and terminates the Gulph of Lepans. He and kept a Feast every year on the fixteenth would also join the Anio to the Tiber, by a of August, which the Arcadians call'd in Transact Canal that was to be cut from Rome to Girca- Tia, and the Romanu Confualis, during which was murthered in the Senate, and died of A Company of Soldiers that lodge in the three and twenty wounds he received, being same Tent, commanded by a Decumus, or leader of ten men. This company was the CONSUALIA, and Confusies Ludi. tenth part of a Company of an hundred men

CONVIVIUM, V. Epulum, a Banquet or

CORDAX, A kind of an old, merry and that had very much bent its leaves. This pleasant Dance, full of ridiculous and extra- new Figure pleased him, and he imitated it in vagant postures, like Country dances.

Palæstra. Grammarians don't agree about proportions and measures of the Corinthian () the meaning of this word; the greatest der. Villappendus says, that this History of part of Interpreters deriving the tame from the Greek Word goon that fignifies a young Girl. fay, that Coriceum was a place where young Girls exercis'd themselves with wrestling and running. Palladio thinks they were littleSchoolsforGirls. he fays, with leaves of Palm-trees, unto Others take its Etymology from the Greek word xavad i. e. the Hair, as if it were an appointed place for shaving. Mercurialis, without troubling himself with the Etymology, Corinthian Chapiters : However, the contrary affirms that it was a place where they laid up is observed in many tops of Pillars, that are the Wrestlers Cloaths, or such as went into the yet to be seen in Greece, and even in the Pil-Bathst and gives no other reason for the same, lars called Tutelles at Bourdeaux, the tops but only that fuch a room was requifite in the | whereof are of the Corinthian Order, with the Palæstra: but Baldu tells us, that this word leaves of Acouthus. Coriceum is derived from the Greek word ROPURAS, which fignifies a Ball, and his in- the Town of Corioli, the Conful C. Martius um is a place where men play at long Tennis, the Guard, the Enemies made a faily out of vulgarly called Well Tennis, or at Baloon, the Town and attacked him in his post, but which was a necessary thing in a wrestling he beat them back so vigorously, that he enplace.

the ground.

so incorporated.

piter, which is adorn'd with Carvers work. of two ranks of fine leaves, fixteen in number, being cut therein and from whence come out fo many fmall branches or stalks, covered again with the fame number of Cartridges. cutter, who by chance found a Basket fet from that Illustrious Family, upon a plant of Acanthus, covered with a tile.

the Pillars he wrought afterwards at Corinth, CORICEUM, A part of the Anci ent fettling and regulating upon this Model all the Callimachus is a Fable, that the Greeks did not invent the Corinthian Chapiter, but took the Model thereof from the Temple of Solomon, where the top of the Pillars were adorn'd, as which the leaves of an Olive-tree are more like than those of an Acanthus, which he tells us, never were us'd by the Ancients in the

CORIOLANUS. After the taking of terpretation of this word feems the most rea- took the Sirname of Coriolanus. Dionylius Halfonable: wherefore we may fay, that Coryce- licarnaffeus tells us, that Coriolanus being upon tered the Town along with them, and fet it CORINTHUS. Corinth the chief City on fire; which brought fuch terror upon the of Achaia placed in the middle of the Isthmus' Inhabitants and the Garrison, that they quitof Peloponne flus between the Ionian and the ted the place. Plutarch relates this in a diffe-Agean Seas. It was built first by Sisphus the rent manner, and says, that the Conful hav-Son of Eslus, and named Coreyra, according to | ing engaged the Vollai fome miles from Cori-Strabo; and after having been destroyed, it oli, he perform'd wonderful deeds of Valour : was rebuilt by Corintbus, Pelops his Son, and and having routed them, he went at the head called after his Name Corinthus. The Corinthians of a body of Reserve, and charged the Rear abused the Roman Ambassadors, whereupon of the Enemies, who slying into Corioli for Mummius was fent thither, who put the Inha- shelter, he got in promiscuously with them, bitants to the fword, and razed the Town to and made himself Master of the Town. This great Captain, proud of the Nobility of his CORINTHIUM. Viz. ÆS. Corinthian Family and his Rank, does treat the Roman Brafs. Plmy mentions three forts of Corinthian people with too much Authority, and exaf-Brass; viz. the white, red and the mixt perated them to that degree, that they coloured: this diversity arises from the pro- banish'd him out of Rome. Coriolanus highly portion of the three forts of Metals whereof refenting this Affront, retired among the 'tis compounded, which are Gold, Silver and Volsci, and came at the head of them to in-Copper, which according to Pliny and Florus, camp on the Cluvian Trenches, two leagueswere mix'd together when the City of Co- off Rome, after he had taken many Towns rinth was burnt, for many Statues and Vessels from the Romans. The Romans, afraid of their of these three Metals were melted down and lives, attempted to move him by Prayers. The Pontiffs and the most considerable of CORINTHIUS. Viz. ORD O. The Co- the Senate were fent to him, but could not rinthian Order, one of the three orders of Ar- prevail with him, and he yeilded only to the chitecture; confifting in its Pillars and Cha- folicitations of his Mother and his wife Volumnia. He brought again the Volsci into their own Country, but they put him to death for having been fo favourable to his Country.

CORNELIA. Viz. FAMILI'A. The Cornelian Family. Many great men and worthy This order was invented by Callimachus Stone- Ladies in the Roman Commonwealth came

COR-

CORNELIA, Pompey's Wife, for whom Ifixteen Books of Annals, beginning from the the whole Empire. All his fear was upon ninth Books are lost. her account, and he took more care to fave There were many other Illustrious Men of her from the publick danger, than to prevent that Family. the ruine of the Universe.

---- Seponere tutum, Conjugii decrevit opus : Lesboque remotam Te procul a Sevi firepitu, Cornelia, belli. Lucanus.

After the loss of the battle of Pharfalia, and crooked. Pompey encouraged her to confrancy, telling her, that if the had lov'd only the person of and Sacrifices; those that were used in Sacriher Husband, she had loft nothing; and if sices were commonly made with Box-tree, the had loved his Fortune, she might be glad and those used for the Games were of Silver, to have now nothing else to love but his or of Bones of Asses Legs, the found whereof Perfon.

- Tu nulls tulifti, Belle dayma mee. Vivit post pralia magnus, Sed forma perit : qued defler, illud amafti. Luc.

ed from the Island of Lesbes, where she was Cornibus secretarii prateriani pratrant, favs Cassialeft during the war. The Inhabitants of the dorus. Island were generally forry at her departure. because she had lived all the while she was Feathers, lesser than a Raven, but croaking there, during her Husbands prosperity, with and feeding upon Carrion like him. She fore-the same modesty as she should have done tells the Rain with her croaking, which was in time of his advertity.

Stantis adbuc fati vixit quafi conjuge ville.

After the death of Pompey, the took no other pleafure but in mourning, and feemed to love her grief, as much as the had loved

−S∡vumque ar&è complexa dolorem. Perfruitus lacrymu, & amat pro conjuge luctum.

Pheretrius.

Consul and Priest to Jupiter. He sided with as the Symbol of Concord. Sylla, and got his Veins opened, for fear of CORNU, 'The Horny hard part that feized upon Rome with his party.

Friend to Augustar and Virgil, whose Encomi- shew that she was the Goddess of hunting. um you may read in the 4th Book of hirGeorgicks; Servius tells us, that they represented the under the name of Ariftew. He kill'd himfelf be- God of Sleep with a Horn. cause he had been suspected of Treachery.

senees speak commendably of him.

he had more tenderness and regard, than for death of Augustus. The six, seven, eight and

CORNICEN. He that bloweth a Horn or Cornet, invented by Marfyas in Phrysia. 'Tis a kind of a great Flute, with feven holes; there are fome that are straight, made of a whole piece of wood, of Service-tree or Plum-tree: Some others are of two pieces

The Ancients made use of them in War was more clear, as Plutarch relates it.

CORNICULARIJ. A kind of Officers that flood at a corner of the Bar. where the Magistrate administred Justice, to hinder the people from coming in and di-Cornelis imbark'd with Pompey, and depart- flurbing the Magistrate : Cornicularii, quis > (Eclog. r. Sape finifira cava pradixit ab ilice Cornix. Vite.

> CORNIX, A Crow, a Bird with black accounted a bad Omen to him that began any undertaking.

And fometimes it was a good Omen.

Farpeio quoudam qua fedit culmine Cornix.

Eft bene non potuit dicere, dixit erit. Epigram.

Yet the Crow was under the protection of CORNELIUS COSSUS, A milita- | Concord, for Elianus tells us, that the Anciry Tribune, who kill'd Volumnius King of the ents were used to call upon the Crow in their Veienter in a pitch'd battle, and consecrated Weddings. Politianus affirms that he has seen his Spoils called Opime, to Jupiter firnamed a Golden Medal of the young Fauftina, Marcus Aurelius his Daughter, and Wife to L. Verus, CORNELIUS MERULA, He was on the reverse whereof a Crow was represented falling into the hands of Marius, who had grows on the head and at the feet of many Animals. The Ancients, fays Plutarch, hung CORNELIUS GALLUS, An intimate up Stags horns in the Temples of Diana, to

CORNU-COPIA, The Horn of CORNELIUS SEVERUS, An He- Plenty, according to the Fable; 'tis a Horn roick Poet and a Declaimer; Quintilian and from which came out all things that could be wish'd for, out of a priviledge that Jupiter CORNELIUS TACITUS, A Fa- gave his Nurse, whom they supposed to have mous Historian and a wife Politician, who been a She-goat or Amalthea. This Fable is wrote the History of the Roman Emperors in grounded upon the fruitfulness of a Territo-

w of Libia, whose Figure is like an Ox's Pine-tree: and that of the Neman Games. Horn, very abundant in Wine and rare Fruits, celebrated in the honout of the young Archewhich King Ammon gave to his Daughter A- more, they gave a Crown of Smallage : and malthes, whom the Poets have supposed to this is confirm'd by the four following Latin have been Jupiter's Nurfe.

CORONA, A Crown. Crowns were of Archias. added to Honour, Virtue and the Atchievements of great men, by Priests in Sacrifices, Sacra per Argivas certamina quatuor urbes by the people in Game, Shews and Feaftings : and because of their several uses, they were Ut Jouis & Phabi, Melicertaque Archemorique made of several Materials, as we shall see afterwards.

The Crowns that were bestowed upon killed his Enemy.

raife the fiege of a Town or Camp.

Silver, with Battlements of old Walls round | their Heads in their merry Meetings. about, in the form of Beams.

and Silver, with Pales of Palisadoes round ed with Palm-branches. about, like so many Rays.

Ships, and was given to him who first board- by ancient Marbles. ed the Enemies Ships.

The Crown Triumphalis was at first made of made free, a Crown of Wool. Laurel; but afterwards they made it of Gold: wear on the day of his Triumphal Entry.

The Crown Ovalis was granted to him, who | whole Cornish. had obtained the leffer Triumph, called Ovatio, and was made of branches of Myrtle- of the Dorick Order, according to Vitruvius.

the publick Games of Greece; the Crown of She had no Temple, but they offered Sacrithe Olympick Games dedicated to Jupiter, fices to her in the Temple of Pallar. was made of wild Olive-tree. That of the CORONIS, Phlegias's Daughter, loved Pythian Games, celebrated in the honour of by Apollo; but being grown too familiar of Laurel. That of the Ishmian Games, so- Raven who saw them together, acquainted lemnized in the honour of Palemon, kept in Apollo with it. This rais'd his jealousie to

Verses of Alciatus, translated out of the Greek

Sunt ; duo facta viris, & due Calitibus. Pramia funt pinus, poma, apium, atque olea.

In publick Feaftings and Rejoycings merit, and for reward of great Actions they were crowned with Ivy, Roses, and were called Civica, Obsidionalis, Muralis, Ca- other natural and artificial Flowers. Pliny frense, Navalis, Vallaris, Ovalis, and Trium- tells us, that these Crowns or Garlands of Flowers were not used, and that they were The Crown Civica was made of Branches kept for the Statues of the Celestial Gods. of Oak with Acorns, or of ground Oak, and Meneflus and Callimachus both Physicians, wrote was given to fuch who had fav'd a Citizens against the use of Crowns of Flowers in life in a battle, having defended him, and Feastings, saying that they were hurtful to the Brain: but Typhe another Physician, and The Crown Obsidionalis, was made of Grass Aristo a Periparetick Philosopher maincalled Gramen, gathered in the Camp, and gi- tained the contrary, and faid that Flowers. ven in honour of the courage of the Soldier may open the pores of the Head, and make or Captain, who had forced the Enemy to a free passage for the sumes of the Meat and Wine. It might however fall out, that some The Crown Muralis was bestowed upon him. Flowers and Herbs may hurt the Brain; and who had first scaled the Wall of a besieged this may be the reason why they left off the Town or some other place, and entred by use of Garlands of Flowers, and made use of the breach. This Crown was of Gold or little woollenBands, which they tied up about

Livy tells us at the end of his first Decade. The Crowns Castronsis and Vallaris were that in the Year 460, all the Romans affisted granted to fuch, who forc'd the Palifadoes and at publick Games, with their Heads crowned the Camp of the Enemies, and beat them with Laurel or Flowers, eedem anno coronati from the Trenches and the Fences where they primit ob res belle bene geftas, ludos Romanos. were retired. This Crown was made of Gold Spettaverunt, and the Conquerors were crown-

They likewise crown'd themselves with The Crown Navalis was of the same metal Flowers and Herbs, at the Sacrifices and with the two former, formed with Beaks of Feafts in honour of the Gods; as it appears

They gave also the Gladiators, that were

CORONA, In Architecture, is that the Cities fent it to the victorious General, to part of the Cornish, which is called the Caves. Vitruvius by the word Corone understands the

CORONA LATA, The Cornilla CORONIS, The Godders Coronis, wor-

They likewise crowned the Conquerors in shipp'd in Sicyonia, according to Pausanias:

Apollo, for the defeat of the Serpent Pytho, was with Ischis, the Son of Elatus of Theffalia, 2 the Ishmus of Corinth, was made of branches of that heighth that he flew her; and took the Child out of her Womb, with the help of he excused his long stay upon the want of for the death of Coronis, Apollo's Miftrifs. Pin- ripe. dar doth not mention any thing of the Raven, but fays, that Apollo discovered himself the Infidelity of his Mistris, that he slew her, and took the Child out of the womb of Coronis, as they were going to burn her on a Funeral Pile.

CORTINA TRIPOS, A threefooted Stool, covered with the skin of the Scrpent Pytho, whereupon the Pythoniffa or Priestes of the Temple of Apollo of Delphis, cording to Pliny : Corvi agrescunt sexagenis diebus fat down to pronounce the Oracles of that fiti maxime, antiquam fici coquantur au tumne, God. Virgil takes this word for the Oracle

Nec te Phabi Cortina fefellit. 1. En. The Oracle of Apollo has not deceived you.

Valerius Maximus a Tribune, during the Con- that we can understand, is that there was a fulate of Farius and Appears acceev years after the Pillar and a Ladder that turned upon it, at foundation of Rome, when the Gouls entered the end of the Ladder there was a Pully, Italy: The two Armies being then in pre- through which went a Rope, having a very fence, a Gaul, of the stature of a Giant, came heavy Iron Hook to it, which they let fall out of the Camp, and challenged the stoutest into the Enemies Ship. of the Romans. Valerius accepted the challenge, having first obtained leave of the Confuls; Goddes Cybele, the Mother of the Gods, acand fought him in the fight of both Armies: cording to the Fable; at the celebration of But the Historians observe a wonderful thing, this Goddes's Mysteries, they ran up and that a Raven fell upon the Giant, and some- down by Precipices, with their hair diffietimes blinded him with his Wings, some velled. Some made incisions in their Elbow times peck'd him, and scratched his Face and and elsewhere, others blew a Horn, beat the his Hands, and fometimes pearching upon Drum, and play'd upon the Cymbals: So the head-piece of Valerius, he affifted him to that Mount Ida resounded with their cries get the Victory, insomuch that he killed his and debaucheries. By the help of this hor-Enemy on the spot ; whereupon he took the rid noise they saved Jupiter from the hands of name of Carvinus, and was so much consider- Saturn, who would have devoured him, accorded fince, that Augustus erected him a Statue in | ing to the agreement made with Titan his the Market-place of Rome.

Omen. Apollo took an Antipathy against him, led Creta, or Candia, upon a Mount that they because his indiscreet prattling caused the likewise called ide; and here they saved Judeath of Coronis his beloved Mistrifs, whom he piter with skipping and dancing, which they killed out of jealousie: in punishment where-of, he changed his white Feathers into black Darts against Shields. 'Tis said that Rhea ones, as we learn it from Ovid, l. 2. Meta- taught her Priests this dance in Creet and Sperantemque sibi non falfa pramia lingua, Inter aves albas vetuit consistere corvum.

'Tis faid, that young Ravens taken out of their Nest, and exposed to the smoak of brimstone-flower, become white.

Ovid tells us, that Phabus fent the Raven to fetch water, but having tarried too long,

Mercurius, and called him Esculapius, whom Pitcher, and the fright he was put in by he committed to the care of Chiron the Centaur | Serpent ; but the truth was, that he staid till to be brought up, and the Raven's Feathers the Figs were ripe, to feed upon them. 4 that were white before were changed into pollo did punish his lying, and forbid him to black, that he might mourn for ever drink all the while the Figs were growing

> Addis, ait, culpa mendacia, Phabus? & auder Fatidicum verbis fallere velle Deum ? At tibi, dum lattens barebit in arbore ficus, De nullo gelide fonte bibantur aque.

> The Poets have difguifed a Phyfical Truth under this Fable; for the Ravens are fick and thirsty, all the while the Figs are milky, ac-

CORVUS, An Engine to pull down a Wall, called also a Crane; this Engine of War was found out by Cetras a Chalcedonian. which was made use of, says Palybins, to grape ple the Ships of the Enemies. This Historian CORVINUS, A Sirname given to makes an obscure description of it, and all CORYBANTES, The Priests of the Brother. They first inhabited Mount Ida, CORVUS, A Raven, a Brid of good in Phrygia, thence they went to an Island cal-Playgia. Some Authors confound the Corybantes with the Curetes and Idei Daetyli. This word is derived from the Greek nopunter which signifies to totofs the head to and fro, as mad men do ; but Diedorus Siculus writes, that they are called Corybantes, from one Corybantes the Son of Jason and Cibele, who introduced the mysteries of that Goddess in Phrygia.

COR-

CORYCEUM, vid. Coriceum.

therefore Virgil fays,

Purpureoque alte suras vincire cothurno, 1. Eneid.

COTYLA. xºTÚAn. An ancient mea-Sextarius, and that it is called Cotyla, because his life. it divides the Sextarius in two. Galen in his ceeded Sabatius in the Government of the salus, and under that pretence seized upon Aborigenes. Berofus lays, that Crans was 7s-1the Kingdom of Pergamus. He had more ream's Daughter, but according to Ovid, she gard to the Treasures of Attalus, than the was Apollo's Sifter, and Janus his Mistress, management of the War: wherefore he was and this God gave her for a reward of the vanquished and taken alive in the Fight; but last favour she had granted him, the office as they were bringing him to Aristonicus, he upon she was called Cardinea.

Prima dies tibi, Crana, datur, Dea cardinis hac eft. -Teque Potitus, Jus pro concubitu nostro tibi Cardinis esto, Hoe pretium positæ virginitatis habe.

CRANUS, the Son of Crana and James, the Aborigenes.

eloquent and covetous Reman, he fled away ty, and a retir'd life. from Rome into Spain, during the factions | CREPITUS, A Fart, a Deity worthe Conduct of Spartacus, whereupon they collections of Antiquities.

granted him the leffer triumph, which was COTHURNUS, A Buskin, a kind of performed on Foot, and called Ovation. Af-Shoe that the Roman Ladies did wear, that terwards he was chosen Consul and Censorthey might appear the taller. It was worn The Government of Syria and Egypt fell to also by Actors of Tragedies, that they might him. He proclaimed War against the Parthe better represent Hero's: wherefore to thians, and was so forward in it, that he express the lofty strain or high flyle of an would not tarry till the Spring, but em-Author, 'tis faid that he wears the Buskin: barked in a very bad Season, and lost many & in cothurnis prodis Elopus novis. Phad. Elop of his Ships. Then trufting to an Arabian, raises his Stile. This shoe was soled with whom he had taken for his Guide, he ven-Cork, and covered the calf of the Leg, tured himself and his Army too far in a Defart Country, where Surena the Parthian Commander, intirely defeated the Roman Army. Publius his Son was killed in the Fight, and a while after he himself fell by treachery, and had his Head and right fure of Liquors, containing nine ounces of Hand cut off, and fent to King Oreder in Italian Measure, viz. an onnce less than the Armenia, who poured melted Gold into his Roman Hemina. Apuleius says, that the Gotyla Mouth, that his dead body might be burned and Hemina were synonymous among the An- with the same Metal, that had inflamed his rients, aud that they are both taken for half mind with an infatiable defire of Riches. the Sextarius. The Hemina, fays he, is the Flor. I. 3. cap. 3. Plutarch adds, that he had half of the Sextarius; wherefore the Greeks | plundered the Temple of Jerusalem, carrying call it Cosyle, i. e. incision or division, be- away above 2000 Talents of Silver, and cause it divides the Sextarius in two. Isidorus all the Gold that was found there, and fays the same in his Origines. Epiphanius fays Sidonius Apollinaris has observed that he positively, that the Cotyla is the half of the laughed but once in the whole course of

There was another called Pub. Licinius Books of Physick, makes use of the like ex- Crassis, who was chosen Pontiff before he pressions. Suidar also tells us, that in his arrived at the usual age, and afterwards time the Cotyla was called half the Sexta- elected Conful, and was no less covetous than M. Crassius. He made War in Asia against CRANA, Janus his Daughter, who fuc- Ariftonicus, who called himself the Son of Atof overfeer of the hinges of Doors, where was killed by a Soldier, whom he provoked to do it, by striking out one of his Eyes with a Switch that he had in his hand, CREPIDA, A kind of a Shoe used in former times, like Slippers without a heel, made up of three Soles fewed together, that made a small noise in walking, upon which account they were named Crepide a crepitu; but there are some Authors who derive this and not his Brother, as Berofus fays. He word from upanis a kind of Shoe used ahonoured Crans very much, having de-mong the Greeks, which Persus calls in the dicated a Wood to her on the Banks of the first Satyr Crepide Graiorum, and Sueconius af-Tiber, and instituted a Feast to be kept every firms c. 13. in the life of Tiberius, that this year. He reigned four and fifty years over kind of Shoe came from the Greeks. They were more especially made for the use of CRASSUS, called Marcus, was a very Philosophers, and men that lived in aufteri-of Marius and Sylla. He put an end to the shipped by the Ægyptians under an obscene War of the Slaves, who had rebelled under Figure, which might be seen in some curious CROESUS, King of Lydia, who poffeffed great Wealth and Treature, and tent Daughter of King Priam and Hecuba, who was fome Wedges of Gold for an offering to A- loft in the taking of Troy, and was delivered pollo, as a reward for his false Oracles. He from the Grecian flavery by Cybele the mother was taken Prisoner by Cyrus, and condomn'd of the Gods, and entertain'd in her service to be burnt alive : being brought to the as it is related by Virgil !. 2. Eneid. v. 785. place of Execution, and lying upon the pile of Wood, he cried out Solon, Solon, (a Philofopher whose advice he had despised in the time of his prosperity.) Herodotus enlarges this History, and relates in the first Book of Clio, that Cyrus having defeated and taken Crass Prisoner, put him in Irons, and got him ty'd fast to a pile of Wood, there to race should remain alive; and others more be burnt alive with fourteen young Chil- probably believe that the was killed or taken dren of the chiefest Lords of Lydia. In this prisoner, as she was following Aneas that condition Crafus pronounced three times the night Troy was taken, having loft her way in word Solon. Cyrus asked him what God he the burning of the Town. was calling upon, he answered, that Solon CREUSA, The Daughter of Creen Kine was a Philosopher, who foretold him this of Corinth, whom Jason married after his divorce misfortune: whereupon he commanded im- from Medea, who being inraged for Jalous mediately the Fire should be put out, but they forfaking her, resolved to revenge that as could not do it. Then Crafus called upon front; and to that purpose, she feemed to be sipollo, and a fudden Rain fell, which did put pleafed with the new match, and fent to the out the Fire.

Crassus at Sardis, the Capital Town of his as the open'd it, it burnt her, and her Father Empire, and that Crassus spoke to him thus : Crem, with the Palace. "Now, Solon, I have shewn thee all my Treatifures and Glory, pray tell me who is the from the Greek word which is a Ram. "happiest man in the world? Solon. There This word is to be seen in an Inscription "are very few Crasw, that deserve that Rome. " name, but of all that I have ever known, " Biton and Cleobis feem to me the most happy, " who died both at the fame time, after they " had drawn the Priestel's of Argos their Mo-" ther in a Chariot to the Temple : and Tellus, "that illustrious Athenian, who, after he had "lived a good life, died for his Country; " for no man can be called happy before " death, and when he hath finished his " courfe.

.- Dicique beatus Ante obitum nemo, supremaque funera debet.

Horace took this thought from the Oedipur of Sophecles.

relates the History of Grafus, after another Water out of the River Nile, left they should manner, and favs, that being defeated by be devoured by the Crododiles. Phed. Cyrus, he retired for shelter to Sardis, where CROESUS, vid. after Crepitus. Crrue, having vigorously pursued him, the CROTALUM, was a kind of Casta-Inhabitants of the Town, to avoid the fury nietta made of a Reed, divided into two. of the Conqueror, delivered up Crafus and lengthways, which being flruck one atheir Town into his hands; then Crafus ap- gainst the other with different motions of pearing before him, called him his Lord and the Fingers, made a found like that the Stork Master, and told him the answer he had from makes with her Bill, wherefore the Ancie the Oracle of Apolls how he might be happy, ents gave that Bird the Epithet of Crosalifisis, which was so know bimself, and of set order; but i. e. Player upon the Crosalum. And of sife that his prosperity and great riches had blind- phanes the Poet, calls a great talker a Gretalum. ed him.

CREUSA, The first Wife of Enege, and Non ego Myrmidonum fedes, Dolopkmve fuperba Alpiciam, aut Grais servitum matribus i bo Sed me magna Deumgenitrix his detinet oris.

Some fay that Aneas put her to death by the order of the Greeks, that none of Priam's

Bride a Casket full of Precious Stones, fo vio-Lucian relates that Solon went to wait on lently inchanted with fire in it, that as foon

Diis Omnipetentibus. Lucius Ragonius Venustus. V. C. Augur Publicus P. R. Q. Pontifex, Veftalis Majer, Percento Taurobolia Criebelioaue X. Kal. Jun. Dn. Valentiniano Aug. IIII. Et Neoterio Conf. Aram Confectavit.

CROCODILUS, á Crocodile, a Beaft that lives in the River Nile, &c. and was worshipped by the Egyptians. 'Tis said heir very greedy of Dogs-flesh, wherefore the Xemphon in the 7th Book of the Cyropedia, Dogs run all the while they are drinking

Paulanias tells us, that Pilander Camirensu te- | What, are the Gods moved with the found of Cym ported that Hercules did not kill the Stymphalides with his Arrows, but that he had frighted and driven them away with the noise of the Crotala; and according to this Author the Grotalum must be a very ancient Instrument of Musick, if it was made use of in Hercules his time. Ovid joins the Grotalum with the Cymbals.

Cymbala cum crotalis prurientiaque arma Priapo Ponit, & adducit tympana pulsa manu.

They acted several forts of postures when they played with the Crotalon, as Dancers do when they dance Sarabands, and play with the Castaniets; as appears by an ancient Poem intituled Copa, attributed to Virgil.

Clemens Alexandrinus, who afcribes the Invention of this Instrument to the Sicilians, would have the Crotala banished from the Festivals of Christians, because of the unbecoming postures their found was attended with.

CRUMATA, Another kind of Caftaniets made of little bones or shells, as Scaliger observes upon the Copa of Virgil, they were very common among the Spaniardi, and especially among the Inhabitants of the Province Batica about Cadiz, to which Martial makes allusion:

Nec ae Gadibus improbis puella, Vibrabant fine fine prurientes, Lascives decili tremere lumbes. Epigr. 79. lib. 5.

The same Poet in another place speaks of a Woman that could play with that Inftrument, and make motions with her Body.

Edere lascivos ad Bætica crumata gestus, Et Gaditanis ludere dolla modis. Epig. 71.1.6.

The Inhabitants of that Country have kept to this time the use of that Instrument, and from them Castaniets come to us,

Yet these Castaniets were not unknown to the ancient Greeks. Ariflophanes calls them broance, Oyster's shells, and Marshal, Testa.

Audist ille testerum crepitus.

CRUPEZIA, Another kind of Caffaniets to play with the feet, and were called Crupezia from the Greek word uriser, to firike, and wita, the fole of the foot, according to the Ætymology which Hefychius the Grammarian gives of it.

Pollux fays that thefe Crupezia's were Shoes, made use of by Players upon the Flure. Arnobius lib. 7. against the Gentiles calls them Seavilla, and laughs at their superstition, saying, bals, and the noise of Castamers, (Scabillorum)? Salmasus, who in his Commentary upon the life of Carinus, has collected all that is to be found in Authors about this kind of Castaniers, says that they were also called Scabella, Scamilla and Scamella, because it was like a little flool or a foot-flool, which they struck several ways with a wooden or iron floe; but I think that these Castaniets were of feveral forms. There are some represented like a Sandal made of two Soles, and a Castaniet tied betwixt them. Those who will be further inform'd in this matter, may read Bartolinus's Treatife de Tibiis veterum.

CRUX, A Cross, a Gibbet of the Ancient Romans, whereon they hanged their Slaves and Malefactors. This punishment was made use of among the Jewi, Persians, Egyptians, Greeks and Romans. The Criminals were tied to it with Ropes, or nailed, and always died upon it, but when they had hung there a while, they broke their Bones to make them expire the fooner, as they used the Malefactors that were crucified with our Saviour. But fince our Lord was crucified, the Emperors gave orders that no Criminal should be put to death upon the Cross. These Crosses were of several Figures, as Justus Lipsius tells us in his Treatife de Crucibus.

CRYPT Æ. Vaults appointed for the interment of particular Families.

C TEISBIUS, a Native of Alexandria was a Barber's Son, and naturally endowed with an excellent Genius for Mechanical Inventions, for which he had a strong inclination. He hung a Looking-glass in his Fathers Shop, so that it might be easily pulled down, or raifed higher, by means of an hidden Rope, which he thus performed.

He put a wooden Tube under a Beam where he had fastened some Pullies, over which the Rope went, and made an angle in ascending and descending into the Tube, which was hollow, that a little Leaden Ball might run along it, so that the Ball passing and re-passing in this narrow Cavity, by its violent motion expelled the air that was inclosed and condensed by compression and forced it against the air without; these oppofitions and concussions made an audible and distinct found; and observing by this, that air inclosed and expelled with violence, made a found like the Voice, he was the first that from this principle invented Engines, which received motion from Water, also all Automata's that go by the force of Water inclosed; Engines that depend on the power of the Circle or Lever, and many other pleafant and useful Inventions, particularly Clocks that move by Water. To fet these Engines at Scone, and he chose such kind of materials, Square: and multiplied again by 4 it makes as being subject to wear by the constant paffing of the Water, or liable to contract filth to obstruct its passage. This being done, the Water which runs equally through the fmall hole raifes a piece of Cork, or little Ship inverted, which Workmen call Tympsman, upon which is a Rule and some Wheels pints (which is near two Hogsheads,) it was equally divided, whose Teeth moving one the biggest measure for Liquors, Culeu has nulla another, made these Wheels turn very leifurely. He also made other Rules and made of Leather or baked Earth, as we learn Wheels divided after the fame manner, which it from Varre. by one fingle motion in turning round, produces divers effects, made several small Images move round about Pyramids, threw up Scones like Eggs, made Trumpets found, and performed feveral other things that are not effential to Clocks. This we have from therefore were called Camer.

Vitravius lib. o. c. 9. who made the Temple of Disas at Ephefus. He invented an Engine to bring the Pillars of this Temple from the quarries where they gine, to which the drawing Oxen were fast- wounded the hearts of Lovers. ned, and when they drew the Iron-pins that were in the Iron-rings, could turn free- Greeks had two Capids, one Celestial, and the ly enough to let the body of the Pillars rowl other Common. easily upon the Ground; and thus he which was nine ordinary Foot long; the viz. Minerva's, the Maser, and Diana's. middle one was two foot long, which was about a foot and ten inches of the common The Syndicks, who were the Protectors of the foot, and the imall one was of a Foot and a Districts of Reme, like the Aldermen of the half, which was about an inch and a half Wards in London. less than a common foot of twelve inches.

with fix square sides, all even, like its Angles, works, who took care of them. Dies, are little Gubes. This word comes CURATORES, alvei, Theris & cleacen from wicoe, Tiffera, a Dice. A Cubical rum, The Commissioners for cleansing the Tinumber is that which is multiplied twice, ber, and the Common-shore of the City, they once by its root, and another time by its pro- were establisht by Augustu, according to duct ('tis the third power in Algebra) 64 15 2 what Suetonius fays, Nova officia excegitavit, work, he bored a Plate of Gold or a precious of 4, which is the root, which makes 16 its 64, which is the Cube.

A Cubical foot Cube, is a measure of folid bodies, which are a foot every way.

CULEARIA VASA, Veffels of the greatest content. This word is derived from Culeur, an ancient measure containing about 540 est major mensura liquoris, says Fannius. It was

CUNEI SPECTACULORUM The Seats and Benches in Theatres, which having a large basis, and growing narrower, the nearer they came to the Center of the Theatre, had the form of a Wedge, and CUNINA, A Goddess, who had the CTESIPHON. A famous Architect charge of Childrens Cradles, called Cama.

CUPIDO, The God of Love, according to the fable. There are feveral opinions concerning his birth. Hefod fays, he was were dug out, to Ephelius; for he durst not born of the Chaos and the Earth; Tully after make use of Carts, as others commonly do, Lucion, of Morr and Venus; Arceston fays, than because the wheels would have funk in the he was the Son of the Night and the Air; way, under fuch a weight, but he got four Saphe of Calsu and Venus; Seneca of Vulcan pieces of Wood, each of four inches square, and Venus. Owid and Plutarch are of opinion. two whereof were joyned cross the other that there were two Cupids , one celestial, two, which were longer and even with the which is innocent Love, and the other terrebody of each Pillar. At both ends of each stial, which is filthy Love ; the first born of Pillar he drove in Iron Pins made like a Venus and Jupiter, the second of Erebus and the Swallows Tail, and made them fast there Night. He is represented like a Boy, naked with Lead, having fastened into the crof- and winged, with a vail over his eyes, carfing pieces of Wood, Iron-rings, to put in rying a quiver upon his Shoulders; and the Iron-pins; besides, he put some strong holding a Torch with one hand, and a Bow thort poles of Oak at both ends of the En- and some darts with the other, wherewith he

Plutarch tells us, that the Egyptians and

Lucian feems to be of that opinion in the brought all the Pillars of the Temple of Diana. Dialogue betwirt Vonus and Capid; for there CUBITUS, A Cubit, an ancient Mea- Capid confesses, that the he had pierced with fure. Philander observes, that there were his Darts all the other Gods, yet he had met shree kinds of Cubits, wiz. The great one, with some hearts that were impenetrable.

CURATORES, Omnium Tribuum.

CURATORES, Operum publicorme. CUBUS, ACobe,a folid and regular Body, The Overfeers or Surveyors of publick

Cube number, produced by the multiplication our am operum publicarum, viarum, & aquarum alvei & Tiberit.

CURATORES, Viarum outra Urbem. The Commissioners for the Highways, Cawfeways, and Bridges about the City of Rome.

CURATORES, Denariorum Flandorum, express'd in ancient inscriptions by these three Letters, C. D. R. The Warden of the Mint, called also Firi Monetales, who had the care of coining. The infcriptions of old Gold and Silver pieces were stampt with these five letters, A. A. A. F. F. i. c. Ere, Argento, Auro flando, feriundo, overfeers for melting and coining species of Brass, Silver and Gold.

CURATORES Kalendarii. Men who put out the publick money to interest, which was paid at the Kalends, or the first day of the month. from whence they were called Kalendarii.

CURETES. The Inhabitants of the Isle of Crese, to whom Rhes committed the care of bringing up young Jupiter. The Curetes were accounted Inhabitants of Cree, because that worship pass'd from that Island to the rest of Greece and Italy, as it formerly came from Phanicis into Egypt, Phrygis, and Samethracis, and from thence to Grete, from whence it was at last communicated to the Greeks.

CURIA. A place, fays Festus, where those who were intrusted with the care of publick affairs met; but Curis among the Roman fignified rather the persons who met in Council, than the meeting place; for there was no certain place appointed for the Assemblies, the Senate meeting fometimes in one Temple, and sometimes in another. Yet there was certain places called Curia, as Curia Hoftilia, Curia Calabra, Curia Saliorum, Curis Pomeni, Curis Augusti ; but Antiquity has left us no account of those Edifices.

There were two kinds of these places or Courts, some wherein the Pontiffs met about the affairs of Religion, and were called by a general word, Caria Veteres; there were first divided into three Tribes, and each in four of thefe, viz. Forienfu, Ravia, Vellenfu, and Velicia, which were in the tenth Ward of who had the care of the Sacrifices, and the Ciry of Rame, and the other, wherein the Senate affembled about State Affairs. We have this division from Varre, in the fourth Book, de Lingua Latina: Curiæ duorum geneta : O ubi Sacerdotes res divinas curarent utCuria veteres : & ubi Senatus humanas ut Caria Hoftilia.

CURIA CALABRA. The Court of Calabra was built by Remulus upon Mount Palatinus, as Varro says, or in the Capitol, in the same place where now the Storehouse for Salt is kept at the Conservators Lodging, as 'tis some other Authors opinion. It was called Calabra, from the verb Calare, i. e. to call, because it was the place appointed by Remulus, where the King of the Sacrifices called the Senate and the people, to tell them of the new Moons, the days for Sacrifices, and publick Games.

CURIA HOSTILIA. The Court Hoftilia, built by Tulles Hoftilius, in the place where the Senate often affembled. CURIA POMPEII, or POM-PEIA. The Court of Pempey adjoyning to the Theatre, which he caused to be built in the place now called Compo di Fiere. It was a very magnificent Palace: the Senate was affembled there when Julius Geler was murthered and the Statue of Pompey was forinkled with Celar's Blood. At the Entry of this Palace was a magnificent Porch, supported with an hundred fine Pillars: It remained intire near three hundred years, and was burnt down in the time of the Emperor Philip, who fucceeded Gordianus III.

CURIA SALIORUM. The Court of the Salii, on Mount Palatine, where, the Augurial staff of Romulus was found intire, having receiv'd no hurt by the fire, after the Court was reduc'd to ashes, as Tully relates in his Books de divinatione.

CURIA JULIA or JULII. The Court of Julius Calar. CURIA AUGUST I. The Court of Augustus. CURIA OCTAVIA. The Court of Octavia, Augustus his Sister.

CURIA POMPILIANA. The Pompiliam Court.

CURIA CATONIS. The Court of

There are feveral other Courts mentioned by Vopiscus in the life of the Gordiani. All these places had nothing material, but that they were called after the names of those who built them. The Senare never met in those places till they were consecrated by the Aururs.

CURIAE. The Reman People was at ten Curia. Each Curis had its Curis or Prieft. Feasts proper to each Curis; as we learn from Dionysius Halicarnasseus. This was like Popish Parishes, which have their peculiar Saints Feafts and Curates, and these Curates a Bishop at their head, called by the Romans Curio Maximus, the first of the Curates, who, in spiritual Affairs, govern'd all the Curio's and Caria, Maximus Cario, cuius authoritate Curia, omnesque Curiones reguntur, Savs Festur.

Livy relates, that Romulus called each Curis after the names of the Sabin Ladies, whom he had stole away. Yer this is not likely; for there is no name of the Sabin Ladies in History : And Dienysius Halicarnasseus tells us. that they took their name from the part of the Town were they dwelt.

Each Curis maintained its Curis with the offerings and tythes that each Inhabitant paid which Festus calls As Curionium, qued dabatur smiling told them in contempt, That he had Curioni ob lacerdotium Curionatûs.

The Sacrifices of the Curia were called burthen'd with these superfluities. Curionia and Curialia Sacra, like the Parochial Masses of the Church of Rome, where every Martial speaks of in an Epigram. particular man of the Curie is bound to be present: Wherefore Romulus and Nums had affigued Funds to bear the charges of thefe facrifices, and keep the Feaftings made after the Livy tells us, that Sempronius Gracchus, a very Curia or Parish. Varre derives the Etymology rid very fleet Horses appointed for that purof Curie from Curie, because the Curie's were pose; and this shews that a long time before established to be spiritual heads in the Curie. Augustus the Romans had Post-horses settled in Curioni ditti a Curiis, qui fiunt ut in bis facra fa- their Empire, as is also mentioned by Sueteciant; others take it from curs care, because nins. Xenophon 1. 8. de Cyropedia says, that they offer facrifices for their Parishioners.

to these ancient Curio's, as to their office, (laying Paganifin afide) for the name agreed Packets that the Courriers brought, that he with them, either taken from Caris or Cars: might have fresh news from the most retheir office is alike; for the Curates are fub-motest places. Herodow in Urania fays, that ordinate to a first Curate, viz. the Bishop. and receive orders from him concerning his defeat. what must be done in their Parochial Churches, what rites and ceremonies ought Knight, who devoted himself for the pubto be observed, either in the administring of lick good, during the Consulthip of Q. Servithe Sacraments, or the rest of Divine service, line Abala, and L. Genutius. A great Abyss and the lift of the Feafts that are to be kept; opened in the place where the Assemblies likewise the Curious instituted by Romulus, were kept at Rome, which they attempted to were subjects to the Curio called Curio Maximus, fill, but to no purpose; whereupon they had who gave them directions about the Feafts of recourse to Oracles, who answered that each month, the ceremonies of the facrifices, this Pit could never be shut up, but by and feveral other things contained in the ri- throwing into it, that in which the Romans tual or formularies they had made concern- did excel above all other Nations. The Seing them. Therefore Festus defines this great nate assembled upon this answer, and Q. Curio, a man by whom all is done in the Cu- Curtius a young Roman Knight presented vie, and is an Overseer over all the Curio's : himself to the Senate, and shewed them, Maximus Curio, cujus aufforitate Curia omnesque that Rome was not more fruitful in the pro-Curiones repuntur.

rates after the same manner.

Carie, who had authority over all the Carie's, Ipurr'd him on into the Aby 1. The people that with respect to the external Policy. He were spectators of that action presently threw was chosen by the Assembly of all the Cario's, flowers upon him, and made offerings; and the and then was confirmed by the Senate and hole closed of itself by degrees. This place the people.

CURIUS DENTATUS, 2 Roman CUSTODES. Some Roman Officers nires; who had fuffered great losses by this strates. great man, attempted to bribe him. Where- CYATHUS. A fmall Veffel, wherewith fore they fent him Deputies, who found him they took the Wine out of a larger Veffel. at Table fitting upon a form, and eating some | The Cyathus contained an ounce and a half of Turnips in an earthen Dish: whereupon they liquor.

him, or by some contribution of money ; loffered him a rich present of Plate. But he rather command rich men, than to be over-

CURSOR, a Courrier, fuch a one as

Curforem fextâ tibi, Rufe, remiffimus borâ.

facrificing was over, which were called Agapa. active youth, was chosen for a Courrier, and C U R I O. The Priest or Curate of each that in three days he arrived at Pella, having Cyrus was the first inventer of them, and fer-The Popish Curates have a great Analogy tied Post-horses from place to place, with a Post-master, to receive and take care of the Xerxes was the first that established them after CURTIUS QUINTUS, A Roman duction of any particular thing, than other After the Curie's Death, the Curie chofe Cities, and that which made her fo famous. themselves their Curio, as it was granted them was the brave men that she brought up: by Romulus, and then presented him to the and that the Gods demanded but a Roman to great Cario to be confirmed by him. The expiate for that prodigy, and that he offered Christian Churches formerly chose their Cu- himself freely to lay down his life to fill up that Abyls. Afterthis Speech Curtius put on CURIO MAXIMUS, The great his Arms, and riding upon his Horse, he was called fince the Curtism Lake.

Conful, who triumphed over the Sammites appointed to prevent any deceit in the deliand Sabines during his Confulship. The Sam- vering Tickets for the election of Magi-

CYBELE. The Daughter of Calus, Sifter and Wife to Saturn, who begot Jupiter. Fabulous Antiquity gave her many names, fometimes the is call'd the mother of the Gods, Rhes, Cybele, Dindymis, Berecynthia, Pesimuntia, &c.

our Mother, because God gave it to men to bols, and shake the head; because the Priests be their Palace, as Heaven is his own.

honoured in Phrygia: She took from thence Pine-trees confecrated to her. most of her names; Cybile, Dindyma and Ida | She is also called Maja, i. e. Mother or places the has got her different names.

makes people run mad, from the Greek word Majestas.

nuBissir, agere in furorem.

name comes from Fpa, tora, by a transposition like that of noz in dip, acr. The Greek word " tea, terra, comes plainly from the Hebrem Dress, which fignifie the fame thing, and Rhea might be directly derived from it.

Dindymia. She had this name from a Mountain in Phrygia or Trosder, called Dindyma, ferent from Ops, and tis one of the names of where she was particularly worshipp'd, and Dians, among the Greeks, because she helps from whence her Feasts and Ceremonies were women in labour. King T. Tatius built her a brought to the Greeks and Romans.

Idea, because of Mount Ida in Phrygia where the was likewife adored.

name, near the River Sangaris, or from the dans ut mater. Mountains of that name, as Fulgentius relates.

to be the Statue of Cybele; or because the " place where the Phrygians folemniz'd the feast " of this Goddess was call'd Peffmur, on the banks of the River Gallus. The Romans having conquer'd this Country, were advis'd by the Oracle, that if they could transfer to Rome the Goddess of Pessions, their Empire should be raised to a soveraign degree of greatness: whereupon they fent a famous Embally to the Magistrates of that Country, to ask them leave to bring her to Rome, which was granted them: and they carried that Deity (which was but a nasty, rough and unpolish'd Stone) on board of their Ship, and brought her to Rome : as Ovid fays, Est moles nativa : loco res nomina fecit ; Appellant saxum, pars bona montis ea est. Faft. I.v. v. 150.

CYBELE, is derived either from the Greek Pliny fays that the Earth is rightly call'd word zußißeir, and zußisch, i.e. to make Gamof this Goddess, called Corybantes, Datlyli The Pagans called her the Mother of the Idei, Curetes and Gelli, danced and shook Gods, meaning by those Gods those who their heads like mad men on the day of the had been men; and honoured her under the feast; or this word comes from the place calname of Rhea and Cybele: She was principally led Cybele, or in fine from a little Grove of are Mountains of Phrygia; Bereconthia, Peffi- Nurse. This word is common both to the mu, Andira are Towns of Phrygia; Mygdonia is Greeks and Latins: and in all likelihood is a a little Country : and from these several Greek word, and signifies a Nurse, which is the Earth. But those that will have it a Latin She was not only called Cybele, as Faustus word derive it from Majus, which is the same says, but also Cybibe; because, says he, she with Magnus, from whence comes Major and

The Romsus honoured the Earth by the Rhia is derived either from peir, to run, names of Tellus and Tellumo, Tellus was the febecause of the rains and celestial influences, minine name, and Tellumo the masculine, and that make the earth fruitful; or because of so it was a God and Goddess. St Austin rethe continual flowing of feeds and generati- lates to this purpose what Varro says on this ons of all terrestrial natures; or rather this subject : "Thersame Earth has a double vertue,a Masculine virtue to produce Seeds, and a Feminine vertue to receive and nourish them; from the latter she was called Tellus. and from the other Tellume.

The Romans called also the Earth Ops, because of her power to give help. Opis is dif-Temple under the name of the Goddess Ops.

They gave her also the name of Smunting, as much as to fay with the , terra mater, Bereignihia, from a Castle of Phrygia of that Plate derives this name from diderais untag, St Auflin, in the 7th Book, ch. 24. de Civi-Pessonuntis, from the Town Pessonus; or, as tore Dei, relates the explanation that Varro Heredian says, because a Statue fell formerly gives of all the mysterious particulars of the in the fields of Phrygia, which was thought worship of Cybele or the Earth. "She is called, fays he, the mother of the Gods; the Drum which is ascribed to her, is the Figure of the Globe of the Earth; the Turrets that she carries over her head, represent the Towns; the Seats that furround her, shew that she only stands still. while all things are in motion round about her ; the Eunuch Priests who attend her. denote that to get Corn and Seeds the Earth must be manured, because all things are to be found in her Bosom; their agitations and motions before their Goddels, teach Husbandmen that they must not lye still, because they have always something to do; the found of Cymbals denote the noise of " are made of Brais, because they were for- on a Drum, with this Motto Meter Denne, merly of that Metal, before Iron was found. This Goddels is also represented with a and barren, but may be manured. Besides, Head, and has two Lions under her Arms. Tellus having many Names and Sisnames, the CYCLOPES, The Cycleges, a race of " and green Turf.

Mother; whereas the Sun and Stars are con- | derbolt, made by these Gyeleper.

fidered as the Father thereof which were always performed with fury and venge the death of his Companions, whom transport of mind. The fury of the Priests the Cyclopes had eaten. of Cybele was the voluntary agitation of Fanatick Men, who made a great noise and tumult, by the Priests of Baal, related in the Book of the same order. Kings. Plany tells that the Priests of Cybele used to cut off the marks of their Sex with a Knife, made of Medicinal Earth, found in the Island land Weeks, every Day of the Month is markt of Samos, and that they run in no danger of in the Calendar with its Cypher, and one of their Life, when they made use of that fort of these seven Letters A, B, C, D, E, F, G. The

There is an old Marble at Rome, cut in honour of the great Mother of the Gods, with Circle to the end. the figure of that Goddels crown'd with a with the other some East of Corn: She sets upon a Chariot drawn by two Lyons, attended by Atys, who holds a Ball in his Hand, and leans upon a Pine-tree, for this Tree was con-tecrated to her.

There are yet three Medals to be feen where Cybele is otherwise represented. One is of the Emperor Severus, where the is represented holding with one hand a Scepter, and with it ends with the same day of the Week with the other a Thunder-bolt, and her Head co- which it began; and so the following Year. vered with a Turret: She rid upon a Lyon flying through the Air. The other Medal is of the Emperor Geta, stampt after the same lows, that A, which answers always the first manner, with this Inscription Indulgentia Augufforum. The third is of Julia, who represents | Year, (for which reason 'tis called the Domithe Mother of the Gods crown'd with Tur- nical Letter) it will note the Monday in the rets, attended by two Lions, and fitting upon following Year, and G will note the Sunday, a Throne, the holds with her right hand and to forward.

the Instrument of Husbandry; the Cymbals la branch of Pine-tree, and lays her left hans

The tame and untied Lion gives us to ungreat many Breafts, to flew that the feeds deritand, that there is no Land fo wild and Men and Beafts, and carries a Turret on her was taken for several Deities. They think, sierce and haughty Men, who have but one " favs he, that Tellus is the Goddess Opr, because Eye in the middle of their Forehead. Poets " fhe mends, and grows better by Labour; have given this Name to some Inhabitants of "the Mother of the Gods, because the brings Sicily, whom they feign'd to be Pulcan's Affish-"forth a great many things; the great Mo- ants in the making of Jupiter's Thunder-boles, "ther, because she produces Food; Prostrpina, they made also the Arms of Achilles and Amen. " because Corn comes out of her Bosom ; They were so named, because they had but " Vefla, because she cloaths herself with Grass one round Eye in the middle of their Forehead. They are the Sons of Heaven and Earth. This is the Phylical Explication of the most as Hefied tells us, or of Neptune and Amphirite, particular things Poets and Historians have as Euripides and Lucian fay. Those of mest feigned concerning Cybele, fo much reverenc'd note among them are Polyphemus, Bromes, Steby the Greeks and Romans. By all these names ropes and Pyracmon. Apollo kill'd them with his they meant the same Goddels, wie the most Arrows, to revenge the death of his Son Elaeffeminate part of the world, which is like its lapin, whom Jupiter had kill'd with a Thun-

Poets fax also, that Polyphemus was Shepherd Strabe informs us of the greatest part of the to Neptune, and Galatea's Lover, and that Ulif-Ceremonies used in honour of this Goddess, Jer put out his Eye with a Fire-brand, to re-

CYCLUS SOLIS, The Cycle of the San or of the Dominical Letters, is a revoluand cut their Bodies with Knives, so that these tion of 28 Years, which being expired Sacrifices of Cybele, were like those performed the same Dominical Letters return again in

To understand this well, it must be observed, that the Year being composed of Months first Letter begins with the first Day of the Year, and the others follow in a perpetual

Wherefore these Letters might be unalter-Turrer, holding with one hand a Drum, and able, to denote every Holy-day or every Day of the Week, as they are in respect to the Days of the Months, if there was but a certain and unvariable number of Weeks in the Year ; and as A marks always the first of Janurry, B the 2, C the 3, fo A should mark always Sunday, B. Munday, &cc. But because the Year is at least of 365 Days, which make up 52 Weeks and a Day over; it happens that begins again, not with the same Day, but with the next to it : And from thence it folof January, having noted the Sunday for one every four Years there is a Leap-Year, which at the same day.

has one Day more, two things must needs CYCNUS, A Swan, a Bird living in cal Letters, one of which is made use of from when he is young. Ovid me the 12th Book of the first of January to the 25th of February, his Metamorphosis, says that Cycnus was King of and the other from that Day till the end of Liguris, and kin to Photom, who for the grief the Year. The reason of it is plain, for of his death was changed into a Bird of his reckoning twice the 6th of the Kalends, the name. Letter F which notes the Day, is also reckoned twice, and so fills up two Days of the they are at the point of death, and then they Week: From whence it follows, that the fing very melodiously. Tully in his Tulculans Letter that till then had fallen upon Sunday, tells us, that Swans are dedicated to Apolls the falls then but upon Minday, and that the fore- God of Divination, who being fentible of going Letter by retrograding comes to note their approaching death, rejoice and fing with Sanday.

that having thus two Dominical Letters every of Amber or the Swans. fourth Year, the Circle of these Letters doth not end in feven Years as it would do; but in four times feven Years, which is 28. And this is properly called the Cycle of the Sun. which, before the correction of the Kalendar, began with a Leap-Year, whereof the Domi-

nical Letters were G. F.

of th. Moon. It was no less difficult to deter- "deed, sometimes they saw Swans upon the mine by a certain Order, the Days of the "Eridanus; but that their finging, or rather New Moons in the course of the Year. To: "fcreaming, was not more grateful than that this purpose a great many Cycles were propo- " of other River-Fowls. fed, which afterwards Experience shewed to CYDIPPA, A Noble and Beautiful be falle, and they were obliged to receive this Lady, whom Acontius lov'd and married by an Cycle of 19 Years, Invented by Methon of A- Artifice; for his Birth not permitting him to thens, called the Golden Number, to make the pretend to fo great a March, he wrote thefe Lunar Year agree with the Solar; for at the words upon an Apple, I take my Oath by the end of them the New Moons returned again Mysteries of Diana that I will be thy Wife: then on the same Days, and the Moon began again he let fall this Apple at the Feet of Cydippa; her course with the Sun, within an Hour and who took it up, and read what was written fome Minutes or thereabouts. This Number upon it, and fo engag'd herfelf thereby to was called the Golden Number, either for its make these words good, for whenever she deexcellency and great use; or because, as some sign'd to marry another Man, she fell dangefay, the Inhabitants of Alexandria fent it to the roufly ill, which the imputed to Diana's, an-Remans in a Silver Calendar, where these ger, and to appeale her she married Acontrus. Numbers from 1 to 19 were fet down in Ovid in his Epistles of Acentius and Cydippa. Golden Letters. This Number has been cal- CYLINDRUS, A Cylinder, a folid led the great Cycle of the Moon, or Decembersma- body extended in length, equally round, the lu, and erradenarnols, of 19 Tears; or Me-extremities whereof are equal Circles. Archithemicus from the Name of its Author. This meder has writ an excellent Book upon the Cy-Golden Number has been of great use in the lender. Petit has made a Treatise of the A. Calendar, to shew the Epacts and New Moons, rithmetical Cylinder, called Rabbilly, which ever fince the Nicene Council ordered that are Fillets of Past-board fet in order upon Bafer should be kept the first Sunday after the a Cylinder, that is easily turned about. This Full Moon of March.

However, this Cycle was not fettled every man, where, according to the same manner in the CYMBALA, Cymbals, This word Calendar; for the Western Christians, called comes from the Greek κύμβαλος, i. e. hollow, be-

'Tis plain, by what has been faid, that if Golden Number 1, on the first day of Tanuathe Year had but 365 Days, this Circle of Do to of the first Year: But the Christians who minical Letters, should end in seven Years by Inhabited Afia, under the name of Christians retrograding G, F, E, D, C, B, A. But because of Alexandria, placed the Golden Number 3.

or about the Waters, very fine to behold, with First, That the Leap-Year has two Domini- a long and straight Neck, very white, except

'Tis faid that Swans never fing but when more harmony than before. Incian on this The second thing to be observed is, that account laughs at the Poets, in his Treatise

"I also expected, says he, to have heard " the Swans warbling all along the Eridanus, " having learn'd that the Companions of A-" pollo had been there changed into Birds, who ftill retain their finging, for a token of " their excellency in Musick. But this I found as fabulous as the rest; for inquiring of the CYCLUS LUNARIS. The Cycle " People thereabouts, they told me, that in-

Invention is owing to Natier a learned Scatch.

Latins, imitating the Hebrews, reckon'd the cause they were made like two little Porringers of Copper or Brais, and for that reason ! were fometimes called only Era. These extraordinary Beauty, who was not to be Cymbals were found, as we may see by the comforted for the death of a Stag, that he Figures that we have of them, and by this verse of of Propertius.

Qua numerofa fides, quaque era rotunda Cy a Cypress, which is carried in Funeral

. calls them Acctabula, i. e. a hollow piece, as Persians. He subdued the Affrians, took Bathe concavities of the Bones, that receive bylon, made war against Crafus King of Lydia. the head of another Bone, and are therefore and took him prisoner. He set at liberty called Acetabula, the Box of the Bones. St the Jews, who were captive in Babylen, and Austin, upon the 101 Pfalm fays, that Cym- fent them again into their own Country, unbals must touch one another to make a der the conduct of Zorobabel, with order to found, and that antient Authors compare rebuild the Temple of Jerufalem. This hasthem often to the Lips. Fulgentius in the first pened two hundred years after their captivi-Book of his Mythology tells us, that the two ty, as it was forecold by Isaiah and Eldras. Lips are like Cym Is that form the founds, But this Prince being at War with the Soyand the Tongue like the bow of a Musical thians, and Massagetes, he was slain with two Instrument, that cuts and divides them.

Isidorus Pelutions having compared the Pfalterion, the Cythara, the Drum the Strings and the Organs, used in ancient Ceremonies, with feveral parts of the Body, compares alto Cymbals to the Lips, because they form founds, by preffing and striking one against the other like Cymbals.

Cymbals by a name that feems very difficult | according to what Paufaniae fays, Cythara and to be understood.

Disce etiam duplici genialia nablia palma Verrere.

they used Cymbals at Weddings, and other Divertions. This Instrument being composed of two separated pieces, several Authors call it by names in the plural number. 25 Petronius, Intrans Cymbalifiria & concrepans ers. A woman coming in, and playing on a Cymbal.

CYNOSURA. The name by which the Grecians call the little Bear. It signifies Does-tail. 'Tis the nearest constellation to our Pole, confifting of feven Stars, four of Thebes, confecrated to Apollo and the Mules: them are in a square Figure like the four Wheels of a Chariot, and the three others in were celebrated the Orgia, or Feasts dedicaa long Figure like the beam of a Cart; whence the Country-people call that Star the Chariot, and from one the number of these Seven Stars, our Pole, and all that are of Heaven to the Æquinoxial Line, are called Septentrional.

CYNTHOS. A Hill in the Isle of Deles, covered with very thick Trees, where Latena brought forth Apollo and Diana, and upon that account Horace calls him Cynthius.

CYPARISSUS, A young man of had killed a hunting, and would murther himfelf; whereupon Apollo changed him into a Tree called after his name Cypariffus, a pomps, and confecrated to dead men. CYRUS. The Son of Cambyfes, who Caffodorus, who has described Cymbals, transferr'd the Empire from the Meder to the hundred thousand men in an ambush laid by Queen Tomyris, who cut off his head, and threw it into a veffel full of blood, with this invective, "Satiate thy felf with Blood, which thou hast so much thirsted after.

CYTHARA. A Musical Instrument with strings, of a triangular figure, which was played upon with a bow, as it is descri-Ovid, in the 3d Book, de arti amandi, calls bed in a Letter attributed to Hierarymus. And Lyra were two instruments, and Mercurius was the inventer of the Lyra, and Apollo of the Cythere. Yet most of the Ancient Poets confound these two Musical instruments, because they are very like one another. For He gave them this Epithet genialia, because Cythara was of a triangular figure, and the Lyra after the form of two opposite SS. There are fome Statues and Medals whereon Apollois represented with the Lyra in his hand, and fometimes with the Cythara.

CYTHERA. An Island in the Ægem Sea, where the Goddess Venus was drove ashore in a Sea-shell, and there the Inhabitants built her a magnificent Temple, from whence Venus was call'd Cytherea.

CYTHERON. Mount Cytheren neat called upon that account Cytherides. There ted to Bacchus.

D. The fourth letter of the Alphabet, called by the Hebrans Daleth, by the Gruks Delta, and the Romans D. This letter is likewife the third conforant, which is often pronounc'd like a T; for 'tis properly but a diminution of the T, according to what Quintilian favs. Wherefore some learned men in the Greek tongue pronounce the Tau as a Deltaafter the v, and pronounce wayra, as if it were written wards; which may be an accentable foftning in the prenunciation, tho ris not a fault to fay otherwife. In the Latin tongue the D and the T have a great affinity, and areoften chang'd one for another, as de time after Miner being displeased at him, put for Ad. And Quintilian laughs at those who him into the same Labyrinth with his Son scruple to write indifferently, one for the learn, but he made himself and his Son other, fet for fed, haus for hand, and others, to Wings, which he fastned with Wax, and so be feen in antient Inscriptions.

D. is also a Numerical Roman Character. which fignifies five hundred : because D is that the Sun melted the Wax of his Wings, the half of a Gothick M, that makes a Thoufand. If there is a stroke over D, it stands for frue thoufand. there for

D was formerly made use of instead of the Letter P, as in the antient Infeription, Denates for Penates.

D. alone fignifies Decius, Divus, Diis, &c. DACRYMAE, is often written by Livy instead of L A CR Y M Æ, tears; from the Greek word Saney or Santun lacryme.

DACTYLI ID ALL Cybele having brought forth Tupiter and June at one Birth. the flory tells us, that the only thew Jane to Sames, and gave Jupiter to the Guretes or Corybantes to be nurfed up by stealth, because his Father would have devoured him. The Corpbanter, left the crying of the little Jupiter should discover him, invented a kind of a forced to fly from Athen, having been condance which they called Dattyli, where they met one another. firiking upon little Brafs Shields with measured intervals. And this noise hindred Saturn from hearing the crys of the Potters, and Turners Wheel, with all his Son.

Lucian favs, that the Datili Idai, having received the God Mars from the hands of Jum, being yet a Child, they taught him dancing before the exercise of Arms, as if the dancing was a prelude of the War.

and renders the word Fir, which figuifies and begot Minataurs.

a Torch, by the word Lamp. Yet fome ancient Authors make a distinction betwire Lamps and Torches. Trebellius Pellis in the life of the Emperor Galitaur, gives an account of a procession, where the people carried Torches and Lamps, cum cereis facibus, O lampadibus pracedentibus Capitolium petunt : but it must be observed, that the Torches of the Ancients were not made like our Flambeaus, for they had no wick; and a great many of them were Lamps fet in the end of a Stick, or some Pitch put to the end of a Bundle.

DEDALUS, An Athenian, whom Mercury made famous in Mechanicks. He fled from Athens into Crete, where he went into the fervice of King Mins. There he . made the Labyriath with so many waysturning and winding about, that men who had got once into it, could never get out. Someflew away. Icarus flew fo high, and to near the Sun, contrary to his Fathers advice and he fell down into that Sea, which was ever fince called after his name, the Icarian Sea. Dadalus flew fafely to Sardinia, and from thence to Came, where he built a Temple to Apollo.

Diederus Siculus enlarges the Hiftory or Fable of Dedalus, and favs, that Dedalus was the Son of Micio an Athenian, and the most ingenious Artificer of his age for Mechanicks, and invented the Plummer, the Augur, the Rule, and many other Tools for the perfecting of that Art. He was the first also who in Statues expressed all the parts of Humane Body, in their natural Scituation, which gave birth to a report that he gave motion to them. Notwithfranding he had got a great name by his works, yet he was demned to dve by the Arespagus, for the death of Talus his Nephew, whom he killed out of jealoufy, because he had found out Tools fit for the perfection of that Art. He retired then to King Minus in Crese, who had married Paliphae, one of the Daughters of the Sum This King Mines offering one day a Bull in facrifice to Neptune, kept a very fine one, and facrificed a leffer in his AAAOTXOE, Daduchus, aGreek word that place; wherenpon the Gods grew angry. fignifies Lamp-bearer. Hesichius explaining this and inspired his Wife with an immoderate word Salouy G; which was the name for- love for that Bull; and to enjoy him, Dedemerly given to the Torch-bearer of the God- las made a wooden Cow, wherein Palishae dels Cerer, explains it by that of Lamp-bear, putting herself, plaid the Beast with that Bull, to the Fable. Perhaps allo Palphae, having heard the other Discourse of the Celestial thors afcribe to Dedalist the invention of the his having made Wings for himself to get out dition.

Diederar Sicular continuing chat History, fays, affiftance of a Prince, called Thomas, with whom his Wife Pospher was in Love, and enjoy'd hain by the help of Deduke, who far voured it; but the King! having discover'd the Intreague, they flew all away with Tan- part therein. By this word Demons, tis faid. me on hoard his Ships, to wood the Anger of St. Juffin underflands the Tienn and Giants. the Prince.

Philocherus fave., that the Minateurus was nothing elfe, but a cruel and bloody Officer of King Mines, called Trans; and this King having instituted Funeral Fights in remembrance and Women. of his Son Andreger, Towns did oversome all fuch who prefented themselves to fight, and got the prize, which was a Tribute of some Children, that Mines exacted of the Athenians Thefau overcame him, and freed the Athenian from that unnatural Tribute.

DEMON, Saipen. Genile an Angel Aute. This word in the Hely Scripture, is always taken for the Devik or a bad Genine Applicate gives us a fhort definition of the nature of Damons, and relians that they have a rational Soul, a Body of Air, and that they are everlaiting, tho they are obnouious to the fame palisons with Men. And that the Predictions, Augurs, Divinations, Answers of Oracles, Dreams and Magick Performences belong to them. He pietends that they carry Mens Prayers to the Gods; and bring to Men the Payons they obtain'd from them-He has written a whole Book of Senere his God, or Secrete: his Devil, according to Sc Auflin. He gives an account of the Opinions of the Platonick Philosophers; who divided Intellectual Names into three Orders, viz. Gods, Men and Demons; i.e. of Inhabitants of Heaven, Earth and Air. They faid that Damons were Immortal like the Gods, but were obnoxious to Passions like Men, and loved the filthy Diversions of Theatres and the Fables of the Poets.

Callimus has handled at large all Questions relating to Demons in his Conferences, where to her Lap through the Roof, and got her

Lucian thus unfolds this Bable. "I fancy, I he shews that there are Damons of fevent favs he. Dadaha and his Son were learned kinds; fome called Fami, who love to play in Aftrology, and that the one having puz- and laugh with Men, but do them no harm: zled himself in that Science, gave occasion others delight in hurting Men, and drawing them into all kind of Crimes. He tells me that Damons were formerly Angels, whom Bull, and of other Stars, became emmour'd God created before Corporeal Beings; ber with his Doctrine, whereupon the Poets revolting against the Soveraign Power feigned that the was fallen in love with a they were precipitated into the Air, which is Bull, which the enjoy'd by his means. Au- full of them; that God out of his goodness and mercy has not perimitted that we fliould Porters Wheel, the Plammet and the Sails fee chem, left the terror, example and cont. for Ships; and this gave birth to the Fable of gion of their Grimes Bould draw us into yes.

D A N

St. Jaffin fays, that God having created the Angels, lonie of them forfook the Liw of that the Cretique, refusing to obey Nime, after their Lord, and were taken with a browth the death of his Father Aliene, he begg'd the puffion for Women, and begot the Dements afterwards these rebellious Angels and the Demons, brought uncleanness and wars upon the Earth, and that Poets having described thefe Wars, have introduced Japiner afting the whom Idolatrous Nations have worthipped as their Gods, and many of the Fathers have been of the fame opinion with Juffin, this they were begot by the difobedient Angels Athenageras has followed Justin's steps. Yet be has exprelly observed, that Giants were begotten by the Apostate Angels and Women. and were called Demons or Genius's, and that the Poets were not ignorant of it.

The Christian Religion teaches us, that Demoss are spiritual things, who in the person of Lacifar the first Angel were precipitated inso Hell, because he would equal himself with Doubtless the Pagens had some knowledge of the Books of Miles, and have made Fables of what is faid in those Books of Angels and Damens.

DAGON, An Idal of the Philiffing, mentioned in the Book of Kings. Some Authors fay, that its uppermost part was like the Body of a Man, and its andermost like a Fish : The Hobrew word Dog fignifies a Pith ; yet it mell be greated that Digits may come from Digital i. e. Wheat: And Phile in Enfebine has tendered the word Dogon by that of Ziral framessum as framensi molesi

DANAE, The Daughter of Acrifice King of the sigious, who being brought to Bed of a Son, her Pather chipe her with her new born Child into a Cheft, and cast them into the Sea, because the had lost her Virginity : He had shut her up close in a Brazen Tower lest she should be feen, but Japiter changed himself into a golden Shower, and dropt inwith Child. King Acrific performed this act of cruelty, because the Oracle had foretold that he should be slain by a Son of his Daughter. Danas did not refuse to dye, provided her harmless Child should be spared; har unmerciful Acrifiu, who could not be moved neither with Prayers nor Tears, put away the young Babe, who firetched out his arms to him, as if he had implored his affiftance. The Cheft was caught in the Fifhermens Net near the life of Seripher, and both the Mother and the Child'gor fafe ashore.

A N A K H, Jaram A small Coin that the Greeks put into the mouth of dead Bodies, to pay their passage in Charen's Ferry-boat, cal-led fo from Tois Savaeis, i. e. of the dead. It was an ebelus, worth about one Penny and one Farthing. Euripides calls that piece of for their Town was confect ated to Proferping. Silver the honour of the dead, every Tsuas, whereforethey were terried over gratis, because Charen refused to carry over the Serwherewith to pay the Ferry-men. Ariftophatimating, that if a dead man pay one obelas for his passage, a man who is alive ought to better, in not giving them any at all, that not murther Lycens her Husband. they might be constrained to fend them 'back to life again. The same Lucian introduces in another place, Charm and Menippas dicouring thus on the matter.

Char. Pay the Ferry-man, firrah. Menip. thing shall thou get. Char. Come, come a penny for your passage. Menip. How! would'st thou have Money from one that has none? Char. Can any man want a penny ? Menis. I want it. Char. Sirrah, I will for you, with this Staff. Char. How! must I have nothing then for ferrying you over? trouble of conducting them. Char. Pay me, have brought fome. Menip. And grant I did know it, could I hinder dying? Char. What ! Shall you be the only person to boast having passed in Charen's Ferry for nothing? Menip. How! fay ye, for nothing ; have I not drudged and tugged at the Oar and Pump, without molefting thee with my lamentations as others have done? Char. That is nothing at all to your fare. Menip. Restore me then to life again. Char. Ay, to be beaten by Eacus, I thank ye? Menip. Leave me then at reft. Cher. If I ever catch you again in my clutches. Memip. There is no returning hither twice.

Strabe fays that the Inhabitants of Herminte, a Town of Meres, did not put this obeler in the mouth of their dead, as other Greeks did,

DANAIDES. The Daughters of Dagian Lake, the dead men, who had nothing naus, old Belur his Son, and Egyptur's Brother. The Poet tells us, that Dansus was obner confirms that custom ; for he introduces liged to marry his fifty Daughters to his Bro-Bacchus inquiring of Hircules, who descended thers Sons, who were like in number ; but into Hell, how much they paid for their he ordered them all to murder their Huspaffage; and he answers them two sheli, in- bands upon the Wedding night, to prevent the death he was threatened with by the Oracle. All of 'em obeyed his barbarous orpay two oboli. Lucian laughs at that cuffom of der, except only one, who was fruck with a the Greek, in his Dialogue of Mourning. Just horror of that Crime. It is feigned that They put, fays he, a piece of Silver into they were all sentenced in Hell, as a punishthe mouth of those that dye, to pay the ment of their Crime, to fill a Tub full Ferry-man, without confidering whether of holes with water; but Hypermnefire was exthat Money be current in that Region : empted from the punishment, because she besides, I should think they would do much had no share in their guilt, for she would

DANAUS, The Son of old Belus, and Egyptur's Brother, who drove away Stenelur out of the Kingdom of Arger, where he reigned five years. Pliny relates, that he was the first who made use of Ships to cross over Bawl as long as thou wilt, the Devil a far- from Egyps into Greece. He had fifty Daughters, whom he used very severely, forcing them to work with their own hands, and matried them to the Sons of his Brother Egyptus, who were also fifty in number. Pausanias tells us, that Danear built a Temple to Acur thy throat, or I will have my Money. polls, firnamed Lycienu, either from Licia, or Menig. And I will crack your Fool's crown the Greek word Aug G. i.e.a Welf, or from AURA light; wherefore Homer calls him AURHEDAPATHS, begetting light. Once he came Menip. Since Mercury brought me hither, let to Argus to dispute with Gelamor, the Son of him pay you your fare, if he will. Mercury. Stenelus, about the Kingdom, and having re-That would be a fine thing indeed? I ferred the controverly to the people, it was should pay for the dead, after I had the put off to the next day. Burthe next morning by break of day a Wolf croffing the or otherwise you shall not budge from Country, fell among a herd of Cattle, that hence. Menip. Pull then thy Boat ashore; were feeding along the Walls, and assaulted but what course canst thou take to make a strong and vigorous Bull. The Inhabime pay thee, seeing I have no Money ? | rants went upon the Walls, and stood there Cher. You know well enough you was to to fee the event of the fight, and afcribed

Danaus to the Wolf. The Bull was overcome, and the Wolf victorious, whereupon and not his Wife : Others tell us that Bias the Inhabitants adjudged the Kingdom to Danaus, who thought that Apollo had fent this Wolf on purpose to favour his right, who built him a Temple for an acknowledgement of his good offices.

DAPHNE, Daughter of the River Peneus, according to the Fable, who was beloved and courted by Apollo, but had rather be changed into a Laurel or Bay-tree, than to yield to his violent pursuits.

DAPHNE, The Daughter of Tireflas was also one of the Sybils, as Diodorus tell us, 1. 4 c. 6. Chrystopus calls her Sybilla Delphica; because after the destruction of Thebe, the Argives fent her to Delphi, where she learned the Art of Divination. Paufanias calls her Herephila, she lived a long time before the War of Troy; fhe foretold that Helens should be brought up at Sparts, for the ruin of Afia and Burope, and that for her fake the Greeks should destroy the City of Trey. The Inhabitants of Deler pretend that she has made Hymns in word to a Nymph whom he loved, upon pain of losing both his Eyes in case of fallehood, he afterwards fell in love with another and was ftruck blind.

DARDANUS, Son to Japiter and Elettra, who killed Janus his Brother, and then fled away and retired into Phrygia where he married the Daughter of King Tencer, who made him his Partner in the Government of the Country, which was called after their names, fometimes Teneris, and fometimes Dardania. This happened about the time, that according to holy History Tofhus fucceeded Mofes in governing the If raeliter, seven hundred years before the City of Reme was built, and in the time that the Affricas reigned in the greater Alia.

Dardamu left Erichthonius Heir to his Dominions, who had a Son. whose Name was Iver. Great Grand-Father to Prismu, who was King, and changed the Name of his capital City, and called it after his own Name Trey. His Children were Ganimedes, whom Jupiter Role away under the figure of an Eagle, and Affaracus the Father of Capys, who begot Anchifes the Favourite of Venus, who was Eness's Mo-

DEA BONA, The good Goddess whom fome Writers call Fauna, Fatus and Dryas, Wife to Faunus, firnamed Bms Des, because she was so true to her Husband, that the never came out of her apartment, and Gelame's Party to the Bull, and the Party of law no Man besides himself. Yet Parre and Macrobius fay, that the was Found's Daughter. Des was one Flore, Faunu's Wife, who being to much given to drinking, was once whine by her Husband with a Rod of Myrtle. This Chaftizoment reclaimed her, and the became Goddess, and when they offered her Sacrifices they never carried Myrtle, because of the accident that befel her.

All the Reman Ladies affembled to make her a Sacrifice in Mey, at the House of the High Prieft, in the most retired Room; or as Plan earch fays, at the Conful's House. This Sacrifice was made in the Night, and it was required too, that they should have had no company with Men, during nine days before. There was no Man admitted to it, neither any representation of Man or Dog suffered there, and if there was any, they were obliged to cover them with a Vail, as we learn it from Javenal, Satyr 2.

-Ubi velari piltura jubetur Quacunque alterius Sexus imitata figuram eff.

the praise of apolle.

DAPHNIS, Son of Mercury, born in The Wine that was used in this Sacrifice, Sicily . Diedorn tells us, that he was the first which the chief Priestels and the others then composer of Pastorals. Having passed his drunk, was called by them Milk. This Coremony in process of time degenerated into Drunkennels and shameful Debaucheries, which Juvenal describes in the 6th Sarvr.

> Nota Bona secreta Dea, cum tibia lumbos Incitat, & cornu pariter, vinoque feruntur Attonita crinemque rotant ululante Priasa Manades, &cc.

DEA NUNDINA, A Divinity, who presided on the ninth day after the birth of Children, at which time the Romans were us'd to give them a Name.

DECANUS MILITARIS, ALeader who commanded ten Soldiers.

DECEM, The Number Ten, which the Romans figured thus X. We learn from Ovid, that this Number was very much regarded by the Ancient Romans. The Cabalift Hebrews and Pythagorean Philosophers are of opinion, that every number of Ten is full of Divine Mysteries. Remulu, fays Ovid, made up the Year of ten Months only, he compofed his Senate of one hundred Men, (which Number is made up of Ten multiplied by it felf) divided ftill each of the three Tribes itto ten Hundred of Footmen, and ten Tentis of Horsemen. This number is so very perfect that Faith is represented with two right hands join'd together, and each of them being composed of five Fingers, both together make my the number Ten : Numbers also don't go be vond Ten, and after Ten we begin again with called after his Name Tarentilla, which was or the Cube.

perors Life.

the had appeared Coriolanus.

lemnized by Countrymen in the Fields, with viral Laws. Games, Mirth and Feaftings.

The Eleventh of the Month, or the third of of the Ides, they kept the Feast Agonalia.

celebrated the Feast Septimontium, which was ple ; the Patricians carried it this time ; and instituted upon the inclosing the seventh at their Election they were empower'd to Mount within the compass of the City of quit their Office whenever they should think Rome.

The feventeeth day of the Month, or the fixteenth of the Kalends was the Feaft Saturnalis, of which more afterwards in its place.

In this great Feast was comprehended the Feafts called Sigillaria & Angeronalia.

tis the Wife of the Shepherd Faustulus.

The two and twentieth they folemnized the Feast Lararia, in honour of the Gods Lares. The three and twentieth, they made a Feast called Laurentinalia, in honour of Acca Lauren-the Juveniles Luds, and the Country-people comviri were banished, and their State forfeitkept the Feaft of the Goddess Vanues in the ed. They were called the ten Tarquins, be-Field, having then got in their Fruits and cause of their Tyrannical Government. And fown their Corn.

to measure Land. It was called in Greek burn them alive. Then the Consulary Govern-Medres.

DECEM-VIRI, Ten Magistrates cho- ed but two Years. fen at Rome, to govern the Commonwealth in-They were created upon this occasion.

in this Affair, and proposed the famous Law, bus judicandis & hasta pracrant.

Unites, to ten and one make eleven. Plate the occasion of so many Troubles and Divisions teaches us in his Timen, that Ten is composed in Rome. This Law ordered among other of the four first Numbers, one, two, three, things, that five Magistrates should be created. four, which joined together make Ten : that as Livy fays; or ten, as Dienysus Halicarnassitus one represents the Point; two, the Line; three, tells us, to moderate and keep the Consulary the Superficies and the Triangle, which is the Authority in favour with the People. The first plain Figure; and four the Square, and Senare oppos'd this Law; yet it was received the folid Body in length, breadth and depth, afterwards. Three Deputies were immediately fent into Greece to fetch the Laws of Solon. DECEMBER, The tenth Month in the and to inform themselves of the customs of Year of Romulus, confecrated to Saturn. Un- the Commonwealth of Athens, and other the der the Reign of Commedus, this Month was best forms of Government of Greece; for hicalled out of flattery Amazonius, in honour of therto the Romans govern'd themselves by their a Courtezan, whom that Prince paffionately own Customs. These Deputies acquitted loved, and had got painted like an Amazon; themselves of their Trust with great fidelity but it kept that Name but during that Em- and exactness. At their return the Senate created ten Magistrates to govern the Repub-Upon the Kalends of this Month they made lick, and to examine the Laws of Solon, which a Sacrifice to the Feminine Fortune, because being approved of by the Senate, and agreed by the People, were ingraven upon twelve The day of the Nones fell out upon the Tables of Brass, and called them therefore the Feast of Faunus, called Faunalia, which was so- Laws of the twelve Tables, or the Decem-

The first difficulty they met with in the Election of the December, was whether they should be all taken out of the Patrician Body. The thirteenth, or the day of the Ides, they or fome of them out of the Body of the Peo-

They began to perform the functions of their Office A. cccii ab urbe condita, and did govern with fuch moderation and equity, that the Romans thought they lived still in the golden Age of their Fathers; but the following Year the Decemviri, inticed by the sweetness of an absolute Power, made an ill use of their Authority; fo that Appius Claudius one of them, having murthered Lucius Siccius Dentatus a valiant Reman Soldier, and ravish'd Virginia, At the latter end of the Month they had a Maid of an extraordinary Beauty, the De-

the People were so exasperated against them. DECEM-PEDA, A Pearch ten foot long that they demanded them that they might ment was refumed, and the Decem-virgus laft-

DECEM-VIRI, Sc. Litibus judicandis. flead of Confuls, with an absolute Power. Ten Judges established to administer Justice in the absence of the Prætors, when bu-The Tribunes of the People having obser- sied in foreign Wars. Their office became ved for a very long time, that the Magistrates afterwards common; for the making Sale of did always favour the Nobility to the preju- Goods, called Subhaffationes, because they set dice of the People, demanded an equality of up a Pike in the place where the Sale was Laws for both. Tarentius or Tarentillius Arza, made. Theophilus speaking of it says, Sed quid A280.ab urb. cond. shew'd himself very zealous vetat appellatione Decem-virorum intelligi qui liti-

DE-

DECENNALIA FESTA, Festi- ver talted of their Wine, or other Fruits of vals, that the Emperors in the declining times the Earth, before their Priests had offered of the Empire, kept every tenth Year, by of-the Primitie or first Fruits thereof in the of the Empire, kept every cannot be a support of the Empire.

Temples.

The Greek were not left religious than the

the Romans used to inflict on the Soldiers, who Corne had taken the Capital City of his Kinghad quitted their Post, or raised a Mutiny in dom, advised him to place a Guard at the the Camp, or behaved themselves cowardly Gates, left some part of the Booty might be in the Fight; which was practifed thus; carried away, before the tenth of it should be The General affembled the whole Camp, then offered to Japiter. the Tribune brought to him those that were guilty, and impeached them, and reproached that the Greek, after the famous Victory of them with their cowardly Actions and Baleness in the presence of the whole Army; then putting their Names into an. Urn or a Head- | Ships taken from the Phanicians. piece, he drew five, ten or twenty of them, according to their Number; and the fifth, ving subdued Spain and Italy, promised to bethe tenth or the twentieth was put to the Sword, and the others were faved; and this fices. And that Tarquinius Prifess had vowed was called Decimare.

Reman Militia. who to punish whole Legions, quinius Superbus performed the Vow of his when they had failed in their Duty, made Great Grand-Father, and bestowed upon that every tenth Soldier draw Lots, and put him Magnificent Building the tenth part of the to death for an example to the others.

DECIMA, The tenth part of the Fruits of Sinueffe. of an Estate, or other like portion of Goods, which differs according to the custom of pla- duces a Letter of Pifftratus to Solon, wherein ces. They vowed formerly the tenth part he says that the Athemens laid aside the tenth of the Booty got at the taking of a Town, or part of their Revenues for Sacrifices, publick the Spoils of the Enemies to their Gods, as Wants, and the Charges of War. Juno Apollo and Hercules.

cient Romans, being perswaded that they held the tenth part of their Estate? and he anevery thing from the Liberalities of the Gods, Iwers, that it might be because Hercules himnot excepting their own life, offered them a felf confecrated to Rome the tenth part of the portion of their Servants, Fields, Towns, Oxen of Gerron which he was carrying away:

them thanks for their Health.

viffe partem cum diceret Camillus, Pentifices fel- finities. vendum religione populum cenferent : These are the words of Livy, who fays besides, that Ca- who fought a Battle against the Latins, and tenth part, and therefore they must include in it even the ground of the Town that he had took, and its Territory, urbis atque agri capti decimam, que O ipfa voto contineatur.

This Historian relates still the vow of the holy Spring Ver Satrum, that the Senate and the Roman People made in a very dangerous time, when they were afraid of the Carsbagimians and the Gauls. By this Vow they obliged themselves to offer in Sacrifice to Jupiter, the whole increase of their Flocks and Herds. which that Spring should produce. Qued vir attulerit ex Suille, Oville, Caprine, Bovine grege, Jovi fini. Pliny observes that the Romans ne-

DECIMATIO, A nunishment that Romans. Herodotus tells us, that Grafus when

The fame Author relates in another place. Salamina, confecrated the first Fruits of the Spoils to the Gods, and among others, three

Dionyfous Halicarnaffeus fays, that Hereules has frow the tenth part of the Boory for Sacrito build a Temple to Jupiter, June and Miners DECIMARE. A word of the ancient | vs, if he got a Victory over the Sabmes. Tar-Spoils he obtained at the taking of the Town

Diegenes Lacrius in the Life of Solon, intro-

Plutarch proposes this Question. Why at Cenforinus c. 1. de die Nat. fays that the an- Rome many rich Perfons confecrated to Hercules and confecrated them also their Heirs, to give or because he made the Romans free of the Tythes they paid before to the Tufcans; or After a famous Victory, Camillus declared, because they thought that Hercules, who lived that he had promifed and vowed to spelle the very foberly, was pleafed that rich mea tenth part of the Boory, Apellin fe deciman vo- would retreach fome part of their fuper-

DECIUS MUS, A Remes Confal millus protested that he had vowed the whole devoted himself to death, to save the Roman Army. This great Man feeing his Soldiers cowed, and the Remen Legions loft ground, fent for M. Valerius the High Prieft, who being cloathed with his Gown edged with purple colour, called Pratests, he put both his Feet upon a Dart . his Head covered and holding up his Right Hand, pronounced his Vow aloud, the High Priest uttering the words, which he repeated after him: Janus, Jupiter, and Fathers Mars and Quirinus, Bellena, Lares, Domestick Gods, Gods Indigeti, whose power is extended over us and over our Enemies; and ye, Infernal Gods, I call upon you, I adore you, vouchsafe to biels the endeavours of the Roman, Walls, and other publick Edifices, and the 'I devote my felf to the Gods of Hell and num, with two D. D. at the top of them. to the Earth, and with me the Enomies Le- DEDICATIO Templi, and DEDIpoken, he got on Horfeback, and spurr'd ples; we shall here inform you by whom it on his Horse through the thickest Battallions was made, and with what ceremonies. of the Enemy. This Action raifed the cou-Keemy, and obtain a full victory

Gate in the Camp of the Romans

Remails having at first divided the Roman had expelled the Kings. The Temple of people into three Tribes, he appointed Mars, confectated in the War against the at the head of each Tribe a Collonel Gauls, was dedicated in the year 365 by the co? Command it, and afterwards divided Daum-viri, appointed for the keeping of the each Tribe in ten Caria, or Compa- Book of the Spbills. nies, and appointed a Centurion or Captain The Dedication was to be authorized by to Command a hundred men, and a Decurion the Senate and the people, according to the

LES. A Court of Judges or Councellours, to give their confent to it, as Livy and Tully who representing the Senare of Rome in the Itells us. free Towns. They were called Decuriones, These things being exactly observed early because in the times they fent Roman Colo- in the morning, the College of the Pontiffs, nies into the conquered Towns, they choic and other Orders met, with a great Crowd ten men to make up a Senate, and a Court of of People, and many persons of note at the rwo hundred and twenty five pounds Ster- near the Gate with a Pontiff at his fide, to ling per Amum. This Election was made at thew him the ceremonies, and tell him the Decurion then chosen paid his welcom to the quetenestis. This ceremony was expressed whole Body in Money, or a Present, which with these words, Pofern senere, or apprehenwas more or less according to the custom of dere. the place, as we learn by the Emperor Trajahim about that Duty of Entry. The the confecration, which the confecration per-Emperor answers him, that there was no son repeated after him; and the ceremony and that every one must follow the custom of praeunte Pontifice effari, the place. Ulpianus tells us, that the Money was equally divided among the Decurious.

for the benefit of the Town, and the Reve- Green Turf , luftrabatur area, ext. Super cefnues of the Commonwealth. Some of this Re- pitem reddebantur. venue was bestowed for the re-building of the and give them the victory : Strike their reft for maintenance of learned man. They Enemies with fear and death; wherefore pronounced Sentences called Decrets Decaragions and their Confederates. Having thus CARE Temple. The Dedication of Tem-

When a Temple was built, it was to be rage of the Legions, and gave an opportuni- dedicated to some Divinity, and the Dedity to the other Conful Manliss to defeat the cation thereof belonged to fome great Magiftrate, at Confuls, Prætors, Cenfors, Decem-DECUMANA PORTA, The back viri, Duum-viri, Vestal Virgins, and the High Priests in the time of the Common-DECUMATES AGRI, Lands cal- wealth, or the Emperors during the Monarled Server, manured by the meanest fort of the chick Government. The Temple built by Gauls, now called the Dukedom of Wirtemberg. Tarquinius in honour of Jupiter Capitolinus, was DECURIO. An Officer in the Roman dedicated by the Conful M. Haratius Pul-Army, who commanded ten Troopers : for villus, An. 247, some time after the Romans

Law Papyria, made by Pupyrius Tribune of the DECURIONES MUNICIP A- people; and the College of the Pontiffs was

Councellors, called Gvittarum Patret Curialet; appointed place. They furrounded the Tem-Hoursti Municipiorum Senatoret, and their Court, ple with Garlands of Flowers; the Vostal was called Curia Decurimum, and Miner Senatus. Virgins holding in their hands branches of They were chosen almost with the same Olive-tree, sprinkted the outside of the Telmcorremonies as the Senators. And were to be ple with Luftral or Hely-water; then the five and twenty years old, with a Revenue of person who consecrated the Temple drew the Kalends of March. Then the Duum-viri Prayers that he was to make, holding with affembled for that purpose the Court of the one hand the side-post of the Gate, and then Decurious, with the Judge of the Province, and faid thus, Ades, Ades, for example Luculle, were elected by the majority of Votes. The Dum dedice Templum line, at mibi praeatis, postere-

Then the Pontiff holding the Ceremonial the to the young Plin, who had consulted in his hand, pronounced aloud the form of general rule establish'd upon that account, was expressed by these words, Selemnia werba

Afterwards they confecrated the Court of the Temple by facrificing a Beaft, the in-Their office was to take care of all that was wards whereof were laid on an Altar of DECENNALIA FESTA, Festis iver tasted of their Wine, or other Fruits of vals, that the Emperors in the declining times the Earth, before their Priests had offered of the Empire. kent every tenth Year, by of the Primitie or first Fruits thereof in the fering Sacrifices to the Gods, and bestowing Temples.

Largeffes upon the People.

the Romans used to inflict on the Soldiers, who Cyrus had taken the Capital City of his Kings had quitted their Post, or raised a Mutiny in dom, advised him to place a Guard at the the Camp, or behaved themselves cowardly Gares, left some part of the Booty might be in the Fight; which was practifed thus: carried away, before the tenth of it should be The General affembled the whole Camp, then offered to Japiter. the Tribune brought to him those that were guilty, and impeached them, and reproached them with their cowardly Actions and Baleness in the presence of the whole Army; then putting their Names into an Urn or a Headpiece, he drew five, ten or twenty of them, according to their Number; and the fifth, the tenth or the twentieth was put to the flow the tenth part of the Boory for Sacri-Sword, and the others were faved; and this fices. And that Tarquinius Prises had vowed was called Decimere.

Roman Militia, who to punish whole Legions, when they had failed in their Duty, made Great Grand-Father, and bestowed upon that every tenth Soldier draw Lots, and put him Magnificent Building the tenth part of the to death for an example to the others.

DECIMA, The tenth part of the Fruits of Sinueffe. of an Estate, or other like portion of Goods, the Spoils of the Enemies to their Gods, as Wants, and the Charges of War.

Juno Apollo and Hercules.

cient Romans, being perswaded that they held the tenth part of their Estate? and he ans every thing from the Liberalities of the Gods, Iwers, that it might be because Hercules himnot excepting their own life, offered them a felf confecrated to Rome the tenth part of the portion of their Servants, Fields, Towns, Oxen of Gerron which he was carrying away: and confectated them also their Heirs, to give or because he made the Remans free of the them thanks for their Health.

that he had promifed and vowed to spalle the very foberly, was pleafed that rich men tenth part of the Boory. Apollini fe decimam vo- would retrench fome part of their fuperville partem cum diceret Camillus, Pentifices fel- finities. vendum religione populum censerent : These are the words of Livy, who fays belides, that Ca- who fought a Battle against the Latins, and millus protested that he had vowed the whole devoted himself to death, to save the Roman tenth part, and therefore they must include in it even the ground of the Town that he had took, and its Territory, urbis atque agri capti decimam, que & ipsa voto contineatur.

This Historian relates still the vow of the holy Spring Ver Satrum, that the Senate and the Raman People made in a very dangerous and holding up his Right Hand, pronountime, when they were afraid of the Carshaginians and the Gauls. By this Vow they obliged themselves to offer in Sacrifice to Jupiter, the whole increase of their Flocks and Herds. which that Spring should produce. Quod vir attalerit ex Suille, Oville, Caprine, Bovine grege, Jovi fieri. Pliny observes that the Romans ne-

The Greeks were not less religious than the DECIMATIO, A punishment that Romans. Herodeus tells us, that Grefus when

The same Author relates in another place. that the Greek, after the famous Victory of Salamina, confecrated the first Fruits of the Spoils to the Gods, and among others, three Ships taken from the Phanicians.

Dionyfeus Halicarnaffeus fays, that Hereules having fubdued Spain and Italy, promised to beto build a Temple to Jupiter, June and Minere DECIMARE, A word of the ancient vs, if he got a Victory over the Sabmes. Tarquinius Superbus performed the Vow of his Spoils he obtained at the taking of the Town

Diogenes Lacrtius in the Life of Solon, introwhich differs according to the custom of pla- duces a Letter of Piffratus to Solon, wherein ces. They vowed formerly the tenth part he says that the Athemans laid aside the tenth of the Booty got at the taking of a Town, or part of their Revenues for Sacrifices, publick

Plutarch proposes this Question, Why at Gensorinus c. 1. de die Nat. Says that the an- Rome many rich Persons consecrated to Hercules Tythes they paid before to the Tulcans : or After a famous Victory, Camillas declared, because they thought that Hercules, who lived

> DECIUS MUS. A Remen Conful. Army. This great Man feeing his Soldiers cowed, and the Rosen Legions, loft ground. fent for M. Valerius the High Prieft, who being cloathed with his Gown edged with purple colour, called Pratexts, he put both his Feet upon a Dart, his Head covered. ced his Vow aloud, the High Priest uttering the words, which he repeated after him: Janus, Jupiter, and Fathers Mars and Quirinur, Bellena, Lares, Domestick Gods, Gods Indigeti, whose power is extended over us and over our Enemies; and ye, Infernal Gods, I call upon you, I adore you, vouchsafe to blefs the endeavours of the Reman, | Walls, and other publick Edifices, and the 'I devote my felf to the Gods of Hell and num, with two D. D. at the top of them. to the Earth, and with me the Enemies Le-whom and their Confederates. Having thus CARE Temple. The Dedication of Temgoken, he got on Horfeback, and spurr'd ples; we shall here inform you by whom it on his Horse through the thickest Battallions was made, and with what ceremonies. of the Enemy. This Action raifed the couty to the other Conful Mahliss to defeat the Bremy, and obtain a full victory.

Gate in the Camp of the Remans, each Tribe in ten Caria, or Compa- Book of the Spbills. mes, and appointed a Centurion or Captain The Dedication was to be authorized by

LES. A Court of Judges or Councellours, to give their consent to it, as Livy and Tully who representing the Senate of Rome in the Itells us. free Towns. They were called Decuriones, These things being exactly observed early because in the times they fent Raman Colo- in the morning, the College of the Pontiffs, nies into the conquered Towns, they chose and other Orders met, with a great Crowd ren men to make up a Senate, and a Court of of People, and many persons of note at the was more or less according to the custom of dere. the place, as we learn by the Emperor Trajaand that every one must follow the custom of pracunte Pentifice effari. the place. Ulpianus tells us, that the Money Afterwards they confecrated the Court of was equally divided among the Decurious.

nues of the Commonwealth. Some of this Re- pitem reddebantur. venue was bestowed for the re-building of the and give them the victory : Strike their rest for maintenance of learned man. They Enemies with fear and death ; wherefore pronounced Sentences called Derrets Decurio-

When a Temple was built, it was to be rage of the Legions, and gave an opportuni- dedicated to some Divinity, and the Dedication thereof belonged to fome great Magistrate, at Consuls, Prætors, Censors, Decem-DECUMANA PORTA, The back viri, Daum-viri, Vestal Virgins, and the High Priests in the time of the Common-DECUMATES AGRI, Lands cal- wealth, or the Emperors during the Monarled Serves, manured by the meanest fort of the chick Government. The Temple built by Ganir, now called the Dukedomiof Wirtemberg. Tarquinius in honour of Jupiter Capitolinus, was DECURIO. An Officer in the Roman dedicated by the Conful M. Haratius Pul-Army, who commanded ten Troopers : for villus, An. 247, some time after the Romans Remules having at first divided the Reman had expelled the Kings. The Temple of people into three Tribes, he appointed Mars, confecrated in the War against the at the head of each Tribe a Collonel Gault, was dedicated in the year 365 by the col Command it, and afterwards divided Daum-viri, appointed for the keeping of the

to Command a hundred men, and a Decurion the Senate and the people, according to the Law Papyria, made by Pupyrius Tribune of the DECURIONES MUNICIPA- people; and the College of the Pontiffs was Councellors, called Civitatum Patret Curiales; appointed place. They furrounded the Tem-Rumrati Municipiorum Senatores, and their Court, ple with Garlands of Flowers; the Vestal was called Curia Decurionum, and Miner Senatus. Virgins holding in their hands branches of They were chosen almost with the same Olive-tree, sprinked the outside of the Temcorremonies as the Senators. And were to be ple with Luftral or Holy-water; then the five and twenty years old, with a Revenue of person who consecrated the Temple drew rwo hundred and twenty five pounds Ster- near the Gate with a Pontiff at his fide, to ling per Annum. This Election was made at shew him the ceremonies, and tell him the the Kalends of Merch. Then the Dumm-viri Prayers that he was to make, holding with affembled for that purpose the Court of the one hand the side-post of the Gate, and then Decerions, with the Judge of the Province, and faid thus, Ades, Ades, for example Luculle, were elected by the majority of Votes. The Dum dedico Templum hee, at mihi praeatis, poffer-Dewin then chosen paid his welcom to the que tenestis. This ceremony was expressed whole Body in Money, or a Prefent, which with these words, Postem ceners, or apprehen-

Then the Pontiff holding the Ceremonial me to the young Pliny, who had confulted in his hand, pronounced aloud the form of him about that Duty of Entry. The the confecration, which the confecratind per-Emperor answers him, that there was no son repeated after him; and the ceremony general rule establish'd upon that account, was expressed by these words, Salemnia werba

the Temple by facrificing a Beaft, the in-Their office was to take care of all that was wards whereof were laid on an Altar of for the benefit of the Town, and the Reve- Green Turf, lustrabatur area, ext. Super cefinto the Temple with the Pontiffs, and rook the Statue of the God and Goddess to whom the Temple was confecrated, and anointed it with Oyl, and laid it on a Pillow rubbed with Oyl, in templo ipsum quoque prius untione dedicatum ana cum ara & pulvinari collocaba-

After all the ceremonies were over, the Temple was called Augustum, i. e. Augurio Sacratum, and the person who had confecrated it, might have an Inscription containing his name, his qualities, and the year of the confecration fet upon the Temple, as we may fee in the following Inscription.

> Nunc. R. Et Minerva. Sal. Gene. Cobort. III. Brittann. Aram. Et Pl. Felix. Prafett. Ex wate Peluit. L. M. Dedicavit Kalend. Decemb. Gentiano & Ballo Cols.

Taritus relates the Dedication of the Capitol that was made by Vefpaftan's order, Annal.

In clear and ferene weather, they furrounded the Temple with Garlands and Holy-bands, and made those Soldiers whose names were of good omen, go into the Temple, carrying in their hands branches of fuch Trees as were acceptable to the Gods. The where he was presently confirmed by Soldiers were followed by the Vestal Virgins, attended by young Children of both fortune, flew herfelf with her Husbands Sexes, whose Parents were still alive, and sprinkled the place with Spring and Riverwater. Then the Przeor offered the ordinary Sacrifices of the purification, and having laid the inwards of the victims upon Greens, pray'd Jupiser, Juns, and Minerus, and the other Gods, protectors of the Empire, to blefs a work that mens piety was confectating to their glory. Then immediately he tought the Holy bands, that were tied to the Rope, which held the first Stone; and the Priests, and Magistrates, with the whole Senate, the Equestrian Order, and the greatest part of the people hoifed up the Stone in the air with land acclamations, till it was laid on its foundation, where they threw presently many pieces of Gold and Silver, and Metal as it came out of the Mine.

As for the confecration of Christian Churches, some ascribe this institution thereof to Pope Clement, others to Felix, who was Pope in the time of the Emperor Aurelianus, and fome others to Sylvefter in Confantinus's time. However, that institution is very an-

Then the confecrating person came dication of the Temple of Jerusalem, which God had commanded, and in remembrance of the fame, the Ifraeliter kept a Feast every year called Encenia.

DEFENSOR Civitatis. The most confiderable Magistrate after Confuls and Daum-viri. He may be called Syndick, as he is named in the Reman Law, Defensores, fays Arcadius, quos Graci fyndices appellant, pro Republica agebant & conveniebantur.

This Magistrate was chosen out of the number of the Citizens, by the Decurien and the Priesthood, then his Election was confirmed by the Prafettus Pratorio, who delivered him his Letters Parent. This office was first for five years, but afterwards it was reduced to two years.

The Duty of this place was to protect the people both in Town and Country, and to judge of their differences. He had two Officers under him to put his Sentences into execution, and prevent the peoples mutinying, having power to imprison those who should be the authors of any Sedition.

DEJANIRA. The Daughter of Octor us King of Atolia, who married Hercules; but fhe was the cause of his death, having sent him by Licas a garment that Neffas the Centaur had prefentud her, which was dyed with the blood of the Serpent called Hydra, that Hercules had killed : for as foon as he had put it on he fell mad, and threw himself into a bonfire he had made in the Mount Ous. the flames. Dejanira hearing this mis-

DEIDAMIA. The Daughter of Lyamedes King of Serre. In the Court of this King Thetis had his Son Achilles brought up in a Girls habit, to preferve his life, for the Fates faid that he should dye in the siege of Trey. Achilles begot a Son by Deidamia called Parrhus, because his father was called Pyrrha all the time of his difguife.

DELATOR. An Informer of a capital crime or conspiracy, who discovers the whole matter to the King or Magistrates. Tacitus writes, that Informers were very come. mon at Rome. These secret accusers, the plague of families, in the time of Tiberius, inflead of being suppressed by punishments, were encouraged by rewards; for the mon famous were esteemed sacred and inviolable persons, and the others were left by Tiberius to the vengeance of the people.

DELOS. The Island Delas. Neptune toceived an order from Jupiter to stop this floating Island, which had been separated from Sicily by flormy weather, that Latona who eient, being practifed in imitation of the de- was in labour might lye in there. June being highly provoked banished her out of Hea-, who was murther'd in the Temple of Nepsune. ven, and the Earth fwore that the would not and thrown into the Sea; and received Telereceive her; wherefore there remained no machus the Son of Uliffes, who fell into the other place for her, but only that Island, Sea playing on the shore: Wherefore, ever which was not bound by the Oath of the fince, his Father wore the figure of a Dolphin Earth, because it was not then in the World. in his Scutcheon and Signet; and for that Latons was therefore received there, and de- fame reason Lycophron in his Cassandra gives him liverd of Twins Apollo and Diana, the fairest the sirname of Sexogrogues, because he was Children of Jupiter, as Lucian tells us.

DELPHI, A City in Baotia, near Mount Pliny calls Simes. Parnafius. There Apollo had a Magnificent DEMOCRITUS, A Philosopher who spired by Apollo, who gave out Oracles, titting toms, and the Toy of Destiny or Fortune. on a little three-legged Stool, called Tripos or DEMONAX, A Philosopher of the Apollo have not deceived you.

'Cliffs. Dolph. As Arim was very much belo- him very honourably at the publick Charge. 'ved by Periander for the excellency of his DENARIUS, A Roman Penny, to the to fuffer him to make his Funeral Oration, and to fing an Elegy on his Harp; then flouncing into the Ocean, with all the best things he had, the Dolphins throng'd about the Ship, allured by the Charms of his Harmony, faved him, and I my felf carried him upon my back, as far as Tanarus.

Pindar, Herodottus and Pliny, relate the great Ounce. Affection Dolphins bear to Men; and tell us, a flat-nofed Man like the Dolphins, which

Temple, enrich'd with Presents, that were laugh'd at Men and Humane things; and said, fent thither from all parts. In this Temple that there was nothing folid, and all was Vawas a Priestets called Pythia or Pythonissa, in- nity, that a Man was but a concourse of A-

Corting, because it was covered with the skin life of Cyprus, of an Illustrious and Rich Faof the Serpent Pytho; wherefore Virgil fays, mily, but his Mind being yet above his For-Net te Phabi Cortina fefellit, i. e. The Oracles of tune, he forfook all his Wealth to give himfelf to Philosophy. He studied first Humane DELPHINUS, A Dolphin, a great Learning, then Philosophy, but embrac'd no Sea-Fish, with a crooked Back, pleasant to particular Sect, and yet taking what was good the Eyes, of a changeable Colour, according in every Sect, he never determined which of to the several Motions of his Body, which is them he valued the most. He disputed mocovered with very thin Scales. He is a great deftly, hated Vice, bore no ill will to vicious Friend to Man, as Lucian gives us to understand Men, but took care to cure them as Physiciin the Dialogue between Neptune and the Dol- ans do Difeases, without being angry with his ohim. Nepr. I love you Dolphins, for conti- Patients; for he thought that to err, was nanuing your Love and Affection towards tural to Man, but forgiving and correcting Mankind. Dolph. No wonder, Neptune, we was the property of a Wife-man; and warnhave a kindness for Men, tince we were ed his wealthy Friends never to trust to the Men our selves once. Nept. In good earnest, uncertainty of Fortune, neither to be proud I bear Bacchur a grudge for having thus Me-, of their Wealth, which was often the share tamorphiz'd you after his Victory. He of Fools, and encouraged the others to fuffer might in my mind, have contented himfelf, patiently the miferies of this Life, because with fubduing you, as he did other People. neither Men nor Miseries could last long; But pray tell me the adventure of Arion : and that Custom softens the greatest hardships, Now as for Melicerta, I know you wafted and inur'd Men to pain. At last, seeing he him over to Corinth, when he was tumbled was fallen into want, he voluntarily starved 'down with his Mother from off the Scironian himself with hunger. The Athenians buried

'Art, he dwelt commonly with him; but value of feven-pence-half-penny of English when he was become very rich, the Toy Mony. The Romans having for a long time took him in the Crown, to return into his used brass Mony, which they call As quasi own Country, to make a figure there with As, or Libra and Pondo, because it was a pound his Riches. But after he was imbark'd in a weight, began to coin Silver. A. 585, ab urb. 'Ship, the Seamen and people without Faith | cond and coined first the Denarius, which was and Humanity, resolved to throw him marked with the letter X, because it was overboard, that fo they might have his worth ten Affer, and divided into two Quinarii Wealth. But he first of all defired them marked with V, which were fundivided into twoSeftertia, marked with these threeLetters IIS.

In the latter times of the Common-wealth, the Emperors reduc'd the Roman Penny to the weight of a Drachma, viz eight in an Ounce: for 'tis certain, as Pliny and Livy fay, that before that time, it weighed more; for at first they coined fix, then feven Datarii out of an

But there is a difficulty arifing from what that they brought back the Body of Hisford, is faid before, that the Roman Penny was worth ten Affer; for Vitruvius says, that it I have seen in Phanicia, being that of a Wowas of the value of fixteen Affer. To ex- man from the middle upwards, whose lower plain this difficulty, we must understand, that | parts ended in a Fish's Tail. The transforformerly at Rome, each Afr (ten whereof mation of Derceto, the Mother of Semiramis, inmade up a Roman Penny) weighed twelve to a Fish, is a very famous Fable. Ovid men-Ounces; and that afterwards, in the time of tions it in his Metamorphis. the first Punick War, the Common-wealth being then in debt, it was thought fit to lower monies in Funeral Pomps, or a fworn Cryen the Coin, and reduce the As to two ounces, who ordered all things at Funerals, either reand fince that time in the War of Hannibal the lating to the Parade, or the Habits of that Affer were reduced to one ounce; but at the Ceremony. Ulpianus fays, that this Officer fame time the value of the Roman Penny was was a noted Man, receiving his Office from regulated, and then went for fixteen Affes in- the Prince, and was attended by two Liftead of ten, which was the value of the old Ctors and other Officers in Mourning Dreffes. Roman Penny, as Festus and Pliny tells us : And this refolves the Difficulty that arises from what Vitruvius fays.

DENDROPHORI, The College of the Dendrophori is often mentioned in the Ancient Marbles Yet 'tis not well known what ceffary for the Funeral, but undertook the ed are divided upon this account; Salmasius lian. in his Commentaries upon the Life of Caracalla, written by Spartianus says, that the Den- RII, Men who leap from one Horse to drophori were those persons, who, in the Pro- another, at the Horce-races of the Games calceffions made in honour of the God, carried led Circences. From hence the Latins proverbi-Branches of Trees in their Hands, according ally speaking, call inconstant and wavering to the Erymology of the word derdeopords, men, desultorie nature homines. i.e. Tree-bearer : wherefore the Epithet of or Branches of Trees.

Engines called Fabri.

honour of her Mother Dercete, whose Image the Origine of this Ceremony is still aferi-

DESIGNATOR. A Master of Cere-Herace makes mention of him Epift. 7. 1. 1.

Designaturem decorat Listoribus atris.

They not only furnish'd all that was nekind of Men the Dendrophori were. The Learn- Funeral Games and Spectacles, fays Terrul-

DESULTORES and DESULTO.

DEUCALION, A Scythian, the Son Dendrophorus was given to the Silvan God of Prometheus, who reigned in Theffalia, in the in an old Inscription cited by Gruter , time of a great Deluge : For the Greeks relate, because this God is commonly represented that the first Men being cruel and insolent carrying a Branch of a Pine-tree, in the Pro- without Faith, Hospitality and Humanity. ceffions made in honour of Bacchin. And we perished all by that Deluge, the Earth iffuing fee often, in Bafforelieves, where the Bacchanalia out abundance of Waters, which fwell'd up are represented as men carrying little Shrubs | the Rivers, and with the excessive Rains caur Branches of Trees.

The Title of the Threedssian Code seems to the Earth with Water. Deucalion alone refavour this Opinion in the 20th Law. "Tis mained, having got fafe into an Ark with his just, fays the Text, that all the Places that Family, and two Beasts of every kind, who the Dendropheri and other Religious Men a- freely followed him into the Ark both wild mong the Pagans have possessed, and were and tame, without devouring one another, appointed for their Feaftings and distribu- nor doing him any harm. Thus he floated tion of Money, be applied to the Revenues till the Waters were retired, then re-populated of our Houses, having banished the Error Mankind, by throwing stones behind him, that instituted them. According to this which were changed into Men. Pyrrhs his Text Dendrophori was not a Name of a Trade, Wife did the like, and threw Stones behind but of a religious or superstitious Order. How- her, which were changed into Women : this ever, most of the Learned are of a contrary they performed by the advice of Themis. The opinion, which feems very probable, and fay, Inhabitants of that Country inlarge the Story that the Dendropheri were Men, who bought with another Prodigy, and fay, that an Abylis Timber for the War and Warlike Engines: swallowed down all the Waters; and that Wherefore they were commonly joined in Deucalion in remembrance of it, erected an the same Company with those who made the Altar and built a Temple, where a very little Hole remains still. Wherefore the Inhabi-DERCETO, The Mother of Semiramis, tants of that Country and those of Syria. come the was represented half Man and half Fish, twice a year to the Neighbouring Sea, where as Diodoriu Siculus expresly speaks. But Lucian they draw a great quantity of Water, and in his Dea Syria divides her Body otherwise. pour it into the Temple that Deucalion built, Semiramu, fays he, founded that Temple in and this Water runs through the Hole; and bed to Deucalism, in remembrance of that Ac- | cident.

Ovid fays, that Deucalien and Pyrrha escaped from the Flood, and staid in a little Boat on the top of Mount Parnassia, which is above the Clouds and Meteors; that they were both of a perfect Innocency and Holiness: wherefore Jupiter feeing that there were none left of all Mankind but those two persons, put an end to the Deluge, and made the World babitable as it was before.

'Tis plain by this account, that Ovid knew fomething by tradition of the Ark of Neah, of an only Family for the reparation of of Deucalion. Pindar fays, that Deucalion and the number of Men who were in the Ark; | cellent notion from Plate. and his Wife and other Women fet up also on their side, as many Altars as they were in scrib'd Jupiter thundering against the wicked, number, to give thanks to God for having fays, that we must not imagine that the Poets escap'd this universal Deluge; and because thought that Jupiter struck men with Thunthere was as many Men as Women in the Ark, derbolts; but not being able to express better it was faid, that the number was equal on the punishments that attended wicked Men. both fides, fo many Men according to the they were obliged to perswade them, that number of Stones; and that this multiplica- God under the name of Jupiter, who fees all tion of Stones or Altars, was the cause of the things, had always Thunderbolts in his multiplication of Men.

St. Aufin affirms, that the deluge fell out during the reign of Cecrops at Athens, according lous Genealogy of Gods, yet they did not to what Eusebius and Hieronimus say; but this really believe that there was such a Multitude Flood of Deucalion overflowed but one part of Divinities: But they conform'd themselves of Greece. However, the Greeks changed the to the Superflitious Error of the common name of Noah into that of Deucalion, and con- People, to keep them the better in awe, and founded these two Deluges, that they might hope out of respect to so many Gods. Pliny ascribe to their Country the glory of re- ascribes the multitude of Gods to the weak-Earth.

DEVERRA. One of the three Divinities, whom the Ancients intrusted with the care of a Woman in Child-birth, as Varre and St Auftin tells us, left the God Silvanus entered the House and troubled her.

DEUS, The Soveraign Being. Here we must explain the word Dew. Some derive it from the Verb Do, because God gives every thing, and can receive nothing from any Creature whatfoever. Wherefore when they offered Sacrifices, they did not fay dare exta Diis, but reddere, to shew that they only rendered him what he had first given them. Oand his fingular Juffice, and was told of the thers derive it from the Greek word bads . place where that Ark flood, and the choice which fignifies fear, because we ought not to draw near him, but with a reverential fear : Mankind. And 'tis no wonder that the and many Authors take its derivation from name of Noah was changed, and that of the Verb Sadopas, i. e. to fee and contem-Pyrha invented by Poets. As for the manner | plate, because God sees all things, and nothing of multiplying afterwards Mankind, it was efcapes his fight and knowledge. But tho there enough to name a Father and a Mother, a are several Opinions and Disputes concerning Husband and a Wife. As to the Fable of the the Etymology of that word, the Ancients are Stones thrown behind their back, and their | yet more divided about the definition of the numerous posterity, 'tis a Poetick fancy, to nature of God. Thales Milesius said that God was shew with what facilityGod re-populated the | an Intelligence, who had made all things of Earth, and the hardness of those Men, who Water, and was the principle of all the World. were the first Inhabitants of this new World. Anaximander assured, that God was born like Plurarch has mention'd the Dove and the Ark the rest of Men. But Anaximines and Anaxagoras had more fublime thoughts, for the they Pyrrha, by an order of Jupiter, came down afcribed an Airy Body to God, neverthelels from Mount Parnaffis, and without any con- they acknowledged him for an infinite Being, jugal Correspondence begat a great number | who fill'd up all Imaginary spaces. Pliny tells of Children made of Stones; because the us that God is an Independent Being, who is Greek word Adds fignifies both a Stone and all Spirit, all Intelligence, all Sight, and all People; and in so little time, that it feem'd Hearing; and gives motion to all Beings, and that the Stones were transformed into Men. is moved by none but by himself. Doubtless, Tzetzes explains this Fable something other- | Pliny and others , who have called God wise; for he says, that Deucalism or Noah at a Soveraign Intelligence, who fills, sees, their coming out of the Ark, fet up on one knows, rules all things, and has no limits, fide Stones like fo many Altars, according to neither to his power or duration, had that ex-

Seneca speaking of the Poets, who have de-hand, wherewith to punish their Impieties. And though the Ancients left us a ridicufloring Mankind, and re-populating the whole nefs of Man's understanding, who was not able to apprehend how only one God could govern so many different parts of the World, tuit. Heredetus tells us, that there was in the wherefore Men fancied that there were many Town of Bubaftis in Egypt, a Temple of Be Gods, and that each of them had his pecu- baftis, called by the Greeks Diana, and that the liar Employment and Function in the govern- Egyptians faid that Diana and Apollo were born ment of the World.

Metals their Gods; they did not believe that Diana's. they were really Gods (except it were the common fort of People) but observ'd some whom they called Britomartis, and was also peculiar Qualifications and Proprieties in named Dillyma, from the word Dille. them, and for that reason called them Gods.

Goddess Dia, so often mentioned in the In- that name, because it signifies a mild and sweet scription of the Arvaux's. that the was the Goddels Opr or Cybele, Saturn's called Berro, that which was fweet. 71 Wife, the Grand-mother of the Gods, whom DAULU. Cafaubon is of opinion that the other the Greeks called also Rhes. And she might part of this word comes from 642p715, i.e. by way of Eminency be called Dia, i. e. Di- Companion, because a Virgin never forfake wins, as the Mother and Queen of other Di- the company of her Mother. vinities. From this word Dea or Dia, is come In fine, Diodorus Siculus affirms, that the Crethe name of Die in the Province of Dauphine, tans, who introduce the Theology of Phan. which was called Dia or Dea Vocontigrum, be- cis and Egypt into their own Country, faid.

Latona, who was born in the Isle of Delos. She was called Diana because she was the called Triformes. Virgil speaks thus of her;

Tergeminamque Hecaten, tria Virginis ora Diana, confounded in one fingle Divinity.

not forget that of Diana : Fele forer Phabi la- fo much art, and enrich'd with fo much ex-of Dionyfius and Ifis. Sanchoniachon fays, that And when they made Beafts, Trees and Saturn and Affarte begot feven Girls, or feven

Strabe mentions one of the Grecian Diane's

And Solinus affirms, as Cafaubon observer DIA. No Author tells us who was that that the Inhabitants of Crete called Diana by Virgin: Quod Sermone nostro Sonat Virginem del. Sebaftian Fesch of Basil, Doctor of Law, says cem. Helychius says, that the People of Cres cause the Vocontij, who inhabited in its Neigh- that Jupiter begot Venus and the Graces, that bourhood, especially worshipped that Divinity. Diana took care of new born Infants, and La-DIANA, The Daughter of Jupiter by cina presided over Women in Labour.

This is the fame Goddess, who was called Daughter of Jupiter, as it is intimated by her Luing or Diana upon the Earth, and affifted Name; for the ancient Latins faid Diss instead Women in labour, as Poets tell us; the of Sids, Jupiter: She was named Delia, be-Moon in Heaven; and Hecate or Professing in Cause she was born in the Island of Dele. Hell. Upon this account they afcribed unto This Goddess made a Vow of Virginity, her three Heads or three Faces, and she is also which she carefully kept; wherefore the Poets called her Cafta Diana, She was the Goddess of Woods, Hunting and Cross-wave All the Nymphs are her Companions: but when they married they for fook her company. And Diana, the Moon and Proferpina were thus and were obliged to carry Baskets full of Flowers and Pruits into her Temple to paci-All that was faid concerning Diana, has re- fy her. The Ides of August was a day kept spect rather to a Fable than the History, or is holy in her honour; and it was not then at rather it felf a natural History. Yet Tully has lowed to hunt, because they imagine, that spoken of her as an Historian, when he di- that day she permitted her Hounds, and all stinguishes three Diana's; One born of Jupiter things that appertained to her Hunting Equiand Proferpina, who brought forth winged Cu- page to rest; every one crown'd his Hounds, pid; another better known, born of Jupiter and they lighted Torches in the Forrests, and Latons; and a third, who had Upis for her where they offered her in Sacrifice an Ox, a Father, and Glauce for her Mother, whom the Boar and a white Hind. They presented her Greeks call often Upis after her Pathers Name : Still the first Fruits ; Oenus King of Esolia for-Diane item plures; prime Jouis & Proferpine; got it, in an offering he made to the Country secunds notion, quam Jove tertio & Latona natam Gods; which so highly provoked her anger, accepimus: tertie pater Upis traditur. Glauce ma- that the fent the Calydonian Wild-boar, who deter: eam Graci fave Upim paterno nomine appellant, stroved all his Country. The Sythians, favs And yet these were probably but the Diana's Lucian, offered Men in facrifice upon her of Greece, in imitation of the Diana's of Egyps. Altar. Among all the Temples that were For Diana was among the Dieties in Agypt, built to her honour, that of Ephelus was most when Typhous made war against them, and she remarkable, for its largeness and magnificence. changed herfelf into a Cat, wherefore the It was 425 foot long, and 220 foot broad, Ægyptians call'd her Bubastis. Ould speaking adorn'd with an hundred and twenty seven of these Transformations of the Gods, doth Pillars of threescore foot high, wrought with Fellow, called Eroftratus, who by this Con- the tones, had but feven Strings. flagration, designed to transmit his Name to Ethefians built it again, as magnificent as before.

Diana had also a Temple in the Town of Magnesia, built by Hermogenes Alabandinus, a famous Architect.

This Goddess had another Temple at Rome upon Mount Aventine, in the Reign of Servius Tullius, which was built by the Romans and Lating, at both their Charges; and there they met every year to offer a Sacrifice, in commemmoration of the League made between walking before him. Pomponius Latur allows both Nations. This Temple was adorned him but two: but Raphael Velateranus fays, with Cows-horns. Plutarch and Livy tell more likely there were four and twenty Lius the reason of it, when they relate that | Stors, for each Consul had commonly twelve. Autre Coratius a Sabin, who had a very fine This Magistrate was never chosen, but when Cow, was advis'd by a Southfayer to offer it the Commonwealth was reduced to some in a Sacrifice to Diana of Mount Aventine, great Extremity, either by an unexpected promifing him if he offered that Sacrifice that War, or some popular and epidemical Dishe should never want any thing, and that the ease, to drive in the Nail, or chuse new Se-City whereof he should be a Citizen should nators. The Conful elected a Dictator by fubdue all other Towns of Italy. To that Night upon the Territories of the Commonpurpose Autro came to Rome, but a Slave of wealth, and no where else. That Office was King Servius having acquainted his Master for fix Months; at first none but Patricians with Autro's delign, who being gone to puri- only were admitted to it; but afterwards they fie himself in the Tibir, before he offered his were taken out of the People, and the first Sacrifice, Servius made use of that opportunity, who was honour'd with that Employment facrificed the Cow to Diana, and hung the was called T. Largus. Horns in her Temple.

with dishevelled Hair, cloathed with a hairy lasted but fix Months, yet the Senare might Gown of purple colour, trimm'd with golden continue it. Buckles, which she tuckt up to the very knees. DIDO; or Elife, the Daughter of Belar She held a Bow in her Hand, and carried a King of Tyre. She married Sicheus, Herculer's Quiver full of Arrows on her Shoulder. They Priest, whom Pigmalion, Dido's Brother, muralso represented her sitting on a golden Cha-thered, to possess his Treasure. Dido fearing riot drawn with Hinds. Albricus the Philo-ther life, failed to the Coasts of Africa, where Sopher in his Pictures of the Gods fays, that the built a Town and called it Carthage. Jar-Diana was represented holding a Bow and bas King of Getulia would force her to marry Arrow, with a Half-moon on her Forehead, him, but she refus'd to consent to it, and had and about her a great company of Drysder, rather kill herself, than stain her former Bed. Hamadryades, Naiades, Nereides, and Choires of Virgil relates this otherwise in his Eneid, but the Nymphs of the Woods, Mountains, by the account of Chronologers what he faid Fountains and Seas; and even Satyrs, who is impossible, for Eneas lived 260 Years b:are Country Diviniries.

Strabo 1. 14. de descriptione Mundi relates, that DIES, The Day. The Ancients dibound in that Country.

cellent carved work, that nothing finer was | DIAPASON. This Greek word figniever feen : There was a Stair-case to go up on fies a Chord, which includes all Tones, we the Temple, made of one intire piece, which call it an Offave, because all its tones are was the Wood of a Vine. This Temple was eight in number. Arifotle fays that the Greeks built by the Architect Cteffphon in fixfcore did no not call it Diotto, i. e. Offave, because Years time, and was burnt by a profligate the Harp of the Ancients, which included all

DIATONUM, A kind of Song, posterity, not being able (as he confess'd him- which proceeds out by tones and semi-tones, felf) to do any thing more remarkable. The land is more natural and less forced than other kinds of Musick.

DIAULON. Is a kind of Race, which was a Furlong in length, and at the end thereof they returned back along the fame Course. DICHALCA, The foruth part of an Obolds.

DICTATOR A Roman Magistrate, who was alone invested with the Consulary and Soveraign Authority, and had power of life and death over the Romans, he had Lictors

DICTATURA, The Dictatorship, She was commonly drawn Goddess-like, the Dignity of Distator, which commonly fore Dido.

in the Isle of Icarus there was a Temple of vided the day into a natural and artifici-Diana, called raupovoxor or Taurica; Livy al. They called the natural day that which 1. 4. Dec. 4. calls it Tauropolum; and the Sacri- is measured by the duration of time, that the fices that were offered in that Temple Tauro- Sun takes to move round the Earth, which Polis. However, Dionysius in his Book De sizu comprehends the whole space both of the Orbis fays, that Diana was not called Truropola Day and Night. And they called the artififrom the People, but from the Bulls that a- cial day, the duration of that time the Sun is l above our Horizon.

cause several Nations reckon it several ways; were offered upon the Altars of the Gods. fome begin it one way, and others another during the time they were examining the

The Babylonians began the day with the raifing of the Sun.

The Jews and Athenians began it with the fetting of the Sun, and the Italians follow them, and begin the first hour of the day with the Sun fetting.

The Egyptians began it as we do at midnight, and the Umbri at Noon.

The day that begins with the rifing and fetting of the Sun is not equal; for from the Winter-Solftice to the Summer-Solftice, the day that begins with the Sun fetting has fomething more than four and twenty hours: and on the contrary, less from the Summer-Solffice to the Winter-Solftice; but the natural day that begins at mid-night or at noon is always equal.

The artificial day on the contrary is unequal all over the World, except under the ly those appointed for the Assemblies of the Æquinoxial Line; and this inequality is more people. or less, according to the diversity of Climates. The Romans distinguish'd the days into holyfollowed their Diversions, and the other their bestow the rest of the day in administring

Business and Trading; some days were also Justice. accounted by them lucky, and others un-vision that Numa made of the days called Fasts inform more fully, or to clear themselves: and Nefasti; the days called Fasti were divided this adjournment was commonly of twenty in Comitiales, Comperendini, Stati, Praliares.

the Prætor was allowed to administer Justice; and the word fasti is derived from fari, i. e. to Speak or pronounce: Wherefore the jurifdiction of the Prator confifted in pronoun- which it was permitted to engage the enemy. cing these three words Do, Dico, Addico: On There were also other days called Justi, wie. the contrary, dies nefasti were no pleading thirty days that the Romans were wont to days, at that time there was no Justice admi- grant to their Enemy, after they had proniffred, which Ovid has expressed by these two Verses.

Ille nefastus erit, per quem tria verba filentur. Fastus erit per quem lege licebit agi.

The days called Fasti were marked with an exercitus estet imperatus & vexillum in arce pos-F. in the Roman Kalendar, and the days called tum. Nefasti were marked with an N.

Paulus Manucius observes that there were three forts of days called Fasti; fome were meerly called Fasti, and those days were entirely spent in the administration of Justice; others were called Intercife or Enterocifi, bocause days. The Greeks called them a coppasses. one part of those days was employed to offer Sacrifice, and the other to distribute Justice, some days luckly, and others faral, and that

The natural day is also called civil, be- the victim was facrificed, till the inwards Entrails, inter cafa & porretta: and those dave are markt in the Kalendar with these two Letters E. N. The third fort of days called Fasti, were fasti in the afternoon, and nefasti in the morning, markt in the Kalendar with thefe Letters N. P. Nefastu priore tempere, ot priore parte diei, as we learn from Ovid.

> Neu toto perstare die sua jura putetis, Qui jam Faftus erit, mane Nefaftus erat. Nam fimul exta Deo data funt, licet omnia fari : Verbaque honoratus libera Prætor habes.

DIES SENATORII. Days that the Senate met about the affairs of the Commonwealth, which were commonly the Kalends, the Nones, and the Ides of the month. except upon extraordinary occasions, for then there was no other days excepted, on-

DIES COMITIALES. Days of the meeting of the people, markt in the Kalendar with a C. When the Assemblies did not days and working-days: In the one of these sit a whole day, the Prætor was allowed to

DIES COMPERENDINI. Days of adjournment. After a hearing on both sides, the We ought here to observe the general di- Proctor granted time to the Clients, either to days, and was only granted to Reman Citi-Fash dies were pleading days, at which time zens, and to summon a Foreigner at Rome.

Macrobius fays that this laft adjournment was called Stati Dies.

DIES PRÆLIARES. Days during claimed War against them, and before they entered their Territories, and used any Act of Hostility, to give them time by this delay to come to an agreement, or make fatisfaction for the wrong they had done them. Jufti Dies, fays Feftus, dicebantur triginta, cum

There were other days called NON PRÆLIARES or ATRI, fatal and unluckly, because of some loss the Romans had fuffered during those days, wherefore it was not allowed to engage the Enemy upon fuch

Tis certain that the Ancients accounted which was administred from the time that the Chaldeans and Egyptians have first made and Romans in imitation of them, have done the like. Hefiod was the first, who made a Catalogue of lucky and fatal days, intituled where the fifth day of the month is noted for an unlucky day, because, as he fays, the Furies of Hell are walking that day upon the Earth : wherefore Virgin tells us in the first Book of his Georgicks.

____Quintam fuge, pallidus Orcus, Eumenidesque fata : tum partu Terra nefando Caumque Japetumque creat, favumque Typhan Et conjuratos calum rescindere fratres.

9th, 11th, and 12th days were also lucky.

days after the Kalends, Nones and Ides were Lucullus answered to those who endeavoured reckoned fatal and unfortunate. And this o- to diffuade him from engaging Tigranes, bepinion was grounded upon the answer of a cause upon the same day the Cimbri had rout-Southsayer. For the Military Tribunes Vi- ed the Army of Capio, I, said he, I will giliu, Manlius, and Celius Postbumius, seeing make it of a good omen for the Romans. that the Commonwealth suffered always some Julius Casar transported his Forces over into los, presented a Petition to the Senate in the Africa, tho the Augurs opposed his design. year 363, desiring them to enquire about the Dion of Syracusa engaged Dymissus the Tyrant, cause of these misfortunes. The Senate sent and overcame him one day when the Moon for a Southfayer, called L. Aquinius, who be- was eclipfed. And fo did many others. ing come into the Assembly, they asked him his opinion about the fame; he answered, Festum. that when Q. Sulpitius, one of the Military Tribunes, engaged the Gault with fo bad fuc- word is derived from the Greek Ninus, i. e to cess near the River Allia, he had offered Sa- pass and run through something; the Diess crifices to the Gods the next day after the among Musicians are the lesser parts of a Ides of July; that the Fabians were killed at Tone. Wherefore Ariffetle says, that the Cremera, because they engaged the Enemy Diesis are the Elements of the Voice, i.e. upon the like day. After this answer the of Tones: However, the Pythagoreans who Senate referred the consideration of the are thought to be the inventers of the name whole Affair to the Colledge of the Pontiffs, Diesis, do not make it so small; they diviand defired them to give their opinion there- | ded the Tone in two inequal parts, the leffer, in. The Pontiffs forbad to engage the Ene- which we call the Semi-tone minor was called my, or to undertake any thing upon the next Diefit, and the greatest, which is our Semi-tone day after the Kalends, Nones and Ides, as majer, was called Apotome. Livy reports. Besides these days that were accounted unlucky, there were also some other days, that every particular man efteem- were ranked the Gods called Dii majorum gened unfortunate in respect to his own person. tium, in the second were the Gods called Dii Augustus never attempted to perform any thing minorum genium. The Gods of the first order upon the day of Nones, others upon the were the most powerful, nobiles & potentes, fourth of Kalends, Nones and Ides. Vitelli- and were called upon under great exigencies. w having obtained the dignity of the high | They were twelve in number, fix Males, and Pontiff, made Ordinances concerning Reli- fix Females. gion upon the 15th of the Kalends of August, which were ill received, because of the loss Neptumus, Mars, Mercurius, Vulcanus, Apollo, Jathey had fuffered upon that day at Cremera and Allia as Suetonius relates in the life of Juno, Minerva, Ceret, Vesta, Diana, Venus. that Emperor, and Taitius in the second Book observations upon thosedays, and the Greek for his History, c. 24. "They took for a bad omen, that being made High Prieft, he ordained fomething concerning Religion upon the eighteenth day of July, which is fatal, because of the Battles of Allis and Cremera.

There was also many other days accounted fatal by the Remans, as the day that they offered Sacrifices to the Ghost of deceased persons; the day following after the Feasts called Volcanalia, the fourth before the Nones of Offober, the fixth of the Ides of November, the Holyday called Lemuris in May; the Nones of July, called Crapotine; the Ides of March, because Julius Cafar was killed that The opinion of Plate was, that the fourth day day; the fourth before the Nones of August, of the month was lucky, Hefford affures that because of the defeat of Canna that happened it was the seventh day was fortunate, because lupon that day; the Holydays of the Latins it was Apollo's Birth-day; and that the 8th, called Saturnalia, and many others recorded in the Kalendar.

The Romans accounted also some days However, some Romans slighted those rilucky and others fatal. And the following diculous and superstitious observations; for

DIES FESTI, Holydays. See after

DIESIS, The quarter of a Tone. This

DII, Gods. The Roman made two clasfis, or orders of their Gods; in the first piter :

Tully 1. 2. de legibus makes three orders of Gods. The first order is of Celestial Gods, the fecond of Demi-Gods or Hero's, who were carried up into Heaven on account of their archievements, and in the third order were those who gave men the power to become themselves Gods.

They divided also the Gods, into Gods of of Gardens.

Gods called Consentes, and Gods elected, in Confintes are the twelve Gods mentioned before. They had their share in the Govern- BONA was called upon by the Parents, lest ment of the Universe, and the chiefest em- i she should take away their Children. ployments in the administration thereof. The Gods elected were eight, whom the Gods called Confentes had choien and entrusted with a thare of the government, relying fo far upon them. And these twenty Gods, and ABEONA, to go and come again; viz. twelve Males and eight Females, were AVERRUNCUS, to put away evil; adored as the Soveraigns of all the little Gods, ANGERONA, to drive away Melanchowho had but small and limited employments ly; and two GENII, one good and the in the government of the Universe, are the other bad. names of the Gods called Confence, and Gods called elefted. JANUS, JUPITER, SATURN, GENIUS, MERCU-MOON, CERES, LIBER, MI-MOON, CERES, MI-M VESTA.

The Names of the Gods of the Sea PORTUNA.

The names of the Gods of Hell, PLU-TO, ACHERON and STYX his Wife, PROSERPINA, ÆACUS, MINOS, RHADAMANT HUS, punish their wickedness. For that purpose CHARON,, The Three PARCÆ, the God opened the Cataracts of Heaven, and FURIES.

The names of the Gods called Indigites, or of the Heroes or Demi-gods, as HERCU-LES, ÆSCULA PIUS, FAUNUS, CARMENTA, CASTOR & POL-LUX, ACCA LAURENTIA QUIRINUS or ROMULUS.

The names of the Gods called Semones, or Simil-homines, who had the protection of men an, as Xinophon tells us. during the course of their life.

The Gods of the second order, whom Ovid | Goddess MENA or LUNA, for wine comprehends under the word Plets, were of figuifies the Moon, or PRIVIGNA JU.
a much leffer confideration, and had no power but from the great Gods; wherefore they NA or DIANA, LATONA or PAR. were called upon but in affairs of less mo- TUNDA, and EGERIA, who affisted Women in their Labour.

After a Woman was delivered of a Child. three Gods were called upon to preferve the Woman lying in , and preserve her from the God Silvanas ; viz. INTERCINODA. PILUMNUS and DEVERRA. The Child who was born was put under the protection of these Gods, VAGITANUS to prefide at his Cries ; LEVANA, to take Heaven, Gods of the Earth, Gods of the Sea; him up; CUNINA, to lay him in the in Gods of Forests, Gods of Rivers, and Gods Crudle; RUMINA, to suckle him; PO-TINA, to give him Drink; EDUCA, to There is fill another division of Gods into feed him; OSSILAGO, to knit his Bones; CARNEA or CARNA and Deor Consenter & Elector. The Gods called CARDEA, to take care of his Vitals; JU. VENTUS, prefided over his Youth; OR-

> When the Child grew up, they prayed to other Gods in his behalf, viz. MURCIA. lest he should be idle; STRENUA, to act with vigilancy and vigour; ADEONA

RY, APOLLO, MARS, VUL-NERVA, VENUS, PALES, CANUS, NEPTUNE, The SUN, FLORA, POMONA, VERTUM HELL of PLUTO, LIBER: TEL NUS, SEIA of SEGETIA SELUS, CERES, JUNO, The MOON, GECE, TULLINA, TUTANUS, DIANA, MINERVA, VENUS, ROBIGUS, PAN, SILENUS SILVANUS, TERMINUS, PRI APUS; and an infinite number of others, NEPTUNE, SALACIA, VE- as the Gods PENATES and LARES. NILIA, EGERIA, JUTURNA, of whom we will fpeak feverally and in their Order.

DILUVIUM, A Deluge, a general Inundation that God fent formerly upon the Earth to drown both Men and Beafts, to preserved only Nonh and his Family out of this Deluge, with two of each kind of all living Creatures in an Ark, that he ordered him to build for that purpose.

There has been formerly five Deluges, yet there was but one universal one, fixteen hundred years and more after the creation of the World, in the time of old Ogiges the Phanici-

The fecond Deluge covered only the Land Those that presided at Births, were the of Egipt with Waters, and was occasioned by rime of Prometheus and Hercules, and continued but a Month, as we learn from Diedorus Siculus.

The third Deluge happened in Achaia, in the Province of Actica, and lasted threescore days, in the time of Ogiges the Athenian. Dioderus speaks of it in his fixth Book, and Paufanias in his Attice relates, that in the lower Town of Athens, in the way that leads to the Temple of Jupiter Olympius, there was a hole feen in the ground a foot and a half wide, and thro' that hole the Waters of the Flood were funk, wherefore it was a custom among the People, to throw every year into that hole, a kind of an offering made with Wheat-Hower and Honey -

The fourth Deluge was in Theffalia in Deucalion's time, and continued a whole Winter, as Ariftetle tells us in the first Book of his Meteors.

The fifth happed about the Offia of the River Nile in Egypt, in the Reign of Proteus, and about the time of the Trojan War.

But Poets confound these Deluges, and fay, that the Universal Deluge was in the time of Deucalion, the Son of Prometheus, who escaped alone with his Wife in a Boat on the top of Mount Parnaffus in Phicis.

Lucian feems to countenance this opinion of the Poets in the Dea Syria. 'The most common opinion (fays he) is, that Deucalion of Scythia is the founder of this Temple, (he means the Temple of Syria;) for the Greek ' fay, that the first Men being cruel and info-'lent, faithless and void of Humanity, pe-' forc'd the Sea to overflow, by the affiftance of Rain and violent Showers, fo that all lay ' under water : only Deucalion remain'd, who escaped in an Ark with his Family, and two of each kind of all living Creatures, that followed him into the Ark, both wild and tame, 'without hurting one another. He floated till the Waters were withdrawn, then populated the Earth again. They added another wonder, that an Abyss opened of it self in their Country, which swallowed up all 'the Waters; and that Deucalion in memory of that Accident, erected there an Altar and 'built a Temple. A Man may still see there 'a very small Cliff, where the Inhabitants of 'that Country, with those of Syria, Arabia, ' and the Nations beyond the Euphrates, refort twice a year to the Neighbouring Sea, from whence they fetch abundance of Water, which they pour into the Temple, from by an overflowing of the River Nile, in the 1 to Descalion, and inftituted in commemoration of that Accident.

This is what Holy Scripture informs us concerning the Universal Deluge. 'The wickedness of Men being great in the Earth, at last the day of Punithment came. And the Lord commanded unto Noah to put in the Ark all fort of Provisions, and take two of each kind of unclean Animals, and feven of the clean Animals, viz. three Males and three Females to preserve their Specie upon the Earth, and one more for the Sacrifice after the Flood should be over. This being done, Nosh that up himfelf in the Ark, the seventeenth day of the second Month of the Solar Year, (which was the nineteenth of April according to our computation) with his three Sons and their Wives. It did rain forty days and forty nights. And God opened the Cataracts of Heaven, and the Fountains of the Deep; and the Waters increafing during an hundred and fifty days, (the forty Days above-mentioned being included) were fifteen Cubits higher than the top of the highest Mountains. And all Flesh died, both Men and Beafts, and none escaped but those that were in the Ark. The hundred and fiftieth day the waters abated, by a great wind that the Lord raised, and the twenty seventh of the seventh Month, to reckon from the beginning of the Flood, the Ark rested upon a Mountain of Armenia; Hieronymus calls it Mount Taurus, because the River Araxes ran at the foot thereof. Others grounding their Opinion upon a more ancient Authority, tell us, that the Ark rested rished all by the Deluge, a great quantity of upon one of the Gordian Mountains; and Epi-Water issuing out of the bowels of the phanius says, that at his time they shew'd yet 'Earth, which swell'd up the Rivers, and the remainders of the Ark. Many Arabian Geographers and Historians are of this Opi-The first day of the tenth Month the tops of the Mountains appeared. And Noah and his Family went out of the Ark the twenty feventh day of the fecond Month (the twenty ninth of April according to our account) by the command of the Lord, as he went in before by the same order.

DIOCLETIANUS. Boin in Dalma-:10, of a mean Parentage, and Slave to Annulinus the Senator. His great ability in War and Government raifed him to the Throne. And as foon as he had obtained the Soverais a Power, he put Aper to death, to make good the prediction of an old Witch, who had foretold him that he should be a great Man, when he had kill'd the fatal Wild-boar (for till that time he was but a Wild-boar Hunter;) nevertheless this Prediction was to be understood of Aper, Mumerian's Father-in-law. whence it runs into that Hole; and the Ori- for Aper fignifies in Latin a Wild-boar. This gine of this Ceremony is likewife attributed | Emperor raifed a most violent Persecution againft the Christians, and was both ambitious dom to be devoured, by four Horses that he and cruel. His folly grew to fuch an excess, fed with Blood and Mans Flesh. Palaphatu that he ordered that the People should adore tells us, that Diomedes was the first man that him like a God, and should kiss his Feet: a bred Horses, and spent all his Estate abour new thing, never required of them by his it, wherefore these Horses were called An-Predeceffors, who were only faluted after the thropophagi, i. e. Men-easters, and this gave ocmanner of Confuls.

his great ability, which might otherwise render him famous, either in Peace or War. From a Soldier of Fortune, he raifed himfelf ry lecherous, and confumed the Estates and to the greatest Dignity in the World, and the Health of all men that were in love with with as much greatness of Soul.

When his Colleague endeavour'd to perfivade him to take again the Purple, he talked to him of the Lettices of his Garden of Salma, and no Man was ever able to remove him from the retirement he had chosen. He died in a very strange manner, for he felt dreadful inhabited the Neighbourhood of the Town pains all over his Body, which was falling to pieces, and flunk fo horridly, that no body was able to come near him, and he was a terror to himfelf. After his death Licinius plac'd him among the number of Gods after the ufual manner. DIOGENES, A Cynick Philosopher, who called himfelf the Citizen of the Universe, the Physician of the Soul, and the Herald of Liberty, promifing himself that he I' Nymphs inhabiting there, who have nam'd could perswade men to leave their pleasures. Lucian introduces him foeaking in his Dialogue of the Sects of Philosophers exposing to Sale, delivering the Epitome of his Do-Etrine. 'You must be audacious, impudent 'fnarl at all Mankind, and find fault with every thing; for that is the compleat way to be admired : Let your Speech be rude, . your Tone the like ; your Looks ftern, and 'your Mien barbarous; in short, your whole deportment wild and favage. He and a Bag, and dwelt in a Tub, which he tumbled in the day-time. left he should re-

DIOMEDES, King of Actolia, the Son of Tydeus, and fair Deiphile, the Daughter of Adrastus, King of Argos. He went to the Trojan Wars with Achilles, and was killed by Ulyffes, as they were coming back together, after they had foln the Palladium. After his Death his Servants were changed into Birds called Diemedee Aves, mentioned in Pliny 1. 10. C. 44.

'I won't omit, fays he, the Birds of Diomedes, whose Feathers are white, and the eyes like fire. There are fome of them found ' in an Island of Apulia, where Diomedes was buried.

DIOMEDES, King of Thrace, who ex ofed all perfons who came into his King-casion to the Fable that Diomedes Horses were His Vices blafted the Glory of his Life, and fed with Man's-Flesh. Philastratus affirms. that these four Creatures were four Mares. or four Daughters of Diomedes, who were vemaintained it with much Glory, and left it them. Hercules flew him, and gave his Corps to be eaten by his own Horses.

DIONYSIUS, An Epithet given to Bacchus, for Jupiter to preserve Bacchiu, whom he had begot of Semele, from jealous June, transformed him for a time into a He-goat. and Mercury carried him to the Nymphs, who of Nyla in Alia, to nurse him up. Wherefore he was firnamed Dionyfius from Juds, i. e. Jupiter, and Nusa Nysa. This we learn of Lucian in his Dialogues of the Gods, where Mercury talking with Neptune about young Bacchus, whom Jupiter placed in his thigh . to compleat his time, and was just now delivered of him. 'I have carried him, favs he, to Nyla, to be brought up by the 'him Dionystus, from the name of his Father. ' and their own Country.

DIONYSIA. The Feafts of Bacchus. See Orgia and Bacchanalia.

DIOSCORIDES. A Greek Physician of Anazarba, who came to Rome, and obtained the freedom of a Citizen. He got particularly acquainted with Licinius Baffus an illustrous Roman; and took the name of Pedacius or Pedianus of the Family Pedania, as Lambecius observed in his Commentaries upon the did wear an old patched garment, with a Staff Library of the Emperour; and he has left us fome Books of the nature of Plants, and verrue of Metals.

> DIPHILUS, An able Architect, but a flow Workman; from whence comes the Latin Proverb, Diphilo tardier, to represent a very flow man, who does not finish his work.

DIR Æ. The Furies of Hell, called alfo Eumenides. Poets mention three of them, viz. Tisiphone, Megara and Alesto, whom they represent with fiery eyes, their heads attired with Serpents, and holding Iron Chains in their hands, and Scourges with burning Torches to punish guilty Consciences.

DIRCE. The Wife of Lycus King of Thebes, whom he married after he had divorced Antiope. Zethus and Amphion tyed her to the tail of a Horse and dragged her about, but the Gods out of compaffion turned her into a Fountain.

the was transformed into a Fish.

DIS, The God of Riches, also called Plutur. He is represented lame and blind; wherefore when Juniter fends him to any person, he arrives there but very late, and often when there is no want of him : But Romans. Romulus, fays Plutarch, made many when he returns, he goes as fast as the wind, Laws, but the most rigorous of all was, that and men are amazed to lose the right of him which forbad the Wife to forsake her Husfo foon. And if Riches come to men fleeping, he don't walk then upon his own Legs, of forfaking his Wife, in this three cases. but he is carried away, and then 'tis not Ju- If the has made use of Poyson to kill the piter who fends him; but Piuto, who is also Fruit of her Womb, if the has put another the God of Riches, as 'tis intimated by his | Child upon him instead of his own, and in name, for he makes great Riches pass from case of Adultery. If the Husband dismissed one hand into another: And being blind, his Wife upon any other account, he was he often miffes his way; but he turns so of- bound to give her part of his Estate, and the ten up and down, and on every fide, that other part was confecrated to Ceres; and then he meets some one or another who takes hold he was obliged to offer a Sacrifice to the on him. Wherefore he inriches but very Gods called Manes. Leges etiam quasdam tulis few just men ; for being blind, how can he Romulus , inter quas wehemens est illa qua mulieri find a just man, who is a thing fo scarce to | maritum relinquendi potestas adimitur : viro aumeet with ? but the wicked being in great tem eficere uxorem conceditur, fe veneficio circa pro-numbers, he eafily met with them.

ents have made Discord a mischievous Divi- diasset conjugem, ejus mariti bona partim uxori nity. Ariflides represents her with dreadful cederent, partim Cereri facra forent, atque Dile and fiery eyes, a pale countenance, black and | Manibus rem faceram facere tenebatur. blue lips, wearing a Dagger in her bosom. Jupiter banish'd her out of Heaven, because Divorce upon the fore-mentioned causes, and the fowed divitions among the Gods. She prescribes some rites that are to be observed caused the ruin of Try, for being angry that in that case, the neglect whereof made it the was not invited with the other Gods to void. It was to be made in the presence of the wedding of Thetis and Beleis, the threw a feven Roman Citizens, all men of ripe age. Golden Apple into the Banquetting room, Divortia septem civibus Romanis puberibus testibus which fell at the feet of Venus, Pallar and Juno. Mercury took it up, and offerved that bentor, fays the Lex Julia. there was written about it, 'Tis fer the fairest. The three Goddesses fell out presently as from the hands of his Wife, and sent her mong themselves, each of them pretending back with these words, Res tuas tibi habeto, that it belonged to her, and had not Jupiter or Res tuas tibi agito, i. e. what is your own take commanded them filence, they would have it again. Tully tays in his Phillippick, Frugi come to blows. Yet he would not decide factus of, mimam illam suas sibi res habere dixit their quarrel, and referred them to Paris the ex duedicim tabulis, clavis ademit, exegit. He Son of Priam to be judged by him, who is become an honest man, he has bid this gave it for Vonus the Godders of Beauty; lewd Creature to take what was her own awhereupon June grew angry, and in revenge | gain, and has took the Keys from her, and thereof, destroyed Troy and the Trojans toge- | put her away.

- Sava memorem Junonis ob iram;

Who remembred the judgment that Paris had pronounced in the behalf of Venus.

DISCUS, A quoit which Gamesters used in ancient exercises. It was a round thing of Metal or Stone, a foot broad, which they ted Shield, made to represent a memorable were two Pulars at Dodona, and upon one

There was another of that name, who pre- | deed of some of the Heroes of Antiquity. ferred herself in Beauty to Pallas, wherefore | and to keep it in remembrance thereof in a Temple of the Gods, where it was to be hung up.

DIVORTIUM, Divorce between a Husband and his Wife.

At first Divorce was rare among the band, and allowed the Husband the liberty lem ufa fuerit, aut alienam pro fun fubdidiffet, aut DISCORDÍA, Discord. The Anci- adulterium commissifiet. Si quis alia de causa repu-

The Law of the twelve Tables permits adhibitis postea faciunto aliter facta pro infectis ha-

The Husband took the Keys of his house

Though the Laws allowed Divorce, yet it was not put into practice at Rome till the year 70, when a certain perfen named Spurius Carvilius Ruga, in the time of the Confulfhip of M. Pomponius, and Caises Papyrius, or of M. Attilius and P. Valerius put away his Wife for barrenness. DODONA, A Town of Chamia, famous for the Lorest, where the Oaks speke threw into the air to flew their skill and by the Oracle of Jupiter, called Decionaus. strength. Discus was also a round consecra- Aristotle (as Suidas relates) says, that there a Child holding a Whip, with Cords made had begun against Philosophers, who were of Brais, which occasioned a noise when the obliged to disguise themselves, and fly away Wind drove them against the Bason.

when they are driven one against the other, Kettle full of boiling Oyl, wherein this Two communicate their motion round about, and rant had ordered him to be cast. His defign that the noise proceeded from a founding but a Man named Stephen, made free by Cle the Priefts called Dodonar.

Sea, and pronounced Oracles.

the Earth; and some others ascribe it to the Goddel's Health, having escap'd the danger Antiperistalis of the great cold, that conden- that he had run at the coming of Vitellius. fed the heat remaining still in the Torch, and thus lighted it again.

DOLABRA, The Pontifical Ax, to knock down the Victim in Sacrifices.

DOMITIANUS, The twelfth Emperor of Rome, Son to Vespasian, and Titus's the Palace of Dido. Brother. During his Father's life he gave himself to Poetry, and made great progress in it ; and Quintilian, Pliny and Silius Italicus commend him for the fame. At his first coming to the Empire, he shew'd much modefty and justice, making many good Laws, and forbad the making of Eunuchs. He renewed the Lex Julia against Adulterers, forbad the use of litters to publick Women, and deprived them of the right of Inheriting. To these Vertues was joined a great Magnificence and Liberality, giving to the People place or Porch, where Clients and Persons feveral very costly Games and Shews, but giving attendance to great Men, waited foon after he discovered his cruel and lascivi- till it was day light, to be admitted to make ous temper, which he had hitherto hidden. their Court. 'Tis to be supposed that this For he kept company with his Niece, as if Porch was covered, for the conveniency of the had been his lawful Wife. His Vanity Persons, who were sometimes waiting very was not less than his Incontinence, he took long before they were admitted. upon him the Name of God and Lord, and was proud of having that Title given to him in all Petitions presented to him. The People were obliged to comply with the fantasti- Houses. cal Impiety of a Man, who was not then capable of hearing reason. The Poers of his i. e. in general the whole inside of the Haust. time, and especially Martial were not sparing Virgil has took this word in Vitruvius's sense, of his Praifes; and their Verses are still when he said, Apparet Domus intis, & arris shameful Testimonies of their Flatteries of a longa patescunt; for tis plain that Virgil means Prince, who deserved so little the name of by the word Atria, all that may be seen in God, that he was unworthy of bearing the the inside of a House when the Doors are Name of Man.

thereof a Bason of Brass, and upon the other | He renewed the Persecution that his Father into Foreign Countries. As for the Christians Demon (as the same Suidas relates) says, that he cruelly persecuted them, and banished & the Oracle of Jupiter, called Dedoneus, is com- John the Evangelist into the Isle of Pathman passed round about with Basons; which, after he was miraculously come out of a great make a noise that lasts a while. Others say, was to ruin utterly the Christian Religion: Oak, that shook its Branches and Leaves when ment the Conful, delivered the Church and it was consulted; and declared its Will by Empire of this cruel Persecutor. Suer onius relates, that the day before his Death, he faid. Poets tell us that the Ships of the Argonauts that the next day the Moon should be bloody were built with Timber fetched out of the for him in the Sign of Aquarius. The Senate Dodonean Forest, wherefore they spoke upon the pull'd down his Statues, and razed out all the Titles he had usurped, and Men out of There was in the Town of Dodona a Foun- a base compliance had bestowed upon him. tain, the Waters thereof, though very cold, The greatest part of the day he passed in his yet would light a Torch lately put out, when Closet, killing Flies with a golden Bodkin, dipt in 'em. Lucretius ascribes this effect to the Wherefore it was faid that he was always hot Vapours, that issued from the great quan- alone, and that there was not so much as a tity of Brimstone which is in the veins of Fly with him. He built a Temple to the

> DOMUS, This word is commonly taken for all forts of Houses, either Magnificent or Ordinary; but 'tis often taken by Writers to intimate a fine House of some great Lord, or Palaces of Princes, as it appears by these Verses of Virgil, speaking of

At Domus Interior regali splendida luxu.

These great Houses were built with much Magnificence, and were of a vast extent; for they had many Courts, Apartments, Wings, Cabinets, Bagnio's, Stoves, and a great many fine Halls, either to fit at Table, or to tranfact matters of confequence.

Before these great Houses there was a large

There was a fecond part to these Houses, called Cavum-Edium or Cavedium, it was a great large Court, inclosed with Rows of

The third part was called Atrium interis,

Arium , called Servus Arriensts. Within this door, to enter into a Gallery supported with place there were many figures; for the Ro- Pillars, and this Gallery had Piazza's on three man, who paffionately loved Glory and fides. Praifes, raifed every where Trophies and | Within the Greek's houses there were great Statues, to leave Eternal Monuments of their Halls, for the Mistresses of the Family, and great actions to posterity, not only in the their Servant Maids to Spin in; in the Entry Provinces, which they subdued to the Em- both on the right and left hand there were pire, but also in publick places, and their Chambers, one was called Thalamur, and the o-

own palaces at Rome. Axes, bundles of Rods, and the other badges Wardrobes. To this part of the House was of the Offices that their Ancestors or them- joyned another part, which was bigger and felves had possessed, and Statues of Wax or had very large Galleries, with four Piazza's Metal, representing their Fathers in Basso re- of the same heighth. The finest Entries and lieve, were fet up in Niches of precious Wood most magnificent Doors were at this part of or rare Marble. The days of their folemn the House. There were four great square Halls, Feafts, or their Triumphal Pomp, these so large and spacious, that they would easily the first to the last.

and Gardens neatly kept.

Vault; but the last Halls had Architraves up might live in these apartments privately and on Pillars, and on the Architraves of the in all liberty. Ceilings made of pieces joined together, These apartments were paved with Mowhich make an open'd Terras, turning round faick or inlaid Work. Pliny tells us, that the for men, and others for women ; fome for Albertara. These Pavements were in fashi-Dining rooms called Triclinia, others for Bed- on at Rome, during the time of Sylla, who got chambers named Dormitoria; and some others one made at Prenesse in the Temple of Fortune. to lodge Strangers, to whom they were ob- This Greek word Ail Espator fignifies only a liged to be Hospitable.

eight and forty thousand Houses standing by themselves, being so many Infula, and ment, representing different Figures by the these Houses were very convenient, because variety of their colours and order. they had a light on every fide, and doors on duced it himfelf (as 'tis thought) into ashes.

the Romans ; for they had no Porch, but from | Muses and Sciences were thereby representthe first door they entred into a narrow past led. The word Mosaick is derived from the fage; on one fide of it there were Stables, Latin word Mufroum, but not from Mofes nor and on the other there was the Porters Lodge; the Jews.

opened. There was a Porter waiting at the jat the end of this passage there was another ther Antithalamus. Round about the Piazza's There were painted or engraven Battles, there were Dining-rooms, Chambers and Niches were opened, and the Figures crown- hold four Tables, with three Seats in form ed with Festoons and Garlands, and carried of Beds, and leave room enough for the Serabout the Town. When fome perfons of vants and Gamesters. They entertain'd in the Family died, these Statues accompanied these Halls, for 'twas not the custom for wothe Funeral Parade; wherefore Pliny says, men to sit amongst men. On the right and that the whole Family was there present from the left of these Buildings there were small apartments, and very convenient rooms to Besides, there were great Galleries in these receive the chance Guests ; far among the Houses, adorned with Pillars, and other Greeks wealthy and magnificent men kept aworks of Architecture, and great Halls, Clo- partments, with all their conveniencies to fets for Convertation and Painting, Libraries, receive persons who came far off to lodge at their Houses. The custom was, that after These Halls were built after the Corinthian they had given them an entertainment the or Egyptian order. The first Halls had but a first day only, they fent them afterwards erow of Pillars fet upon a Pedestal, or on the very day some Present that they received Pavement, and supported nothing but their from the Country, as Chickens, Eggs, Pulse Architrave, and cornish of Joyners Work or and Fruits; and so the Travellers were lodg-Stud, over which was the Ceiling in form of a ed as they had been at their own House, and Pavements that were painted and wrought with These Houses had many apartments, some art come from the Greeks, who called them Pavenient of Stones, but the Greeks meant by Ancient Rome was so large, that there were that word those Pavements made of small Stones of several colours, inlaid into the Ce-

This Pavement was not only used for pavthe Streets, and not exposed to the accidents ing the Courts of Houses and the Halls, but of fire. But this must be understood of Rome, also in Chambers, and wainscoting the Walls, that was re-built by Nero, after he had re- and these kind of Pavements were called Musas, Musia and Musicon, because ingenious works The Greeks built after another manner than were ascribed to the Muses, and that the

Heic

whether the Romans had formerly Chimneys to empty and wash their Pans, and these perand Privies in their Houses.

Chimneys in their Kitchins; but 'tis doubtful Plantus ipeaks of the Servant-maid, que latriwhether they had any in their Chambers, for namlavat, who washes the Pan. And in this their Chambers were warmed only by some place of Plautus, latring can't be understood of Pipes that conveyed a warm vapour from a the publick Houses of Office, which were Fire made of a kind of Coals that burn with- cleanled by Pipes under the ground, which our making any Smoak, called by Suctonius, carried the Waters of the Tiber to these places. Miseui Carbones. Yet we read several things and the likely that Plautus made use of the which feem to perswad: us that they had word latring, to infinuate that fella familiaria Chimneys in their Chambers.

Suctioning tells us, that the Chamber of Vitellins was burnt, the Chimney having took fire were for the conveniency of the People in Nec ante in Pratorium rediit, quam flagrance tri- feveral places of the Town; and were called clinio ex conceptu camini. Horace writes to his Sterqulinia , covered and full of Spunges , as Friend to get a good fire in his chimney.

Diffelve frigus, ligna Super foce, Large reponens. Od. 9. l. 1.

truvius speaking of the cornishes that are made ber. in Chambers, give warning to make them where they make fire. However, in those Temples. Ancients: but Pancirollus, and many others wotes in time of need. affirm the contrary. Wherefore, without that he had removed his Stove, because the Dram-Pipe thro which the fire came out, was under his Chamber, Hypocausta in alterum apodythe like value, so that the Dram may be fira, ut corum vaporarium, ex que ignis crumpit, cf- Money. let lubjectum cubiculo.

to warm their rooms but also of the Beams of the head whereof was drawn in Silver, and the Sun, which they gathered in some Kilns, the rest of the Body was of Taffery, hung as we do with our Burning-glasses. This up at the top of a Pike, fluttering in the Kiln was called in Greek in 10ke un Gr, and in Air like a Dragon, and out of it hung down Latin Solarium, or folare vaporarium, and it was great Bands with tufis of Silk at the end. not allowed to plant Trees, that might be a DRACO, A Dragon, to called from hindrance to the gathering of the Beams of Jegue, to see plain, to be clear-sighted; and the Sun, as Ulpian fays.

Here we must explain two difficulties, viz. [where the persons who had no Slaves went fons were called latring from lavando, ac-'Tis certain, that in former ages men had cording to the Atymology of M. Varro; for erat velut latrina particularis.

The Publick Necessary Houses for the day we learn of Scnees in his Epiftles: As for the night, they had running Waters thro all the Streets of Rome, and there they threw all their ordure; but rich men used Pans, which the Servants emptied into the Sinks, that Tully writing to his Friend Atticus, tells him, carried all their Waters into the great Sink Camino Luculento, tibi utendum cenfee. And Vi- of the Town, and from thence into the Ti-

DONARIA, Gifts and Prefents plain and without Carver's work in places offered to the Gods, and hung up in their ages if they had any chimneys like ours, they DONATIVUM, A Gift and Largels were very rare. Blondus and Salmush fay, in Money, which the Emperors bestowed that chimneys were not in use among the upon Soldiers, to get their affection and DRACHMA, A Dram, a kind of deciding absolutely the question, 'tis most weight, composed of two Scruples, and certain they had Kilnsto warm their Cham- each Scruple of two oboli; and so a Dram bers, and other apartments of their Houses, was fix oboli. As for the proportion that the called Fornaccs vaporaria; and Stoves called Dram of the Greek did bear with the Ounce Hypocausta. Philander fays, that the Kilns were of the Romans, Q. Remnus in his Poem of under ground, built along the Wall, with Weights and Measures, makes the Dram the small Pipes to each story to warm the Rooms. eighth part of an Ounce, which is not much They had also Stoves that were removed different from the Crown of the Arabians. from one Room to another; for Tully writes which weighs fomething more than the terii angulum promovi, propterea quod ita erant po- worth about Sevenpence Halfpenny of English

DRACONARIUS, The Dragon-The Romans did not only make use of Wood bearer, the standard of the Roman Infantry.

for his watchfulnels this Animal is dedicated It doth not appear, neither by the writings to Minirua. 'Tis faid that he loves Gold. or buildings that remain of the Ancients, wherefore a Dragon watched the Golden that they had Privies in their Houses. And Fleece at Colchos, and the Golden Apples of what they call latrinas were publick places, the Garden of the Hesperides; and 'tis re-

Hair tuckt up with Treffes of Gold.

Thus Cefar speaks of them 1.4. of the Wars of very short passage to an Immortal Life. of Youth. If there is any Murther or Crime of Oak, that their youth gathered the first committed, or Suit at Law about an Inhe- day of January. ritance, or some other Dispute, they decide DRYADES, The Nymphs of the it, ordaining Punishments and Rewards; Woods. and when a Man won't stand to their Judgties, and die without Honour and Repuration.

All the Druides have an High Priest, who has an absolute Power. After his Death the most worthy among them succeeds him, and if there are many Pretenders to his Office, the Election is decided by Votes, and fometimes by force of Anns. They met every Year in the Country of Chartres, which is in the middle of Gaul, in a place confecrated who are at Law, or at Variance met from all places, and frand to their Decitions.

"Tis thought that their Inflitution came fect knowledge of their Mysteries, traveli'd War, and are free from all Taxes and Sla- the good of the State. very, wherefore many get into their order, and every one puts in for a place among learn by heart a great number of Veries;

to engage. Lucian tells us, that they were toribus ante cunt cum facibus duobur.

perted that the Dragon of Pallar dwelt near the Authors of the Doctrine of the Immorta-Abens, because the Atkeniaus did wear their lity of the Soul, which made the Gauls undaunted Men, having a generous contempt DRUIDÆ, The Priest of the Ancient Gauls. of Death, which was in their opinion, but a

the Gauls. 'The Druides of the first Order are The Origine of the word Druides is derived Overseers of the worship of the Gods and from the Greek , Seus, i. e. an Oak, because Religion, and have the direction of both they commonly met in the Forrests, where Publick and Private Affairs, and teaching they began their Sacrifices with the Milletoe

DRYOPE, A Nymph of Arcadia. ment, they suspend him from communica- Homer says, that Dryope kept company with ting in their Mysteries. And those who Mercury, who begot upon her God Pan; Luare so excommunicated, are accounted wick- cian on the contrary, in the Dialogue between ed and impious, and every Body shuns their Pan and Mercury tells us, that he is the Son Conversation; if they are at law with other of Penelope, the Daughter of Icarus, whom Men, they can have no Justice, and are ad- Mercury ravish'd in Arcadia, having transormimitted neither to Employments nor Digni- ed himself into a He-Goat to surprize her : Wherefore Pan was born with Horns, a Beard, a Tail, and the Feet of a She-Goat.

DUCENARII, The Receivers of the hundredth penny, a Tax that was paid to the Roman Emperors.

DUUM-VIRI SACRORUM. The Duum viri, or the two Magistrates, whom Tarquinius Superbus created at Rome, a Dignity that was a kind of Priesthood. This Office was fet up upon this occasion: Tarquinum and appointed for that purpole, where those having bought of an unknown Woman three Books of Verses, which were thought to have been written by the Sybil of Cuma, he named two Magistrates or Commissaries for from Brittain, and those who will have per- the Books of Religion, and all their Duty was to keep their Books, and confult them in into that Country. They never follow the fome cases, about what was to be done for

DUUM-VIRI MUNICIPALES. These two Magistrates were in the free them for his Son or Kinsman. They must Towns, what Consuls were at Rome. They were chosen out of the Body of the Decurions, for it is forbid to write them, either to ex- on the Kalends of March, but did not enter ercise their Memory, or lest they should upon their Onice until three Months after profane the Mysteries in publishing them; their Election, that the People might have wherefore they remain sometimes twenty time to inquire if they were duly elected, and Years in the College. In other things they in case of an undue return, they chose omake use of writing in Greek Chaucters, thers. They took the Oath, that they would One of the chiefest points of their Theole- lierve the City and Citizens well and faithfulgy is the Immortality of the Soul, as a pro-11y, and were allowed to wear the Robe calfitable Belief, that inclines Men to Vertue led Pratexta, edged about with Purple, and a by contempt of Death. They hold Metemp- white Tunick or Jerkin, as Juvenal tells us, hickoft, and have many Dogma's of Theo- Satyr 5. They had Officers who walked belogy and Philosophy, which they teach their fore them, carrying a small Switch in their Hands. Nevertheless, some of them assumed Diodorous Siculus joins the Druides to Poets in the priviledge of having Listors carrying the Authority of cronouncing the Sovertign Axes and bundles of Rods before them, as Judges, about Controverlies of Private Men | we bearn of Tully in the Oration against Rullus, and States, and a bonding the Armies ready | Anteibant Liftores non cum bacillis, fed at hic Pra-fice, it was a custom to make a distribution among the Decurions, and have some Shaw of Gladiators represented before the People. This Office was commonly for five years, wherefore they were called Quinquennales Magistratus. Their Jurisdiction was of a great extent, as we may fee in the Treatife of Pancirollus C. 8. DUUM-VIRI NAVALES, Commissaries for the Fleet. These Commissaries were created in the Year 542, at the request of M. Decius Tribune of the People, when the Romans were at War with the Sammites. The Duty of their Office was to take care of the fitting of Ships, and ordering the Seamen who were aboard.

DUUM-VIRI CAPITALES The Duumvirs, firnamed Capitales or Judges in Criminal Caufes. It was lawful to appeal from their Sentence to the People, who only had power to condemn a Citizen to die. Some of these Judges were established at Rome and other free Cities; who were taken from the body of the Decurions, and had a great Authority and Power; for they took care of the Prisons, and were Members of the Publick Council. They had two Lictors walking before them.

F Is the fifth Letter of the Greek and Latin Alphabet. The Greeks call it & LAdy , and the Latins E.

We find this Letter in the Medals of Antoninus firnamed Pius, to mark the fifth Year of his Reign. The Latins have feveral pronounciations for this Letter. First, they have a long and open E, like the #ra of the Greeks, which for that same reason is often doubled, as in Medals and upon Marbles ; Feelix, Seeder, &c. The fecond E of the Latins is a short and closed E. as the ELIADY of Greeks: And these two different E's are distinctly observed in Ancient. Authors. E vocalis, fays Capella, duarum Gracarum vim poffidet. Nam cum corripiter E Gracum eff, ut ab hoc hofte, cum producitur Eta eff, ut ab

But there is yet a middle pronounciation between the E and the I. Wherefore Varro observes that they said veam instead of viam? and Festus observes that the me instead of mi or mihi : and Quintilian tells us, that an E was ned away to a Skeleton, having nothing left put instead of an I in Menerua, Leber, Magester, but her voice. When we read in Virgil, we instead of Minerva, Liber, Magister. Livy Wiote cifque offensa resultat image, or in Horace, Cuja

After they had taken possession of their Of- | Sebe and quase. And Donatus fays, that because the affinity of these two Letters, the Antient Authors faid Heri and Here, Mane and Mani, Vefpero and Vefpere, &c. Wherefore we read in the ancient Inscriptions Navebus, exemet, ornawet, cepet, Deans, mereto, foledas, and the like. And from thence comes the change of their two Vowels in fo many words, either in the Nominative Case, as Impubes and Impubis, or the Accusative as pelvem and pelvim; or the Ablative, as nave and navi, and the like names of the third Declension, and in the second, as Di instead of Dei.

The Latins also write E instead of A, wherefore Quintilian fays, that Care wrote indifferently dicam or ditem, faciam or faciem. And doubtless this is the reason why A was so often changed into E, either in the præterit, as Facio, feci ; Ago, egi ; Jacio, jeci ; or in the compound Verbs, as Arceo, coerceo, Damme, condemno; Spargo, aspergo; from this also it comes that they faid balare instead of belare, as we fee in Varro's writings; and that we mee with fo many words written with an E for an A in Antient Authors Books, and old Gloffes, as Defetigari instead of defatigari; Van. Effligi instead of affligi, Charis. Expars instead of expers. Imbarbis instead of Imberbis. V. Glof. Inars instead of of iners. V. Glof.

It must be still observed, that the E has fome affinity with the O, for the Latins have made of tego, toga; of adverlum, advortum; of werten, worten ; accipiter instead of accipitor, & Feftus fays; hemo instead of homo; ambe and ambes instead of ambo and ambos in Ennius writings; exportedus inflead of expertedus. This is also the reason why there are so many Adverbs in E and in O, vere and vere: tute and tuto; nimie and nimio; rare and rare; in Charifius's writings, and the like.

Likewise the E has an affinity with the U; wherefore they faid Diu instead of Die ; Lucu instead of luce ; Allum instead of allex the great Toe ; Dejero instead of dejure ; Neptunus inftead of Nuptunus, à nubendo terram. i. c. operiendo, as fays Tully.

EACUS. See ÆACUS. EANUS, instead of JANUS, as Tid-

ly calls him. ECASTOR. By Caffor's Temple, an Oath of the ancient Romans, which may be rendred into English by truly, indeed, co-

ECHO. A Nymph of the air, who fell in love with Narciffus, but being flighted by him, the retired into the Grots, and hollow places of the Mountains, where the pirecinet jocofa nomen imago : Or in Claudian.

Tune silva, tune antra loqui, tune vivere fontes Tune facer horror aquir, aditifque effunditur E.

Clarior, & docta spirant prasagia rupes.

When we read, I say, these fine passages of the Poets, we can't but conceive this repeating of the found and voice in the like manner. that we have told before, which has given occasion to Ovid to feign that it was a Nymph who being faln in love with Narciffus, and own brain. having made love to him ineffectually, was turned into a voice and found.

Inde latet Glvis, nulloque in monte videtur, Omnibus auditur ; Jonus est qui vivit in illa.

EGERIA, See ÆGERIA. EGISTUS, See ÆGISTUS.

more nimble and fit for Exercises. Vitr.

ELECTRA. The Daughter of Agamemnon, and Sifter to Orefler, who killed his Mo- phers opinions, fays, that Empedacles admits ther Clytemnestra, to revenge the death of his of four Elements, which he calls Gods. Father Agamemnon, whom Clytemnestra had Thales was the first who taught that Water musthered in revenge of Polyxenes her Daugh- was the principle of all things. Heraclitus of ter, facrificed by him.

the Daughter of the Ocean and Tethis, and At- called invisible Bodies. lai's Wife , whose Daughter had by Jupiter,! The Pythagoreans, besides Water and Fire, Dardanus the founder of Troy. Gratus in his allowed till Air and Earth for principles of Phænomenon fays, that the is one of the feven all things Pleiader, who hid herseif, lest she should see ELENCUS, The God of Liberty and the destruction of Troy.

Adriatick Sea, which are at the mouth of the bad Grammarian. River Po, where Poets feigned that there | ELEUSIS, A City of citica, not far off grew Trees distilling Amber.

Treatife of the Amber or the Swans.

Eridanus grew Trees distilling Amber, which helped his wife in her labour, as Lactantius failing lately on that River, and not feeing this Goddefs. any of those Trees on the Banks, where the | Solinus relates, that there is in that Country at those places so famous among the Poets. they were pleas'd with Harmony. They fell a laughing at my simplicity, and ELEUSINA SACRA, The My-wondered any were so insolent, as to retail steril ste that if their Country afforded any fuch Trees, as produced fo great a Treasure, they would not wear our their lives in tugging at the Oar, fince they might enrich themselves in a moment. This nettled and put me very much out of countenance, in that I had thus fufferred my felf to be fo child-'ishly cull'd by the Poets, and I regretted these things, as if I had really lost them.

Strabo 1.5. affirms that thefe Elettrides Islands are not to be found, and that all that Poets fav upon this matter, was but a fiction of their ELEGIA. An Elegy, or a mournful Poem. The verses of a Latin Elegy are by turns Hexameters and Pentameters.

Quintilian accounts Tibullus to be the first Latin Poet for writing Elegies; but the younger Pliny gives the preference to Pre-

ELEMENTA, the Elements, Physi-EL EOTHESIUM. A place where cal Principles, whereof all the natural Bodies they kept Oyl and Wax mixt to anoint the are composed. The ancient Philosophers, as Wrestlers. This mixture was also called Pythageras and Aristotle, allowed four Elements, Cerema, and did not only render the members wiz. the Fire, the Air, the Water and the flippery and less fit to take hold on, but also Earth. Carret and the Moderns allow but rhree.

Plutarch in the first Book of the Philoso-Ephelus faid, that it was Fire. Democritus and There was another woman of that name, Epicurus his Follower were for the Atoms, Truth, mentioned in Manander's Comedies. ELECTRIDES, The Islands of the as we learn of Lucian in his Apophrades, or the from Athens, where Eleusius reigned, who re-Lucian speaks thus of these Islands, in the ceived Geres, when she was feeking for Proferpina her Daughter, who had been stoln away. Hearing when a youth, that all along the. This Goddess in reward of her kindness, was the tears of Phaeton's Sisters, who had fays, and succeed the Child called Triptolemus, been turned into Poplars, and still lamented with Divine Milk. When he was grown up his difaster, I imagined if I ever travelled a man, she taught him to sow Corn : wherethat way, I would spread my Garment un- fore the Inhabitants of Eleusis kept Holy-days derneath to catch that precious Liquor, but called Thesmophores, or Cerceles, in honour of name of Phaeton is not so much as known, I a Fountain of very quiet Waters, which are asked our Waterman when we should arrive yet moved with the sound of the Flute, as if and spread about such shams. They added, Inhabitants of the City of Eleuss in Greece, in honour of the Goddess Geres; no Man was admitted to these Mysteries, but only Women, who took all immodest Liberties among themselves, which they kept very fecret.

ELEUTHERIA, Feafts celebrated in Greece every fifth Year in Honour of Jupite Eleutherianus, i. e. Protettor of Liberty. Greeks instituted these Feasts, after the defeat Country, wherefore they called it a Paraof three hundred thousand Persians, whom dice.

Mardonius brought against Greece. There were still some other Feasts called Eleutheria, celebrated by the Samians in honour of the God of Love.

fo variously spoken of by ancient Writers. ed the abode of Felicity, Elysum, Beaterson Is-Elyfum is doubtless an Hebrew or a Phanician fuls. Some Authors say that this place is in

All the Nations have made themselves a and inaccessible to Men. Paradice and a Hell; the Phanicians shew'd example to the Egyptions and the Greeks; and the World, mentions the white Illand in the tis very likely that the Meadow, mentioned black Sea, called also the Isle of the Heroes, by Diodorus Siculus, in the description he has where Achilles and the other Heroes dwellleft us of the Egyption's Funerals, was the fince their death, by the favour of Jupitor, Elysian Field of Egyps, which he placed about who rewards Virtue. Memphis, very near the Athersafian Lake, which Italy had also her Elysian Fields, as Virgil dows, because 'tis the Egyptians Burial place, that Eness went to see them, and there mee who carry the Corps of the Dead over the Anchifor his Father. Acherusian Lake. Pratum filta mertuerum babitatio, eft lecus propè Memphim junta Paludem, quam vecant Acherufiam, circa quam funt prata amanissima. Apposite autem dicit Homerus martuas ifis in locis Habitare, quoniam maxima Egyptiorum funerationes ibi peraguntur; mertui per lacum & fluvium Acherufiam transfretantur.

Country; and if we believe what Strabe says, ed by a Cherubim, armed with a Flaming they are in Spain. And Preteur King and Prophet of Egyps foretold to Menelaus, that the where is Rhadomonthus, and where Men live But he feems to allow two Paradices for just very pleasantly; there falls neither Snow Men; and the most excellent of these Pars nor Rain, and there is no Winter, but Zephire dices is granted to them after they have kept cool Men with their fweet breath.

Strabe applies this description to Spain, and affirms that the Fortnnate Islands are so called, because they are in the Neighbourhood of Spain.

Diodorus Siculus has made a description o them, which is yet extant. Horace speaks of these Klands, famous for servedly inserted here.

their Riches.

Ereptum Stygiis flutlibus Æacum Virtus & favor, & lingua petentiam. Vatum divitibus consecrat insulis.

Hefied placed the Heroes in the Isle of the Bleffed, which lies in the Ocean ; therefore the ancient Geographers have placed an Elyfies Field and a River Lethe there.

The Phanicians found abundance of Riches The in Spain, and that it was a very pleasant

But after the Fortunate Islands were discovered, and the Treafures of Spain were almost wasted, there they placed the Elysian Fields. and called those Islands the Isles of the Bles-ELISA, Otherwife called Dide, the fed. Plate gave that name to the Paradice or Daughter of Belas King of Phenicia, v. Dide. Dwelling place of Just Men. Helychise dif-ELYSII CAMPI, The Elysian Helds, covers fome other places, that were accountword, which fignifies a place of Delight and Egypt; others in the Isle of Leiber, and many others in a place stricken with a Thunderbolt, Dienyfius, who has made the description of

is furrounded with most delightful Meadows. relates in the 6th Book of the Entid, where Homer says that dead Men inhabit these Mea- he places the Elgian Fields in Italy, and says, Plutarch places the Elysian Fields in the Moon. And when Helychius faid that some Writers thought the Elylan Fields were in a place inacceffible to Men, because of the Thunderbolts and stormy weather, it seems that he makes allusion to the Terrestrial Paradice mentioned in the Holy Scripture, Befides these Elfien Fields, Homer speaks from whence Adam was driven away after of some others, which are in a very remote his Sin, and the entry whereof was guard-Sword.

Pindarus makes a very fine description of Gods will fend you to the Elyfon Fields, the Paradice and Happiness of just Man their Innocency during three feveral Lives. and in three several Bodies.

Scatins is also for two Paradices, one in Heaven, and the other in the Elyfan Fields upon the Earth.

Lucian has left us a very pleasant description of the Elysian Fields, which may be de-

'We were conducted to the City of the Isle of the Bleffed, to affift at their Feefts, we were ravished at our entrance to lees City of Gold, and Walls of Emerald, the Pavement all in-laid work of Ebony and monds, with great Altars raifed upon one concerning natural things. He taught fingle precious Stone, on which Hecatombs that nothing living ought to be eaten, and were feen to fmoak. They have feven that the feat of the Soul was not the Head Gates all of Cinnamon, and a Moat of nor the Heart, but the Blood; and because 'fweet scented Lustral Water, a hundred he wore brass Slippers, Lucian calls him in vards broad, which was only as deep as was necessary to bath in at ones ease. Yet they have publick Baths of admirable Artifice, genes Laertius ascribes his Death to pride and wherein they burn nothing but Faggots of 'Cinnamon. The Edifice was of Crystal, and the Basins or Bathing Tubs great Vessels of Porcelain full of Dew. Now the Bleffed have no Body, and are inpalrable; yet they drink and eat, and perform the other natural functions; they never grow old, but remain continually at the Age they dye in, being that old Men there recover their Beauty and Vigour. Of all the Seasons they know none but the Spring, and feel no oother Wind but Zephirus, but the Earth is covered with Flowers and Fruits all the " Year long, which are gathered every month, and they are faid to bear twice in the " Month called Mins: Their Ears, instead of Corn, are loaded wirh little Loaves like Mushrooms. There are three hundred fixty five Fountains of fresh Water, and as 'many of Honey, and four hundred of fweet ' Oyntment, but smaller than the others, with feveral Rivers of Milk and Wine. They keep their Feasts without the City in the Elysian Fields under the shade of a Wood, which furrounded it, there they fat upon Beds of Flowers, and have their Meat brought by the Winds. They are at no pains to make Garlands, for the little Birds, which hop round finging, fcatter Flowers upon them, which they have pillaged in the neighbouring Meadows; they never cease singing during the Meal, and rehearfing curious fine Verses. Their Dances are compos'd of Boys and Virgins, and their Mufick-Mafters are Eunomus, Arion, Ansereon, and Steficborus. When they have finished their Songs, appears a fecond Quire of Muficians, composed of Swans and Nightingales, which with the Zephirs make up a most pleasant Consort. But what furnishes most to the felicity of the Blessed is, that there are two Springs, the one of Laughter and the other of Joy, of which each Man drinks a whetting Brusker, before he sets down to Table, which renders him gay and chearful all the rest of the day.

ELPENOR, One of Ulyffer's Companions, whom Circe turned into a Hog, and being restored to his former shape, fell down along a Stair-cafe, and killed himfelf. -

ELYSIJ CAMPI, See before, after

EMPEDOCLES, A Philosopher Ivory. The Temples of Rubies and Dia- and a Poet of Agrigentum, who wrote Verses jest Mr Supperman. He cast himself into the mouth of the burning Mountain Ætna. Dioprefumption, that the People finding him no where, might conceive he was taken up into Heaven; other Writers ascribe it to Melancholy, and some others to a meer Accident. Lucian in his Icaromenippus, introduces Menippus fpeaking thus to Empedecles. Being at a great loss upon this account, fays he, Empedocles appear'd to me black like a Collier, as if he had been just then disembogued out of Mount Æms. I retired at first, thinking it was a Fantome, or some Dæmon of the Lunar-Globe, but he re-incouraged me, by telling me his Name, and informed me, how the smoak which came out of that burning Mountain had carried him up thither, where he now dwelt, and skipt up and down feeding upon Dew This having faid, he vanished out of my fight, after I had promifed to make him, at my return, effusions upon the tunnel of my Chimney, and to invoke him three times at the New-Moon: for which he thanked me, and answered like a true Philosopher , that he had not done it for Reward, but only for the love of Virtue. EMPOUSA, An ancient Fantome, and an excellent Dancer, as Lucian fays. Euflathius tells us, that it was a frighting Hobgoblin dedicated to Hesate ; and this Fantome turn'd herself into several shapes, as Suides and Aristophanes report. And was called Empousa, because the walked only upon one Foot. Some Writers affure that it was Hecate her-ielf, or one of the I amie or She-Devils. ENCHALABRIS, A kind of a Table that the Priest set up, whereupon the Victim that was killed, was stretched out to view its Inwards. ENCHALABRIA, The Veffels wherein they put the Inwards of the Victims

after they were viewed.

ENCELADUS, The Stoutest of the Giants, who, according to the Fable, made war against the Gods. Jupiter ftruck him with his Thunderbolt, and threw Mount Æins upon him, having his Body half burnt, as Virgil tells us after Homer.

Fama est Enceladi femi-uftum fulmine corpus, Urgeri mole bac.

stolen away by Night in a deep Sleep, and made King of the Lunar-Globe, according this opinion, when he says that it was a to the Fable, as Lucian tells us.

But the truth is, that Endymion gave himself much to the contemplation of the Moon, to observe her changes and motions, and improwed fo far in that study, that it was reported that he had lain with her.

Some Writers tell us that Endymion was a very Just King of Elis, who obtained of Jupiter to fleep for ever.

Some others fay, that Endymien loved much to Sleep, whereupon arose that Proverb of a fleepy and flothful Fellow : Endymienis fomnum dermit. He fleeps like Endymion.

ENEAS, See Eneas. ments are yet Extant. His stile was harsh and unpolished.

paffed that way to wrestle with him. But at last he met with Hercules, as he was coming from the Garden of Hesperides, who took him up into the air, and frrangled him with his Arm, having observed that his strength renewed every time he threw him on the Earth his Mother. Esteus is the Emblem of Vo-Juptuousness, and Hercules of Reason, which that a Man can obtain, is to overcome Voluptuousness. And Scipie ordered the following words to be engraved upon his Tomb.

Maxima cunttarum Victoria, victa Voluptas.

ENYALIUS. A God of the Sabins called by them and the Romans, Quirinus; 'tis not well known whether it be Mars, or some other Divinity bearing an equal sway with mous for the Temple of Diana, which was him. They danced facred Dances in his accounted one of the feven wonders of the Temple.

EOLUS. See Æolus.

EPEUS. The Son of Endymion, who was an excellent Ingineer among the Greeks and among other warlike Engines, invented the ling of the Temple of Diana, and all her Pro-Battering Ram or Raven, to beat down the vinces had contributed towards the charges of Walls of the Towns: Virgil fays, that he that great defign. This City was from all made the Horse that was carried into Troy.

EPHEBEUM, A place for young Boys in Greece. For Hebe in Greek fignifies ferves that there were spells ingraven on the

He was the Son of Turturus or Abyfins and the is the time that the Boys begun to wreftle and exercise themselves: and all the Inter-ENDYMIO, A Shepherd, who was preters agree, that the Ephebium was a place for these Exercises, and Virtuvius establishes place where was many Seats.

EPHEMERIDES. Registers or Day-Books calculated by Astronomers, to mark the state of Heaven every day at mid-day, i. a. the place where all the Planets meet at noone and these Journals are made use of draw Horoscopes or Celestial Schemes.

EPHESTIO, A Favourite of Alexander the Great, whom he ranked among the Gods after his Death, and those who refused to acknowledge Epheftion for a God, were guilty of a high crime against Alexander; for he had not only been at the charges of many Millions for his Funeral Pomp, but the Ci-ENNIUS, An Ancient Latin Poet ties had built Temples and Altars in his hoborn at Tarentum, or in Calabria. He had nour; and there was no greater Oath taken written several Books, whereof some Frag- but by his name, and to ridicule these things was a crime deferving death. For the Courtiers, to flatter the Paffion of Alexander, told ENT & US, A predigious Giant, the him many tales and visions; that Ephestion had Son of the Earth, who was threescore Cubits appeared to them in a dream; that he cured high. He inhabited the Wilderness of Lybis, men who called upon him; relating false Or and dwelt in a Cross-way, where he commit-racles, and acknowledging him for their Proted many Robberies, and obliged Men who tector; wherefore Alexander, having his ear continually battered with these discourtes, at last believed them, and applauded himself that he could make a God, which was a greater thing than to be a God himself. And there were then many good men who fell into his displeasure, because they would not comply with his passion, or shew'd some distafte for this madness. Captain Agathela overcomes Senfuality. Superata tellus Siders had been exposed to be devoured by Lyons, donat, fays Beetius; and the greatest Victory because he had shed tears at Ephession's Grave, as if he had been Mortal, had not Perdican took his Oath by the Gods, and especially by Epheflion, that this new God had appeared to him while he was a hunting, and had bid him to report to Alexander that he should pare don Agatheeles, for having fled tears at the remembrance of his Friend, and that he was to take pity of humane infirmity.

EPHESUS, A City of Apo, very faworld. This City was built by the Amazon, and then augmented by Andrecus the Son of Asia was two hundred years about the buildtimes much given to Magical Arts, and there were fpells publickly fold. Euftathius ob R f - age, which is at fourteen Years, and this Feet, the Girdle, and the Crown of the State tue of Diana.

wealth, of Lacedemonian Magistrates, like the Pandera came to him from Jupiter, and pre-Tribunes among the Romans, their office was fented him with a Box, wherein all the evils to restrain and curb the authority of the of Nature were inclosed. At the opening of Kings of Sparts.

E-PI

the reign of Theopomyus, to be Ministers and al- bottom of the Box. fiftants to the Kings in the administration of that they attempted to reform their Kings and of the Sepulchers. punish them, as they did in the person of Arried a woman of little fize. And they im- women, Good merrow. prisoned Agis, as Pausanius relates.

EPICHARMUS, A Pythagorean Philosopher, who first invented Comedies, and has left us fome rules concerning the fame.

EPICTETUS. A Stoick Philosopher. born at Hierapolis in Phrygia. Slave to Epaphreditus, Nere's Favorite, who comprehended all Philosophy in these two words, bear and forbear, and was fo much efteemed that Lucian fays, that his Lamp, though it was but Earthen-ware, was fold for 2000 Attick Groats, which is about 92 Pounds of English Money.

This Philosopher lived till the time of M. Antoninus, and has left us a Manual, which feems rather the work of a Christian than of a Stoick Philosopher, speaking so well of the contempt of Riches, Sobriety, and submission the name of the persons, with the word of to the Will of God. Arianus his Disciple has greeting XAIPE: yet the Greeks added often published four Books of his Sayings or to their Epitaphs the words MPHETO Z and Sentences, wherein he shews that he had much | HPOZ, tho all the Men for whom these Epiimproved under so good a Master.

EPICURUS, A famous Philosopher: Author of the Epicurean Sect. He was Difciple both to Democritus the great laugher, dead, with the name of his Father and and Arifippus a very debauched man; and Tribe. was, fays Lucian, more impious and debauched than all of them together, yet good company and a lover of Feasting. He placed the chief Felicity in pleasure and voluptuousnels of mind, which brings tranquility to the Soul and Body.

EPIDAURUM, A City of Sclavenia, now Ragula. This City was confecrated to as in the following Inscription. Æsculapius, and the Epidaurians built him a magnificent Temple, wherein the Statue of ry of Trasimeder's work, an excellent Sculpto of that time.

EPIMENIDES, A Philosopher and a Poet of Crees, who stopt the Plague with a Sacrifice of Sheep, which he offered to the unknown God of the Athenians, mentioned Julius Lamprocles has dedicated this Monument. by St Paul. 'Tis faid that he fell afleep in a Cave, where he flept seven and fifty years.

EPIMETHEUS, The Son of Japetus,

EPHORI. Overseers of the Common- to accept of any present from Jupiter. But the Box all these evils flew out and filled They were chosen five in number, thirty the Earth with Difeases and Calamities, and vears after the death of Lycurgus, during the there remained nothing bur hope only at the

EPITAPHIA, Epitaphs, Infcriptions Inflice. But their Authority grew fo great, fet on the Tombs of the dead, or the Marbles

The Greeks fer on only the name of the chidamus, whom they fined, because he mar- dead, with these Epithets, Good man, or Good > NIKON ZHNONOZ XPHETE XAIPE. Nicon the Son of Zenon. Good man. Good morrow.

> > OVTMTIAZ XPHETH. XAIPE. Olympia. Good weman. Good morrow.

Paulanius observes that the custom among the Sicyonians was to fet on the Tombs only taphs were written, were not Heroes, as this word fignifies.

The Athenians fet on only the name of the

The Remens added at the top of their Epitaphs Diis Monibus, which was fometimes expreffed only by Halves.

DIS. MAN. And very often with two Letters D. M. and the Roman Natives wrote their Epitaphs in Greek, O. K. i.e. QEOIS. KATAXOONIOIS, that God was fet up, made of Gold and Ivo- IOTAIO! AAKAIO! HATPI ETEBHETATO. ΙΟΥΛΙΟΣ ΛΑΜΠΡΟΚΛΗΣ To the Gods Manes.

To Julius Alczus his Father very Pious,

This Epitaph and the like are of Romans who inhabited Greece, or of Greeks living at Brother to Prometheus, who had forbad him Rome; and 'tis not likely that the Natives of Greece, and especially, those who lived before they were Subjects to the Romans, dedicated thus their Tombs to the Gods Mones. The Romans were also used to introduce their Dead, speaking in the Epitaphs.

C. JULIUS C. L. BARNÆUS. OLLAM EJUS SI QUI VIOLARIT, INFEROS NON RECIPIATUR

C. Julius Barnaus, Freed-man of Caius, lies here, if any Man prophanes his Urn . don's let bim be admitted in Hell.

Sometimes their Epitaphs were full of moral Expressions, adorned with fine Carvingwork and Architecture, which not only ferved for an Ornament to their Monuments, i. e. velpera, nox. Poets take him for Hell. but also for an Instruction to posterity, by the Atchievements they represented, and the moral thoughts thereby fuggested.

EPULONES, Ministers of the Sacrifices of the Gods. Pomponius Latus relates their History, taken out of a Passage in Cicero de Oratore, viz. 'The Pontiffs not being able to attend all the Sacrifices that were offered at Rome, upon the Altars of fo many many times, to get Money for the mainte-Gods who were ador'd there, ordain'd three nance of her Father; but her cunning was at ' Ministers whom they called Epulmes to attend the Holy Feast at the Solemn Games. He adds, that this Priefthood was very anciwas instituted in the year 553, during the the Banquet Jovis Evulum.

we fitting at his fides. The Sacrifice being over, the Gods were ferved as if they were having against the order of Minerus open'd Function for them.

EPULUM, A Banquet, a hobj Prast prepared for the Gods; their Statue was commonly laid upon a Bed, and they were ferved as if they had been hungry; but this was the Function of the Ministers of the Sacrifice, called for the reason Epulenee. ERAT The The of the Mu e of the Mulet, who ru-

ERATOSTHENES. Philosopher, Scholar to Ariflo and Galliman chus, Library Keeper at Alexandria to Ptolement Evergetes King of Egypt. He was besides, a Grammarian, a Poet, a Philosopher, and was called for his Learning, the second Plate. He was also skilful in Astronomy, and the first Man who corrected some mistakes of ancient Astronomers: he died in the 82 year of his Age.

ERATOSTRATUS, A Man of Ephelus, who fet on fire the Temple of Diana, to perpetuate his Name to posterity. The Ephelians to disappoint him, under severe per nalties forbad the mentioning his Name.

EREBUS, A God of Hell, born of the Chaos and Darkness. 'Tis also the Inferior part of the Earth, from the Hebrew Ereb, and Firgil for a River of Hell.

ERESICTHON, A Theffalian, who deftroved a Forest consecrated to Ceru. and was therefore so cruelly punished by Famine, that having confumed all his Wealth. he was obliged to fell his Daughter Metra. who having obtained of Neptune the ability of transforming herfelf, the fold herfelf a great last discovered, and Eresiction forced to eat his own Fleih.

ERICTEUS, The fixth King of Aent, the' no Man can tell exactly the time of them, brought up by Minerva. He had a the Inffigurion thereof. Livy tells us, that it Daughter called Creafs of an extraordinary Beauty, whom Apello enjoyed, and begot a Confulate of Fulpius Purpurio and Marcellus, and Son by her called Janus. Eritieus married her that there were but three created upon the to Kipheur, who had no Children by her; motion of T. Romalius. The priviledge of wherefore he had his recourse to Jupiter, to wearing the Gown edg'd with Purple like defire of hith a worthy Successor to reign in the Pontiffs, was granted to them. After- his room after his death. Apollo by an Oracle wards their Number, was increased to seven, rendred upon the Trips at Delphi, ordered him to whom Julius Cafar, added three more to to take for his Son the first Man he should make up the number of ten. Their Duty | meet and by chance, or rather by the care was to furnish Banquets for Jupiter, and the of his Wife Creufe, he met the young Jones. other Gods of his Retinue, at their publick Erittem took him to be his Son, and brought Sports, or at the Birth of Emperors; where- him up like the Son of a King. But James fore these Officers were called Epalents, and couch'd with an eager defire of reigning, forfook Athem, and went into Italy. The Histo-Jupiter was there lying upon a Bed, with a rical and Poetical Dictionary on the contrary Pillow under his Head, and June with Miner- fays, that Eriffens had some Daughters. who grew mad, and precipitated themselves, for able to eat; the Endows performed that the Cheff, wherein the Serpent born of the Seed of Valcan was lock'd up; but Tally in his Oration for series tays, that these Princess were very light, and died for the defence of their Country

ERICTON, The Fourth King of Athens, born of the Earth like his Predecessor, as the Athenians fay. Some Writers tell us that he was born of the Seed of Pulcan fpilt on Coaches, to hide the deformity of his feet, coming of the Son of God, and the Day of which were like the feet of a Dragon.

in the fourth book of the Argonautes, relates recorded by Sixtus Senensis. this Fable. They entred far off into the River Eridanus, where Phaeton being struck on word is derived the Stomach with a Thunderbolt fell half burnt off the Sun's Chariot into a Lake, the Waters whereof cast forth a vapour so infealious, that no Bird can fly over it without dying. Round about it, how fwift foever be the Lake, are the Heliades his Sifters turned into Poplars, and their Tears are flowing Amber. But all this is fabulous, as Lucion lown. tells us. See Elettrides.

ERINNY S, The name of one of the Futhem all, who torture guilty Consciences on The three Furies were, Tifephone, Aletto and ed fome little Hills called by those names. Megars, and draw their etymology from the Greek TIGIGOVA, TIGIS COVE, ultio cadis : ANNTO. quietunescia ; proparea ediosa.

vengers of the wrong done to the poor.

ERYMANTUS, A Mountain in Ar-away alive upon his Shoulders.

and Sifter to King Adrastus, who for a Brace- Jocasta seeing that they were both slain, murlet of Gold given her by Polinices, discovered dered herself. to him the place where her Husband was hid, with the covetouinels of his Wife, he com- of the Dog-days. manded his Son Aleman to murther his Mother as foon as he should hear of his death, of Garments, who for his Eloquence orders.

of this Sibyl. Eufebius in the life of Constantine name of his great Grand-father. tells us, that Confiantine repeated fome Acro-

the ground. He first found out the use of stick Verses of this spil, mentioning the Judgment. 'Tis afferted, that Tully had ERIDANUS, The River Po in Italy, translated these Verses into Latin; and St. Phaeton fell into this River when Jupiter ftruck Aufin affirms, that he had feen them written him with a Thunderbolt. Apollonius of Rhodes, in Greek, being in number twenty feven.

ERYX. A Mountain of Sicily, from this

ERYCINA, An Epithet given to Venus, because Eriem built her a Temple on the top of Mount Eriz in Sicily.

ESCHYLUS, A writer of Tragedy. Dimyfius the Tyrant bought his Table-book. wherein he had writ his excellent Tragedies. to the end that he might therewith mend his

ESCULAPIUS, See Æsculapius. ESQUILINUS, The Mount Esquilinus ries of Hell, and fometimes common to inclosed by Servine in the City of Rome. This Mount was also called Exquitmus, because Rothe Earth and in Hell, i. e. Epes ve, diferria mulus mistrusting the Sabines, set Centries upmentis. Notwithstruding tis more likely that on it for his Guard; it was still called Gefthis word is derived from egap, male facere. pius, Oppius and Septimius, because it contain-

ETEOCLES. Born of the Incest of OEdipus and Jocasta his Mother. Eteocles having deprived his Brother Polynices of Paulanies fays, that the Goddeffes called Se- the Royalty of Thebes, tho an agreement verse, whom Hefind calls Erinnyes, had a Tem- was made between them, that they should ple at Athens near Areopagus, or Judgment-freign yearly by course, Polynices retired to Hail. Æschylus the Poet is the first who had Argos, where he married the Daughter of described them with hanging Serpents. Vir- King Adressus, and then returned with an gil has follow'd this Idea. And Homer had Army to bring Eteocles to reasonable terms. mentioned the Erimyu before Hesiad, and in Jocasia their Mother attempted in vain to some place he has described them as the re- make them friends: they prepared on both fides to engage : Tirefias a South-fayer, declared that the Victory should remain to the cadis, inhabited by a huge wild Bear, that Thebans, if they offered Monaceus the Son of wasted the Country, whom Hercules carried Green in facrifice to Mers, whereupon Memeeus facrificed himfelf. The Armies engaged, E-ERYPHILA, The Wife of Amphiaraus teecles and Polynices killed one another; and

ETESII, mild Northerly winds arising because he was unwilling to go to the Theban every year after the Summer-folftice, at the Wars, where he knew he should dye, accord- rising of the Dog-star, which blow for six: ing to the Oracle. But being acquainted weeks together, to cool the air from the heat

EVANDER, King of Arcadia, the Son which he performed according to his Father's was esteemed the Son of Marcury. Having by chance flain his Father, he for-ERYTHREA, The Name of one of fook his Kindom, and by the advice of his the Sibyls, born in the City of Erithres in Mother, (who was a Prophetefs) retired into Imis, where the delivered her Oracles. Italy, from whence he drove out the Aberigi-She lived in the time of the War of Troy, and possessed himself of their Country, Emefiella relates, that the Senate of Rome fent where he built a Town upon Mount Pala-Ambassadours to Erithrea, to fetch the Verses tinus, which he called Palanteum, from the TVANGELUS, A rich Citizen of Tarensum, who attempted to get the prize at the Pythian Games, and because he was neither ftrong nor nimble enough to dispute the prize of the Race, he endeavoured to obtain that of Musick. Wherefore he came to Delphi at the perswasion of his Flatterers, and presented himself at the Games dressed in a Gown of Golden Linnen, and crowned with Laurel, the Leaves whereof were of Maffy Gold, and the Fruit composed with great Emeralds. His Harp was also made of Gold, fer off with precious Stones, and adorn'd with the Figures of Orpheur, Apollo, and the Muses. At this sumpruous apparel the whole Company was struck with admiration, and they conceived great hopes to fee and hear wonderful things; but when he came about to ting and play upon his Harp, instead of wonders that were expected from him, they heard but a pitiful shrill voice, which he was never able to bring in tune with his Hare, and to accumulate misfortunes, when he attempted to strike the strings of his Harp a little harder, he broke three of them. The whole company fell a laughing, and the more willingly, because they were well pleased Daughters to Achtron and Nox, or to Plute and with another Musician who had plaid before him: Then laughing being turned into anger, the Presidents of the Games ordered that he Gods against wicked Men. They were reshould be whipp'd off the Stage, and being all over bloody he was forced to crofs the Scene, taking up the Ornaments of his Harpa which I tenance, holding in their Hands burning fell down under the lashes.

EVERGETES, i. e. well doing or Benefactor. The Greeks called by that name Men who had done fome confiderable Kindness to their Country: Wherefore so many Kings were proud of the Epithet Evergetes.

'Tis no wonder then, if the Greeks, who were naturally inclined either to Flattery or Satyr, according to the good or bad usage they had received, were used to bestow this Title upon their Kings. Demofthenes fays . that being deceived by the counterfeited Vertue of Philip of Macedonia, they called him Benefactor. Antigense, Sirnamed the Tutor that the Titles of Saviour and Benetactor of the Country were formerly bestowed upon the River Nile, because of the Fertility that its overflowing brings every year to Egypt. And at the birth of Ofris a voice was heard, fays Plutarch, proclaiming that the great and well-doing King Ofiris was born. Wherefore the Elogy of Evergetes flattering the Ambition of Princes, became afterwards a Sirname, affected by a great many of them, to diffinguish them from those, who were called by their Name.

The Kings of Syria have very much affected this Epithet, as we fee in their Medals. Alexander Eupater Evergetes, Demetrius, Philometor Evergeses, Philippus Evergetes. Mithridates King of Pentus, the Father of Michridates the Great. Sirnamed Eupater, is also called Evergetes in Strabo and Appian. The Kings of the Pariblans have followed their Example, as it appears by the Medal of Arxanes, where he is named King of Kings, Just, Evergetes and Philthellener or Lover of the Greeks.

After the Romans had fubdued Greece, the Greeks gave the fame Titles to the Roman Emperors. And Phile the Jew, in imitation of them, gives the Titles of Saviour and Everettes to the Emperors Augustus and Caligula. The Romans bestowed the same Titles upon Velpafian at his return from Judes, and upon Comstantine, after he had obtain'd the Victory over Maxentius the Tyrant.

EUMELUS, An excellent Musician of Elis, who was admired by all the Speciators at the Pythian Games, and proclaimed Victorious, tho' he was ill-cloathed, and had but an old fashioned Harp.

EUMINIDES, The Furies of Helk Proferpina; respected by the Ancient Heathens, as Executors of the Vengeance of the presented with Heads dressed with Serpents. having Fire in their Eyes, and a fierce Coun-Torches.

They had a Temple at Cefyna a Town of Achain. See Erinnyr and Furia.

EUMOLPIDES, The Priests of the Goddels Ceres and Eleufina, a City of Attien, They were called Eumolpides from Eumolper their Ancestor. This Eumolpes, Nephew to the King of Thrace, was ordained Pontiff to celebrate the mysteries of Ceres, by Eritten King of Athens, and Eleusma, and became for powerful by this Priesthood, that he made War against the Prince who had bestowed it upon him. They were both killed in this War, and their Children made a Peace, on and Giver, was by consent of all the Greeks condition that the dignity of Priesthood called Evergeter. The Emperor Julian fays, should remain for ever to the posterity of Eumolpes, and the Royalty to Ericteus's Offfpring. The facred Rites in honour of Cera, were accounted fo Holy, that they were called by way of pre-eminence, Mysteries, and were kept fo fecret, that scarce any account of them has reached us.

> EUNUS, A Slave born in Syria; who not being able to bear any longer the miffortune of his condition, played at first the Enthusiast, and pretended to be inspired by the Goddess of Smis, and fent by the Gods to procure Liberty to the Slaves. And to get credit among the People, he put in his mouth, and holding his Mistris by the Hand, he led a Nut full of Brimstone, and set it cunning- her into the Diffem Cave. ly on fire, and blew foftly through the fame. great amazement of the People. Two thouwith Mifery and drawn in by his juggling that reigned there. Tricks join'd themselves to him, and in a thort time he was at the head of fifty thoufand Men, and defeated the Roman Prætors : but Perpenna reduced them by hunger, and is represented black all over, having a flaming all those who escaped death were nailed upon the cross.

EVOHE, An Epithet given to Bacchus, Cartari in his Images of the Gods. in the celebration of his Mysteries (this word lignifies Merry Campanion and Good Son.) Jupiter who flying from driffets King of dreadis, gave him this Epithet for a Reward, because who attempted to ravish her, on a Serpent, he help'd him to defeat the Giants.

times in four and twenty hours. Ariffetle is him his Wife, upon condition that he should faid to have drowned himself in this Sea, be- not turn his Head to look on her till he saw cause he could not find out the cause of its the light. But he failed, and so lost his Wife ebbing and flowing fo often.

The Canals of Water which furrounded represented, were also called Uripes.

EUROPA, The Daughter of Agenor into a Swine. King of Phanicia, whom Jupiter ravished for the take of her Beauty; for being one day! come down with fome other Virgins to di- Instruments. Ex. S. C. i. e. ex Senatus confulto. vert herfelf on the Sea-shore, Jupiter came and | which fignifies by a Decree of the Senate. play'd about her in the shape of a Bull, that was so fair and handsom, that she had a mind | Soldiers discharged from going to the Wars. to get upon his back, feeing he was fo mild that he let her stroke him. But so soon as he spreading Flowers upon this fair Virgin.

Some are of opinion that she gave her and thus cast Fire out of his Mouth, to the name to this part of the World that we call Europa; but others fay, that this name came fand Slaves and other simple Men, pressed from Europus, who was one of the first Kings

EURUS, A Wind called by the Greeke Apeliotes, blowing from the Equinoxial East.

The Roman Mariners call it Subsolanus, and Sun upon the Head, because the Ethiopians, who inhabit towards the rifing Sun, are black.

and died of his Sting. Orpheus to recover EURIPUS, A narrow Sea between her went to Hell, and with his Musick Eubaa and Baotia, that ebbs and flows feven charm'd Pluto and Proferpina, who granted for ever.

EURYLOCHUS, The only Man of the Circle at Rome, where the Sea-fights were Uliffer's Companions, who tafted not of Circe's enchanting Cup, and elcaped being turn'd

EUTERPE, One of the nine Mufes. the inventer of the Flute, and other Mufical

EXAUCTORATI, Viz. Milites.

EXCOMMUNICATIO. Excommunication, excluding Men from participating had got this fair Lady upon his back, he run of the Mysteries, and cutting them off from into the Sea, and fwam towards Greece. The Communicating with Men of the same Relipoor Lady asham'd, took hold with her hand gion. The Excommunication was practiced on one of his Horns, to keep herfelf fast, and among Pagant, and was declared by their with the other hand she made fast her Veil Priests, with the usual Ceremonies in such that was toffed up by the wind, and turned cases. The Excommunicated Persons were her Head toward the shere, where she saw forbid to be present at the Sacrifices, and to the other Virgins stretching out their arms enter in the Temples in the presence of the to her. The Sea immediately grows calm, Gods; then they were delivered to the Dethe Winds kept in their breath, a thousand vilish Spirits and the Furies of Hell, with Cupids came fluttering about her, without some Imprecations expressed by these words, dipping their Wings in the water, but only | Sacris interdicere, Diris devovere, Exference: their Toes. Some of them carried in their And because this was a dreadful Punishment, Hands the Wedding Torch, the others fung therefore it was inflicted only upon wicked the Hymen-Song, and were followed by the Men hardned in Crimes. And the She-Prieft Sea-Gods, the Nereides half naked riding up- Theana the Daughter of Menon was highly on Dolphins, and waited on by the Tritons, commended, for refusing to excommunicate who were playing about. Neptun: and Amphi- Alcibiades at Athens, tho' the People had ortrites march'd before, representing the Father dered her to do it. And the Priefts called and the Mother of the Bride. Forms was car- Eumolpides, on the contrary, were blamed for ried by two Tritonsin a Sea-shell, and was the performance of the same. Plate 1. 7. of the Laws, forbids all Priests of both Sexes to This Spectacle lasted from the shore of excommunicate any body, but after a dili-Phanicia, till Greea, where as foon as Jupiter gent enquiry into the case, and to do it but at was landed, he took again his former thape, the last extremity, and according to the Laws. communication among the Remans, in the Greeks was a place like that which is called a person of M. Crassiu, as 'tis related by Plutarch Chapter, in the Cloisters of Religious Houses, in his Life; for Atteins Tribune of the Peo- And Virrwin Cap. 9. 1. 7. Speaks of the Exeple, not being able to stop his Journey into dre, as if they were places open and exposed Syris against the Parthism, he run to the to the Sun. Gate, out of which Graffar was to go EXPIATIO, Expiation. When Men out of the City, and set in the middle of the had their recourse to Temples, Altars and way, a Chafing-dish with a great fire in it, Prayers, it was look'd upon as the beginning and when Craffin drew near, he threw some of the expiation of a Crime. Homer relates Perfumes in it, and pronounced Curies against the Discourse of Phenix to Achiller, to exhort him, with dreadful Imprecations, and called upon some Gods, whose names only served to fright Men, and fo Excommunicated him.

dom.

The most rigorous punishment inflicted by the Druides among the Gauls, was the Excom- that are never inexpiable in respect to the munication, as we learn of Gefer, 1.6. When Gods, should be unpardonable in respect to 'a Man, fays he, speaking of the Druides, won't fubmit to their judgment, they ex-'clude him from partaking of their Myste- him, because he sincerely repented of it; and ries. And those who are struck with that that the Fault he committed was more grie-'Thunderbolt, are accounted wicked and impious Men ; every one fhuns their meeting for the fame. and conversation; if they have any business, they have no justice done them; they Sape levant panas, ereptaque lumina reddunt. are not allowed to possess any Office or Dignity, and dye without Honour and Reputation.

When an excommunicated Man came to repent, and had his Wickedness in horrour. and beg pardon of the Gods for the fame, he went to the Priests to be restored again. then the Priets, after a strict Examination reflored him to his former condition. And this Action was called Reservere, or facris reflituere qui execratus fuerat.

Excommunication, and before he had repent- tends it. ed of his Crime, and was restored again, after his death the Priests made a folemn service to the Gods called Mones, to beg of them that his Soul might be fet at rest in Hell.

place in the Amphitheater, and were flanding in the Corners thereof to fee the Games.

EXECRATIO. See Excommunicatio. EXEDRÆ, Halls with many Seats, whereupon the Philosophers, Rhetoricians and Men of Learning fat, when they met for difcourse or disputing. This Greek word is variously interpreted by Writers. Alexander at Alex. fays, that it was an open Gallery in form of Boxes. Accursus takes this word for 2 Window, but it signifies literally, a place where many People are fitting upon Seats made faft. It feems that Philander was of this opi- ' went under the Yoke.

We have an illustrious Example of an Ex- mion, when he fays that the Exides of the

him to forgive, because the greater and mightier the Gods are, they are also the more merciful and more inclined to pardon, when it is begg'd by Prayers; for the Prayers are The Romans, fays Plutarch, did hold this the Daughters of Jupiter, who difarm, in fa-Ceremony of Imprecation to be very anci- vour of the Petitioners, and oblige him to ent, but they put it in practice but very fel- fend the Goddess of Revenge against the Men who won't be reconciled.

Ovid thinks it very odd, that our Crimes Men; and that Augustus would not forgive him a fault that God himself had pardoned yous to him, than the banishment he fuffer'd

Cum bene peccati parnituiffe vident. Panitet, 6, fi quid miferorum creditur ulli, Panitet & falle terqueer iple mee! Quamque fit exilium, magis eft mibi culpa dolori. Efque pati panas, quam merniffe, minue.

Then according to this Poet, Crimes were expiated, either with temporal pains which God fends to Men, or with grief and repentance of the guilty Soul, and a pure love for Justice, which makes men fear the But if a Man died during the time of his Crime more than the Punishment which at-

Herodorns reports, that a Phrygian Prince of the Royal Blood, yet unfortunate, came to the Palace of King Cralus, to defire him to purge him by Sacrifice, which Crasu per-EXCUNEATI, Those who had no form'd, according to the usual Ceremony of the Lydians, which was very like the Ceremony used by the Greeks, in cases of Ex-

> Dienyfus Hallicarnaffeus fays, that the people pardoned young Herace the murther of his Sifter, but that the King of Rome ordered, that he should be purged with all the Expiations prescribed by the Laws of the Pontiffs, in cases of involuntary murder. Then he relates the Ceremony of the Expiation: 'Altars were fet up, one to June, the other to Jamus; they offered Sacrifices, and young Hurach

This Writer freaks still of another Expiation, when after a Fight between the Citizens, they were obliged to purifie the City, before they offered Sacrifices.

Here are many kinds of Expiations for Men and Cities, to abolish Murther, and to prepare Men for Sacrifices; they had ftill other Expiations to purge the Natives of the Country and the Foreigners: For the Schothe great Mysteries were not to be communicated to them. Disdorm Siculus observes. Ceres Eleusina:

Hercules, was purified, because he had committed many Murthers. The Mysteries of Consonant, which may be observed still in the Expiations were brought from Egypt into andris fays, that when those who were only . het que distat ab Alpha. taught the principles of these prophane Mvsteries, answered the questions asked them. they affirmed that they had kept themselves fasting : Symbolum mysteriorum Eleufiniorum, (jeimavi.)

Continency was also observed in these Expiations: wherefore St Hierome fays, that the Priests made use of Hemlock, to keep themfelves more eafily continent.

But the most common Expiation, was that of ablutions; and this plainly shews, that all | Phalanx. these Ceremonies of the Gentiles, were copied out of the Ceremonies of the Hebrews.

There is nothing more common in the Poet's Writings, both Greek and Latin, than make libations to the Gods.

Sophocles, in his OEdipus, Tyrannus affirms, that the Crimes, both voluntary and invofuntary, were expiated in Waters.

Euripides in his Hyppelitus introduces this chast Lord, saying, that he thinks himself defiled, because he was tempted to commit a Crime, and that he must wash his Ears for the fame.

Eneas in Virgil defires his Father Anchifes to carry his Dii Penatus, because he had defiled himfelf with Blood and Slaughter in the defence of Troy, and was not yet purified.

-Donec me flumine vivo Abluero.

The Greeks had learnt these Laws of Expiation and Purification of the Egyptians, and the Egyptisms of the Hebrews. EXQUILINUS, See Efquilinus.

F. The fixth Letter of the Alphabet, and the fourth Confonant, 'tis pronounced effe, and liast of Arisophanes says, that they instituted its pronounciation is extended to the words small Mysteries to purifie Foreigners, because derived of the Greek that begins with Ph. Covarravias fays, that this Letter is the fame with that which the Greeks call Digamma Æolithat Hercules was admitted to the Mysteries of cum, because it was formed with two Gamma's one over the other. And that the Emperor Plutarch says, that Theseus, in imitation of Claudius Cafar prescribed that the Letter F turned upfide down, should serve for an V old Inscriptions, as ferkus, fervus; Lale, vale. In the Civil Law two ff's joined together fig-These mysterious Expiations were attend- nifie Digest. This Letter among the Latins ed with Fastings ; wherefore Clemens of Alex- fignified in number 40. Sexta quaterdenos gerit

And when there was a tittle over it, it fignified 40 thousand.

This Letter is pronounced like . but not with fo hard an aspiration, as Terentianus tells us : wherefore Tully jeers a Grecien, who instead of Fundanius pronounced Pundanius, i. e. with an afpirate P. However, in the decay of the Language, these two Letters were promiscuously taken one for another, as we may fee in the Antient Gloffes, Falanx inftead of FABA, A Bean, a kind of Pulse. Formerly they made use of Beans to gather the Votes of the People, and for the Election of Magistrates. A white Bean fignified absoluthe washing of Hands, and even the whole tion, and a black Bean condemnation. There Body before the offering of Sacrifice, and to was also a Precept of Pythagoras, ordering to forbear eating of Beans. This Precept was variously interpreted, and some are of opinion, that Men should forbear Trials and Verdicts, which were then brought by throwing Beans in the Urn. Lucian introduces Pythageras himfelf, handling this matter in the Dialogue of the Philosophers expor'd to publick Sale; for after he had faid, that he eats nothing of what had life, but of all other things except Beans; they ask him for what reason, and he answers, because they have something that is divine: First, they refemble the privy parts. which you will eafily observe, if you take but one that is green, and shell it from its husk or cod: belides, being boiled, and exposed to the Moon, for a certain number of Nights, they turn into Blood; but what is most considerable, they make use of them at Athens in election of Magistrates.

FABARIA, A Sacrifice made with Rean Flower and Bacon, offered upon the Kalends of June on Mount Celianus.

FABER, Ageneral Latin word, fignifying a Workman, as we read in the Ancient Monuments. Faber Agentarius a Goldimith : Faber Ferrarius, a Smith or a Blacksmith : Faber Tiguarius, a Carpenter: Faber Eburarius, the worker in Ivory, a Table-maker: Faber Navalis, A builder of Ships: Fater Balneasor, a Keeper or Builder of Baths. And Plautus taxing a Man with making counterfeit Money, says ingeniously, Tace tu faber qui plumbos nummos cudere foles. The Greek word Texter answers to the Latin word Faber; wherefore, those who said that Joseph was rather a Smith than a Carpenter, don't observe that the word Tecton, made use of in the Original, doth not determine the fignification rather to a Smith than a Carpenter: And Helychius explaining this word, fays, that it fignifies all kind of Workmen; wherefore the vulgar Translation of the Bible, renders the Text of St Matthew thus, Nonne bic est fabri filius. Hippocrates one of the most Ancient Writers of the Greeks, fi eaking of Carpenters who faw Timher, he calls them Tellones.

FABIANA FAMILIA. The Fabian Family, Illustrious among the Romans, which has given many great Men to the Commonwealth. This only Family, under the command of Fabius Calo, made war against the Veyenses, and loft 306 Men in an Engagefrom whence you may conjecture that they we e able to make up a great Army, with the addition of their Friends, Clients and Freed-

an Ambuscado, defeated them, took and bian Family left alive only one young man, fourteen Years old, the Son of M. Fabius, and who teeing Rome divided in two Factions, divided the People in four Tribes of the City those who gave them the most, and of whom | monwealth, because he was poor. they expected greater rewards. This Fabius throughly routed Hannibal with a prudent flowness, and repaired the losses that the Romans had suffered by the Arms of Hannibal. whereupon he was called Cunitator the delayer. be aute he did only keep Hannibal close, and in camped to his own advantage, without engoging him; wherefore Ennius faid.

Unus cunctando qui nobis restituit rem.

Q. Fabius Rutilianus, Colonel of the Horfe. engaged the Sammiter, during the abience and against the order of the Dictator Papyrius, and routed them. The Dictator profecuted him. and would have him be punished with death. though the Senate interceded for him; but at last Papyrius granted him his life, at the request of the People, speaking thus to him. 'Live thou, Fabius, faid he to him, more glorious in this universal Love that the Roman people fhews thee, than the Victory which thou hast obtained over the Enemy. And grant the Gods, that thy bad Example be not prejudicial to the State.

C. FABRICIUS LUSCUS, Who was fent against Pyrrbus. This Enemy of the Roman People attempted to bribe the Loyalty of Fabricius, and made him very advantageous Proposals; but Fabricius being a generous Reman, though needy, flood always firm to his Country. Then Pyribus's l'hyfician came fecretly to him, and proffered him his Service to poyfon his Mafter; but this Propofal ffruck him with fuch horror, that he fent back this perfidious Servant to Pyrrhu; who admiring the generofity of the Conful fet at liberty all the Roman Prisoners, taken at the defeat of Livinius. And Fabricius alio ient back all the Prisoners, who were taken from Pyrrbus's Army. The Nations called Bruti and ment at Cremera. This Family obtain'd feven Lucani, having befieged Turinum in Calabria, feveral Confulats next after one another; Fabricius marched directly to them, to force them to raife the Siege; but while he was confidering which way he should attack the Enemy in their Intrenchments, a young man appear'd at the head of the Legions with a The Veyentes having drawn the Fabians into Ladder in his Hand, encouraging the Soldiers to scale the Rampart; whereupon the plundered their Camp, and of the whole Fa- Soldiers followed him without the order of their General, took the Rampart by storm. and drove away the Enemy. After the Vithe Off-spring of all the Fabians, who were | ctory, the Contul being inform'd of what had fince to ferviceable to the Commonwealth, been done, fent to look for this unknown and particularly Fabius firnamed Maximus; Man, to honour his Valour, but he could never be found. Whereupon the Romans fancied that Mars himself had affisted them. Afand by this means took away from the People | ter the death of this great Man, his Daughthe Authority of bestowing Offices, upon ters were married at the charges of the Com-

FABULA, A Fable. Aphthonius the Sophist tays, that the Poers were Authors of the Fable, which is a Story made on purpole to instruct Men, being an Image fit to reprefent the Truth. The Fable is called Sybiritica, Ciliciana and Cypriana, from the leveral Countries of the Men, who were the Inventers thereof.

The Historians having no other aim but the ! Inflruction of Men, thought that the Fable was very fit to teach, not only young Men, the ground of their History with many pleabut also to instruct all forts of Persons, who | fant Fictions, to render it more diverting to being always Men, have also, during all the the Reader. And 'tis a false prejudice to rime of their Life, fome remainders of Infancy, and will have Instruction it felf be a divertion to them. Wherefore, when the Authors of the Fable related Histories, or un- History, that Poets have wrapped up in their folded the Mysteries of Nature, or taught mo- | Poems, some Stories that were not true, but ral Precepts, they intermixed always fome- likely. thing of the Fable with the Truth.

Plutarch has bestowed the whole beginning of his Treatife, of the manner of reading Poets, to shew that the Fable was very by the Ancient Historians. conducible to the instruction of Men, both young and old, when 'tis handled to the purpole.

Clement of Alexandria observes, that this way of folding and unfolding the Truth with Favine and Moral Truth.

Plutarch tells us, that the Egyptians wrapped up the Mysteries of their Philosophy in Fables and Riddles; and had Sphinxes at the Gates of the Gift of writing Fables. ' Efop, fays he, their Temples to unfold them; and that the Pythagoreans understood the Unity by the name of Apollo, and the number two by the name of Diana; the number feven, by that of Minerva; and the Figure Cube by Neptune; to flew that the Fables were the Images of the Philosophical Truths, that were of great moment amongst the Egyptians and Pythago-

Salufius the Philosopher fays, that the Fables have fomewhat of Divine, because they are made use of by Poets, who are animated with a divine Spirit, and by the Philosophers. the Pontiffs, and the Gods themselves in their Oracles. That the first use of Fables is to awake the mind, and raife it to the unfolding of the meaning thereof; and he compares the Fable to the Divinity, who exposes some of his Excellencies to the fight of all Men, and keeps some others hid, which are discover'd but by Contemplation.

Then this Philosopher distinguishes many kinds of Fables; some that have relation to the Divinity, as when Saturn devoured his Children; the meaning thereof is, that God, who is the supream Intelligence, keeps in his bosom all his operations: Some others are concerning Nature, as when Saturn, i. e. Time, devours all his Productions and Temporal Natures. The others belong to the Soul, who gets into herfelf all her operations like Saturn. And the fourth kind of Fable, concerns the Body, wherefore the Experious faid, that Saturn was the Element of the Wa- Speech. ter. In fine, there are mixt Fables made up of the foregoing.

We must not look upon Poets as upon meer Tale-bearers, but as Historians, who adorned think that Poetical Narrations have nothing of Truth. Learned Men affert the contrary opinion, for 'tis upon a folid ground of a true

Polybius, Strabe, and many other Historians affirm, that the ground of the Iliad and Odyfics of Homer is a true History, appearing to be to

Poets have intermixt the Fable with the Truth, to adorn their Narrations, and yet this ornament it felf is grounded upon fome

The most remarkable Writers, who have bles, is very proper to awake and whet the handled moral Fables, and introduced Beafts Wir, and inflame Men with the love of Di- and Trees speaking, were Alop among the Greeks, and Phadrus among the Latius.

> Philostratus in his Image of the Fables, relates in what manner Æfop received of Mercury being a Shepherd, was often feeding his Flocks near a Temple of Mercury, wherein he entered fometimes, and offered to the God fome Milk, Hony-combs and Flowers, earneftly begging of him some Beams of Wisdom. Many others met also in the same Temple, to the same purpose, and made him confiderable Prefents. Mercury, to express them his gratitude for their Piety, beflowed upon them the gifts of Sciences; fome of them he endowed with the gift of Aftrology, others with Eloquence, and fome others with the gift of Poefy and Mulick. But he forgot Æfop. Yet having a mind to reward him, he granted him the gift of writing Fables, because he remembred, that being still in his Cradle on the Mount Olympus, the Hours who nurfed him up, told him the Fable of an Ox that had fooke to a Man, and had inclined him to defire the Oxen of the Phadrus in the third Book of his Fables, dedicated to Uzychius, speaks thus 'Now I will declare in few words, to what purpole Fables were invented. Man being in flavery and dependency, because he durit not utter his Mind, made use of these fabulous Narrations, to declare the thoughts and agitations of his Soul, and fecured himfelf from Calumny with these pleasant Stories.

FABULINUS, The little God Fabulinus, to whom Men offered Sacrifices, when their Children began to speak. The God of FACTIO, Factions diffinguished by abode at the entry of Hell, with Griefs, Colours, Gruter in his Inscriptions mentions Tears, Diseases and Old Age. four chief Factions; wir. Ruffatam, the Red Prafinam, the Green ; Venetam, the Blue ; Albatam, the White. 'Tis thought that the An- Pallentefque habitant Merbi, triffique Senellus, cients intended thereby, to represent the four | Es male-suada Fames. Seasons of the Year, when Nature puts on new Cloaths; each Faction or Troop of Horse representing one of the Seasons with his Colour : The Green represented the Spring ; the Red, the Summer; the Blue, the Autumn; and the white the Winter, covered with Snow and Ice. Domitianus fays, Sustonius added to Pontiffs, pronouncing certain words, Fanthese four Factions, the Gold and the Purple, i. e. two new Troops, who went by the name of their Colours.

times fo hot one against the other, that they says Macrobius, under the Figure of a Snake. came to Blows. Zonoras tells us, that at Bizan- with his Tail in his Mouth. tium in Justinian's time, two Factions conceived so factious an emulation one against the were killed on the fpot.

Colour, and had his Horse Incitatus put among gistrates, them.

thor of the Law called Falcidia, fo remarkable mind of the People, and to punish Malein the Roman Law. This Law was made fome- factors. J. Litter expedi virgas. time before the Empire of Augustus, during the Triumviratus. Men should dispose by their last Will, but of some person of a singular merit, they sent the three parts of their Estate, and were bound back the Lictors, or bid them to lower the to leave the other fourth part to their lawful l'afces before them, which was called fut-Heir. And if they transgressed against this Rule, the Heir deducted the fourth part of each jul Publicola, a great Politician, being ready judged to him by this Law. FALERNUM, A Country in Campania near Capua, abundant in excellent Wine, fo much commended by Herace and others.

FAMA, Fame. Ovid has left us a defcription of Fame, and the Graces that commonly attend her, and represents her wonreports, true or false.

Mistaque cum veris passim commenta vagantur Millia rumtrum.

Credulity, Error, false Joys, Fears, Suspi- of Ovid are lost. See Calendarium. cions and Sedicions commonly meet here.

FAMES, Hunger. Poets have very ingeniously described Hunger, and in particular Owid, who hath left us her Image in the eighth in the Commonwealth. The Consuls gave also Book of his Mesamorphoses, under the shape of some small Pocket-books of Silver or Ivory, a tall lean Woman, with a dreadful Counte- wherein their Names were written, as Sidme nance, and hollow Eyes, her Body transpa- us Apollinaris says, speaking of the Consultain rent out of leanness, lying upon the ground of Asterius datique fasti. and feeding upon Grafs. Virgil places her Luctus & ultrices pofuere cubilia Cura.

FANNIUS, A Roman Conful, Author of the Law Fannia, whereby the charges of publick and private Feafts were fixed, and Excesses and Superfluities forbid.

FANA, Temples confecrated by the FANUS, A God of the Heathens, protecting Travellers, accounted also the God These Factions in the Games, grew some- of the Year. The Phanicians represented him.

FARONIA, See Feronia.

FASCES, These Fasces were Axes fastother, that forty thousand Men of both sides ned to a long Staff, tied together with a bundle of Rods, which the Officers called Caligula took a great fancy for the green Lictors, carried before the great Roman Ma-

Romulus was the first who instituted Fasces. FALCIDIUS, A Roman Tribune, Au- to inspire a greater respect and fear in the

When the Magistrates, who by right had these Axes carried before them, had a mind By the Law Falcidis, it was ordered that to shew some deference for the People, or mittere Fasces. For that same reason the Conparticular Legacy, to make up the Sum ad- to make a Speech to the Roman People, fent back his Lictors ; Fasces, fays Livy, Majestati populi Romani submisit. And Pompey the Great. coming into the House of Possid onius the Philosopher, when he was at the Door, feet back the Lictors in honour of Poffidoniais Learning.

FASCINUM, A Man's Yard. A derful Palace, furrounded with a thousand the Wedding the Bride sat upon the Knees of a naked Prispus, to prevent by that Ceremony. charming and bewitching.

FASTI, The Roman Calendar, wherein all days of Feafts, Games and Ceremonies were mark'd. The fix last Books of the Faft Fasti were also Table-Books, whereupon they wrote the Names of the Confuls, and the most memorable things that were transacted Pretor to pronounce these three words, Do, all things that are done. Dico. Abdico.

FATUA. See Fauna.

FATUM. Fate, Deftiny. It was repre- Nata, movere pavas? Intres licet ipfa fororum fented as of a Goddess, treading upon the Tella trium, cernes illic molimine vallo Globe of the World, because all that is con- Ex are, & solido rerum tabularia ferro : tain'd in it, is submitted to her Laws. She Que neque concursum cali, neque fulminis iram. holds in her hand a Veffel, or the fatal Urn, Nec metuunt ullas tuta atque aterna ruinas. wherein (as Poets fay) all the names of mor- Invenies illic incifa adamante perenni tal men were deposited. 'The Heathens com- | Fata tui generis: legi ipse animoque notavi. plained in their Epitaphs, of the malice, envy and cruelty of the Fates, that were inflexible, and could not be moved with tears. It were of both Sexes.

Gods, where the Destinies are represented lutions of the Parca, but also as being their on the reverse thereof by the figures of three Master. women: Procopius tells us, that the Temple of Janus was built at Rome in the Market place deffes called Parce, are the three parts of the near the three Destinies, called by the Romans | World, wie. the firmament of the fixed Stars. Parca. This Writer, like Apaleius, confounds the firmament of the wandering Stars, and the Parca with the Destinies.

three in number, because, said they, all things dies and causes contained in these three parts that are under Heaven have their beginning, of the world, makes this Fate in a manner only with half-bodies like the terms, as we may fee by the following Infcription.

FATIS Q. FABIUS NISUS EX VOTO.

For the terms were the Gods of bounds, and the Fares fers bounds to our Life, and put an end to all our undertakings.

confounded Fortune with Fate.

FASTI DIES. During these days the tempt to break the decrees of the three Parces Remans were allowed to fue at Law, and the which are immutable and eternal, and rule

- Sola insuperabile fatum.

Lib. xv. Metam.

But this Poet and all others have plainly can't be objected that the Latin word Fatum expressed that the will of Jupiter is Fate. For is not of the feminine gender, and therefore we must distinguish the fable of the three old the Destiny should not be represented by the Sisters called the Parca (which was but a Poefigure of a Goddess, for we see that many Di- tical fancy) from the universal opinion of all vinities, as Penus, the Moon and Bacchus were Poets. Tully rejects the Fate of the three Siaccounted both male and female. And this fters, which is a fate of Superstition, and tells feems to have been taken from the opinion of us, that Fate is the eternal truth, and the first the Steicks, who maintain'd that the Gods predominant cause of all Beings. Wherefore the Idolaters represented the Hours, and And the Greeks themselves, who were Au- the Perce placed upon the head of Jupiter, to thors of the Roman Superstitions, called Desti- shew that the Destinies obey God, and that ny by a feminine name, mapuers as we both hours and time are at the disposol of his learn of Phurmutus in his book of the nature of will. Paufanias fays to this purpose : In Jouis the Gods. " Destiny, says he, is that which capite Hora & Parca confishms : Fata enim Joui padifposes and rules all things according to rere & ejus nutu temporum necessitudines describi the order of an eternal principle. There is nemo est qui nesciat. And he speaks thus somea Golden Medal of Dieclesian, ingraven in where else of Jupiter sirnamed Maspay trus. Pignerius's observations upon the Images of the Parcarum Dux, not only as knowing the reso-

Plut such tells us, that these three Godthat great space of the Air from the Moon to The Ancients reckoned the Fates to be the Earth; the concatenation of all the boprogress and end. Wherefore these same bodily, producing natural effects according Fates are represented by three different female to the common course of Nature : but this is terms, i. e. by three Women, represented not perform'd without some Divinity, who is like the foul of the world, and moves it by himfelf, and the Intelligences whom he has fet therein, and to whom he has given his order, and are the intellectual Fate.

Diogenes Laertine affirms, that Zeno faid that Jupiter, God, Fate and Intelligence were all the famething. 'Tis also the opinion of Epifferm and many other ancient Philosophers.

FAVISSE. Festus by this word understands Cisterns to keep water in. But the Favissa in the Capitol were Cellars under Lucan in many places of his Books has ground, or dry Cisterns, where they laid up old decay'd Statues, and other things that Ovid introduces Jupiter speaking to Venus, were grown out of use. Favifia, locum sic apand telling her, that 'tis to no purpose to at pellabant in que crat aqua inclusa circa templo;

Lis cifternisque similes, ubi reponi erant solita ea qua and were merry. in templo vetuftate erant facta inutilia. Aulus Gel. 1. 2. c. 10. tells us, that Servius Sulpitius a Law- King of the Latins. This Faunus is sometimes yer, wrote to Marcus Varre, to inquire of him, what was the meaning of these words Favista himself makes no distinction of them; how-Capitolina, which he had observed in the Books ever, Dionysius Hallicarnasseus fays, that Faunes of Cenfors, but was not able to underfland the Son of Mars reigned in Italy, when Evanthem. Varro fent him word, that he remembred that Q. Catulus, to whom the care of repairing the Capitol was committed, having a mind to lower the ground that was about the place, could not perform it because of the Faviffe, which were like dry Cifterns, God, whose voice was heard by night in the where they laid up old Statues and broken Forests, and frighted the People. Whereby Veffels, and other things appointed for the it doth appear that he afcribes pannick fears to fervice of the Temple, Id offe cellas quasdam & Faunus, and makes but one God, both of Fauofternas, que in area Jub terra effent, ubi reponi | nus and Pan. folcrent signa vettra que in co Templo collapsa to Faunus, and a Deity of the Romans. Lattansius speaking of her fays, I. 1. c. 22. ' Faunus Standing the Latins made him a Genius, and a 'inflituted infamous Sacrifices to Saturn his God uttering Predictions, and this agrees 'Grand-father in the Latin Country, and ren-' dered divine honours to his Father Picus, ' and his Sifter and Wife Fatua Fauna: And Fatua from the same origine a fatu, as water. 'C. Exfus tell us, that the was called Fatua, comes from φατός, ¢άω, ¢ημί. because she foretold Women their destinies, 'as Faunus did to Men. Varro tells us, that fame, feeing that the name of Pan is the fame this Fatua was fo chaft, that no Man faw 'her nor heard of her, but her own Husband. 'Wherefore Women Sacrifice to her in pri-'vate, and call her the good Goddefs.

"Yate, and call her the good Goddefs.

"Wherefore Women Sacrifice to her in pri-'vate, and call her the good Goddefs. vare, and call her the good Goddess.

Faunus in Latio Saturno Jus avo nefaria facra constituit. & Picum patrem inter Deos bonerawit. & forerem fuam Fatuam Faunam eamque conjugem consecravit, quam C. Baffus Fatuam nominatam tradit, quod mulieribus fata canere consuevisset, ut Faunus viris. Eandem Varro tradit tanta pudicitia fuffe, ut nemo eam, quoad vixerit, prater virum juum mas viderit, nec nomen ejus audiverit. Ideireo mulieres illi in operto facrificant & bonam Deam ne-

If Fatua never faw any other Man but her Husband, as Lattantius relates after Varro, this certainly must be the reason why the Romans gave her the Name of the good Goddess.

Justin fays, that Fools were called Fatui, because they behave themselves like Fatua, when fhe was transported with prophetick in his fixth Book upon the report of Sexim vives and renews Nature in the Spring. Claudius.

funt autem qui putant Fartiffat effe in Capitolio cel- | the Country People leaving off work, damed

FAUNUS, The Son of Picus, the first confounded with Pan, and it feems that Ouid der landed there, and that the Romans made him afterwards one of the Tutelar Gods of the Country. The fame Historian fays somewhere elfe, that in progress of time the common opinion was, that Faunus was that wild

Enfebius reckons up Faunus among the Kings of the Aborigines, an ancient People in Italy, FAUNA FATUA, Sifter and Wife for he accounts the number of them thus. Janus, Saturnus, Faunus, Latinus. Notwithwith his proper name. For Faunus is derived from gaw, fari, loqui, and his Wife was named

> Pan and Faunus were likely but one and the with that of Faunus in the Hebrew Tongue; for Pan in H. brew fignifies Fear; and Fan, Virgil make Faunus a God of Oracles and Predictions.

At Rex solicitus monstris, Oracula Fauni Fatidici genitoris adit, &c.

FAUNI, Called also Satyrs, Pans and Silvans, were formerly taken for Genij and Demi-Gods, inhabiting Woods and Mount tains; (according to the common opinion) were the Sons of Faunus, King of the Alare gines in Italy. They were represented with imall Horns on their Head, and pointed Ears, and the rest of their Bodies like Goats, The Country People worshipp'd them, and offered them Goats in Sacrifice. Thefe Demi-Gods were only the Gods of the Latins, and were unknown to the Greeks.

The good Character that Lanctantius and FAVONIUS, The West-wind, that Varro give of Fatua's Chastity, doth not agree blows from the Equinoxial Line of the Well, with what Platarch relates in his Roman Que- i. e. from that place where the Sun fets in the ftions, when he fays that the was given to time of the Vernal Equinox. The Great drinking. Anobius relates the same of her, call it Zephirus, i. e. bringing life, because it re-

FAUSTA, Sifter to the Emperor Many FAUNALIA SACRA, Feafis kept entius, and second Wife to Constantine the the 5th of December in honour of Faunus, where Great. She fell in love with Crips her Some in a hot Bath.

Virgin.

them up fecretly.

Diseases into Hell, as Virgil has done.

---- Primis in faucibus Orci Pallentes habitant Morbi ---

the Divinities. Glemons of Alexandria speaks days of the Greeks, and distributed them every thus of them. 'The Romans offered Sacrifices two Years, and at the end of the two first to Hercules the Fly-driver, the Fever and Years, there was a Month of 22 days fet be-Fear : Romani Herculi muscarum depulsori, & fore the Feast called Terminalia, which was Febri at Paveri facrificant : And St Auftin fays, kept the fixth of the Kalends of March. i. e. that Felicity is received among the Divini- the 24th of February; and after the two other ties, and joined with Priapus, Cloacina, Fear, Years, the three and twenty remaining days Palenels, Fever, and many others, that can- were fet at the fame day; fo that in the space not be adored without Crime.

strange depravation to confound these Gods which was practiced by the Greeks in their and Evils together, though they pretend that Olympiades. This interposed Month every two some Gods are honoured for help, and others Years, was called by the Romans Mercedonius or are respected lest they should do harm.

FEBRUA, A Goddels who prefided over women's Terms. This word is derived from the Latin word Februe, i. e. to purify, to purge

FEBRUARIUS, February the second The same day was solemnized the Feast of in-Law, and accused him of having attempted Month of the Year, under the protection of her Virtue, because he refused to yeild to her Neprune. This Month is not found in the Caimpure desires. The Emperor provoked to lendar of Romulus, the Year being then comanger, put him to death, without inquiring posed but of ten Months only; but during any further after the accularion of his Wife. the reign of Nums Pompiliar, the Calendar was But a while after the Imposture being disco- reformed for the first time. Nums had disvered, Conflantine ordered her to be imothered coursed very particularly with Pythagoras concerning Aftronomy, and made use of what FAUSTINA. The Wife of Marcus he had learn'd of him, to make this reforma-Aurelius, who taking occasion from her Hus- tion, and followed very near the order kept band's kindness, to lead a lewd life. Her Husband then by the Greek for the distribution of time. prudently winked at it; yet he cannot be ex- Yet the common Years of the Greek were cused, for raising to the greatest Imployments but of 354 days; however, Nums made up in the Empire, those who defiled his Bed : his Year of 355 days, that it might be an odd Whereupon the People passed many Jeers up- number, out of a superstition of the Egyptians, on him. And those who were zealous for who accounted even numbers to be fatal. the service of their filse Gods, were asham'd Wherefore he took a day out of each of these to see Faustina, the lewdest of all women, fix Months, April, June, Sextilis, September, rank'd amongst the Divinities , served by November and December, that Remulus had made Priests, and worshipped in a particular up of 30 days, that they might be but 29, Temple like Pallas, who was accounted a leaving to the other Months the 31 days they had before. Then adding these six days to FAUSTULUS, Numitor's Shepherd, 51, which was wanting to the Year of Romuwho faved Remu and Romulus, two Children lus, which was 304 days, to make up his Year of Rhes the Vestal, whom Amulius her Father 355 days; he made 57 days of them, which had exposed on the River Tyber, and brought he divided in two other Months, and placed them to Acca Laurentis his Wife, who brought them before the Month of March, viz. January of 29 days, and February of 28. He did not FEBRIS, A Fever, an Ague, a Disease, much matter that the number of days of this proceeding from an excess of heat and drowth last Month was even, because it was appointin the blood and humours, which communi- ed for the Sacrifices that were offered to the cates it felf from the Heart to the whole Bo- Infernal Gods, to whom this fatal number dy, through the Veins and Arteries, and is feem'd agreeable. He called this Month Feknown by a violent beating of the Pulse. bruarius because of the God Februas, who pre-The Romans put her among their Divinities, lided over the Purifications, or because of and built her a Temple. Poets banish'd the Juno straumed Februa, Februata or Februalis; for in this Month the Lupercalia were celebrated in honour of her, where the Women were purified by the Priests of Pan Lycaus. called Lupercals.

And to make this more establish'd and per-But the ignorant People place them among petual, Nums made use of the 45 intercalar of four Years, the whole intercalation of 45 Whereupon Lastantius tells us, that 'tis a days was made, and was even with that, Februarius intercalaris. See Annus.

At the Calends or the first day of this Month, was kept the Feast of June Safpit who had a Temple on Mount Palasine, near the Temple of the Grand-mother of the Gods.

Romulus had inflituted, that he might People done. his new Town. And that day they facrificed in the Temples of Vefts and Jupiter, firnamed Arguments, they called the Gods to witness the Thunderers, to whom a Sheep of two years old was facrificed in the Capitol.

This day there were also Sacrifices offered to the dumb Goddess, or the Goddess of Silence. See Muta Den.

There was still upon this day another Ceremony observed, called Chariffia, because all for Livy tells us, that the Consul Sulpitime the Kindred of the same Family having the consulted them about the War that he intendforegoing days perform'd the Service for the ed to declare against King Philip; Comfulti dead, made among themselves a Banquet of Feciales à Consule Sulpitio, quod bellum indiceretue Charity, whereby they put an end to all Dif- Regi Philippe. putes and Controversies that might be amongst them. As we learn from Valerius Maximus lib. 2. C. 1. Convivium etiam folemne Majores inflituerunt, idque Charistiam appellaverunt, cui prater cognatos & affines neme interponebatur, ut fi que inter neceffarias perfonas querela effet erta, inter facra menfa tolleretur.

Terminus the God of Bounds. The Ceremony lam prima pofirema, ex illis rabulis cerave recitats of this Feast was performed in the Country Sunt fine dolo malo, utique es bic hodie rettiffime inupon Stones used for Bounds, and were ac- tellects sunt, illis legibus Populus Romanus prim counted by them as so many Gods; they of | non deficies : si prior defexit publico consilio, dale fered them fome Wheat Cakes, with the first male; in ille die, Jupiter, populum Romanum fe Fruits of the Fields, and facrificed no Vi- ferite, ut hunc ego porcum hic bodie feriam, tanto ctims, lest they should shed Blood upon the que magis ferito, quanto magis potes pollesque. Stones, for the Bounds must be set by a mu- Having pronounced these words, he struck tual agreement. See Terminalia. Some Writers tell us, that on this day was like on their fide. celebrated the Feast of new Wine, called Vinalis priors, and was different from that which Divinity. She was the Daughter of Hercula, was kept in August. See Vinalia. King's Flight, was folemnized in remem- felf for the Athenians against the Lacedemonian, brance of Tarquinius Superbus's Flight out of according to the answer of the Oracle.

Rome. See Regifugium. Field, folemnized with a Horfe-Race.

The 28th the Games of the Bulls were represented in remembrance of the defeat of race speaks of her, when he says, Tarquinius by the Romans.

FECIALES, A College of twenty Persons of Quality, skill'd in Affairs of State, instituted by Nums Pompilius, as Plutarch fays, or by Tullus Hostilius, or Ancus Martius, as some others tell us, the Duty of their Office was to make Peace or proclaim War. The Greeks licity is the same with good Fortune, and called them espavoquates, i. e. Keepers of Peace. Feciales, fays Festus, a faciendo, quod belli pacifque facienda penes eos jus effet.

They did not fuffer them to take up arms, till there was no hope of Agreement and Peace, Primum de pace experiebantur : Where- adoring Felicity, Virtue and Victory like fore they went themselves to the Nations, Divinities, it is nothing else but the adoring who had done the wrong and injury to the the supream Divinity, as the dispenser d Romans, and endeavoured to perswade them these great favours. by Arguments to submit to Reason, and the Wood of Refuge called Lucaria, which make amends for what they had wrongfully

If they were not prevailed upon by their their just demands, and declared War, throwing a Dart half burnt upon their ground, and some Grass, in the presence of three Antient Men, uttering withal many Imprecations a-gainst them. The Romans durst not undertake a War contrary to the opinion of these Men,

But if the Enemy yielded to their demands, they granted them seace, which they ratified by the facrificing a Hog, which they struck with a Stone, repeating a certain form of Prayers, related by Livy, in the Treaty of Peace concluded between the Albani and Remans. The Patratus the chief of this College On the 21 or the 22 was kept the Feast of Spoke thus : Audi, Jupiter ; Audi, Pater Patran the Bounds, called Terminalia, in honour of populi Albani; Audi tu populus Albanus, ut illa pathe Hog with a Stone, and the Albani did the

FELICITAS, Felicity, a Heathen as Euripides and Paulanias fay, and deferved The 24th a Feast called Regisugum, or the Divine Honours, because the facrificed her

Publick Felicity had many Altars and The 27th was a Feast called Equiris in the Temples at Rome, as it appears by Roman Historians, and was called Faustitas, especially in relation to private Felicity. In this sense He > Tutus bes etiam rurs perambulat. Nutrit vura Ceret, almaque Fauftitas.

St Austin speaks of this Goddess in the 4th Book de Civitate Dei, c. 18. and fhews that Fe that the Romans acknowledged themselves, that Felicity, Virtue and Victory were neither Gods nor Goddesses, but only Gifts of God, feeing that they demanded them of Jupiter. Wherefore if we confider what they meant by

Felicity

Felicity was represented like a Divinity sit- the Country, complaining in the night of belice, as we see in a Medal of the Empress Ju- Prodigies ceased. lis Mammes. Lucullus built her a Temple at FERETRIUS, An Epithet given to Lepidus finished.

a Cup in her right Hand, and a Scepter in the cause before they went to War, they prayed left, as appears by the Medals of Adrian and to that God, to enable them to beat the Ene-Alexander Mammeu. But Moderns represent mies of the Roman People. Romalus instituted her under the Figure of a blindfold Lady, this Ceremony after the defeat, of the Saholding up a Sword with one hand, and a bins, and dedicated a Temple to Jupiter Ferepair of even Scales with the other.

FERALIA, The Feast of the dead, noted FERIE, Holy-days, when People restin the Calendar on the 21st of February, viz. ed from labour, from the Verb feriari, i. e. on the 9th of the Calends of March, tho' Ovid to refl, to cease from work, for the Perie of puts it on the 17th of February, or the 13th the Ancients were Festival-days. Now the of the Calends of March. This Feast was in- Church marks the days of the Week, by the flituted to render the last Honours to the word Feria secunda, feria vertia, &c. tho' thefe Dead, and pacify their Ghofts called Manes. days are not Holy-days, but working-days; Enem is accounted the first Author of this the occasion thereof was, that the first Chri-Feast, and Nums the Inventer of all the Cere- stians, to shew their Joy at the celebrating of monies performed therein. This Feast was Easter, were used to keep the whole Week kept during eleven days in this manner. The holy, and forbear from all fervile work, that Kinsmen and Acquaintance of the Dead they might give themselves wholly to the went to their Graves, and turned round about contemplation of the Mysteries contained them. making their Prayers; then they pre- therein; wherefore they called the Sunday the pared an Entertainment upon a great Stone, first Holy-day, the Monday the second Holycalled Silicernium; and this Feast was com- day, the Tuesday the third Holy-day, and so monly served with Honey, Wine and Milk, forth; and from thence the days of every they foread Flowers, and burnt Frankincense week, were afterwards called Ferie in the comand other Perfumes, according to the Quality mon Language of the Church, tho' they are of the deceased. Silicernium, fays Donatus, ca- not to be kept Holy. na que infertur Diis Manibus, qu'od eam silentes cernant. or quod epula, fays Servius, ponerenter publick Feria, common to all the People in Super nudam silicem.

The Antients were perswaded that the only kept by some private Families. Souls of the dead suffered no pains in Hell count, but were allowed to walk about their for keeping Fairs. Graves, and feed upon the Feast prepared for ! Stative Ferie were fet Holy-days mark'd in them.

because they fancied that the Ghosts were give an account of them in their order. walking, and that all was then profane. This Ovid meant by these Verses.

Dum tamen hac fiunt, vidua ceffate puella; Expettet pures pinea tada dies. Di quoque templorum foribus celentur opertis, Thure vacent ara, flentque fine igne foci. Nunc anima tenues & corpora fantia fepulchris Errant, nunc posito pascitur Umbra cibo.

the Souls were heard both in the Town and Bed of the Gods may be referred.

ting on a Throne, holding with her right ing forfaken. Wheroupon it was ordered to Hand Mercury's Wand, and with the left 2 keep this Feast for the suture with more de-Horn of Plenty, with this Motto Felicitas Pub- votion and exactness; and immediately the Rome, and Julius Cefar began another, which Jupiter, from the Latin word ferre, because the Spoils taken from the Enemy were brought to The Ancients represented Felicity holding his Temple; or from the word ferire, betries.

The Romans had two kinds of Feria, the general, and the private Feria, which were

The publick Feries were four-fold, Stative during the eleven days, that the fubterra- unmoveable, and Holy-days Imperativa, comnean Gods were invoked upon their ac- manded; Conceptive moveable; Nundine days the Calendar, which always fell out upon the During this time Marriages were forbidden, fame day, the three chiefest thereof were Aand the Temples of other Divinities shut up, genalis, Carmentalia, and Lupercalia. I shali

Conceptive were Holy-days appointed every Year upon uncertain days, according to the Pontiffs will : fuch were Feria Latina, Paganales, Sementine, and Compitales,

Imperative, commanded, or extraordinary Holy-days, kept according as the occasions of the Commonwealth required, either to give thanks to the Gods for fome extraordinary Favours, or to pacific their Wrath, and pray to them to keep the People from publick This Feast having been neglected for some misfortunes. Unto these kind of Holy-days years, all the Graves were feen on fire, and the Processions, Games, Lestisternium, or the

Before Flavius made the Calendar publick, rifice. the unmoveable Feasts were publish'd by the Curio's, who waited the Nones of each Month upon the King of Sacrifices, to know what Holy-days were to be kept that Month, and then acquainted each Parish with the same. and a Temple were consecrated to her. 'Tis And this was still practiced after the publishing of the Calendar. As for the Fere conceptive and imperative, they were published in the publick places by a Herald in these words, Lavatio Deum Matris eft hodie : Jovis epulum cras the Men who offered her Sacrifices, walked eff, and the like. And these Holy days were bare-footed upon burning Coals, without fo religiously kept, that the opinion of the burning themselves. She was honoured by Pontiff Mutius Scevola was, fays Macrobius, that the breaking of a Holy-day was unpardonable, unless Men had done it out of inadvertency, and in this case they were acquitted by facrificing a Hog.

FERIA LATINA, The Latin Ho-Sp. Caffins and Postbursius Caminius instituted these Holy-days, by a Treaty that they made during that time they did forbear to work. with the Latine in the name of the Senate and the Roman People. But Dienysius Hallicarnasseus and almost all the Writers tell us, that Tarquinius Supurbus instituted them; and that having overcome the Tuscans, he made a league with the Latins, and proposed them to build a Temple in common to Jupiter firnamed Latialis, where both Nations might meet every Year, and offer Sacrifice for their common Conservation. Wherefore they chose Mount Albanus, as the center of these Nations, to sing from work, to employ themselves to build there a Temple; and instituted a year- the service of the Gods and Religious Duly Sacrifice, and a great Feast in common ; ties. and among their Rejoycings, they fwore a mutual and eternal Friendship. Each Town all kind of work, during the Holy-days. Vaof both Latins and Romans, provided a certain quantity of Meat, Wine, and Fruits for things, that Men were allowed to do in Hothe Feast.

A white Bull was facrificed in common, and the Inhabitants of every Town carried Quippe eriam festis quedam exercere diebus, home a piece thereof. When this Ceremony was at first instituted it held but one day, but after the Kings were expell'd out of Rome, the People demanded that another day might be added to it; afterwards the Senate added | Sepe olco tardi coffes agitator afelli. a third day, a fourth, and so on till they came Vilibus aut onerat pomis : Georg, lib. 1. v. 270. to ten days.

appointed a time for the celebrating of this close a Field with Hedges, laying snares for Feast; during which, the People left the Birds, fet Thorns on fire, wash a Flockin guard of the City to a Governor called Pre- the River, and load an Ass with Fruits. festus Urbis.

Albanus, there were Chariot-Races at the Ca- ing was not left to the liberty or humours of pitol, and the Conqueror was treated with a Men's fancy, but were regulated by the Laws great draught of Wormwood-drink, which is and Ordinances of the Pontiffs, who ruled very wholfom, as Pliny fays, Lai. norum feriis matters of Religion.

Nandina, days for Fairs, and extraordinary | quadriga certant in Capitolio, wilterque absymbium bibit; crede fanitatem pramio dari bono-

FERONIA, A Goddess of the Woods and Orchards. This Divinity took her name from the Town of Fermia, scituated at the foot of Mount Seratte in Italy, where a Wood faid that the Town and the Wood having both taken fire, whereupon the People carrying away the Statue of the Goddess, the Wood grew green again. Strabe relates, that freed-men as their Protectrefs, because they received in her Temple the Cap, that was the Token of their Liberty.

FESTUM and FESTA, Holy-days. The Remans kept many Feafts, as it appears by their Calendar. We shall speak of them lyday. Some Writers fay that the Confuls according to their Alphabetick Order. They were very careful of observing Feasts, and > Tibellus tells us, that the Romans abstain from working, upon the days of Expiations and Lustrations of the Fields.

Quisquis adest , faveat , fruges lustramus &

Omnia fint operata Dee, non audeat ulla Lanificam penfu impoluisse manum.

These words express the true end of cer-

Tis not certain, if Planghmen rested from gil relates many exercises, and other small ly-days,

Fas & jura finunt : Rivos deducere nulla Relligio wetuit ; fegeti pratendere fepem, Insidias avibus moliri, incendere vepres Balantumque gregem fluvio merfare falubri :

After the Expulsion of Kings, the Confuls as to make Drains to drain the water, in-

These works were not disagreeable to the While this Feast was celebrated on Mount | celebrating of the Holy-days. And yet work that the following day was accounted a day tatal. of bad Omen to undertake any thing. Wherefore the Romans and the Greeks have confecra-Genij or the dead.

And they were so careful of ceasing from work, that the keeping of their Holy-days was an imitation of the rest of the Sabbath, commanded by the Law of God. For the with very white Linnen, to shew the can lour Greeks and the Romans kept fome Holy-days and fincerity of Faith. She was reprefe ited during eight days together, in imitation of by two Hands joined close together, and the Hebrews, and had also their eight and nine days of Devotion. For Polybius tells us, that to thank the Gods for a Victory obtain'd at Sea, the Romans ordered to forbear from all kind of work for nine days together.

FIBUL AE, Buckles, Clasps. This Latin word, generally taken, fignifies All forts of work that joins two things together.

Fibula Architectonica, that which in Archirefture we call a Nail, Peg, Key and Ring, their right hand open. and all that is made use of to join Beams tofense Cesar makes use of this word, in the defcription he has made of the Bridge that he built over the River Rhine : Binis utrinque fibulis ab extrema parte distinebantur.

In Anatomy Fibula is that we call a Cannel-

Fibula in relation to Cloaths, means Buckles and Clasps, that keep close, or tie up some part of our Cloaths. The Greeks and Romans made use of them, and often adorned them with precious ftones. Men and Women did wear them upon their Cloaths and Shoes, and used them to keep up their Hairs, aliqua fibula comam diffluentem colligans.

Fibula Gymnastica or Citharadica, used only by Musicians and Comcedians, to keep close Women company, and lofe their voice, as we learn of Celfur. The fame thing was used voice, as 'tis reported by Martial.

Menophili penem tam grandis fibula vestis.

An Ancient Interpreter of Juvenal obferves upon this Verse of the fixth Satyr,

> - Nullius fibula durat Vocem vendentis pratoribus.....

Fibulam dicit circelles quos tragadi, sive comadi in pene habent.

FICULNEA VIA. The way or the Street of the Fig-tree at Rome, called Momen-

FICUS, A Fig-tree. Pliny affirms, that

They were so exact in keeping Holy-days, | contrary, that which brings brownish Figs is

The Fig-tree called Ruminalis, under which the Wolf fuckled Remus and Remulus, was at ted the next day after the Holy-days, to the at Rome, about the place of the Assemblies.

FIDES. Faith. A Goddess, whom the Ancients honoured and plac'd in Heaven. Livy relates, that her Priests were cloathed fometimes with two little Images holding one another by the hand. See Fidius.

Dionysius Hallicarnasseus tells us, that Numa Pompilius was the first Man who built a Temple to publick Faith, and instituted Sacrifices in honour of her at publick charges. Her Priests or Flamines sacrificed to her without fhedding of Blood, cloathed with white Robes, and drawn upon a Chariot, holding

FIDIUS. The Romans and the Sabins. gether, and other parts of Buildings. In this | respected this God, as the protector of the good Faith that should reign among them.

There was a Temple at Rome on Mount Quirinalis built to this God, where his Feast was kept every year upon the Nones of June. And his Image is still feen at Rome, in an ancient Marble of three Figures, which are under a kind of a Canopy. Honour stands at the right, under the figure of a middle aged Man; Truth at the left, represented like a Woman crowned with Laurel, holding Honour by the Hand; and Love is betwixt them both, under the shape of a young Child, with this Inscription Simulachrum Fidit.

FLAMINIUS, Sirnamed Quintius, the Son of T. Flaminius, whom Hannibal defeated near the Lake Trajymenes. Being Conful, he the prepuce of Children, left they should keep marched against the Inhabitants of Milan, and routed them. Then he made war against Philip King of Macedonia, and vanquish'd him to Players upon the Stage, to preferve their in two pitch'd Battles, and by this defeat restored Liberty to all the Cities of Greece, that King Philip had made his Tributaries. And being ready to engage the Enemy, he received Orders from the Senate to return to Rome, to quit his Consulate, because of some formalities wanting at his Election; but he put the Packet into his Bosom, and did not open it. till after he had obtained the Victory: The Senate refented highly his contrivance, and endeavoured to deprive him of the triumphal Entry; but the People opposed them, and allowed him the Triumph. Wherefore this great General was attended in his Triumph. by a Crowd of his fellow Citizens, whom he had made free, and followed his Triumphal Chariot with Acclamations, which made the white Fig-tree is fortunate, but on the the Glory of his Triumph thine the more.

neither in the Calendars of Rome, nor in the Apple, with a woollen Tuft on the top of Roman Chronicles. The Senate doubtless de- it called Apiculum, and from its brims hung prived him of that Honour, because he had woollen Bands, called Offendices, to keep it not obeyed their Orders, when he was called fast. back to Rome.

the plural number. Numa instituted these si amiste Flaminio decedit. Priests of Jupiter, Mars and Romulus or Quirinus, to perform the Religious Ser- any Oath, nor to lye out of the Town. The vice, and called them Flamines. Varro in paring of his Nails and Hairs were buried at his Book of the Latin Tongue tells us, the Foot of a Tree, Subter arborem Siliquam terthat the Antients had as many Flamines as ra operiantur; and was forbid to name or Gods. At first there was but one Flamen created, who was called Flamen Dialis . or the Priest of Jupiter; then another was allowed to lay, and was bound to shift himself in private. Mars, called Flamen Martialis, and a third to Quirinus or Romulus, called Flamen Quirinalis.

Afterwards the number of Flamines was increased; but yet the first were called Majores Plamines, and were all of Patrician Families; the others were called Minores Flamines, and were of Plebeian Families.

There were likewise Flamines ordained for the Emperors, after they were ranked among called Flamen Augustalis.

The People affembled by Curii chose these Priests, and often left their Election to the Pontiffs. The High Priest consecrated them. upon her Husband Flaminii Camilli. and they were under his subjection, as to their Discipline. Aulus Gellius relates the Ceremonies observed at their Consecration.

First, the will of the Gods was consulted by Augurs, about the Man who should be confecrated, then the High Priest took him up from the hands of his Kindred; and this was called capere Flaminem, as we learn from

The Priests of Jupiter called Flamen Dialis was the chief of all. And it must be observed that all these Priests were allowed to wear the Robe edged with Purple, like great Magistrates, to keep the Ivory Chair, and to sit in the Senate.

was particular to them. And Varro tells us, ple. that they had the name Flamen, because they wore a little Band of Thread about their The Flavian Family, fo called, from the co-Head, Flamines dieti, quod filo caput cinetum habebant.

that the Flamines wore upon their Head, one anus fingle for conveniency in the Summer, viz. this little Band of Thread; the other was the tius gives a description of Flora or Flaura, as Hat, which covered their Head, during their if the was a Courtezan, who left her substance Functions : Verum festis diebus, file deposite, pilea to the Roman People; in consideration wherenecesse erat accipere.

scribed the form of the Hat of the Flamines, tituled the Goddess of Flowers. But Varre Flaminiu is not found among the Confuls, the Crown thereof was in form of a Pine-

When the Wife of the Flamen Dialis died. FLAMEN and FLAMINES, in he was obliged to quit his Priesthood: unorem

> He was not allowed to ride, nor to take touch a She-Goat, a Hare, or Beans, and never entered into any place where dead Bodies lest Jupiter should fee him naked.

FLAMINICA, The Wife of the Flamen Dialis was invested with the Priest-hood, like her Husband, and was not obliged to observe the same Ceremonies that he observed himself. She was not allowed to comb her Hairs, nor to put them in order, when she went to the Ceremonies of the Argei, celebrated in May, because she was then in mournthe Gods. The Emperor Augustur had one ing. Her chiefest Ornament was a great Scarf of purple colour, with a Fringe about it. The Woman who waited on her was called Flaminia, and the Men who attended

FLAMINIUS, See before Flamen. FLAVIUS. Caim the Son of Crem Flavius Libertinus, a Notary, was raised to the dignity of Ædilis Curulis against the Patrician's confent, which they refented so highly, that they left off their Ornaments, and refused to falute him in contempt of his elevation. But to be revenged of them, he published the Roman Law, which the Senate and Patricians had kept very fecret among themselves, in the Closets of the Pontiffs, and published also the Roman Calendars, and dedicated a Temple to Concord. Whereupon the wrath of the Patricians was increased, for they had then no-They did wear a kind of a Cap or Hat, that thing left fecret to deceive the simple Peo-

FLAVIANA, Viz. FAMILIA, lour of their Hairs, that were reddish. There were three Reman Emperors born of that Servius mentions two kinds of Ornaments Family, viz. Velpatianus, Titus and Domiti-

FLORA, The Goddess Flora. Lastanof they ordained her extraordinary Honours, Scaliger, upon this Text of Varro, has de- and Games called Floralia, where she was inand tells us, that it was called Flammeum, that recounts Flors among the Divinities, who were before that time honoured by the Sabins, cold out of the Limbs by hear, restoring and were received at Rime, when the Sabins, to- them to their Natural state; the bittiminous gether with their King Tatius joined themfelves to the Romans, to make with them but pers of the internal parts of the body. one and the same body of People. Ovid defive hundred and thirteen years after the a great boiling Fountain which petrifies. foundation of Rome; and yet were not kept annually : but in the year five hundred and tract bitterness by the moisture of the Earth. eighty, at the celebrating of these Games, through which they run out, which proceeds Harlots danced naked, playing a thousand la- from Mines of Sandarach, that communicates scivious postures.

FLORUS, A Governour of Judes for the Romans, who attempted to steal away feven- cina, called the Fountain of Neptune. the Wateen Talents out of the Treasury of the Temple. But the people disappointed his design, and reproached him for his Tyranny; and Jalia there is still a Fountain shadowed by a to make him appear scandalous, some men Tree, the blossoms whereof are of purple went from door to door begging in his colour, the Flocks refuse to drink of it. In the name. But having been acquainted with it, Country of the Falifci, near the road of Naples, to revenge that affront, he marched with all his Forces and entred Jerusalem, where his Soldiers plundered the Market, and many persons of Quality's Houses. He commanded also that many Romans of the Equestrian Order, should be whipt, and nailed to the Cross without any regard to their quality. because they were Native Jews. His barbarous dealing obliged the Jews to rebel, whereupon stones in the Bladder and Reins. Velpasianus destroyed their Capital City and Nation.

an Abridgment of the Roman History from Romulus to Trajan, and lived in his Reign. drunk. Some Criticks can't bear his way of writing, yet his Style is not altogether fo much to be | led Clitor, is a Cave under ground, from blamed, tho there are a great many Faults | whence flows a fpring of Water that has fuch in it, being wholly Poetical and full of quibbles. 'Tis uncertain whether he is the Author | drank of its Water. Upon this Fountain there of the Epitome of the Books of Livy.

because she helped women in the time of not proper for bathing, and is an Enemy to their monthly courfes.

Fountains, the water whereof is as good to Presus in this Fountain, to cure them of their drink, fays Vitruvius, as that which is drawn Madness, and restored them to their former out of the Fountain of the Muses, or the condition. Spouting-waters of Martian's Fountain. All hot Fountains have a Medicinal Virtue; for being warm'd by the Minerals, through which they run, acquire a new vertue, and are fit for other uses than common Waters are. fant to drink, but made the minds of Men as For Sulphureous Water is good for diftempers of the Nerves, fortifying them, and confuming the bad humours with their heat. other like distemper, driving the exorbitant water of that Fountain is very proper for waters being drunk, by purging expel diffem-

At Carthage there is a Spring, on the furscribes her in his Fasti, as the Goddess of face whereof there is Oyl swimming over. Flowers, the Wife of Zephirus, whereby he which smells like the scraping of a Lemon. means a natural Goddess, named Flora, instead | the Inhabitants of the place anoint their Catof Cloris. The Games Floralii were instituted the with it. Near Hieropolis in Phrygia there is

There are also springs of water that con-

its bitternefs to the waters.

There was was a spring of Water at Terrater whereof was so poisonous, that it immediately killed Men who drank of it. In Thefand a Grove standing in the middle of a Field called Cometus, comes out a Spring, wherein are found bones of Serpents. Lizards, and other venemous Beafts.

There are also some Fountains of acid waters, as the Fountains of Lyncestis and Velino in Italy, Theans in Terra di Lavoro, and in many other places, which being drank, dissolve

Besides all these Fountains there are other Springs, the Waters whereof feem to be mixt FLORUS, An Historian, who has write with Wine, as that of Paphlagonia, which, without any Wine mixt with it, makes Men

In Arcadia, near a Town well known cala Virtue, that Men hate Wine after they have is an Epigram written in Greek Verses, giving FLUONIA, An Epithet given to Juno, warning to the People that the Fountain is the Vineyard, because Melampus having offer-FONS, A Fountain. There are hot led his Sacrifice, purified the Daughters of In the Isle of Clio there was a spring of water, that made those mad who drank of it. Wherefore an Epigram was fet on it, to give warning that the water thereof was very plea-hard as Stone.

At Suza the Capital City of the Kingdom of Perlie, another small spring of water makes The waters that run through Allum-mines, the Teeth fall out. And an Epigram is there cure bodies weakened with the Palfy, or fome | written, to give notice to the people, that the drink of it fhed.

These two Fountains Arethula and Hippocrene of this last Fountain signifies the Horse Fountain. This Horse was also called anya', i.e. Fountain. 'Tis well known, that the Vapours of the waters under-ground, ascend to the highest top of the Mountains by a continual transpiration, and there thicken into fmall drops of water, which meeting together make Springs. Voffice tells us, that this motion of ascending waters, compared to a Horse, gave occasion to the Fable of Pegajus. Arethufa is a Fountain in Greece, which was beloved by the River Alpheus, who follows her running under ground as far as Sicilia, where Diana receives her in the small Island of Ortygia. See Alpheus.

Rome, by crowning the Fountains with Garlands of Flowers and Lamps, among the Sa-

FONTINALIS PORTA, AGate at Rome called Capena, where Fountains and

Conduirs were built. FORDICIDIA or FORDICA-LIA, A Festival observ'd the 15th of April through all the Curie, on which they offerel in facrifice a Cow with a Calf called FORNACALIA, The Feast of Ovens, which was commonly celebrated the 18th, in remembrance of the ancient Ovens. wherein Wheat was roafted, before the way of grinding Corn and making Bread was found out. Upon that day they facrificed to the Goddess Fornax, to give her thanks for the good use of Ovens, invented by her.

FORTUNA, Fortune, a Goddess which the Heathens esteem'd the Ruler of all Events both good and bad. For they diffinguish'd two kinds of Fortune, one good and the other bad. The Greeks had many Temples dedicated to Fortune, recorded by Paulanias in several places of his Books, called the Fortune of the Gods Gier Tuxn, and observes that Homer has spoken well of Fortune or Tyche; and has placed her among the Nymphs, the Daughters of the Ocean; but never allowed her a great power over humane things; tho' he has in other places of his works described the Functions proper to every particular Goddefs.

Paulaniae has also observed, that the imaginary omnipotency ascribed to Fortune, and fo much extoll'd by vain Men in following Ages, did not prevail over the mind of Men, (at least of the Greeks) before the Age bathing, but makes the Teeth of those who of Homer. Paulanies observes fill in many tune, and ranked her at the head of the Parca. were often rehearfed by the Poets. The name Facile enim mibi Pindarus in fuit Canticis perfusdet, tum alia multa, tum vere unam effe Parcarum Fortunam, & cam quidem potestate foreribus antecellere. The common Idea of a blind and inconftant Fortune, can't be represented by making her one of the Parce; and yet this representation comes near to the truth, for it gives to understand, that all things are govern'd by a wife aud absolute power, whose actions icem sometimes casual to Men, because they can't find out the secret and invisible ways of his proceedings.

Pindar prays to Fortune as the Daughter of Jupiter, who has at her command the ordering, motions and fuccess in War both by Sea and Land, and presides at publick delibe-

Horace places the management of all things Feast of Fountains, which was folemnized at in the hands of Jupiter, whose secret and just all things that the vulgar afcribe to Fortune, is performed by Providence. Od. 34. l. 1.

> Valet ima Summis Mutare, & infignem attenuat Deut, Objeura pomens. Hine apicem rapax Fortuna cum stridore acuto Suftulit, bic posuife gaudet.

'Tis plain by these Verses, that God and Fortune are two names that fignifie the fame thing; for commonly Men afcribe to Fortune the Events that don't depend upon them, and are perform'd by a superior cause unknown to them. The following Ode is dedicated to Fortune; and 'tis most certain, that under that name, he understands the supream Dignity, not only because of the infenite power he ascribes her, but also because he confounds Fortune with Necessity and Pate, which is quite opposite to the Idea of

Horace had doubtless read what Homer faid that at the entry of Jupiter's Palace, there are two great Vessels, out of one runs upon us all good, and of the other all evil, to shew u that God is the dispenser of all good and evil; favouring men with his good things, and punishing them, when he fends or per-holding betwire her arms Plutus the God of Riches. She is represented in Medals like a Goddess, holding with one hand a Horn of Plenty, with the other the Helm or Rudder of a Ship, fet upon a Globe, to shew that she governs the World. Fortune is still reprefented lying or fitting, and holds under her left Arm her Horn of Plenty, and lays her right hand upon a wheel, to denote her inflability and inconstancy, with these words Portune Reduci. Apeller drew her in that poflure, and when he was asked the reason these several Names. why he had drawn her fitting, he answered, because she had never been at rest.

Ancus Martius, the fourth King of the Rr mans, was the first Man who built a Temple at Rome to Fortune, with this Title Fortune virili, To the Viril and coursgious Fortune ; because Courage is not less required than good Fortune to obtain Victories. Servius Tulling built her a Temple at the Capitol under the Title of Primegenia.

ing a Branch of Laurel with her Horn of VIRILIS & FEMINEA.

Plenty.

ing, the was carried to his Successors.

at Pranifie.

vinicies.

The Pagans, fays St Austin, esteem'd so much the Goddess Fortune, that they have left in Writing, that the Statue that Women figure, with double and large Piazza's round had confectated by the name of feminine Fortune had spoken, and said more than one time, that they had done well to render her with Galleries above; but this was not prathat Honour.

Esquilinus consecrated to Fortune. St Au- in these places, wherefore they set up their flin speaks of it in raillery, in the 4th Book Pillars at a larger distance one from another, of the City of God, c. 18. 'How can Goddets that the People might fee those Shews the Fortune be fometimes good, and fometimes better, and that the Shops of the Bankers, be as many several Fortunes good and bad, publick Revenues. as there are men happy and unhappy. May be the Goddels is always good, and if it be Market-places at Rome, fourteen whereof were 'to, the is the same thing as Felicity. Why appointed for the sale of Goods and Merchanhave then Men confecrated them feveral dizes, called Fora Venalia. There was Forum 'Temples, Altars and Ceremonies? Because, Olitorium. the Herb-Market, where Pulses 'fay they, Felicity is that which Men enjoy according to their deferts, but good Fortune befals by chance both good and bad Men, without any respect to personal Meour distinction both good and bad Men? for Dainties, where the Cooks, the Pastry-

There was a Statue of Fortune at Athem, 1' is blind, and offers herself indifferently. all Men, and leaves often those Men w ferve her, to flick to those who despile her ; or if they fay, that she sees and loves Men who worthip her, the has then regard to the deferts of Men, and does not happen out of a meer chance? what will become then of the definition of Fortune? and how can they fay that she derives her name from Fors, because she is casual.

The Romans gave feveral Names to Fortune, and built her Temples and Ædicula, by

They called her FORTUNA LIBE-RA. REDUX, PUBLICA, PRI-We have fill other Emblems of Fortune; MIGENIA, EQUESTRIS; PARin some whereof she is represented with a VA FORTUNA; FORS or FOR-Beard, Fortuna Barbata, and in others carry- TIS FORTUNA; FORTUNA

FORUM, This word fignifies feveral We read in Histories, that the Fortune of things; wir. Market-places, and common Gold commonly attended the Beds of the places, where the People met upon Bufiness. Cafars, and that when the Emperor was dy- | a' d where they pleaded; for of all the places that were at Rome, there were but three where There was a brazen Statue of Fortune, in Courts were kept. Forum fignified alfo. a a Temple built to her by Sylla at Pranefle, fo Town where Fairs are kept, as Forum Julis. well gilt over, that to express any thing that the Fair of Frioul; Forum Livij, the Fair of was well gilt, 'tis faid that it had been gilt Forly; and Forum Flaminium, the place where was kept the Fair of Fuligny; for because of The Ancients represented Fortune of both the great concourse of Merchants, who came Sexes, Male and Female, as several other Di- to these Fairs, they built Houses for their conveniences, and in process of time, these places became Towns.

The publick places in Greese are of fourre about, the Pillars whereof are close, and hold up the Architraves made of Stone or Marble, cticed in Italy, because the old custom was to There was a Temple built upon Mount represent the Fights of Gladiators to the People bad? May be when the is bad, the is not that were under the Piazza's, and the Balcothen a Goddess, but is changed on a sudden nies that were above, might have room einto a pernicious Devil; Then there must nough for their Trade, and the Receipt of

There were feventeen common places or were fold ; Forum Pifterium, the Market for Bread : Forum Piscarium, the Fish-Market ; Forum Equarium, the Market for Horfes; Forum Bonrium, the Market where Oxen were fold : rit, whereforeshe is called Fortune. But Forum Soarium or Suarium, the Hog-Market; how can the be good, if the befals with- Forum Cupedinarium or Cupedinis, the Murket · And why Men should ferve her, seeing she | Cooks, and the Confectioners kept their Shops.

Writers don't agree about the Etymology In this place of Affembly there were four of the Name given to this place. Eifer fays, stately Buildings; viz. the Palace of Pestine; that this word is derived from super or capedia, the House of Opimia, where the Senate men which fignifies in Antient Books, rare and the House of Julio, built by Vitravine, and dainty meat. Varro in his 4th Book of the Latin the House of Porcia, erected by Portius Cate. Tongue, tells us, that this place took its Name | At one corner of this place, at the foot of the from a Roman of the Equefirian Order, named Tarpeian Rock, was a great and dreadful Pri-Cupes, who had a Palace in this place, which fon built by Amens Martine, and fince enlarged was pull'd down in punishment of his Thefts, by Servius Tullius, with many Dungeons. and the place where it frood, appointed for from whence it was called Tullianum. Over the use of a Market.

All: thefe Market-palces were furrounded with Piazza's and Houses, with Stalls and Ta- of a man lying all along, representing, as bles, to expere Goods and Merchandizes to fale, which were called Abaci, Plutei, Venalitij, & Operarie Mente. The Romans called the places where matters of Judgment were pleaded and decided Fora Civilia or Judiciaria, the three chiefest whereof were, Forum Romanum, which was the most ancient and most famous of all, called Latinum & Vetas, where the Roftra was kept : Perum Julis Cafaris & Porum Augusti, were two places only added to the Forum Remanuse, because it was not large enough to hold the number of Lawyers and Glients, fays Suetomius. These three places were appointed for the Assemblies of the People, publick Spechees and Administration of Justice. There were still two places more added to these three above mentioned; one was began by Domitian, and finished by the Emperor Nove, and the other was built by Trajan, called Forum Tranami.

The Forum Romanum was scituated betwixt Mount Palarinus and the Capitol, and contained all that fpot of ground, that extended from the Arch of Septimius Severus, to the Temple. a great open place, without Buildings or any | go from Mount Palatinus to the Capitoli other Ornament; Tullus Hoftilius was the first through the Forum Romanum. This Gallery afterwards this work was carried on by other | white Marble. Kings, Confuls and Magistrates: And in the time of the prosperity of the Common-wealth, it was one of the finest places in the World. The chiefest parts thereof were, the place called Comitium, where the people affembled for deliberations concerning publick Affairs. The Magistrates called Edilor and Prætors, ordered often Games to be represented there hundred fixty two thousand five hundred to divert the people. Martellus Junier the Son pounds of our Money. This place was beof Octavia, Augustus's Sister, caused it to be | hind the Temples of Peace and Faustima. covered with Linnen, the year that he was Ædile, for the conveniency of those that were at Law, ut Salubrins litigantes confifterent, fays Pliny. Cate the Cenfor faid, that this place | the Title of BISULTOR, i.e. Twice ought to be paved with tharp Stones that litigious men growing weary of standing there, might be discouraged to go to Law.

against that Prison stood a great Coloss of Marble, vulgarly called Marforie, in the shape fome men fay, the Figure of the River Nar, the first letter N having been changed by corruption of Language into an M Nardiforum and Marferie. Some other men tell us, that this Figure represented the River Rhine, and was a piece of Architecture, funporting the Statue of Domition on Horseback and was laid there after he had triumphed over Germany. And some are of opinion that it was the Statue of Jupiter Panarius, the God of the Bakers, whose Statue was set up there in remembrance of the Loaves that the Soldiers threw down from the Capitol into the Camp of the Gault, to shew them that they Just by this place of Assembly was the Court called Hofilia, where the Senate affembled very often. Over against this Court was the Roftra Roftrorum, which was a Pulpit Nerva, and was called by his Name Foram Divi fer up and adorned with stems, or forefronts of Ships taken from the Anzistes. Ar. the Entry of the place, or, as Tacitus says, near the Temple of Saturn, was a Pillar called Millianum aureum, from whence they took the distance and measures of the Italian Miles. There was also a Gallery like a Bridge of of Jupiter Stator. In Romalus's time it was only Marble, built by the Emperor Caliguia, to who inclosed it with Galleries and Shops, and was supported by fourscore huge Pillars of wanted no Provisions.

FORUM JULII CÆSARIS was: much finer than the Forum Romanum, He contrived the defign thereof, being yet a private man, and began to fet men at work about it, when he was Pro-conful of the Gauls. The adorning of this place cost him above a hundred thousand great Sesterces, which is five

FORUM AUGUSTI, was above the Forum Romanum. In the middle of this Forum, Augustus built the Temple of Mars, by Revenger, because he had helped him to revenge himself on the murderers of his adoptire Father, and to fubdue the Parthiam. Hebuilt Kings fince Enem, and on the other fide he perbus fled away to Perfume. ereffed all the Statues of the Kings and Em- FULGUR, Lightning, a grofs and fulphurous perors of Rome, from its foundation to his Exhalation, fet on fire by the clashing of the

F U G

tion, and finished by Nerva. It was also na- nary effects on the Earth. The Pagant have med Forum transsterium, because it was a passage always armed their Gods with a Thunderto go to the other Feri. Alexander the Emperor bolt, and specially Jupiter, and tell us, that fet up three Statues, of the height and bigness Vulcan and Cyclops forged the Thunderbolts in of Colosses, both on Foot and Horse-back, in the Caves of Mount Asses, where they placed honour of the Emperors his Ancestors, and his Forge. erected brazen Pillars, whereon were engraved their Atchievements, FORUM Trajani exceeded all the former ; and the Gods themselves, says Ammianus Marcellinus, gazed upon it as one of the wonders of the World, and were amazed at it, feeing nothing but Heaven it felf finer, and able to withstand. nothing else that came so near to it : Singularem sub omni calo structuram, etiam Numinum af-Jenssone mirabilem. Apollodorus a skilful Architect, built it by Trajan's Order. In the middle of this place, was a Pillar a hundred and twenty eight foot high, and Men ascend to it by one hundred eighty five Steps, which were enlightned with forty five Windows. Round about this Pillar were ingraven the Atchievements of this Emperor, and the Victories he had obtained over the Daci. 'Tis the general opinion, that the Senate confecrated this Pillar to him, while he was at War against the Parthiant, and that he never faw it himself; at the same place where they had been struck but dying of a bloody-flux at Seleucia a City in Syria, his Ashes were brought to Rome, and us. fet up in a golden Pilaster on the top of the Pillar, which is adorned with feveral reprethem, EX MANUBIIS.

Nerve and the Capitol. Baths to cool the People.

in the time of the Emperor Nerva.

FRUMENTATORES & FRU-MENTARIJ. Those who bought Corn in the Provinces, both for Cities or Armies, or received and gathered the Corn, that some Provinces furnish'd the Commonwealth with. These words signifie also Purveyors for the Armies, who destributed a certain quantity of Corn every day to each Soldier, in the like manner as the Ammunition Bread is now defiributed in the Armies to the Soldiers.

FUGALIA, Feasts instituted in remembrance of the Liberty restored to the Commonwealth, after the Kings were expell'd built a double Gallety sound about it, and let ; out of Rome. These Feaths were beet in heup on one fide the Statues of all the Latis breary, the fame day that King Parquilain Su-

Clouds together, and coming out with vio-FORUM Nerva, was began by Domi- lence makes a great noise, and has extraordi-

The Egyptians in their Hieroglyphicks took Thunder for a power, which no Creature is able to refist. Wherefore speller drew Aexander in the Temple of Diana of Ephelus, holding a Thunderbolt in his hand, to shew the extent of his power, which no Creature was

The opinion of the Heathens was, that Japiter never firuck neither Men nor inanimate Creatures with his Thunderbolt, but to punish their Crimes: and Men struck therewith were deprived of Sepulture, and were buried only in the same place where they were found dead, according to the Law of Nums, as Feffus relates.

Sei fulmine occifus eft, ei jufta nulla fieri

They covered only their Corps with Earth. with the Thunderbolt, as Artemiderus tells

It was not allowed to Sacrifice to the Gods, with Wine of a Vineyard touch'd with Thunsentations of Horses and military Standards | derbolt, and the places that were struck with gilded over, with these words written upon it were fatal and unfortunate, till they were purified with Sacrifices, and then these places This Forum was scituated between that of became famous, by an Altar that was erected there. And those men, who were employed FRIGIDARIUM, A place in the to purific Trees fmitten with Thunderbolt, are called by Feftus Strufertarii, Men making FRONTINUS, An Historian, who a Sacrifice with dough baked upon Ashes. An was Overseer of the Waters and Aqueducts, old table of brass found at Rome, makes good what I fay. These are the words mentioned on that Table.

IIII. ID. DEC. Fratret. Arval. In Luco : Dea. Die. Via. Campana. Apud. Lap. V. Convener. Per. G. Porc. Prifcum. Mag. Et Ibi. Immolav. Quod ab Ittu. Fulminis. Arbores Luci Sacri. D. D. Attacta Arduerint. Earumque Adolefactarum. Et in eo Luco Sacro Alia. Sins Rep ofite.

The Tenth day of December the Fratres Ar- | The 19th year of Tiberias's Empire, whichis valis affembled at the Grove of Jane, on the great Road of Campania, five miles from Rome, by the order of C. Portiss Prifess Magnus, and there facrificed, because some Trees of the holy Grove, dedicated to the Goddess, were ftruck with Thunderbolt. Oc.

The Romans diffinguished two kinds of Thunderbolts, those of the day, which they ascribed to Jupiter, and those of the night, which were in the power of the God Summanus, Dium-fulgur, fays Festus, Appellabant diurnum qued putabant Jevis, ut notturnum Summani. There was yet fulgur proversum, which was heard betwirt day and night, and was afcri- interprets it. Pliny in the 8th Book, c. 2. fays, bed both to Jupiter and Summanus together.

The Thunder was made use of to take the Augurs, about things that were to come.

Some Thunders were called by the Romans Vans and Bruts, which fignified nothing at all, and made more noise than did harm; the in the following Chapter, Pliny speaking of other: Facidica, which portended good and evil, joy and forrow. Of these last some were called Confiliaria, which happened while they were adviting about some affair: others Auttoritativa, which happened when the bufiness was done, to give their approbation to it, and countenance it. Others were called Monitoria. which gave warning of what should be avoiddanger. Deprecanea, which carried with them an appearance of danger, and yet were without danger. Familiaria, which prognosticated the evil that was to befal fome Family. Publica. out of which they drew predictions for thirry years; and Privata, by which they foretold things to come only for ten years.

FUNAMBULI, Dancers on the Ropes. The Art of the Dancers on the Ropes is very ancient. Terest makes mention of them in the Prologue to Herra. Capitolinus, in the life of Marcus Aurelius, favs he, that to this present time, viz. to the per urrer time of Dieclesian, there were Nets spread under the Rope. These Games were represent- accounted among the publick Games, and ed while Marcus Aurelius was Emperor, in the this Trade was rather looked upon as the skill 18th year of his Tribuneship, the 164th year and diversion of private men, than any thing of our Lord.

derful thing, which shews, that not only like Players of Comedies, nor had any rule Men but also Animals were capable of being in their Art. And yet there were some preinstructed in the Art of dancing on the Ropes. I sents made to them; but these Presents were the 32d year of our Lord, Galba being Prator, ordered the Games and Feasts called Floralia to be kept, wherein he gave new fhews to the people, viz. Elephants walking on the Rope.

Afterwards, in the Reign of the Emperor Nero, in the great Games inflituted for the Eternity of the Empire, as Sustanius relates. a great many persons of both Sexes shewed their Skill by feveral forts of Games, and among others a Roman of the Sequestrian Order, fitting on an Elephant, run per catadramum, i. e. on a stretched Rope, as Casauban that Germanicus gave publick Games of Gladiators, wherein Elephants performed many Feafts of Activity, throwing Swords in the Air, and fighting like Gladiators, and danced in Armour, and walked on the Rope; and the docility of these Creatures, 'Tis a strange thing, says he, that there are some so skilful as to ascend a long stretched Rope; and what is more incredible, to descend again backward, with less trouble than they went up.

And if we take it from the first ages of our Lord, Petronius, Juvenal, and Quintilian Speak ed. Pellifers, which threatned fome evil or of dancers on the Ropes ; Petronius gave this description of them.

> Stupea suppositis tenduntur vincula lignis. Que super acrius pretendit crura viator, Brachia diftendens, greffum per inane gubernat.

Before the coming of our Lord, Horace in the 2d Book of his first Epistle, makes an al-Iusion to the Dancers on the Ropes. Meffala, who lived 260 years before the coming of Christ, is the first man who has rendred the word Schanobates by that of Funambulus in fays, that the Emperors Marcus Aurelius, and Latin, as Acron relates in his Notes upon He-Lucius Verus, dress'd in magnificent Habits, race It must be granted, that 'ris very difficult were Spectators of the Games ordered for to determine precisely the time that men dantheir Triumphs, and that among other marks ced first on the Ropes, yet tis to be supposed of Marcus Aureliur's kindness, he had that re- that this art came into practice a while after gard for the Dancers on the Ropes, to order the Games of the Stage and Comedy . that Quilts should be laid along under the which was invented in the diversions of the Rope, because of a little Boy who dancing on Vintage, by occasion of the Leather-bottles, the Rope fell down; and from hence comes, upon which they leapt and danced. Saliere

Shews of Dancers on the Ropes were never elfe belonging to the Stage; for we never Suetonius, in the life of Galba, relates a won- read that they received any publick reward like those that were settled for Plavers.

notwithstanding their Dances were not an ef- it out. fential part of these Games, till the Emperor Carinus's time.

The Cyzicenians had a fingular skill in dancing on the Ropes, as fays an anonymous wrikept in the French Kings Library. This Ma- gers were part of the Roman Militia. nufcript informs us, that the Cyzicenians and venters and Masters thereof and Caffius.

in his time at Conflantinople, some of these decessor. Dancers tumbling about a Rope.

lut in wentis cothurnatus ferretur, exhibuit.

In the third order of these Dancers menti- of that great man. oned by the fame Manilius, were ranked those tally flanting.

only walk on a bent Rope, but also leapt and the Dances of the Funambuli.

made out of the liberality of the people, and Ropes to fling Stones with a greater violence. not out of the publick rewards fet for them, In former ages they tied Slings to the Balifia. The Inhabitants of the Baleares Islands were Lipfing places Shews of Dancers on the Ropes formerly excellent men at Slinging. Vegeting in the rank of private diversions; for the ascribes to them the invention of the Sling, they danced in the Chorus's of publick Games, though others fay that the Phanicians found > Florus and Strabo tells us, that there were three kinds of Slings, longer or shorter, and that they made use of them according to the distance that they were from the Enemy.

ter of Geography, who lived in the time of FUNDITORES, The Slingers, men Confiant and Confiantius, whose Manuscript is who slung Stones with a Sling. The Shin-

FUNEBRIS ORATIO, A Funetheir neighbours had fo great a skill in leap- ral Oration The Roman custom was to have ing and dancing, even on the Ropes, that Funeral Speeches at the burying of the great they exceeded in that art all other Nations, men of Rome, spoken from the Rosers in the and accounted themselves to be the first In- Forum Romanum, where the Funeral Parade stood. The man chosen to make the Speech The Greek had Dancers on the Ropes from published the Praises of the Dead, and began the first institution of Scenic Plays, which with the greatness of his Ancestors, the anwere invented about the time of Icarius, the cientness of his Family, the sweetness of his Son of Erigonus, or of Dimysus sirnamed Liber Manners, his Liberality, and the Services Pater, and first introduced into Athens by Thesew. he had rendered to the Commonwealth, both The Dancers on the Ropes appeared first at |in time of Peace and of War. The Children. Reme during the Confulate of Sulpitius Peticus or the Relations performed often this duty, or and L. Steion, the first Introducers of Plays in the Senate appointed some Eloquent Orator Rome, afted for Licinius the first time in the Isle to perform the same. Augustus being but of the River Tiber, and then represented on the twelve years old made a publick Speech to Stage by the orders of the two Cenfors, Meffala praise his Grandmother, and being Emperor he made another to praise Germanicus his Ne-The Greeks called the Dancers on the Ropes | phew. Tiberius, fays Suctonius, made a Speech by these several Names, Schanobates, Acrobates, at nine years of age in honour of his Father, Orebates, and Neurobates, as we read in the land few years after he was raifed to the Imfirst Book of Bullenger de Theatre, who tells us perial Dignity, he pronounced a Funeral. that there were four kinds of them. In the Speech in praise of his Son. Caligula having. first rank he places those who vaulted round not yet put on the Togo Viriliis, made a pubabout the Ropes, like a Wheel about its Axle-lick discourse in commendation of his Grandtree, and hung themselves by the Feet or the mother then dead, and Nero thade also an O-Neck. Nicephorus Gregoras says, that he saw ration to praise the Emperor Claudius his Pre-

Valerius Publicola, was the first man who The fecond kind of these Dancers were made a Funeral Speech at Rome; for Polybius those who let themselves flide downward a- relates, that Junius Brutus his Colleague in the long a Rope lying upon their Breasts, hold- Consulship, having been killed at the Battle ing their Arms and Legs stretched out. Of lagainst the Toscane, he ordered his Corps to these the Manilius Nicetas, and Vopiscus speak in be brought on a Bed in the publick place, and the life of Carinus, faying, Neurobatem, qui ve- he went up into the Rofira, and fet forth in a discourse to the people, the Atchievements:

We read in Alexander ab . Alexandro, and in who run on a Rope, being stretcht horizan- Plutarch, that this custom was practifed, andthat Quineus Fabius Maximus fooke the Foneral The fourth kind were those who did not Oration of Scipie, and of his own Children.

We learn of Livy, that this honour was alplayed many fuch tricks, as a Dancer might fo granted to the Roman Matrons after their do on firm ground at the found of a Flute; death, because they had formally offered to and of these speaks Symposius, when he relates part with their Neckiaces and Jewels in atime that Money was scarce, and in ac-FUNDA. A Sling, an Instrument of knowledgment of their Piety, it was ordered, that Funeral Speeches in their commend person. Whereupon Sustania golates a nie davien thould be allowed to them.

Popilis was the first Roman Lady who re- ing invited to a Funetal, came masked will ceived that honour, and Crassis her Son made a Vizard and in a disguise, like the Emperor her Funeral Oration. Suctionius reports, that Vespatian, who being taxed with covetouines Julius Cafar being then Quaftor, pronounced and counterfeiting him according to culture a publick discourse of praise in the place cal- asked aloud before the Assembly, those wie led Roftrs, in honour of his Aunt Julis; and had the management of the Funerals, how Camelia his Wife.

charges, which amounted fometimes to ex- Sefterces, which is about feven hundred and ceffive fumms of Money. New Ipent for lifty pounds, he cried out, that if they would the Funerals of Poppes more Cinnamon and give him that fumm of Money, they mich Caffia, than Arabia was able to produce in a throw him after his death where they thous whole year; and Suetonius fays, that the Fune- think fit. rals of Nero came to a hundred thousand Seflerces, which according to the supputation of nies, having disposed all in a good order, the Murfius amounts to feven hundred and fifty Funeral Parade began to march with gree thousand pounds.

the Agyptians, being a distance or the space of where a Funeral Speech was made in honor a place containing fixty furlongs in length, of the deceased person. They carried before which are about feven thousand five hundred the Corps vessels full of Perfumes and precipaces, or 6 miles and a quarter of English ous Liquors, to throw into the wood-nile measure.

Ceremonies.

publick Cryer gave notice to the people of Draughts of conquer'd Cities, names of the the time of the Funerals in these words. N. subdued Nations, Titles of the Laws make QUIRIS LETHO DATUS EST: by them, Military Presents, and other badge ADEXEQUIAS QUIBUS EST of Honour. They carried also the Effigies of COM MODUMIRE, JAM TEM-their Ancestors, made of Wax of imbossal PUS EST: OLLUS EX ADI-Work, which they kept in Niches at the sa BUS EFFERTUR. Such a Citizen is try of their Houses, and crowned then dead; those who have time to go to his Fu- with Garlands of Flowers, upon certain day nerals, 'tis time, they are ready to carry a lof the year. way the Corps out of the House.

lick Cryer, were called Indiffice, but this was ing, wearing the badges of their Magistract. practifed but at the Funerals of the Empe- as also the badges of the offices of the deal rors or Persons of quality; and to honour them the better, they gave Games and Shews condition of the dead, was carried upon to the people, to wit, fights of Gladiators and Bed of State adorned with Ivory, and cover Horse-races. Men are still thus invited in ed with a rich Carpet. Besides this Bed of Prance at the Funerals of Kings, Princes, So- State, there were many other Beds adorated versign Courts, and other Ministers of State, with Garlands and Crowns of Flowers, and by fourfcore fworn Cryers, together with the the Images of the Ancestors of the decease Great Masters of the Ceremonies.

rals, where no body was invited, called Sim- of the Dictator Silla, and fix hundred pludiares or Simpliludiares funers, then the Fu- at the Funeral of M. Marcellus, the Son neral Parade was only attended by Vaulters of Ottavia, Sifter to Augustus, says Valeria and Buffoons, called Ludii and Corvitores.

Some hired Women attending the Fune- After this Funeral Bed, carried by the newrals, named Prafica, cryed and mourned, est Relations of the dead, or by his affirmfinging fad and mournful Songs, intermixt chifed men, then marched those appointed to with the praises of the dead, and moved other mourn, by the deceased person, all dressed in Women to imitate them, and some other long black Gowns edged with Scarlet, at men called Pantomimi, counterfeiting the mo- tended by Torch-bearers and Lictors march tions, actions, and the voice of the deceased ing before them.

fant fancy of a Buffoon called Face, who much the charges of the Burial came to ?and FUNERATICUM, The Funeral when he beard that it amounted to a hundred

The Designator, or Master of the Ceremopomp along the great Streets and Crofs-water FUNICULUS, An ancient measure of of Rome ; then stopt in the place of the Rofing when the Corps was burning, to prevent in FUNUS, Funerals, Obsequies, Burial bad smell. Afterwards Warlike men march ed, carrying the Standards and Spoils of the The eighth day after the death being over,a Enemies, and other Trophies of Arms ; a

Then followed the Priests and Religion The Funerals thus published by the publ Orders; after them the Magistrates in mount The Corps dreffed in a habit fuitable to the person were tied to their Beds; fix thousand The Ancient Romans had still other Fune- of these Beds were carried at the Funeral Maximus.

Vestal Virgins; that of Paulus Emilius, by the foveraign Divinity. Mecedoman Ambaffadors then at Rome; that two had been Confuls, and two others had obtain'd the Honour of the Triumph; and the Corn cheap in a year of want.

The mourning Men were followed by Woat the Funerals of their Fathers. Plutarch tells us for reason of this custom, that the Boys were to honour their Fathers as Gods, to whom the Romans facrificed standing, and their Heads covered; and that the Girls should mourn for them as for mortal Men.

The Funeral Parade was attended with many Torches, and by Men playing upon Musical Instruments, as Flutes, Cornets, Drums, and Clarions, founding fad and mournful Tunes, when they destributed Largesses of Specie or Money to the People.

All these Ceremonies were observed but at the Funeral Pomps of great Men of Rome; without all these preparations in a Cossin, by the common Bearers or Sextons, called Vel pillmer and Sandapilarii, and there burnt, without much ceremony.

Many Men ordered by their last Will, that they should be buried without Ceremonies, as M. Emilius Lepidus, who ordered that he should be carried to the Grave on a plain Bed. Those who had performed great Acts for the FURCA, A Fork Formerly they fervice of the Common-wealth, were buried made the vanquished pass under the Yoke, at publick Charges, as Valerius Publicola, the protector of the Roman Liberty, who had triumphed three times over the Enemies.

There were also Funerals called Imaginaria, fays Spartianus, i. e. Obsequies in Effigies, because the Corps of the dead was not there, but only his Effigies.

Antiquity has accounted burial of the Greeks Plute, and the Latins Dis or Summanus,

We read in Comelius Tocisus, that the great | as we learn from Diodorus Siculus, in the fixth Magistrates of Rome carried sometimes the Book of his Antiquities, c. 15. to shew what Funeral Bed of Emperors and Dictators; for Veneration they should have for the Funerals the Bed of Sylls was carried by Senators and of the dead, which had been taught by a

Wherefore, when Nums Pompilius, a wife of Matellus, by his feven Children, of whom and prudent Legislator, reformed the Religion of the Romans, he not only received and approved of Funeral Ceremonies, as being ho-Trebiss being dead in the Office called Edile, ly and commendable, but ordered that the was carried to the Wood-pile on the shoulders | Pontiffs should take care of them, and teach of the Roman People, because he had fold them to those who should have occasion for the fame.

By the Pontifical Laws, it was not allowed men, bemoaning and complaining all along to the High Priest to look upon a dead Corps, the way, and commonly led by the Mother, but if by chance he had seen one in his way, Daughter, or Wife of the deceased person, he was bound by the law, before he went any all dreffed in Mourning, walking along with further, to throw some Earth upon it, or bury dishevelled Hairs, and their Face covered with it. And all the Nations of the Earth have a Veil; and the funeral pomp was closed by always accounted burial one of the chiefest the People. In the time of the Emperors, duties of Religion, which they denied neithe Girls attended the Funerals of their Fa- ther to Friends nor Enemies, as we learn of thers dreffed in white Gowns, the Head un- Hiftorians ; for Vegetius, 1. 2. de Re Milit. cap. covered, and their Hairs dishevell'd; on the 20. tells us, that each Legion had a Purse in contrary, the Boys had their Heads covered the hands of the Enfign-bearer, wherein each Soldier put a piece of Money, to contribute his portion towards the burial of the Soldiers of that Legion, who died in War; we fee also by the Testimonies, both of Tully in the Oration for Mile, and of Cornelius Tacitus 1. 1. that the Generals who were victorious, allowed their Enemies to bury the Corps of their dead Soldiers, or elfe buried them them-

We read in Valerius Maximus, 1. 1. c. 6. and in Livy 1, 22, that Hamibal the chief Enemy to the Romans, having defeated and killed with his own hand, near the Perufian Lake. the Conful Gaius Flaminius and fifteen thoufor the people were caried to the Wood-pile, find Soldiers, ordered his Men to feek for the Corps of the Conful, which he honoursbly buried, and rendered the like honours to many others, mentioned by Valerius Maxi-

> After the death of Hanno, General of the Carthaginian Army, the Conful Lucius Cornelius made him a funeral pomp, and buried his Corps with great honour.

made in the form of a Gallows otherwise called Fork, as the Sammites made the Romans pass at Furca Caudina. The Slaves and other Malefactors carried their Forks or Gallows to the place of Execution, and in that condition they were fo grievoully whipt, that they died fometimes under the lashes : and otherwife, they were often nailed upon the very Dead so facred and honourable, that the in- same Cross and Gallows they had carried vention of burial was attributed to one of themselves; wherefore the Slaves were called their Gods, viz. to the God called by the Furciferi, i. e. a great Rogue, who descrees hanging for his Crimes. Juftus Lipfus gives Horace tells us very wifely, that the Furles an accornt of these Matters, I. 3. de Cruce.

derived from the fury which they inspire.

The Greeks call them Erimyes, from the re , defign is executed. discordia mentis. The opinion of Vosius is, that Fury might be derived, from the Hebrew Fare. In tu reris eum occiffa infenuille parente? i. e. vindicta. But 'tis more likely that Erinmyes come from tody, i.e. male facere. There In matris jugulo ferrum tepefecit acutum? were three Furies, Tifiphone, Aletto and Megers : the Etymo'ogy of these names comes from the Greek Tigicorn, Tigis obre, ultio cadis; Robbers, otherwise called Laverna. They Αλημτώ, quietis nescia; Μέραιξα, odiosa; had consecrated a Wood to her, and inflim-Tzetzes is Author of these derivations.

Men intended to worship Justice the revenger Feasts kept in honour of the Goddess Faring of Crimes, by the Name of Furies; but that the 25th day of July: We read in the Cales. Poers have still added some circumstances dar Furrinalia. thereunto, proper to represent the horrid Ex- FUSCINA, The Trident of Neptung ecutioners of this Justice. For Paufanias says, with three points. that near the Arespagus of Ashens, there was a Temple confecrated to some Goddess, called Fork or a tagged Fork, such as are used to Severa, Osas muras, whom Heffed calls Erin- remove Dung. Tyer: and that Elchilus the Poet is the first Man, who has represented them with Ser- and a narrow bottom, used in ancient Sacripents tied about them; in fine, that the Sta- fices to hold the lustral water for the purifitues of these Goddesses, and all others of the cations. This Vessel is called Futile, because fubterranean Gods, which are placed in that what was put into it, was eafily spilt, he Temple, have nothing dreadful to look on ving but a narrow bottom to fet on the This Historian tells us also, that the Statues I ground. of these Goddesses Severa, were set up somewhere elfe, with the Statues of Jupiter, Ceres, Minerua and Proferpina. And affures in fome other place, that Ceres herfelf was called Erinmyes, because she was transported with fury against Neptune, when he artempted her Cha-Tiry ; à verbo epippoeip, quod furere Arcadibus eff. In fine, he speaks of the Temple of the G. Is but a diminution of C, as Quintilian Manie, Maviac, who are (as he fancies) the G. Is but a diminution of C, as Quintilian Manie, Maviac, who are (as he fancies) the Euminides and Furie. And relates, that they affinity together, for of subspirite, we make appeared dreffed in black Cloaths to Orefter, Gubernator, and of necotium, negotium. And after he had murthered his Mother; but Quintilian records, that in the words Gain, when the time of his fury was over, they Gneius, it was not perceived if it was a C ore shew'd themselves to him in white dresses, G. From whence it comes that of Gentum wen whereupon he built a Temple to these white formed quadringinta, quingenta; and of porti-Goddeffes.

Some Historians have observed, that the rigere. Areopagita had the Statues of the Goddesses Severe placed near their Tribunal, and that the Priest's ordain'd to attend the service of these cause on the Pillar that Duillius erected these Goddesses. (Demosthenes was one of them) were chosen among the Arespacita.

Homer had mentioned the Erinnyes before Hefind; and has represented them in one place PUCNANDO. Which can't be well of his Book. like the revengers of the wrong understood, but by pronouncing the C like done to the poor. Virgil has described them, a K. according to the Idea that Eschilus had of them.

Continuò sontes ultrix accineta flagello Triphone quatit insultans, torvosque sinistra Intentans angues, vocat azmina fava ferorum.

not begin to torment the mind of Man FURIAE, The Furies. This name is the Crime is perpetrated only, but also when the resolution is taken to commit it, and the

Ac non ante malis dementem actum Furiis, quam

FURINA. The Goddess of Thieves & ted Feafts in her honour, called Furingles.

'Tis very likely, that at the beginning FURNALIA or FURINALIA

The word Fuscine fignifies also an Im-

FUTILE, A Vessel with a wide mouth

G.

cere, a word used in sacrifices, was made per

The common opinion is, that G was invented but after the first Carthaginian War, be C is always found instead of the G;

MACESTRATOS, LECIO NES, CARTHACINENSES

The pronounciation of G before the E and the I, is now very much softned, for 'tis pronounced in Regis and Rege, as Regent and Regir is pronounced in the French Tongue; bur in former Ages 'tis every where founded hard, as in Rego.

whether the Roman pronounced the G before the had got by Jupiter. But Galanthis perceithe N, as the French do in these words Agnez, ving the Sorcery of June, came running to Magnifique, Espagnol. &c.

made use of it.

the same Letter G shews in the Italian tongue reigned 35 years in Gaul. the liquid L, Figlliola, Daughter; wherefore GALATEA, A Sea-Nymph, whom the Spaniards write Segnor without a G, draw- Polyphemus the Cyclops loved : the was called ing only a little stroke upon the N, to shew Galates because of her whiteness, for yand that 'tis a liquid Letter, and that it receives fignifies Milk. that pronunciation, writing thus Sonor, and pronouncing Segnor. And Ramus in his Grench Libya, and Galatea the Daughter of Jupiter Grammar marks this liquid N in French only Celter, reigned in Gaul, in the year of the with a little comma over it, instead of join- World 2274. 'Tis recorded that the Gauls ing the G to it.

to know if the Letter N is changed by the was called Galatia, or Gallo-Gracia, as Diodorus Greeks into T in some words, as "A] saves, and siculus and Berofus tell us. digued. &c. T is then pronounced like an N. For it feems, fays Honricus Stephanus, that 'tis which took its Name from the Gauls, who an Errour of the Copilts, who have made the joined with the Greeks, came to inhabit this ra little too broad in the joyning the small part of the World under the command of Letters, and have made a p of it. From their King Galates, in the time of Pyrrhus King whence comes that in the M S. written in ca. of Epirus. The chiefest Cities of that Counpital Letters, like those he has made use of to try are Ancyra and Synope. The Inhabitants make his Thelaurus, these whole words are thereof were accounted to be Cowards and found with an N, ANTEAOE, ANKTPA, Effeminate, like all the rest of the Nations and the like. For, fays he, it feems abfurd of Alia. It was a custom among them to to fay that N was changed into T, to the end throw Letters into the Wood-pile where the that I might be pronounced like an N. Corps were burnt, and they fancied that they Wherefore Scaliger tells us, that if we read should read them in Hell. fometimes thefe words with an N, then we | GALBA SERVIUS SULPImust be sure that it is a fault of the Copists, TIUS, was chosen Emperor in the room who thought to express this pronunciation of Nero, by the Army commanded by him, the better by that Chiracter, which pronun- being then feventy years old. He attributed ciation, as Vollius fays, should require rather his Origine to Jupiter, and Pasiphae the Wife fome new and particular character.

Tongue, which Nigidius in Aulus Gallius, calls Head, and a Hawk-nofe. His Debaucheries a false N, as in the words Anguis, Ancers and made him Gouty, the Joints of his Feet and others. Wherefore Varro, as 'tis related by Hands were knotty to that degree, that he Priscian, affirms that Attius and the Ancient was not able to hold a Book, or to put on a Writers wrote these words with a double GG, Shoe. His Hawk-nose gave him the Counte-

The Letter G among the Ancients fignifi- guffus observing that mark, while he was fited 400, and when there was a dash of a Pen ting at Table with him, foretold that he over it, then it denoted forty thousand.

GABALUS, A Crois or Gallows of raign Command; but that he should but in a the Ancients.

of Alemens, who deliver'd her Mistrits from ' be barren. the inchantments of June, who would not

They ask a question about the Letter G, | suffer her to be delivered of a Child, whom her, and faid, her Mistrifs was brought to But in all likelihood the Romans pronounced bed, whereupon June unfastened her Charms. the G not as the French do in the abovefaid Notwithstanding, June having afterwards difwords, and that the G in Agnus was pro- covered that she had been cozened, in revenge nounced by them, as it is in Agger, for the thereof changed Galanthis into a Weafel, who other pronunciation is so particular and dif- brings forth her young at her Mouth, whereferent from the common pronunciation of with the had offended in telling a Lye, to G. the Ancient Writers had otherwise never procure the lying in of Alemena, to whom June bore hatred.

And 'tis to be observed, that the G is so GALATEA, The Daughter of Jupiter little pronounced in these words Agnez and the Celtes, wherefore the was called Celtins, and like, that it doth but denote a liquid N, as Wife to Hercules of Libya, with whom the

GALATES. The Son of Hercules of and the Greeks affifted him in the Conquest of Here arises still another difficulty, namely, some Provinces of Asia, and that Country

GALATIA, A Country of Asia Miner,

of Minn King of Crete. He was of a brawny The Latins had fomething like that in their Countenance, a wrinkled Forehead, a bald like the Greeks, Aggulus, Aggens, and the like. nance of an Eagle the King of Birds.' Authould one time or another enjoy the Sovemanner tafte of the Empire. 'That will GALANTHIS, The waiting Maid | come to pass, said he, when Mules shall not digy was fulfill'd. The Historians tax him the Feet, like the Sandals of Begging Friars, with a fordid covetoufnefs, and a flavish fub-mission to three Favourites, who governed, CINIUS IGNATIUS, The Soa, and made hast to make their Fortune under of Valerianis, associated by him to the Eman old Prince. However, some Writers re- pire. They reigned together about seven or late, that he was only covetous before his eight years, till Valerianus was taken by Sapacoming to the Imperial Government; and King of Persia. During his reign, the Empire that as foon as he was Emperor, he was a li- was oppressed with several Calamities, which beral Prince, bestowing Largesses upon his he ascribed to the persecution of the Chris Subjects, and granting them Priviledges.

Soldiers, tho he was not of the Family of the to all kinds of Crimes. Claudius, who com-Cefart; and adopted Pife a young Man of great manded the Army against the Nation call'd hopes, and having brought him to the Camp, Daci, not being able to bear any longer with he declared the choice he had made to the his infamous Debaucheries, caus'd him to be Army; but spoke not a word of bestowing murthered at Milan, together with his Bro-Largeffes upon the Soldiers; whereupon Orbe thers and Children, and feiz'd upon the Emcaballed, and got both Galba and his Successor pire. murthered, after he had reigned seven Months GALLIA, The Gauls. By the name the tenth day of January, in the year 69, be- of Gallia, Cafar means only the Gauls, which ing then 73 years of Age.

the form of a Helmet. This Cap was for the must consider all that might be understood by use of Mercury and the Priests of Jupiter, cal- the name of Gaul, and observe its chiefest diled Flamenidalit, who wore a white Cap visions and distinctions, that conduce to the made of the skin of a white Sheep, facrificed understanding the Commentaries of Gelar. to Jupiter, called Albogalerus.

and prejudice of opinions, condemn and re- of, tho' they were Colonies of the Gauls bejest his Method, as being unfit to cure ex- youd the Alps, did wear the Roman Habit, traordinary Distempers.

the Falling-fickness by tying the Root of Piony in the Fire of the Temple of Peace.

per part of these Galoches was made of Lea- other part, which is nearer to Italy and Spain,

A long time after this Discouse, this pro- ther, or Leather Straps, to keep them fast to. stians : wherefore he recall'd the Edich He was the first Emperor chosen by the made against them. This Prince was given comprehends three kinds of People, viz, GALEA, A Helmet, 2 Head-piece, Belgi, Celti or Galli and Aquitani. This Gang which covered the whole Face like a Mask, is called by Writers, who lived a little after GALERUS, A Cap made of skin in the time of Cafar, Gallia Comata. Here we-

The name of Gaul was extended on both, GALIENUS, Gallen, born at Perga- fides of the Alps. The Country which is bea mus, Physician to M. Aurelius, and Lucius Ve- tween the Alps and Mount Appenninus on both rus. He was very famous in Physick, and sides of the River Po, is called Gallie, Cit-Ale. brought it to a method, now followed by the pina, and fometimes Gallia Tegata; because greatest part of Physicians; yet many Men, in regard to the Reman it is within the who are not carried away by the multitude Alps; Togata, because the Inhabitants therecalled Toga Romana. The Lands which are He was an Enemy both to Jews and Chri- beyond the Alps, in regard to the Romans, and stians, blaming them for believing very hard between the Alps and the Pyrennean Mounthings without any demonstration. Certainly tains, the Mediterranean Sea, the Ocean and he was a very great Man, and so excellent in the River Rhine, are properly Gaul, calhis Art, that having conveyed away a very dan- led by Cafar and other Writers Transalpma : gerous defluction by letting of Blood, and cured because it is beyond the Alpr in regard to the City of Rome. This Gaul thus called, is still about the neck, he was taxed of Magick, and divided in two parts; the nearest part to. forced to quit Rome, and died at Porgamus, the Italy is called by Cafar, Provincia, and someplace where he was born. Some Writers tell times Provincia Romanorum, or Provincia Ulteus that he was then seventy years old, and o. rier, in respect to the Gauls within the Alps. thers a hundred and four. It appears by two call'd Provincia Citerior. The other part of the Commentaries of his own Books, that he had Transalpine Gaul, is called plainly by Casar, writ two hundred Volumes, which were burnt Galia, which he subdued to the Roman Empire, and has divided himfelf in three parts, GALLIA, See after Gallienus after- one inhabited by the Nation called Belgi, the other by the Aquitani, and the third by the GALLICE, A kind of Shoes, that Celti, whom the Remant called Galli, All the. the ancient Gauls were used to wear, like Writers since Casar call this Gaul, Gallia Co-Wood or Cork Galoches, worn by the Count mata the hairy Gaul, because the Inhabitry people of Goul in rainy weather; the up- rants thereof wore long Hair; and the bitants thereof wore Trowfes.

Gaul is divided in three parts, that which is on the fide of Italy is called Gallia Togata; the try can afford; they burn with the Corps of fecond, which is between Italy and Spain, is the dead, all that was most dear to him, even called Gallis Braccata; and the third, which the Beafts, and formerly the Slaves themis between the River Rhine and Spain, and felves, and their freed Men. Their Chilfrom the Alps to the Ocean, is called Gallia dren never appear in publick in the presence Consta.

three parts, viz. Gallia Celtica, extended from | bring to the Commonalty an equivolent of the Rivers Marne and Sain, to the Rivers Rhone their Wives Portion, which is kept with the and Garome, and from the Rhine to the Ocean. Revenues arising by it for the Survivor. The Gallia Belgica begins at the Frontiers of Husband has power over the life of his Gallia Celtica, and is extended to the Rhine, drawing towards its mouth. Gallia Aquitanica or Gasconia is included between the River Garonne and the Pyrenean Hills, along the that name because of a River in Phrygia, the Coasts of the Ocean. The first is oppofite to the North; the fecond to the North mad. These Priests were instituted to offer and the East, and the third looks to the West Sacrifices to this Goddess at the found of or the North.

very superstitious, and when in great dan- Hands, and cutting therewith the Flesh of gers either of War or Sickness, they facrifice their Arms and Thighs. They went begging Men, or make vow to facrifice some; which from door to door, and were wont to carry they perform by their Druider: for they think that God can't be otherwise appealed, and that one Mans Life can't be redeem'd, but by anothers laying down his for him.

In some places there are Idols of Wicker of a prodigious bigness, which are fill'd up with Men, and often with Malefactors; then they fet them on fire, and sometimes for want of Malefactors, they burn therein innocent

Men.

Of all the Gods, they especially worship Mercury, as the Inventer of Arts, and Patron of Travellers and Merchants; they have many Statues of him among them. After Mercury, the most respected by them are Apollo, instructed in the Holy Scripture, and took Mart, Jupiter and Minirua, and they have the Orders with his Brother, both of them perfame opinion of them as the other Nations have; vie. That Apollo cures Diftempers; Mi- The Emperor Constantius chose Gallus his Conerva presides over Manufactures; Mars is the | zen Cafar, in the year 351, the fifteenth day foveraign disposer of War; and Jupiter is the of May, and gave him his Sister Constantina Soveraign of the Gods. Before they engage for Wife, then Annibalianus's Widow, and the Enemy, they devote him the Spoils, and Juppressed the superstitious worship of the it lyes in heaps, and 'tis forbidden to take years after he had made him Cafar. away any thing of it, under very levere punilhment, or to conceal any part thereof after Mars's Love with Vinus. Mars having one day the Fight is over. and if they reckon the Months or the Years, quainted her Husband with the fame; but was called Gallia Braccata, because the Inha- 1 or solemnize their Birth-day, they begin always by Night.

Their Funerals are as stately as their Counof their Fathers, till they are fit to bear Arms. Cafar divides likewife Gallia Comata into And when they marry they are obliged to Wife and Children.

GALLI CYBILES. The Priests of the Goddess Cybele. They were called by water whereof made those who drank of it Drums and Kettle-Drums, running up and GALLI, The Gauls. This Nation is down like Mad-men, holding Knives in their their Goddess upon an Ass with their Cloaths. The chief of them was called Archigalliu.

GALLUS VIBIUS TREBONI-ANUS, An Emperor who fucceeded Decius, and was chosen by the Soldiers, about the year of Rome 251. He chose his Son Volusianus for his Colleague to the Empire. The Soldiers murthered them both at Termy in Italy, in the year 254, having reigned then two years.

GALLUS CÆSAR was the Son of Julius Constantius, Brother to Constantine the Great, and of Galls, and Brother to Julian the Apostate. He was carefully brought up and forming the Office of Priest in the Church. facrifice to him all the Cattle after they have Oracle of Apollo near Antioch, called Dapline, obtained the Victory: The remainder of the land placed the Bones of the Martyr Babylas Booty is brought together, and confecrated in the room thereof. But Confiantius jealous in Temples and other publick places, where of him, caused his head to be cut off, three

GALLUS, A young man, Confident of commanded him to keep Centry at the door They account themselves the posterity of of his Mistrits, lest Vulcan her Husband should Plute, according to the tradition of their furprize them together; this young man fell Druides or Priefts, wherefore they reckon the afleep, and both Venus and Mars were furpriz'd time by Nights, and nor by Days, as we do; by the Sun lying together, who prefently acceptible Nets about his Bed, they were both there, before they were dead. These Gal. caught therein. And Mars to take his revenge lows stood in the fourteenth Ward of the of the young-man, turned him into a Cock. City. This Fable is thus reported by Lucian in his Mars had a fine Boy, confidant of his Love; and when he went to Bed to Venue, he left him at the Door to awake him before day 'light: the pretty Lad being fallen asleep, the Sun discovered the whole Mystery, and and the Father of Men. They allowed a Ge " Vulcan caught the two Lovers in his Nets; nius or Intelligence to each Province, Town whereupon Mars out of revenge, turned this and Person, who took care of the Affairs 'young-man into a Cock, who keeps still the of this World. They allowed also Genius's 'Crest of the Head-piece, and the Spurs he to Forests, Fountains, Trees, Eloquence, ' had on when he was changed : and fince, Sciences, and Joy, and it appears by feveral . his posterity, to repair him in his Honour, Medals, particularly one of Nere, GENIO ' proclaim the coming of the day.

of Troy. Jupiter being transformed into an EXERCITUUM, Upon these Medale Eagle, took him away into Heaven for his the figure of God Genius is represented veiled Beauty, and made him his Cup-bearer instead at the middle of the Body, holding with one of Hebe and Vulcan, and delivered him to hand a Horn of Plenty, and with the other Mercury, to make him drink Immortality, and a Cup for the Sacrifice; and before the Sta-teach him how to present the Cup.

GEHENNA, Rack, Torment. Hieronymus relates the true Origine of this word, when mianus Marcellinus has given us of the fame. he tells us, there was an Idol of Baal near Je- in the 25th Book of the Emperor Julianu's rusalem, in the Valley called Topher, which Deeds. fignifies a Drum, Tympanum, lest the People it was Moloch the God of the Ammonites, to him who he was, he answer'd him, that he whom they facrificed their own Children. was his bad Genius. Wherefore Hell, the place of eternal fire, is used in the Gospel.

of the twelve Signs of the Zodiack, called Cafter and Pollux the Sons of Leda.

Gradus, A Gibbet or Gallows. Voffing upon facere. the Verb geme tells us, that there was a Well at Rome with Stairs to go down, wherein Iwear by the Genius of the Prince; but afterthey did cast the Bodies of Malefactors, having dragged them to that place with a Hook. that were fworn by the Genius of the Empeare rather Gallows, where they hanged for a while the Corps of the Malefactors, after fwear by his Genius. they had drawn them with a Hook, from the place of Execution to these Gallows; and or evil Spirit of Secreter. The name of Gethen drawing them again with a Hook, they nius among some who call themselves Chris cast them into the Tiber ; Tandem apad Gemoni- Stians, is given to the good Angels attending as minutiffimis illibus excarnificatus atque confectus Men or States. ett, O inde unco trattus in Tiberim. This Hifto-

Fulcan having some time before hung imper- rian seems to intimate that they were tied

GENETHLIUS, An Epithet given to Jupiter, because Poets represent him presding over the Generation and Nativities of Children.

GENIUS, A Divinity, whom ancient Philosophers esteemed to be the Son of God AUGUSTI, GÉNIO SENATUS GANIMEDES. The Son of True King GENIO P. ROMANI, GENIO tue there was an Altar, and a Fire thereon. Which agrees with the description that Cenforinus in his Book intituled de Die Natali should hear the cries of the Children that fays, that as soon as Men are born, they are were thrown into the fire, when they facri- put under the tuition of God Geniu; and ficed them unto the Idol. This Valley was Euclid tells us, that Men have two Genins's also called Ge-ben-Ennon, and by abreviation one good and the other bad. Plutarch relates Geenhon, from Ge, which fignifies a Valley, in the life of Brutus, that he faw by night in and Emon, which comes from Naham, that a Dream a Fantome, by the light of a Lamp fignifies to groan. Some are of opinion that that was in his Chamber, and having asked

Each person offered Sacrifice every year to called Gehenne. The Ancient Writers did his Genius, and particularly upon Birth-days, not make use of this word, and it was first with leven and salted Dough; and sometimes with a Pig two months old, and, GEMELLI, A Constellation, and one fcattered Flowers and sprinkled Wine to him: and the Sacrifice being over, they made a great Feaft for their Friends, and thus the Comedi-GEMONIÆ Scale, or GEMONIJ ans was called Genie indulgere, or Genie volupe

In the beginning it was not permitted to wards the most folemn Oaths, were those According to the opinion of Suetonius, they ror; and Suetonius affures, that Caligula put many to death, because they refused to

Apuleius has writ a Treatise of the Genius,

derstood nothing else but the fecundity of na- sence, whose Fortune was without Envy, ture, that brings forth every day fo many his Reputation without blemish, and his Maliving Creatures; as Festus says, Genius of Dee-1 jestick Countenance without arrogance : his rum filius & parens hominum, ex quo homines gignuntur ; & propterea Genius meus nominatur. quia me genuit; the Genius is the Son of the Gods and the Father of Men, and my Genius is called Genius, because he has begotten who presides over our Generation; but also,

Cenforinus affirms, that there was no bloody Sacrifice offered to Genius; wherefore Perlius fays, funde merum Genio; for Men would not fhed Blood upon their birth-day.

who is intrusted with the care of Men as soon as they are born. And this Author tells us fill, that this Genius never leaves Men, from the first instant of their life to the last; and has a very great Authority over them; and God Ler, and admitted two Genius's, in Houses where Husband and Wife lived together : Eundem effe Genium & Larem multi veteres memoriæprodiderunt ; bunc in not maximam, quinieffent marite, colendos putaverunt.

those who come into the World the way Directions; but that yet he gives them warn-Fortune, which might be taken away from them : Monet Genius id Fortuna effe ingenium, ut O que dederit, eripiat ; and tells them ftill, that Men, who don't hearken to his precepts, come to a bad end.

GERMANIA. See after GERMA-NICUS.

GERMANICUS. The Son of Drufor, and Nephew to the Emperor Tiberius. He married Agrippina, the Grand-Daughter of Augustus, and had fix Children by her, viz. three Sons and three Daughters, Nero, Drufus, Caligula, Agrippina, Drufilla and Livia. In the time he commanded fix Legions in Germany, manni. he refused the Empire that the Legions offer-

The Pagans rank'd Venus, Priapus, and Genius, mans; at last he died in Syria, being poisoned among the number of the Gods, who are by Pilo's order, and was lamented by all the intrusted with the care of Men's General Inhabitants of Sprie and Neighbouring Provinces thereof. A Hero, favs Tacitus, wor-By these three Divinities, the Heathens un- thy of respect, both for his discourse and pre-Funeral Pomp, tho' without splendor and great show, was yet Illustrious, only by the commemoration of his Virtues, and celebration of his Glory.

Some more nicely observing his Life, his Age, his Gate, and the Circumstances of his-This worship was rendered to Nature, not Death, have compared him to Alexander the only because of the celestial Intelligence, Great. Both fine Men, of good meen and great birth, who died something more than . because of the fecundity of the Stars and thirty years old, by a Conspiracy of their Elements, giving Being to so many Crea- own Men in a foreign Country. Before his Corps was reduced to Ashes, it was exposed in the publick place of Antioch, which was appointed for his Burial. The Senate ordained great Honours to his Memory : viz. That his Name should be solemnized in the Salian He is called Genius because he is the God, Hymn; that in all the places, where the Priests of Augustus should meet, they should fet him an Ivory Chair, and a Crown of Oak upon it: that a Statue of Ivory should be carried for him, at the opening of the Circian: Games: that no body should be chosen Authat some Men confounded him with the gur or Pontiff in his room, but that a Triumphal Arch should be erected to his Memory at Rome, Mount Amanus in Syria; and on . the Banks of the River Rhine, and that his . Atchievements should be engraven upon me omnem habere potestatem creditum est. Non them, with this Inscription, That he Died for nulli binos Genies, in its duntaxat domibus que the Commonwealth; That a Monument should be fet up for him in the City of Antioch, where The Tabula Cabetis fays, that Genius directs his Corps was burnt, and a Tribunal at Episdaplme, where he was dead. They ordered they should observe; that many forget the also his Picture, drawn in a golden Shield of an extraordinary bigness, should be fet up ing, that they are not to mind the Goods of amongst the Orators. The Squadron of the Youth was called by Equestrian Order, the Squadron of Germanicus; and they ordered, that at the Ides of July, his Effigies should be carried in State at the muster of the Equestrian Order.

GERMANIA. Germany: Some Writers fav that the word of Germany is but of late, and comes from those Men who went first into the Gauls, and were called Tungri or Germani, fays Tacitus; or from the German word Gaar-Mannen, which fignifies Germany. V. Alemannia.

GERMANI. The Germans. See Ale-

GERYON, King of Spain, represented him after the death of Augustus. He took ed by Poets with three Bodies, because he the sirname of Germanicus, because he had sub- reigned over three Kingdoms, and had fed dued Germany, and triumphed over the Ger- fome Oxen he loved very much, having a Dog with three Heads, and a Dragon with four Cubits broad, according to the natural feven to look after them. Hercules by the length of a Man's Cubit, which is a Foot and Command of Earifteus flew him, and deliver- a half: Only Og King of Bafban remained of the ed his Body to be devoured by his own Oxen. Race of the Giants: his Bedited was of Iron, it as Dismeder was before eaten by his own in Rubbah of the Children of Ammon, being nim

GIGANTES, The Giants, the Sons of the Earth, begot, according to the Fable, of the Blood that came out of the Genital parts of Galus, that Saurn cut off; for the about fourteen toot high. Selinus relates, the Earth, to be revenged of Jupiter, who had tho the common opinion is, that the Status ftruck down the Titans, brought forth Monfters of a prodigious shape to attack him, and drive him out of Heaven. To this purpose they met in Theffalia, in the Fields called Phlegrai, and there heaping up Mountains upon Mountains, they scaled and battered Heaven with great pieces of Rocks. Among others high: and that the Corps of Orester being there was Enceladus, Briareus and Egom, with a found after his death, was seven Cubin with great pieces of Rocks. Among others hundred Hands flinging Rocks, which they took out of the Sea, against Jupiter; yet a certain Typhaus was very famous, exceeding all these Monsters in bigness and strength; for he reached with his Head to the top of Heaven, and could extend his Hands from one end of the World to the other: he was half Man and half Serpent, and blew Fire and Flame out of his Mouth in a dreadful manner: and frighted so much the Gods, who were come to the relief of Jupiter, that they the Books of Numbers and Deuteronomy, where fled away into Egypt, and transform'd themfelves into feveral kinds of Trees, or difguised themselves under the form of several Beafts. But Jupiter purfued them fo vigoroully with his Thunderbolts, that he came off with Honour, and crushed them under the weight of Mountains, shutting them up therein, and punishing them in Hell with feveral Torments. This is the Fable, here is the true Story.

The Fable of the Giants, who heaped up Mountains one upon another, to raife themselves to Heaven, there to fight the Gods, is most commonly applied to those Men, who after the Flood built the Tower of Babel. Giants on the Earth in thoje days.

And in another place 'tis spoken of the prodigious stature of the Giants, or rather of those Men, whom the Scripture calls Giants even some of them, described them thus; All the destroyed. People whom we faw in the land, are Men of great Stature, and there we law Giants, the Sons of Anak, which are of the Race of the Giants, and Babylon. The Hebrew Text fignifies only Pe we appeared to them like Grashoppers, and so we tens venator, Gibbor Tfaid; but the same word were in comparison of them : And to shew us the Gibbarim is used, to signifie the Giants calextraordinary height and fhape of the Giants, led also Nephilim. Wherefore the Scripture Moses tells us in Deuteronomy, that an Iron Bed fays, that Dimred was the first Giant, because Cubits long, and four Cubits broad, according to a Mans Cubit.

According to this description that the Scripture gives us of these Giants, they might be of a Man can't be above feven foot high, and that Hercules did not exceed it, yet in the Reign of Augustus, Pusis and Secundilla were more than ten foot high : and in the Empere Claudius's time, the Corps of Gabbara wa brought from Arabia, and was near ten for long.

The Giants before the Deluge, were be gotten by the Children of God, and Daugh ters of Men : and the Hebrew Text makes me of the word Nephilim, to express the Giant. which comes from Nephal, i e. to fall.

The Giants after the Deluge are also called by the fame name, because of their likeness to the former; however, they are called by a particular name, which may be observed in they are called the Sons of Enacim: Palalin was their Country.

The learned Bechart observes, that from the Hebrew word Enacim or Anacim, the Greek have formed their words "Arat "Arantu, which originally fignified Men of Giganrick Stature.

Paulanias relates, that the Body of the Hero Afterius the Son of Anax, who was the Son of the Earth, was found in the Isle Alle ria near Miletum; and that his Corps was ten Cubits in length. This Statute of ten Cubin agrees with that mentioned in the Scripture. The word Anax is the fame with Enac or Anac; for it is well known that the change of Vow-But holy Scripture speaks of the Giants a long els is frequent, even in the same Tongue time before the Deluge, Gen. c. 6. There were In fine, if Anac or Enae was the Son of the Earth, it was common to call the Giants the Children of the Earth. And Quid tells us that they were so called, because they came out of the Earth, moistened with the blood after the Flood; For the Ifraelites having feen of their Fathers, whom a just revenge had

The Septuagints Translation has given the name of Giant to Nimred, who first reigned at of these Giants was nine Cubits long, and he was at the head of the rebellion of the

together for the building of the Tower of

The Greeks have fometimes called the Giants by the name of Titans, which shews that they had this History, and the Fables conrained in it, from the Scripture and out of Paleftine : for the word Tit fignifies dirt in Hebeen: and they tell us, that the Giants were formed out of the Dirt or Earth. Wherefore these three words Titanes, Gigantes, Tayehave the same signification, and signific the Children of the Earth. Diodorns Siculus, unfolding the Theology of those who Inhabit the Coasts of the Atlantick Sea, fays, that according to their opinion, the Titans were the Children of Uranus and Titaa, who gave them her Name, and called herself the Earth: Gommune Titanum nomen à Titaa matre usurpabant : Titas autem post mortem in Deor relata, Telluris nomen accipit. Thefe Giants were Children of Heaven and Earth, and their name of Titans came either from the Earth or Dirt, called by the Hebrews Tit. And thefe Giants being born before the Deluge, the Pagans, who had but an imperfect knowledge of their History, did not know their true Geneology. wherefore they made them Children of Uramus and Tites, i.e. of Heaven and Earth.

Diodorus Siculus tells us alfo, that Phryeia. Macedonia and Italy had their Giants, because of the Fires that are burning in those Countries. The occasion seem'd very fair to the contrivers of Fables, to fay, that in all these places, the Giants were still burning in those Flames, that Thunder, to revenge Heaven, had kindled there to punish their Crimes. Justin speaking of the Tartelians of Spain, shews there the place where the Titans engaged the Gods.

Paulanias confirms this opinion, fneaking of Arcadia, and of a place where the Fire comes out of the Earth, and tells us that the fore, they offered there an Anniversary Sacrifice to Thunder and Storms.

Then this Historian examining the opi-Liftrygones like Giants, attacking the Fleet of Hefiod in his Theogenia speaking of the Chaos, and producing out of it not only all the Bodies of the Universe, both Beasts and Men, but even Gods themselves, then he mentions the Children of Heaven and Earth.

Virgil in the first Book of his Georgicks, imi-

Siants after the Deluge, who were combined | Moon fatal, because upon that day the Earthbrought forth the Giants. He has also imitated him, when he has ascribed to each of these Giants an hundred Hands, an hundred Shields, and fifty Mouths to blow out torrents of Fire. In another place he reprefents the violent efforts and motions of Enceladus. who lies buried alive under Mount Eine.

Horace has left us a very fine description of the war and defeat of the Giants; and Classdian fays, that the shakings and Flames of Mount Æina, are glorious and eternal proofs. of the triumphal Power and Justice of God: over the Giants.

Ætna Giganteos nunquam tacitura triumphos. Enceladi bustum.

Bochart and Volfius are of opinion, that the Giant Og, recorded in Scripture, whom I havementioned before, is Typhon or Typhaus, defcribed by the Poets, the Hebrew word Og, and: the Greek Toom having the same fignification, i. e. to burn : And Virgil affirms , that Trephon was struck with Thunder in Syria.

- Durumque cubile Inarime, Jouis imperiis imposta Typhae. Aneid.

Virgil follows Homer's opinion, who fays, that Typheus was struck with Thunder in Syria, called in the Scripture Aram, and by profane Writers Aramaa. These are Homer's words, eir 'Api mois, obs pari Tuppiens Emmeras Euras, in Arimis, ubi dicunt Typhei effe cubilia.

GLADIATORES. The Gladiators. who fought in the Circian Games, and at the Funerals of the great Men of Rome, one a-gainst the other, even to the loss of their Lives, to give this cruel Diversion to the People, or to pacifie the Ghosts of their Kindred.

The origine of these bloody Fights, came Arcadians affirm'd, that the Giants had en- from the Ancient Inhabitants of Afra, who gaged the Gods in that very place: where- fancied that they very much honoured their Relations, by spilling humane blood with a s brutish diversion. This superstition grew fo great among the Trojans, that Women cut nion of Homer and Hefood upon the subject of themselves to get out some blood, to sprinkle Giants, fays, that Homer has not mentioned upon the Graves or the Wood-pile of the the Giants in his Illiads, but only in his Dead. Junius Brutus, was the first Man a-Odyffer, where he represents the Nation called mong the Romans, who performed these barbarous Duties to his Father; and we learn from Tacitus, that Tiberius to honour the memory of his Ancestors, ordered two Fights of Gladiators, one in the great publick place. and the other in the Amphitheater.

Those who made a trade of that brutish fury, were always esteem'd of no worth ; for belides, that these Fights began at first by tates, Hefad, holding the fifth day of the Slaves, who were miferably wretched, and left taught that Art and were brought to it, ne- Exchequer, because they were maintained in wer got any reputation by it; and to their the publick charges. great shame, Malefactors were brought among them, as Victims devoted to the di- and appointed for the Emperor's divertion

Madness, as to the tury of Wild-Beasts. But the the Infamy was equal, yet the fortune was very different; for the Slaves made their Adversary, or to dye valiantly, and by War had no hopes left them. Malefactors bravely defended their life. were still used worse, for they were expos'd to the wild Beafts, and sometimes tied to their duty, they obtained of the Emperon. posts to feed the Lions, and to secure their and those who gave the Games, either their punishments against the hazards of a vigorous discharge or freedom, or some considerable defence. Men brought up and chosen for reward. Gladiators, because of their good meen and ftrength, were not only well used, but also well taught in the Science of Defence, and nothing was spared to keep them in good health and strength, to contribute the better to the diversion of the people.

Pliny tells us, that they were fed with Barly-Bread, wherefore they were called in led Pileatie, for a badge of their freedom jest Hordiarij, and that their Drink was Water granted to them. with Ashes mixt with it; but this is not probable. There were many Families of these Gladiators. Some were called Sequatores, Ret:arii, Timeces, Myrmillones, Hoplomachi, Samnites, Effedarit, Andabata, Dimachari, Meridiani, Fifcales, Postulatitii.

The first were armed with a Sword and a Club, in the end where if was Lead.

The fecond carried a Net and a Trident, and endeavoured to enclose their Antagonist with it.

The third had a kind of a Hanger or Scymetar, and were called by the name of their Country.

The fourth, called Mermillones instead of Mermidones, were the Heroes of Achilles, whom that Glaucus was a Fisherman, and an excelthe Romans accounted to be Gauls, wearing a lent Diver, who to get the name of being diator Resignius or Net-beares pursuing him, people, from the top of 2 great Rock into the cried out, non te pero Galle, fed piscem pero.

word fignifies.

The fixth had their name from their hatred to the Samnites, who armed the Gladiators according to their fashion.

The leventh fought riding in Chariots, and were called Effedarii.

The eighth fought on Horseback and blindfold, and took their name from their way of Fighting.

their hands, from whence they are called Di- Glaucus Ponticus, that he was half Man, and macheri, a Greek word, which fignifies two half Fish.

pos'd to wild Beafts, and having got clear of fell in love with Scylla. Whereupon City them, were obliged to kill one another to di- transported with jealousy, turned Scylla into vert the People.

to their ill destiny; those Men who were The eleventh had their name from Fifew the

The twelfth were the most valiant of all version of the People, and sacrificed to their wherefore the people beg often that they might be ordered to fight.

All these Gladiators did their best to will

After they had well acquitted themselves of

The discharge granted unto them, was only a dispensation from fighting or serving otherwise but willingly or out of compliance; and for a Token thereof, they give them a Switch called Rudis; Rude duebantur.

They gave them also a kind of a Hat cal-

Confiantius, and after him the Emperors # cading and Honorius forbad these Fights.

GLAUCUS Ponticus, a Fisherman of the Town of Autheden, who having one caught abundance of Fifh, and laid them on the Bank, perceiving that these Fishes having touch'd a kind of Herb that was upon the shore, received new strength, and leap d again into the Sea; which Gloucus perceiving tafted of the Herb himself, and presently leapt into the Sea after them, where he was transformed into a Triton, and became one of the Se-Gods. Paufanias calls Glaucus the Genius of the Sea.

Paliphatus relates this otherwise, and fays Fish on the top of their Helmet. The Gla- 2 God, threw himself often in sight of all the Sea, and appeared further off; then at lat The fifth were armed all over, as the Greek stole himself quite from the fight of Men, and retired on some remote shore, frem whence he came again some days after, and perswaded the people that he had conversed with the Gods of the Sea, and related extraordinary things of them. But in fine, being loft in the Waters of the Sea, the People per swaded themselves he was become a God Some fav that he was turned into a Fift, other into a Sea Monster, and some others The ninth fought holding two Swords in affirm, like Philostratus in his description of Hyginus records, that Glaucus was much lo-The tenth were those who had been ex- ved by Circe, but he despised her, and yet be Montter, having poisoned the waters where by turns. They had great Wings, and their the was used to bath herself, as Homer has Head attired with Adders, their Teeth were was Grandson to Bellerophon, and came to the and crooked Claws. They were named Stenye, Troism's relief, and shew'd a great folly in his i.e. strong, mighty; Medusa, i.e. care of conduct, having exchang'd his Golden Ar- the State; and Euryale, i. e. having command mour for that of Diamedes, which were of upon the at Sea. Perfeus being covered with Brass. From whence tis said in a proverbial the shield of Minerva cut off Medusa's head, way, to shew an inequal change, 'tis the ex- which was placed in the shield of Minerus, change of Glaucus and Diomedes.

Sun dials, fo called from the Greek word Atlas. which fignifies to shew, because | Fulgentius relates after Theoritus an ancient the Gnomon is a stile or a Needle, which by Historiographer, that King Phoreus left three its shadow shews the Hours, the elevation very rich Daughters; that Medusa the eldest of the Sun, and the Sign wherein he is.

condite, the 2539 of the Julian period, and Strength and Riches, which he made use of to his people, as he had received it of Japher faid he was metamorphos'd into a Mountain. and Noah.

both chosen Emperors in Africa, and the Se- Illustrious Romans who supported the People nate approved of their Election, but they did against the Nobility; as Tiberius Gracthus, not enjoy long that honour; for the Father who got the Agrarian Law to be received, was too old to be ferviceable to the Com- and distributed to the Romans the Riches that monwealth, being then fourfcore years of King Attalus had left him by his last Will; and age; and though his Son was but forty fix Cains Gracebus, who added to the Senate three years old, yet he was not able to defend the hundred Men of the Equestrian Order, to ad-Empire against Capellianus Prefect of Mauri- minister Justice.

Gerdianus was the Richest and the most magnificent of the Romans. During his Quz- of the Pagans were three fabulous Goddeffes storthip he order'd Games of vast charges to represented young and naked, attending Vebe represented every month to the people. nur, called Aglaia, Thalia and Euphrosine, Daugh-He had a Park well stock'd with all kinds of ters of Jupiter, and Mercury's Companions. fallow Dear, procured from all parts of the They were also named Charites. World, and appointed a publick hunting GR & CIA, Greece, so called from King day, where every Man carried away the Grecus, who succeeded Corrops, who com-Game he had kill'd.

Gordianus junior, Grandson to Gordianus who fine Countries of Europe, called Hellas: died in Africa, was raised to the Empire at | Ancient Writers have severally set the Sapor, who had invaded Syria.

GORGONES. Hefted in his Theogenia, Greece contains four great Provinces; viz. and Hyginus fay, that the Gorgones were three Macedonia, Epirus, Achaia, Peloponnesus, toge-Sifters, Daughters to Phocus a Sea-God, who ther with all the Islands of the Ionian Sea.

describ'd it in the twelfth Book of his Odyffu. like the Tusks of Wild-Boar's, coming out There was also another of that name, who of their mouth, and were armed with sharp the fight whereof is mortal, and turns into GNOMONICE, The Art of making stones those who look at it, as it befel and most powerful was called Gorgon, because GOMER, The Father of the Italians she applyed herself very much to manure and Gauls, under several names of Gallus and the ground; that a Serpents head was afcri-Ogyges, and was the eldest Son of Japhes bed to her, because of her prudence; and The Babylanians took him for the Grandfather that Perseus attack'd her with his Fleet . of Ninus, though he was but his Grand-Unkle. (from whence Poets represent him wing-Some are of opinion that he is Saturn. He ed) feized upon her Dominion and kill'd came into Italy in the year 1879, a mundo her; and took away her Head. viz. her 2175 years before the birth of our Lord, and to subdue the Kingdom of Atlas, whom he populated the Islands of the Mediterranean Sea, put to flight; and having forced him to re-Greece, Italy and Gallia. He taught Religion tire into the Mountains, from whence it is

GRACCHUS, A Sirname of the GORDIANUS, and his Son were Sempronian Family, the off-spring of so many

> GRÆCIA, &c. See after Gratie. GRATIÆ. The Graces in the time

manded only in Actica, which was one of the fixteen years of age. He gave the Office of bounds of this Country; yet 'tis commonly Prefect of the Pratory to Philip a Man of low agreed, that it is bounded by the Imian Sea extraction, who foon forgot his Benefactor's at the Welt, by Libya at the South, the Egekindness: for he caused him to be murthered an Sea or Archipelagus at the East, and at the on the Frontiers of Polis, where he purfued Mountains which divide it from Thracia, upper Mysia and Dalmatia.

had all three but one eye, ferving them all They also join to it that part of Italy, which was formerly called Great Greece, now Cala- who had a hundred hands, Son to Heaven bria fuperiour. This Country exceeded all and Earth, and Brother to Briarew. the Countries of Europe, for its temperature, good air, and plenty of all kinds of Fruits. The most famous Cities of Greece were Athens, Lacedemonia, Delphos, Argos, Mycene, Corinth. There were those Mountains, to famous in the Writings of the Poets, viz. Athes, Olympus, Pelion, Parnaffus, Helicon, Cytheren. Greece is esteemed the Mother of Arts and Sciences, that her Inhabitants had learnt of the Affyrians and Chaldeans. She was conquered by Cyrus, and afterwards by the other Kings of Pufis. After the death of Perfeus the last King of Greece, the Romans fubdued that Country. of Greece, who are differently named by Writers Achaij, Argivi, Danai, Dolopes, Helleni, Ionij , Mermidmer , Pelasgi , according to the Cities they inhabited, and their leveral Facti-

Eusebius affirms, that Hellen the Son of Deucalion, repopulated this Country after the Deluge, that happened in the time of Moles, about the year 3680. à mundo condito. They very much improved Arts and Sciences, that they learned of Eumolous and Orphaus, the Affyrians and Phenicians. The Greeks increased the number of Gods, and shared the Empire and Administration of the World, appointing feveral Gods for Corn and Vines, to Plants and Flowers; which gave occasion for all the chimerical divisions of Gods, relating imaginary particulars of them, and giving them names, without any other ground, but their own vanity and prefumption.

The Phanicians having difguifed the true Histories of the Bible, and composed their Fables of it, the Greeks also appropriated the Phanicians Fables to Greece.

Pliny affirms, that Cadmus, about the year 9520 à mundo condito, brought from Phanicia fixteen Letters into Greece ; viz. A, B, C, D E, F, G, H, I, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, V to which Palamedes added four, during the Trojan War, O, Z, &, X.

GRÆCOSTASIS, A. Palace at Rome, adjoining to Mount Palatine, where the foreign Prince's Ambassadors were lodged. This Palace took its name from Greece, because the Greeks were the most considerable of all the Strangers; the House of the Ambaffadours.

GRATIÆ. See above, before Gracia. GUTTUS, A little Veffel used in Sacrifices, to pour Wine by drops

GYGES, A Lydian, who killed his Master by a Ring that made him invisible, by turning the stone within towards himself, for then he could fee all, and was feen of none. Ovid mentions another Gyger, a Giant 'and blood, from a blow he receiv'd in his Centimanumque Gygen, semibovemque virum. 4. Trift.

GYNÆCONITIS, An Apartment for the Women in Greece. GYMNICI LUDI. Exercises of the Groks.

In these Games, there was in the first place the Race, which has been of old, and the chief of all Exercises; secondly, leaping; thirdly, Discus or Quoits, made of Stone, Iron or Brais, cut in a round figure, and of a great GRÆCI, The Grecks, the Inhabitrants weight, the Gamesters who threw it highest or furthest carried the Prize ; the fourth kind of Game was wrestling, wherein two Wrestlers, having their Bodies stark naked. and anointed all over with Oyl, took hold one on another, each of them making all his efforts to throw his Adversary on the ground; the fifth fort of Game was boxing, these Gamesters had their Fists covered with Lesther Straps, with pieces of Lead or Iron fatned to it, called Ceftus. Lucian speaks of these Games in the Dialogue of the bodily Exercifes, where he introduces Anacharfu discourfing thus with Solon. 'Anacharfu. What mean these young fellows, thus to coller and fovl themselves, and wallow in the ' mire like Swine, and frive to throttle and hinder one anothers breathing? they oyled and shaved one another pretty peaceably at first, but on a sudden stooping with their Heads, they butted each other like Rams: Then the one hoisting his Adversary alost into the air, hurls him again upon the ground, with a violent fquelfh, and falling upon him, he hindered him from rifing. preffing his neck with his elbow, and punching him with his legs, fo as I was afraid he had stifled him, though the other struck him on the shoulder, to desire him to let ' him go, as owning himfelf overcome. Methinks they should be shie of fouling themfelves thus in the dirt, after they had been fleek'd; and they make me laugh to fee them like fo many Eels, flip out of the hands of their Antagonists. Look y onder's fome doing the same in the face of the Sun, with this difference only, that it's in the Sun they rowl, like Cocks before they come to the skirmish, that their Adversary may have the better hold, and his hands not flip upon the Oyl or the Sweat. O feeyou others also fighting in the Dire, and kicking and fifting, without endeavouring, (like the former) to throw one another. The one spits out of his Teeth with fand ple, who fets President, as I suppose, at ginning the Syllables, as in the word honor; thefe Exercifes, doth not trouble himfelf a- and the fecond is after the Confonant, as in bout parting them. These others make the the word Throwns. Dust fly, by kicking up their Heels in the air, like those who dispute for the prize of running. Solon. This here is the place of Exercises, and the Temple of Apollo Lycius, whose Statue you see upon that Column, in bis Elbow, having his Head supported upthe left. Those whom you see wallowing in the mire, or crawling in the dirt, are skirmishing at a match of Wrestling, or at 'still other Exercises, as Leaping, Quoits, and Fencing, and in all fuch Games the conqueror is crowned.

These Games were play'd four times every year ; viz. at Olympia in the Province of Games, in honour of Jupiter Olympius; in the Islamus of Corinth, called Islamian Games, in honour of Neptune ; in the Nemean Forest, called Nemean Games, in honour of Hercules; and the Pythean Games, in honour of Apollo, because he had kill'd the Serpent Pytho. The Masters of these Games were call'd Gymnasta. I shall speak severally of these Games, according to their Alphabetick Order.

GYMNO SOPHIST Æ. Gymno-Sophists, a Sect of Indian Philosophers, who ador'd the Sun, and were called by this name, because they went naked.

H.

Grammarians dispute whether the H because, say they, 'tis but an aspiration.

Tho' H be but an aspiration, yet 'tis a true Letter, because all Characters invented by Men to distinguish our Pronunciation, ought to be accounted a true Letter, especially when 'tis fet down in the Alphabet among Hebris instead of Febris the other Letters, as H is: And there is no press the several aspirations.

ted by the Greeks with sharp tones, and aspi- Trees. rated Consonants: And it serves for two ge-

Chaps, and yet that Officer attir'd in pur- | neral uses; the first is before the Vowels be-

Doubtless the Happear'd plainly in the Roman pronunciation, as 'tis perceiv'd in the French tongue, in the words that are meerly French, as Hardielle, Hauteur, &cc.

As for the H after the Conforants, Tully in the posture of a weary Man, leaning upon his Book de Oratore affirms, that the ancient Writers made no use of it, but only before on his right hand, and holding his Bow in the Vowels, which inclin'd him to pronounce Pulcros, Triumpos, Cartaginem. But concealing his opinion, he conform'd himfelf to the custom of the people in his pronunciati-Fifticuffs in the Ring or Lifts. There are on, and that yet they pronounced always Sepulcra, Lacrime, without H, because it did not offend the Ears.

Quintillian tells us, that often ancient Writers put no H before the Vowels, writing ircus; but that in his time they were come Elia, wherefore they were called Olympick to another excess, pronouncing Chorona, Prachoner. However, the Language must be confidered as it was in its purity.

Wherefore, as this H after the Confonants was only introduced in the Latin Language. but to supply the aspirated Letters of the Greeks, it ought to be used but after four Confonants, viz. C, P, T, R.

The Latins have taken their H from the Greek "Hra, as the Greeks had it of the Phanicians, and the Phanicians of the Syrians, who pronounced formerly Hetha instead of Heth: which plainly flews, that we ought to pronounce Eta in Greek, and not Ita.

But in the beginning this H was only us'd for an aspiration, wherefore they wrote HEPO AO inftead of fedder, HOAOI inftead of ite HEKATON instead of inerty centum : From whence it comes, that the H formerly denoted one hundred in number.

H was also joined with weak Consonants, H is the eighth Letter of the Alphabet. inflead of an afpiration; for the afpirated Consonants were found out since by Palameshould be in the number of Letters or not; | des, they using to write THEO Einstead of Cioc. and the like.

> The F is often written instead of the H. as Fadum instead of Hadum, Fircum instead of Hircum, Fariolum inflead of Hariolum, Fostem instead of Hostem, Heminas instead Of Feminas, HAMADRYADES. Certain Divireason to fancy that H is not a true Letter, inities of Trees and Forests, who lived and because 'tis but an aspiration, since in the died with them, as the fabulous Antiquity Oriential Languages, there are three or four tells us. Notwithstanding the respect the Letters, which they call Guttural Letters, Pagans had for these Hamadryades, was but which are of no other use, but only to ex- a kind of worship render'd to some Intelligent Divinity, or some Genius whom they H supplies in Latin, all that which is deno- fancied to be present, or residing in these ter of Mars and Vonus, and Wife to Cadmus, was accounted their Son; fince Ofiris and Ifin. both turn'd into Serpents.

ces or Mufical Instruments. The Platenifts fan- the Moon were by other Nations. And ver cied, that celestial Bodies made a real Har- we may fay that the Pagans rank'd Harpecrater mony. Vierwin speaks of the harmonical the God of silence among the other Gods. to Mufick of Ariflexenes, the Scholar of Ariflette, filence those who should affirm, that all their opposite to that of the Pythagoreans; because Gods were but mortal Men; or else to shew these Philosophers judged of the tones, only us, that all the Gods whom they ador'd, by reasons of Proportions, and the others were comprehended in an only one, who were of opinion, that the ears should also commanded silence. have their share in that judgment, because it belonged especially to them, to regulate are fantastical Characters of Hereticks, both what concerns Mulick.

of three kinds of Songs, which the Greeks superstitions. call Enarmonick, Chromatick and Diatonick : the Enarmonick finging is a way of turning the represented with these Letters, Conservate me: voice, and disposing the Intervals with such which shews that it was a kind of a Talisman. an art, that the melody becomes more move which they wore about them, to beg of thefeing: The Chromatick linging consists in keep- Divinities the conservation of their Health. ing the Intervals close by a subtle artifice, and their preservation from all Evils. which makes the voice fweeter and lofter: and the Diatonick as the most natural, makes fetting upon the Flower called Lenu. an Herh easie Intervals, which renders it more easie dedicated to the Sun, because its flower open Ofris and Ifu; the God of Silence, who was ven on the reverse thereof, are some Basilidian commonly represented holding his finger up- Mysteries. on his mouth, to make a fign to hold the tongue and keep filence. Varre protests, that a Lion, some Birds about him, and the head he will tell nothing else of this God, lest he of the Moon. Alexander Hales tells us, that is the second finger, called by the Latine Salutaris, commonly used to command filence. And Apuleiur fays, 'Lay the Finger that is ' next the Thumb upon the Mouth, and hold 'your Tongue. Ausmius recommended Silence thus.

Aut tua Sigalion Ægyptius ofcula fignet.

The Statues of Harpacrates were placed in Temples and publick places, and the Egyptian Sculpto represented him upon several precious Stones, which they ingrav'd under certain Constellations, and upon Metals, proper to receive and keep the impression of each Star, that they might use them to cure Distempers, and preserve Men from dangers. The Ramans after the old small Statues of Brais, kept in adorn'd their fingers with them, as Pliny has the Virtuoso's Closets. observ'd: 'The Romans, fays he, begin already to wear in their Rings, Harpecrates and ing their Finger.upon their Mouth; but fome other Ægyptian Gods.

M. Spon, in the seventh differtation of the Inquiries after Antiquities, has given us feveral Sculptures of Harpocrates, p. 124, On one of these he is represented fetting upon Ofris the father of Harpotrates. an Offrich, and on the reverse thereof the

HARMONIA, Harmony, the Daugh-, Sun and Moon are ingrav'd, for Harpocratathe Father and Mother of Harpecrates, were HARMONIA, Harmony. A confort of Voi- esteem'd by the Egyptians, what the Son and

The Letters of the reverse of the Medal Bafilidians and Gnofficks, who did mix the My-The same Writers give us also an account steries of the Christian Religion with Pages

In another figure Serapis and Harpocrates are

On another stone Harpecrates is represented of it felf at the rifing of the Sun, and thurs HARPOCRATES, The Son of again at his going down; The Letters Ingra-

Harpocrates is still drawn with the head of should break filence commanded by him: these Birds were Angels, whom the Bastlide The finger which he holds upon his mouth ans ascribed to celestial Globes of the Planes, and that they called Saturn, Caffiel; Jupiter, Sachiel; Mars, Samuel; the Sun and the Mom, Michael ; Venus, Anahel ; Mercury, Raphael.

Likewise Harpocrates is figured setting on the head of an Afs, the mouth whereof is turned upwards, with these Letters on the reverse of the Medal IEXTPON KAI ANIKHTON, i. e. ftrong and invincible, which Epithet the Bafilidians gave to their Jas or Jebaua, to preferve them from dangers, and protect them against their Enemies.

The same God is yet engraven with seven Greek Vowels, fignifying the word Jehova. These are the representations of Harpotrates, drawn from Sculptures and Medals: But we shall describe the copies, which were taken-

The old Statues of Harpocrates were holdare represented with a Horn of Plenty, and a-Basket on the head, which was the common ornament of Serapis, who according to the opinion of some Writers, was the same as of filence, and the Romans a Goddess, called Tacita, as 'tis related by Plutarch.

HARPIÆ, The Harpyes, fabulous hands : Virgil's description of them runs thus, in the third Book of his Eneid. v. 213.

– Quas dira Celæno, Harpya colunt alia

Triffius haud illis monstrum, nec levior ulla Pestis O ira Deum Stygiis Sefe extulit undis; Virginei volucrum vultus, fædissima ventris Proluvies : uncaque manus, & pallida semper

Sons being dead, the Harpyes his Daughters, of our Lord, which has given the name of his Neighbours, Sons of Bordes, drove thefe the Sabbath by the Jews. And because they, Ladies out of the City, and re-establish'd to shew their joy in the celebration of the Phineus in possession of his Estate.

Arms, that have a long staff or handle, as from all fervile work, which is called in. Pike, Spear, Javelin, &c.

that this Pole should be fet before the place. where the confiscated Goods were fold.

HASTA PURA, A Half-pike, without Iron at the end, us'd for a Scepter and a badge of Authority, and not a Pike armed with Iron, used in the war.

HEBDOMADA, A Week, the num-of feven days. Four Weeks make up a Month, because of the four chief and more | Christians. apparent Phase of the changes of the Moon.

Others represent him with a glittering | And as these four changes of the Moon, are head fome have drefs'd him in a Gown, which in a manner the space of seven days one from hangs down to the heels, carrying on his another, 'tis very likely that from thence the Head a branch of a Peach-tree, which was a first Egyptians and Affyrians have taken occasi-Tree consecrated to Harpecrates, because the on to divide time by intervals of seven Fruit thereof resembles the Heart, and its days, which therefore were called Weeks. Leaves are like the Tongue, as Plutarch has As for the Hebrews, their way of reckoning observed; whereby old Writers fignified the the time by weeks, has a most august Origine. perfect correspondency that should be be- and the Law commanded them to forbear eween the Tongue and the Heart: Some from all kind of work the feventh day, to others figure him with a particular Orna- imprint in their memory the great Mystery ment on his Head, having the badges of Har- of the Creation of the World, in which God pecrates, Cupid and Esculapius, for he holds his had wrought during fix days, and reiled the Finger on his Mouth, he carries Wings, and feventh, whereupon it was called the Saba Quiver with Arrows, and a Serpent twift- bath-day, which in their Language fignifies a. ed about a flick. The union of Harpocrates day of rest. The other days took their name with Cupid, shews that Love must be secret; from that day; for the following day was and the union of Harpocrates with Esculapine called by the Jews prima Sabbasi, the first day gives us to understand, that a Physician must of the Sabbath; the next day, the second of be discreet, and not discover the secrets of the Sabbath; then the third and fourth, &c. his Patient. The Pythagoreans made a Virtue till the fixth, called otherwife Parafeeve, which fignifies the day of preparation for the Sabbath.

This way of reckoning by Weeks, was, pro-Birds only mentioned by Poets, who describe | perly speaking, used only by the Eastern Nathem with the face of a Virgin, and the rest tions, for the Greeks reckoned their days from. of the body a Bird, with crooked feet and ten to ten, or by decads, dividing each month in three parts; the first part wasreckoned from the beginning of the Month, the fecond was the middle of the Month, and: the third was the rest of the Month, from. the middle to the end thereof. And thus the Romans, belides the division of the Month by Kalends, Nones and Ides, made use also of a political distribution of a series of eightdays, distributed from the beginning of the year to the end thereof.

The names of the days of the week used: The truth of the Story is, that Phineus by the Primitive Christians, were founded on: King of Paonia having loft his fight, and his a more holy principle, viz. the refurrection were spending his Estate, till Zethes and Calais | Dominica, On the Lord's-day, to the day called Feaft of Eafter, i. e. of the Refurrection, were HASTA, fignifies all kind of offensive used to keep the whole week holy, resting Lat. Ferian, therefore they called the day 'Twas faid in the Roman Law Hafte Subjecte, following immediately after the Holy Sunto fignify thereby, to confiscate, or to fell day Prima Feria; and the second day Secundaby publick fale ; and fub haffu wenire, to be Feris; the third day Tertis Feris, and fo forth ; fold by Auction; for Romalus had order'd and from thence the days of all the weeks were afterwards improperly called Foria inpractice of the Church.

The Origine of the names commonly given to the days of the week, being names of Divinities ador'd by faperstitious Antiquity, comes from a more remote principle: for 'tis likely that thefe names passed from the Asirrians to the Greeks, and from the Greeks to the

"And we may reasonably presume that the lof the Planets in the days of the week, is Chaldeans, who were afteemed the first Men very different from the order and situation of who addicted themselves to study Astrono- their Orbs. my, have also given the name of their Gods to the Planets, or at least the same names, ted the days, but also the hours of each day which they have afterwards ascribed to the to the care of some Planet, 'tis very likely. Gods whom they ador'd : and that they that the day was called by the name of the might give more authority to that art which Planet, that had the direction of the first they profels, and by which they foretold hour : Wherefore Saturday or the day of Sathings to come, by the observation of the turn was thus called, because the first hour of Stars. They arrempted to ascribe them an that day was under the direction of Saturn: abiolute Empire over the nature of Men, al- and as the following hours came on succession lowing to each of them several Offices and sively, under the power of the following Employments, to dispense good and evil; Planets, the second hour was for Jupiter and that left that dreadful power which they who immediately followed Saturn ; the third ascribed to them, should be kept in the only was for Marr, the fourth for the Sun, the fifth extent of their spheres, they had very much for Venus, the fixth for Mercury, and the seenlarg'd the bounds of their Dominions, fub- venth for the Mon, and afterwards the eighth mitting to them, not only the feveral parts hour return'd under the power of Satura; of the Earth and the Elements, not only the and according to the same order, the same Fortunes, Inclination and Secrets of the most Planet Saturn had still the fifteenth and the close Men, overthrow of States, Plagues, two and twentieth hours under his direction; Deluges, and a thousand other things of that and by consequence the three and twentieth nature; but endeavoured also to set them up hour was under the command of Jupiter, and for the absolute Masters of time, allowing a the four and twentieth, viz. the last hour of Planet to preside over each year, another to the day, was found under the direction of each month, to each week, each day, each Mars: So that the first hour of the following hour, and perhaps to each moment.

took the name of the Planet ruling over it, cond day; and following always the same and Monday, which is in Latin dier Luna, i. e. order to the eighth, the fifteenth and the two the day of the Moon, was so called, because and twentieth hour did always belong to the the Moon presides that day; dies Martis, i.e. Sun, the twenty third to Venus, and the last the day of Mare, which was under the directi- to Mercury : wherefore the first hour of the on of Mars; dies Mercurii, ruled by Mercury; third day appertained to the Moon, called for dies Jouis, under the conduct of Jupiter; dies that reason the day of the Moon, to which al-Veneris, under the direction of Venus; dies Sa- fo was referr'd the eighth, the fifteenth, and by the Sun.

follow in the week, is quite different from must return again to Saturn) and the last to that which they observe in Heaven; for ac- Jupiter; from whence the first hour of the cording to the disposition of their Spheres, fourth day was found under the direction of Jupiter is immediately below Saturn; Mars Mars, (who gave also his name to the day) as cording to the vulgar opinion, beneath the and twentieth; and consequently the twenthe day of Saturn, in the room of Thursday the necessary series of the names given to the the Munday or the day of the Moon; they reckon Moon, or Tuesday after Monday; Wednesday after Tuefday the day of Mars; and after Tuefday Tuefday; then Thurfday, Friday, and at last Sacomes Wednesday the day of Mercury, instead turday, and so of all the rest. of Thursday the day of the San, and so forth. There is still another ingenious reason that Whereby it doth appear, that the disposition might be given for these denominations of

But the Ancients having not only commisday came under the dominion of the Sun, From thence each day of the week has who confequently gave his name to the feturni, under that of Saturn; dies Solis, ruled the two and twentieth hours of the fame day; and therefore the twenty third hour 'Tis true, that the order that the Planets | was afcribed to Saturn, (for from the Moon we below Jupiter; the Sum under Mars; Venus ac- also the eighth, the fifteenth and the two Sun; Mercury below Venus; and in fine, the try third hour belonged to the Sun, the twenty Meen the lowest of all beneath Mercury : But fourth to Venus; and the first of the fifteenth in the order of the week Sunday, called the day to Mercury; and fo forth, following the day of the Sun, comes after Saturday, which is same order, whereby we see the origine and the day of Jupiter; and Monday the day of days of the week, and the reason why the the Moon, follows the day of the Sun instead day of the Sun comes after the day of Saturn, of Friday, the day of Venus; likewise instead viz. Sunday after Saturday, the day of the Mon of Saturday or the day of Saturn, which ac- after the day of the Sun, or Monday after Suncording to the Planets order, should follow day; the day of Mars after the day of the

the days of the week, follow one another in ven, Diana on Earth, and Proferpina or Hecate in Greek Frateasapar, which was the Origne Image was fet up in cross-ways, either beand principle of all the good harmony of the Antients, the nature whereof conlifts betwixt two tones of tour voices, or three intervals | Proferpins, or because she was the Moon in Heaor founds, different one from another; wherefore there are always two filent tones betwixt both. And 'tis likely, that the Ancients to leave us some idea of this admirable Musick, have disposed the days of the week, which follow one another according to their musical harmony; wherefore the Planet which comes immediately after another, leaves two others behind, which are filent ; viz. after Saturn comes the Sun, leaving Jupiter and Mars; and after the Sun follows the Moon, over-funning Venus and Mercury; after the Moon appears Mars ; after Mars, Mercury, without mentioning either the Sun or Venus; after Moon of Saturn ; next to Jupiter, Venus, leaving Mars and the Sun; and the last of all next to Venus comes Saturn; and by this perpetual revolution, we know why Sunday the day of the Sun, follows Saturday the day of Saturn, and why after Sunday comes Mon-

HEBDOMAS. The name of an Orator mentioned by Lucian, who once a week gave a play-day to his Scholars, and play'd himfelf wanton tricks among the people, as School-boys do upon Holy-days.

HEBE, The Daughter of Jupiter and June, or of June alone without the knowledge Sacrifices, to keep to the number a hundred of a Man; for Apollo having once invited her to a Feast, the Fable tells us that she eat such a quantity of Lettice to cool her felf, that Hecatombs other four-footed Beafts, easier to . the got a great Belly, and was brought to bed of Hibe, a Girl of an extraordinary beau- | Lambs ; wherefore Homer speaks in his Illiads. After Hercules was taken up among the Gods, he married her. The Ancients took Hebe Man, having in stormy weather made a vow for the Goddess of Youth, and consecrated place of Refuge to all the Malefactors, who fered to the Gods, an Hecatomb of a hunus, that the is the Daughter of Jupiter and Ceres; others fay, that she is the Daughter of Jupiter and Afteria; and Apollodorus's opinion is, that Hecate, Diana, the Moon and Profore they call her triple Hecare, or the God- in the xxii Book of his Illiads, relates, how

days; for the names of the Planets given to | dels with three heads, being the Mess in Heiproportion with the muical harmony, called in Hell. She was called Trivia, because her cause of the noise that was made in the night. to imitate the howling of Ceres feeking after ven, and Diana on Earth, and Proferpina or Hecate in Heil, as the Scholiast of Ariftophanes reports: Hicaten coluere antiquitus in trivies, propterea quod eandem & Lunam & Dianam. & Hecaten vocarent.

Servius tells us the fame thing upon this Verie of Virgil, Nocturnisque Hecaten triviis ululata per urbes.

She was represented with a dreadful countenance, her Head attired with Serpents; and was called upon in Magick, they facrificing. to her Victims, the blood whereof was shed Mercury, Jupiter, without reckoning either the in a Ditch, digged in the ground for that HECATOMB. A Sacrifice of an hundred Oxen, from the Greek word, inarive i. e. a hundred. Strave relates, that this Sacrifice comes from the Lacedemonians, who having an hundred Towns in their Country, facrificed every year a bundred Oxen in honour of their Divinities; but the charges of thefe Sacrifices being too great, they were reduced to five and twenty Oxen; for they fancied by a childish cunning, that each of these Oxen having four feet, it was enough to keep up the name of Hecatombs to thefe in these parts.

And yet afterwards they offered in their be procured than Oxen, as She-Goats and ty, who was in Heaven Jupiter's Cup-bearer. of Hecatombs of She-Goats and first year'd Lambs. 'Tis also reported, that an Ancient to Sacrifica an hundred Oxen if he should toher several Temples. The Corinthians offer'd escape the danger, and afterwards seeing that her Sacrifices in a Grove, which ferved for a he was not able to perform his Vow, he ofrepaired thither; and freed men tied to the dred small Oxen made out of Dough. Some Trees, their chains and other marks of bon- ascribe this false Hecatomb to Pythagoras; dage. This Goddess was represented by and Diogones Laertius reports, that this Philothe Image of a young Girl, crowned with lopher having found out fome new demonstrations of Trigonometry offered an Heca-HECATE, A Divinity of Hell, Wri- tomb of these artificial animals, in the room ters report her birth variously. Orpheus tells of a hundred living Oxen, whom he so exprefly forbid to kill.

HECTOR, The Son of Priamus King of Tray, and Hecuba his Wife, the most valiant of all the Trojans, who fo bravely defendserpina are all one and the same, where- ed the City of Troy against the Greeks. Homer Priamus and Hecubs defir'd Heller to avoid fighting with Achiller, and yet he pursued him vigorously. Jupiter took pity of Heller, and put it to deliberation whither he should prolong his life. But Minerus was against it. feeing that he was mortal. However, Apollo flood for him. At last Jupiter put into a pair of golden Ballances, the destinies of Achilles and Heder. The fare of Heller was brought down even to Hell. Then Apollo fortook him, and Mnerve took Achilles into her prorection. Heffor perceived that Minerus was againft him. and that Jupiter and Apollo had cast him off, as being near the fatal moment of his death: Notwithstanding he behav'd himself with a very great courage, and at last having received a mortal wound by Achiller, he foretold him before he died, that Paris and Apollo should kill him. Achilles had resolved to expole the Corps of Heller to be devoured by the Does : but Vinus kept off the Dogs from his Body, and Apollo cover'd it with a Cloud. Wherefore he only dragg'd his Corps round about the Grave of Patroclus, and Apollo took care of it, and kept it from being torn in pieces; and complained also of the other Gods, who fufferr'd Hoffer to be infulted even after his death; upon which, Jupiter mov'd with compassion, feat Thetis to Achilles, to perswade him to deliver up the Corps of Helter to his Father, which he performed for a great Summ of Money.

HECUBA, The Wife of Priamus. After the facking of Troy, Uliffer took Hecuba for his share of the Poory; but having seen Polyzens her Daughter facrificed on the Tomb of Achilles, and provok'd by so many missortunes, and especially the death of her Son Podydorus, barbarously murthered by Polemnester, his Son-in-law, the fell upon hum in rage, and that the fame of her Beauty went as tar and tore out his eyes, then endeavouring to as Phrygia; but Paris Alexander Son to King escape from the hands of her pursurer, she Priamus, one of her Lovers, having been pre-of his Metamorpholes.

piter and Tyndarus King of Lacedemonia and her to Troy. Menelaus and the other Greim Leda, and Sifter to Caffer and Pollux. Lucian Princes provoked by this choice, raifeda speaks thus of her in the judgment of Paris. powerful Army under the command of Age Venus. She is the Daughter of that fair one, memnon, and fat down before Trey. But Aim! of whom Jupiter being enamour'd, turned les was killed in this War, and the Greek ' himself into a Swan to enjoy her. You forc'd to make a Peace with the Trojans, by may well imagine that the is not black, being come of a Swan, not fat or bulky, be- damage they had done before Troy, they ofing produced out of an Egg-shell. If you fer'd a wooden Horse gilt over to Minerus, the gracefulness of her person. Wars the was murthered by Orefler the Son of Age have already been made for the love of her; memmon. for the was ftole by Thefeus, when but ten Herodatus reports, that after Menelaus was Beauty, as well as in Age, and has attracted to her the eyes of all Greece. She has been courted by a thousand Lovers; but Mene lass was preferred before all his Rivals. Nevertheless I will give her you, if you are fo inclined. For thou shalt go into Greetz under pretence of feeing the Country, and as foon as thou art arrived at Lacedemon, He lens will fee thee ; leave the rest to my care and management

EL Ή

And the same Lucian in the praise of Bear. ty, speaks thus of her: 'Men hold it in fuch great esteem, that Thefeur, who was one of the greatest Heroes, did not think he could be happy with all his Virtue, unless he possessed Hellen, and stole her away, before the was at an Age fit for Marriage, without having regard to the puiffance of her Father, or the danger he ran by this artempt. That same Hellen being since returned to her Father's House in Thefens's abfence, all the Grecian Princes fell in love with her; and for fear this Love might be fatal to their Country, they all vowed together, to ferve him who should be preferred, and hence employed all their Forces to put that fair one into Menelaus's hands Paris himself preferred her before all the Grandeurs, and Advantages promifed him by Pallas and June: And the Troise feeing all Greece pouring upon their backs, and at liberty of avoiding of that War, by restoring Hellen, yet resolved to keep her, at the very peril of their lives, and the ruine of their Country.

Dion Prusianas fays, that he was told by the Egyptian Priests, that Helens the Daughter of Tyndarus, the fairest young Lady of all Green, was courted by the young Grecian Princes, was turn'd into a Bitch. Ovid the 13th Book | terred to al! the other Princes, for the lake of his Beauty, and the magnificence of his HELENA, Helen, the Daughter of Ju-1 Equipage, married her, and prefently brought the mediation of Ulyffer; and to repair the had feen her dance stark naked, after the and returned into Greece without Hellan, manner of her Country, you had been whom Heller, after the death of Paris gave charmed with her agreeable motion, and in marriage to Deighobus; but a while after years old. Since, the is augmented in deceated, Nicoftratus and Megapenthus, two La-

administ Lords drove Hilens out of the City. | HELEPOLIS, An Engine, tiled for-Island, who was kill'd by Sarpedon at the siege Hides. of Troy. As first Polypo entertain'd her very honourably; but in her absence her Maid of while she was bathing herself.

Menefius speaking of the Island of Spatara relates, that Helens there granted her first tayours to Paris, and that on the banks of the firm Land opposite to it, this fortunate Lover after this agreeable conquest, built a Temple to Venus, for a Monument of the transports of his loy, and in acknowledgement of Venus's kindness, to whom he gave the attribute of Migmitis, and called his Territory Migmion. from a word that fignified the Amorous Myftery that passed between them; and that Movelsus the unfortunate Husband of this Princess, eighteen years after the was stoln away, came to visit this Temple, the Territory not destroy it, but only fer upon both fides Tree by her orders.

married Andromache, whom he divorc'd, taking for his fecond Wife Hermiene, the Daughter of Menelaus, and Wife to Oreffes, and then the Draught of the City of Troy, where Anaimbark'd, they fail'd along the Coasts of arrive in Italy, they should go ashore in arising amongst Ladies. Sicily, and that Exess should descend to and the Kingdom of Sparts; and the retired merly to batter Towns, invented by Dometo Rhoder, where the was kindly receiv'd by trime. This Engine was a wooden Tower. Popple, then Widow of Tlepolemus King of that cover'd with a contexture of Hair and fresh HELIADES, The Daughters of the Sun and Clymene, and Sifters to Phaeten : who Honour hanged her upon a Tree. Pausanias being very much concern'd for the loss of calls this Queen Polibo native of Argor, and Phaelen their Brother, whom Jupiter had ftruck fays, that her Maids being dreffed like Furies with his Thunder, were turn'd into Poplarhanged Helens by the order of their Mistrife, trees, out of compassion of the Gods, and their tears changed into Amber, as the Fable tells us.

> HELICE, or Califto, the Daughter of Lycam King of Arcadia, whom Diana changed into a She-Bear; because, being one of her Attendants, the let herfelf be corrupted by Jupiter; but taking pitty of her, he turned . her into a Constellation, called the great HELICON, A Mountain in Bestie, near Mount Parnaffus in Phocis, both dedicated so Apollo and the Muses, called by the name of this Mountain Heliconides.

HELIOGABALUS, called Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, a natural Son to the Empewhereof had been witness of his Misfortune, ror Caracalla. He was elected Emperor by and the infidelity of his Wife; but he did the Army, in the room of Macrinus. Historians commonly call him Heliogabalus, and thereof the Statue of Venus, and the Images of yet in many Medals he is named Heligabalus, two other Goddesses, wiz. Thetis and the God- because before his election to the Empire, he dels Praxidica, i. e. the Goddels of Punish- was a Priest of the Sun in Phanicia, where ments, to shew that he would not pass by the Sun is called after that Name, When he that Affront unpunished. But, says the same | came to Rome he brought his God along with Author, he had not the good fortune to fee him, and ordered the people to worship him himself revenged of Helens, for the out-lived exclusive of all other Gods; and Lampridius him : however. Menelaus revenged himself on tells us, that he facrific'd to him humane Priamus the Father of the Ravisher, and ut- Victims, both Boys and Girls. He was viterly destroyed his Kingdom. As for Helens, cious to a superlative degree, and his prothe made a very tragical end of her life, for fuseness and effeminacy were beyond bounds, having retired herself to Rhoder, near Prolize for he was served at Table with two and her Kinswoman, there she was hanged to a twenty Courses of Meat, with all forts of Fowls and Rarities unknown at Rome, and HELENUS, The Son of Priamus, and fetched from the most remote Provinces. a very experienc'd South-sayer, whom the He burned Balm in his Lamps, and kept Greeks spared in the facking of Troy. He had sweet waters in his Vaults. He privately married a Vestal Virgin, called Aquilia Severs, that he might beget a Celestial Posterity, being himself the Priest of the Sun. retired into Chaonia, and there built a City after His Lewdness and Debauchery grew to such an excess, that the description thereof in Hias landed. Thus Virgil speaks of it: 'Being | story makes the Reader blush. The Soldiers murthered him and his Mother in the Camp, feveral Islands, and among others, along and their Bodies were dragg'd along the the Isle where Helmu the Son of Priamus Streets of Rome, and thrown into a Kennel, reigned, with Andromache the Wife of Heller. and then into the Tiber; wherefore he was There they landed, and Helenus foretold called Heliogabalus Tiberinus. He had established them from Apollo, that before they should a Senate of Women, to decide differences

HELLE, The Daughter of Nephele, and the first Wife of Athamas King of Thebes, ftroy, whereupon he fled away with her Bro- fures. ther Phryxus, siding on a Ram, whose Fleece | The Congium did hold ten Pounds, wiz. fell into that Sea, which was called after her were about three Quarts English Measure. name Hellespontus.

Gloffes. Hemine, i. e. half a pint English Meafure ; these two words are reciprocal, and to the Altars. Demophon Prince of Athen, the Antient Lexicon has translated wastern; would not permit any Man to force out from by the word Hemins. Festur the Grammarian of their shelter; however, being afraid that tells us the reason thereof. 'Hemine, fays he, is fo called from the Greek huiso dimidium, because 'tis the half of the Sextarius. This should facrifice a Virgin to Ceres, to secure. is confirmed by Aulus Gellius, who fays, that himfelf the Victory, but Demophon refus d to nen dimidiatum Sextarium. The Hemine was herself to the Oracle, and was facrific'd. The then the half of a Roman Sextarius. The Ro- Athenians incourag'd by this facrifice went to man Hemine, says Garaut the Commissioner of meet the Enemy, resolv'd to defend valiantly the Mint, is the same measure, with that the sanctity of their Oflum, and the liberty of which is called at Paris, Dimifetier, holding the Heraclida. Joalus, who was Hercule's feleight ounces of Liquor. Fernelius tells us the low Traveller, and had manag'd the whole fame. Hemine was also a measure of Wheat, holding about four Bushels of Paris mea-

Apuleius tells us also, that Cotyla and Hemi- granted him a perpetual youth. ne were fynonymous among the Ancients, and both taken for the half Sextarius: 'Hemine, who always wept at the Miseries of the · fays he, is the half of a Sextarius, wherefore the Greeks call it Cotyle, i. e. incision or division, because it divided the Sextarius in | ble here below, but all things obnoxious to

The Antients often confounded these two words, and fometimes called Himins the Isalian Cotyle ; and Cotyle the Hemine of the Greeks, because Hemme was the half of the Sextarius infirmity. Sextarius of the Greeks.

fures in the Temples, and had recourse to called by that name. them, to verify the other Measures used amongst the People; and in this sense the Holy Scripture speaks of the Weights of the Sanctuary, which were the Rules for other Weights.

Varro reports, that the Ballance used to weight the Coin, was kept in the Temple of Saturn.

We read in Fannius's Writings, that the Amphora containing eight Congia, i.e. forty eight Sextarii, was dedicated by the Ancient Remens to Jupiter upon the Tarpeian Mount, where stood the Capitol

Quam ne violare liceret; Sacravere Jeui, Tarpeio in monte, Quirites...

And the Emperor Vespationus, having repair'd the Capitol after the Civil Wars of Vitelliar, whom he his fecond Wife attempted to de-the placed therein again the Original Man-was of Gold; but crofting over the Sea, she hundred and twenty Roman Ounces; which

HERACLIDÆ, or the Posterity of HEMINA mustiens, fay the Ancient Hercules, who being driven out of Greece by Eurifieut, retired to Athens, and fled for refuge Euristeus should make war against him, he confulted the Oracle, who told him that he if an Heming is pour'd out of a Sextarius, half offer his own Daughter or any other Virgin, a Sentarius was poured out, and not that a in facrifice; whereupon Macaria, who was Sextarius was divided by the half, dimidium, of Herculer's Family, voluntarily submitted Negotiation for the liberty of the Heraclida, as his own, was at last rewarded by the Gods. who reftor'd him to his former ftrength and

HERACLITUS, A Philosopher, World and mortal Men, faying that their condition was very fad, nothing being durea perpetual change; afferting withal that all the pleasures that Men enjoy'd are nothing elfe but grief, their knowledge ignorance, their grandeur meannels, and their ftrength of Italy, as the Catale was likewise the half | HERCULES, There were several of that Name. But Hercules of Tyrus, and Horn-They kept also the Originals of the Mea- les of Egypt, were the most ancient of all these

> Sanchon Ciathon, who has written the pedigree of the Phenician Gods, has recorded Hacules amongst them, and tells us that he was. the Son of Demaron, and was called Melchartm, which fignifies the King of the City, both in Hebrew and the Phanician Languages. We learn, the same thing of Hesychius, for Melec signific King, and Caxtha a City.

Herodotus feems inclined to place Hersulus of Egypt in the first rank of Antiquity; for the tells us, that he is one of the twelve first and principal Gods, and that on his account a great many Ages fince, the Greeks fer up for their Hercules the Son of Alemena, and Jupiles or Amphitrion. Jefephus in his Antiquities of the Jews has prefery'd a fragment of Menander of Epholis, who fpeaking of Hiram King of Tyrus, who fupply'd Solemen with Timber, for the build us, that he built also himself some new tions after their Example facrificed. But what Temples in Tyrus, to Hercules and Allerte, he fays of the passage of Hercules through having first demolish'd the ancient Temples. | Gaul, seems to be a Fable of the Greeks. And Hercules of Egypt was much older, as Macrobius we might fay the like of Hercules's Travels in gelates: Deus Hercules religiose quidem apud Tyron Italy, were they not related by so many colitur, verkm facratiffmå & ougustiffmå Ægyptij eum religione venerantur. Ipfe creditur & Gigantes interemiffe, Oc. If Hercules of Egypt Was living in the time of the War of the Giants. the Glory of Antiquity must be allowed to him. Saluft mentions Hercules of Libya, who had founded the City of Capfa; and Orefius calls him the Phenician Hercules.

Eulebius relates a passage of Diodorus Siculus, who tells us in general, that the Greeks have ascribed to themselves the Heroes and the proofs bore a great weight. For fince all agree that Hercules was in the Engagement with the Giants, this Hercules can't be the Gracian Hercules, who lived but a hundred years before the fiege of Trey.

Hercules was armed with a massy Club, and covered with a Lion's skin; these Arms are Arms were found out. Hercules clear'd the Earth of many prodigious Beafts, and confequently this was perform'd before the Deluge, and in Egypt, which is well stock'd with monstrous Beasts.

Diodorus mentions three Hercules's. The first and the most Ancient was in Egypt, and fubdued one part of the World, and erected a Column in Africa. The second at Crete, tories, and procur'd a free passage into the who erected the Olympick Games. The Lands, to the Sea called the Mediterranean Sea. third was the Sun of Jupiter and Acmena, who executed what Eurifibius had commanded him, and fet up a Pillar on the Prontiers of Europe. But these Hercules's having been recorded one after another, all that was proper to the former was afcrib'd to the last : and their names being the same, gave occasion to ascribe to a fingle man all that was perform'd, by all those that were called by that name, as if they were all but one Hercules. Nominis verò querum res gestas buie soli, ac fi unus per omne avum Hercules tantum extitiffet, pofteritas aferi-

The fame Writer in another place describes the Birth and the Works of the Grecian Hercules, and brings him to discourse with the famous Aftrologer Allas, and afterwards to communicate Aftrology him felf to the Greeks; that they had both supported Heaven. And he tells us also, that after his death, he was of doing good to all Men. bonour'd first like a Hero, then like a God, ing of the Temple of Jerusalem, affures to whom the Athenians and all other Na-Writers.

There is more certainty in what he tells us of the magnificent Temple of Hercules of Tyrus, built by the Phanicians in the Isle of Gades in Spain. Wherefore 'tis a common opinion, that the Pillars of Hercules on the Limits of Europe, were rather fet up by the Phanicians in remembrance of their Hercules. or by their Hercules himfelf, than by the Grecian Hercules. As to the Indian Hercules mentioned also by Diodorus, 'tis more likely that Gods of Egypt, and amongst others Hercules. he was the Hercules of Egypt, who extended Diedorus reports this discourse, as he heard it his Victories further than any other of that from the mouth of the Egyptians, and their name, viz. in the Eastern Provinces, called East-Indies remote from Egypt.

Strabe doth not speak with judgment of the Pillars of Hercules. For he tells us, that fome Authors thought, that which was called the Columns of Hercules, was the Banks of the straight of Gibralter; others the Isle of Gades; others two Mountains; and fome overy ancient, before offensive or defensive thers thought that these Pillars of Hercules. were eight Columns of Brass, erected by the Phanicians, in the Temple of Hercules of Gades. whereupon they writ the charges of the building of the Temple.

Pliny fays, that the Mounts Abila in Africa. and Calpe in Europe, are the Pillars of Hercules ; and that the Inhabitants of those places fancv. that Hercules divided these two Promon-

Plutarch speaking of the Hercules of the Greeks in the life of Thefeus, fay many things, which might be as justly applied to the other Herculer's. For he observes that in these ages of ignorance, many Men of extraordinary frength and valour, fuch as were Hercules and Theleus, proposed to themselves in their expeditions to free the world of many Monsters of Iniquity, who infested Mankind, and to bring all wild Nations to a due civi-& fludiorum similitudo effecit ut post obitum anti- lity, politeness and Religion. Tully proposes Heredes for the most perfect model of Vertue, who expos'd himfelf to all kind of dangers. and bore all possible Evils for the good of Mankind. Dionyfius Halicarna ffeus reprefents the Grecian Hercules like a vertuous Hero. who fubdued all the Earth, out of a firong passion to re-establish every where peace, concord and justice; and Alianus fays, that an from hence the Greek took occasion to fav, Oracle affur'd Hercules that he should be rank'd in the number of Gods, for a reward

Herenles (as fome faid) had built for himfelf, was more ancient than the Hercales of Greece; and that it was well known, that the Inhabirants of Cresse had another Hercules, as well as the Trian and those of Ernbras in Imis. We may think that the Herceles of the Erythraans, and that of the Arabians and Affyrians is the fame; for the ancient Erythreens were Idemans of Arabians. And we know that the Red-Sea was called either Erythraum in Greek, or Idemoun in the Phanician tongue, because the word Eden fignifies red. In fine, the Hercules of Egypt was not unknown to this Author, for he favs that the Hercules of Greece not being able to prevail with the Priests of Delphus, Role away the holy Tripus, and that then the cried out, that it was plain that he was the Grecian Biercules, and not the Egyptian : Nam & ante Egyptius Hercules Delphos venerat Paulanias brings in another place an infrance, how these several Hercules in series of time inhabiting Mount Erymanthus in Arcadia, who were confounded in one Man; and fays, I spoiled all the Fields. He took him alive. that the Thasians who were come from Phanieis into Greece, at first ador'd there Hercules of Eriftheus, who was almost frighted to death Tyre, but being mixt at last with the Greeks, at the fight thereof. they worshipp'd Hercules of Greece.

Arrian affures us, that there were formerly three Herculer's, The Tyrian Hercules is much older than the Hercules of the Greeks; but that of Egypt is still more ancient; and that City was built by the Tyriam; and the devour them. Sacrifices there offer'd, were offer'd after the

and to this Dog is referr'd the invention of purple colour, the blood whereof makes this admirable colour. Poets feign'd that Hercules was conceiv'd during three nights, without utterly rout the Enemies of the people of God. | away all the Dung.

We read in Lycophron's Caffandra, that Hercales was devoured by a Sea-Dog, named Carcharias, whom Neptune had fent against him. And the Scholiast of Lycophron tells us, that this great Fish being ready to swallow Hesione the Daughter of Lasmedon, Hersales advanced, and threst himfelf armed into the month of the Monster, and having tore his Intrails, he got out of his belly. having loft nothing but his Hair, and that from hence Hercules was called Tongwood because he was three nights in the belly of that Monfter, Theobiles mentions this Fable, and applies it to Jours swallow'd by a Whale.

HERCULES the GRECIAN was the Son of Jupiter and Alemens the wife of · Possinion affirms, this the Temple which | Amphirio, chalog yet in the Cradio he choose ed two Serpents, which Jame out of jealonfy against his Mother, had fent to destroy him. They relate twelve Prodigies extraordinary, called the twelve Labours of Hercules.

Earifhest the Son of Helenst King of Mrcan having a mind to be rid of Hercules, fent him. first to ftop the incursions of the Lion of the Nemen Forest, who was fallen from the Heaven of the Moon, and destroyed all the Country: Hercules purfued him, and having driven him into a Den, he feiz'd upon him. and tore his Mouth with his own hands, and ever after wore the skin of that Lion.

After this Expedition he was fent to the Lake of Lerns near Arges, to force the Hydrs, a dreadful Serpent with feven Heads, and having cut off one Head thereof, two arose in the place, wherefore Hercules cut off her feven heads at once.

Then he marched against a fierce Wild-Boar, and brought him upon his shoulders to

He also caught running the Hind of Menelus's Hills, the Feet whereof were of Brafs. and his Horns of Gold, after he had pursu'd ber a whole year.

He likewise drove away the Birds of Stynethat the Hercules, who was reverenc'd at phalus's Lake, that were so numerous, and of Tartafiu in Spain, where Hercules's Pillars 10 prodigious a bigness, that they stoot the flood alfo, was the Tyrian Hercules, because light with their wings, and took up Men to

He engag'd the Amazons inhabiting Scythia, near the Hircanean Sea, and took their Queen They ascribe a Dog to Hercules of Tyrus, Hypolica prasoner, whom Thesem married.

He cleanfedithe Stables of Augier King of Elis, where a thousand Oxen were kept, the Dung whereof infected the air : and to compass this work, he turned the course of the the interruption of day, to imitate the pro- River Alpheus, and convey'd the Waters longation of the day obtained by Jefbus to | thereof through the Stables, which carried

> He feiz'd upon a Bull casting out fire and flames, that Neptune had fent into Grecce, to revenge some affront he had received from the Greeks.

He took Diomedes King of Thrace, and gave him to be eaten by his own Man-eating Horses, to punish him for his cruelty towards Strangers, whom likewise he deliver'd up to be devoured by his Horses, and made Geryon, who had three Bodies, fuffer the same punishment, because his Oxen devoured Travellers.

He brought to Eurifiem, the golden Apples out of the Garden of the Hesperides, and kill'd the dreadful Dragon that guarded them.

He went to Hell, and brought thence with him the Dog Carbers, and delivered Thefear, who was gone thither to keep company with Pirithous his Friend; and this was the last of his Exploits.

Many other performances both of Tuffice and Courage are still ascribed to Hercules : for he kill'd Busiris the Son of Neptune, who us'd to cut the Throats of Travellers; and killed Cacus a three-headed Man, the Son of Vulcan, a famous Robber, who infested Mount Aventime, and the Country round about with his Robberies; and passing by Mount Caucasus, he delivered Prometheus whom Jupiter had order'd to be tied thereon, and kill'd the Eagle who was devouring his Liver, and imother'd in his Arms Antew the Son of the Earth.

In the latter end of his life he was much given to Women, and Omphale Queen of Lydis made him fpin, and beat him with her Diffaff, and after all his great Atchievements, he put an end to his Life on Mount Octa; for having put on the Garment of Neffue the Centaur, which Dejamira his Wife had fent him by Lycas; the malignity of Nellus's blood, which was a strong Poyson, put him into fo violent a rage, that he cast himself into a burning pile of wood, and there was confumed.

HERCULES the LIBYAN, or HORUS. Several Illustrious Men went by the name of Hircules; yet amongst them there were three very famous, two whereof fignaliz'd themselves in Italy, viz. Hercules the Libyan and Hercules of Greece, the Son of Alcme-

Ofris and Ifis, as Berufus and Natalis Conies whereon they took folema Oaths, and offered tells us, applied himself to deliver Men from the tenth part of the Booty. And a Merchant oppression and injustice. To that purpose whom Herculer had reicued from the Hands he went into Libra, where he put Antaus to of Pirates, built him a Temple of a round death; from Lybis he passed over into Spain, figure, under the Title of Deo Herculi Invitto. where he killed Gayon the Tyrant, and from Tis reported that neither Flies nor Dogs enspain he came into Italy, where he reigned tered into this Temple, because he had drithirty years. Herodotus reports, that he was the laft of the Gods, and lays that he reigned left his Maffy-Club at the entrance of this twelve hundred years : wherefore Diodorus Si- Temple. cults tells us, that the Egyptians reckoned their their years are like our months.

HERCULES GALLICUS, or one hand his Maffy-Club. take him for any thing rather than Hercules, ket for Oxen. tho he wears the fame Enfign, viz. a Lion's The Poplar-tree was dedicated to him, as skin, a Maffy-Club, with a Bow bent in his Virgil fays, Populus Alcide gratiffina; and Pheleft hand, and a Quiver at his back. 'I drus, populus Herculi; wherefore his Figure is cursions he made into their Country, in about his neck.

his Expedition of Spain. But I have not yet told you of the greatest mystery of the Pichure: which is, that he held enchain'd by the ears, an infinite number of People, who are ty'd to his Tongue, by fmall twifts or wires of Gold, as by fo many chains, and follow him willingly, without ftruggling or hanging back, infomuch that a Man would fay they delighted in Captivity. As I was wondering with some Indignation at this spectacle, a Doctor of that Country, who spoke very good Greek, told me he would unriddle me the mystery that was contained under that Anigms, and begun in the manner following. We do not with the Greeks believe, that Mercury is the Symbol or rather the God of Eloquence, as he is stil'd, but rather Hercules, who is much more powerful; and our opinion is, that he affected all that we admire, not by the strength of his Arm, but by that of his Reafon. Wherefore we paint him under the figure of an old Man, because Reason is not accomplish'd until that Age. This God holds all Mankind tied by the Ears, which is the effects of Ratiocination, and his Tongue to which they are fasten'd, is the Instrument of their Captivity. His Darts are the force of his Reasons, being feather'd, because that words are wing'd, as Homer calls them.

Many Temples and Altars were erected to Hercules the Gaulifb at Tyrus, in Spain, and at Rome, and one of these Altars was called Arana and Jupiter, whom we have lately mention'd. maxima, because of the great quantity of Horus of Hercules the Libran, the Son of Stones employed in the building thereof. ven away Myagres the God of Flies, and had

Hercules was represented flark naked, except years by the course of the Moon, and that the Lion's skin, which cover'd his Body, or twifted about his Arm, and holding with OGMIUS. The Gash draw him with a He is yet expressed by a figure holding white Beard, bald, wrinkled and tawny like three Golden Apples in his right hand, and old Marriners, or rather like Charon himfelf. his Club in the left. And a great brafs Fior Japetus, who is reckon'd the most ancient gure of Hercules holding an Apple in his of Men. In short, to see him, you would hand, was lately found at Rome, in the Mar-

thought at first, favs Lucion, they did it out | yet visible on a Greek Medal, crowned with of mockery, or out of revenge for the in- Branches of Poplar-tree, and a Lion's skin

The Emperor Commadus flighted the firname | dead Person, were free to accept or quit the of his Family, and instead of Commedus, Son to Mercus Aurelius, took the name of Hercules in law. In the text of the Reman Law, there the Son of Jupiter; and leaving off the Imperial Badges, he put on a Lion's skin and wore a Maffy Club, the badges of Hercules, and appeared publickly in this dreis : And yet before the Magistrate ; Gestio pro Herede, Deeds not contented with it, he order'd that Coins of owners, as to fell Estates, receive Rents of Gold, Silver and Brass, should be stamp'd and Debts, and gather Fruits. This manner with his Effigies on one fide crown'd with a of accepting an Inheritance, is feverally ex-Lion's skin; and on the other fide a Maffy-Club, a Bow, a Quiver and Arrows, with this Inscription Herculi Romano Invitto, and when he wrote to the Senate he stilled himfelf Romanus Hercules, and had the Massy-Club and the Lion's skin carried before him in his Travels.

to Lands or Estate, either by right of Family or by a last Will. The Roman Laws established three kinds of Heirs. The necessary Will, when a man declared that he was un-Heirs, were the Slaves made Heirs by their | willing to be Heir. Masters who freed them, and are called neceffary, because being appointed by their Masters, they were forced to accept of his Will, and were not allowed to quit the Inheritance, tho' it was very much incumber'd with Debts, and subject to great charges. The other kind of Heirs called Sui and Necesfarij, were the Children who were in the power of the deceased Person in the time of his death, and were called necessarij, because willing or unwilling they are Heirs; and Sui, because they are the Testator's own and proper Domeiticks, and the owners of the Lands and Estates of their Parents. The third kind of Heirs were Strangers, viz. those who were neither Children nor Slaves to the deceased person; and these were voluntary Heirs, for they were free to accept or quit what was left them.

As for the former, who were the Slaves of the Testator, they are freed and Heirs by the only benefit of the law, without any other act of acceptation, and are not admitted his dear Nymph Salmacis, and becoming but to refuse the Will: On the contrary, they one body with her, that yet keeps both Sexes. are bound to pay all the Debts, even out of the Estate or Goods, that they had purchas'd fince they had obtain'd their freedom, unless the Prztor granted them a benefit of separation.

And the Children, who were under the deceased person's authority in the time of his death, they were like Slaves, as to the both Sexes; for Calvum a Poet, calls Venum a necessity of accepting the Inheritance, being necessary Heirs to their Parents; and after the death of their Father, the Inheritance was rather a continuation of Patrimony, than a new purchase.

The third kind of Heirs, called Strangers, who were neither Slaves nor Children to the Inheritance, which was performed by a deed was three feveral ways of purchasing or accepting of an Inheritance, viz. Aditio Hereditatis, which was a folemn Deed performed pres'd in the Roman Law; for in the person of ftrange Heirs, 'tis called geftio pro berede: but in the person of Children, 'tis called immixtio; and the third way, is a fingle and plain will of accepting or refufing.

There were also three contrary ways to quit an Inheritance, viz. Repudiatio, which HERES, An Heir, one who fucceeds is a Deed in Law, performed in the prefence of the Magistrate; Abstentie, which was for the Children; and the last was only a fingle

Formerly they allowed an hundred days for claiming an Inheritance.

HERES Ex affe, an Heir or fole Legate. See As.

HERMAPHRODITUS. An Hermaphrodite, one that is both Man and Won man, called by the Greeks Androgyne. Poets tell us that Hermaphrodisus was the Son of Marcury and Venus, and that meeting in a Fountain with the Goddels Salmacis, fhe fell in love with him; and while the was embracing him, she found herself fastned to him by an indiffolvable tye, both Bodies making but one with both fexes. This word comes from the Greek Epuns, Mercurius and Apposing, Venue, i. e. composed of Mercury and Venue both Male and Female.

Montieur Spon in his curious inquiries after Antiquity, has shewn us two precious stones, whereon the Fable of Hermaphreditus is engraven. The first is a Cornelian, where he is represented in the Bath, ready to embrace On the second he is already turned in the like manner that he is represented at Rome; by Marble and Brass Statues. By this Figure the Ancients représented a mix'd Deity, composed of Mercury and Venus, called by the Greeks Appellin, to join Eloquence with Pleasure; or to shew that Venus was of God.

Polentemque Deum venerem.

And Virgil in the second Book of his

Discede, ac ducente Deo flamman inter & haftet, Expedior.

Levinus speaking of this Divinity, ascribes her both Sexes. Ariftophanes calls her accodi- tion, jealous of their liberty, should raise 70% in the Neuter Gender , and Hely- the ambition of these Great Men, and give this dopodiro in the Masculine. And them occasion to aspire to the Soveraign. in the life of Cyprus near Amathus, she is represented by a Statue, with a Beard like a

HERMES, A Sir-name given to Mercary. The Hirma were Statues of Mercury City, the Suburbs and the Villages of Attica, commonly made of Marble; and yet fome- with ingraven moral Instructions and Sentimes of brass, without either Arms or Feet, tences, to incourage Men to vertue, as 'tis fet up by the Greeks and the Romans in crofs related by feveral Authors. Cornelius Nepos in ways. Servius in his Commentary on the the life of Alcibiades, tells us, that one night eighth Book of the Aneids of Virgil, tells us the Herma then at Athens were all cast to the whereupon he was afterwards called Cyllenius, tated by the Tribe Egeida: as well as the Mountain where this Act was perform'd; because wande signifies, that which and great Roads, because Mercury the messenhas no Arm, or which is mained of some ger of the Gods presided over the high ways. Member; and from hence, fays he, fome Wherefore he was firnamed both Trivius from Statues which have no Arms, are called Her- the word trivium, i. e. a cross way; and Viama. But this Etymology, fays Mr. Spon, cut, from the word via, i.e. way, in an Intaken from the Epithet Cyllenius, given to fcription of Gruter. Mercury, is contrary to what ancient Writers Tully, a great lover of Antiquity, being inreport, for they derive this word from the form'd by the Letters of his Friend Atticus place were he was born, called Cyllene, a then an Athens, that he had found some Her-Town in Arcadia, or a Mountain of the ma; writes thus to him, in the feventh Letfame name. Wherefore Pausanias in the De- ter of the first Book. 'Your Herma of Marfcription of Greece, 1. 8. fays, that Mount Cyllene is the most famous of Arcadia; and that on the top thereof, a Temple was built to Mercury Cyllenius, and that the name of the Mountain, and the Sirname of Cyllenius given to Mercury, comes from Cyllenus the Son of Elatus, a Hero of that Country: And this Etymology comes nearer to the truth, than them with Flowers, that they might obtain that related by Servius. Suidas, motally explains this manner of bafforclievo of Boiffurd's Antiquities.

making Statues of Mercury without Arms. The Herma, fays he, were Statues of Stone, erected by the Athenians at the Porches of their Temples, or entrance of their Houses: compounded of Herme and Athene, which For Mercury being effeemed the God of fignifies these two Divinities. Pomponius Atthat never changes.

The Herme were first found out and used at Athens, wherefore Suidas tells us, that they were peculiar to that City. Æschines in his Oration against Cassiphon, mentions the norch of the Herme, which was in his Time at Athere, where among others there were three near the River Stymon. The Inscriptions of thefe Herma were Encomiums of the Athenians valour; nevertheless, out of a wife policy, the names of the Athenian Generals were not mention'd in these Inscriptions; lest this Na-

The chiefest Herme of Athens, were the Hipparchians, which Hipparchus the Son of Pififratus Tyrant of Athens, had erected in the the Origine of the word Hermes, and fays, ground, only one excepted, that stood at the that Shepherds found Mercury, called Hermes, door of the Orator Andocides, who fays in his asleep on a Mountain, and cut off his hands; speech of the Mysteries, that it was dedi-

The Herma were also fet up in cross ways

ble of Mount Rentilicus, with their head of brass, rejoyce me before hand; wherefore you will oblige me very much to fend them to me, with the Statues and other curiofities that you can, find at Athens, of your own liking and approbation. The Women honour'd much the Hirma, and adorned of them a happy fecundity, as we fee in a HERM-ATHEN A., Were Statues fer upon fquare feet like the Harma; bottrentefented Mercury and Minerva, this word being Speech and Truth, was represented with ticur having found at A hour one of these rare square and cubical Statues, because square Statues, writes to his Friend Tully, that he Figures can't be fet but upright, like Truth would fend it to him to adorn his Library. And Tully answers him thus, Epiff. 3. l. 1.

What you write of the Herm-Athena is very .. acceptable to me, and I have appointed an . honourable place for them in my Academy, whereof it shall be the Ornament; seeing that Mercury is the general protector of all Academies, and Minerun prelides particuvery remarkable Herme fet up in honour to ! Jarly over mine. Wherefore you can't obthe Athenians, who had routed the Persans, lige me more sensibly, then to procure place.

Tis no wonder to fee Mercury and Minorus joyned together in this Statue; for it was placed upon the representation of Marcary, usual to keep Holy-days and offer Sacrifices that were common to them both, because representing a God made up of Mercury and one presided over Eloquence, and the other the Sciences; and that Eloquence without Erudition is but a meer found; and Learning without Eloquence, but an unprofitable Treasure. Therefore the Athenians, who were the most Learned, most Eloquent and most Valiant Men in the world, did wifely to erect and dedicate this figure of Hermathena.

dedicated to Adrian, who boafted of his

Learning and Eloquence.

HERM-ANUBIS, is represented at Rome. two feveral ways; for in some Figures 'tis represented with the Head of a Sparrowhawk, and in others with the head of a Dog. This strange Idol mention'd by Plutarch, was a Divinity of the Egyptians, representing Mercury and Anubis; the Caduceum which he holds in his hand being the common badge of Mercury, and the head of a Sparrow-hawk the Symbol of Anubis, because Anubis was a great Hunter: wherefore he is also express'd with the head of a Dog, and Ovid calls him Latrater Anubis.

HERM-HERACLES, is a Deity represented like the Herme, with the Lion's Greeks call him Heracles; which has a relation to the custom of the Antient Greeks, who erected the Statues of Mercury and Hercules in Running, Boxing, and other Combats of felves better with their eyes, than by word Champions. The union of Mercury with Hercules, shew'd that Strength must be back'd art of overcoming Monsters.

Mercury was often express'd at Athens, by a fquare figure of an unpolish'd Stone, whereon they fer up the head of any other God whatfoever. The origine of this custom Mitre on, and fet upon a Term, the Inferip was, that in former times the Statues of Mercury were placed upon fquare Bases, to shew the folidity of the works of Art, and especially of Eloquence, invented by him. Wherefore in feries of time, these square Bases were taken for his representation, tho' there were no Statues what foever fet upon em, because these bases were peculiar to him. But afterwards to honour the other Gods knew before : wherefore it was faid of him, Statues, they plac'd them upon these bases, that in his youth he was a perfect Man, and to shew that they were famous only by Mer- in his old age a Child. After his death his swy, who chief buliness was to carry their Corps was opened, and his Heart was found Errands, and execute their Orders. And the hairy, and of an extraordinary bigness. whole figure of these two Gods joined toge-

"me there kind of Rarities to adorn this ther, was called by the name of the Deiry." whose figure was let upon the Basis; wherefore Herm-Heracles was the figure of Hercules.

HERM-EROS, is a Statue of Brafs. Cupid, called by the Greeks Eros. This God is expressed by the figure of a young Boy, holding the Caduceum and the Purfe, the two Badges of Mercury. The Ancients doubtles intimated by this Emblem, that Eloquence and Money were two necessary things to a Lover. Pliny speaking of fine Carver's work. mentions the Hermarota of one Taurifcus; and This Hermathens is the reverse of a Medal the word Hemer's, was often used by the Remans and the Greeks for a firname; as we may fee by the Inteription of an Epitaph found

> HFRMEROTI AUG. LIB. PRÆPOSITO TABULAR. RATIONIS CASTRENSIS. FRATRI INDULGENTISSIM. AMPLIATUS AUG. LIB. FECIT.

> To the Memory of Hermeros, Infranchifed by the Emperor, Overfeer of the Secretaries of the Camp; Ampliatus Freed-man of the Emperor, has dedicated this Monument to his very good Brother.

HERM-HARPOCRATES, The skin and the Massy-Club of Hercules, the Figure of Mercury and Harpecrates, with wings at his heels like Mercury, and holding his Finger upon his Mouth like Harpocrates, the God of filence among the Egyptians, to fhew the Academies, because both presided over that sometimes stience is eloquent, especialthe Exercises of Youth, viz. Wreftling, ly amongst Lovers, who often express themof Mouth.

HERMA-MITHRA. Her Figure with Eloquence, and that Eloquence had the is represented upon a Medal, that Mr. Spon has brought from the Isle of Malsha, the Head whereof is a Woman with a Veil: On the Reverse are three small Figures; the middle one is a Statue drawn half way, with a tion whereof confifts only in three Panid Characters. The Head cover'd with a Veil represents Jano, the Mitred head Mercury and Apollo joined together.

HERMOGENES was very famous in the art of Orarory. At fifteen years of age he taught Rhetorick with general applaufe; and at four and twenty he forgot all that he HERODOTUS, A Greek Historian, of a rare and fingular merit, who confidering with himself which way he might become famous, he thought fit to present himself at the Olympick Games, where all the Greeks were affembled, and there he recited his Hiflory with fo much applanse, that his Books were called by the name of Muses; and when he was paffing by they cried out every where, There is the Man, who has so deservedly sung our Victories, and celebrated the Advantages that we have obtain'd over the Barbanians. His Writings were admired for the elegancy of the Discourse, the grace of the Sentences, and and the polite file of the Ionick Dialect.

HEROPHILUS, He lived in the feventh Age. Pliny tells us, that he oppos'd the Principles of Erafiftratus, and grounded the difference of Difeases on the Rules of HEROS, A Hero was in former ages a great and illustrious Person; and although he was of a mortal Race, was vet esteemed by the People a partaker of Immortality, and after his death was put amongst the Gods. Lucian defines a Hero, by one who is neither God nor Man, but both together. St Auflin in the tenth Book de Civitate Dei, fays, that 'tis' very likely that Juno had a Child called by that name; because, according to the opinion of the Ancients, vertuous persons after their death inhabit the vast space of the Air, which were Juno's Dominion, according to the Fable. Isidorus fays, that the Heroes' were called by that name, as if one faid Acres or Acres, persons rais'd by merit, and worthy of Heaven. Plate derives, that word from the Greek epost, amor; because, says he. the Heroes came by the conjunction of a God with a mortal Woman, or of a mortal Man with a Goddess. The Heroes were Men. who by their Eloquence, moved the People which way they pleafed, giving them an aversion against Vice, and leading them by their discourses and examples into the way of Vertue.

came a great Poet, by chewing some Laurel Some Writers tell us, that he lived in the leaves upon Mount Helicon. Lucian has left time of Homer; others lay that he was before us a little Dialogue between Hiffod and himfelf, wherein he jeers him, because he bragg'd after him. of his Commerce with the Mirfes evince you a great Poet, for all you write the Sea, to pacifie the anger of Neptune and you have received a branch of Laurel from fung the Geneology of the Gods, beginning from the Heaven and Earth, the Chaos and Love; you have afterwards fet down the precepts of Aftrology for Sailors and Hufbandmen; you have treated of rural Life, of Women's Vertues, and other fuch like matters; but you have not bolted fo much as one word of futurity, which had better manifested your inspiration, and redounded more to the advantage of Men. Is it that you impos'd upon us? or are you willing to conceal your fecret? or elfe are not your Prophecies transmitted down to us? for there is no likelihood that the Muses should keep but that part of their promise, and neglect to teach you futurity, which was the main

'Hefiod. It is easie to answer you, that having faid nothing but by the infpiration of the Muses, 'tis to them to give you an account of their Actions; but if you defire to know fomething of my Calling, I will tell you what I know of Agriculture. As the Gods reveal them felves to whom they pleafe, fo they reveal only what they please, and have not taught me the least of what you defire to know. Moreover, an Historical Truth is not expected from Poets, nor a reason asked them of all their Fictions ; befides, they are us'd to add many things, for the filling up the measure of their Verses, or to cause the more admiration; or if you fhould retrench them of this liberty, you would curb their Genius. But without taking notice of the beauty of invention and expression, which are the principal Talents, you make it your buliness to cavil at the words, as you would do with those of a contract, which is the fign of a carping quirking Wit. I forbear to mention, that you will find in my Poem intituled The Works and Days, feveral Predictions, which I helfow on those, who are good and bad ' Husbandmen.

Histor was killed by some Locrians, and then thrown into the Sea; but his body was got HESIODUS of a fingle Shepherd be- off and buried near the Nemean Temple. him; and fome others report, that h: lived

HESIONE, The Daughter of Laome-Lucian. Your Verses. Hesiod, sufficiently don, whom he exposed upon the Rocks of is noble and lofty, and we easily perceive Apollo, whom he had not paid their wages, for having help'd him to build the Trojan Walls. the Muses's hands. But you having said, Hercul's offered himself to deliver Hesione, upthat this divine Present would teach things on condition that he should give him the pass'd and the future; I would fain know, Fairy Horses begot of divine Seed; but havwhy having descanted on the one, you have ling broke his word with him, Hercules betold us nothing of the other; for you have frieged him in his own Dominions, and took his Daughter Hefone, whom he married to fwered, that the best way to prevent the like Telamon King of Salamina.

HESPERUS, The Son of Japetus and the Mares. Brother to Atlas, who came to fettle in Italy, called after his Name Resperie. Being one centeur, who was brought from Egypt to Reme, day on Mount Ailes contemplating the Stars, imbalm'd with honey, according to the fathe Fable tells us, that on a studden he vanish- shion of that time. Phlegen of Trailis relates ed away, and was turned into a Star, called the same story. Lucifer in the morning, and Hefter or Vefter in the evening.

Hesperus, who by Juno's order kept a Garden Conspicit homin.m equo mixtum, cui opinio Poets. or Orchard bearing golden Apples, which rum Hippo:entauro vocabulum indidit; St Anthony Hercules took away, having kill'd the Dra- having made the fign of the Crois, asked the gon, which stood at the entry in defence Monster where about the holy Solitary Paul thereo:

Hefterus the Son of Japetus. This name was away. Some Nations of Theffaly inhabiting common both to Italy and Spain, because of near Mount Pelien, called Hippocentauri, have the Star Heffer, which appears at our West. given occasion to this Fable; for being the Notwithstanding Spain is called Hisperia ulti- first Men who knew the art of riding on ms, because 'tis more western than Italy.

HETRURIA, A Country in Italy, Man and the Horse were but one body. now -called Tulcany; formerly famous for Augures, and Divinations or Southfayings.

keep themselves chast.

licy an Ethick fecret; for they communicated | Country. He died the hundred and fourth the secrets of Nature, and the particulars of year of his Age, and all the time of his their History and Morality, only to the Life, he enjoy'd a perfect and vigorous Priefts of the Sun, and those Men who were Health. to succeed to the Crown or publick Ministry, and yet this was performed in a cabaliftick in honour of Neptune. Dienystus Halicarnaffen manner. The wifest Men of Greece went to reports, that the Remans erected a Templess consult them, and inform themselves of Neptune the Horseman, and instituted him a those things that they could not learn, nei- Festival, called by the Arcadians Hippecrais, ther by tradition nor books, and even Mofes and by the Romans Confuelia. During that himself was instructed in all their Sciences.

of the Pagans, Jews and Christians, because magnificently harnessed, and adorn'd with they are only Images and representations of Garlands of Flowers. divine, holy and fupernatural things, as the Symbols are Images of fensible and natural nippe, a Fountain near Mount Helicen, deli-

HIEROPHANT E. See before, after Rock, ftruck with the hoof of Pegafus.

and Painters have represented like Monsters, who saw her so fair, fell in love with be half Men and half Horses Lucretius denied that like the other Princes of Greece; and that there ever were any; however, Plutarch re- he might keep her for himself, he made : lates in the Feast of the seven Wise-men, that very wicked proposal; For his Chariot be a Shepherd brought a Child in a Basket, who ing the lightest, and his Horses the swifted was foaled by a Mare, and had the upper of all the Country; under pretence of feet parts of Men, and the lower parts like a ing for a Husband worthy of hisDaughter, Horse: Many were amaz'd at it, and thought propos'd her for a prize, to him who should fit to make an expiation for that Predigy. overcome him at the Race , but upon condihim priloner with his Son, and ftole away But Thales, the wifeft Man of them all, and mischief, was to let the Women look after

Pliny also assures us, that he has seen a Hippo-

St Hieronymus has described the Hippocentaur. whom St Anthony met in the Wildernels. HESPERIDES, The Daughters of when he was feeking for St Paul the Herming! inhabited; the Monster presently shew'd him HESPERIA, Italy was thus called from the way with his hand, and immediately run Horseback, their Neighbours fancied that the

HIPPOCRATES, Born in the Ide of Cos, was Disciple to Pythagoras, and esteem'd HIEROPHANT E. Athenian Priefts, the Prince of Physick; he restored again Overseers of Sacrifices and holy things. Hie that Science, which had been very much ronjmus affirms, that they used Hemlock to neglected fince Ejeulapius. We have many fine Treatifes of Phytick and Aphorisms of HIEROGLYPHI, Mysterious Fi- his own Writings. The Greeks decreed him gures, wherewith the Egyptimu kept their Po- the same Honours with Hercules all over their

HIPPOCRATIA, Holy-days kent day Horses and Mules were kept from work There are also Hieroglyphi in the Theology ing, and led along the Streets of Rom

> HIPPOCRENE, Otherwise 4 cated to the Muses, which sprung out of a

HIPPODAMIA, She being mar HIPPOCENTAURI, Which Poets riageble, her Father Occuments King of Elia, tions that all those whom he should van- said of Hippalysus, as one part of the true Hiquish should suffer death. And he would story of Theseus. Pausana adds the tradition have his Daughter ride in the Chariot with of some Inhabitants of Italy, and especially her Lovers, that her Beauty might furprize of Aricia, who fay, that Hippolytus was restothem, and divert their thoughts from mak- red to life again, or recovered his health by ing hafte. And by this cunning device, the care of Esculaptus; and not enduring to he overcame and killed thirteen of these think of a reconciliation with his Father, schion of this infaruated Father, granted im-mortal Horses to Peleps, who run the four-that the custom in his time was, that the teenth Race, was victorious, and possessed Priest appointed for the service of that Temthe beautiful Lady. Some others fay, that ple, was always a Man, who in a Duel or Occuments being acquainted, that Peleps (who lingle Combat had kill'd the Priest, to whom courted his Daughter) should be one time or he succeeded; but that none but fugitive another the cause of his death, refused to Slaves undertook the Combat. The same marry her to him, but upon condition that Author affures a little after, that Diomedes be should overcome him at a Race: Pelops was the first Man who dedicated a Grove, accepted the Challenge, having first bribed a Temple and a Statue to Hippolytus, and sathe Coachman of Oenomous, that his Chariot crificed to him; and that the Inhabitants of might break in the middle of the Race. Trezen affirmed, that Hippolytus was not drawn Whereupon Ocnomaus being overcome, kill'd, with Hories, but the Gods had honour'd himself. leaving his Daughter Hippedamia him with a place among the Stars, and turnand his Kingdom to Peleps, who gave his ed him into a Constellation, called by the name to the whole Country of Peleponnessus.

There was also one Brifeis, the Daughter ter his Apotheofis. of Brisis, who was called Hippedamia, whom Mamemmen Stole away from Achilles.

That name was also given to the Wife of Peritheus, whom the Centaurs attempted to steal away, the day of her Wedding; but Hercules secured her, and killed

HIPPODROMUS, An Hippodrome, a place for Races, or exerciting Hories.

HIPPOLYTE, Queen of the Amazens and Thefeus's Wife, of whom he begot Hippolytus, thus called after his Mother's name: Thefeur afterwards married Phadra Minu's Daughter, who fell in leve with Hippolytus her Son-in law; but having refused to confent to her amoious desires, the accufed him to Theleus of having attempted her Chastity. Theleus gave credit to her scandalous report, and banish'd Hippolytus out of his presence, and defired Niptune to revenge his Crime. Whereupon Hippelytus, to avoid his Fathers wrath, fled away riding in a Chariot; but meeting a Sea-Monster on the shore, his Horses were so frighted by it, that they threw him down to the ground, and drew him among the Rocks, where he miferably perifhed.

Phedra, fenfibly mov'd with his lofs, and pressed by the remoise of her Conscience, discover'd the whole truth to her Husband, and kill'd herself our of despair; but after- don't agree about what it is. wards Esculapius touch'd with compassion, refor'd Hippolytus to life, and called him Vir- in the Forehead of a Colt newly foaled, hiss, as being a Man a second time.

came into Italy, where he founded a little At last, the Gods provoked with the gile Government at Aricis, and there dedicated name of a Carter. Ovid calls him Vinhius af-

> Euripides has written a Tragedy of Hippolytus, wherein he relates his History.

'Thefeus an Athenian Prince, who begot Hippolytus of one of the Amazons, and after her death married Phadra, Daughter to Minos King of Crete, abiented himself from Athens. Venus refolv'd the ruine of Hippolytus, because he was very chast, and incited Phadra to love him. Whereupon Phadra discover'd her love to her Nurse, who was alio her Confidant. The Nurse made many attempts upon Hippolytus, to perswade him to yield to Phadra's love, yet he continued inflexible. Wherefore out of thame and despair Phadra hang'd herself, having first tied some Letters to her Cloaths, wherein fhe charg'd Hippolytus with the Crime, the was herfelf only guilty of; Thefeus, too credulous, banish'd Hippolysus, and befought Neptune to destroy him, in performance of one of the three promifes, this God had pass'd his word to grant him. Neptune heard his request, and was the ruin of Hippolysus. But Diana appear'd to Thefeus, and discover'd to him the innocence of Hippolytus, ordaining withal, that he should be honoured like a God.

HIPPOMANES, A famous poyfon of the Ancients, which is one of the Compositions in amorous Philters. Authors

Pliny fays, that 'tis a black Flesh-Kernel which the Mare eats up as foon as she has Diedorus Siculus reports what is commonly foal'd. Servius and Columella report, that 'tis fit to be covered.

HIPPONA, A Divinity honour'd by Grooms in Stables, where her figure is kept. This Goddess was call'd upon on account of Hories:

HIPPOTAMUS, A River-Horfe, living principally in the Rivers Nile, Indus, and other great Rivers mentioned by Pliny This Creature has a Cloven-foot like an Ox the Back, the Mane and the Tail of a Horse, and neighs like him. His Teeth are like the Teeth of a Wild-Boar, but not quite fo fharp; the skin of his back when tis dry resists all kind of Arms. Scaurus in the time of his Office of Edile, brought the first alive

HISTRIO, A Stage-player or Buffoon. This word is only us'd to fignific the merry Actors in the old Comedies of Plautus and Terence; and they are fo called, fays Feffer, from Ifiris, because the first Farcers came from that Country. Plutarch tells us, that the Romans having fent for many Dancers out of Tulemy, there was one amongst them, who excell'd above others, call'd Hifter, who left his name to all those of his profession. And we may also add, that those whom the Romans call'd Ludios, were called Histriones by the Tufcans. HOMERUS, Honner. Velleius Parerculus reports, that Homer was the wittiest Man was before all Poets, Philosophers and Grek that ever was born, and that he deserved the Historians, and is the most ancient of pro-Name of Poet by excellency; that as he ne- fane Writers. However, he affirms that Mever had imitated any one that was before fer is more ancient than Homer himself. him, so after him none had been able to Tertullian has observ'd that the Pagam did match him; and in fine, that he and Archi- not deny, that the Books of Mofes were extant lochus were the only Men who had begun a many ages before the States and Cities of great work, and had carried it to its per- Greece, before their Temples and Gods, and fection. Homer has left us two incomparable also before the beginning of Greek Letters. Works, one of the Trojan War, intituled In fine, he fays, that Mojes liv'd five hundred Hieder; and the other of the long and dange- years before Homer's time; and the other rous Voyages of Ulyfer, under the Title of Prophets who came a long while after Mejer, Oaffer, each of them divided into four and were yet more ancient than all the Wife men, twenty Books. Alexander the Great order'd Law-givers and Philosophers of Greece. And them to be laid up in a Case, inlaid with by consequence the Holy Scripture is withprecious Stones, he got amongst the Spoils out comparison much older than Homer; and of Darius King of Persia. Yet tis uncertain as the Poely of Homer, who liv'd so many what he did, nor his Country, nor his ex- then spread abroad in the World. traction, nor the time wherein he lived ; Elian affures us, that Ptolomew Philopater King otherwise there would not be so much dif of Egypt, having built a Temple to Homer, he Country, or Chio, or Smyrna, or Cume, or pretended to the honour of his birth; and Thebes, or a hundred other Cities; nor whe- that Galaton drew the picture of Hamer with ther his Father is Masnis the River of Lydia, Torrent coming out of his Mouth, at which or fome Man of that Name, and his Mo- all Poets were drawing water.

the venemous iffue of a Mare, when the is ther Menulepis, or some Nymph of the Division des, and whether he lived in or fince the 'time of the Hero's. For 'tis neither known, whether he is more ancient than Hefod, under the name of Molefigena, or whether poor or blind, as is the common rumour.

The fame Lucian, in the description of the Island of the Bleffed, fays again : " When I had been two or three days in that Country, I accosted Homer, and defired him to tell me where he was born, because it was one of the greatest Questions amongst the Grammarians, he told me, they had so perplex'd him upon that fubject, that he himfelf knew nothing of the matter, but that he believed he was of Babylon; and there call'd Tigranes ; as Homer amongst the Greeks, being deliver'd to them for an Hostage. then ask'd him whether he made thefe Verses, which are disallowed and damn'd as none of his. He told me he did, which made me laugh at the impertinence of those that will needs deny them. I also enquit'd why he had begun his Poem with anger. and he faid it was done without delign, and that he did not write his Odyffer before his Illiads, as several held. As for his pretended blindness, I did not speak to him on it, because I plainly saw the contrary.

Tation, one of the most ancient Apologists of the Christian Religion, reports that Homer where Homer was born, and many Cities of ages before all the Philosophers, Historians Greece ascribe to themselves the honour of his and Greek Writers, was a pottern to them, birth. Lucian speaks thus on this account, so in the like manner Homer has follow'd the "Tis neither known what Hemer was, nor truths of the holy Scripture, as they were

pute, as there is on this subject; nor would fet up therein his Figure upon a Throne, the people doubt whether Colophon was his with the representation of all the Cities that

We learn from Plutwolf, that Alexander had ! always the Illiads of Homer under his Pillow Casket of an extraordinary value, that was found amongst the Spoils of Darius.

Horace has written in one of his Epiftles, an Encomium on the Illiads and Odylles of Homer. and declares at first, that neither Chrysippins nor Crantor, who excell'd among ft the Stoicks | Homer. He is represented by this figure ferand Academick Philosophers, and had fet ting on the top of Mount Olympus, holding a down the most perfect rules of Morals, had Scepter in his right hand, crown'd with a never fo well conceiv'd nor fo happily ex- Diadem, and an Eagle by him. There were plain'd the nature and the laws of honest and profitable, virtue and vice, as Homer himself representing the nine Muses, and his Illiads had done in his Illiads, Trojani belli scripto- and Odysser set in the rank of the nine Muses. 12m, &cc. Horace gives reason for what he Behind him are the Figures of Time and did, faying, that the Illiads represented wonderful well the passions, and the faral confequences of the foolish conduct of many Kings and Nations.

Cur its crediderim, nisi quid te detinet, audi.

Helena should be restor'd, and Paris oppos'd him, and facrificed his own Country to his brutish passion. In the Grecian Army Achilles and Agamemnon fell out; one follows the and the Odysses in a blue one. passion of his Love, and the other the tranbring them to an Agreement, but to no pur- and Odysses in the order we now have them. pole. On the contrary, the Odyffer represents in the person of Ulyfer, a perfect model of the Illiads of Homer, containing the whole Wisdom and Virtue, when after he had took History of the Old Testament to the Reign revenge of the unchaftness of Paris upon the of Saul; and divided also his work in four City of Troy, he runs for a long while to ma- and twenty Books, according to the four and ny dangers at Bea, overcomes Storms and twenty Greek Letters. Besides this Poem, he Advertities, and relifts the Inchantments of Mermaids and Girce, viz. Voluptuoufness, gedies in imitation of Euribides, and Lyri which stunisties those who give themselves as Verses fine as those of Pindar. over to it: On the other fide, the Noblemen of Ithaca, who pretended to marry Pemelope, thew us the effeminate life and the fahad done to Uhffer during his absence, and Gods. the infamous debaucheries they had committed in his Palace.

had so great honours perform'd to them as him, and Medals stampt with his Effigies, called after that name, because Alexander honour, where they offer'd him Sacrifices. And a Sect of Christians, call'd Carpocratians, ador'd and burnt Frankincense to Homer's tells us.

We have still many ancient Monuments of the divine honours that were perform'd with his Dagger, and laid it up in a little to this great Poet, and amongst others a very ancient Marble, which was found in the Territory of Terrentium, M. Cuper tells us. that Archelous of Priene, who made that work, as it appears by the Infcription thereof, endeavoured to express thereby the Apotheofis of eleven Images of Women round about Homer, Harmony, fetting a Crown on his head. Not far off is an Altar, and near it on one tide is represented the Fable, and on the other the History; and further off are fer in order Poesie, Tragedy, Comedy, Vertue, Memory, Faith and Wisdom.

The Singers, who formerly fung the Po-In the City of Troy, Antenor pretended that ems of Homer, were dress'd in red cloaths when they fung the Illiads, and in blue Cloaths when they fung the Odylles, and fome wrapp'd up the Illiads in a red Parchment.

Tully, 1. 3. de Orat. fays, that Pifistratus Tysports of his Anger: Nefter endeavours to rant of Athens, was the first who set the Illiads

> Apollinarius wrote a Poem in imitation of wrote Comedies like those of Menander. Tra-

Pythagoras being come down into Hell, faw the Soul of Hesiad tied with chains to a Brass Pillar, and that of Homer hung to a Tree, tal end of voluptuous Men; for at last they both expos'd to the biting of Serpents, in walhed with their own blood the wrong they punishment of what they had writ of the

Strabe tells us, that of all the editions of Homer, that which is call'd e Narthecio is the Of all the great Men of Antiquity, none | most correct and most esteem'd, being the work of Califthenes and Anaxarchia. Ariflothe Homer: For, besides the Statues erested to gave this Edition to Alexander, and it was they erected also Temples and Altars to his kept it in the rich and precious Box of Darius:

HONOR, Honour, a Divinity always represented with Vertue; wherefore no man Image, in the like manner as they did to could get into the Temple of Honour, but the Images of our Lord and St Paul, as St by passing first through the Temple of Ver-Auflin and St John Damascen, and the Book tue, whereby the Ancients represented to ascrib'd to the Emperor Charles the Great us that Honour proceeds from Vertue; and to that purpose M. Marcellus built two square the other to Honour, because true Honour Vegetine tells us why there are four Vigilia in arifes from folid Vertue. These two Divi- the night, and why each Watch was of three nities are represented on the Medals of Vitellius, by two engraven figures; one of them stands on the right side half naked, holding an Half-pike with one hand, and a Horn of Plenty with the other, and a Helmet under her right foor: the other figure is on the left fide, and has a Helmet on, holding a Scepter with her right hand, and a Dart with the left, treading with its right foot upon a Tortoile, with this Inscription, Hones & Virtue. S.

HOR E, The Hours. Poets tell us. that they are the Daughters of Jupiter and Themis ; and Homer calls them the Door-keepers of Heaven; that's the Fable, the Truth is.

The Hours that divide the Day in four and twenty parts, were during five hundred years unknown to the Romans. For till the first Punick War, they reckon'd the day by the rifing and fetting of the Sun; then they added Noon; and in fine, they found out the division of the civil day into four and twenty hours.

However, there are two kinds of hours; for some are equal, and others unequal. Equal hours are those that are always in the same state, as the hours we make use of, each of them making the twenty fourth part nox, are here fet down according to their of the natural day. They are to the number order. The first hour of the day was from of four and twenty, whereof twelve are for fix to feven; the fecond, from feven to eight; the day, and twelve for the night. Unequal the third, called Terns, happen'd at nines hours are longer in Summer, and shorter in Clock. And by these words Inquintem exten-Winter, in regard to the day; or on the contrary as to the night. When I speak of unequal hours, one must not think that one ing; Sexts befel always at noon; the feventh of these hours are longer than the other; hour, was from noon to one a Clock; the but only in respect to the several Seasons, eighth, from one to two; the ninth, was those of the Summer being longer than from two to three ; and the tenth, was from those of the Winter, in regard to the day; there to four; and the rest was extended and as for the night, those of the Winter are to the first Watch of the Night, which be longer than those of the Summer. And di- gan at five and fix of the Clock in the Even viding this way the artificial day in twelve ing inclusively. equal parts, the fixth hour will fall at noon. and the third will be the middle of the fore- the like manner as those of the day; at the going time, from the rifing of the Sun to fixth hour was mid-night. noon; as the ninth hour is the middle of the following time, from noon to Sun-fetting; of the night in other undetermin'd terms and thus of the others.

to four, viz. Prima, Tertia, Sexta, Nena. Prima to dark night, Vifper or Vefpera, from the began at fix a Clock, Tertis at nine, Sexes at Evening-star. The beginning of the night twelve, and Nona at three of the Clock in the was called Crepusculum, after that they lighted Afternoon. Wherefore the Canonical hours the Lamps, and that time was called Prime were called Prima, Tertia, Sexta, Nona, us'd fax, Prima lumina; when they went to bed, by the Church to honour the facred Myste- Concubitum, or Concubia nex; the time of the ries perform'd at these Hours.

hours of the night into four Warches, call'd Galliemium, the Cocks crowing; then Continue Vigilia, Lasin word taken from Military Dif- um, when the Cock had done crowing: Ass

Templer join'd together, one to Vertue and | cipline, wherefore Pliny salls them Gottreafer, hours. 'It was not possible, fays he, that a Soldier should keep Centry a whole night, wherefore it was divided into four Vigilia. and at each of these Kigile they reliev'd the Centries, and fet fresh ones in their

Now we must consider how the Roman reckon'd their hours. Prime began at fix a Clock, and comprehended three hours. And if one ask'd how they recken'd the feventh and the eighth hours; we answer that they were distinguish'd amongst themselves, and had their peculiar name, viz. prima, fecunda, tertia, quarta, quinta, fexta, feptima, attava. nons, decima, as Martial tells us.

Prima Salutantes, atque altera continet bera. Exercet rancos tertia causidicos: In quintam varsos extendit Roma labores. Sexta quies lassis, septima finis erit : Sufficit in nonam nitidis octava palastris. Imperat extructos frangere nona toros : Hara Libellorum decima eft, Eupheme, mearum, Temperat ambrofias chem tua cura dapes.

The twelve hours of the day in the Equidit, was comprehended the fourth and the fifth hour, viz. eleven a Clock in the morn

The hours of the night were reckon'd in

The Romans explain'd also the several time For when the Sun was fetting, they call The Romans divided the hours of the day in that time Solis occasius; from the Sun-fetting first fleep, Nox intempestia, or silentium. The Likewise, the Romans divided the twelve middle of the night was called Media nox; thes and at last Awers, and Solis ortus.

many of this name.

Vulcan.

of Venulian a Town in Apulia, a Lyrick Poet, either Clocks or Sun-Dials. Anaximenes Miliand intimate Friend of Macenas, a great Lo- fius, Anaximander's Scholar, was the first Inver of Learned Men. He has left us four venter of Sun-Dials amongst the Greeks. Pli-Books of admirable Odes, wherefore the Ro- by fays, that Thales shew'd the use thereof to mans have no occasion to envy the Greeks the Lacedemonians. The Greeks called them Pindar; besides a Book of Epods, two Satyrs, outobipen, and the Romans Solaria. But how and several Epistles, with a learned Treatise exact so ever these Dials were, yet in the of the Art of Poetry, which have made him | night or in cloudy weather they were of no famous to posterity. He died the 57th year | use. Wherefore Scipio Nasica, the Colleague of his age, and 746 after the foundation of of Lanaius, to prevent this inconveniency. Rome.

with three Brothers call'd Curiatii, of the to steal upon the light. City of Alba, the Inhabitants whereof pre- Pierius in the fixth Book of his Hieroglytended to the Soveraign Power. Two of the phicks fays, that the invention of the Cleply-Horace's lost their Lives in the fight; but the | drs, was found in the Town of Achants, bethird who remain'd alive, himfelf kill'd the | yond the River Nile, where three hundred three Guristii, and thus the Inhabitants of and fixty Priests were every day pouring water Alba became Subjects to the Romans. Horace out of the Nile into a Vessel, out of which came victorious to Rome, and was receiv'd they let the water drop by little and little with the Acclamations of the people; but to measure the hours of the day. he blasted his Victory by the death of his And tho' the word Horologium commonly Sifter, who was to marry one of the Curiatii, fignifies Clocks that go by Weights, and have not being able to bear the reproachful words Wheels, and a Ballance with a Bell; yet of an angry Maid for the death of her those that are made with Wheels, and fit to

Girls and Boys, where the Boy leads the shews the hour by the shadow of a Needle Dance with Masculine and Warlike Postures, elevated upon different surfaces, falling upand the Girl followed him with foft and mo- on lines dispos'd in order by Gnonomicks, dest steps, to represent an Harmony of two may be called also by the name of Horole-Vertues, Power and Temperance.

HOROLOGIUM, A Clock, an En- with Wheels and Bells. gine that moves of it felf, or has the principle of its motion in it felf, used to measure Dials. Time, and shew the hours of the day and

At first the Romans had no certain Rule for the time of their Employments, they meafur'd it only by the Course of the Sun. Pliny reports, that in the Laws of the twelve Tables, that were collected in the Year 301, there was nothing mention'd concerning vated Needle in the middle. time, but only the rifing and the fetting of the Sun, and Noon.

that came Diluculum the dawning of the day; Temple of Quirinu, but it did not preve right. Thirty years afterwards, the Conful HORATIUS, Harace, There were M. Valerius Meffela, as Varre relates, after the taking of Catana in Sicily in the Year 477. HORACE, called COCLES, or during the first Punick War, brought from one ey'd. A Roman Captain, who fustain'd thence to Rome a Dial, which he fasten'd to the efforts of the Enemy, attempting by a Pillar near the Refre; but the Lines thereforce of Arms to restore King Tarquinius in- of not being drawn according to the degrees to Rome, till the Sublician Bridge was broke, of the latitude of the pole, it did not prove and then cast himself into the Tiber, and thus exact, yet they made use of it during the escap'd the Enemies fury. The Conful Pub- space of eleven years, when Marrius Philippus, licels erected him a Statue in the Temple of Censor with L. Paulse, set up another more

HORACE, Sirnamed Flacews. Native | The Greeks were also a long time without found out the Clepsydra or Water-Clock, There were also three Brothers of that | and To Executive To value i. e. to fteal Water. name, who fought for the Roman Liberty, because it pass'd so insensibly, that it seem'd carry about, called Watches, and those cal-HORMUS, A kind of Dance of led Sciotherick Dials, or Sun-Dials, which gia, as well as the Clepfydra's, and Clocks

Vitavoise speaks of many kinds of Sun-

The Hemicyclus or the half Circle, is a Dial hewn into a fquare, and cut to incline like the Equinox ; Berefus a Chaldean was the inventer thereof.

The Hemisphere Dial was found out by Arifarchus Samius. The Dials call'd Scaphia, were hewn in a round Figure, having an ele-

The Discus of Aristarchus was an horizontal Dial, the fides whereof were fomewhat rais'd, Papyrius Curfor fet up a Sun Dial at the to prevent the inconveniency, found in the pendicularly elevated upon the Horizon; for brais balls, into a Baion of the same Metal, their fides thus raisd up, keep the shadow from extending it felf too far off.

The Spider invented by Eudoxus, is the fame as the Anaphoric Herelogium. Some fay that Apellonias has found out the Plintbus or Dial-post, which was fet in the Circus Flaminius. Scopas Syracufanus made the Dial called mosastopenera, used for places mentioned in History. Parmenion was the inventor of the univerfal Dial, fit for all Climats. Theodofius and Andreas Patrocles invented the Pelecynon, which is a Dial made in the figure of a Harchet, where the opposite lines. that flew the Constellations and the Months are chose towards the middle, and stretched towards the fides, which make the form of a Harchet with two edges. Dionysiderus found the Cone; Apollonius, the Quiver, which are at a certain moment, to predict Men's forvertical Dials, opposite to the East and West, | tune. and being broad and obliquely fet, repre-

There were yet many other kinds of Sun-Dials invented, as the Gonarcus, Engonatus, Antiboreus. These are not mentioned, neither in Greek nor Lann Authors The Gonarcus and Engonatus feem deriv'd from the Greek, and fignifie Dials made upon feveral furfaces, fome whereof being horizontal, others vertical, and fome others oblique, make many Angles; wheretore these angular Dials are Tally has made his Encomium in his Works. called by the word you, i.e. Angle or Knee. The Antiboreus is an Equinoxial Dial, turn'd towards the North.

fent a Quiver.

An Hour-Glass, us'd to measure time by the running of fand, is made with two small Glaffes join'd together by the ends; one of them is full of very small fand, which runs through a little hole of a thin place of Brass, which is at the joining of both Glasses.

Clepsidre or Water-Clocks, were commonly us'd by the Ancients in Winter, and were of feveral kinds, as we may fee in Vitruvius. They had this common, that the Water did drop infenfibly through a little hole from one Vessel into another, wherein raising by little and little, it rais'd up a piece of Cork, which shew'd the hours several ways.

The Ancients had still authird kind of Clock, called Clocks for the Night, invented by Plate. It was a Glock which gave to understand by hearing, what the eyes were not able to perceive in the dark of the night; and this Engine was composed of many

Plutes. Eginard, Secretary to Charles the Great fpeaks of a Clock made after the like manner, which was fent to this Emperor by the King of Persia, and tells us that it was a Clep- his Beams upon the Glasses, made the Frust

Day their Needle upright and per- fries, which dropping from time to time ftruck the hours.

The Clocks with Wheels and friking were unknown to the Romans. Crefibius the Son of a Barber of Alexandria, gave occasion. to the finding out of striking Clocks. The common opinion is, that one Pacifical Arch-Deacon of Verone was the inventer thereof.

HOROSCOPUS, the Horoscope, the Degree of the Afcendant, or the Star afcende ing above the horizon, at the moment you intend to predict any thing, as what weather it will be, what may be the fortune of a Man. who is coming into the World. They give also the name of Horoscope to the figure containing the twelve Houses, wherein the observe the disposition of Heaven and Stars

HORTA, otherwise called ANGE RONA and STIMULA. A Divink ty of the Ancients, who inclined Men to well doing : Plutarch fays, that her Temple was always open.

HORTENSIUS called QUIN T. U.S., was a famous Roman Orator, endow'd with an admirable Eloquence, and very fingular and graceful way of speaking. He was rais'd to the High-Priest's dignity. His Daughter called after his name Hortenfa, was also very eloquent, and pleaded the cause of the Roman Matrons with such force of Eloquence, that half of the Tax. that the Trium viri had laid upon them, was remitted.

HORTUS, A. Garden. The Roman under the name of a Garden, did not only mean a piece of Ground planted with Trees and Flowers, but also Country Houses, with an extent of Ground divided into Gardens, Parks, Meadows and Vineyards. In this fense ancient Writers speak of the fine Gardens of Cafar, Saluft and Mecenas, which were built in and out of Rome, with great Magnificence, in regard to both Structure and Gardens.

The Gardens of the Romans were principally adorn'd with feveral Walks, Trees, Beds of Flowers, Orchards, Water-works, and other Ornaments.

They had also other Gardens, called Por fler, hung up and carried upon Wheels, which were planted with Fruit-trees, Vines, Melons, and Cucumbers; and they remove them from one place to another, according to the weather. Place Gardens were covered with Jung-Glaffes, and the Sun darting of Martial, 1. 8. Ep. 4.

Pallida ne Cilicum timeant pemaria brumam ; Merfeat & tenerum fortior aura nemus : Hibernis obiecta notis foecularia puros Admittunt foles & fine fece diem.

compares the Vines that Entellus kept in Win- Sea afforded them their Food. bernis diebus intra specularium, &cc.

They raised likewise Gardens on the top their Mysteries. Garden was of a square figure, and born up Course. with Pillars rais'd one upon another, and onid Birumen taken out of a Lake, the pro- the Sun, is the cause of all Productions. perty whereof was to unite fo strongly the At the left foot of Harpecrates there are rethe Egyptians, M. Triftan mistakes, when he favs, that his Mother made him immortal by fuckling him: and that for this reason they the other is covered with darkness. were used in the pomp of Ilis, to carry a HOSTIA. A Victim facrificed to a Libations.

Hours, which were called after his Name fome part of the World.

found out. This conformity is yet evi- Victory, to give them thanks. denc'd, by the feveral lymbols of these Di-

eipen naturally, as we learn by this Epigram | vinities. For they dedicate the thing Plant to both of them, and they are sepresented with the same Animals and the same Attendance. Sometimes the Sun is express'd by the figure of a Soldier, because he was call'd by that name in the Mysteries, and those who were initiated were also called by that very name: And the Sun and the Moon, in-We may read also upon this subject, the stead of riding in a Chariot like other Gods, 68th Epigram of the same Book, where he had a Ship, because Men fancied that the

or, as green and full of Grapes as in Au- Harpocrates carried over his head Fruit enmmn. with the Apple-trees that Alcinous King | compass'd with some open leaves, like leaves of the Pheaces, prefero'd by the art of Ifing- of Cliver, because it was the custom to Glass. Pliny reports, that Tiberius kept also crown therewith the Egyptian Divinities ; behis Fruits and Cucumbers by the same Art : sides that Herb opens of itself at Sun-rising, Nulle quippe die contigit ei, pensiles corum hortes and shuts of itself at Sun-fetting. This God promoventibus in foles rotis olitoribus. rurfusque hi- holds a Finger upon his Mouth, to shew the filence religiously observed by the Pagans in

of their Houses, in imitation of the Gardens The Wings of Harpurates are another Arof Babylon, built by a King of Babylon and Sy- gument, to prove that he is the Sun; for ris called Cyrus, to please the humour of a this Star is commonly represented with Pollan Courtezan, whom he loved. This Wings, to shew the swiftness of his

The figure of Harpocrates is armed with a founded upon beams of stone fixteen foot Quiver, which agrees with the Sun, darting long, and fix foot broad, whereupon was Beams upon the Earth like so many Arrows. laid the first Bed made with Reeds, joined This Effigies carries on its arm a small Vessel, and cemented together with a kind of a li- to flew that humidity, join'd to the hear of parts cemented therewith, that it was impos- presentations of Geese, because the natural fible to separate one from another. There heat of these Creatures represents the heat of was another Pavement of Brick laid upon the Sun, and he carries a Maffy Club twiffed the first; and in fine, a third of Tiles and about with a Serpent, because this Animal is Lead; and upon these Beds they laid the in a singular manner dedicated to the Sun. At his right foot is the figure of a Hare, HORUS. The Son of 1/is, in whose which was also consecrated to the Sun, bename the Sun was ador'd by the Egyptians, cause of his fecundity and swiftness. 'Tis Some Writers report, that he was king of reported, that Hares never that their eyes Affria and a great Philosopher, who divided night nor day, which is an emblem of the the Seasons of the Year, the Days and the Sun, which never ceases to afford light to

The Ancients were used to ascribe a Ra-Some are of opinion that Harpurates is al- ven and a Swan to the Sun, to represent his so the same Divinity with the Sun and Horus; light by the whiteness of the Swan, and and this conformity appears by his Birth, his darkness by the black feathers of the Rafeeing he is the Son of Ifit, famous among ven. And this Harpotrates was covered on one fide, and naked on the other, because when the Sun gives light to our Hemisphere.

small golden Vessel full of Milk, to make Deity. The Aruspicina of the Antients was performed by looking into the Intrails of the 'Tis true that Mercury became immortal, Victims. The word Hoffis comes ab bestibus. because Ture suck!'d him; but Diodorus Sieu- because they sacrificed Victims, either before he affirms only, that If render'd her Son they engag'd the Enemy, to beg the favour immortal, by vertue of an Unguent the had of the Gods; or after they had obtain'd the of these words Heftis and Villims. Isiderus 1. 6. c. 18. fays, that the Animal that the Emperor or the General of the Army facri- Petteribus inbians Spirantia consulit enta. 1.4; ficed before he engag'd the Enemy, to render the Gods favourable to him, was properly called Hoftis, deriving that word from Hoftis. Enemy, and from Hoftire, to ftrike the Enemy. Hofie apud veteres dicebantur Sacrificia que fiebant antequam ad hoftem pergerent ; vittime vero facrificia que post vittoriam devittis boflibus immelabantur. And to confirm this opinion, he brings in the Authority of Feffus, who favs that Hofiis ditta ef ab hofiire to ftrike, Cancares, Prodiga, Piaculares, Ambegna, Haas if by that Holis, they had begg'd the fa- vige, Haruge Optata, Maxima, Medialis. your of the Gods, to beat and overcome the

The word Victim comes from the Sacrifice offered by the Emperor to the Gods, after a Victory obtained over the Enemy, à victis & profligatis boftibus. Ovid gives us die habentur puri, ab eo appellarsur in Antiami this Etymology in the first Book of his facris, tum quod ad facrificium idmei dicuntur. Pafti v. 335.

Victima que cecidit dextra victrice vocatur; Hofibus à wichis, Hoftia nomen habet.

indifferently facrificed by every Prieft, but Perca, a Sow offered in facrifice to Geres by that the Victim was only facrificed by the way of expiation before the Harvest, by where he exhorts Macenas to perform his This is confirm'd by Aulus Gellius, Porca etim vow for the recovery of his health, and pracidanca appellata, quam piaculi gratia ann offer Victims, while on his part he will fa- fruges nevas feri ceptas immelari Cercri mos fuit. crifice a Lamb.

Reddere victimas, Edemque votivam memento; Nos humilem feriemus agnam.

ed, and promiscuously taken one for another pura non est. by ancient Writers.

Gods: fome to know their will by looking commonly facrificed, having then two into the Intrails and Inwards of the Sacri- teeth higher than the fix others. Wherefore fices; in other Sacrifices, they contented Bidentes is the fame thing as Biennes, and is themselves to offer the life of the Victim, used not only for Sheep, but also for Hop wherefore these Sacrifices were called anima- and Oxen; with this restriction, that Bidente les Hoftie. As we learn of Trebatius, l. r. de alone is to be understood only of Sheep; Relig. apud Macreb. 1. 3. c. 25. Hostiarum duo and when 'tis applied to signifie other Amgenera fuife docet, alterum in que voluntas Dei mals, the Substantive is added to it, & per exts disquirebatur, alterum que sola anims we may observe by what Pomponius says: Des Sacrabatur, unde & animales Hostias voca- Mart, tibi voves fatturum fi unquam redierit, bi bant Arufpices.

Writers give two different fignifications | Virgil speaks of these Sacrifices in his Pecudumque reclusis And the same Virgil, 1. 5. v. 483.

Hanc tibi Eryx meliorem animam pro morte Daretu.

The Ancients had many kinds of Hofia: called Hoftie pure, Precidence, Bidentes, Injuga, Eximia, Succidanca, Ambarvales, Amburbiale HOSTIÆ PURÆ, Were Lambs and Pigs ten days old, as Festus reports, l. t,

Agnus dicitur à graco d'yvos qued significat Caftum, eo quod fit hoftia pura & immolationi apta : And Varro, 1. 11. De Re Ruit. Porci à partu desim HOSTIÆ PRÆCIDANEÆ: Thus called from pre and cedo, i.e. to facrifice or kill before, because they were factficed the eve of the folemn Feast, as Aule Gellius relates ; Pracidanea que ante facrificis Aulus Gellius tells us, that Hoftie might be Solemnia pridie mattabatur : And Precidents vanquisher of the Enemy. Isadorus reports those who had not exactly perform'd the Fualso I. s. c. 13. that the Victim was offered nerals of a deceased person of their Family. for great Sacrifices, and taken out of the or purified the House where some body was great Cattle; but Hoftia was facrificed for the dead, according to the usual custom. As least, and taken out of a Herd of Sheep. To Festus assures, Porca etiam pracidanea quam inthis custom Horace alludes, Ode 17. 1. 2. molare foliti antequam novam frugem inciderant.

alitur eam rem quam oportuerat, procuraverant. Varro tells us, in the Book of the Life of the Roman People, that no Family was purfied but by offering of that facrifice, which the Heir was oblig'd to offer to Tellus and What difference soever might be between Geres, Qu'ad humatus non sit, heredi porca pracidathese two words, they were often confound- nea suscipienda Telluri & Cereri, aliter familia fi qui familiam funestam aus non purgaverant, an

HOSTIA BIDENS, A Sacrifice Two kinds of Hoftie were offered to the of two Years old, at which age they were denti verre. H0 those that were never under the yoke, nor thereof for the Priefts. ramed. Virgil calls them,

Et intaffå totidem cervice juvence.

HOSTIÆ EXIMIÆ, The finest Victims of a Herd, separated from the rest, and appointed for the Sacrifice, as Donatus fays : Eximia pecora dicuntur que à grege excepta funt ut uberius pascantur, sed proprie eximii funt perci majores qui ad facrificandum excepti liberius pafcantur. Etenim boves qui ad hec eletts funt egregii vel eximii dicuntur, & over heta. As the Sacrifices. Virgil observes, Mattant lettas de more bidentes. Virg. 4. Æneid. v. 57.

And in another place : Quatuor eximios prafanti corpore tauros. 4. Georg. v. 537-

HOSTIÆ SUCCIDANEÆ, of good Omen, or some effential ceremony was omitted. Paulus Emilius preparing himlast the one and twentieth promis'd him the the victory obtain'd by one of the Haratti. Victory, provided he should only stand in a posture of defence: Si primis hossiis litarum | Bestieged Numantia; but having despised the um erat, alia post costim dutta hostia cadeban- Augurs, he went one day out of his Camp, tur : que quasi prioribut jam cesti luendi piaculi which the Inhabitants of Numantie taking adgratia subdebantur & succidebantur, ob id Succi- vantage of, made a fally out of the Town, round about their Fields, in a procession back to Numantia with his hands tied behind made for the preservation of the Fruits of him. the Earth : Ambarwalis hoftia, fays Festus, est que rei divine caula circum arva ducitur ab iis miclus, beloved of Apollo ; but this God being qui pro frugibus faciunt.

City of Rome, fays the fame Fiftus.

HOSTIÆ CANEARES, CAVIARES, Victims offer'd in Sacri- which was called after his name Hyacinthus. fice every fifth Year, for the College of the HYADES, The Daughters of Allas and the Temple called Regia.

were fo called, because they were wholly fore Virgil calls them,

HOSTIÆ INJUGES, Were confumed by Fire, and nothing remain'd

HOSTIÆ PIACULARES; Victims offered to make expiation for a Crime, or some ill Action.

HOSTIÆ AMBEGNÆ, or A M B I E G N Æ, Cows that had calved two Heifers, or Sheep that had brought forth two Lambs at one Litter, offer'd in Sacrifice with their young ones to June.

HOSTIÆ HARVIGÆ, or HA-RUGÆ, Victims offered to predict future events, by looking into the Entrails of HOSTIÆ MEDIALIS; Black Victims offered at Noon time.

HOSTILIUS TULLUS, The Son of Tullus Hoftilius, Native of the City of Medulia, a Colony of the Sabins, who came ro fettle themselves at Rome, after Romulus had took Medulis. He married Herfilis, who made peace hetwixt the Ramans and the Cures. Of this Marriage came Hoftilins, who was thus called from the Verb Succede, or rather | King of the Romans after Numa. The people of sub cado, i. e. to kill afterwards, Victims preferr'd him to the Sons of Numa, and fer successively facrificed after others, i. c. a re- him upon the Throne, tho' he was but Naiteration of Sacrifice, when the first was not ma's Son-in-law. He built Mount Calianus, and made war with the Inhabitants of Alba, and it was brought to an end by the famous fell to engage Perfer King of Macedonia, fa Combat of the three Horace's on the Roman crificed twenty Bulls one after another to lide, and three Curistii on those of Alba, Hercules, before he got a lucky Victim; at which remain'd subject to the Romans, by HOSTILIUS MANCINUS, dame nominate. Aul. Gd. 1. 4. C. 6.

A MB A R V A LES HOSTIE, him to accept of a shameful peace, which posses'd themselves of his Camp, and forc'd Victims sperificed after they had led them the Romans refus'd to ratify; and fent him

HYACINTHUS, The Son of Aat play with him at Coits, Zephyrus jealous of AMBURBIALES HOSTIÆ, their Love bore away the Coit, and there-Victims led round about the limits of the with broke his head, whereupon he died. Apollo to comfort himself for his loss, out of or his Blood that was fpilt produc'd a Flower, Pontiffs, viz. they offer'd the part of the Ethra, who nurs'd and brought up Bacchas, Tail called Caviar. It feems that this Sacri- and in reward thereof, were transported infice is the same, or at least very like that to Heaven, and turned into seven Stars, which was offer'd in the Month of October to made famous by the Poets. These Stars Mers, in the Field called by his name, where bring rainy weather, and are placed in the a Horses Tail was cut off, and carried into head of the Constellation Taurus. At their rifing, if the Sun or Moon meet opposite HOSTIÆ PRODICIÆ, They to them, they certainly bring rain Where-again as foon as they were cut off. Hercules Epode, which was the third Stanza. overcame this Monster in the Lake of Lerns. of her Heads, he applied fire to the place as Pagans. he cut them off.

Pluviasque Hyadas.

how to make Water-Conduits, and Water- esteemed by the Ancients the Father of the works, and for other uses. Heren describes Sun and the Moon, he is often taken for the many Water-Engines, called Hydraulica Ma- Sun by the Poets. china. The word Hydraulicus fignifies found- HYPERMNESTRA, One of the ing water, because wifen Organs were first fifty Daughters of Danaus King of Egypt, the found out, Bellows were not yet in use, only one of all, who the first Weddingwherefore they made use of falling waters, night spared the Life of Lyncaus her Huse to get wind into the Organs and to make band; for all her other Sifters murther'd them found. Athenaus fays, that Ctefiblus was their Husbands, the Brothers of Lyncaus, and the inventer of this Engine, or at least brought | Sons to Agyptus, Danaus's Brother. it to perfection; for the invention thereof HYPOCAUSTUM, A Stove unis due to Plate, who found out the Noctur- der ground, used to warm the Baths both of nal Clock or Clepsydra, that caus'd Flutes to the ancient Greeks and Romans. play, and give notice of the time of the

HYDROMANTIA, A Southfaying performed by way of water, wherein the Images of the Gods were feen. Varro tells us that this kind of divination was found out by Perfes, and that Numa Pompilius, and after him Pythagoras the Philosopher made use of it, and that thereby Spirits are also conjur'd up 1, of the Alphabet, was accounted by the by spilling blood, and this performance was Ancients a numeral Letter, fignifying one called by the Greek Necromantia. These kinds hundred. of South-fayings were rigorously forbid by HYLAS, The Son of Theodomus, beloved of Hercules for his Beauty. Being fallen Plautu's Aularium, being refolv'd to hang by misfortune into a Fountain where he was himfelf, fays that he should make a long Letdrawing water, he was drowned; where- ter of his Body. Lipsius explains it thus, and upon Poets feigned that Hylas was ravished this explanation seems more likely than that by the Nymphs enamoured with his beauty. of Lambinus, who understands of it all kind Hercules run through all Mysia to seek for him. of great Letters. The People of Prusa instituted a Feast to him, Lipsus says expresly, that the I was double. at which they ran through the Forest and to make it long as the other Vowels; and 'tis. Mountains, crying Hylas, Hylas.

over Marriages. This God was called upon Inscription in the time of Augustus. in the Wedding-Songs. Poets call him fair Hymenaus za's, one whereof was call'd Strophe, which they fung walking from the East to the West: the other was named Antifirophe, walking on HYDRA. A fabulous Monster, repre- the contrary from the West to the East; and fented by Poets with many Heads, growing then standing before the Altar they sung the

The Greek Poets have written many and flew her; and to prevent the growing Hymns, in praise of the false Gods of the HYPERION, The Son of Heaven. HYDRAULIS, A Science teaching and Brother to Saturn, and one of the Titale.

The third Vowel, and the ninth Letter

This Letter was the only Vowel that was the Laws of all Nations, even before the not mark'd over with the stroke of a Pen, to coming of our Lord. However, by this shew that it was long, as Scaurus himself testimeans. Numa learned the Mysteries that he sies. Notwithstanding, to denote its quantiinstituted; and because he used water to ty, it was drawn in length a Letter higger perform his Hydromantia, it was faid that he than the rest. PIfo, VIvus, ÆdIlis. Wheremarried the Nymph Egeria, as Varro tells fore of all the Letters, the I was called long by Senecdoche.

the opinion of the most Learned, tho' many HYMEN or HYMEN ÆUS, A Instances to the contrary might be found, perfabulous Divinity of the Pagans, prefiding haps out of corruption, as Divil Augusti in an

Wherefore as the I by its length only. was equivolent to a real ii, i. e. that they HYMNUS, A Hymn or Ode, fung should be mark'd in the Discourse, as Manuin honour of Divinities. These Hymns were by instead of Manubis; Dir Manibus instead of commonly compos'd of three kinds of Stan. Dits. Manibus. And from thence come the contractions that are common and allowed, fide at all beginnings, and that the new to Poets. Di instead of Dij; urbem Patavi Year began at this Month; or because Janus instead of Patavij.

fame. And this is testified by Priscian . Year to come. when he fays, that this was the only way to express the I long. , This pronunci- this Month was under the protection of Juno, ation of ei was become so common amongst like other first days of the Months, yet this them. that they us'd it even in short words, was in a peculiar manner consecrated to Jawhich shews that it was not so much perhaps | nus, to whom they offered that day a Cake; to note its quantity, as a certain pronuncia- made of new Meal, called Janualis, and of tion more full and more pleasing. Where- new Salt. The Frankincence and Wine prefore in old Books we find still Omneis, not | fented to him were also new. only instead of Omnes in the plural number, but also instead of Omnis in the singular.

Wherefore Victorinus tells us, that no way of Writing was controvers'd by the Ancients but this. Lucilus and Varro made their working, they should be diligent and laboei in the plural number.

However, Quintilian finds fault with this way of writing, because, says he, 'tis super- Postes mirabar, cur non sine litibus effet fluous, and too troublesome to those who begin to write. From whence we may conclude that the pronunciation was alter'd. and that there was no difference then be- Quilque fuas artes ob idem delibat agendo. tween the ei and the i.

This Letter I is also a Consonant: and then its Character is lengthned downwards thus J.

did at the Orgia or Feafts of Bacchus.

yond the Tiber, where Janus fettl'd himfelf Temple. and built a Fortress. There Numa plac'd Wine's Country.

JANUARIUS, January. This Month the Reman: had established this God to pre- for the fafety of the Emperor.

being represented with two Faces, to shew But the Ancients noted also the quantity by that his singular prudence, which consiof this Letter by the Dipthong ei, as Villeri- dered both the time past and the time to mus fays, and it was the same thing to write come, they thought fit to dedicate a Month Divl or Dives, the I long, and the es having to him, which was at the end of the Year the same pronunciation, or very like the that was past, and at the beginning of the

And though the Calends or the first day of

This day all Workmen began their works. every one according to his Art and Trade. and the Scholars did the like; being perswaded, that having thus begun the Year by endeavours to diffinguish it, fetting a Rule rious all the rest of that Year: As we learns to write the i alone in the fingular, and the of Ovid in the first Book of his Fasti, v. 165.

> Prima dies. Caufam percipe, Janus ait. Tempora commissi nascensia rebus agendis. Totus ab auspicio ne foret annus iners. Nec plus quam folitum testificatur opus.

The Confuls appointed for that Year, took: possession on that day of their Office, and IACCHUS, One of Bacchus's names, began the functions thereof, especially since from the Syriack word Janko or Jacco, i. e. the Emperors, and some time before, during puer lastens; and thus Batchus was often re- the Confulship of Quintus Fulvius Nobilior, and presented. And these words of Virgil, My- Titus Annius Luscus, in the Year of the founflica Vannus Jacchi, may be understood of dation of Rome DCI: Wherefore they went: Bacchus's Cradle. Some Writers derive this up to the Capitol, attended by a great crowd: word from the Greek id xu, i. e. to make a of People, all dreffed with new Cloaths, and noise by crying, to how, as the Bacebantes there facrificed to Jupiter Capitelinus two white Bulls, that never were under the Yoke, and: JANICULUM, A Mountain be- spread perfumes and sweet smells in his

The Priefts called Flamines, together with his Tomb, and tince Statius the Poet. The the Confuls, made vows, while the Sacrifice Country of Latium, where Janus was honour- was performing, for the profperity of the Emed, and where Janiculum was built, which pire, and the farety of the Emperors, having afterwards made a part of Rome, was called first taken the Oath of Allegiance, and ratiby the Ancients OEnotria tellue, i. e. the fied all that they had done during the foregoing Year.

Likewise the other Migistrates and the was not fet down in the old Calendar of Ro- People made the fame Vows, and took the mulus, but was brought in by Numa, who Oath. And Tacitus tells us in the fixteenth plac'd it at the Winter-Solftice, in the room | Book of his Annals, that Trafte was impeachwhere Marr was before, whom Romulus plac'd ed, of having purposely absented himself at the Vernal Equinox. This Month was from the Assemblies, where the Magistrates named Januarius in honour of Janus, because took the solemn Oath, and Vows were made. more distinctly all these Ceremonies.

Cernis odoratis ut luceat ignibus ather, Et lonet accensis spica Cilissa focis? Flamma nicore luo templorum verberat aurum, Et tremulum surma spargit in æde jubar. Vestibus intactis Tarpeias itur ad arces : Et populus festo concolor ipse sue est. Jamque novi pracunt fasces, nova purpura fulge Et nova consticuum pondera fentit ebur. Colla rudes operum prabent ferienda juvenes, Quos aluit campis herba Falisca suis.

fity, and were very careful to speak no word ment to this Goddess, because she had foreof ill Omen, as we learn of Pliny; Cautum told a great many things to the advantage of eras apud Romanos ne quod mali ominis verbum the Roman Empire. The fame day was cele-Calendis Januariis efferretur.

Friends fent Prefents that day one to ano- surnus in the Field of Mars. ther, which were called Strene, New Years- The 12th was a Meeting-day, and some Gifts; and this custom was first instituted time this day they kept the Feath of Compiteby T. Tatius King of the Sabines, after he had lie or Crofs-ways. made his agreement with Romulus; for 'tis | The 13th, or the day of Ides, confectated reported, that to show the esteem he had for to Jupiter, was mark'd in the Calendar by those who had serv'd him in his Quarrel these Letters, N. P. Nefastus prima parte diei. with the Romans, he fent to every one of them,! which was only kept holy in the morning. at the beginning of the year, a branch of They facrificed to her a Sheep, called Ovir Laurel, taken out of the Grove of the God- Idulis. This day Cafar Offavius took the dels screnue, with a Compliment wishing Name of Augustus, by the advice of Munacius them a happy Year. 'Tis thus related by Plancus. Symmachus in the 10th Book, Epist. 28. to the Emperors Theodofius and Arcadius : Strenuarum February was express'd by these Letters usus adolevit aufforitate Tatii Regis, qui verbenas EN in the Calendar, to denote that it was filicis arboris ex Luco Strenue anni novi aufpices divided half into a Festival, and half into a primus accepit. We will freak more at large day of Work. of this word in its Alphabetick order.

should be like that day; thus much for the of Evander. See below Carmentalia. first day of January, we come to the other The 16th, or the XVII. of the Calends of therein.

days of Assembly.

was a day for Pleading.

The 6th call'd the VIII. of the Ides, was except esteem'd unlucky.

The 7th and the 8th were days of Assembly. On the 7th the Romans folemniz'd the coming of Isu; and the 8th was confectated tion of the Temple of Castor and Pollux, near by the Athenians to Neptune.

amongst the Latins, they celebrated the Feast Equiria, in the Field of Mars. called Agonalia, instituted by Numa Pompilius Ould in the first Book of his Fasti, observes lin honour of Janus, and the King of Sacrifices facrificed a Ram to Janus. See Agonalia. according to the Alphabetick order.

The 10th, or the IV. of the Ides, was a day divided in two, thus mark'd in the old Calendar En, and in the new Calendar media

The 11th, or the III. of the Ides, was the Feast call'd Carmentalia, in honour of the Goddess Carmenta Mother to Evander; they offered her Sacrifices every year before noon; wherefore that day is mark'd in the Calendar Nefastus prime, to signify that it was not allowed to do any thing that morning. This day the Romans laid down all animo- This Sacrifice was offer'd in acknowledge brated the dedication of the Temple of Ju-

The 14th, or the XIX. of the Calends of

The 15th, or the XVIII of the Calends of The Romans above all things took care to February, they folemniz'd for the fecond time, be merry and divert themselves this first day, the Feast called Carmentalia secunda, or repetita being perswaded that all the rest of the year & relata, in honour of Carmenta the Mother days of this Month, and the Holy-days kept February, was the Feast of the Dedication of the Temple of Concord, not that which the The 21 day, called by the Lating postridie Prætor Manlius vowed, and which Caius Atti-Calendas, or quarte Nonas, the next day after line Duum-vir had dedicated, nor that which the Calends or the fourth of the Nones, was the Secretary Flavius did likewise dedicate in a pleading day, but accounted fatal for the Fore Vulcanis, but of the great and magnificent War, called for that reason Dies ater, a fatal day. Temple vowed and dedicated by Camillus, The 3d and the 4th were comitted days, or and adorn'd by Livia Drufilla, with a great many Statues and a noble Altar.

The 5th, which was the day of the Nones, From the 16th to the Calends of Februars are the Comitial or Affembly-days; if you

The 24th, For that day the Feria Sementina were celebrated for the Sowing-time.

The 27th they kept the Feast of the Dedicathe Lake called Juturna the Sifter of Turnus.

On the 9th, which is the V. of the Ides The 29th there were Horse-Races, called facrificed then a white Victim, and burned abundance of Frankincense.

Etymology of the word Janus. Some derive | certain Virgins, called after her name Voit from the Latin Verb ire, or its Gerund eunstals. do, as if one faid Eanus, because God presided ar the beginning of all undertakings; where- govern'd his People by just Laws; wherefore the Preface of Prayers was directed to fore his Subjects plac'd him after his death him, by whom they had access to the other in the rank of the Gods, and gave him many Gods; and because the Doors of Houses are Names, because of his great Qualifications; the entries, through which one must pass to for they call'd him Deus Deerum, because go into the most remote Apartments, they they esteem'd him the first of Gods, on acwere therefore called Janua from Janus, and count of the good Ordinances he had made were dedicated to him. This is reported by during his Reign; and was firnamed Bifrons Tully, in his Book De Nat. Deorum. Gunque and Quadrifront, because they took him for in emnibus rebut wim haberent maximam prima & the World, the two chiefest parts whereof postrema , principem in facrific mido Janum effe are the East and the West, and the other two quelucrunt, quod ab eunde nomen eff duffem, ex que are the South and the North. He was ftil transitiones pervia Jani, foresque en liminibus pro- called Jummius (Confivus, Patuleius, Cluffus,) fanarume dium Janue nominantus.

Volfius lays, that the word Janus feems to be derived from the Hibrew Jain, i.e. Wine.

controverted; some tell us, that Janus is the | Months of the Year: Conficus à conferendo, same as the World and the Sun; others fay, that he is the same as Ogyges an ancient King, who built Thebes fifteen hundred years before of the Deluge, or because he had taught Men the foundation of Rome; and some others, as Quid, confound Janus with Noah, and alcribe to him the glory of the origine of the World, having been the only Man, who faw the old and new World before and after the Deluge. However, the Authors, who report that Nish divided all the Earth to his Sons after the Flood, and gave Europe to Japhes for his share, fay more likely, that Japher was called Janus, and fettled himself in Italy, where he taught Subjects. a great many things, very uteful to Man- To what we have faid of the origine of cans learn'd to improve the Vine of him, to by he proves that Noah was dead in that time, fow Corn, and to make Bread; and that he But if Wine and Vine might clear this point allo taught them to build Temples and A tars of controversy, Pliny will affure us, that under to the Gods; for the Ancients to that time, the reign of Numa Wine was very fearce in worshipped Gods only in Groves.

daries of Towns, both without and within : after Janus. Wherefore, when Romulus built Rome, he fent for fome Men out of Tuscany, who observ'd exactly all the formalities and ceremonies reign of Ascanius, who reigned at Alba eight they had learned of Janus for that purpose. And to fet up better the service of the Gods, he drew Rituals and Formulars of Prayers to had been known in Janus's time, 'tis very their honour; wherefore the preface of Sa-likely that Men had improv'd the Vines; crifices was directed to him, and he was the and that Wine had not been scarce in the first called upon, as a Being who presented time of Ascanius and Numa. their Prayers to the Gods, and to whom the of Locks and Keys, for the security of Houses let it be either Janus, or Noah, or Javan, if

The 30th was the Feast of the Peace, they 1 and of folding Doors, which in his Honour were called Janua. 'Tis faid yet that his Wife was called Vifta, and that the instituted JANUS. Writers don't agree upon the the holy fire, committed to the care of

In fhort, Janus was a very wife King, who because the Calends of every Month were confecrated both to him and June; and for that reason, as Varro fays, there were twelve The birth and origine of Janus is no less Altars in his Temple, in respect to the twelve either because he was the reparator of Mankind, who had been drowned in the waters to plant the Vine, and fow Corn : Patulcius, because in time of War the Gares of his Temple were always open; and Clustus, because they were shut up in time of Peace.

In the Hymns fung by the Salii the day of this great Feast, he was called upon by the name of Deus Do um, as being the most Ancient of all the Gods; and by that Jane Pater, because he had been a true Father to his

Janus, Jacobus Aufolus opposes some Argu-Fabius Pillor reports, that the ancient Tuf- ments, taken out of Chronology, where-Italy; and yet 'tis true, that Numa reigned a He was the first who consecrated the boun-thousand three hundred and forty one years

Dionyfius Halicarnaffeus affirms alfo, that there was but a little Wine in Italy in the hundred eighty five years after Janus. Wine is a Liquor fo much fought after, that if it Peucer tells us, that Janus is Javan the Son first libations of Wine and Wheat were offer- of Japhet, and indeed the likeness of the ed. 'Tis reported that he was the Inventer name carries a great weight with it. In fine, .

The

called Creufa, of fo extraordinary Beauty both Greek and Italian, or because he chang'd that Apollo fell in Love with her. The Lady the gross manners of the Inhabitants of Italy was not cruel, but yielded to the passion of the into a more sweet and civil policy. God, and got a great Belly by him; yet the The Remone built but three Temples and kept it to fecret, that few people knew the a little Chappel to Janus. The first Temple was brought to Bed. Her Son, whom she was built by Romalus, after he had concluded called Janus, was likewise brought up very a Peace with the Sabins, and there he erected fecretly. Greufa was afterwards married to a Statue of Janus with two Faces, to fhew Kipheus, but had no Children by him. Eifte- that both the Reman and Sabine Nations us, grieved for the barennels of his Daughter, were joined together, or else to fignifie, begg'd continually of the Gods, an Heir that the two Kings Romulus and Tacing. worthy to fucceed him after his death : A- were but one head to govern the same Compollo by an Oracle pronounc'd on the Tripes of monwealth. This Temple was built in the Delpin, order'd him to take for his Son the Roman Field; and Procepius fays, that in his hift Man he should meet at his return. By time, it remain'd yet in the middle of that chance, or more likely by the care of Creufa, Field, over against the Capital, with a little he met young Janus: Erifteus adopted him, niche of Brass, and two doors like a Taberand brought him up like the Heir of a King. nacle, wherein a Statue of Janus five foot I mus being grown a Man, was impatient to high was fet up. Name order'd that the fray fo long for the Crown of Athem, and Gates of the Temple should be shut up in moved by his great courage went over into time of Peace, and open in time of Wate Italy, where he reigned, tays Macrobius, toge- For the Conful appointed to command the ther with Camiles Native of Italy; and the Army being upon his departure, went into City of their abode was called Janiculum, af-, this Temple attended by the Senate, the ter the name of Janus; and the Country Ca- chiefest of the City, and his Soldiers in mimelene, by the name of the other King : Reg- litary dreffes, and open'd the Gates of the num Janus obtinuit cum Camefe æque indigena, ut Regio Camejene, oppidum Janiculum vocita- perform'd, for this Temple continued open.

' tician, who temper'd the Manners of his of Augustus. ' Subjects, and taught them Civility : Wherefore he was esteem'd the God of Peace, Office in this Temple; wherefore it was tho' he was never called upon but during Anhabitants of Italy, first call'd Aborigines, and first Carthaginian War, but being half ruined, then Latins. He was compared to Noab, be- it was built again by the Emperor Tiberius. cause he was the first who cultivated this as Tacitus favs. wild Country, and there planted the Vine: Wherefore they made an allusion of the name of Janus, to that of Jain in the Phanician Language, and to that of sires in Greek, ket in a little Valley called Velabrum, be-

he has planted the Vine or not, Pagan Histo- ceived Saturn in Italy, because the first Man rians, who dive into the most remote Anti- who began there to manure and dung the quity, agree that Janus reigned in Italy, ground was called Saturn; and this happen'd Now here is the Hiltory taken out of in the same time that Janus cultivated the Dion; fias Halicarnaffeus , and Sextus Aurelius Vine Plutarch affures us, that Janus came from Greece into Italy; and for that reason he was Eristeus King of Athens, had a Daughter represented with a double Face, as being

Temple. This Ceremony was but feldom during the space of seven hundred and twenty Care in some Fragments remaining of his sour years, till the time of Augustus, who Books of Origines, having complain'd of the took possession of Egypt. This Temple was fictions and vanity of the Greeks, affures us, fhut up but three times; the first time was that the Scythians did populate Italy under the during the reign of Numa Pompilius; the feconduct of Janus, and that this Prince go- cond in the time of the Confulate of Titus vern'd his Subjects by so good and just laws, Manlius Torquatus, and C. Attilius Balbus, seven that his Posterity plac'd him in the number or eight years after the first Punick War, and or the Immortal Gods. Plutarch favours this the third time was about feven hundred opinion, and gives this high Encomium of twenty four years after the foundation of Janus. 'Whatever, fays he, Janus was, either Rome, nine and twenty years before the birth God or King, he was a wife and great Poli- of our Lord, and towards the end of the Reign

The new Confuls took possession of their faid that they opened the year.

The fecond Temple of Janus was built by Janus was one of the first Kings of some Cn. Duillius in the Herb Market, after the

The third Temple was erested under the name of Janus Quadrifrons, some say by Numa, and others by Augustus, in the Ox-marwhich fignifies Wine. 'Tis faid that he re- twixt the Capitol and Mount Aventinus. Mar-

Egnut affirms, that this Temple was built ! neither by Numa nor Augustus, because in his lears, beloved by Ceres, by whom the hadeime it was still almost entire, it being ineredible it had lasted so long had it been built by one of them. However, it may be faid that it was built by Nums, and rebuilt by Augustus. This Temple was of a square figure of the Ionick order, all Marble, dedica- age, and intrufted him with the care of Jated to Janus Quadrifrons, or four Faced.

of Faleria in Tuscany, having found a Statue of Jenus with four Faces, made one after its likeness for the City of Rome, and erected Mars, by brazen-footed Bulls, casting fire out them a Temple with four Fronts, and twelve of their Mouths. Jofen ordered a Ship to Altars, to represent the four Seasons, and the | be built for this Expedition, which he called twelve Months of the Year.

Besides these Temples, there was also a Chappel call'd Eder Jani Curiatii, dedicated with fifty Noble-Men. And having run mato Janus by the Herace, who killed the three ny dangers at Sea, at last arriv'd at Colchis, Curiatti.

Roman Field. The first was at the entry | chanted the Monsters that guarded the Treathereof; the second in the middle, before sure, wherefore Jasam married her, and bethe Palace of Paulus, and the place called Rofirst; the third was at the coming out of the Forum Romanum. The Statue that flood in the middle of the place was the most famous of all; for the Merchants and Bankers, and those who took Money at Interest met there. Wherefore, when Writers express'd by a Periphrasis, the Trade of a Banker, they faid, ad Janum medium fedet ; and Herace fays of a Man, who had loft his Estate by borrowing Money at great Interest, Postquam omnes res mea Janum Ad medium fracta est, aliena negotia curo Excussus propriis.

Having loft all that I had, by borrowing Money at Interest, I am oblig'd to do other Men's business, having nothing to do

The name of Japhes fignifies a great extent, Phryxia and Jason, that both these Lords had according to the bleffing of Noah, God foal undertaken the acquiring the Riches of Gold enlarge Japheth. Wherefore the Scripture chis. fays that Wildom is wider, i. e. of a greater extent than the Seas. But instead of Japher mention'd in the Holy Scripture, the Greeks have found out Japetus. However, the Japetur of the Greeks, is nothing like the Japher of the Scripture ; for the Greeks tell us, that Japetus was Brother to Saturn, and that Jupiter threw him headlong into Hell with the other Titant. They represent him like an old de-Jepetus, Tamere apyatorepec; notwithftanding he was younger than Japhes the Son of Mah, for they fay, that Japetus was the Grandfither of Deucalion, who liv'd in Mofer's time.

JASION, The Son of Jupiter and E Plutter the God of Riches.

JASON, The Son of Elen King of Theffalia by Alcimede. When Ejon died, he left the government of his Kingdom to Pclias his Brother, till his Son Jafon came to fon's Education. Pelias fent him on the ex-The Romans, after the taking of the City pedition to fetch the golden Fleece, which was in the possession of Æta King of Colchis, and was guarded in a Wood confecrated to Argus, after the name of Argus the builder of it. Jason went on board of her, accompanied and feiz'd upon the Golden Fleece by the There were three Statues of Janus in the Artifices of Medea, who by her Magick, engor two Sons on her : But afterwards he fell in love with Creufs, the Daughter of Creon King of Athem, and married her : whereupon Medes, to revenge herfelf, fet his Palaco on fire, where he was confumed by the flames, together with his new Wife. But some fay, that Jason and Medea were reconciled. The Fable runs thus; here is the History.

Strabo reports the Expeditions of Phryxus and Jasm, or the Argonaustes into Colitus, to fetch from thence Treasures, and especially the Gold, that the Inhabitants of that Country had got out of the Sands of the River, by fifting them through a Ram's Skin; and from thence concludes, that all that is related by the Poets concerning the same is a true History, either of the nature of those Countries, or the feveral Voyages made there. Thus this learned Man proves by Arguments, taken from the Cities and other JAPHETUS, One of Neah's Sons. Monuments called flill by the Names of Bosbare tells us, that perhaps Poets have express'd the Treasure of the King of Colchis by the word of Fleece, because the word Geja is of an ambiguous fignification in its original Tongue, viz. Syriach; for it fignifies a Treasure; and in this sense it was communicated to the Latins, and all its Dialects; and it fignifies also a Fleece; whereupon Poets have grounded their allusions: cripit Man, and proverbially fay, older than And we may fay also, that the two Josettu, least exceptions in the two Oxen that guarded the Preasure, were the two Walls which encompass'd the Castle where it was laid up; tor the Syriack word Sour, fignifies an Ox and a Wall. The DragonDragon that watch'd the Treasure, was no- that Therab the Son of Nather made the first thing elfe but the Iron Gate of the Fort, be- Statues, which were worshipped. Nacher escaute Nachas fignifies Dragon, Iron and Steel. nut Tharam. Tune smulacra ficta sunt figline open Here is in short the true History and Physio- ex argilla. Nachor Begat Tharah : Then Statues logy, whereupon was grounded all the Fi- were made of Potter's Clay. ctions that we read in the Aremanticks of Or- Abraham's Ancestors were Idolaters . pheus and Apollonius.

being escaped, together with his Father, out rab the Father of Abraham, and the Father of No. of the labyrinth where King Minos had thut chor; and they ferved other Gods. Idolatry was them up, by the help of Wings joyn'd with common in Chaldes, and began not long after Wax, flew higher than he should, and ap-proaching too near the Sun, melted his into Egypt, where they ador'd Beasts and their waxen Wings, and fell into the Sea, which Images, as Mala tells us; and Juvenal reports. therefore was called the Icarian Sea, as Ovid that they worthipp'd the Plants of their Gas-· Lays,

Icarus Icarias nomine fecit aquas.

The Truth is, that Dedalus imbark'd with his Son Icarus to avoid Minu's anger; and the Ship that carried them away is reprefented by Wings.

and turn'd the Bitch Mers into the and their Images. Dog-Star , Icarus into the Constella- Tertullian says, that there were formerly wherefore Horace calls it Ida undefa.

Iron.

IDOLOLATRIA, IDOLOLATRÆ, and IDOLA, Idolatry, fervice and worthip tender'd to Idols or false Gods.

Some Writers refer the beginning of Idolatry to Ages more remote than we do our felves. St Epiphanius ascribes the beginning of Idolatry to the time of Serug, Rehn genuit Se-

Johus fays to the Ifraelites : Our Fathers dwell ICARUS, The Son of Dadalus, who on the other fide of the Flood in old sime, even That dens, as Leeks and Onions.

> Porrum 👉 cape nefas violare aut rodere merlu : O fantias Gentes, quibus bac nafcuntur in hortis

Eufebius affures us, that the Phanicians and Egyptiam taught Idolatry first, and began to There is still another Icarus, Son to OEba- render divine honours to the Sun, Moon and lus, and Erigonus's Father, who treated fome Stars: and that having forfaken the true Shepherds of Attica with Wine; but the God, to follow thining and luminous Bo-Shepherds having never before that time dies, they ador'd also reasonable Beings, drank of that Liquor, and being perswaded which are to be preferr'd to Bodies meerly anthey were poison'd with it, kill'd Icarus, and imated. Wherefore the Phenicians and Egypcast him into a Well. His little Bitch call'd tians communicated to other Nations not Mera, went back to his Daughter Erigene, and only the worthip of the Stars, but also the brought her to the place where the body of adoration of other Gods, which were at first her Father lay; and having pronounc'd many but emblems of Stars under the figures of Curses against the Murtherers of her Father, Animals, as it appears by the Constellations: hang'd herself, not being able to bear her then they worshipp'd the Animals shemgrief; and the little Bitch died also out of selves, as living symbols of the Stars; and forrow. But the Gods took pity of them, from thence they easily came to adore Men tion called Beater, and Erigone into of Idolaters without Idols, and that in his time there were still Temples without Idols. IDA, A Mountain of Tross in Lesser where false Divinities were ador'd. For it Alia, the highest of all the Mountains of the must be observ'd, that although Idolatry has Hellespont, cover'd all over with Timber fit preceded Idols, because Idolatry was inventfor the building of Ships. Atheneus reports, led before Painting and Carving; yet it was that out of this Hill iffue fifteen Rivers, much increas'd fince these Arts have been improv'd. This Father takes also notice in There was also another Mountain in the another place, that in Numa's time, there Island of Crete, which the Corybantes or Idei were neither Idols nor Temples at Rome, but called Ida, because of their ancient dwelling only Altars made with earth and green turfs, place on Mount Ida in Plangia. The Dallyli erected for present occasions, as it was pra-Idei found out the invention of forging Rifed before Mofer's time, as we learn in the Scripture. Silius Italicus speaks thus of Jupiter Ammon.

> inrestincta focis servant altaria stamma ; Sed nulla effigies, fimulacrave nota Deorum, Majestate locum & Sacro implevere timore.

By which he means, that the Temple of aug, capitage inter homines tablelatria, and lays, Juniter Amoun was without Idols, and confequently more venerable, because the eternal without any Statue, but only a Bed and a " hre represented better the Divinity than any golden Table, and here (as the Priests afother Image whatfoever.

the same thing concerning unform'd matter; the Egyptians were the first who exected Althat was ador'd, before the art of perfect re- tars and Statues to the Gods, and made representations was found out, which led Men. into a new abyss of Errors, and that that kind of worship is an adoration of Art and Matter, not of Gods or Devils; and tells us, other like Arts, were first invented and inithat according to Berefus's opinion. Artexexes the Son of Daring, Ochus's Son, was the first who propos'd the Image of Vothe worthip of Statues.

the form of a Statue, and confecrated it to flead of the Animals themselves: but came upon it, in remembrance of the mysterious but very lately. Ladder he had feen in that place, and this In fine, Herodotus fpeaking of the Scythians aftion of Jaceb was afterwards imitated. Religion, having mentioned the Earth, Jupi-Therefore tis no wonder, that the first Sta- ter, Venus, Apollo, Mars, he tell us, that this tues of Idolaters were but Pillars or Stones worship was perform'd without either Alwithout form. Paulanias speaks of Statues of tars, or Temples, or Statues, only they Herceles and Capid, which were but unpolish- erected a kind of a Statue to Mars, which ed Stones: And Clemens Alexandrinus tells was only a Sword of Steel. And the Scythius, that before carving was found out, Idols an had only an Idol of Mars, but none of were bur Columns: Astequam flatua effent other Gods : because the Idol of Mars-was affahre formate, veteret erexerunt columnas eaf- but a Sword, and this warlike Nation was Heredian tells us, in the description he has gi- | Statues with Spears. ven thereof, Lapis est maximus, ab ime rosundus, er lenfim faftigiatus.

least in the East. The Precepts of the Decalegue, which forbids Idols is an argument

But if we come out of Phanicis, Syris and Egypt, we shall find a great number of Nations who had no Idols. Herodotus reports, that the Ptrfians had neither Temples, nor Alters, nor Idols, and that they rallied the Greek, who chose Men for their Gods. This tions. Wherefore at first they used Stones Historian relates somewhere else, that in the famous Temple of Bill at Babylon, there was two distinct Chappels; one below, wherein a great Golden Statue of Jupiter was erected, and then they made Statues thereof. and in the highest part of the Tower, but firmed) this God came down by night. Here-Clemens Alexandrinus, a Greek Author, fays detus fays again, that he heard in Egypt, that presentations of Animals in Stones. And if Idols were first fet up in Egypt, Phanisia and Syria, the reason thereof is, that Carving and proved in those Countries.

This fame Historian in another place, giving an account of what he had learn'd of mu to be ador'd. Epiphanius affures us, that the Egyptian Priests, says after them, that dumainted Images were invented before Statues, ring ten thousand three hundred and forty and that Thara the Son of Nachor ordered first years, no God had been reprefented by any shape of a Man, even without excepting the Sanchuniaathon reports, that the first Statues , Kings of Egypt. And this shews us, that Menof stone that were ador'd, were but unpolish- pass'd from the worship of the true God, ed and unformed, which he calls Betylis. to that of the Stars and Nature, as feeming 'Tis very like that this word come from Be- to be his most perfect Images, then they thel, which is the name given by Jaceb, to came to worthin Animals as emblems of the the stone whereupon he laid his head during Stars; and when Carving was found out. night, and grected it the next morning in they substituted the figures of Animals in-God, by pouring Oyl or some rich perfume to the worship of Men and Images thereof que colebant ut Dei simulacra. And ftill after not ignorant of the art of making Swords; Carving was brought to perfection, the old but being Barbarians, they had no skill Statues made of rough stone were yet ador'd, to carve true Statues. Julia affirms, that The God Heliogabalus, who very likely was Antiquity ador'd Spears instead of Statues, the Sun, was nothing elfe but a great round and that in remembrance of that practice, flone, broad below and ending in a Cone, as the Gods were always represented in their

But if the Scythians represented Mars by a Sword, the other Nations represented com-The worship of Idols is very ancient, at monly their Gods by Stones. Pausamas reports, that in a place of Greece, near a Statue of Mercury, there was thirty square stones, called by the name of feveral Gods. Then this Author tells us. that formerly all the whole Nation of Greeks, used unpolished Stone instead of Statues to represent their Gods; for the art of melting Metals came very late to the Greeks and other remote Nawithout form for Idols, then they polished Stones, and made Figures of them; at last the art of melting Metals was found out,

In short, we learn of this Author, that the second, at the first day of her appearing, while Inhabitants of Cherones had a very particular we fee her in an Evening, with her Horn veneration for a Scepter or Spear that Vulcan proceeding out of his Rays; and the third had forg'd for Jupiter, as it is reported by when the is in her full light. The common Homer.

strabe tells us, that Mofes blamed the cufrom of the Egyptians, who represented their Gods by the figures of Beafts, and condemned the Greeks, who airrib'd them the figure of Men; shewing that the Divine Nature can't Sun, and then gave the name of None or the be represented by corporal Images, but that ve Lane to the day of the first appearing of they thould build him a Temple without

The Author of the Des Spria fays plainly , that the ancient Temples of the Egyptians had no Starties, that the first Starties were of their invention, and that they had communicated all this superstitious policy to motions of the Sun and the Moon, that the the Spring and the Greeks. He adds ftill, that was not allowed to make any Statue either fometimes fooner and fometimes later : and of the Son or the Moon, because they may always be feen in the brightness of their own light.

on at Rome upon the same Maxims, that were hid under the beams of the Sun, in the afterwards put forth by Pythagers, wie. that mouth of March, May, July and Office ; where God was invisible and immaterial, that it fore he allowed seven days to the Nones in was impossible to represent him by any these four Months, and five days only to the Image; and for that reason, the Temples of others; during which, it may be the Moon the City of Rome were one hundred and threescore years and more without any Sta- sooner.

us, that the ancient Romans ador'd the Gods to Jupiter, the day of the Ides that was connear two hundred years, without making fecrated to him. Some derive this word any Images to them: And if this, fays he, from the Tufom word Itis, which fignifies was full observ'd, the Service of the Gods would be more pure; and brings the example of the Jews, and fays, that those who first taught Men to represent the Gods by Images. have taken away reverence, and increased error, fancying that it was easie to be incliof the impotency of their Statues.

Roman in their Calendar, to distinguish the ship of fire was first instituted in this City. days of the Month. They commonly fell out Expolemes reports, that Ur was accounted to the 13 of every month, except in the months be the fame that Comarine, which took in of March, May, July and Offeber, for in thefe the Ides were the 15th of the Month. This word is faid to be derived from the Herrurian word Iduare, i, e. to divide, because the Month is in a manner equally divided in two pasts by the Ides; and that the Nones of Ur of the Chaldens, flew'd that he came were perhaps called from Bons Idus the ninth miraculoully out of the Fire, where the Chalof the Ides, because they were in the room dean had cast him, because he refus'd to of the ninth of the Ides.

Some others observing, that there were deans worshipp'd Fire, three confiderable different varieties in the morion of the Moon: the first when the is quite hid under the beams of the Sun; the opinion was, that from thence Remulus had took occasion to divide the days of the months, which he began always by the Can lends, in the time that the Moon fub radia Solis celaretur was hid under the beams of the the new Moon, and Ide when the was full and appeared in her beauty, from the Great word elder, i. e. from Beauty.

From thence they draw an Argument for the inequality of the days of the Nones : for as it falls out by the composition of the Moon comes out of the beams of the Sun! that this divertity is commonly included in the space of two days; 'tis likely, say they, that in the time that Remains instituted his Platerch affures us, that Name fettled Religi- Calendar, the Moon was kept a longer time got off from these beams, and appeard

Others draw the word Idus from Idalium. Farre the most learned of the Roman tells which was the name of the Victim offered amongst that Nation, the same that Ides mongst the Romans.

IGNIS, Fire. The Chronicle of & lexandria affures us, that Ninned, who was None the first King of the Affriant, or dain'd the worship and the Religion of ned to despise the Gods, by the consideration Fire. And as the City of Ur was famous in the Province of Babyles, and that U. IDUS, The Ides, a word used by the fignifies fire, they fancied that the worname from the Hebrew word Camar. i. e. Flegrare affuare : And her Priests were also called Camarim. The Hebrews themselves, as Hieronymus fays, feigned, that these words of the Scripture, faying that Abraham came and adore it. Lucar's opinion is, that the Chal-

Chaldens culture focus.

Acroleur

Fire as a God, wherefore they made fcruple Virgil has often testified. to burn the Corps of their dead, lest they should feed their God with a dead Body.

'Tis very likely, that the Chaldeans, Perfiand other Eastern Nations, who ador'd the Sun and the Stars as eternal Fires, kept alfo a Symbol of them in a perpetual Fire, always burning on their Altars; and that in process of time, the simple people ador'd the fire itself that was burning on the Altars as their Gods, having no others to adore. However, few Writers ascribe the worship of Fire to the Chaldeaus, and other Ancient Inhabitants of the East. Julius Firmicus fays tual Fire on their Altars, to imitate these only, that the Persians preferr'd Fire to all other Elements, and had it carried before an eternal Fire should be kept on his Altar. them. Quintur Gurtius fhews, that the Perfiau and their Wife men kept an eternal Fire mon filver Altars, as a Symbol of Jupiter, i.e. the Sun.

much given to the worthipping of Stars, as they had neglected the holy Fire of the Althe Laftern Nations, to they ador'd Vefts and tar, and attempted to light it again with Valuen, as the terrestrial and elementary Fire, profane Fire. The Vestal Virgins were also diffinguishing the fire of the Earth from that | very severely punished, when they let out the of Heaven; taking Veffs for the Earth, in Fire of Veffs, as 'tis reported by Livy; for the center whereof (according to their opini- they were perswaded that the eternity of on) an eternal Fire was burning. This is the Empire depended upon the Eternity of reported by Ovid in his Fafti. And this Poet that Fire. tells us also afterwards, that the perpetual | Dinysus Halicarnasseus says, that Numa built Fire was the only Image they had of Vefts, at Reme 2 Temple to Vefts, to keep 2 Fire being impossible to have a true Image of therein by the ministry of Virgins, like that Fire; and that it was a custom formerly to which was kept at Albs by the like ministry keep a fire at the entry of Houses, which of Virgins; that it might be a facred Fire therefore has ever fince kept the name of common to the whole City, re-united toge-Vestibulum; and that they fat at long Tables ther by that means, as if it was but one Fato take their Meals in these Entries, where mily, for each Family had its own holy Fire ; the Fire represented the Gods.

Effe diu ftultus Vefta simulachra putavi, Mon didici curvo nalla subeffe thele. Ignis inextinctus templo celatur in illo, Effigiem nullam Vefta nes Ignis habent. Ante focos olim longis considere scamnis Mos erat, & menfa credere adeffe Deas.

This Fire was not only watch'd and kept which are the perpetual Fires thereof. by the Vestal Virgins, but the care thereof time that the Imperial Purple was joined to common both to Fire and Virgins. the Pontifical Dignity; as we learn of Ovid, this Holy Fire being the fame that Encas brought from Troy, as an affurance of the eternity of the Empire, it was wifely left to the care of the Emperors who were Eneas's Posterity, and more concern'd than any others about the eremity of the Empire.

Meridian affirms that the Person ador'd Troy, where it was in the like veneration, as

And he introduces the Ghost of Heller speaking to Eneas, to perswade him to retire from the Ruins of Trey, and carry along with him the Gods called Penates, and the holv Fire.

Sacra suos quæ tibi commendat Troja Penates, Hos cape fatorum comites. . . . Sic ait & manibus vittue, Vestamque potentem, Emunque adetis effert penetralibus ignem.

And doubtless other Nations kept a perpe-Ifraelises. For God commanded Mofes that faying, Aaron fall burn thereon freet Incenfe, and he fhall burn Incense upon it, a perpetual Inconfe before the Lord. And 'tis very likely, that the severe punishment that was inflicted on As the Greeks and the Remans were not fo the two Sons of Agree, befel them, because tho' Remulus had allow'd only fo many Altars and Fires, as there was Wards in the City of Rome, called Curia. The fame Author tells us still, that Nums found a conformity betwixt the chastity of Virgins and the purity of Fire, and that that Fire was confecrated to Vefta, because Vefta denoting the Earth, and being in the middle of the World, the affords Food with her Vapours to the Stars.

Platarch reports, that Nama committed the was also committed to the High Pontiff, and care of the eternal Fire to the Vestal Virwas a function of his Office, even in the gins, because purity and barrenness are learn also of him and of Paulanias, that perwho gives us this reason for the same; that petual fire was likewise kept at Delphi and Athens, the care whereof were not committed to Virgins, but Widdows, who were bound to live chaft.

Every Town of Greece had its Prytanium. but that of Athens was the most famous of all. The most likely etymology of this word is This eternal Fire kept at Rome came from Tupos Tausier, the place where the Fire was kindled on Altars, but drawn from Heaven fold, it was not allowed them to remove less by Prayers made for that purpose : apad ma- out of their places. jores are non incendebantur, Sed ignem divinum precibus eliciebane

Urit ederatam mellurna in lumina cadrum.

Diedorus Siculus observes, that when the after the foundation of Rome, with Indicate Perfian Kings died all the Fires were put out, tions mentioning the Origines of those And and were kindled again, either with Glasses. as Phuarch fays, or by Magick Artifice, as Servius feems to infinuate.

came from Heaven, either by Lightning or cases, which were open in days of solement Burning-Glasses, or by boring or rubbing a Featle and publick Sacrifices; and that they piece of Wood with violence, as Peftar re- were adorn'd fuitable to their Dignities. lates : Mes erat tabulam felicis materia sandiu and crown'd with Garlands of Flowers. Flo honoured in the person of Japiser, called in their Houses open'd the cases of the Images. Greek Zeije,, and in Phonician Language Cham; of their Ancestors, and offered white Victims. both these names being derived from heat in facrifice. and fire. But the fire of the sublunary world Cornelius Tacitus writes, that in the Funeral was represented either by Vesta or Vulcan. Parade of Junia, Caro's eldest Daughter, Cas-They called Vefta the fire of private Families, fin's Wife, and Sifter to Bruw, they carried that was a part of the Gods Penases; or the the Pictures of twenty Illustrious Families, publick and perpetual fire kept in the Tem- wie. the Quintilians, Manlians, and other great ples, representing either celestial Fires, or Families of the Empire. We read also, that ged the Thunderbolts of Jupiter, or the fire his Aunt; and that at the Puneral Parade of of Mountains casting out Flames, for they Drusur, Tiberius commanded they should carsupposed that Cyclops or Smiths were work- ry the Pictures of the Cafar's Family, fince

ILITHYIA, A Divinity called m Lamps confectated to Vesta, which were ne- on by Women in labour; we learn of O. he Images of Appin Cleudin, and the whole

> Tauc cum matura vesabis Prapoficam timidis parientibus Ilithyiam.

The word llythria comes from the Hebri days in the Year. These Lamps were con- not from the Greek Anallo, as if this Go who had honorably performed the functions stantly kept burning, and very chargeable, dess came to help. Dionysius Halicardes of their Magistracies; for if they had fail'd for they were so abundantly supply d with speaks thus of her: Ilithyiam Romani was Oyl, that to express the perpetual duration Junaness luciferam; but Orpheus in his Hymn of a thing, it was commonly said, 'tis like Diama Hybria, & casta castan Probures: A the Lamps of the Prytaneums To Augree in Plutarch lays plainly, that this Goddels is the The And this flews us that these Moon, Unde confection Disnam Lachisms of Aures were broke in pieces. eternal Fires and Lamps were kept in imita- parini prasidem & llithyiam, ut que um alia of God. The Learned agree, that before of Ancestors, which noble Reman kept us INDIGITES, Gods can a magner, Men used to burn Oyl in their Lamps, they der the Porches of their Houses, in mooth were great Men and Heroes, placed in the burnt Wood all night to give them light, as carried at their Funeral Pomps or Trimp phal Entries. Thefe Images were commonly made at

Wax or Wood, and some of them were Gods, as Hercules, Escularius, Faunus, Quiri-Servius fays, that formerly Fires were not Marble or Brass; and when the House were and Carmenta, Gastor and Pollux, Acca Lauren-Appins Claudius was the first who plated them in the Temples of the Gods, 259 years cestors and their brave Archievements. Pelybius a Greek Historian reports, that thele Images represented Faces in baffo relieve el The fire that was burning in the Temples the life, so that they were shut up in wooden terebrare, quoufque exceptum ignem cribre anes, vius Vopifcus affures us, that amongst the publi virgo in adem ferret. lick Rejoycings at Reme, when the Senare The fire of the Stars feems to have been elected Tacitus Emperor, the Romans in all the Fires that are in the center of the Earth. Julius Cafar, to shew the greatness of his Fa-They afcrib'd to Vulcan the Fire of the mily, ordered that the Pictures of Mariat Clouds, wherefore they faid that Vulcan for- should be carried at the Funeral Pomp of ing therein, or fire used in all kinds of Eneas and the King of Alba; till Remular the Founder of the Empire, and that after them?

family of the Claudians should be carried na long and fumptuous March.

However, it was not allowed to all Men, who had the Pictures of their Ancestors in their Houses to have them carried at their Funerals; this was only granted to those, who had honorably performed the functions in any point, they forfeited the priviledge of being attended at their Funerals by the Rifigies of their Ancestors; and if they had

These Figures carried on Chariots attended the Funeral Pomp, and were set upon Ivory Actions. The Tutelar Gods, protectors of any place, were called by that name. The Remans had a great number of these Demi-tia, and others. INFERUS, Hell, a place under ground. Lucian has given us a fabulous description of that place in his Treatise of Mourning. 'The people, fays he, abused by Poets, and particularly Hesiad and Homer, came to be perswaded, how there was below, a fubterranean place very deep and gloomy, where the dead were detained in eternal and invitible bands, without ever any being fuffer'd to ftir from thence, excepting some few, through all extent of Ages, fays Virgil; nay, and that a particular favour too, and for reasons of great importance, for the whole Country is furrounded with great Rivers, whose very names are terrible, Styx. Phlegeton, Cocytus, without mentioning Acheron, a great Lake just at the entrance, which exhales fo grofs a vapour, that Birds can't fly over without dying prefently. First, at the descent you find an Adamantine Gate, guarded by Escus the Cousin German of Plute, in the company of Carberus, a triple headed Dog, that fawns and careffes highly all the comers, but barks terribly at those who would go out Beyond this Meadow is a great Field of Daffodil, through which glides the River

Lethe, a mortal Enemy to Memory, if we may pin our Faith on fuch persons, as formerly returned from thence; tho' it is fomewhat strange, how they could remember it, after having drank thereof, and re-only know by their Narrative Plute and Proferpina fway the Scepter in those Regions : The latter the Daughter of Ceres, kidnapp'd forfooth, and carried away by force :: and the former Jove's Brother, who had this Empire for his share; and is intitled Pluto, which fignifies Wealth, because he is rich in Ghosts, as a Man told me, who fancied to know it well. 'His Ministers are Pain, Horrors and the Furies, without mentioning Mines and Rhadomantus, both Cretons, who are very severe in their execution of Justice. As for Mercury, he is only there as a Sojourner. Good Men are fent into the Elysian Fields, a Colony of Felicity and Delights, and the Wicked into eternal Dungeons, where they are wrack'd and tormented fuitably to their feveral Crimes, some in the Fire, others upon Gibbets or on Wheels: this Man for his punishment, is constrained to rowl Stones that run back again, against steep Hills, or fetch Water in a Pot full of holes; another is prey'd upon by a Vulture, or dies of thirst, as Tantalus, without being able to fquench it, tho' he is up to the very Chin in water. The rest, that have done neither Good nor Evil, frowl in the Meadow above mentioned, where they are fed with fuch Meat, as are carried to the dead, and the oblations and effulions, that are poured upon their Sepulchres: tho' after all, they are no more than shades, that have only the figure of the Body, and when touch'd vanish like smoke.

INF

The fame Author hath also left us a defcription of Hell, in the fecond Book of the true History. At our going out of that fweet and fragrant Air, we entred one thick and stinking, which distill'd Pitch instead of Dew. We fmelt afar off Sulphur and Brimstone, with an exhalation like unto that of dead Bodies broiling upon the Coals. Amidft of all this we heard the lashings of a Whip, the gingling of Chains, and the roarings of the damned. We touch'd at one of these Islands, which was all encompassed with craggy Cliffs and Precipices. Having made shift to scramble up through a craggy and thorny Cliff, we arrived at the place of punishments, which was all sowed with points of Swords and Spears, and furrounded with three Rivers, the one of Blood, the other of Mud, and the third of Fire, but of a rapid stream like unto a Torgent, and subject to Tempests like the Sea. We went in, and there we faw many Kings tormented. After this away we went, not being able to fuffer the itench, nor the herror of the place. count all those difmal things, which we

We have a large account of Hell, as 'tis represented by Poets, in what Diedorus Si-

by a Pilot, called in the Egyptian Language represent the emblems of Hell. Whereform Charon, Proreta quem fua lingua Charontern vocant; they ftopt in a Lake, where every their Hell from the Greeks, and the Gaulibody was allowed to charge the dead with from the Funerals of the Bgyptians, as Panish Accufations.

' If the Crime was prov'd, they pronounged Sentence against him, whereby he was "deprived of Burial. If the Impeacher was not able to prove his Accusations, he was ing the Gods of Hell to receive him in their company, and then they buried him. The same Author speaks of the piece of Mopresent Life, inflict punishments to the Malefactors, and fend just Men to the Elysian Fields. Virgil mentions Mines, Quester Mines vitas & crimina discit.

After the Sentence is pronounced, the punishment follows.

Continuo fontes ultrix accincta flagello Tifiphone quatit insultant, tervosque finifira Intentant anguet, vocat agmina. feva Sererum. 6. Æneid.

The Rivers represented by Poets flowing in Hell, are Rivers of Arcadia or Italy, or the Eastern Countries. Homer Odyffe. 1. 10. places her in the fand. 'Tis comfort enough for be. thefe four following. Rivers in the Cimmeria, viz. Acheron Phlegeton, Gosytus and Styx, and tells us, that the Country inhabited by the people called Cimmerii, one days Journey from Mount Circaeum in the Country of the Melicerta. Lating, is accounted to be Hell.

from the Greeks, have represented them as and her Brother did not? Rivers in Italy: The Styx was in Arcadia near | Neps. 'Tis no wonder that a Man thous Nonacris, and its Waters were fo extream ride better than a Maid; besides, that cold, that they were present poyson, and was frightned by the depth of Waters Historians report that Alexander the Great faw under her Feet. was poison'd with them. Pausanias 1. 8. makes a long description of the River Styx in in this encounter. Greece, and refers the two places, where Hemer and Hefod makes mention of them. All tune. Geographers place also the Rivers Acheron and

calus reports of the Funerals of the Egyp- | thefe Names, Acheron, Caeptus, Avernus, Orlean ther Arnus, Phlegeton and Styx fignify in the The Corps being put into a Boat guided Greek Tongue, the fame they fhould to 'ris certain that the Letins have borrowell nias reports.

INO. The Daughter of Cadmus and Hotel mime, who took for her fecond Husband Athe mas King of Thebu, who had married Nephele of whom he had two Children Phryxus and punished; and the Kindred of the deceased Helle. This cruel Step-mother attempted left off Mourning, fung his Praifes, com- destroy her two Children; but Playan to mended not his Birth and Family, but his prevent her design, got a Ram with a golden Vertue and Piety towards the Gods, pray- Fleece, and riding upon him with his Sifter Helle, fled away, and crofs'd over the Sas but this fair Lady, frightned by the depth of Waters, let go her hold, and fell into the ney, that was put in the Mouth of the dead Sea, which thereupon was called by he to pay the Ferry-man, and gives an account name Hellefpontus: As for Phryxus, he faces of the Temple of Hecate, Cocysus, the Gate of arriv'd at Colchis, where he facrificed his Ra Truth, and the Statue of Justice, without to Jupiter, who plac'd him in the numbered either Head or Eyes, to shew that Justice the twelve Constellations of the Zediack, had no regard to persons. There are Judges the golden Fleece was left to King Ris, whe who examine the Crimes and Vertues of this placed it in a Wood confecrated to Mars. der the guard of a dreadful Dragon and two Bulls, casting fire and flame out of their Mouths. This is what Lucian reports of the fame in the Dialogue of the Sea-Gods, where he introduces Neptune and Amphitrite, fpeals ing thus.

Neot. Let the Sea where this fair Lady's fallen, be called after her name Helleformin: and let the Nereids carry her Body into Trus, where the Inhabitants of the Country fall take care to erect her a Monument.

Ampb. I think we should do better to buy her here; for her fate, and the barbarous dealing of her Step-mother break my heat. Neps. But the can't lye in the bolom of the waves, and it would not be decent to bury that her Mother-in-law shall be attended by the fame fate, and purfued by Athamas, fa shall cast herself down from the top of Mount Cytheren into the Sea, together with her Son

Ampb. But how came it to pass that this The Italians, who have taken their Fables fair one fell off the Ram she was riding upon,

Amph. Why did not the Glouds help her

Nept. No body can avoid their bad For

The Bodies of Ine and her Son Palane Goryou. in Epirus, adjoining to Arcadia. All were carried by a Dolphin on the shoat of Rebenutia, from whence simplimacus and Donaci- retired himself to King Ata at Colches. This and brought them to Corinth, and honour'd is related by Apollodorus. them like Gods, Ine by the name of Lucethee Melicertes or Partumnus, and instituted folemn Games in their honour, kept every fifth year at the Streights of the Ishmus of Corinth. As we learn of Ovid, in the 6th Book of his Fafti, V. 541.

Lata canam: gaude defunita laboribus Ino, Dixit, & huic populo profecta semper ades. Numen eris Pelagi, natum quoque pontus habebit In westris aliud sumite nomen aquis. Leucothee Graiis, Matuta vecabere nostris-

In portus nato jus erit omne tuo. Quem nos Portumnum, sus lingua Palemona dicet Efte precor nostris aquus uterque locis.

This same Poet explains at large this Fable, in the 4th Book of his Meramorphofis.

Lastantina doth not question the History of Ino. called Leucothes or Matuta, and her Son, who had also three names, at least after his Anotheofis; for to purout of Men's memothat they were Men themselves, they chang'd their names after their confecration : Selent enim mortuis consecratis nomina immutare. credo ne quis putet cos hemines fuisse. Ino postquam se pracipitavit, Leucothea, materque Matu- there were seven Sciences writ upon it. ta, & Melicertes filius ejus Palamon atque Porwere all Natives of Phanicia, Cadmus himself cury's Pillars. being a Phanician. The name of Melicertes is Livy tells us, that Hannibal dedicated an names of the Mother and the Son, one was scrib'd his fortunate Atchievements. Phanician, Ino and Melicertes; the other Greek, Leucothes and Palemon; and the last was Latin, Diodorus Siculus shews sufficiently, that the Maints and Portunnia. These three names first way of instructing People, and transmitfrom Phenicia into Gruce, and from Grecce in- by Inscriptions. And this particularly apto Italy.

gainst Ino his Wife, whom he took to be the called by the same name, did engrave on Stone cause of the death of Phryxus, and the flight Pillars, Preceps useful for Husbandmen. of Ine, who run away with her Son, and cast herfelf headlong with him into the Sea, and INSCRIPTIO. An Inscription. or Matuta, and her Son under the name of The Aucients ingrav'd on Pillars the principles of Sciences, or the History of the World. Perphyrius mentions Inscriptions kept by the Inhabitants of Grete, wherein the Ceremony of the Sacrifices of the Corybantes were described. Euhemerus, as Lastantius reports, had written an History of Jupiter and the other Gods, collected out of the Titles and Inscriptions, which were in the Temples, and principally in the Temple of Jupiter Triphilianus, where, by the Infcription of a golden Column it was declared, that that Pillar was erected by the God himfelf. Pliny affures us, that the Babylonian Aftrologers made use of Bricks to keep their observations, and hard and folid Matters to preserve Arts and Sciences.

This was for a long time practifed; for Arimneftus, Pythagoras's Son, as Porphyrius relates, dedicated to June's Temple a brass Plate, whereon was engrav'd the Sciences that were improved by him : Arimneftus, fays Malchus, being returned home, fix'd in the Temple of June a brass Table, as an Offering confecrated by him to posterity; this Monument was two Cubits diameter, and Pythagoras and Plate, according to the opitummes. Ino and Semele were the Daughters nion of the Learned, learnt Philosophy by of Cadmus and Hermine; wherefore they the Inscriptions of Egypt, ingraven on Mer-alfo a Phenician name, and fignifies also the Altar with a long Discourse, ingraven in the King of the Town. And thus of the three Greek and Punick Language, wherein he de-

The Inscriptions reported by Herodotus and flew, that the same History was brought ting Histories and Sciences to posterity, was pears by Plate's Dialogue intitled Hyparchus, Paulanias describes the fury of Athamas a- wherein he says, that the Son of Pilistratus, Pliny affures us, that the first publick Monuments were made with Plates of Lead; tells us, that the Dolphins received Miliertes, and the Treaties of Confederacy made beand carried him to the Ifthmus of Corinth, tween the Romans and the Jews was written where he was named Palamon, and there the upon Plates of Brass; that, says he, the Jews Ishmian Games were dedicated to him : As might have fomething to put them in mind for Phryxis, Ino his Step-mother had really of the Peace and Confederacy concluded configured his ruin; and to compass her wick- with the Romans. Tacisus reports, that the ed deligns, the employed the Priefts of Del- Meffinians in their dispute with the Lacedemophi to perswade the people, that the State of name concerning the Temple of Diana Lime-Theber thould enjoy no tranquility, till Phryx- netida produc'd the old division of Peloponnessus. w was facrificed to jupiter; whereupon made amongst the posterity of Hercules, and Phyxus fled away with his Sister Helle, who proved, that the Field where the Temple was fell into the Sea called by her name; and built fell to their Kings share; and that the Testimonies upon Stones and Brass. As. 1. 4. c. 43.

INTERPRES, An Interpreter. There ness of Ses-men. was an Interpreter appointed, whose Office JOCASTA, The Daughter of Green was to explain to the Senate the Speeches of King of Theber, who being warn'd by the Ambassadors, who could not speak Latin. The Oracle, that he should perish by the hand Magistrares who commanded in the Pro- of one of his Children, bad Jecasia, who marvinces had also an Interpreter, to explain ried Laiss, to murther all her Sons. OEdiput their Orders to those to whom they were di- being born, was deliver'd to a Soldier to rected; because it was not allowed to these murther him, according to the King's order. Magistrates, says Valerius Maximus, in all the But the Soldier, struck with horror for the functions of their Office, to speak in any murther of an innocent Child, contented other Language but Latin; wherefore the himself to run a twig of Ozier through both Prætor of Sicily reproached Tully, that he his Feet, and tye him to a Tree, his Head had spoken Greek in the Senate of Syra- downwards: A Shepherd of Polybus King of

by Jupiter, and then turn'd into a Cow, brought him up. Being grown a Man, he whom June committed to the care of Argus, went into Phocis, according to the Oracle, to and though Argus had a hundred Eyes, yet discover there his Father. There was then Mercury having lulled him to sleep with his in that Country a Monster called Sphinz, who Gaducaum and his Flute, stole her away; had a Face and Voice like a Maiden, the Bowhereupon Jano being much vexed, made Io dy like a Dog, the Tail like a Dragon, the mad, and oblig'd her to run through many Claws like a Lyon, and Wings like a Bird. Countries, and to cross over the Bespherus of and devoured all Passengers, who were not Thracia, thus called after her name. From able to expound the Riddles she propos'd to thence she came again into Egypt, where, Ju- them, which was very troublesome to Three piter mov'd with compassion for her missor- cia: But OEdipus clear'd the Country of that tune, restor'd her to her first shape, and Monster, and forc'd her to kill herself, have then she married King Ofiris. From that time ing expounded her Riddle, viz. What Creathe was called Ifis, and honoured by the ture is that, that in the Morning goeth with Egyptians; and after her death, rank'd in the four Feer, at Noon with two, and at Evening number of the Goddesses, and honoured by with three : OEdipur answered it was a Man. the name of Ifu. Herodotus writes, that the who in his Infancy went on all four, to wit. Egyptians confecrated to her Cows, and the his Hands and Feet; in his middle Age on Females of all Cattle. Diederus and Philofira- two Legs; and when he is old on three, sw fav. that she was represented with Ox's that is, he us'd a Staff QEdipus was unknow-Horns. The Nation called Eubai had an ingly advanced to his Mother's Bed, for ha-Ox's head for a symbol, in remembrance ving delivered Theber of that Monster. And that to was brought to bed of Epaphus in a thus Lain King of Thebes, and Jocaffa his Wife. Den, called for that reason Bods auxi, the endeavouring to prevent the prediction of Ox's Den. Plutarch writes, that Horus out of the Oracle, faying, their Son should kill his paffion, having taken the Royal Ornament Father and Marry his Mother, were themfrom the head of his Mother Ilis, Mercury gave felves the Instruments and Ministers of the her another, made of an Ox's Head, in form fulfilling of the Oracle. For OElipse unof an Head-piece.

brings in Jupiter talking thus with Mer- Creen had promis'd to the Man, who should Jupiter. Dost thou know Is?

Mercury. Who, the Daughter of Inschut? turn'd her into a Heifer, lest I should love hinder favourable winds, till Iphigenia, Agaa Monster, that never sleeps; for as he has Agamemmon obey'd the Orders of Heaven. an hundred Eves there is always some watch- and sent for Iphigenia, under pretence of maring. But thou art cunning enough to get rying her to Achiller. Clytemnestrs brought me rid of him; go and kill him in the Ne- her Daughter Iphigenia, and having notice of mean Forest, where he watches this fair one; Agamemnon's design, she oppos'd him vigoand after his death, thou shalt carry to by rously, as also Achilles, who resented his

Tellimonies thereof were yet feen engraven the name of Ifu. I will have her prefide over the Winds and the Waves, and be the Partne

Corinth having found him, untied him, and 10, The Daughter of Inachus, debauch'd presented him to the Queen, who carefully knowingly kill'd Lains his Father, and mar-Lucian in his Dialogue of the Gods, ried his Mother Jocasta, Laint's Widow, whom expound the Riddle abovementioned.

IPHIGENIA. The Grecian Fleet being bound at Aulis by contrary winds, the Jupit. Yes, her ; June out of jealousy has Southsayer Calthas declared, that Diana would her, and has committed her to the guard of memmon's Daughter should be facrificed to her. See into Egree, where the thall be ador'd by name being made use of to cover an untruth, Priestess to Diana, and facrificed to her all ver any more be destroyed by a Flood. the Foreigners, who landed upon that Coun-

The Sacrifice that Agamemnon offer'd of his Daughter Iphigenia, has so great confor- the Messages of Iris to War and Discord. mity with that of the Daughter of Jeptha, from thence she was called bis. And this that 'tis plain, that Agamemnon's facrifice was Grammarian wifely observes, that his doth but a copy of the other. The name it felf not always raise Discords, for her first instiof Iphigenia feems to imitate, that the is the tution was to declare the Treatife of Pacifi-Daughter of Jephia, as if the was called cation between God and Man. Jephtigenia.

But we must confess, that Poets have taken to themselves a soveraign Authority to disguise History into Fables, and have confounded the Sacrifice of Jephra's Daughter with the Sacrifice of Isac, and as God himfelf faved Isac, whom he had order'd to be offered to him in facrifice, and that a Ram was fubftituted in Isaa's room; fo the Fable is given to the Angels in the Holy Scripture, fays, that the Virgin Ihigenia being ready to be facrificed to Diana, this Goddess took her away, and substituted a Hind to be facrificed in her room; as Ovid reports.

The Vow of Agamemnon, and the Sacrifice of Iphigenia, as they are related by Tully, have vet a greater conformity with the History of Jephts. For he fays, that Agamemnon vowed to offer in facrifice to Diana, the finest Greature that should be born that year, wherefore he was obliged to facrifice his own Daughter.

crificed, like the Daughter of Jephe ; and that of years. Therefore the Errand of Iris fup-Poets, being wifer than Agamemnon, have poses indeed some discord, but yet conduces fubstituted a Hind to be facrificed in her to pacify it.

wonderful Meteors of the Air. Plutarch re- lituation, one part of her touching Heaven, ports, that Plate writes, that she was esteemed the Daughter of Thaumas, because of her wonderful beauty. And Hefrod in his Theogonia has made Iris the Daughter of Thaumas and Goddess called by the Greeks Io, and the Egyp-Elettra. Tully agrees with Plate's opinion : Cur autem Arcus Species non in Deorum numero re- honoured by the name of Cybele, viz. the ponatur ? Eft enim pulcher, & ob eam caufam. quia focciem habet admirabilem, Thaumante dici- tians to Ofiris, who was the Sun, to make her tur effe nata.

never shall be any more Flood. And altho' Earth and Nature. the Rainbow might have appear'd before the And truly, there is such likeness between

In fine, Iphigenia determined the Controver- of the Deluge, all the Sky being then coverfy, by the great defire the had to be facri- ed with very thick Clouds, where the Rainficed for the Service of Greece. All the pre- bow was not able to appear, because its fair parations being made for the Sacrifice, Diana Colours thine only upon a thin Cloud. Substituted a Hind in her room, and carried Wherefore it was a token naturally proper her away to Taures, where she was made to signifie, that living Creatures should ne-

Servius observes, that Mercury and Iris being both Messengers of the Gods, the Errands of Mercury are always tending to Concord, and

As for the Etymology of the word Iris, Plate is rather to be believ'd than Servius. when he fays that it comes from sipeir dicere, annuneiare, because it predicts fair weather. What Vollius fays is not to be omitted viz. that the name of Irir may be derived from the Hebrew word Ir or Hir, which fignifies an Angel or Messenger; for this name because of their watchfulness. For the proper meaning of the word Hir is Vigil.

However it must be granted, that Serviss has grounded his opinion upon Hesiad's report, when he derived the word Iris from tess; and faid that her Errands were tending to discord: And this Poet tells us still, that when any of the Gods has told a lye, Jupiter fends Iris to fetch water from the River Styz in a golden Vessel, whereupon the Lyer must take the Oath, and if he forswears himself, he remains a whole year without life and motion, but Tully affures us, that Iphigenia was really fa- | a long year, which contains many thousand

Statias feems to give another reason why IRIS, The Rain-bow, one of the most Iris is the Messenger of the Gods, viz. her and the other Earth.

ISIS, Queen of Egypt : 'Tis certain by the testimony of many Writers, that the tians Isis, is the fame whom the Romans Earth, or Nature herfelf, married by the Egypfruitful, and Mother of all productions. Poets call her Nuncis Junonis the Messenger | which are formed in her bosom. 'Tis both of June, because she gives us notice of the Plutarch and Apuleius's opinion, who introduces disposition of the air, represented by the Ifts speaking thus, Rerum natura, parens sum name of Juno. And God himself in Genesie, omninm elementorum. Macrobius fays also, that has given the Rainbow for a token, that there Office is nothing else but the Sun, and If the Flood, yet it was not feen at all in the time the Pictures and Representations, that the Ancients have given of these two Divinities, and the last ascribes these words to her : No. that both were the same Cybele, as we see by las if she had been the first who found the Turret on her head, and was attended by Sails. Lions, holding in her hand a musical Instru-ment like a Tabor, with this Title Mater from whence the Arms of the City of Paris Magna, the Great Mother, viz. Nature. Ifis are derived, which is a Ship, afcend as far had also a Turret on her head, as it appears as Ist to find the origine thereof, and the by a great many of her Statue's, and partiname of that City. For many were of opicularly in that which was found at more in nion that the name of Paris was a Great the time of Lee the tenth. She is also accom- word, and came from wand "lose, near the fapanied with many Lions, as we may observe mous Temple of Isu, since we must suppose. in that famous piece of Cardinal Bembo, re- that a Temple was dedicated to this Goddess. presenting Ist, which Kircher caus'd to be en- in the compass of the ground that belongs graven. She holds a Siftrum in her hand, now to the Abbey of St Germain in the which is a musical Instrument, and in fine, Fields; and this Temple remained till the the is called Earth and Nature herfelf. eftablishment of Christianity in France : And had in veneration all over the World, but Germain in the Field, when it was built by under several names and representations, for Childebert, and dedicated to St Vincent. This the is named Diana, Geres, Venus and Proferpina. Idol was kept there till the year 1514, that And it must be observ'd that Ifir was a Queen Cardinal Bricmnet, who was then Abbot of of Egypt, who reigned there with King Ofirit that Church, being inform'd that some good her Husband in the time of the first Ifraelites; old Woman, out of simplicity and superflie for Tacitus tells us. that during the reign of tion, had offered some Candles to the Idol. Ifs, the multitude of Jews being extraordina- caused it to be removed from that place, and rily augmented, they went to fettle themfelves broke in pieces.

ny Breafts.

having met there but very gross and wild calls them Linigeri. Nations, the taught them to honour the Deities, to till the Ground, and fow Corn. And Nunc Des Linigera colitur celeberrims turba. thereby the was in fo great efteem among Qui grege Linigero circundatus, & grege calpathese Nations, that they took her for the Goddess of the Earth, to whom they were Ifir had many Temples at Rome; one near time unknown to them.

Office.

viz. Ifis among the Egyptians, and Cybele among wigabili jam pelago fatto, rudem dedicantes caria. the Romans, that 'tis eatily to be perceived | nam, primitias commentis libans mei Sacerdotes ... the reverse of many Medals. Cybele wore a Art of Navigation, or at least the use of

Wherefore the is often represented with ma- when it was demolished, they kept out of curiofity the Idol Ifit, who was there ador'd. Apuleius reports, that this Goddess was and laid it in a corner of the Church of Se in the neighbouring Country, under the This Temple, fo famous, was ferved by a command of Jerusalem and Juda. Chapter of Priests, who lived according to And as Ist was a woman of great wit, and the common opinion, at the Village of Ist. courage to undertake the most difficult things, in a Castle, the Ruins whereof were yet she ordered a Ship to be built, and fitted out feen at the beginning of this Age. Platarch. for her to travel; and went into the most re- speaks of these Priests of Ifu, they observed. mote and barbarous Countries, fuch as Gaul fays he, Chastity; their Head was shaved. and Germany .; and Tacitus affures us, that the and they went about bare foot, and cloathed penetrated into the Country of Suabia; and with a linnen Habit: Wherefore Juvenal much obliged, for having taught them Agri- the Baths of Caracalla at the end of the new. culture and Religion, which were at that Street, with this Title upon an old Marble. Saculo Felici Ifias Sacerdos Isidi Salutaris Confecra-Tacitus observes also in this place, that the tie: Another at the Garden of St Mary the-Germans of Suabia ador'd her under the fi- new, with this Title, Templum Ifidit Exerata, gure of a Ship, in commemoration, doubt- P. Viller and Sextus Rufus mentions another less, of the Ship that had brought this Queen by the name of Patrician Ifu, near Mount into their Country to do them fo good an Esquilinus, and Lampridius in the Life of Alexaander Severus tells us, that this Emperor has We have some Egyptian Medals of Julian adorned the Temple of Ist and Scrapbis, Isims the Apostate, wherein he is represented in a O Seraphim decenter Ornavit. Josephus writes, Ship; and there are fome of her. Figures that the Emperor Tiberius ordered, that the found in Kircher and others, wherein the car- Temple of this Goddess should be levelled ries a Ship in her hand. Diederut and Apulei- to the Ground, her Statues cast into the The maffures us, that the govern'd over the Sea; berg and her Priefts hang'd, foo having been mo favourable to the amours of a young Greek have called the Western parts of Italy Gentleman, with a Lady called Paulina.

The Emperor Gemmodus had a fingular vene- Spain called minor Hefperia: eation for Ist, as Lampridius has observ'd in Italy was also called Ocnotria, of Ocnotrus committed in her Sacrifices.

Diederus, as it is ingraven on a Column.

I am Ilis the Queen of Egypt, instructed by Mercury. No body can abolift what I have eftaris. I have first invented theuse of Corn. I am called irakes in the old Greek, the Mather of King Horus. Ishine in the Doz-flar. By me the City of Bubafti was founded : Wherefire rejoyce thou, Egypt, rejoyce thou, thou haft brought me up and fed me.

The Egyptians ascribed the overflowings of the Nile, to the tears that the thed for the death of her Husband Ofris.

We have a statue of Ish habited like a Reman Matron, having a Half Moon on the top of her Head, her right Hand turned towards Heaven, and her left towards the Earth, to inform us, that the receives the influences of Heaven. We have also a Medal of the Emperor Commodus, where Ifis is represented with a Half Moon, holding a Sphere with her right hand, and a Vessel full of Fruits with her left. The Sphere denotes Aftrology, wherein the Egyptiam excelled; and the Fruits the fecundity of Egypt.

For the Egyptians were the first who made Ofiris, and the Moon Ifit, holding a Sphere in covered. With this title Italia. her Hand, as the Mother of Arts and Sciences, and an Amphora full of ears of Corn, to represent the fertility of the Country.

eff Terra ; quam Isim volunt effe. They ascrib'd many Breafts to Ifu, wherefore the was called Tiling, to shew that the Moon or the sub-The opinion of Julius Firmicus is , that ac- ris and fometimes Italia: cordingthe Egyptian Poetry, Ilis was the Earth.

fays. Ilis fecundum linguam Gracorum est Ceres, &c. do: # Egyptia lingua lis est Cerei. St Auftin declares de eandem & cererem volunt.

it was called Hefperia, either from Hefperus, bro- origine of the word Italia; ther to Atlas, King of Mauritania, or Hesperus ITALUS had a daughter called Rome,

H Speris magne, to distinguish it from his Life, Sacra Isu coluit, ut & caput raderet & King of the Sabins, or Genetrusthe Son of Ly-Ambin portaret ; because of the Debaucheries caon King of Arcadia, or rather from the Greek word olvos Wine, which Janus brought Here is an Encomium of If related by into this Country, by planning there the Vine-They gave her also the name of Ausonia, from Aufonius the fon of Ulyffes and Calypio.

That Countrey is now called Italia, Italy, Wilbed by my Ordinances. I am the Wife of Ofi- cither of Italia King of Sicily, or from Oxen

Italiam dixille minores, Virg.

Strabe, speaking of Italy gives it this following encomium. "There, fays he, menbreathe a temperate air; there are abundance of fountains, the waters thereof cure several distempers, and preserve health. There are all forts of excellent Fruits, and quarries of Marble of feveral colours. The Inhabitants thereof are wirty, fubtle and cunning, fit for learning, and principally Poetry and Eloquence; but are great diffemblers and revengeful, even to the very Altars. The chiefest City of Italy is Rome, famous for the birth of feveral great men both in War and Peace.

The Romans have represented Italy in their medals like a Queen fitting upon a Globe, holding with her right hand a horn of plen-Gods of the Sun and Moon, calling the Sun ty, having the other arm and the breast un-

ITALUS, firnamed Kitim, of Marstralus, left his fon Sicer in Spain, and came into Italy, where he asurped the throne of his . The Egyptians adored the Earth, by the name brother Helperus. Natales Comes fays, that he of the Goddels Ifit. Servius and Ilidorus rafter was one of the Captains of Hercules, whom him, speak thus of her, Ifis lingua Egyptiorum this Hero left Governour of Italy. Caro and Fabius Pictor tell us, that thefer two brothers; one called Hesperus and the other Italus, . reigned both in Italy, wherefore that Country lunary world affords food to all Creatures. was called by their names, sometimes Hespe-

The word Kitim, fays Bechart , fignifies kid, If was allo the same with Ceres, as Herodorus which is the proper name of Latinm a laten-

Wherefore Dionjius Hallearnaffeus and other that this was the opinion of the Egyptiam : Ifit Writers who will derive the Erymology of invenit berdei segetem, atque inde spicas marite Italy from a noble origine, take it from the Regi, & eius conciliario Mircurio demon, travis : un- name of that King, but others derive it from a Calf that Hercules loft at his return from ITALIA, Italy, a very famous Country Spain: whereupon he called it Vitalia, and of Europe. Italy had feveral names, fometimes fince Isalia: This is Cato's opinion upon the the Star of Venus, called Lucifer, at the rifing whom he established Queen of the Aberigines, of the Sun; and Hoffmur of Vofer in the e-who built the City of Rome, as it will be faid-vening when the Sun fets. Wherefore the upon the word Rome.

JUBA, King of Mauritania, whom Julius Cafar vanquished, and reduced his Kingdom into a Province. This Prince is represented in one of his Medals, with a long face, and an arrogant and cruel air, his hair curled and fer by degrees. It was the custom of the . Kings of that Country to curl their hair, and powder it with Gold powder. Petresse and this King killed one another, left they should fall into the hands of Cafar, after the defeat of Pempey, whose part they had taken.

JUBAL, the posterity of Cain, mentioned in the Book of Genesis, invented Musical Instruments, Jubal was the father of all such as bandle the harp and organ,

The opinion of Vollius is, that Jubal mentioned in the Scripture is Apollo, whom the Ancients effeemed the inventer of Song and

Mufick. IUD Æ I. The Jews. 'Some Authors, favs Tacitus, eports that the Jews came from Candia as if the word Tudes, was made of the word Ida, which is a mountain in that Island, and favs that they were driven out of that place when Saturn was divested of his Empire by 'Jupiter; and went to fettle themselves in the furthermost parts of Libia. Others write that they came from Egypt, and that during the reign of Ifis, their number being extraordinarily increased, they inhabited the neighbouring Country under the command of Jerulalem and Juda. And many others affure us. that they came out of Ethiopia, either out of fear or hatred of King Cephens; fome fav alfo, that the Jews were a multitude of Affrian ed to Saturn, with whom they were dif 'Mob got together, who not being able to ven out of Candia, or because they revere in Iive in their Country, possessed themselves Planer, which is the highest and most large of a part of Egypt, and built afterwards the cofall; besides that most part of the celesial Towns of Judes in the neghbouring Spria. Some allow them a more illustrious origine, and affirm that they were already famous in the time of Homer, and call them Solymes, from whence came the name Solyma or Jerusalem, notwithstanding the greatest number of writers agree in this point, that Egypt being infected with leprofy. King Becharis, by the advice of the Oracle of Hamman, drove them out ' of this Country, as a multitude unprofitable and odious to Diety, and that being scartered in the wilderness, and courage failing them, Mofes one of their Leaders advised them to expect no relief neither from Gods nor Men, who had forfook them : but to follow him as a celestial Guide, who ' should deliver them out of dangers, which they did without knowing where he led them. They fay that nothing was more troublesome to them than thirst, and that they were ready to perish for want of water, When on a fudden a herd of wild affes, that came from feeding, got into a Rock covered with a wood; which Mofes having perceived he followed them, fancying that he should meet with fome fountain in a place covered with green; which fucceeded according his defire, for he found there abundance if water, wherewith they quenched their thirly After they were thus refreshed they conting ed their Yourney for the space of fix days, then they found a cultivated Country, and took possession of it, having driven away the inhabitants thereof, and there they built their Temple and City. Mofes, the better in ger their affection and fidelity, instituted's Religion and Ceremonies amongst them contrary to those of all other Nations. For all that is holy amongst us, is accounted profane by them, and all that is forbid to us is lawful to them. Mofes confectated in the Sanctuary the Figure of the animal that was their guide, and offered in facts fice the Ram out of the hatred he bore m Jupiter Hammon; and the Ox, because it with adored in Egypt; and forbad them to eat any flesh of fwine, because they were subject in leprofy. He instituted many fasting days, in remembrance of the hunger they hadfine fered in their Travel and ordained unleaver ed bread, for a token that they had livel upon rapine. And ordered them to keep the seventh day holy, because upon that div they had made an end of their labours but as men are inclined to idleness, they keep also holy the seventh year. Some Writers tell us, that it is an honour renderbodies observe the number of seven is their course and influences. But by what means fooner this Religion was introduced 'tis certain that it is more ancient than any other Religion whatever. These Jews never dwell nor eat with any men, but those of their own Religion, and abstain from foreign women, tho they are much given to luxury. They have invented circumcifion; for a diffinction from other nations, and those who embrace their Religion are tied to the observation of that ceremony. They bury their dead standing, after the example of the Egyptians, instead of burning them like other Nations, and have the fame opinion, as the Egyptians, concerning Hell, but have quite another belief concerning the Diety. For the Egyptians adore several animals under different shapes, but the Jem adore but one God in Spirit, accountingall those Idolaters who represent him like a man.

that they believe; he is eternal and immy

table, and will not fuffer any image neithin

in their City nor in their Temple. Some | the shore, where it is dried, both by the heatfancied that they adored Bacebus the conqueor of the Ess, because a Golden Vine was found in their Temple, and that their Priests did beat the Drum, and played upon the Flure, and are crowned with Ivy ; but their ceremonies are quite different from those of Bacchus, which are attended by mirth, feastings and rejoycing; for the ceremonies of the Jews are filthy and abfurd.

This whole discourse of Tacitus is contrary to the holy Scripture in the main circumflances, as 'tis eafily observed : for this Nasion ador'd the true God, and came out of Egypt by his own order under the conduct of Hefer, who performed feveral Miracles to oblige Phareah to let them go into the Defert, and Meles got the Waters to come out of the Rock with his mystical Rod; and God gave to this Nation, whom he had chosen to him-Gelf. a Land abounding in all kinds of wealth. which is Palestina or Judea, as he had promifed to their Fore Fathers. Tacitus reports also, that this Nation have Mabia on the East, Egypt on the South, Syria on the North, and Phanicia and the Sea on the the City, the fecond the Palace, and the third West. Their Bodies are healthy and strong; their Country very plentiful, tho they have but little rainy weather, and bears the fame things that grow in Italy, and besides that, the Palm-tree and the Ballome-tree; the first mitted to go into it. This people was always of these Trees is great and fine, the other despised by other Nations, first by the Alirsmall, but of great use in Physick; when its riams, then the Medes and Persians : but under Branches are full of moissure, they make an the Macedonians, Antiochus attempted in vain incision therein, with a Stone or Potsherd, offor it abhors Iron) and diffils a most precious Liquor. The chiefest Mountain of that Country is Libanus, always green, and delign by the rebellion of the Parthians. covered with Snow in very hot weather, Wherefore they took opportunity, by the which is a miracle of Nature. There is the falling of this Empire, and the riling of the Spring of the River Jordan, which running through two Lakes, loies it felf in the third, which is as large as a Sea, but of a very bad tafte, and a pestiferous smell. Its Waters are conquer'd Judea, and enter'd the Temple by not agitated by the Winds, and neither Ri- the right of Conquest, and ordered that the can't fwim never fink under its Waters ; men, which experience has taught Men to gather like other things; 'tis a black Liquor, which is congeal'd by Vinegar, and floats over water: The manner of loading Ships with it, is to draw it up the sides of the Ship, 120, as Quintilian says. just to the Deck, and so it will follow suc-Ancients, but the Inhabitants of the Country of the Sun and the exhalations of the Earth. and being thus grown hard, 'tis cut like stone or wood. Near this Lake are those fruitful and well peopled Plains, the Cities of Sodom and Gomorrha, which were confumed by Fire. 'Tis faid that the marks of the wrath of Heaven remains there still, and that the Earth is burnt, and has not strength to produce any thing. That all that grows or is planted there, either bearing Blossom or Fruit, grows . black and is turned into ashes, which is caus'd, according to my opinion, by the corruption of the air and earth, occasioned by the neighbouring Lake; notwithstanding, I do not deny, that the fire of Heaven might have destroyed whole Cities. The River Belus disembogues itself into the Sea of Tudes. and at its mouth they take up Sand, with which they make Glass, by mixing Niter with it: and tho the River be but a very fmall one, vet it is never exhausted. This Country has many Villages and few Cities. whereof Jerusalem is the chiefest : and is encompais'd by three walls; the first incloses the Temple, which is avery flately building, and which might ferve for a Cittadel. The Jews are not allowed to go further than into a Gate thereof, and the Priests only are perto govern them, by taking away their fuperflition, and introducing the Greek customs amongst them, for he was prevented in his Empire of the Arlacides, to elect their own Kings to govern them.

Pompey was the first of the Romans who ver Birds nor Fishes can endure it; whatfo- Walls of the City should be pulled down. ever is cast into it floats over, and Men who but he preserved the Temple, and all that was therein.

however, no Man knows the cause of this JUGATINUS, A God presiding over wonder: At certain times it casts forth Bitu- | Marriages, at the conjunction of Husband and Wife.

IUGER'UM. An Acre of ground, fo much as a voke of Oxen will plough in a day: it contains in length 240 foot, in breadth

JUGUM, A Yoke, a piece of Timber. ceffively, and run down, if not interrupted, made use of to joyn two Oxen together to into the Hole. 'Tis thus reported by the draw a Plough or a Cart. The Romans ordered the enemies whom they had overcome affure us. that Bitumen is gathered by heaps, to pass under the yoke, which was accounted is either driven by the winds, or drawn to to be a great differace; that is to fay, that they pais'd under a kind of a fork like a Gal- \ JULIA, the daughter of the Emperorme

JULIA. There were many Roman Matrons called by that name. for her wantonnels was banished by her Fa- Constantius his Cousin elected him Cafar, and ther, first into the Island of Pandatauria, then having adopted him, gave him his Sister Helma into the Town of Rea, about the Streights for his wife. He was learned, chaft, vaof Sicily. She was hift married to M. Agrippa, of whom the had Aeropina, Nero's Mother ; then the married Tiberius, whom the despised, as being unworthy of that honour; and this was the chief cause of her long exile in the Isle of Rhades, But when Tiberius was raised to the Empire, he so barbarously revenged that ing this news, and leaving off his designaaffront, that the died of hunger and mifery . after the had been banished, and had lost all her to Tharjus, where he had some fits of a fever, hones after the death of her fon Agrippa. She was debauched by Sar-prontus Gracebus during her marriage with Agripps, and this confiant adulterer fill kept company with her, after Tyberius had married her, and maliciously provoked her against him. And it was a common report that he was author of the Letter she wrote to her Father, so full of reproaches and injuries against her Husband.

JULIA, called Medulling and Camilla, deligned to be the second wife of the Empefor Claudius Cafar, but she died on her wedding-day.

JULIA, wife to the Emperour Severus, and the mother of Gua and Caracalla. She is called in an infertption brought from Barba-

> Julia Domina Aug. Matri Castrorum, Matri August.

Spartianus Eutropius, and Aurelius Viller affure us, that Julia was but Caracalla's mother in law and that he married her after the death of his father Lucius Septimius Severus, but yet this is not mentioned by the Writers of that time : on the contrary, Die tells us, that Julia was the mother of Caracalla, and speaking of the temper of this Emperor, he fays, that he had the malicious mind both of his mother, and the Syriam, and confequently Julia was his mother; rality. and when the two brothers Caracalla and Geta fell out, the used them both alike, and spoke to them in thefe words, related be Herodian You have, my dear children, divided betwixt you the Land and the Sea, but bow will you share your Masker? If the had been but their step-mother the argument the brought to reconcile them, would bear no weight. Philoftratus who was very great at the Court of Severus, calls also Caracalla the lon of Julia lows. This Fork, or Pike, or Halberd lay whom Domition her Unkle stole away tron on the top, and was supported by two others her Husband to marry her; but he caused her to mifcarry, whereupon she died.

JULIANUS firnamed the Apoftate because he forsook the Christian Religion, after JULIA, The Daughter of Augustus, who he had made profession thereof. The Emperor liant, laborious, fober, watchful, liberal, and a great lover of learned men. With these qualifications he got the affection of the La gions, who proclaimed him Emperor in the City of Paris.

Confiantiss was much troubled at the heargainst the Persians to oppose Julian, he came and from thence to Merveflus in Cilicia, where it increased so much that he died. Ammie nus Marcellinus writ that he named Julian for his fuccessor; but St Gregory of Nazianzen fam on the contrary, that in this last period of his life, he repented to have elected Julian to the Empire. As foon as Julian faw himfelf abo folute mafter by the death of Conftantius, he ordered that the Temple of the false Gods should be opened, and their fervice fet up . gain; and took upon him the office of High Priest, re-establishing all the Heathen ceremonies, and restored those Priests to all their former Priviledges. He repaired the ruins of Idolatry, ordering that the Temples which were pulled down during the Reign of Conftantine and Conftantius should be built again. and new ones added to them.

He ordered also that the Images of the Gods should be fet up amongst his own, to deceive the Soldiers when the Donative was made; for it was a custom to offer Frankincence to the Images of the Emperors at the time of that ceremony. At first few of the Christian Soldiers took notice of it, yet those who perceived that they honoured the false Gods, the they designed only to honour the Emperors, were so much concerned at it that they refused the largess of the Prince. throwing at his feet in a fcornful manner the money they had received from his libe-

Sozomen reports that by his own orders ? piter was represented near him, as if he was come from Heaven on purpose to give him the badges of the Empire, and Mars and Mercury's images were looking upon him, infineating by that posture that he was eloquent and valiant. And this Author observes that he intended by these means to bring his Subjects under pretence of the honor due to him, to the adoration of the false Gods, who were se-presented with him. Wherefore St. Green Houses Rents, as we learn by this Epigram of Harianam fays, in his invective against of Mantial, 1, 12. Brien 32. Julian, that the ignorant people being deceived were brought to adore the Pazan Images. Besides, to flatter his own vanity, he commanded that he should be adored under the Image of Serapis, in imitation of Domitien, who ordered that he should be reprefented by the figure of Pallas, and Nero who commanded a marble figure of his head to be fer upon the body of a Colofs. Julian is represented on a medal with a beard, contrary to the custom of his age; upon which account the Inhabitants of Antioch reproached him with ridiculous affectation; whereby he intended, it may be, to imitate Marcus Aurelius, who did wear a Philosophers beard. For Eutropius affures us that he affected to be his imitator, and was ambitious of the title of a Philosopher. At last, having engaged the Persians, his army was routed, and hima long discourse with Maximus and Priscustoncerning the immortality of the foul, he died of the Latins. at one and thirty years of age, having reigned but one year and seven months. 'Tis reported that when he found himfelf wounded, he took some of his blood in his hand, and flung it against Heaven, pronouncing these words : Thou hast overcome, Galilean ; for thus be called our Saviour in derision.

The Works he has left us shew both his kept holy. Wit and Learning. The Panegyricks he had writ both in Profe and Verse, collected by Eunapies are lost; and there remains little of him, but the Invectives the Fathers have writ against him.

IULIUS, Julius Cafar, of whom I have spoken under the name of Casar. He was both Dictator and High Priest, and ordered the Roman Calendar to be reformed, wherefore it was called the Julian Calender, or the Calender of the Julian Correction. Marc. Antony during his Confulat, ordered that the Month Quintilis, wherein Julius Cafar was born, should be called by his name, for the future Julius, or July, under Jupiter's Protecti-

JULIUS, viz MENSIS. July: This Month was called in the Calender of Romulut, Quintilis, because it was the fifth Month of the Year, according to this King's Calender, who made up the Year of Ten Months only, beginning the Year with the Month of March: But afterwards this name was changed by the orders of Marc. Antony, and it was called Julius, in honour of Julius Cafar who had reformed the Calender of Romulus.

The first of this Month was a time ap- Gauls. pointed for removing Lodgings, and paying | The 23d Women with Child offered a

O Juliarum dedecus Calendarum Vidi, Vacerra, farcinas tuas, vidi : Quas non retentas pensione pro bima Portabat uxor rufa crinibus septem.

He means that his House Goods were so inconfiderable, that the owner of the House refused to keep them for payment of Two Years Rent due to him.

The fifth of this Month, or the third before the Nones, was a Holy Day called Peplifugia, the flight of the People, when Romulus was killed, and a dreadful fform put them to flight.

The feventh, or the day of the Nones, was called Caproting Nong, from the Latin Word Caprificus, a wild Fig-Tree, in remembrance of a Servant Maid called Tutola. or felf mortally wounded, and brought into his Philotis, who got upon a wild Fig-Tree, Camp, and the following night having held holding a burning Torch in her hand, as a token to the Remans, to furprize the Army

The next Day after this Feast, they kept another rejoycing Day, called Vitulatio, in honour of the Goddeis Vitula: because the following Day after the Victory obtain'd over the Latins, there were publick Rejoycings all over the City.

The 12th was Julius Cafar his Birth-day.

The Games called Apollinarii Circenfes, and Minervalus were represented in this Month. And a Temple was Dedicated to Female Fortune, in acknowledgment of the great Service that Veturia and Volumnia, the Mother and the Wife of Corislanus, had done to the Commonwealth, by hindering him to take revenge of the affront of his Banish-

At the Ides of the Month they made a general Muster of the Roman Knights, called Transvettio, Crowned with Branches of Olive Tree, and riding their own Horses from the Temple of Honour to the Capital. The Confors were present at this Ceremony, to see if their Horfes were in good case, and if they march'd in good order

The same Day the Feast of Caster and Pollux was kept in their Temple, built by the Son of Aulus Polibumius, in the great place of Reme, because they had fought for the Rom mans against the Latins, who arrempted to rethere Tarquinius Supurbus to Rome.

The 18th was accounted fatal, because upon that Day the Romans were defeated near the River Allia, and put to flight by the Sacrifice to the Goddels Opigena, and carried I day a feast was celebrated in honor of Haran fmall Wax Figures into her Temple, and ler, and the Senate dedicated him a Temple. prayed to her to grant them a happy Delive- in the Circus by Sylla's Order, who gave frame. rance.

The 24th, the Feafts of the Pontifi were ed Hercules with the tenth part of his wealth. kent.

The 25th, they went in Processions about the Fields, which were called Ambervalia.

The 28th, a Sacrifice of Wine and Honey was offered to Ceres; and the remainder of the Month was beltowed to Sacrifice reddish Dogs to the Dog-star, to moderate the ex- lably kept. cessive hear of that Season.

firnamed Alcanius, who came with his Father into Italy, and Reigned there after him. He where he had found a wild Sow with her young ones.

JUNIUS, June, the fixth Month of the Year, wherein the Sun enters the Sign Can- to remove out of the mind of the Romans the cer, which makes the Summer Solftice. This I fear occasioned by the rout of the Conful. Word comes from the Latin Junius, which fome derive à Tunone, as Ovid in the 5th of great feast of the Goddess Vesta, whereof I shall his Fast, introduces this Goddess, saying,

Junius a nostro nomine nomen habet.

Others take the Etymology of this word a Junioribus from young people.

Junius eft Juvenum. Ovid.

And fome others from Junius Brutus who expelled the King of Rome, and fettled the government upon the people. This month was under the protection of Mercury.

The first day of the month they folemnized four feasts, one dedicated to Mars out of the City, because upon the like day, F Quintius Duumvir of the Sacrifices had dedica- | because that day F. Flaminius was overcome ted a Temple to him out of the gare Capena on the via Apple, by the title of Mars Extra-Muranus. The other feast was kept in honor of Carna, in remembrance of the Temple that Junius Brusus confecrated to him upon mount Gelius, after he had driven away Tarquinius. The common opinion was that this Divinity prefided over the heart of chil- of great Cities commonly do upon holy dren, and inclined them which way she plea- | days. fed. They offerd Pap, Bacon, and Beans to her in Sacrifice.

The third feast was celebrated in honor of June Moneta, to perform the vow that Camillus had made, to build her a Temple.

The fourth feast was solemnized in honor of Tempest, and instituted in the time of the fecond Panick war.

The fourth, or the day before the Nones, the feast of Bellens was kept, whereof I have Spoken under the word Bellons. This same Others affure us, that she was born at Sames, ly entertainments to the people, and prefent.

The 5th, or the day of the Nones, they offered a facrifice to God Fidius, to whom the Romans built a Temple on mount Quirinal. after the peace was concluded with the Sebins: and they honoured this God, because the oaths taken in his name were invio-

Upon the 7th day happened the Fisherment JULUS, The Son of Eneas and Creusa, Feast, which was solemnized in the field of Mare with games, mirth and banquetting.

The 8th, or the 6th day of the Ides, a for built a City called Alba Longa, in a place lemn facrifice was offered to the Goddess Ment in the Capitol, to whom Attilius Crassus vowed a Temple after the defeat of the Conful C. Flaminins at the lake of Trasimenes, praying her

> The oth, or the 5th of the Ides, was kept the speak in its place.

> The 11th, or 3d of the Ides, was folemnized the feast of the Goddess Mainta, which shall be mentioned afterwards.

> Upon the Ides of June fell out the feafts of Jupiter firnamed Invittus or Invincible, to whom Augustus dedicated a Temple for the victories he had obtained. And this same day was kept the feast of Minerva called Quinquatrus mineres the Fiddlers feafts, mentioned in this book according to its order.

The 19th a facrifice was offered to Pallas on mount Aventinus. The 20th, another was offered to Summanus, to whom a Temple was dedicated upon fuch a day during the war of Pyrrhus. The 22d was reckoned a fatal day, by the Carthaginians. The 23 Syphax was vanquished by Masmilla, and the same day was called Dies Fortis Fortuna, because King Servius dedicated her a Temple out of the City beyond Tiber, where Workmen and Slaves crowned with flowers went by water to divert themselves and be merry, as inhabitants

The 27th was the feast of the Lares or houshold Gods. The 28th the feast of Quirinus was celebrated on the mount of the same name. and the 20th the feast of Hercules and the Mufes were kept in a Temple dedicated to them.

JUNO, The daughter of Saturn and Rhea, and Sifter to Jupiter. 'Tis reported that the was born at Argor a Town of Greece, whereupon the was firnamed by Poets Argive June. and have called her Samia.

into her bosom, according to the Fable, under the shape of a Cuckow, and then re-assuming his own form, enjoyed her upon condition he should marry her, which he performed. The truth is, that in that time Brothers and Sifters married together, after the cuftom of the Persians and Affrians. Wherefore June is represented by the Figure of a Goddess setting on a Throne, holding a Scepter in her hand, with a Cuckow on the top of it.

Poets don't agree among themselves, neither about the number of Children she had of Jupiter, nor the way she conceived them. Paulanius reports, that she had Mars, Ilithyia of Vulcan without having lain with her Hufband; and that she was big with Hibe for having eaten too much Lettice.

Tullus ordered that a Piece of Money should | Ground, they were lashed by a Lupercal be brought into her Temple at Rome, for every one that was born, as they were obliged to bring one to the Temple of Venus Libitina, for all those who died; and another to the Temple of Youth for those who put on the Viril Gown. And thus they kept in their Records a very exact account of all those who were born, or died at Rome, or were at an Age fit to bear Arms. This June who presided over the birth of Men, was named by the Romans, Lucina, and by the Greeks, Ilithyia: Statuit quanti pretii nummos pro singulis inferre deberent cognati : In erarium Ilithyia, Romani, Junonem, Lucinam, "Hpay Out-Gopow wocant, pro nascentibut ; in Venerus ararium, in Luco situm, quam Libitinam vocant, pro defunctis, in Juventutes pro togam virilem sumen- because of that Qualification, she had an Altibus.

Some Writers report, That Lucina is either Diana, or another Goddess than Juno; but the Pagans confound often the Goddeffes with Juno. Here is what Lucian fays about this matter, in his Dee Syria. ' In Syria, not far from Euphrater, flands a Town called the Holy City, because its Dedicated to Juno of Asseria. Within are the Golden Statues of Jupiter and June, both in a fitting posture; but the one is carried upon Oxen, and the other upon Lions. That of June has formething of feveral other Goddesses, for the 'holds a Scepter in one hand, and a Distaff in another : Her Head is Crowned with 'Rays, and Dreffed with Turrets, and her Waste girt with a Scarf, like the Celestial Venus. She is adorned with Gold and Jewfrom all parts. But what is most marvellous, is a precious Stone she has upon her

She Married her Brother Jupiter, who got | 'Night it illuminates all the Temple : for which reason they have given it the name of Lamp; but by day it has hardly any light, and only feems like Fire.

And indeed, as fome Men have confounded all the Gods with Jupiter, those who made the Image of June, mentioned by Lucian, had the like defign to Incorporate all the Goddesses in Juno's Person.

Lastantius tells us, that Tully derives the names of June and Jupiter, from the help and fucour that Men receive of them à Ju-

June prefided over Weddings and Womens Labours, and was called upon in these and Hibe by him. Lucian afferts in one of Exigencies, as we fee in Terence, where Glyhis Dialogues, that she was brought to Bed ceria being in Labour has recourse to her Juno Lucina, far opem.

When the Roman Matrons were barren . they went into her Temple, where having Dienysius Halicarnasseus writes, that King | pulled off their Cloaths, and lying on the Priest, with Thongs made of a Goat's Skin. and thus became fruitful; wherefore June was represented holding a Whip in one hand, and a Scepter in the other, with this Infcription, 7UNONI LUCINÆ, Poets have given many Epithets to June, calling her Lucina, Opigena, Juga, Domeduca, Cinxia, Unxia, Fluonia.

She was called Lucina, à Luce, because she helped Women to bring forth Children, and show them the Light: and for the same reafon the was also named Opigena and Obstetrix, because she helped Women in Labour.

Juga, Juno was called, because the presided at the Yoke of Matrimony, and confequently over the Union of Husband and Wife, and tar erected to her in one of the Streets of Rome, therefore called Vicus Jugarius, the Street of Yokes.

Domiduce, because she brought the Bride to the House of her Bridegroom.

Unxia, because of the Bride's anointing the fide Posts of the Door of her Husband going in thereat.

Cinxia, because she helped the Bridegroom to unite the Girdle the Bride was girded with; in fine she was called Fluonia, because she stopp'd the flux of Blood in Womens Labours.

In one word, June was like a Guardian Angel to Women, in the like manner that God Genius was the keeper of Men; for according to the Opinion of the Antients, the Genius's of Men were Males, and those of 'els of divers Colours, that are brought Women Females: Wherefore Women swore by June, and Men by Jupiter.

The Romans gave her feveral other names, 'Head, which casts so much light, that by and called her sometimes June Caprotins, Me-nets Sofits, and sometimes Regins and Co- by speaking of the nature of the Air, explains

Plutarch reports in the Life of Romulus, the confecratur. The Air between Heaven and Gault having taken the City of Rome, the Sa- the Sea, is called by the name of June, que bins and feveral other Nations of Italy, fan- eft forer & conjux Jovis, qued ei fimilisude eft ... cying that the Roman were weakened there- there, & cam eo fumma conjunctio. And hereby, took this opportunity to destroy them : upon is grounded the Kindred and Marriage Wherefore they raised a considerable Army, between Jupiter and June, i. e. Heaven and and proclaimed War against them, unless Air. And this is plainly discovered in a Fathey would fend them their Virgins to sport ble of Homer, wherein he tells us, that Turis with them. The Romans unwilling to com- ter tied June to a Chain, with two Anvils ply with their demand, accepted the Propo- hanging at her Feet, to flew that the Air is fal of Philotis a Maid-Slave, who offered her- independant on Heaven, and the Earth and felf to go over to them with her Compani- the Sea are dependant on the Air. In fine, ons; promising withal, that she would give Poets have ascribed to June the quality of warning to the Romans, when their Enemy Asuxoneses, albis ulnis, because of the transshould be deeply ingaged in Debaucheries : parency of the Air. Which the performed thus, She got up into JUNONALIA, A Holy-day kept in a wild Fig-Tree, from whence the gave a Honour of Juno, not mentioned in the Fasts Ladies, and entertained their Mistresses.

Moneta à monendo, i. e. to advise, or because upon the Temple of Queen June, on Mount when the Gauls took Rome, she advised the Aventine : Whereupon the Southsayers hav-Romans to Sacrifice to her a Sow great with ing been consulted, answered that the Royoung, or because that the Romans being at man Matrons were concerned in this Prodi-War with Pyrrhus, they called upon June, to gy, and that they should pacifie the Goddess be relieved with Money. Wherefore have by some Sacrifices and Offerings: Whereing driven Pyrrbus out of Italy, they built fore they collected Money, and bought a her a Temple, with this Title, JUNO NI Golden Bason, and presented the Goddess MONETE, and in that Temple the Mo- with it on Mount Avenine. Then the Deney was kept.

der this Title, Camillus after the taking of Cows were led from the Temple of Apollo. the City of Vice, where the had a very rich into the City through the Gate called Car-Temple, asked if the was willing to come mentalis, and two Images of Queen June. to Rome there to be adored, and her Statue made of Cyprus Wood, were carried. Then having made a fign that she consented to it, marched seven and twenty Girls, cloathed the first days of every Month, called the with Robes, edged with Purple. This pomp Calends . were confecrated to her , and a paffed by the Vieus Jugarius, and stopp'd in the White Cow, or a She Goat was commonly great Field of Rome; where the Girls fell a Sacrificed in her Honour, wherefore the was Dancing, keeping time with the Hymn. firnamed Ægophagos, or She-Goats Eater.

under her protection, viz. the Goose, the Oxen, they arrived at the Temple of Oneen Peacock, and the Vulture.

the Greeks and Romans have given the name Wood fet up therein. of June to the Air; and for that reason some JUPITER. Varre reckons three hun-Writers assure us, that the name of June in dred Jupiters, of several forts and Countries.

the Fable of Jume : Aer, ut fluici disputant, in She was firnamed Capretina, because, as terjettut tuter mare & calum , Jumnit memir

Signal to the Roman Army, who thoroughly of Ovid, but fully described by Livy, 1.7. routed the Enemy. In remembrance of this Decad. 3. This Feast was instituted on oc-Victory the Romans ordered a Feast to be casion of certain Prodigies that happened in kept every Year, at None Caprotine, in ho- Italy: Wherefore the Pontiffs ordered, that nour of June, called also Caprotina, from the seven and twenty young Girls, divided inwild Fig-Tree, à caprifico, at which time the to three bands, should walk finging a Song, Maid Slvaes diverted themselves, played the composed by Livius the Poet. But, while they were learning the Song by heart in the JUNO MONETA, June was called Temple of Jugiter Stator, the Thunder fell cemviri appointed a day for a folemn Sacri-IUNO REGINA, or Queen Juno. Un- fice, which was thus ordered. Two white he built her a Temple upon Mount Aven-tine. With long Gowns, finging an Hymn in Honour of the Goddess. Then followed the JUNO CALENDARIS, Because Decemvirs crowned with Laurel, and clad From thence they marching by the Tuscan-She was represented with Birds that were freet and Velabrum through the Market for June, where the Victims were Sacrificed by The Affricans and Affricans, and after them the December, and the Images of Cyprus Greek Hoa, is but a transposition of ain . Tal- The great Multitude of these Jupiters is doubtless grounded upon the first who went | should be conferenced to him. Poers fay that by that name, who had been kind to Men, he turned himself into an Eagle to freal aand had affifted them in their wants; where- way Ganguardes upon Magnet Min. However, fore after his Death, each Nation gave the Saturn reforced the ruine of Tunion; but Prafirmame of Jupiter to their King, either out metheur having acquainted him with his deof flattery, or because he was really a good fign, he tied him up with Woollen Bands, Prince, and imitated the Vertues of the true as the Fable fays, gelded him, and threw Tours, by the name whereof Poets meant him headlong into Hell; from whence bethe true God. In the like manner that the name of Hercules was abscribed to all great whom he was kindly received. Men, because the first of that name was very valiant and generous, as the Roman: did, who gave the name of Cafar to all their Emperours, tho' they were not of Julius Calar's Family.

Saturn and Rhea, or Ops, to whom all the cury's affiftance defeated them in the Phlegreau was called Jupiter, quasi juvans Pater, as Macrebits and Aulus Gellius report, and not from Hebrews.

did not put him to Death as fhe had promi-Olenus in Bastia.

Olenia surges sidus pluviale Capella, Que fuet in cunis Officiola Jovis.

her Son should not be fafe upon Mount Ida tune is firnamed Japitur Medius. in Phygia, fent him to a Mount of the fame | The Philosophers, who have Physically name in Candia.

to the Throne.

ing got out, he came to Janus in Italy, of Primus ab atherio venit Saturnus Olympo, Arma Jovus fugiens & Regnis exul ademptis.

In the mean while Jupiter took possession Tully, lib. 3. de natura Deorum, records but of the Kingdom of Crete: Then maintained three Jupisers, two whereof were born in a War against the Giants, under the com-Arcadia: one the Son of Ether, and the o- mand of Egon, who had an Hundred Arms, ther of Calus, who begat Minerva. The last and as many Hands, and blew Flames out was a Native of Crete or Candia, the Son of of as many Mouths. But Jupiter, with Meractions of the two other are ascribed, and Fields in Theffalia, and amongst others punished severely Typheus, laying whole Sicily over his Body, and Mount Octa over his the word Jehova, i. e. God, for the Romans Head. After this famous Victory, Jupicer had then no acquaintance at all with the madeWar against Tyrants, and protected Men in trouble, whereby he got a great name : After his Mother Rhea was delivered, she For he governed his Dominions by good and just Laws, and shared his Kingdoms with his fed Saturn, but fent him to the Cureter, Inha- Brethren, giving the Empire of the Sea and bitants of Mount Ida, where he was secretly Rivers to Neptune; the Government of Sub-Nurfed up: and the put in his room a Stone regraneous places to Pluto, and kept for himwrapp'd up in fwaddling Cloaths, which, as felf the Empire of Heaven, with the genetis faid. Saturn fwallowed down, thinking it ral Government of all that is done upon the was his Son. This Child was then deliver- Earth, according to the Fable. The truth ed up to the Nymps to take care of him, and is, that Jupiter perfelled himself of the Em-Amalthea suckled him with the Milk of a She pire of the East, and left the command in Goat; which Jupiter, being grown up, ranked the West to Plute, and to Neptune the Governamongs the Number of the Celestial Signs, I ment of the Seas. And tho' the name of Juin acknowledgment of her kindness, by the piter was granted to these three Brothers, yet name of Olenia Capella, from the Town of it was with this difference, that the name of Jupiter, absolutely taken, fignifies the King of Heaven; also called Supremus Rex hominum atque Deorum; but some Epithet is always added when that name is bestowed upon the two other; for when they speak of Pluto, he Some relate, that Rhea being afraid that is called Jupiter Infimus or Stygius, and Nep-

Interpreted this Jupiter by a natural Caufe, Jupiter being grown up, delivered his Fa- understand by him, the highest Region of ther Saturn, and his Mother Rhea from the the Air, where the Elementary Fire is plahands of the Titans; for having got together | ced, and the Fire it telf; which warming the a Troop of Creteans, he marched against the inferiour Air attributed to June, is able to Titans, routed them, and restored his Father produce all things. Others have taken this Jupiter for the Air in all its extent; Before he went to this Expedition, as he from whence comes this way of fpeaking, was offering Sacrifice in the Isle of Naxos, an Sub Dio, i.e. under Jupiter, or in the Air; Eagle came flying before him, which he took | for the Greek Word Zeen, the Genitive wherefor a good omen; and after he had obtain- of is Aids, fignifies Jupiter. Wherefore Hoed the Victory, he ordered that the Eagle I race fays, Manet Jub Jove frigido, he is exposed Landan.

to the Air.

Laffantius reports, That Jupiter was called mortalize their name, and obtain Divine he Zwe or Zw, because he was the eldest nours. of Saturn's Sons then living : his eldeft Bro- Notwithstanding it must be granted the thers having beenfall devoured by their Fa- the Jupiter of Crete, the Father of Miner, we ther : Quad primus ex liberit Saturni maribus one of the most famous, and most anciene wixerit. And that Euhemerus of Miffina in Pe- Jupiters of the West. Callimachus ethe Pol loponnesus has written his History, as well as and his Scholiafts have written, that Mines he that of the other Gods, taken out of the an- ving been buried in that Island, with this Incient Titles and Inscriptions he found in Scription, that he was the Son of Jupiter ; the the Temples ; that Emilie translated that Hi- name of Mines was put out, and that of June flory into Latin; and that these Histories are ter left. Wherefore the Inhabitants of Cree true, tho adorned with new inventions of faid, that they had the Sepulcher of Jupiter. Poets. That Jupiter reigned on Mount Olympus, The Datiyli of Mount Ida, the Curetes and the name whereof is sometimes given to Hea- Corybants, were ascribed to this Jupiter, beven, because of his heighth: wherefore Poets cause they had taken care of his Education. fancied that he was King of Heaven. That Jupiter Annon was also very famous, and he gave the Government of the Sea, and some was represented with a Ram's-head, because Islands in the neighbourhood of his Domini- of his intricate Oracles, if we believe Servions to Neptune, which gave occasion to Po- us. Herodotus gives us a better reason for the ets to represent Neptune as the King of the same, when he says that the Ammonites had Seas. That, in fine, Jugicer died and was bu- that worship from the Egyptians, who inhabite ried, as Lucian and Euhem rus report, in Crete, ed the City of Thebes, where Jupiter was rewith this Inscription, & Zeo's 76 Kpore, Jupi- presented with a Ram's-head. ter Saturni. At laft Lactantiur fays, that Jupiter having travelled over all Provinces, and by the Egyptians in the number of Gods, and gained the Friendship of all Princes, per- adored in the most remote Provinces. Diedefwaded them to build him Temples after his rus Siculus reporting the tradition of the Indeparture in token of Hofoitality.

feveral names, but the Greeks and Romans cal- fame ; for he fays that Jupiter Ammon was a led the Soveraign God of each Nation by great King, who, after his death, was reckthe name of Jupiter. Pliny, speaking of the oned a fabulous God, and a Chimerical Ora-God of the Ethiopians in Africa, called Affabi cle. This Historian mentions still another mur, fays that he was esteemed to be Jupi- Writer more ancient than himself, who ranked in the number of Gods, was also Saturn and other Titans, and that Rhea being known by the name of Jupiter, as 'tis record- divorced, the married Saturn, and induced ed by Diodorus Siculus.

whom the Greeks called Jupiter , as Eufebisus re- cape by Sea, and retired to Crete, where he ports. Dagon the God of the Phenicians of possessed himself of the Kingdom. the City of Azotus, was called by the Husbandmen Jupiter, because he had taught them invites having conquered Egypt, established how to manure the ground, and cultivate young Jupiter King of that Country, and Wheat. Dagon quod frumentum & aratrum in- gave him Olympius to be his Governour from venisset, nuncupatus eft Jupiter Aratrius. Jupiter | whence Jupiter was named Olympius. the Son of Neptune was a God of the Sidmians, called Maritimus, because this people was their Jupiter; however this Jupiter was but wholly given to Navigation.

was called Marnas at Gaza, was named Jupi- also by the undertaking of Alexander. For ter at Crete, for Marnas or Maranasin in the this Prince being acquainted that the Arabi-Phanician Language, fignify King of men.

There was a Jupiter Belus amongst the Babylonians, and a Jupiter Indiges amongst the might be their God amongst them. Latins, which shews, that what Varro affirms, as Tertullian relates in his Apologetick, is Wives, and even June his Sifter, according to true, that there were three hundred Jupiters, the Affgrian and Persian Fashion, and that being i.e. three hundred Kings, and King's Fa- a fruitful Lover, he begat a great many Jupiter Amnon was a King of Egypt, rank'd habitants of Libya, gives us a quite different Every Nation had their Jupiter, called by account of him, which yet comes to the wrote that Ammon reigned in Libya, and mar-Ofiris, The most famous King of Egypt, ried Rhea the Daughter of Celus. Sifter m him to make War against Ammon, whom he The Phaniciam had their Belus, or the Sun, vanquished, and forced him to make his ef-

Then the fame Author tells us, that Die-

Strabo writes, that the Arabians had alfo one of their Kings, as it appears not only Stephanus affures us, that the same who because he was affociated with Bacchus, but ans honoured but two Divinities, Jupiter and Bacchus, refolved to fubdue them, that he

Poets tell us that Jupiter married several thers, who called themselves Jupiter, to im- Children, both legitimate and natural, turnto enjoy his Amours ; wherefore Lucian introduces Momas rallying thus. 'Your fine Meramorphofes made me sometimes affraid. fift you should be brought to the Shambles, down, when thou wert Gold, and when a the Spit and roasted thee.

Minerus out of his Brain, which Vulcan opened with an Axe, as Lucian relates in the Dialogue of the Gods, where Vulcan and Jupiter a Temple at the foot of Mount Palatinus. focak thus. 'Vulcan, Here is a very sharp Axe. I bring you; what am I to do with it? Jup. Prythee strike hard, and cleave him this title, upon this occasion. For in my head afunder. Vul. You have a mind 'to fee whether I am mad or no, I warrant : but tell me in good earnest, what will you 'imploy it about? Jup. To divide my Skull, 'I fay. I am not in jest, and if you refuse, two Satyrs, who cured most desperate Di-'I will plague you. Strike with all thy 'might; for my Head is ready to folit with pain; and I fuffer fuch torments as if I was in labour with a Child. Vul. 'Tis a- Nymph Egeria, he ordered that Wine should gainst my will, but I must obey. Great be poured into the Fountain, and men should Gods! No wonder your head-ach was fo great, having fuch an Amazon with a coming to it. Both Satyrs according to their Sphear and a Shield lodged in it.

Tis ftill recorded that Bacchus came out of his thigh, where he had been lodged, to perfect his time, after he was taken out brought to Nume, who learned of them the of his Mother Semele's Womb, being yet fecrets how to bring down Jupiter upon the but half form'd. Wherefore an incition Earth, Elicere Jovem. And Numa having imwas made in his Thigh, when the pains of mediately tried it, Jupiter came down, wherelabour feiz'd him, to give a free Pailage to upon he commanded that a Temple should little Bacchur. And this is yet reported by be built to his honour by the title of Jupiter the same Lucian in the Dialogue of the Elicius. Gods.

to his feveral performances.

him facrifices.

arma fero, templumque his regionibus, quas mede ther, fent Prefents thither. animo metatus sum. dedico; sederaque opirais spoliis JUPITER LATIALIS had a

ing himself, sometimes into a Bull, some | Sequenter posteri ferent. This was the first Temrimes into a Swan, or an Eagle, or into Gold, | ple that was confectated to Jupiter in Rome, whither the spoils taken from Kings or Commanders of the Enemies Forces were brought.

JUPITER STATOR: & Siftendo. for put to the Plough, when thou wert a i. e. to flop, because spon the day of the en-Bull. or that a Goldsmith should melt thee gagement between the Remans and the Sabins, Romulus perceiving that his Soldiers loft Swan, lest they should have put thee upon ground, and were upon the point of running away, begged earnestly of Jupiter to stop 'Tis also reported, that he brought forth them, and raise their Courage, promising him withal to build another Temple to his honour: which being granted to him, he built under the Title of Tovi Statori.

JUPITER ELICIUS. Numa gave his time Mount Aventinus being not yet inhabited nor inclosed into Rome, and that Hill being covered with Springs of Water and thick Groves, frequented by Picus and Faunus, stempers by Inchantments; Nums having heard of them, defired to fee them and learn their fecrets; wherefore by the advice of the lye in wait to feize upon the Satyrs at their custom came thither, but being got drunk with the Wine of the Fountain, they fell afleep, and were easily feized upon, and

JUPITER CAPITOLINUS The Nations of the World built him a Thus called, because of the Temple vowed great many Temples, and honoured him by Tarquinius Priscus, in the War against the like a God, under feveral names, according Sabiur; he laid only the foundations of it, and it was finished by Tarquinius Superbus. He is called Jupiter Inventor, an Epithet The Temple was of a square Figure, having that Hercules bestowed upon him, because 220 Foot every way, and eight Acres of by his means he had found again the Cows ground in compass. There were three Chawhich Cacus had stole away from him, and pels in it, the Chapel of Jupiter in the miderected him an Altar, whereupon he offered die thereof, that of Minerva at the Right hand, near the place where the Nail was Romulus called him Jupiter Feretrius, because driven in every year to reckon the number he had strengthned him to overcome his Ene- of years, and that of June, which was on the mies, and get the spoils which he consecrated Left hand. The admirable Building, and to him in a Temple built at the top of the the rich Ornaments of this Temple, made Capitol under the Title of Jupiter Leretrius : it the most famous in Rome; and all the Pre-Livy gives us the words of this dedication : vinces subdued to the Roman Empire, and the Jupiter Feretri, hee tibi willor Romulus Rex regia | Confederate Kings in emulation one of ano-

que Regibus Ducibusque hostium cesis me autiorem | Temple on Mount Albanus, which Tarquinius .

Superbus caused to be built to his honour after where an Altar was credied. This priviles the defeat of Turnus. This Temple was com- was only allowed to the Citizens of Rom mon to all the Confederates, and a Sacrifice fays Arnobius; Quicunque Herceum Jouem habe was therein offered every year in common, bant, jur civitatis etiam habebant. to the Parise Latina.

ple built to him by this Title, was confectated to his honour by Tanquinius, in the Wood called Corniger Hammon. This Temple was of Bellong, and dedicated by Sp. Posthumus very famous on the account of his Oracles. Conful, in purtuance of a decree of the Senate, in the year colxxxvii.

IUPITER PISTOR, Thus called, because the Gauls having besieged the left; fometimes riding on a Kam, or a She Capitol, and the Romans being very much Goat, with this Inscription, JOVI CRES. ffreightned by the enemy, and pressed with CENTI, because he had been Nursed up hunger, Jupiter inspired them to make Bread with her Milk; sometimes sitting in the with the remainder of their Coin, and throw midft of the Four Elements, holding a Day it into the Camp of the enemy. Which ha- with one hand, and laying the other upon ving performed, the enemy loft all hopes to the Head of his Eagle; with two Figure starve them, wherefore they raised the Siege that lay along under his Feet, which repreand retired; and in acknowledgement of this fent the Two Elements of Water and Earth good advice, the Romans erected him an Al- having the Zodiack round about him, where tar under the title of Jupiter the Baker, Jovi the Twelve Signs are represented. Pifteri. There was alto in the Capitol a Figure of Jupiter Imperator, which Titus Quintius Eleus, famous for his Oracle, and the pub Dictator, brought from the Town of Pranefle, lick Games performed in Elis, called Olm. and placed there with a Table, whereupon pick Games. were ingraven his great Archievements.

Conquerous, to wom L. Papyrius Curfor built fented the Head of Jupiter, holding his Thun-2 Temple by this title, because he had over- der Bolt with his right hand, and his Eagle come the Sammites and the Gouls.

VE-JUPITER, or VE-JOVIS had a Temple between the Tarpeian Rock and the Capitol near the African. His statue was was fallen upon the Capitol. made of Cyprus Wood, holding a Dart in his hand ready to be flung.

thundering, an Epithet that Augustus gave the Emperour under his Thunder, to shew him; for having built a Temple to him upon that he was under Jupiter's protection; or the Capitol, he dedicated it to him under else his Figure was Ingraven, laying upon that name; and erected therein three sta- a Globe, and holding Victory, which he entues, one done by the hand of Buthyraus Dif- deavours to Crown, and the Eagle at his ciple to Miron; the other by Lorrar, and the Feet, with these words, JOVI CONSEL. third was made of Brass. Augustus caused VATORI AUGUSTORUM NOSTRO this Temple to be built in honour of Jupiter RUM. On the Medals of Nero and Velpas Tonans, because going once by night against an, Jupiter was named Custos, and representthe Inhabitants of Biscar, the Thunder fell ed sitting on a Throne, holding his Thunby his Litter, and killed one of his Servants, der in his right hand, with this Inscription, who carried a Torch; whereupon the Emperor vowed a Temple to Jupiter Tonans, for TOS. having preferved him in fo great a danger Joui Tonanti, fays Suetonius, edem confectavit, Italy, and is represented like a young Boy, liberatus periculo, cum expedicione Cantabrica, pur nocturnum iter lecticam ejus fulgor perstrinxisset, Groumque prælucentem exanimaffet.

JUPITER ULTOR, Jupiter the Revenger of Crimes had a Temple dedicated to him by M Agrippa.

JUPITER HERCEUS, from the the Waters of the River Styx. The Fable Greek lengtor. The Troiter of private houses, lays, that Victory, the Daughter of sim

IUPITER AMMON, or Hammen JUPITER SPONSOR, The Tem- had a Temple in Libya, and a Statue und

Jupiter is represented on several Medale fometimes carrying Victory in his right hand, and a Spear instead of a Scepter in the

IUPITER OLYMPIUS, firnamei

On the Silver Medals of Lucius Lentulus JUPITER VICTOR, Jupiter the and Caiss Marcellus, both Confuls. is reprewith his left; having before him a little Altar, and the Star of Jupiter. This Medal was stamp'd to pacifie Jupiter after the Thunder

Jupiter, Conservator, was also represented holding his Thunder-bolt with one hand JUPITER TONANS, Jupiter and a Datt with the other, and the Figure of JUPITER CUSTOS, or 70 VIS CUS

> JUPITER, was firnamed Anxuru in without a Beard, Crowned with Branches of Olive, and holding a Goblet or Patera in his right hand, and his Scepter in the other.

> JURAMENTUM, An Oath taken to confirm a thing.

The folemnal Oath of the Gods, was by having affisted Jupiter against the Giants, he | roes, ranked in the number of Gods, as by that River; and in case they forswore them- | Casar the Romans began to swear by the health Feeling, during Nine thousand Years, as However, Tiberius did not allow it, but Cali-Servius reports; and gives this reason for this gula ordered, that all those who should re-Fable, that the Gods being Immortal and fuse to do it should be put to Death; and happy, swear by the Styx, which is a River came to such an excess of folly and madness, of forrow and grief, which is very contrary that he commanded that the People should to their temper; and that Oath was a kind swear by the Health and Fortune of a fine of Execration, in lib. 6. Eneid.

of these Gods had told a lye, Jupiter sent Iris lib. 59. They also Swore by one anothers to fetch some Water out of Styx in a Golden Genius, as appears by a place of Seneca: Ju-Veffel, whereupon the Lyer takes the Oath; rat per Genium meum. and if he forswears himself, he is a whole JUS. The Law. There are three kinds of long one, including many Millions of Years. tions, and the Civil Law.

Diodorus Siculus, I. 11. Pag. 67. tell us, that very ancient; and that two very deep Ba- Procreation, and F-lucation of Children. fons were kept therein, full of boyling Water mix'd with Brimstone, always full, and son has inspired and dedicated to all Men, never flowing over. In this Temple folemn and is practifed by all Nations, as Religion Oaths were taken, and Perjuries were imme towards God, Piety towards Parents, and diately punished very severely; some of them being condemned to have their Eyes the difference and division of Nations, settleput out. Silius Italicus has expressed in Verse what Diodorus has here reported.

Et qui prasenti domitant perjura Palici, Pettora Supplicio.

To this purpose Firzil speaks thus, Lib. 9. Encid v. 584. Symethia circum

Flumina, pinguis ubi & placabilis ara Palici.

The two Basons where the Oaths were taken, and the Divine vengeance broke out upon the Purjured, were called Delli. Miscrobins after Callias makes mention of them, faying, Nec longe inde lacus breves funt, quos incola Crateres vocant, & nomine Dellos appellant, et appeared no more.

ry like this above-mentioned.

Women impeached of Adultery were o- keeping withal all Men in their Dury. bliged to drink.

order'd for a Reward of her Service, that Quirinus, Hercules, Cafter and Pollux, &c. Suethe Gods should Swear by the Waters of tonius relates, that under the Empire of Julius selves, they should be deprived of Life and of the Emperours, and by their Genius. Horse, which he intended to take for his He find in his Theogonia relates, that when any Colleague in his Confulat, as Dion tells us, year without life and motion, but a very Laws; the Law of Nature, the Law of Na-

The Law of Nature is what Nature teaches the Temple of the Gods, called Palici, fa- all living Creatures, and is in a manner mous in Sicily, was there much respected and common to Men and Beafts, as Marriage,

The Law of Nations is what natural Rea-Love of our Country. From thence comes ment of Kingdoms, share of Demesn, Trade, and most fort of Obligations: From hence also arises the right of War, to take Prisoners, to accept of their ransom, to set them at liberty, or to detain them in flavery.

The Civil Law is what each City or State has established or enacted for a Law: For natural reason having taught Men to live together, and for that purpose to build Towns. and create Magistrates, has also taught them to make Laws, and assume to themselves a private and particular right, to be the tye and rule of their Societies; and this is called the Civil Law, i.e. the Law of the City or Countrey.

The Civil Law which is now taught in featres que est Palicorum affimant. Aristotle af- Schools, is a body composed of Roman Laws, lures us, that the Person who took the Oath viz. a Collection of the Law received, inwrote it upon a Ticket which he threw in- troduced and observed in the City of Rome. to the Water. The Ticket floated over if and all the extent of the Roman Empire, duthe Oath was true; if it was false, the Tick- ring the space of more then twelve hundred years; during which time, the Roman peo-Appollonius Tyaneus, 1. 1. c. 4. in his Life, ple, who feem'd born to command, not written by Philostratus, mentions a Spring of only made a considerable Progress by their Water at Tyana in Cappadocia, which was ve- Valour towards the general Empire of the Universe; but also carefully and dili-This my Story of taking the Oath, and gently inquired after the best methods and punishing Perjuries, was doubtless an imita- rules to govern themselves and their Subtion of what is written in the Book of Num- jects with Justice and Equity, and render to bers, concerning the trial of Waters, which every particular Man what was due to him.

And to succeed in their design, not being The Rom ans fwore by their Gods, and He fatisfied with their own, they lent to Greece, the defeat of Tirrus. This Temple was com- was only allowed to the Citizens of Rem mon to all the Confederates, and a Sacrifice fays Arnobius; Quicunque Herceum Tourn hat. was therein offered every year in common, bant, jut civitatis etiam habebant. to the Paris Latina.

ple built to him by this Title, was confectated to his honour by Tarquinius, in the Wood called Corniger Hammon. This Temple was of Bellona, and dedicated by Sp. Postbumus Conful, in purinance of a decree of the Senate, in the year colxxxvii. JUPITER PISTOR, Thus called, because the Gauls having besieged the left; sometimes riding on a Ram, or a She Capital, and the Romans being very much Goat, with this Inscription, JOVI CRES. ffreightned by the enemy, and preffed with CENTI, because he had been Nursed up hunger, Jupiter inspired them to make Bread with her Milk; fometimes sitting in the with the remainder of their Corn, and throw midft of the Four Elements, holding a Dan it into the Camp of the enemy. Which ha- with one hand, and laying the other upon ving performed, the enemy lost all hopes to the Head of his Eagle; with two Figures starve them, wherefore they raised the Siege that lay along under his Feet, which repreand retired; and in acknowledgement of this fent the Two Elements of Water and Earth good advice, the Romans erected him an Al- having the Zodiack round about him, where tar under the title of Jupiter the Baker, Jovi the Twelve Signs are represented. Piffori. There was also in the Capitol a Fi-! JUPITER OLYMPIUS, sirnamel gure of Jupiter Imperator, which Titus Quintius Eleus, famous for his Oracle, and the pub-Dictator, brought from the Town of Pranefte, lick Games performed in Elis, called Olm and placed there with a Table, whereupon pick Games.

Conquerous, to wom L. Papyrius Curfor built fented the Head of Jupiter, holding his Thun-2 Temple by this title, because he had overcome the Sammites and the Gauls.

a Temple between the Tarpeian Rock and Stamp'd to pacifie Jupiter after the Thunder the Capitol near the Afrium. His statue was was fallen upon the Capitol. made of Cyprus Wood, holding a Dart in his hand ready to be flung.

thundering, an Epithet that Augustus gave the Emperous under his Thunder, to shew him; for having built a Temple to him upon that he was under Jupiter's protection; or the Capitol, he dedicated it to him under else his Figure was Ingraven, laying upon that name; and erected therein three sta-tues, one done by the hand of Bushprasu Dis-deavours to Crown, and the Eagle at his ciple to Miron; the other by Lorras, and the Feet, with these words, 70 VI CONSERthird was made of Brass. Augustus caused VATORI AUGUSTORUM NOSTROthis Temple to be built in honour of Jupiter RUM. On the Medals of Nero and Velpus Tonans, because going once by night against an, Jupiter was named Custor, and representthe Inhabitants of Biscar, the Thunder fell ed sitting on a Throne, holding his Thurby his Litter, and killed one of his Servants, der in his right hand, with this Inscription, who carried a Torch; whereupon the Em- JUPITER CUSTOS, or 70 VIS 6US peror vowed a Temple to Jupiter Tonans, for TOS. having preferved him in fo great a danger Joui Tonanti, fays Suetonius, edem confecravit, liberatus periculo, cum expedicione Cantabrica, pur nosturnum iter letticam ejus fulgor perftrinxiffet, ferwumque pralucentem exanimaffet.

JUPITER ULTOR, Jupiter the Revenger of Crimes had a Temple dedicated to him by M Agrippa.

Supervius caused to be built to his honour after where an Altar was credited. This primite

JUPITER AMMON, or Hammen JUPITER SPONSOR, The Tem- had a Temple in Libya, and a Statue und very famous on the account of his Oracles.

Jupiter is represented on several Medale fometimes carrying Victory in his right hand, and a Spear instead of a Scepter in the were ingraven his great Archievements.

JUPITER VICTOR, Jupiter the and Caius Marcellus, both Confuls, is repreder Bolt with his right hand, and his Eagle with his left; having before him a little Al-VE-JUPITER, or VF-JOVIS had tar, and the Star of Jupiter. This Medal was

Jupiter, Confervator, was also represented holding his Thunder-bolt with one hand JUPITER TONANS, Jupiter and a Datt with the other, and the Figure of JUPITER, was firnamed Anxuru in Italy, and is represented like a young Boy, without a Beard, Crowned with Branches of Olive, and holding a Goblet or Patera in his right hand, and his Scepter in the other.

JURAMENTUM, An Oath taken to confirm a thing.

The folemnal Oath of the Gods, was by JUPITER HERCEUS, from the the Waters of the River Styx. The Fable Greek igne of. The Traiter of private houses, Tays, that Victory, the Daughter of Sim of Execuation, in lib. 6. Eneid.

Veffel, whereupon the Lyer takes the Oath; rat per Genium meum. long one, including many Millions of Years. tions, and the Civil Law.

Diodorus Siculus, 1. 11. Pag. 67. tell us, that | The Law of Nature is what Nature teaches very ancient; and that two very deep Ba- Procreation, and F-lucation of Children. fons were kept therein, full of boyling Wa- The Law of Nations is what natural Reaput out. Silius Italicus has expressed in Verse what Diodorus has here reported.

Et qui præsenti domitant perjura Palici, Pettora Supplicio.

To this purpose Virgil speaks thus, Lib. 9. Encid v. 584.

. Symethia circum Flumina, pinguis ubi & placabilis ara Palici.

The two Basons where the Oaths were taken, and the Divine vengeance broke out upon the Purjured, were called Delli. Mafaying, Nec longe inde lacus breves funt, quos in- or Countrey. cole Crateres wocant, & nomine Dellos appellant, fratres que cos Palicorum estimant. Aristotle affures us, that the Person who took the Oath wrote it upon a Ticket which he threw inet appeared no more.

ry like this above-mentioned.

Women impeached of Adultery were or keeping withal all Men in their Dury. bliged to drink.

The Ron ans fwore by their Gods, and He- fatisfied with their own, they lent to Greece, having affifted Jupiter against the Giants, he | roes, ranked in the number of Gods, as by ardet d for a Reward of her Service, that Quirinus, Hercules, Caffer and Pollux, &c. Suethe Gods should Swear by the Waters of tonius relates, that under the Empire of Julius that River; and in case they forswore them. Casar the Romans began to swear by the health felves, they should be deprived of Life and of the Emperours, and by their Genius. Feeling, during Nine thousand Years, as However, Tiberius did not allow it, but Cali-Serving reports; and gives this reason for this gula ordered, that all those who should re-Fable, that the Gods being Immortal and fuse to do it should be put to Death; and happy, fwear by the Styx, which is a River came to fuch an excess of folly and madness, of forrow and grief, which is very contrary that he commanded that the People should to their temper; and that Oath was a kind fwear by the Health and Fortune of a fine Horse, which he intended to take for his Hilled in his Theogenia relates, that when any | Colleague in his Confulat, as Dion tells us, of these Gods had told a lye, Jupiter sent Iris lib. 59. They also Swore by one anothers to fetch some Water out of Styx in a Golden Genius, as appears by a place of Seneca: Ju-and if he fortwears himfelf, he is a whole JUS. The Law. There are three kinds of year without life and motion, but a very Laws; the Law of Nature, the Law of Na-

the Temple of the Gods, called Palici, fa- all living Creatures, and is in a manner mous in Sicily, was there much respectived and common to Men and Beasts, as Marriage, ter mix'd with Brimstone, always full, and son has inspired and dedicated to all Men, never flowing over. In this Temple folemn and is practifed by all Nations, as Religion Oaths were taken, and Perjuries were imme towards God, Piety towards Parents, and diately punished very severely; some of Love of our Country. From thence comes them being condemned to have their Eyes the difference and division of Nations, settlement of Kingdoms, share of Demesn, Trade, and most fort of Obligations: From hence also arises the right of War, to take Prisoners, to accept of their ransom, to set them at liberty, or to detain them in flavery.

The Civil Law is what each City or State has established or enacted for a Law: For natural reason having taught Men to live together, and for that purpose to build Towns, and create Magistrates, has also taught them to make Laws, and assume to themselves a private and particular right, to be the tye and rule of their Societies; and this is calcrobins after Callias makes mention of them, led the Civil Law, i.e. the Law of the City

The Civil Law which is now taught in Schools, is a body composed of Roman Laws, viz. a Collection of the Law received, introduced and observed in the City of Rome, to the Water. The Ticket floated over if and all the extent of the Roman Empire, duthe Oath was true; if it was false, the Tick- ring the space of more then twelve hundred years: during which time, the Roman peo-Appollonius Tyaneus, 1. 1. c. 4. in his Life, ple, who feem'd born to command, not written by Philostratus, mentions a Spring of only made a confiderable Progress by their Water at Tyana in Cappadocia, which was ve- Valour towards the general Empire of the Universe; but also carefully and dili-This my Story of taking the Oath, and gently inquired after the best methods and punishing Perjuries, was doubtlets an imital rules to govern themselves and their Subtion of what is written in the Book of Num- jects with Justice and Equity, and render to ben, concerning the trial of Waters, which every particular Man what was due to him,

And to succeed in their delign, not being then flourishing in all kinds of Learning, of them who use it, and this is called Co to inquire after their Laws : Wherefore the ftom. These two several kinds of Laws are Body of the Roman Law is not the work of much in request in France, for they have a man only, nor of some few Years, but there the Edicts and Ordinances of their the work of many Nations and Ages toge- Kings for a Written Law; and as for Ca ther. brought to perfection by a long and from, there is almost no Province, but his laborious Observation of humane affairs, Laws called customs particular to themthat the greatest with of that flourishing selves. State, fully instructed by the exercise of inferiour Magistrates, and from thence raised lection of Ecclesiastical rules, definitions and to the highest Offices of the Empire, have constitutions, taken out of the antient Gene collected and reduced under certain Princi- ral and Provincial Councils, the writing ples and general Maxims, of which it was and resolutions of the Fathers of the Church formed and perfected.

their hand to this work, the number of Vo- Ecclesiallical State, not only concerning the lumes were grown almost infinite. Justinian administration of Sacraments, management the Emperous gave order to Trebonianus his of the Estates, and regulating of Clergymen. Chancellor, and some other great Lawyers of but also in what concerns the Lairy, and Sehis Age . to reduce it to a perfect Body, cular men in Spiritual matters, and this Law. which they divided into three Volumes, which was lately collected and composed on which are remaining still, viz. Pandetta or the Model of the Civil Law, is contained Digefts, the Code, and Institutes, as we may and reduced into three Volumes, the first fee in the Preface of the Institutions of Jufti- whereof is called the Decree of Gratian, comnian, and by the title of the Code, de vete- posed of the ancient Canons, or rules taken ri jure enucleando.

The Digests contain the Opinions and Re- the Fathers. folutions of antient Lawyers.

The Code is composed of the Constitutions and Rescripts of the Emperours, fince stitutions or rescripts of the Popes, chiefly Adrian to Justinian.

of all that is contained in the two former ters taken out of the Epiftles of Pope Gregor, Volumes, i. e. an Abridgment of the Ro- and some other Antients. man Law.

added the Constitutions of Justinian, called till Banifacius VIII. by whose authority it was Nevella or Authentica; which, altho' they are collected; but this volume is hardly renot contained in the body of the Law, col- ceived in France, because of the difference lected and published by the order of Justini- between Bonifacius and Philip, called le Bel m, yet they have obtained fuch an Autho- King of France, and for many things inferted rity, that the they were published last by therein, contrary to the liberties of the Gell-Justinian's order, yet they have exceeded the lean Church. former in many things.

ven after the ruine of the Roman Empire, the ment V. decreed in the Councel of Vienna best polited Nations in the World make still and some rescripts of John XXII. and other use thereof to decide all their differences.

and the unwritten.

The written Law is that which being collected into Writing, is published in a man- by the Ancients Afras, Daughter of Jupin ner usual to each state. In the Roman Dominions there were fix kinds of this written of a naked and blindfolded Virgin, bolding Law, called by feveral names, viz. Lex, Senatur Consulta, Plebiscita, Principum Placita, Ma- Sword with the other, to shew that Inflice giftratuum Editta, Responsa Prudentium. These has no regard to persons, and punishes and several Definitions are related by Justinian in rewards equally. the 2. Cap. of his first Book.

The Canon Law is nothing elfe but a coland conflitutions and rescripts of the Popes, And because so many Men having put whereby are decided all controversies of the from the ancient Councils and Writings of

The Second is called the Decretals, containing the Decretal Epistles i. e. the confince Alexand r III till Gregory IX. by whole The Institutes is an excellent Abridgment authority it was compiled and some Chap-

The last volume is called Sextum, contain-To these three Volumes they have fince ling the rescripts of the Popes since Gregory IX.

At the end of this volume are added the And this Work was so excellent, that e- Clementina, which are the constitution of Cle Popes commonly called extravagantes, because The Civil Law is twofold, the written they are out of the Body of the Canon-law, composed in three volumes.

JUSTITIA. Justice, A Goddess called and Themis. She is reprenfeted by the figure an even ballance with one hand, and a naked

Hefied fays, that Justice the Daughter of Je The unwritten Law is that which has in- piter is tied to his Throne in Heaven, and troduced it felf by Practice and Tacit confent demands revenge of him, every time that Succession of calamities is poured upon Nat felf. At first I took no notice of his love; wito are punished for the Crimes of but afterwards he had always his eyes faften'd Kings and great men.

feer description of the Goddess Justice, who feeted to drink after me, and lookt on me during the Golden Age was conversant night | while he was drinking; and then kissed the and day on the earth, amongst People of all Glass, I perceived his folly, and I was aforts of Age, Sex, and Condition, teaching her Law. During the Silver Age, she ap- it would soon be over. But at last he grew Earth, and retire into Heaven, because of the multitude and enormity of Crimes.

JUTURNA. A Fountain in Latium, difimboguing itself into the River Numicius. The Fable tells us, that fhe was Daughter of Danaus, and Sifter to Turnur King of the Rutall, whom Jupiter loved and enjoyed, the ble. For tis no wonder if feeding upon the affifted her Brother againft Eneas ; but having perceived that the Fates were averse to into the River Numicius.

Owid, in the 6th Book of his Fasti, speaks of the Temple of Juturna the Sifter of Turnus, fo often mentioned by Virgil in his Eneids, who was beloved by Jupiter, from whence the took her name, as if one faid Jovisurna.

Fountain in Isaly, the waters whereof were | Jup. Dost thou remember it still? Shall Verre on the contrary feems to fay, that the is ... waters of that Fountain were fought after, because of its name, out of a superstitious and common simplicity, Nympha Juturna qua invaret ; itaque multi propter id nomen hine aquam perere Solent.

IUVENTAS, called by the Greeks Hebe, the Goddess of Youth, Juno's Daughter. See | thee? Hebe.

IXION. The Son of Phlegias or Ation. Lucian in his Dialogue of the Gods introduces Juno and Jupiter talking thus of Ixion.

Jun, Who do you think was Ixion? Jup. A very gallant man, and good Company, or elfe I would not have admitted him to my Table.

Jun. He is an infolent fellow, who doth not deferve that honour. Jup. What has he done? I would fain know? Jun. I am ashamed to tell it, such i his impudence.

as much.

M. Laws are violated, whereupon a long | Jun. Ho has made his addresses to myupon me, and that from time to time he hatur in his Phænomena gives us still a sighed, and let some tears drop, that he atfhamed to acquaint thee with it, and thought peared only in the night, and in fecret re- to infolent as to tell me of it; then prefentproaching men with their unlawful ways; but ly flopping my ear, left I should hear him, I in the Iron Age, the was forced to quit the came running as fast as I could, to give thee notice of it, that thou mightest make an example of him.

gup. That is a bold Rogue to attempt to plant Horns on Jupiter's Head. He was certainly drunk with Nectar; but 'tis my fault to love mortals to well, as to admit them to my Tafathe meat as I do, they are transported with the same defires, and fall in love with imhim, out of despair she cast herself headlong mortal Beauties. Thou know'ft thy self what a Tyrant Love is.

Jun. 'Tis true, that he is thy mafter, and that, as they fay, he leads thee by the Nofe. However I do well perceive why thou pityst Izion: He doth nothing but what thou haft deserved ; for thou hast formerly lain The truth of the History is, that it was a with his Wife, and begot Peritbeur by her.

very fine and wholesom, from whence it I tell thee my opinion in this matter? It took also its name, as Servius informs us, would be too great a punishment to banish in lib. 12. Aneid. Jaturna font eft in Italia him for ever out of our Company ; but fee-Saluberrimus, cui nomen a juvando est inditum. ing that he cries and fighs, my opinion

> Jun. What ! That I lay with him ? Jup. No, some other Phantom like thee, somewhat to satisfy his passion. Jun. This would be to reward him, instead of a punishment. Jup. But what harm would that do

Jun. He would think to embrace me.

and the difgrace would redound to me. Jap. But he should be deceived; for if we fhould form a Cloud like thee, it should not be June herself. Jun. As men have commonly more vanity than love, he would brag of it, and fay, that he had lain with me, and I should lose my reputation.

Jup. If it thus falls out, I will throw him headlong into Hell, where being tied to a Wheel, he shall turn for ever, without enjoying any rest.

Jun. This wont be too great a punishment Jup. Has he made an attempt upon some for his crime. In short, Ixion being per-Goddeffes honour, for you feem to intimate fwaded he had imbraced June, because he hugged a Cloud like her, bragged of it, whereupon Jupiter precipitated him into Hell, armed with his Breast Plate, holding with where he turns a Wheel without Intermission. one hand the Labarum, wherein an Eagle is Ifaac Tzerzes relates, That Ixion having kil- drawn. But Confiantine the Great, in the War led his Father in law, and being wandering against Maxentins, where he vanquished him and vagrant, as a punishment of his crime, by the fign of the Cross, which he fawin was entertained by a King named Jupiter, the Clouds, Crowned the Laborum with a who kindly received him in his Palace, and rich Crown, belet with precious Stones, and admitted him to his Table; but Ixim having ordered that this Cypher P, ied Chrift, with forgot this kindness, imbolden'd himself to these two Letters, A and Ω, to signific that discover his love to the Queen; which be- Jesus Christ is the beginning and the end; should ing reported to the King, to inform himfelf be wrought in Gold upon the Purple Stands of the truth of the matter, ordered that one ard. We have a Medal of Constance, wherein of the Queens Maids of Honour called Ne- the Emperour is represented with his Coat phele, or Cloud, should be dressed with the of Armour on, with his right hand holding Queens Apparel, and brought to Ixim, who up Victory, which Crowns his head with enjoy'd her, thinking it was the Queen her Laurels, and with the left hand he carries the Latin, and comes from the Greek Kappa, the Ancients. 12 5 It was accounted uteless by Priscian. Claudius Daulquius fays, from Saluft, that the inventer of the Letter K, was named Salvius, and that trived, that 'tis very hard to get out against it was unknown to the ancient Romans.

Aaa2

K.

fies amongst the Ancients two hundred and Herodotus, having amongst other remarksfifty; and with a stroke above it, it stands ble things sixteen Wards, or great sides of for an Hundred and fifty thousand.

Calenda, &c.

the Alphabet. L is also a numeral Letter the Minataur, and had not escaped but by amongst the Ancients, which stands for Fif- the help of the chie of Ariadue. The third ty, and fignifies the fame in the Roman Arith- Labyrinth was in the Isle of Lemner, and had merical Figures: And when a ftroke is ad- a hundred and fifty Pillars of Marble: And ded to it, it stands for fifty thousand.

LABARUM, The Standard of the Ro- Porsenna King of Tuscany. man Emperours, carried before them in the LACERNA, A kind of a Garment Wars, and adored by the Soldiers. It was worn by the Romans over their Gowns, like a long Spear, with a Staff fet crofs-way at a Calfock to keep off rain and cold. The the upper end thereof, and from that Staff Soldiers, the common People, and the Empehung down a rich Standard of Purple co- rours did wear it even in days of Shews. lour, edged with a Fringe, and befet with The Emperours had this Garment made of precious Stones. The Roman Emperors carried Purple coloured Cloth. Ovid informs us, in their Colours or Labarum, an Eagle Paint- that Lucretia halfned her Servants to finish ed or Embroidered with Gold; as we may that kind of Garment, that she might send observe in the reverse of a Medal of Max- it to Collatinus her Husband, who laid Seige entime, wherein this Tyrant is represented to Ardia.

the Labarum. Those who did bear the Labarum in the Armies, were called Labariferi ..

LABRUM, A great Tub, standingilat the entrance of the Temple of the Jews, and the Pagans in imitation of them, where the Priests wash'd their Feet and Hands be-A double Consonant, and the tenth fore they offered Sacrifices. Labrum fignile Letter of the Alphabet , taken from fies alio a Bathing Tuh, uted in the Baths of LABYRINTHUS, A Labyrinth, a place full of turnings, and windings, fo con-Pliny mentions four Labyringht; that of Egypt, K is also a Numeral Letter, which signi- which was the greatest of all, described by Houses, answerable to the sixteen Govern-KALENDE, The Calends, or the first ments of Egypt; avaich Ments or Mara day of every Month amonst the Romans. See King of that Country ordered to be built to ferve him for a Manfoleum , as Philoftram reports: And upon the Model of this Labyrinth, Dadalus built that of Grees or Candia, by Nines's order, to faut in the Minetaur therein. But Dedalus was there thut up himfelf with his Son : However he got out by the means of Wings he made of Wax. The Or Ell, the name of the eleventh Letter of few was there alto exposed to be devoured by the fourth was built in Italy by the orders of

Mittenda

Mittenda eft Domino, nunc nunc properate, pu-Quam primum nostra fatta lacerna manu.

And Lampridius speaking of the Emperour Arxander Severus , fays, That he returned from the Baths with the common People, am accipiebat.

Some mistaking two places in Juvenal and Herace fay, That this Garment was worn by Women; but have not observed that Juvenal speaks of one Sporus whom Nero Married as if he had been a Woman.

Infe lacernata cum je jastaret amica :

And that there is a fault in the Verse of ed. Herace; for Lambinus will have us read, Sub dara nuda lacerna, instead of Sub clara nuda lucerna, it being a common thing for thefe profitute Women, whereof Horace speaks, to wait for their Sparks by the light of a Lamp.

LACHESIS, One of the three Defti-

many Spindles in her hands.

LACONICUM, A S. ove, or Sweating house. The dry Stove were thus called by the Ancients, because the Lacademonians brought them into use. Mercurialis finds fault with those who confounded Laconicum, which is a place for Sweating, with Hypocauffum, which was the Stove that warmed the Laconicum.

LACOTOMUS, A line to mark the lines in the Analymma. Grammarians have not afferted the fignification of this word, pon, made of a long Staff like a half Pike, which feems to be a Greek word, and is not found in the Treatife that Ptolomy has written concerning the Analimma. The most common opinion is, that this word comes from the Greek Auxis, i. e. paring of Cloath, and from the Verb Thurn, i. e. to act; for Nymph Stilbe. At the Wedding of Perithous the line called Lacotomus cuts one part of the their King, with Hippodamia, they fought love with a certain Woman of extraordina- his other Gods.

LAMIÆ, were accounted Hags, or rather evil Spirits, who under the shape of Metamorphoses. fair Women enticed Youth to devour them.

whereupon the grew to mad, that the devoured all the Children she met.

Dion Chrisostome reports this Story otherwife; for he tells us, That there are in the Defart of Lybia some fierce Beasts, who have the Face and Breast of young Maids, and the reften the Body, which they take care to hide, without any other badge of his Imperial Dig- is like a Serpent; and that they intice the nity, but his Lacerns of Purple Colours, Hoc Travellers by a thousand Caresses, that they filem Imperatorium babens quod lacernam coccine- might devour them. Philoftratus relates alio in the same place, that he drove one out of Corinth who attempted to furprize a young Man called Menippus.

In short, these Lamia are Sea Monsters, and Fish of so prodigious bigness, that two Horses are hardly able to draw one of them in a Cart. The Inhabitants of Marseilles have taken some Lamia, in the Stomach whereof they found whole Men, and even one arm-

IPAMPAS, A Lamp, a Vessel wherein they burn Ovl to give light.

The Ancients had no other Lights but Lamps, and kept fome burning before their Images. Lucian has given us the Description of an Island of Lamps where he landed. nies, Daughter of Jupiter and Themis, or the He fays. That this life is fituated between Night and Erebus, who Ipins the Thred of the Hyades and Pleiades, and a little below Man's Life, according to the Fable. The the Zodiack; that these Lamps go forwards Ancients represented her cloathed with a and backwards like the Inhabitants of a Garment fprinkled with Stars, and holding | Town, and that every one has its own name and lodging like the Citizens of a Common-wealth. The Palace of the King is in the middle of the City, wherein he administers Justice all night, and every one of his Subjects is obliged to meet there, to give an account of his actions: Those who have committed faults fuffer no other punishment, but that they are put out, which is a kind of civil death amongst them.

LANCEA, A Lance, an offentive Weawith a point at the end, armed with Iron. 'Tis faid that the Edions invented this Weapon. Pallas is represented with a Lance.

LAPITHAE. A Nation in Theffalia the posterity of Lapithus, the Son of Apollo and the the Centaurs, and got the best of them. Ovid has described this fight in the 12th Book of his

LARARIUM. A private Chappel in Philoftratus in the Life of Appollonius calls a house for the houshold Gods called Lares. them Lemures. The Origine of this word | Spartian in the Life of Alexander the Son of comes from a Fable, related by Suidas and Manmeus fays, that he kept in his Lararium Phayminus; who tells us, that Jupeer fell in the figure of our Saviour, with the Images of

ry beauty called Lamia; but Juno growing LARES. The Houshold Gods Lares. Apu-jealous, turned her beauty into terrible deformities, and put all her Children to death; also, what is meant by Maner. The Soul of Man, Tayshe, being free from the bonds of the was brought upon the Table was being Body, and not obliged to perform its functions, becomes a kind of Damen or Genius, formerly called Lemures. Of these Lemures those who were kind to their families, and kept them in peace, were called Lares Familiares, Skin of a Dog, and having a Mastiff Dog by Domeftick Lave, but those who for a punish- them, to shew their watchfulness and fidement of their crimes committed during their lity in keeping the house, and defending lives, were condemned to wander continu- their master, as we learn from Platareb in his ally, without finding a place of rest, frighting good men, and plaguing the wicked, were vulgarly called Larva.

The Lares called also Penates or houshold Gods, were adored in private Houses, under chosen to protect States, Highways, Foreits the figures of small Images of Silver, Brass and other things like. And Nigidus Figular or Earthen Ware. The Etymology of the fays Annobins, calls the Gods Lares, formetimes word Penates comes either from penes nor nati funt, or from the word Penns, Pedianus explaining these words of Virgil, Die which fignifies the innermost part of the bouf | magnis , tells us , that these great Gods Some of these Larer were Gods of the High were the Gods Larer of the City of ways, called Larer Viales: Wherefore Plantin Rome; and Properties says, that they drove introduces Charmus making himself ready for a journey; cailing upon the Gods of the Highways to preserve him during his Tra- ritions.

Invoco Vos. Lares Viales, ut me bene tutetis.

I implore your affistance, Gods of the Highways, vouchsafe to protect me in my jour-

Tis likely, that the word Lar comes from the Tuscan Language, for Lars amongst the Tufcans was the Prince of the People. Lattantius fays, that the Goddess called Muta, Lara, Larunda, was the mother of the Gods Lares. Ovid tells us, that Lara was formerly called La-lara from the Greek verb Aales Laquer because she talked too much, for she discovered to June the amours of Jupiter and Seas, Lares of the high ways, Lares of the Juturna: Whereupon Jupiter deprived her of Fields, and Larerthat were enemies. her Speech, and gave order to Mercary to lead her to Hell, but Mercury deflowered her, and the little figures they had of their Ancestors, begat two Children of her called Lars. Thus and others amongst their Gods Lares, espethis Goddess became dumb, and her Chil- cially when they excelled in some virtue, dren the Larer, were instructed with the and inseries of time, they all become indis care and government of the Highways and ferently Lares protectors, because they were Houses.

Forte fuit Nais, Lara nomine ; prima sed illi Diela bis, antiquum Syllaba nomen erat. Ex vituo positum Eripuit linguam : Mercuriumque monet Duc hanc ad Manes locus illeSilentibus aptus . Et vigilant nostra semper in urbe Larer.

These Gods were honoured either privately in Houses, and then something of what to their honour, as first fruits, or publickly by facrificing a Sow to them, as being keep. ers and overfeers of Streets and High-ways.

They were represented cloathed with the Roman questions: 'Why, fays he, is a Dog represented by the Lares called Praftites, and why are they covered with Dogs Skin?

The Ancients called Lares or Penater Gods Curetes, and fometimes Indigetes. But Afemin away Hamibal from his Camp before Reme. because he was frighted by some night appre-

Annibalem Lares Romana Sede fugantes.

This Infcription, which confirms what Arconius Pedianus has faid.

> D. M. Genio Augg. Lar. Fam. Fortunatus. Aug. lib. To the great Ged, To the Genius of the Emperors, To the Houshold Gods, &c. To the familiar Lares, &cc.

There was also a distinction of publick Lares, viz. Lares of the Oaks, Lares of the

'Tis certain that the Ancients ranked all placed amongst Statues of other Gods; as we learn of Pliny, 1, 2. where he speaks of the ancient Cultom of placing those persons amongst the number of Gods, who had be-Rowed fome confiderable favour upon men, to thew thereby an acknowledgment for their . kindnesses. And we must not fancy that Fique gravit geminofque parit, qui compitaservant this Custom was first practiced in public Temples, on the contrary, it began first to be Ovid. Fast. 1. 2. v. 600. used in private families, who had no anthority to propose the subjects of their personal gratitude to publick veneration.

How.

However, the great Gods were placed a- | crowned their heads, and perfamed them are mongit the number of the Gods Larer. Macritis affures us, that Janus was one of the Gods Law, and prefided over the High-ways, because he was represented holding a Key and Rod in his hands, like the Keeper of all the Gates, and ruler over the High-ways, Nam brum clavi & virga figuratur, quafi omnium & pertarum cuftos & rector viarum. Apollo himfelf. fays he in the same place, was also called by the Greeks dyuttes, as presiding, over the corner of the Streets of the City. Likewise Diana and Mercury were also reckoned among the Gods Lares because Atheneus calls Diana ired's present at the Highways, and one of the Gods Lares presiding there. And if the Gods Leres had been uncertain and unknown Gods, the Remans never had confecrated to them the famous games called Compitalitis, i. e. the Feeft of the Grossways, folemnized according to the Law of the Prator the xith. day before the Calends of January; for these games were not only celebrared to their honour, because they were Keepers both of the Highways and Crossways, but also because they prefided over the guard of Empires, and watched for the prefervation of private men. wherefore at folemnizing of thefe games they offered Sacrifices for the Weal of the Republick, and families of the Empire.

'Tis therefore certain, that all Gods, chofen Patrons and Protectors of places and private men, were called Larer; fome little images and figures whereof were kept in the private Chappel of each Fam ly, and the Palace of the Emperors, who had officers appointed to guard thefe Gods Lares. This plainly appears by the ancient Monuments,

HTMNUS. CÆSARIS. L. AUG. VOLUSIANUS,

DECURIO LARIUM POLUSIA NORUM.

Hymnus Volusianus, Freedman of the Emperor, Decurie of the Volusians Lares, and this following.

M. FABIO. ASIATICO. SEVIRO MAG. LARUM AUG. To M. Fabius the Affiatick Sextum-vir, and mafter of the Lares of the Emperour.

Wherefore all kinds of Gods whatfoever. appointed by Towns, Emperours, or private Men for their Tutelar Gods, and of whom they kept small Images, were called Lare: And for this fame reason the Feast of the Gods Lares folemniz'd the xith. day by Mucrobius the Solemnity of the little Sta- | fortune. tues, Sigillariorum celebritas. They fer up most every day with Effusions. LARV Æ. Ghofts of wicked Men wandering up and down after their death; Phantoms who fight good Men, and torment the wicked. The word Larva, in the fingular number is taken for a Vizard, that frights Children, like Larve or bad Genius's.

LARA and LARUNDA, The Mother of the two Lares, according to the Fable, whom Jupiter deprived of Speech, because fhe had discovered his amours to June, wherefore the is called Muta.

LATICLAVIUM, &c. See after

LATIUM, A Countrey in Italy, thus called a latendo, because Satura retired thereto fecure himfelf from his Son Jupiter.

..... Latium que vecari Maluit, his quoniam latuiffet tutus in oris.

This part of Italy is extended along the Shore of the Tyrrhenean Sea, between Hetruria and Campania, wherein the City of Rome

LATINÆ FERIÆ, The Feaft thus called, was kept four days together, and had no time appointed in the year for their Celebration; only the Confuls were bound to folemnize the same before they went to War : and it was observed, that those who neglected that duty were unfortunate in their undertakings. This Feaft was instituted by Tarquinius Superbus, after he had vanquished the Tuscans, to maintain the Confederacy concluded by his means between them and the Latins. They agreed about the time of their meetings on Mount Albanus, where they repaired from all parts, this Hill being lituated in the middle of thefe Nations. There every one brought along with him his own part for the Offering, either Milk, or Cheefe. or Lambs; wherewith they made a Feast all together, in token of union. There was all fo a l'air kept; but the most remarkable thing in this Feaft was the Sacrifice of a Bull, offered to Jupiter, firnamed for that reason Latialis: For 'tis observed that every one of those who were there present, carried home a piece how little soever of the Bulls entrails: And the' this Solemnity was common to forty feven Nations, yet the Romans had the direction thereof; and if any Man failed to biing some Offering, or carry home a piece of the Victims, or neglected fome other duty, they were obliged to begin again, and before the Calends of January, is called that mistake was accounted for a great mis-

LATONA, The Daughter of Can the burning Lamps before these Figures, they Titan, and Phabe, as Hessed and Ovid, or of Saturn, according to Homer's opinion, Jupite" was enamoured with her; whereupon Juno being jealous, raifed a dreadful Serpent against her, called Pythe, to pursue her. Lucian in the Dialogue of the Sea Gods, introduces Iris and Neptune discoursing thus about Latona's

Iris. Jupiter bids thee to ftop the Island that floats over the Egean Sea, having got loofe from Sicily by stormy weather.

Nept. Why fo? Iris. For Latens to be brought to bed in, who is in labour. Nept. What, are not Heaven and Earth fufficient for this service?

Iris. Juno is angry, and won't fuffer her in Heaven, and the Earth has fworn that she River Tibor. won'r receive her: wherefore there is only this Island, which being now no part of the publick Houses of Office in many places of world, is not bound by oath.

Island, to receive two twins who will be hung up for cleanliness. Rich Men had Closethe honour of heaven, and the finest chil- stools, and other Vessels for that use, which dren of Jupiter. Let the winds be still, the Slaves washed, after they had emptied whilst the Tritons bring her to lie in : as them into the Common-shore. for the Serpent, he will ferve for a trophy to these young Gols, at the first instant of CLAVIUM, or TUNICA CLAtheir birth. Go and tell Jupiter that all is ready, and that she may come when she pleafes.

And in another Dialogue Lucian introduces June and Latons quarrelling one with ano-

Jun. In truth, Latona, thou hast born Jupiter fine Children.

Latma. We can't all be the Mother of Vul-

Jun. 'Tis true he is lame, and yet in that condition Venus has accepted of him for her Husband... But thy Daughter, out of a masculine courage unbecoming her sex, goes as far as Seythia to murther her guests; and thy Son, who is of all trades, an Archer, a Fiddler, a Poet, and Physician, has settled places for Prophesies at Delphi, Claros and Didymas, where he pretends to tell things that are to come, and furprizes the people by deceitful Oracles, which have always fome back doors to fecure themselves, Oc.

Latons. Your lealoufy won't permit them to Triumph in Heaven, and be famous there, one for her beauty, and the other for his

Jun. Thou makest me laugh, when thou takest thy Son for an excellent Musician, who had been flea'd in the room of Marsias, had the Muses done him justice. As for thy Daughter, the is fo fair, with her full Moon face, that Atten was tore in pieces by his own Dogs, because seen he had her stark naked, lest he should discover her ugliness to the world.

LATOR-LEGIS, A Law-giver, one who ordered a Law to be posted up, and then published his name under it.

LATRINE, A house of office. We don't find neither in the Writings ner Buildings that remain of Antiquity that they had any Privies in their Houses. For what they call'd Latring were publick places where the Slaves emptied and washed the Closeftool-pans, called also Latring a Lavande, ac. cording to the etymology that Varre gives of that word. Plautius speaks of a Slave who washes the pan of the Close-stool, qui latrinam lavat: for in that place of Plautue tis not meant the Privy which was washed by Canals under ground, with the waters of the

'Tis then most certain, that there were the Town for publick use. These Houses of Nept. Stop at my command, floating Office were covered, and there was a Spunge

> LATUS CLAVUS, or LATI-VATA: & LATI-CLAVII A Tunicka Wastcoat trimmed with broad Buttons like the head of a nail. It was a garment of diflinction, and a badge of honour amongst the Romans. The Senators had the priviledge to wear this fort of garment, and therefore were called by a fingle name Laticlavii, as Suetonius fays, binos Laticlavios misit, he fent two Senators.

> The Confuls, Prætors, Ædiles, and those that triumphed were allowed to wear this Robe: and during the time of the Emperours, it was bestowed upon Governours of Provinces, and those who had perform'd fome great fervice for their Country, as a badge of honour.

LAVATIO MATRIS DEUM. The washing of the great Mother of the Gods, kept the 26th day of March This Feast was instituted in remembrance of the day that she was brought from Asia, and washed in the River Almon, at the place where it goes into the Tyber. Her Priefts, called Galli Cybeles, carried her Statue in a Chariot, attended by a great croud of people, to the place where the was washed as her first coming to Reme. Here they washed and rubbed carefully, as Ovid fays, Est locus in Tiberim qua lubricus influit Almo, Et magno nomen perdit in amne minor : Illic purpurea canus cum veste sacerdos Almonis Dominam facraque lavit aqua.

Se Auftin, l. II. de Giv. Dei. cap. 4. gives us her a great Wealth; which at her Death the an account of this Feast. The day that Cy- left to the Roman people, in consideration hile the Virgin and Mother of all Gods was whereof they performed her great honours. folemnly washed, some wretched Bustoons This is the most certain account we have of fing fifty Songs before her Chariot, that de- her, related by Macrobiar, and by him taken cency would not only allow the Mother of from the most ancient Writers. the Gods to hear, nor even any other Mother LAURUS. The Laurel or Bay-tree, a of Persons of the meanest rank: For Nature | Tree which is always green, used to Crown has printed in us a kind of modesty to our Victorious Men, and was planted at the Pa-Parents, that Vice it felf is not able to de- lace-gate of the Emperours the first day of prive us of. And these Buffoons would be the year, or any other time when they had ashamed to repeat at home before their own obtained some Victory. Dim speaking of the Mothers, all the words and the lascivious honours the Senate performed to Augustus. postures they played in publick before the fays, that they ordered that Bay-trees should Mother of the Gods, in fight of a great mul- be planted before his Palace, to shew that he citude of people of both Sexes, who coming was always Victorious over his Enemies. out of curiofity to fee this Shew, return'd Tertullian speaks of these Laurels, when he home with shame to have seen Representati- faid, Who should be bold enough to besiege ons that offended modesty.

mentioned in Horace, l. 1. Epift. 16. v. 60. Wherefore Pliny calls Laurel the keeper of Fellus tells us, that the Ancients called Thieves | the Emperour's Gate, the only ornament and Laverniones, because they were under the pro- the true guard of their Palace : Gratifima dotection of the Goddels Laverna, who had a mibus Janetrix Cafarum, que sela & domes exer-Wood confecrated to her, where they tha- nat & ante limina excubat. The Fable tells us, red their booty. Laverniones fures Antiqui di- that Daphne flying to avoid the preffing injus luco obscuro abditoque soliti furta pradam que Laurel. inter se luere.

Overfeer of the Herds of her Father Latinus. The Latins grumbled against Ascanius for the absence of Lavinia; whereupon he was oand intreat her to come again to Lavini-

LAURENTALIA, Feasts instituted by the Roman people, in honour of Acca Laurentia, kept during the Feafts called Saturnalis, which afterwards were folemnized as a part thereof. Authors write, that there were and the Litter, lectica hexaphora, or octophora. two Laurentia's, one who was Nurse to Romulus, and the other a famous Curtezan, who by her last Will, made the Reman People her Heir, and vanished away at her coming to the Valabrum, with effusion of Wine and Milk, were confounded together.

LAURENTIA ACCA was a dethe Emperours between two Laurels? Qui LAVERNA, The Goddess of Thieves funt qui Imperatores inter duas laures obsident? cebant, quod subtutela Dea Laverna effent, in cu- ftances of Apollo's love . was turned into a

LECTICA. A Litter, a Horse Litter. LAVINIA, The Daughter of King La- The use and invention of this kind of Chatime and Amata, who married Eneas, when af- riot came first from Bythinia and Cappadocia, ter the facking of Troy, he came into Italy: But | and was made use of to carry both living being a Widow, lest Afcanius should attempt | and dead Bodies : As Tully reports, Nam, ut her life, to iccure himself the Crown of the mos fuit Bythinia, lesica farebatur. There were Latins, the retired into the Forest, where the two kinds of Litters, tome covered, used in lived privately in the house of Tyrrhenus, dirty Weather, and others uncovered on purpose to take the air in fair Weather. Pliny speaking of Ners, calls the first kind of Litters, a Traveller's Chamber, Cubiculum bliged to fend some Persons to seek for her, viatorum. Suctonius reports, that when Augustus was going into the Country, he often ordered his Servants to stop his Litter that he might fleep therein; for there were on both fides Pannels or Curtains that might be drawn at any time. These Litters were carried by fix or eight Men, called Letticarios,

LECTISTERNIUM, A great Geremony among the Romans, but feldom practifed but upon occasion of some great and publick Calamity. When this Ceremo-Sepulcher of the first Laurentia: Upon this ny was performed, the Statues of the Gods account 'tis faid, that the honours that the were brought down from their Basis, or Pe-Priest of Mars performed to them both in the destals, and then laid upon Beds, made for that purpose in their Temples, with Pillows under their Heads; and in this posture they were magnificently entertain'd. Three most bauched Woman, who nurfed up Romulus and I stately Beds were made, whereupon they laid Remus: Which occasioned the Fable to fay, the Statues of Jupiter, Apollo, with that of Latethat a She Wolf fuckled them. She married | na, Diana, Hercules, Neptune and Mercury, to pacific afterwards a very rich Man, who brought them. Then all the Gates were opened, and Mear: Foreigners, known or unknown, were entertained and lodged for nothing; all mat- ed in the Arms of the Inhabitants of the ters of hatred and quarrel was forgot, they conversed with their Enemies like Friends. and liberty was granted to all Prisoners.

This Feast was folemnized in time of Plague, or some other great and publick Calamity. The Feast Latifternum was celebrated by order of the Duumviri, in the year 335, after the Foundation of Rome.

LEDA. The Wife of Tyndarus, King of OEbalia, beloved by Jupiter, who turned him- the God of Socrates reports, That the Soul of felf into a Swan to enjoy her. She brought Man released from the bands of the Body, forth two Eggs, out of one, which she had conceived by Jupiter, came Pollux and Helena; of the other, which she had conceived by Genius called Lemures: And of these La Tyndarus her Husband, came Coffer and Clj- mures, those that were kind to their Fami-

tenmefira. ment, or body in the Roman Army. Legi- wander continually, without meeting with ons confilted of different numbers of Soldi- any place of rest, and terrified good Men. ers and Officers, according to different times, and hurt the bad, were vulgarly called Lanbut yet they were commonly made up of va, Hobgoblins. fix thousand Men. The Forces of Rome confifted of many Legions. ' In the time of the | Phantoms folemnized the ninth day of Mor. Emperour Tiberius, fays Tacitus, two naval to pacifie the Manes of the Dead, who were Armies, one at Ravema, the other at Mize- the Lemures that comes in the night to tornum guarded both Seas of Italy. The Coast ment the living. The Institution of this of the Gauls was secured by the Gallies that | Feast is ascribed to Remulus, who to rid him-Augustus had taken in the Fight of Astium : felf of the Phantoms of his Brother Remus But the main Forces of the Empire, in the 'number of eight Legions guarded the Rhine. Three other Legions were employed to prevent the Enemies attempts upon Spain, which had been lately conquered by Augustus. Africa and Egypt were both feveral-'ly fecured by two Legions : And all the Countreys from the Sea of Syria to Euphrates and Pontus, Euximus were kept in peace by four Legions. The passage of the River | nal, having the Fingers of his hand joyned Danube was guarded by four other Legions, to his Thumb, whereby he fancied he kept two in Pannonia, and two in Masia, sustain- off the bad Spirit or Phantom from him: 'ed by two other in Dalmatia; two kept the | Then he washed his hands in Spring Water, Barbariant in awe, and affift Italy in case of and putting black Beans into his mouth, horts of the City, and nine of the Emperour's own Forces, all chosen Soldiers out of Umbria, Taleany, the Countrey of the La-'tim, and other old Roman Colonies. Be-' fides the Armies and Gallies of the Confederates lying in the most convenient Harbours of the Provinces, which were also equal to our Forces.

Each Legion was divided in ten Cohorts; each Cohort in three Companies, and each Company into two Centuries. The chief Commander of the Legion was called Legatur, i. e. Lieurenant.

or Archipelage. Poets tell us , That Vulcan | ter a long course hides its felf under ground, the Tables were every where served with was therein cast head-long, from the top of Heaven by Japiter : However, he was receive Country, who preserved him from the fate of Afranax : Notwithstanding he broke one of his Legs, and ever fince was lame. They relate also that he settled himself in that Countrey, and became a Plack-Smith, because of the Fire that breaks out from time to time from the middle of the Mountains. and the notife that is heard thereabout.

LET

LEMURES, Apuleius in his Book of and freed from performing of his bodily: Functions, becomes a kind of Dæmon or. ly, were called Lares Familiares; but those LEGIO. A Legion, a kind of a Regi- who for their crimes were condemned to LEMURIA, A Feast of Ghosts, and whom he had ordered to be Murthered, appearing always before him, ordained a Feath called after his name Remuria and Lemuria. They offered Sacrifices for three nights together, during which time all the Temples of the Gods were fhut up , and there was no Wedding. This is the chief Ceremony of this Sacrifice. About mid-night, the Person who offered, being bare-foot, made a Signeed. Rome was Garrisoned with three Co- threw them behind him , uttering thek words, I deliver my felf and mine by thefe Beam, making withal a deadly noise, with Pans and other Brass Vessels, which they did strike one against the other; defiring these Ghosts to withdraw, sepeating nine times together that they should retire in peace without troubling any more the rest of the living.

LERNA, A Lake, famous for the feven headed Hydre, defeated by Hercules. Out of this Lake came infectious Exhalations : And 'tis reported that the Denaider cast therein the heads of their Husbands, whom they Murthered on their Wedding Night.

LEMNOS, An Island in the Egean Sea | LETHE, A River of Airiea, which affancied, that all the dead drank a draught of faid in the Gospel: Len Talienie is natural in waters, to make them forget what was Justice.

Neptune amongst the number of the Sea-Gods. Speaks thus of the Laws. and called Leucothea, or the break of day.

Orthamus King of Babylon, beloved by Apolle, nor Magistrates to keep them in awe; and who enjoyed her, having introduced himfelf being voluntarily inclined to do good, had into her Chamber, under the shape of Eury- no need of a proposed reward to incite them some her Mother. But Clythis, jealous of A- to it; and as they defired nothing but what polls, having acquainted her Father with the was lawful, nothing was forbad to them. tame, he order'd that his Daughter should But at last this equality being banish'd, Pride be buried alive, but Apollo took pity of her, and Violence came in the room of Modesty and turn'd her into a Tree, out of which and Shame. Some Nations were at first godrops Frankincense.

several Governments of States and Nations, beginning Laws were simple as Mens and the Maxims they have agreed upon, or minds, and Fame has principally celebrated receiv'd from their Princes and Magistrates, those of Creta, Sparta and Athens, restor'd by to live in peace and mutual fociety; and in Minos, Lycurgus and Solon; but these were this fense we say the Laws of Solon and Lycur- more subtle, and in a greater number. Rome, gus. The Laws of Draco were very rigorous during Romulus's Government, had no other and bloody. The Laws of the twelve Ta- Laws but the Will of the Prince. Nums effables were the ancient Laws of the Romans, blished Laws concerning Religion; Tullius which the December fetch'd out of Greece, and and Ancus made fome politick regulations; made use of them to ground all their other but our great Law-giver is Servius Tullius, Laws on. The Codex and Authentica are the who bound even the Prince by Laws. Since Laws and Ordinances of the Emperors. sn's order of the several judgments and opiman Laws.

ved among themselves.

and then appears again; wherefore Poets; for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth, as 'cis

Many famous Laws have been proposed LEUCOTHEA. In the Wife of A- by feveral Roman Magistrates, as the Falcidian thomas King of Thebes, who casting herself in- Law made during the Trimmvirat, to regulate to the Sea, together with her Son Melicerre, last Wills. The Lex Julis, the Lex Cornelis, to avoid the fury of her Husband, who was the Agrarian Law, the Sumptuarian Law, &c. attempting to murther her, was ranked by Tacitus, in the third Book of his Annals.

Men formerly living without ambition LEUCOTHOE, The Daughter of and envy, had no occasion neither for Laws vern'd by Laws, or had recourse to them LEX, A Law. This word expresses the laster a long prevailing Authority. At the the banishment of the Tarquins, the People The Digest is a Compilation, made by Justini- found out some Laws to secure themselves from the oppression of great Men, and mainnions of the most learned in the Roman tain Concord and Liberty. The Decemberi Law, and were received for Laws, as is or- were afterwards chosen, and the most excelder'd by the Epistle at the beginning of that lent Laws of Greece gather together, out of work; and 'tis that which composes the Ro- them they compos'd the twelve Tables . which were the end of good Laws; for al-Moles, fays Josephen, in the second Book of though there were some regulations made ahis Antiquities, was the first Law-giver, and gainst wicked Men at the first appearing of Mose's Law was the first Law given to Men. Vice, nevertheless, the greatest part were many Ages before all other Legislators, and settled by the dissentions of the People and all other Laws; in fine, God gave it in a the Senate, or established by the violence of time when God only was able to give it, all fome persons in dignity, to banish some il-Men (after the first Colonies of so many re- lustrious Men, and repress some other dismote Provinces) being fallen into incredible orders. From thence came the feditious ignorance and confusion, and being then so Laws of Gracehus and Saturninus, and the Latfar from giving Laws to themselves, that they gesses of Drusus in the name of the Senate. were hardly able to receive them. Wherefore The Wars of Italy, and then the Civil Wars in Homer's time, and many Ages after him, gave occasion to several Ordinances contrary there was yet no mention made, neither of to one another; but at last the Dictator Sylla, Laws nor Legislators, States and Kingdoms chang'd or abolish'd the former, to establish being then govern'd not by Laws, but by his own. However, they were not lasting, tho their King's Ordinances and Customs recei- in great number; for foon after the People were in motion, by the turbulent Laws of Lex Talionis is the most ancient and Lepidus. Since that time there was nothing most just; and was observed by the Hebrews, established but new regulations concerning and prescribed by the Law of Mosts, an eye every Crime, and the Commonwealth being finite. In fine, Pempey being chosen the reformer of Manners, after he had found out Remedies worfe than the Evils, faw his Laws joined very often the letter d, after a at the perish with himself. And afterwards, during | end of a word, as it appears by the Column 25 years of Civil Wars, there was neither of Duellius, pugnanded. Laws nor Customs observ'd. But Augustus being elected Conful the fixth time, abolished under the word Clientela, where the right of the Laws which he had made during his unlawful Authority, and establish'd others to les allowed the people to chuse for themselves live in peace. And amongst other Laws, he Patrons out of the body of the Nobles, and made a Law concerning Marriage.

Kings, and some other in the time of their towards his Clients, and Clients towards. Commonwealth. Remalar was the first Law- their Patrons; and if they fail'd in the obgiver of the Romans, according to the testi- fervation thereof, they devoted them to the mony of Livy, Platarch and Tally. There re- Devil, and any Man might kill them. withmain but some fragments of Remului's Laws, out being punished by the Law. This is the

is here inferted.

SEI PATRONOS CLIENTEI FRAU-DEM FAXSIT, SACER ESTOD: If a Patron defraud his Client, let him be curfed. RIT, AST OLE PLORASIT, SACRA Servins quotes the fragment of this Law, as being taken out of the Laws of the twelve Tables; nevertheless, Romalus is doubtless the Author thereof, for 'tis thus expressed in Servius's Manufcript : Ex lege Romuli & XII. Tabularum. Si Patronus Clienti Fraudem Faxit, Sacer Efte. 'Tis yet true, according to the testimony of Dienysius Halicarnasseus and Livy, that Romalus had fettled the rights of Clients and Patrons; and Scaliger and Cujacius report, that the Decempiri, who had compiled the Laws of the twelve Tables, and inferted therein the Laws made by the Kings : Ex his non dubium est leges Regins in XII. Tabulas à Decemviris conjectas fuiffe ; & prima, fecunda, tertia tabula leges Regias contineri; quia etiam leges Regias de patrià peteflate in quartam tabulam relatas autor eft Dienyfiur. Whereby it doth appear, that the Laws made by the Kings, were sarnaffens tells us.

Sei instead of Si. The Ancients in their Writings express thus the long i by the Dipthong ei, as it appears by Ancient Inscriptions, and by this which is yet feen at Rome : Quod ejus Agrei, locei publicum populei Romanei

Patrones instead of Patrones. The Ancients ness of the Walls of a City. often made use of the o instead of the u. Clientei instead of Clienti, by the same reafon of Sei instead of Si. Faxit instead of Faxit, because of the harshness of the z. The Ancients added a Letter DERETUR. before or after the x, to make the pronunciacorrupted, the number of Laws became in- | tion fofter, as we fee in the ancient Merbles menit, junenit, &cc.

Sacer Effed instead of Effe. The Anciente

I have explained the meaning of this Law Patrons and Clients is expounded: for Roma. put themselves under their protection; and The Romans had forme Laws under their fettled the reciprocal Rights of the Patron related by Varre and Feffus, the first whereof meaning of these words Sacer Estad.

The fecond Law of Romulus was expressed in these terms.

SEI NOROS PARENTEM VERBE. DIVEIS PARENTUM ESTOD.

If a Daughter-in-law strikes her Father, and he complains of it, let her be curfed, and punished by the Gods of the Fathers and Methers.

Besides these two Laws, the express terms whereof were kept till our time, there are still many others, the words whereof were loft by the misfortune of time, but the meaning thereof is recorded by Latin Writers; There are fixteen mentioned by Dionysius Halicarnaffeus, Livy and Plutarch, some concerning the Law of the Gods, and some others concerning the Civil Law.

Here follows the first Law of the fix, which concerns the Gods, related by Dionyfius . He-licarnaffeus.

NE OUID DEORUM FABULIS IN: QUIBUS PROBRA EORUM ET CRIinserted by the Decemvire in the Law of the MINA COMMEMORARENTUR. ADtwelve Tables; and that the first, fecond HIBERETUR FIDEI: SED OMNES. and third Table, contained the Laws of the SANCTE, RELIGIOSE, CASTEQUE Kings; as also the Law concerning the DE DIIS IMMORTALIBUS SENTIpower of Fathers over their Children, is co- RENT ET LOQUERENTUR : NIHIL pied out of the fourth Table, as Dionyfins Hali- QUOD BEATIS NATURIS INDE-CORUM AFFINGENTES.

Not to believe what the Fable fays of the Gods concerning their Crimes and Infamies, but so have Pious and Religious thoughts of them, and not to. speak of them but in a chaste way, ascribing thing to them that is unbecoming bleffed natures.

The fecond Law is concerning the Holi-

UT MURI SACRO-SANCTI ESSENT: NEVE QUIS NISI PER PORTAS UR-BEM INGREDERETUR, NEVE EGRE-

That the Walls of a City fould be Sacred, and that no perfor flould pafs over them to come in or goost of the City, but only through the Gates.

Upon this Law Platerch in his Roman Que-Aions, Quest. 27. asks Why the Ancients consecrated the walls of their Cities, and not the Gates thereof? It was, answered he. to encourage the Citizens to defend them. out of respect to their holiness and consecration; and therefore Romulus ordered his Brother Remus to be murthered, because he had leapt over the Walls.

But the Gates of Cities were neither holy nor confecrated, because all Provisions were brought in thereat, and the Corps of the dead were carried through the Gates out of the City to be burnt. Wherefore when they intended to build the Walk of a City, they with a Plough drawn by an Ox and a Cow yok'd together, over that ipace of ground is thus related by Plutarch; to which may be | and Foreigners. added, what Pomponius the Lawyer fays, Siquis violaverit muros, capite puniter.

NE QUIS EX ASYLO UT SACRO TU-TOOUE LOCO VI ABSTRAHATUR. Let no man be drawn by violence out of a place of Refuge, where he has sheltered himself, as in a

Thele Sanctuaries were always Venerable the first, who opened a refuge at Thebes, and | called Regina, as Macrobius reports, l. 4. c. 15. those who recired thither, either Freemen or committed. The Posterity of Hercules established a Sanctuary at Athens. Tacitus complains of the abuse made of places of refuge ful Meetings. at Rome. The Reader may fee what is faid of them atter the word Afrium.

NE OUID IN ADMINISTRATIONE REIPUBLICÆ NISI AUGURATE FIE-RET.

That nathing should be done in the Government of the Republick, before the Augur was consulted to know the Will of the Gods.

. This is confirm'd by Tully, in his first Book de divinatione ; and! by Dienyfius Halicarnaffeus, in the 2d Book of the Roman Antiquities, where he tells us, that Romulus being efablished King by the Will of the Gods, which he had confulted by taking the Aufpices, he ordered that this custom should be religiously observed for the time to come, concerned.

UT PENES REGES SACRORUM OM NIUM ET GRAVIORUM JUDICIO-RUM ESSET ARBITRIUM ET POTE-STAS: PATRICII EADEM SACRA CU-STODIRENT ET CURARFNT, MAGI-STRATUS SOLI REGERENT, JUSQUE DE LEVIORIBUS CAUSIS REDDE-RENT: PLEBEII DENIQUE COLEREN I AGROS, PECORA ALERENT, QUÆ-STUOSA EXERCERENT OFFICIA ET ARTES, NON TAMEN SELLULARIAS ET SORDIDAS, SERVIS, LIBERTINIS ET ADVENIS RELINOUENDAS.

That Kings (bould have Soveraign Authority over Religious Matters, as also in the administration of Affairs of the greatest consequence belonging to the Law : that the Patricians should attend and confulted the Augurs, and then drew a Line take care of the Sacrifices; that they only should perform the office of the Magistrates, and adminifter Justice in cases of lesser moment ; that the Plewhere the Walls were to be built , but did beians fould cultivate the Fields, feed the Catnot drive the Plough over the place deligned | tle, exercise Arts and Trades, except the wilest for the Gates of the City. This Ceremony | which were preserved for Slaves, Freedmen's Soms

Kings were the Overfeers of Sacrifices, and joyned the power of Priesthood to the Royal Authority; wherefore the Romans having expelled the Kings, established a King whom they called Rex Sacrificulus, as we learn of Livy: Regibus exactis, & parta libertate, rerum deinde divinarum habita cura. O quia quadam publica Sacra per 19 s factitata erant nec ubi Reguns desiderium effet, Regem facrificulum creant : and among t the Greeks and Romans. Cadmus was the Wife of the King of the Sacrifices was

The King administred Justice in causes Slaves, were pardoned of the Crime they had | concerning Witchcraft, publick Offences, Crimes of High Treason, under-hand Dealings, sheltering of wicked Men, and unlaw-

> The Patricians performed the office of Inferiour Judges, in cases of Murthers, Fires, Robberies, publick Extortions, removals of Land-marks, and other Offences between private men. At first they were the only men who performed the office of Priefthood. but afterwards in the time of the Commonwealth, the offices of Religion were beflowed upon Plebeians; for in the year ccccli. after the foundation of Rome, during the Confulat of Q. Apuleius Ponfa and Marcus Valerius Co vinus, five Augures were created out of the body of the people. And in series of time they raised themselves to the High Priesthood.

The Patricians only had a right to the Magiftracy; but fixteen years after the Kings were banished Rome, it was conferred on the either in the Creation of Kings, or election | people, for in the year cccxli. after the founof Magistrates, or in Affairs of great conse- dation of Rome, Quastors were chosen out of quence, wherein the Commonwealth was the people; as also Tribunes out of the Soldiers in the year cooling. Some years after Consuls in the year coclaxaviii, and other . Magistrates called Ediles, Curules in the year ccclxxxix : Dictators in the year ccciic. Cenfors in the year occiv.andin finePrætors in the ccccxvii. but the interregnum only was left to the Patricians.

UT POPULUS ACCEDENTE SENA-TUS AUCTORITATE, MAGISTRATUS CREARET, LEGES JUBERET, BELLA DECERNERET.

That the People, with the Authority of the Senate, jhould choose Magistrates, make Laws, and

And this was done in the Assemblies of the people, either bu Parishes, Tribes or Hundreds.

UT REGI MAGISTRATUIQUE AU-GUSTIOR SEMPER IN PUBLICO ES-SET HABITUS SUAQUE INSIGNIA. That the King and Mag Strates should wear Habits of Distinction, and Radges of Honour.

The Kings, Emperors and Confuls were closched with a Robe of State called Trabea, the painted Gown, and the Robe called Pratexta, mentioned in this Book in their order.

UT SENATUS PUBLICUM ESSET ET COMMUNE CIVITATIS CONSI- Self the Master thereof, that she should inherit bu LIUM , ET IN EUM PATRICIIS Estate in an equal portion like one of his Children. TANTUM PATERET ADITUS.

That the Senate fould be the common Council of the City of Rome and the Empire and that the Patricians only should be admitted into it.

Romulus at first instituted one hundred Senators; to whom he added the like number eight years after, because of the Peace concluded with the Sabins. Tarquinius Prifcus increafed that number to an hundred more: Since, during the Triumvirat, their number was augmented to nine hundred, and afterwards to a thousand; but Casar Augustus reduced that number.

UT COLONI ROMANI MITTEREN-TUR IN OPPIDA BELLO CAPTA, VEL third kind of Marriage called Matrimonium at SALTEM HOSTES VICTI FRANGEN DIS ILLORUM VIRIBUS AGRI MUL-TARENTUR PARTE.

That the Romans should send Roman Colonies into the Conquered Cities, or at least that the Enemies (hould forfeit one part of their Lands.

Tacitus speaks thus of this custom in the 11th Book of his Annals, c. 12. 'Do we repent to have been feeking for the Family of the Balbi in Spain, or others no less il-Untrious in Gallia Narbonensis & Their Po- fe hareditatem adeptum effe fine facris effertiffman. 'Aterity flourishes still amongst us, and bear _ The Wife was to be the Mistress of the 'an equal love with us for their Country Family, as the Husband Master. It was a

What is the cause of the ruin of Spara and Athen, the very flourishing Cities, but it fing the vanquished like Slaves, and refin fing them entrance into their Commonwealths. Romulus was much wifer in mis king Citizens of his Enemies in one day.

ANNUS ROMANUS DECEM ESSET MENSIUM.

That the Roman year should contain ten menthe This year began with March, Nums added two Months to it, viz. January and February. and ordered that the year should begin with January. See what is faid under theword Amer.

UT MULIER QUE VIRO JUXTA SA-CRATAS LEGES NUPSIT, ILLI SA. CRORUM FORTUNARUM QUE ESSET SOCIA, NEVE EAM DESERERET; ET QUEMADMODOM ILLE FAMILIÆ DO. MINUS, ITA HÆC FORET DOMINA: NEQUE DEFUNCTO VIRO, NON SE CUS AC FILLIA PATRI HERES ESSET. IN PORTIONEM QUIDEM ÆQUAM, SI LIBERI EXTARENT; EX ASSE VE-RO SI MINUS.

That a Woman who had married a Man according to the Sacred Laws, should participate of the Sacrifices and Wealth with her Husband . that the should be Mistress of the Family, as he was himif there was any born during their Marriage, otherwife the thould inherit all.

By the Sacred Laws in Marriages, it must be understood either the Marriages solemnized with a Ceremony called Confarrence, which was performed with a Cake of Wheat, in presence of ten Witnesses, and with Sacrifices and Forms of Prayers: And the Children born of this Marriage were called anfarreatis Parentibus geniti; or the Marriages made ex coemptione, by a mutual bargain, from whence the Wives were called Matru Familias, Mothers of Families. These two kinds of Marriages are called by ancient Lawyers Juffe nuptie, to diftinguish them from : usu Injusta nuptia, Concubinage.

The Society of Sacrifices and Wealth, wherein the Wife had her share, must be understood of private Sacrifices, offered in some Families, practiced amongst the Romanus upon Birth-days, and day of Expiations and Funerals, which the Posterity and Heirs were bound to observe. Wherefore Plautus says, That a great Estate was fallen to one, without being obliged to offer any Families Sacrifice, the Wife fet her Foot upon the threshold of ASSET, RERUM EJUS PARS UXORI the door of the House of her Husband, they DARETUR, PARS AUTEM CERERI asked her who she was, and she answered Caia fun, I am Caia ; because Caia Cacilia Wife to Tarquinius Priscus, was much given to Huswife-House of their Husband, answered that they were called Gaia : Ceterum Caia ufu fuper amnes eft celabrata ; fertur enim Caiam Caciliam, Tarquinii Prisci uxorem, optimam laftificam fuisse, & ides inftitutum effe, ut nove nupte ante januam mariti interrogatæ, quænam vicarentur, Caram Je esse dicerent.

And Plutarch in the thirtieth Roman Question tells us . That the Husband faid to his Wife at her first coming to his house, Ego Caius, and the answered Ego Caia.

UT MATRONIS DE VIA DECEDE-RETUR, NIHIL OBSCOENI PRESEN-TIBUS IIS VEL DICERETUR VEL FI-ERET, NEVE QUIS NUDUM SE AB IIS CONSPICI PATERETUR, ALIOQUIN CRIMINIS CAPITALIS REUS HABE- Relations, to know if they finelt of Wine. RETUR.

That they should give way to Ladies of Quality, that no obscenity should be either spoken nor done in sheir presence, and that no Man should be Jeen naked in their presence, if otherwise he should be guilty of a capital Crime.

UT MONSTROSOS PARTUS NECA-

RE PARENTIBUS LICERET. That it should be lawful to Parents to put their Children to Death , if they were born Monstrous . But they were obliged to call for Witneffes to justifie that they were Monfters, Tays Dion; fire Halicarnes[aus over their Children, confine them , fell them, and put them to death, and dispose of them which way the Gods, uttering these words : Mattu boc they flould think fit.

UT PARENTIBUS LIBEROS RELI-GANDI, VENDENDI, OCCIDENDI JUS, ALIISQUE MODIS DE EIS STATUEN-DI PLENA POTESTAS ESSET.

UT SI QUA IN RE PECCASSET MULIER POENAM LUERET EX MA-REI VIR ET COGNATI MULIERIS teto : quoiot auspicio capta Diis piacolom dato. HABERENT; SIN CONVICTA ESSET, Plut arch affures us, that he had read in the TRA: VENEFICIUM NATORUM VEL first should be confectated to Jupiter Fertirius, casion used amongst the Romans; that when ADULTERIUM MULIEREM REPUDI-CEDERET.

If a Wife was found faulty, her Husband punished her according to his pleasure : If she had ry and Spinning, and from thence is come Possoned her Children, or committed Adultery, the the cultom, that Brides coming into the Husband and her Kindred inquired into the fatt, and if the was found guilty, they inflicted what Punishments they pleased upon ber : If she drunk Wine, the was punished like an Adulteress: If the Husband put away his Wife for any other cause belides Poysoning or Adultery, part of his Wealth was giwen to the Wife , and part to Ceres.

The Roman Matrons were forbidden to drink Wine, and their Husbands had pover to kill them when they had drunk any, as Pliny affures, 1. 14. c. 13. Non licebat vinum Romanis feminis bibere Invenemus inter exempla Egnatii Mecennii uxorem, quod vinum bibiffit edolio, interfectam fuisse a marito, eumque cadis a Romulo absolutum. Cato ideo propinquos feminis ofculum dare inflituit ut feirent antemetum olerent. (boc tum nomen wina erat.) Wherefore Cate ordered, that married Women should kiss their XVI.

UT OMNES PARRICIDÆ CAPITE PLECTERENTUR.

That all Parricides should be punished with Death.

The following Laws were made by Numa the fecond King of the Romans.

PISCES quei squamosei non sunt, nei polluceto : squamosos omnes prater Scarum polluceto : Do not offer in sacrifice to the Gods Fishes without scales, but only those which are scaly except the Scarum.

SARPTA vinea nei fiet, ex es vinum Diis libarier nefas effod : 'Tis not lawful to offer to the Gods Wine, of the growth of a Vine that was never pruned.

Festus explaining the word Sarpta, fays Sarpta winea putata, i. e. pura fasta. Sarpere enim Antiqui pro purgare ponebant. For the Gods That Fathers should have a Soveraign Authority accepted of no Sacrifices, but those that were pure. The Ancients offered pure Wine to vino inferio efto. We will fpeak of it under the words Sacrificium and Libatio.

QUOJUS aufpicio clase procineta opeima Polia capiuntur, Joves Feretrio bovem cadito, quei RITI ARBITRIO : SI VENEFICIJ CIR- cepit aerit trecentum darier oporteto, fecunda folia CA PROLEM VEL ADULTERII ESSET | endo Martis asam endo campo suove tauriliad, utra ACCUSATA, COGNITIONEM, EJUS volet, cadito; quei cepit aeris ducentum darier opor-

EX ILLORUM SENTENTIA MULTA- Annals of the Pontiffs, that Numa had fpe ken RETUR: SI VINUM BIBISSET DOMI UT of the spoils called Opima, that one General ADULTERA PUNIRETUR. SI VIR FX- had taken from another, and ordered that the

the second to Marr, and the third to Quirheur. Quejus instead of Cujus, an ancient word. Clase procineta, this word fignifies an Army Customs observ'd by the Romans, in the Fadrawn into a line of battel, according to Fe nerals of their Dead. fine; wherefore the Ancients called an Army Classic clupcata : opeima spolia instead of opima killed by Thunder, should be carried upon folia, Spoils that the General of an Army took from another, as Festus says; and they are mony should be performed at their Funerale called opima, as he tells us, because such Spoils because they were dead by the wrath of the are but seldom got, and this happen'd but Gods. three times to the Roman Empire; once Remulus took spoils from Acren; a second time Ancients had no Nominative terminated in Cornelius Coffus took them from Telumnius; and a third time, Marcus Marcellus got them from Viridomar and confectated them to Jupiter Feretrius, as'tis observed by Livy. Quei Wine, but with Milk. instead of qui cepit, aeris instead of eris, coe darier instead of dari, oportete instead of oportet. Endo Martis afam instead of in Martis aram, ende

Sheep and a Bull were offer'd. SEI QUIS bemonem leiberom sciens dolo malo mortei duit, parricidad estod. Sei im imprudens. le dolo malod occifit, pro kapito occifei & nareiis ot dimiffit, acuam instead of agnam. ejus endo conscione arietem subjicito. If any body kill willingly and out of malice a Freeman, let him be declared a l'arricide : if he doth it unwillingly, let him facrifice in a full affembly, a Ram for the life he had taken away.

Sei instead of fi, leiberom instead of liberum, efted. mortei instead of morti, duit instead of dedit, parricidad instead of parricida, effed instead of fragment of this Law, the rest was lost by efto, occifit instead of occidit, kapito instead of the misfortune of time. capite, eccifei instead of eccifi, nateiis instead of natis, endo instead of in, febjicito instead of the words whereof were lost, but the mean-

Amongst the Athenians, he who had committed a Crime, was bound to offer a Ram for expiation.

MULIER que pregnant mortua ne humator, antequam partus ei excidatur ; quei fecus faxit, fbei animantis cum gravidà occifa reus eftod. Ne gat lex Regia, fays Marcellus the Lawyer, mulie- a Man, nor any Animal whatfoeverrem que pregnans mortua sit humari, antequam partus ei excidatur : qui contra fecerit, fem animantis cum gravida peremisse videtur.

This Law of Numa forbids in express terms, to bury a Woman who died in labour, before ness of any thing that is in Heaven above, a her Child was taken out of her Body ; and in the Earth beneath, or in the waters under whosoever neglected to observe this Law, the ground: was accounted the murtherer of both the Child and the Mother.

came out of his Mothers belly, when the was vatim colerent. Sacra Diis inflituta fantie force carrying to herGrave, and by his crying ftopt rentur; fruge melaque falfa litaretur. Temph those, who carried her Corps to be buri- Diis constructa profanis usibus ne pollureum nei tollito ; fei folmine occifur efeit, eei justa nulla Piety, and remove Riches from them : That Fieri oporteso.

This Law is not clearly expressed, and can't be understood, but by confidering the

Mome did not allow, that those who were shoulders like other dead, nor that any Cere-

Felminis is written instead of fulmen, for the en. Sopera instead of Supra, nei instead of m. VEINO rogum ne resparcito: That the pile of wood should not be moistned with

PELEX afam Junonis ne tagito, sei tagit. Junonei crenebis dimiseis acuam feminam cadio: Let no Harlot touch the Altar of Jum ; and campo instead of in campo, suove tauralia instead if the do, let her be sentenced to sacrifice a of fue, ove, toure, a Sacrifice, where a Hog, a young Sheep to her, having her Hair diffe-

Alam instead of aram, tagite instead of tagito, crenebis instead of crinibus, dimifeis instead

By this Law, a married Man was not allowed to marry another Woman. It was a custom in Marriages, for the Woman to take hold on the corner of the Altar of Jum.

SIQUIS, aliuta faxit, ipfor Fovei face

Aliuta instead of aliter. We have but this

Here are still some other Laws of Name, ing is yet found in Writers,

The first is concerning the Nature of God, the fense whereof is contained in these

NEQUIS Deum, vel homines Speciem, vel animalis alicujus formam habere existimares: Let no man ascribe to God, either the figure of

It feems by this Law, that Nums was well acquainted with the command of God in the 20 Chap, of Exedus. Thou shalt not make unto thy felf any graven Image, or the like

AD DEUS caste adireter, pietas adhiberetu, opes amoverentur. Separatim nemo Deos habità Valerius Maximus reports, that one Gorgias neve noves, neve advenas, nist publice adscisus pr Templum Jani belli pacifque indicium effet : That SEI hemonem folminis occifit, im sopera genga they should draw near but with Purity and no body should have new or particular Gods:

That the Sacrifices instituted in honour of there should be twelve Priests called Salii, to the Gods, should be religiously observed : Sacrifice to Mars, appoint Gradium in the Pa-That they should powr salted dough upon lace : That the Officers called Feciales should the Victims: That Temples built in ho- be Judges in Affairs concerning Confederanour of the Gods, should not be defiled by cies, Peace and Truce: That they should any profane use: That the Temple of Janus take care that no injust War should be carshould be the Signal both of Peace and War. ried on against the Confederates of the Rein time of Peace.

UT DIVIS, aliis alii Sacerdotes effent. Curiones triginta Jacra Curiarum quibus præfetti foderentur; qui vitiaffet, virgis in foro ad mortem caderetur. Salii duodecim Deorum belli prafidum universim laudatures, Marti Gradivo facra in should be subject to none. Palatio celebrarent. Feciales faderum, pacis, in- All these Laws are mentioned by Livy rent er expiarent. Pontifices denique de omnibus founded one with another. causis, que ad facra, tam inter facerdetes quam Profanos, judicarent; novas leges de facris ex fua Cententia Or arbitratu conderent ; facerdotes omnes the year should be of twelve of Months. examinarent, Sacrerum Ministros in Officio continerent ; de Deorum Genierumque cultu, totoque Re- Romulus, viz. January and February. lisionum ac Carimoniarum negotio consulentes doccrent : Prescripta a se contemmentes pro delicti quaestat obnoxii. That each God should have his ly days and working days. particular Priefts: That thirty Curious or Priests should be appointed to the thirty Rothe Sacrifices that belonged to him : That the his Son. Augures should observe the Signs of Heaven, and diffinguish those that have a regard to the Man who had debauched her, should be the Parties. whipp'd to death in the publick place: That

Wherefore in time of War the Temple of man People : That they should judge of Jenus was always open, and was only thut wrongs done to Ambassadours; and if the Generals of the Armies had broke their word. they should make atonement for their faults: That the Pontiffs should be Judges in Affairs concerning Religion, between both Priests curarent; proque Curialibus publice rem divinam and Laymen : That they should make new tecrent. Tres Flamines, Dialis, Joui, Martialis Laws according to their own mind con-Marti, Quirino Quirinalis, asidui facerdotes effent. cerning Sacrifies : That they should examine Tribunus Celerum Sacris sibi affgnatis operam daret, the Priests, and keep them to their Duty : Augure: figna de Calo servarent, publica que a pri- That they should give reasons for the Worwatts discernerent, queve vitiofa dirave dixerunt, thip of Gods and Genius's. and of all the irrita [cavaque baberemur. Veftales Virgines ig- Religious Ceremonies practifed therein, to nem feci publici in urbe sempiternum custodirent , those that should inquire of them about the que flupri convicte, ad portam Collinam vive de- fame : That those who should despise their Ordinances, should be punished by them, according to their faults; and that they duciarum oratores judicesque effent ; widerent fedu- Plutarch and Florus : And the reason that St. le ne ulli faderata civitati injuftum bellum infer- Auftin gives for the Multiplicity of these retur, de Lagatorum judicarent injurii: Si quid Priefts, is, that having fo great a number of Imperatores contra jusjurandum pecassent, cognosce- Gods, they were afraid they should be con-

> ANNUS duodecim effet mentium: That Two Months were added to the year of

DIES omnes in faster, nefastosque distribuerenlitate & magnitudine multarmt ; nullius peteffati tur : That the days should be divided in ho-

UT SI Pater filio concesserit unorem ducere, man Curie or Parishes to offer Sacrifices. que futura illi juxta leges Jacrorum benorumque Three Priests called Flaminis, the first where- omnium particeps , eidem patri postes nullum jus of appointed for Jupiter, should be called Di- vendendi filium effet : That if a Father has givalis; the second for Mars, Marsialis, and the en leave to his Son to marry, his Wife comes third for Quirinus, Quirinalis: That he who into a common propriety to the Goods with was called Tribunus Celerum, should perform him, and the Father after that cannot fell

UT CONTRACTUS dubii & sine publick Affairs, from those that belong to pri- testibus fide ac jurejurando terminaretur, utique vate Concerns; taking particular notice of Magistratus ac Judices in dubits causis ex alterius all that were evil and direful : That the Vestal fide & Sacramento Suam interponerent fentimei-Virgins should take care without Intermissi- am: That doubtful Contracts made withon of the facred Fire : That if any of them out Witnesses should be certified by Oath, fuffer herself to be defiled, the should be bu- and that the Judges should give Judment in ried alive out of the Gate called Collina, and doubtful Caules upon the Oath of one of Tulus Hofilius the third King of the Romans eftablished a Law, That when a Woman should bring forth three Children at one Birth, they should be brought up at the publick charges, till they came to Age.

UT trigeminis, quaties nascerentur, alimenta ex publico, iffque ad pubertatem darentur.

He renewed again the Law of Romalus concerning the Officers called Feciales: Ur Feciales fæderum, belli pacis, indaciariumque Oratores Judicesque effent & bella disceptarent.

Tarquinius Prifess made thefe following Laws.

UT Regia Remanerum Majeftas corena aurea, fceptro, fella eburnea, toga pida, Litteribus duodeeim, alifque ornamentis infignis effet. That Kings should wear a Crown of Gold, with a Scep- traberetur, nove fancratoribus jut in libera curbus ter in their hand; that they should have an fed debiteram contenti facultatibus effent : That Ivory Chair, with an Embroidered Robe; no body should be put in Prilon for Debt: and that twelve Lictors should walk before and that Creditors should have no right o-Ur quifque civis veram benerum fuerum, que, with the fubstance of their Debtors. qualiacumque effent, aftimationem Jurejurando probaret, probatamque ad Regem deferret, genus item, but. etatem, nomina uxorum, liberorum, familie que omnis: que, cujus generis predie, quis serverum pecudumque numerus, que qualiacunque funderum Infirumenta fingulatim fine dolo malo profiteretur, Latiali cunfenfa communi Jacra falturi, feria Cr quaque urbis in parte, quove extra urbem loco habi- mercatus celebraturi & uma equiaturi : That etaret fuar que ret poffideret fantte indicaret ; qui very year the Soveraign Magistrate of Rome fecus feciffet, bonis publicatis civitmem amitteret, should Summons the Remans and Latin upcasusque virgis fab hasta venires : That each Citi- on Mount Albanus, to offer unanimously a zen should be bound to bring to the King Sacrifice to Jupiter Latislie, and keep there a naccount of all his Goods whatfoever, and Holy-day, a Market and a Feast together. certifie by Oath the truth thereof; as also These are all the Laws made by the Kings, to declare his Family, and his own Age, the which Sexus Papirine a Lawyer has collected name of his Wife, Children, and all his Fa- inro a body, to preserve them to Posterity, mily; and tell the number of his Fields, which are called after his name Jus Papiril.

and what they were proper for, and the We must now speak of the Laws made due whole without any fraud : That if any fail- ring the Commonwealth , whereof fome ed therein, he lost the Citizen's freedom, were established by the Decemviri. others by and forfeited his Goods; he should be whip- she Confuls, Dictators, and Tribunes of the ped, and then fold by publick Sale.

nascemibus quidem ad adem Junonis Lucina, pro Tables, were most considerable : for they fumentibus vero togam virilem ad Juventutit; were collected from the Republicks of pro defunitis denique ad Libitina certas fliper pen- Greece, and the most just customs of the Rederent, essque querannis Editui in tabulas refer- mans and other Nations to which the Royal rent, ex quibus puerorum, puberum ac mortuerum Laws were added. certus numerus fingulis annis cognosceretur: That | This Collection was made with great care each Mafter of a Family should give a cer- and deliberation by the most able Men and tain fum of Money to the Temple of June mongst the Romans: Then the December cal-Lucins, for new born Children; another to led an Assembly of the Senate, to whom the Temple of Youth, when their Chil- they proposed these Laws to be examined. dren put on the toge wirilis , and a third to The Senate, after a ferious confideration, we the Temple of the Goddes Libytins when nanimously approved of them by a Decree; they died. The Sextons of the Temple were and the people afterwards confirmed them

These were the Laws made by the Kings. I bound to keep Regulters of the names of those for whom these present were middle to the Goddesses, that it might be known what number of Children were born, how many had put on the togs virilie, and how many were dead.

> UTI in Tribus urbanus atque jus civitatis fervi ab civibus Romanis manumiffi, qui vellen ad scifcerentur; & libertini ad omnia plebelorum admitterentur munis : That Slaves freed by the Romans might be admitted into the Tribes of the Ciry, if they defired it, and enjoy the freedom of Citizens; and that Freemen's Children should be received in all Offices like the Roman People.

NEOUIS ob debitum fænus in vincula ver free Persons, but should be contented

We have but this Law of Tarquinius Super-

Uti facrorum caula quotannis semel in montem-Albanum Romani Latinique nomine populi Romani a Jupremo Magistratu Romano cogerentur : Joul

The Laws of the Decemberi, comprehend-UT QUISQUE Pater familiae pro ed under the names of the Laws of twelve

by a Medicinum, in an Affemby of Hundreds. written instead of mulierer, ner instead of me Then they were Ingraved upon Brass Plates, emofed in the publick place. This was done cociii after the Foundation of Rome: And the following year, fomething being yet wanting for the perfection of the Reman Law, the Decembiri added still two other Brass Tables, to the ten before mentioned, which made up the number of twelve. Dimyfiut lege fublate funt, quam legem iffdem prope verbis Halicarnaffaus, Livy and Plutarch fpeak at large noffri Decomotivi in decimam tabulam conjectof these Laws, and may be confulted there- runt. mon,by those who would have a full knowledge of them. Finally, Tally prefers thefe Laws to all the libraries in the World, I. 1. de Orat. Eft in duedecim Tabulis Antiquitatis Effi- facito. giet, quod & verborum prifca vetuftas cognoscitur. by affionum genera quadam Majorum consuesudi- tribos ricineis instead of tribus ricinitis, porporea, nem witamque declarant . Sive quis civilem fcientiam contemplatur totam banc, descriptis omnibus cimitatis utilitatibus ac partibus duodecim Tabulis conlineri videbitu : Sive quem ifia prapatene & Glori- dreffed with three Gowns of purple colour, afa Philesophia delettat, dican andacius hosce ha- | and that only ten Pipers should be employ'd bet fontes emnium disputationum fuarum, qui jure civili & legibuetcontinentur. Bibliothecas mebercle amnium Philosophorum, unus mihi videtur xii, Tabularum libelias, si quis legum fontes & capita videret, & auctoritatis pondere & utilitatis ubertate acerras sepolchris aut longus koronas nei endepo-Superare.

of time, there remains only fome fragments | Burials, and effusions of Wine, or Crown thereof, dispersed in the Books of several their Graves with Garlands, or burn Frank-Authors, which we will infert here for the Reader's fake.

PRÆCO fonus endeicito: quom fonus ecferter, nei encommittate: That the publick Cryer invite to the Funerals; and during the time of the Burial, let no Affembly

Penus inflead of funus, endeicite inflead of indicite, quem instead of quum, efferter instead of of efferendum, nei instead of ne, encomisiate in- drink at Funerals. fread of ite in comitium.

These were the words used by the publick Cryer, when he invited the People to the LUS OUIRIS LETO DATUS EST. or L. TITIUS VIXIT, L. TITIO EX EQUIAS IRE CUEI COMMODUM EST. JAM TEMPUS EST, OLLUS EFFERTUR : Lucius Titius is dead ; thofe who have time to come to his Burial, 'tis time, they are carrying the Corps out of the House.

emae radunto; lesum foneris nec habento. These Sylla. three fragments are found in feveral Writers. scribed bounds to grief. Molieres is here only carried in Cossins.

cen as instead of genas.

This law forbids Women to tear their faces, and make lamentions.

Tully afforces us, l. 2. Tufcul, that this law was made by Solon, and collected by the Decemviri : Postea quam, ut scribit Phalereus, sumptuesa fieri funera & lamentabilia carpiffent, Solonis

ENDO fonere tribes ricinieis, rica porporea, decemona ribicinebas metier liceto: bac plaus nei-

Endi instead of in, fenere instead of funere. instead of purpurea, tibicinebes instead of tibicinibus, vetier inftead of stier. It was ordained by this Law, that Women should be in Funeral Pomps.

SERVALIS unclura, circumpet atieque, quem fonus exfequienter, neive respersio funt ; miso. This Law forbad to anoint the Corps These Laws were lost by the misfortune of Slaves, and make a Funeral Feast at their Servelis instead of Servilis, quem instead of chm, fonce inftead of funes, exfequianter instend of excession ire, we instead of ne, fust instead of fiat, sepalcris instead of sepulcris, korones instead of coronne, endepenite instead of impenito.

MURINAM mortuo nei endito : That they should not make use of that excellent

Writers don't agree about the composition of that artificial Drink; but all unanimoully fay, that it was very chargeable: Wherefore the December, who intended to Funerals of the Great Men of Rome: OL- leffen the great Charges of Persons of Quality's Funerals, forbad the use thereof.

> PLUSA fonera unei nei facito, neive plu. les lettos endolerto.

It was not allowed to have many Beds carried in Funeral Pomps. Notwithstanding, Augustus honoured Marcellus's Funeral with fix hundred Beds; and there were MOLIERES faciem nei carpunte, neive fix thousand reckoned at the Funeral of

This was accounted a great honour: As This law ordered the mourning, and pre- for the common People, their Corps were nera, unei instead of uni, pluses instead of plicaretur & summu; left they would remed plures, endeferte instead of inferte.

reve le fraude liceto.

qual initead of cui, aufe inftead of aure, den- that the Bones of those Men, who died in teir instead of dentes, wintei instead of winti, the War or foreign Countries were burned ele instead of ille.

Corps of the dead, unless his teeth were the Funeral honours performed to the dead tied with golden Thread : For in this as we learn of Feftus. Membrum abscindi min cafe it was not lawful to burn it with the two dicebatur goum digious ei decidebatur ; al Corps.

ROGUM ascia nei poleito: That the pile of Wood should not be of polished Wood, but of Wood as it grows.

HONORATORUM wirerum lau- City. det endo conscione memorantor, casque nanie ad
This Law is related by Tully: HOMItibicinem prosequantor: That the Funeral NEM mortuum, inquit lex duedecim, in urbe Speech of Illustrious Persons should be ne sepelite, neve write. Nevertheless. Greatmade in publick, and that lamentations Men, Emperors and Vestal Virgins have should be sung, at the sound of Musical In- been excepted from this Law; for Palorin publickly the Funeral Speech of Junian Bru- Family; but the other Citizens were butw his Colleague in the Confulat. This ried in their own Lands, or in the Highcustom was afterwards followed by others ways of Romeduring the Commonwealth, and in the time of the Emperors.

DOMINUS foneris ende ludeis Accenfe, Listerebolque Citer.

Endo instead of in, ludeis instead of ludis, Littorebofque inftead of Littoribufque, offiter inflead of utiter : That the Pretident of the Funerals, should make use of the Officers Accept and Litters in the Games.

whom Augustur first named, according to ther's Authority. Quintilian Meneraries. This custom of representing Games to honour the Funerals of vitai instead of vita, efted instead of efte, in great Men, is very ancient, fince Homer and Virgil make mention thereof. These Games dari, jour instead of ju, fei instead of & were folemnized with Fights of Gladiators venemanis instead of venundederit, fidin inor Horse-races.

fonus faciat, entra quam fei quis foris militiaque mertues fiet.

This Law is mentioned by Tully, I. 11. de Legib. HOMINI, inquit, mortus offa ne funt bomines, qui talem in liberos habeant pateflelegito , quo post funus faciat : excipit bellicam tem, qualem nos babemus. peregrinamque mortem. And afterward he explains this Law : Ut pifeaquam corpus cre- raign Authority was granted to the Famatam effet, offa à cinerious legantur, flatimque thers by Romulus : Hanc autem poteflatem nun loco prozimo in terram condantur, ne, fi alium recentem fuiffe, fed jam inde ab Romulo per-

Plusa inftead of plura, fonera inftead of fu-gin locum sepeliendi causa deportarentur, luftus mil lures, ordeserto instead of inserto.

AUSUM in fonces nei addito: ass quoi died in the Wars or foreign Countries? ause denteit wintlei fient, im cum ele sepelire ure- whose Bones were brought to Rome, to be laid in the Sepulchre of their Ancestore Aslum instead of aurum, aft instead of at, were exempted from this Law. 'Tis troe except one of their Fingers, which was con-It was forbidden to burn Gold with the off and brought again to Rome, to receive quod fervatum jufta ficrent, relique corpore com-

> HOMINEM mortuum endo urbe mi Sepcleite . newe write : That the Corps should not be neither buried nor burnt in the Publicole and Pofihumius Tubertus were buri-P. Valerius Publicola was the first who made ed below the Capitol, as also the Claudian

PATRI endo fidiom qui ex se matreme familiae natus est, vitai necisque potestas estad; terque im venundarier jous eftod: sei pater fi-diom ter venomduit, sideos à patre leber estol: That the Father should have power of life and death over his Son, begotten of him and his Wfe in a lawful Marriage: that he might fell him three times like a Slave; but having been fold three times, he became Dominus luderum, the Master of the Games, free again, and was no more under his Fa-

> Ends instead of in, fidiem instead of filian, instead of eum, venundarier instead of venus stead of filius, leber instead of liber.

The Father's Authority was great among HOMINI mortuo ofa nei lecito, que post the Remans ; and the Emperor Justinian tells us, that this Right was particular to the Romans: Jus potifiatis quod habemus in liberes proprium est civium Romanorum. Nulli enim

Dienysius Halicarnas aus fays, that this fovebefore the Prætor.

point Tutors to his Children by his Last

SI QUIS tutor pupillum fraudarit remque ejus intervorterit, infamia netator penaque mitator duplionis: If a Guardian defrauds his Pupil and waste his Estate, let him be branded with infamy, and fined the double of the the Estate of his Pupil, but also of all that dred. he might or could honestly have received, and that with as much and more diligence, and was branded with infamy.

SEI Foufofor eft, adnatorum, genteiliumque tance of their Children. endo co pequinaque ejus potestas estod.

permiaque ejus potestas esto.

managing his own Estate, he must be left Girl, be Heir to his Father. to the Guardianship of his nearest Relations, who are to take care of his Estate and Person.

PATER familias, utei soper familia pemiaque soua lagasis, ita jous estod. That the Mafter of the Family should have power to dispose of his Estate by his last Will.

Utei instead of uti, soper instead of Super, for instead of fun, legajit instead of legaverit, jus instead of jus, efted instead of efte.

By the Law of the twelve Tables, which is the most ancient Law of the Remens, it was allowed to a Testator to dispose of his Estate which way he thought fit; but most esto beres. often, when Testators had thus disposed of cators of the Will feeing that there remain-

In the time of the Emperors, it was not led nothing for them, quitted it, and by this haful for Fathers to kill their Children, means the whole Will was made void, and nor to make them Slaves; nor to difinhe- the Legatees got nothing. Wherefore to rit them, but in some cases of great conse- prevent this premunire, the Law called Falquence, which they were obliged to declare cidis was made, by which it was enacted, that Testators should have power to dispose by their Last Will, but of three fourth PATREI libereis suis quosque babet in parts of their Wealth, and should be bound putsate cujuscumque sexus, suivis testaments to leave the other fourth part to the Heir sadi jeus estad : That a Father might appointed by their Will. And therefore this Law is called Quarta Falcidia, or only Falcidia, which was made a little time before the Empire of Augustus, during the Trium-virat.

> FILII filiaque familias benorum paternorum sui suaque beredes sunto.

The Law of the twelve Tables instituted but two kinds of Heirs or Inheritors abin-For a Guardian is not only bound to give teffet, i.e. without making a Will, viz. an account of what he has received out of Justum and aguaterum, of Children and Kin-

The Male line was fo much regarded in than if it was his own affairs; and if he was the ancient Roman Law, and the Female fo convicted of having fraudulently dealt in neglected, that Children did not inherit the that matter, he was not only bound to a Goods of their Mother, and the Mother fingle restitution of what he had taken or was no Heir to her Childrens Estate : But converted to his own use, but also to pay afterwards a decree of the Senate was made, the double of the Trespals by Action, cal- settling a mutual Succession, viz. Orficialed by the Lawyers, de rationibus distrabendis, num jui, impowering Children to inherit after their Mother, and Tertyllianum jus, fettling the right of Mothers to the Inheri-

Si furiofus eft, agnatorum gintiliunique in co SEI QUA molier poft virei mortem in decem preximeis menfebos pariat, quei, quave ex eâ nascatur, souut, suave, in virei familia Tis enacted by this Law of the twelve here efed. If a Woman is delivered of a Tables, that if a Pupil who is come to age, Child ten Months after the death of her becomes a fool, or mad, and uncapable of Husband, let the Child born, either Boy or > Ulpian's opinion is, that a Child born eleven Months after the death of his Father, is not able to inherit, post decem menfer mortis natus non admittitur ad legitimasa bereditatem : However, the Emperor Adrian has declared, that an honest woman lying in the eleventh month after the death of her Husband, the Child then born, might lawfully inherit his Fathers Estate, grounded therein upon the authority of Physicians and Philosophers. Wherefore Varre fays, in a Satyr intitled Testamentum.

> Si quis undecimo menfe uat' A'essotian natus,

Whereupon Cujscius tells us, that this must their wealth in private Legicies, the Exe- be understood of the eleventh month began, and not over.

By making this Law, which was afterwards repealed, the Deamviri attempted to breed divisions between the Nobility and the Populace, and by that means render their Magistracy perpetual.

SEI VIR aut molier alter alterei nontiom miseit, devertium estad; malier res soums fibei habetod, vir molierei claves admited exi-

Sei for fi, melier for mulier, alterei for alteri nentiem miseit for nuntium mist, devertiem for divertium, efted for efte, fonce for fune, fibei for fibi , babeted for habete, melierei for mulieri adimited for adimito . exiciteque for exigito-

Romans before the Law of the twelve Tables, neither do we find it to have been put in practice, till one and twenty years after the Law made by Spurius Carvilius Ruza. who put away his Wife because of her barrennness in the Year of Rome IOXXIII When M. Pomponius Matho and C. Papprins Malo death it felf, as St Augustin relates from de were Confuis, for which Valeries blames him, in that he preferred the defire of having Tables, are very contrary to that, for the Children, before his Conjugal Affection. they are very tender in the point of punifi-This was afterwards observed in the Roman ing Offenders with death, yet they enjoyn Empire, not only during the time of Pa- it in respect to those, who blast the Rennganism and the ancient Occonomy, but tation of another by Verses, or injurious also under the first Christian Emperors, and Representations, for which there is great continued to, and even after the Reign reason; for our lives ought to be liable to of Justinian; and this was so certain, and the lawful centures of the Magistrates, and looked upon to be so reasonable, that the not to the unbridled liberty of Poets, and parties concerned were not allowed to divest themselves of that liberty by a penal any one, but upon condition that we are sith agreement, but must be content to undergo to answer it, and vindicate our selver in the penalties which the Law prescribed, in Law. respect to the person that was the cause of an unjust Divorce. The Divorce was made by a mutual consent of the parties, which deprehenses fouerit, kapital effed : He who is they called Bone Gratia, and in this case the fame depended wholly upon the Parties a- ought to be punish'd with death. Wilh greeing, to discharge each other of their murther was always punish'd most severely Nuptial Rights, and to advance themselves by the Ancients; and this punishment, as they thought good, or elfe by the fole cording to the vigour of the Law, was not motion and obstinacy of the one, against only inflicted when death ensued, but alle the inclination of the other; and if there when a person was bent upon the execution were no lawful cause for it, he who sued of an ill design, which he could not accomwas liable to the penalty of injusti dissidii; plish; and so that person was punished but if there were just cause for it, then the who armed waited for, or set upon any one Husband restored her Fortune to his Wife, took the Keys of his House from her, and fent her away, as Cicero tells us, frugi fattus est, mimam illam suam suas res sibi habere jussis ex duodecim Tabulis, claves ademit, exegit.

PATREBOS cum plebed comubia nei | SEI QUIS injuriam alteri fante un he thall pay him xxv d's in beals Mone The word Injuris, injury, in the Rent Law, comprehended every thing a Man de in prejudice to his Neighbour: An injury was done three ways, by action, when one Man had received more blows and wounds in his body than the other; by words, when one spoke words of another that touch his Reputation and Honour, and by writing del matory Libels and Verfes. The first forting injury was variously punish'd by the Roman Law, for if it proceeded fo far as to break . Member, the Laws of the twelve Table allowed the maimed person to take firm faction himself, by laying the same punish. ment upon the other, that is, to main him or break the fame bone; and this they called Talio, for the punishment was and onehe Divorces were not known to the ancient to be equal to the wrong; and when there was nothing broke, but only a blow or buffet given with the Fift, he was only to pay five and twenty Ai's. As to Wrong done, and Satyrs made upon the Great Men of Rome, they were punished by a pecuniary mulct or banishment, and sometimes by cero, l. 4. De Repub. Our Laws of the twelve we ought not to be allowed to speak ill of > OUEI cum telo beminis eccidendi unda found ready to kill another with an Arrow, with a delign to kill him, tho' he is reality should escape. So also, he that gave another poyfon, who bought, fold and prepared it tho' it wrought not the effect, was punished in the fame manner as a murtherer.

joure cafes effed : Sei loncei fartom faufit, solore se tesenderit, sei im aliquips cum clausere soife, joure casos estod : Sei loucei fortem faust mont telo fe defenderit, fei leber fiet, Prater im unbererier joubetod, eique quei forcom fattum efit abbicito : Sei fervos fiet, virgis cafos ex faxo deiunt; fei impobes fiet, Pratoris arbitratu verberett noxfam farceito : It was lawful to kill him that stole any thing by night; and if g was day, and that the Thief stood armed mon his defence, it was also lawful to kill him: but if he did not fo defend himfelf, and got away, the Prætor fentenced him ealy to be whipped; but if he was a Slave, they were, after he had been first whipped. m throw him down head-long over the Tarwie Rocks : If the Thief was not yet at of to fuch Damages as the Prætor pleafed.

histor: That he who bore false Witness aminit any one should be thrown down headlong over the Tarpeian Rock. This Law agrees with the Eighth Commandment . which God gave his people, Falfum Testimomen dices. Plate and other Greek Philoforhers had undoubtedly read the Books of Me, wherein the Decalogue is fet down, sal took the greatest part of their Laws from thence, which the Decembin compiled. I Sall not in this place fet down feveral Fragments of the Laws of the twelve Tables. concerning the way of judging and ordering an Acculation, which will be found under the word Accufatio, jus & judicium : No more than those which refer to the Asfemblies of the people of Reme by Tribes, Contries & Curia, which will be found under the word Comities. But now we come to buk of the particular Laws of the Romans and their Emperours.

LEX SULPITIA, The Sulpition Law, made by the Confuls P. Sulpitius Samunu, and P. Semprenius Sophius in the year of Remblick eccel.

NESCILICET quis templum vel aram hjuffu Senatus aut Tribunorum plebio majorio parin dedicarer: It was not lawful to dedicate a Temple or an Altar without the consent of the Senate or Tribunes of the people.

LEX PAPIRIA. The Papirian Law. Ne quie injussie plebis ades, terram, aram, aliamwerem ullam consecraret : It was not allowed | Seats in the Theater. any to confecrate Temples, any piece of Ground, and Altars, without the confent of

LEX HORTENSIA. The Horwere at first kept on Holy-days, should for which bore the name of Julius Cafar, was

QUEI mu forum faxfit, fei im aliquipt | the future be held on Working-days: wherein the Pretor administred Justice by pronouncing these three words, de, dice, addice, This Law was made by & Hertenfius Dictator in the year of Rome cccclaviii.

LEX PUBLICIA. The Publician Law made by Publicius Tribun of the people. Ne quibus nifi ditioribus cerei Saturnalibus mittarentur: That Wax Tapers were not to be fent to any, but those that were rich . at the time of the Saturnalia. It was a custom to make feveral Prefents at this Feast, and particularly of Wax Tapers, to intimate that Saturn had brought Men from Darkness to Light; that is, from an obscure and favage, to a police and learned Life.

LEX CORNELIA. The Cornelian Law, made by the Conful P: Cornelius Delaage, he was to be whipped and be fentenc- bells, after the death of Julius Cafer, in the year of Rome dccx. Ut Eidus Julii quibus Ce-QUEI falfum testimernum dieferie en faco far interfettus in Senatu eft, Urbis natales haberentur: That they should celebrate the day of Remes Original, on the Ides of July when Cefer was flain.

LEX LICINIA. The Licinian Law. concerning those Plays called Lude Apollinares, instituted in honour of Apollo, determined the day on which they should be represented, there being no fixed day before appointed for that purpose. P. Licinius Præter urbanus legem ferre ad populum julius ut bi ludi perpetukm in flatam diem voverentur.

LEXROSCIA: The Rescion and Julian Law, of which L. Rossins Ocho Tribune of the people was Author; according to Florus, in the year of Rome delxxxvi. Ut in Theatre Equitibus Romanis qui H. S. quadringenta poffident, quatuordecim speltandi gradus adlignarentur , exceptis ise qui ludicram artem exercuerant quique five fue five fortuna vitie rem decoxiffent: That the Roman Knights who were worth 400000 Sefterces, i.e. about 3333 l. Sterling, should have fourteen Steps of the Theater allowed them to fee the Plays, except those who were turned Buffoons, and wasted all their Fortune by their Debaucheries. This is what Tacitus fays, Am. l. 17. c. s. the Emperour feparated the Roman Knights from the people in the Circur, and gave them Seats that were nearer to the Senators. For before this they affifted at this Shew confusedly; for the Roscian Law regulated no more than what regarded the LEX CINCIA. The Cincian Law. made for restraining the Avarice of the Orators, who exacted large Sums of Money for their pleadings. The Calpurnian Law atopics Law required, that the Fairs which gainst the Bribery of Magistrates, and that who made private Suit for Offices in the of the people was the Author of it, in the Commonwealth.

LEX PAPIA. The Papian Poppean Law, made by Augustus in his old Age, to which L. Villius Tribune of the people was incourage Men to Marry, by imposing a Pe- Author; and whereby the Age of Persie nalty upon Batchelours, and thereby to in- that were to enter upon Offices in the Ra crease the Rvenues of the Commonwealth.

LEX AGRARIA. The Agrarian Law, made concerning the diffribution of Lands, Law, which prescribed the Qualifications. taken from the Enemies. This Law prov- Persons ought to have that enter upon Om ed to be the Seed of great Divisions in the Roman Empire, in the time of the Republick. See Araria.

LEX JULIA. A Law made by Auguffur against Adultery. It was the first that against Pempey appointed a punishment and publick Procels to be made against those who seduced Wives, and Dehauched Maidens and right of becoming Magistrates. Widows of Quality : Not that Adultery was not punished before Augustus his time: but there was no process made against it, and there was no stated Punishment assigned for it : But the Julian Law, which Augustus him- fent. felf had the misfortune to fee put in execution in his own Family, in the person of his own Children, required nothing but banishment for this fin of Adultery ; but the Penalty was afterwards increased by the conflitutions of the fucceeding Emperors, who punished Adultery with death.

tor, in the Year of Rome DCLXXIII. where- by every one of them in proportion to the by the expences of Feasts and Funerals were Effects he had on board, this was made by regulated, and those condemned to pay a the Rhodism, and was found to be so just, the injunction of that Law.

LEX PAPIA, The Papies Law con-cerning the Vertal Virgins, who looked remony practifed in the Sacrifices of the after the Sacred Fire in the Temple of the Pagens, wherein the Priest poured down some Goddess Vesta, the who let it go out, was Wine, Milk and other Liquors, in honour whipped by the Soveraign Pontiff; and if the of the Deity, to whom he Sacrificed, after fuffered her felf to be Debauched, the was he had first rasted a little of it. buried alive in Campus Sceleratus, without the LIBATIONES, Libations of Wine Gate called Portacellina. See Veftalis.

DE REPETUNDIS, The Law of Bribery or publick Extortion.

concerning the Augurs, by Q. Eliss Petts fill their Crowned Cups with Wine, and to the Conful, in the year of Rome dlxxxvii.

concerning the time of holding the Affemblies, which ought not to be held but liffer after he had got some little advantage upon those days called Dii Comitiales.

The Valerian and Sempronian Law, made con- Minerua. cerning those who had a right to Vote in the made against the Avarice and Intriges of those Reman Assemblies. G. Valerias Tappe, Times year of Rome iczvi.

LEX VILLIA, The Villian Law, of publick was regulated. 'Twas also called LEX ANNALIS.

LEX CORNELIA. The Cornelian

ces in the Commonwealth.

LEX HIRCIA, The Hircian Law. which allowed of none to hold Offices in the Republick, but fuch as had fided with Cofe

LEX VISELLIA, The Vifelian Law. which allowed the Sons of Freedmen the

LEXPOMPEIA & CLAUDIA The Pempeian and Claudian Law, which required that those who put in for Offices in the Commonwealth should be always me-

LEX RHODIA, The Law of Rhole relating to traffick by Sea; this Law required that if it happened a Ship laden with Merchandize, that belonged to several Merchans, in order to avoid Shipwrack, threw the Goods of some of them overboard, and that those of the other were faved, an estimate LEX SUMPTUARIA, A Sump- should be made of all the Merchandize, and tuary Law, made by Cornelius Sails the Dicta- that the loss and damage should be suffained certain pecuniary mulch, who transgressed that it was received by all the Nations that came after them.

and other Liquors, frequently made by the Heathens to their Gods when they went up LEX PEPETUNDARUM, or on any enterprizes. The Deputies which were fent to Achilles to invite him to come to the relief of his Country-men, began to LEX ÆLIA, The Elien Law made wash their hands before their departure, to pour it down upon the ground; in honour LEX FUSIA, The Fusion Law, made of the Gods these Libations were commonly performed, before they went to fleep. U. over his Enemies, washed himself in the Sea LEX VALERIA, SEMPRONIA, Water, and went to make his Libations to fpeaks thus of Liber: As for the Mysteries of ment, which covered the whole Volume, and Liber, whom they have made to prefide over the was of use not only to save the Paper, but also Seminal Powers of Liquids, I mean, not only to be an Ornament to the Book, because it was over the Juices of Fruits, amongst which Wine | painted of a Purple or Crimson Colour. The has the Preheminence, but also over Seeds of Title of the Book was written in Gold Cha-Animals ; I am loth to take notice of that Ex- | rafters on the outfide of the Parchment, but the 'cels of Injamy they arrived to therein; but yet | Epitle Dedicatory they wrote on the infide. 'I must say (in order to contound the arrogant | When the Roll was made, they cut it at both 'Stupidity of our Adversaries) among other Ends, and upon every Leaf, which was well 'Things, which I am obliged to omit upon this polifhed with a Pumice-stone, they laid pieces Occation, because they are too tedious; that of Gold, Silver, or Ivory, which they fastned to 'according to the Testimony of Varro, the Feasts | the Stick placed in the Umbilious. of Liber were celebrated with fo much Licentiousness in some Places in Italy, that in Honour of him, they gave Adoration to the Privy Parts in practice by good Emperors; above all by Auof Man, and that not in Secret to cover their gullus Cafar, according to Suetonius and Tacisus; Shame, but publickly to make Wickedness ap- Congiarium populo, Donativum militibus dedit : He 'pear triumphant: For they placed him after an gave a Largels to the People, which confifted of honourable Manner in a Chariot, which was small Sefterces, and a Donative to the Soldiers, brought into the City after they had first drawn it through the Fields: but at Lavinium they relius caused Medals to be coined, whereon the 's spent a whole Month in celebrating the Feasts of Picture of Liberality was engraven, like a Ro-· Liber only, during which time, there was all the | man Lady clad in a long Robe, holding a Teffera 'Impurity of Speech imaginable encourag'd, until in her Right Hand, and round it Liberalitas Au-'the laid Charlot had traversed the Market-place, gusti: By the Medals of Airian and Alexander God Liber favourable to Seeds, and expelled a Teffera in her Hand. Charms and Witchcraft out of the Earth.

LIB

Bacchanalia.

LIBER; a Book. The Way used by the Ancients in Binding of their Books, was not like unto ours: Books of a Square Form were hardly ever in ule, either amongst the Greeks or Romans, till a long time after Carulus. Indeed, King Attalus seeing the Art was found out to make Parchment to well, as to be fit to be writ upon, on both fides, made fome of his Books Square-wife; yet the ancient Way, which was to roll their Books in such a Manner, as to give them the Form of a small Column, prevailed so long, that even all their Libraries, in the Time of Cicero, and long after, were composed of these Rells: The Dearnels of Parchment, and Cheapness of the Paper, whereof they made their rolled Books, was the Reason there was hardly any other to be feen. As to the Matter of Binding,

LIBER. This is one of the Epithets of Bac- or glew feveral Leaves of Paper at full length thus; either because he procured unto the Bao to the Ends of one another, in proportion to the tions their Liberty; or that being effeemed the Bigness of each Book: When one fide was filled God of Wine, he doth by Drinking, give Ease up, the Work was at end, for they did not write unto diffurb'd Minds. The Confulary Medals of on both fides; they rolled all together, beginthe Familyof Caffia, represent unto us the Pictures | ning with the last, which they called Umbilicus, of Liber and Libera, as they are called in Ancient | whereunto they fixed a Piece of Wood, Lbony, Inscriptions; that is, of Male and Female Bacchus. or some such Thing, to keep the Roll tight, and St. Augustine, Lib. 7. de Civ. Dei, Cap. 21. to the other End they glewed a Piece of, Parch-

LIBÉRALITAS: Liberality; a Goddess worshipped by the Romans, and a Vertue often put which was a like Sum of Denarii. Marcus Au-'and was brought whither the People defign'd to Severus, the Emperor is to be feen mounted upon 'deposite what they carried; after which, the a little Ascent, and in a sitting Posture, making ' most vertuous Ladies in the City must go and | Signs to a Man that is at his Feet, to give him 'crown this infamous Thing, before the Multi- the Money that was fet upon the Brink of the 'tude. In this Manner it was that they made Afcent, with Liberality on the Sides thereof, and

LIBERTAS. Liberty; a Goddess wor-LIBERALIA; the Feafts of Bacchus. See | shipped by the Romans and Greeks, by the Name of Eleutheria; the Romans had divers Places and feveral Temples confecrated to the publick Liberty: Ovid makes mention of these Places, and of a Day that was dedicated to Jupiter the Victorious, and to Liberty:

> Occupat Apriles Idus cognomine Victor Jupiter, bac illi Sunt data Templa die. Hic quoq; ni faller, populo dignissima nostre Atria Libertas capit babere fua.

The Places were furrounded with Portico's, and it did appear that the People met there: It was a kind of Temple, open at top like unto that at Ferusalem, where flood the Altar for Burnt-Oiferings; but bendes these Places, the Roman Hiftorians make mention of several Temples at Rome dedicated to the Goddess Liberty; among there was no other Fashion in use, but to paste others, that built by Claudius, in the Place where Cicero's Citero's House stood, after it had been ruined 3 | they called Libra or Libella, and was the Tenth and that erected in Honour of Julim Cafer, af- part of a Denarius, because 'twas the Value of ter his Death. Dien Caffius mentions both, an As, which at first was a Pound Weight of in Lib. 43. It was to the publick Liberty that Copper: Scaliger also adds, that they made use the Romans dedicated these Temples. Her Pi- of the Word Libra for Money told out; Libra Eture represented her clad like a Roman Lady, non erat nummus, sed Collettio Nummorum. holding a Javelin in one Hand, and a Cap or Bonnet in the other: By the Medals that were coined in Honour of Brusses, and by those of C. Cafar, furnamed Caligula, you may observe that the Bonnet or Cap was an Enfign of Liberty thus when the Romans were about to grant their Slaves their Freedom, they gave them a Bonnet or Cap: From whence comes the Latin Phrase, they were so called, because they carried the Dare Pileum, to give one his Liberty, and Vocare ad Pileum, to call a Slave to his Freedom.

have been called Liberbrides. Strabo in his 10th Book, will have them to have been thus named, from a Mountain in Thrue called Liberbrus, at the Foot whereof there flood a Temple dedicated to the Muses by the Thracians.

LIBITINA; this was a Goddess, believed by the Ancients to prefide over Funerals: Some confound her with Proferpina; others with Venus; the Moon as well as the Sun prefide over Nativities and Funerals, as the general Cause of the Generation and Corruption of all Things; and the has received all these Names and Offices for her felf alone, as Plutarch has it in the Life of Numa. In her Temple they kept all Things that were requifite for Funeral Solemnities; whence it is, that Phadra reproaches a Miler, for cutting off by his Will, all the Charges which should have been expended at his Funeral, for fear left the Goddels Libitima should get any Thing by his Death.

Qui resesas omnem impensam Funeris Ne quid de suo Libisina lucresur.

Those Persons whose Business it was to furnish them with what was necessary for that Purpose, were called Libitinarii, according to Uhian; to fecure the Peace and Tranquility of the Puband at this Day they are known with us by the lick. Name of Undertakers.

Signs of the Zodiac; when the Sun comes to the Eighth Degree of Libra, it marks the Autumnal nal of Languages came from the Confution, Equinox, because it forms Arches equal to those it did before in Taurus; it enters therein in built the Tower of Babel; the Hebrew Tongue the Month of September, on our 7th or 12th.

in respect to all heavy Things that are weighed; the Romans allowed but Twelve Ounces to a Pound Weight, and to a Pound of Length-Meafure: The Weights of a Pound were borrowed | between the Hebrew without Points, and that by the Romans from the Sicilians, who named it | wherein the Vowels are noted by Points. Father Litra; and the Romans changed the t into b.

LICHAS; Hercules his Servant, by whom Deianira his Wife fent him the Shirt that was infected with the Blood of the Centaur Neffus; which Poison made Hercules so outragious, that he threw Lichas into the Seas, and he was transformed by Neptune into a Rock.

LICTORES; Lictors, or Ax-Bearers; Axes, which were fastned to a long Handle, and encompassed with a Bundle of Rods, called Fastes, LIBETHRA; a certain Fountain conse- or Secures : Romulus was the first that made use crated to the Muses, and for this Reason they of them, with a Design to inspire the People with a greater Reverence for their Magistrates: The Dictators had Twenty Four Lictors, who walked before them, the Confuls, Twelve; the Pro-Confuls and Governours of Provinces, Six; the Przetors and City Magistrates, Two only. They also punished such Offenders as were surprized in the Fact at the first Command they received from the Magistrates. J. Liller, Collige manus, expedi virgas, plette fecuri. They were ready to undo their Bundle of Rods, withther it were to whip, or to cut off the Head of the condemned Offender: They were thus called Ligando, because they bound the Hands and Feet of the condemned Person before his Execution.

LIMENARCHÆ, or Stationarii; They were Soldiers posted by the Romans in divers Places, to prevent Diforders, and especially Highway-men, and Robbers upon the High-ways, as the Grand Provofts are in France at this Day: They were appointed by Augustus after the End of the Civil War, to hinder the Soldiers that had been disbanded from ravaging Italy: Tiberius increased their Number, as Sucronius in the Life of the faid Emperor informs us: The Chief of these Soldiers was called Irenarcha; that is, The Prince of the Peace, because he was instrumental

LINGUA, Tongue, Speech; they are cer-LIBRA, the Ballance, is one of the Twelve tain Expressions which People have conceived to make one another to be understood: Th. Origiwherewith God punished the Pride of those who is the ancientest Language, and is called the LIBRA, a Pound. 'Tis a Measure of Weight | Holy Language, and the Rabbins say, 'tis so; because 'tis so pure and chafte, that there is no Word therein for the Privy Parts, nor for that whereby we ease Nature; there is a Difference Morin pretends, in Opposition to the Modern The Romans had also a fort of Money which Rabbis, that Moses wrote without Points, and tains, that besides the Books of Scripture, in the Time even of St. Ferome, there was no other Book in Hebrew, but only in the Greek Tongue, and that it was not before Justinian's Reign, that they began to appear. The Reason which he gives for it, is, that the faid Emperor having by an Edict forbidden the Jews to Read the Surieucis, or their Traditions in their Synagogues, they bethought themselves of Translating it into their own Language; and this Book, favs he, was called Mifna. The Points in the Hebrew Tongue were not invented, to fignifie the Vowels by, till towards the Tenth Century, by the Maffaretes.

The Punic Tongue, according to the Authority of William Postell, was no other than the Phanician, which he compares with the Hebrew, from whence it proceeded together with the Caldean and Syriack.

The Arabick Tongue is the most Copious of all the Languages; and the Arabs fay, they are as Ancient as the Hebrews, as pretending their Descent to have been from Ismael: Their Ingenuity and Language have been much commended: Their ancient Writings have almost all the Letters joined together; but one Eleabil was pecefficated to invent and introduce the Points into their Language, for the easier reading of Arabick: Some of them they place above, and others below the Words. Kinflenius in his Epiftle Dedicatory to the Emperor Redolphus, speaking of this Custom, seems to be of Opinion. that the Arabs did not admit of these Points into their Writings, till such time as they had Commerce with the People of Europe : The Ancient Arabick Character was called Cupbick : The most Ancient is the thickeft and largeft, the other being less both ways. That which the Tartars make use of at this Day, appears closer, smaller, and more bended than the others.

The Egyptian Language had the Forms of Animals in it, being myfterious Symbols, that ferved to conceal and involve in Obscurity all the Secrets of their Theology: They called them Hieroglyphicks: And many Obelisks or Tombs are still to be found inscribed with such Charafters, and Hieroglyphical Figures; the Words of this Language express the Nature and Propriety of all Things.

from the Word "Aryuntos; the which is con-

without the Diffinction of Words: Vollius main- | fon of Nods; there are fill, fays he, fome of the Descendants of these first Expeians in being, who speak this Language: In the mean time, it may be faid, that the same hath been loft many Ages ago. A Grammer and Vocabulary were found in the famous Monastery of St. Anthony, written in this Language, whose Characters are somewhat like the Ancient Greek: The Modern Copsicks have no other Language than the vurgar Egyptian Dialect, that is intermix'd with Turkifb and Arabick : Father Kircher will have the Ancient Coprick to have been altered by the Greek Tongue, from which it hath borrowed divers Words and Characters.

The Enurian Tongue has some Characters that are like enough to the Latin, and the Writing thereof is from the Right to the Left. Exgubinus has given us an Inscription in this Language, which has been found to have been of Fifty Years flanding before Sylla's Time; the Romans were very Curious to know this Language, and they used all their Endeavour to

The Characters of the Greek Tongue have not changed fo much as those of other Languages; the First and the most Ancient of them are more square, and come near those of their Original, which is the Phanician or Hebrew; feeing that, according to the Authority of Herodosus, the first Characters that were introduced into lonia, were very near the same. Pling speaking of the Greek Characters, after he had faid that they were like the Roman Letters used in his Time, cites no other Example for it, but an old Inscription upon a Brass Plate, which Vespasian and Tisus had given to the Publick Library : The Ancient Greek Characters, fayshe. are almost like unto the Latin ones of our Days, witness that old brazen Plate, taken out of the Temple at Delphos, which may be now feen in the Library of the Palace, dedicated by the Emperors to Minerva.

NATEIKPATHE, TIEAMENOT. AOHNAIOE. KOPA. KAI. AOHNA. ANEOHKEN.

This certainly was the Form of the Ancient Greek Characters, whereof Pliny and others speak; for 'tis certain, that the Ancient Grecians knew no other Letters but Capitals; and The Coprick, which was the Language of E- Fobn Lascary, a Greek by Birth, confirms it in a gre before the Greek, is a fingular Tongue, and | Preface of his to a Collection of Greek Epigrams, independent of all others, according to the Opi- printed at Florence in Capital Letters, in the nion of Kircher. Salmanus fays, That the Year, 1484. The Pointing and Diftinguishing Word Coptick, comes from a Town called Coptos, of Words, were not in use in those Old Times; whose Inhabitants had retained part of the An- which continued in a manner to the 174 Olymcient Language: The same Person in another pied, according to the Testimony of Lipsus and place is of Opinion, That this Name was taken | Leo Allasius : Its observed from the most Ancient Monuments, that the Greeks did nor divide their firmed also by Father Vanfleb, although he attri- Discourses at any time, but for the Perfecting butes the Origine thereof to Copros the Grand- and Compleating of the Sence of them; They did not put many Words into the same Line, ! but began another with a new Sentence; as Ancient Sacrifices, to intimate, That the Sacriffice may be seen by the Inscriptions of the Earl of was over, and the Gods made propitious. Litter Arundel; infomuch, that they did not write along at all as we do, but by way of Articles: Suides speaks of a Way of Writing, which they Call BOTETPODIAON, Bouftrophidon, being as much as to fay, done in Lines like unto shofe made by Oxen when shey plough. Pausanias confirms the same Thing in a Description he gives of the Coffer of Cypfelus, that was in Juno's Temple, in the City of Elis: There was upon this Cheft, fays he, some Inscriptions engraved in old Characters and streight Lines: There were also some others done after the Way which the Greeks call Bouftrophidon, because the Second Verse immediately follows the First, and joins it in the same Manner as the Races in the Stadia or Circus are redoubled. Some Authors are of Opinion, that the Sentences to diffinguished and feparated by Lines, have been continued even long after the Use of Accents and Points had been introduced, as may be feen in Diogenes Laertius: Ariftophanes, a Grammarian of Bigantium, was the first that brought them up, toward the 150 Olympiad, in the Reigns of Philopater and Euergetes, Kings of Egypt, Two Hundred Years before Christ's Nativity.

The Latin Tongue, like the rest, has had its Increase and Revolutions: The same Thing hath befell its Characters, as may be observed from the most ancient Inscriptions, and those which have succeeded them, even before the Destruction of the Empire: As the Characters of that Inscription of Duilius, published by Father Sirmond, do come nearer their Origin, fo they have a little more of the Etrurian and Greek in them: I hey discover the Shaking-hand of a People who did yet but begin: Those Seven Latin Volumes that were found in Numa's Tomb, were not writ in this Charafter; feeing Quintilian affures us, there were but very few Letters in those early Times, whose Shape and Pow er were of a different kind; and the Emperor Claudius procured no small Benefit to himself in introducing the Eolick Letter 4. Tacitus in the 10th Book of his Annals, speaking of the Form of the Roman Letters, fays, they were like unto the most ancient Greek Characters, which were Capitals.

LINUS, the Son of Apollo, and Terpfichore, or of Mercury, and the Nymph Urania, was a famous Musician, and Mafter to Orpheus: Hercules killed him with his own Harp for ridiculing him: Of this Name was a Theban Poet, that first brought Letters from Phanicia into Greece. Hermodorus the Platonick, C. 2. Of bis Discourses, favs. He wrote a Tract in Verse about the Creation of the World, the Course of the Sun and Moon, and the Generation of Animals: He was killed with an Arrow shot at him by Apolio.

LITARE, and Litatio; Terms used at the fays Macrobius, L. 3. Saturnaliorum, C. 5. Sacrificio fatto placare Numen. 'Tis to appeale God by Sacrifice. Suetonius also speaking concerning Julius Cafar, that he could not offer one favourable Sacrifice, on the Day wherein he was flain in the Senate, makes use of this Latin Expreffion ; Dein pluribus Hoftiis Casis cum litare non poffet, introits in Cariam, fpreta Religione ; af. ter he had offered many Sacrifices, and could not find the God's favourable, he gave over and went into the Senate, in Contempt of Religion: The faid Author does again make use of the fame Expressions in the Life of Augustus; Sacrificio non Litante; that is, not being able to appeafe the Gods, nor to make them propitious by his Sacrifices.

LITERA; a Letter; Figure, Character or Stroak of the Pen, which Men have agreed upon to fignifie fomething, and the Joyning whereof makes their Thoughts known to one another t From these Letters, are, as I may say, miracialoufly forung a Million of different Words They may be called the Elements of Speech. the Sacred Atoms, out of which is formed the vaft World of Sciences; and the faithful Gardians of what is most precious amongst Men. Without them the Original of the World would have been but confusedly known, and the most celebrated Actions would be buried in profound Oblivion.

The Alphabet of every Language is composed of a certain Number of these Letters or Characters, which have a different Sound, Form and Signification: The English and Greek have each 24 Letters; the Latin commonly 23, and the Hebrew 22 without Points. The Art of Writing has not been perfected all at once, feveral Ages were required to supply what was defective in those Shapes of Animals, the Ancients used, at may appear by Tacitus. The Egyptians, according to his Account, believed themselves to be the Inventers of it; but 'tis more likely that' the Hebrews, or as almost all the Ancients call them, the Chaldeans or Phanicians, were their Mafters, as we learn from that Verle in Lucan:

Phanices primi, fama fi creditur, Aufi Mansuram rudibus vocem signare Figuris.

Whence it was that those Letters were called. Phanician ones by the Greeks. Yet Diodorus Siculus reports, that that was not certain, and that it was only believed, that they did not invent; but change the Form of Letters; which is not unlikely, tince Quintus Curtius fays of them, if the Relation is to be believed, that they were the first that invented Letters, and shewed the Use of them; St. Augustine also, with many had learned them of the first Fathers, as of ritans, having always the Law of Moles written Moles: And that before the Deluge it felf, the | in the Five Books, called the Pentateuch, in their first Characters, according to Fosephus, had been own Characters, and that the same were inscriengraven upon l'illars, which Seth caused to be erected in Syria, for the Preservation of the Sciences he had discovered: This agrees with what Pliny fays concerning the Affyrian Letters, that they are no other than the Hebrew or Chaldean; As for my felf, fays that Author, I believe the Affyrian Letters were always in being. Hyginus attributes to the Deftinies the Invention of the following Greek Letters, A, B, H, I,T,T. And 'tis for that Reason Martianus Capella Calls them the Secretaries of Heaven. Fasephus, in the Beginning of his fewish Antiquities, rejecting the Opinion of the Greeks and Egyptians, will have us to believe, that the Grecians came very late to the Knowledge of Letters, that they received them from the Phanicians, and not from Cadmus, feeing at that time there were no Inscriptions found in the Temples of their Gods, nor in the publick Places; it being certain, the Greeks had nothing of greater Antiquity, than the Works of Homer; tho' Cicero in his Orator, entituled Brutus, tells us, they had Poets more ancient than Homer, who contented themselves with renearling their Poems by heart, because they had not yet found out the Use of Writing, or of Letters. Pliny, Lib.7. before the Trojan War, brought Sixteen of them from Phanicia into Greece, viz. A,B,C,D,E,G,I,L, M, N, O, P, R, S, T, U, to which Palamedes, during the Trojan War, had added Four, O, E, O, T. Herodotus will have it, That the Phanicians, who came with Cadmus into Greece, brought Writing Characters thither; which Diodorus Simulus also affirms; but at the same time he flews these Letters were not the same which them there before the Deluge of Deucalion, and that he did no more than revive the Use of them. before Cadmus his Time, and the Fews to the Phanicians, who were their Neighbours: Philo the Few ascribes them to Abraham a long Time his Antiquities, carries the Matter still farther, engraven. as high as Adam's Children, even to Serb, who engraved the Characters thereof upon Two

Moses his first Characters were not those Hebrew ones used now, which were invented by Erra after the Babilonifo Captivity, but those which were called Samaritan, according to St. Ferome, in his Preface to the Book of Kings: And this is agreeable to the Sentiments of iome others, is of Opinion, that the People of God! Rabbins, who ground the same upon the Samabed upon ancient Medals of Gold and Silver, which were found in Ferufalem, and divers other Parts of Palefline. But this Opinion is not without its Difficulty; as may be feen by the Talmud, where Marfuka fays, that the Law was first given to the Children of Ifrael in Hebrew Characters, but that afterwards Egra put it into the Aramean Tongue, and Assyrian Characters. There are some Authors who maintain, that Mofes made use of two forts of Characters, one, which is the Hebrew, for Sacred Things, and the other, which is the Samaritan, for prophane Matters, and of which last the Chaldeans made use, and that the Greek and Latin Charafters were formed of thefe; the laft of which being no other than the Greek Capitals, according to the Testimony of Pliny, who proves it by an ancient Inteription engraven upon Brass, and brought from Delphos to Rome.

NATEIKPATHE O MEN AGHNAIOS EME TEØEIKEN.

And he fays in Chap. 56. These were Allerian Letters, or according to some Authors, Syriac : But they are rather Samaritan, which, besides the Aleph and Fod, are so like the Greek and La-Chap. 6. will have the most ancient Letters to tin ones, if they be considered and taken upfide have seen the Affgrian, and that Cadmus about down, that they are almost the same thing. Euthe Year of the World 2520, above 250 Years febius confirms the same Matter by the Greeks. own Denomination, or Imitation of Caldailm therein, by their adding an A, as in Alpha inflead of Aleph, Beta for Beth, Gamma for Gimel. Delta for Daleth, &c.

Simonides, Evander and Demaratus were the first that brought Letters into Italy, the one from Arcadia, and the other from Corintb, the last into Tuscany, and the other to that Part of the Country where he fettled: In a Word, the Cadmus brought with him, feeing they had had ancient Greek Letters were very like ours, but we had but a very few of them at first; the rest were fince added. The Emperor Claudius, in Eupolemius attributes the first Invention of Let- Imitation of the Ancients, invented Three Letters to Mofes, who gave them to the Jews long ters, that continued in Use during his Reign, and were abolish'd after his Death: The Form of them are still to be feen in the Temples, and other publick Places of Rome, upon the Copper Gefore Moses; and Josephus in the First Book of Plates, whereon the Decrees of the Senate were

The Hebrews made a Division of their Letters into Guttural, viz. ab, cb, gn, Dental ?, s, r, Labial b, m, n, p, and those of the Tongue, viz. d, t, l, n. Crinitus fays, Mofes invented the Hebrew Letters, Abrabam the Syrise and Chaldee; the Phanicians those of Attica. (ighteen whereof Cadmas brought into Greece. and which the Pelafgi carried into Italy) and Ni-costrues the Lain Letters.

The Egyptions inflead of Letters used the Fi- | cond : But in pronouncing Daham or States. gures of Animals, and of Birds, which they called Hieroglyphicks, and were invented by Ifis.

The Gorbick or Toledo Letters were invented by Guefile, Bifhop of the Goths.

The Letters, F, G, H, K, Q, X, T, Z, were formerly not known to the Romans, 2s is proved by Claudim Daufquias in his Orthography, wherein he shews the Origin of Letters.

The Grammarians distinguish Letters into Vowels and Confonants; into Mutes, double Letters, Liquids, and Characteristicks. They Time of Anim. They also sometimes placed reckon Six Vowels, A, E, I, O, U, and I, they are thus called, because they have a diffinst Sound of themselves, and can alone form a Syllable, There are Eighteen Confonants, who require the Help of a Vowel in order to the cients Mehe put for mee or me; and meherme Forming of an Articulate Sound, and Compofing a Syllable. Of the Eighteen Consonants lay, vebemens for veemens, and mibi for me and the X and the Z, according to the Ancients Way of Pronouncing them, are properly no more than Abbreviations; the X, being nothing elfe but a C, and an S; and the Z, a D, and an S; and for this Reason, they are called double Letters.

King Chilperis had a Mind to introduce all the double Greek Letters into the French Alphabet. that so by one single Character they might formosus, aquonsus for aquosus, and the like; express the th. ch, ph, pf; and this was put in they being ignorant that among the Ancients Practife during his Reign, according to the Testimony of Gregory of Tours.

Of the Sixteen Confonants which remain, there are Four which they called Liquids or Fluent ones, viz. L, R, M, N; tho' ftrictly speaking, there are no more than the L and the R, which deferve this Name: the other two especially the M, being but very little liquid: There are Ten of them which may be called are pronounced with a closer and smaller Mouth Mutes, and may be divided into Three Clasicies, according to the Affinity they have one to another.

B, P, F, V, Mutes, 2C, Q, G, I,

As for the other two, the S makes a Class by it felf, unless the two double ones X and Z be inined thereunto, because it makes up the principal Part of them: As for the H 'tis no more than an Aspiration, altho' for that Reaion it ought not to be ftruck out of the Number of Letters of Vowels in general.

There is nothing wherein we have more changed the Pronunciation of the Ancients, than in them, for we do not continue to take Notice of the Distinction between long and short Vowels, whereon depends all the Quantities of Syllables, excepting those who are long by Polition; thus in pronouncing of Amabam and falls maturally into the L: From whence pro-Circumdabam, one may easily see that ma is ceeds the mutual Change that has been between long in the first Word, and de thort in the se- these Two Letters, for 'twas not the Athenians you cannot conceive whether the first Syllable of either of them be long or fhort : but the Ancients in their Pronounciation made an exaft Diftinction between all the long and all the fhort Vowels, where-ever they met with them. They also observed this Distinction in their Writing, between long and fhort Vowek. wherein they often doubled the Vowel to de. note a long Syllable: Which is testified by Quinsilian to have continued in Use to the the Letter H between the faid double Vowel, to render the Pronounciation thereof the firmger, as Abala was put for Ala; and 'tis for this Reason, that we likewise find among the Anput for mecum, and the fame we do when we mii of the Ancients. But afterwards in order to abridge the same, they have thought it enough to draw a Line only above the faid Vewel, to shew it was long; which being not understood by the Transcribers, they have taken this Line for the Abbreviation of a Letter. which is the Caufe, that we meet with toricus for toties, vicensimm for vicefimus, formonfm for the faid Line was of no other Use than to denote the Quantity of the Syllable.

Of Vowels in particular. The Three first, viz. A, E, I, are called open Vowels, because they are pronounced with a more open and full Mouth than the others. The Three last Vowels are O. V. and the Greek T, and are named close Vowels, because they than the foregoing ones.

The Dipthongs, which Lipfius calls Bivocales, double Vowels, are pronounced with a double Sound, as their Names do import; altho' both the Vowels are not heard equally or alike, because the one is sometimes weaker and the other ftronger. They reckon Eight of them in Latin, viz. Æ, Ai, Au, Ei, Eu, Oe, Oi, Vi.

of Confonants.

They reckon Eighteen Confonants in all who require a Vowel to be joined to them in order to the Forming of an Articulate sound and compofing a Syllable; they are divided into Liquids and Mutes, into hiffing and afpirated Con-

There are Four Liquid or Fluent Letters, that is, such as pass quickly and easily, viz. L, R, M, N. L and R have so great an Affinity between them, that those, who would pronounce the R, cannot do it, because 'tis very harsh, and Latins used Cantherus for narding, and confamile for confracuit. The M has a dull Sound, and is pronounced with the outermost Parts of the Lips, from whence it has been called Mugiens Littera; it is drown'd often in Profe, as also fometimes in Verse. In the Law Restituta' it is put for Restitutum iri: The N on the Contrary was called Tinnieus Littera, because it had a dearer and sharper Sound, and sounded against the l'allate of the Mouth.

Those Consonants are called Mutes, which have a duller and lel's distinct found than the reft. The B and the P are so like one another, that in the Opinion of Quintilian, concerning the Word Objinuit, Reason would have him use a B, but his Ears could hear no other Sound than a P Optimuis; for which Cause we see both by ancient Inscriptions, and old Glosses, that these Two Letters have been often confounded, as apfens has been put for absens, obtimus for optimus; and the Germans to this Day fay, ponum vinum for bonum vinum; these Two Letters have always had that in common, that they often flip into Words without any need of them, as absporto put for afporto. The Letter F was pronounced as the Greek 4, but not with fo ftrong an Afpiration, according to the Testimony of Terrentianus. The Vab or V Confonant had a more plain Pronunciation, but with less Respiration than we now use it. The C and the Q are so very like one another, that feveral Grammarians have been minded to reject the Q as a superfluous Letter, pretending that the C and the U were sufficient to express what we intend by a Q; but there is no reason why they should reject the Q, as Varro does, according to the Relation of Cenforinus, and Licinius Calvus according to that of Viltorinus; for 'tis still useful fince it ferves to join the two Vowels that follow into one syllable, whereas the C denotes their being divided; and this is that which makes a Difference between the Nominative, Qui, and the Dative, Cui. D is nothing but a Diminution of T, as the G is of C, according to Quintilian, and these two Letters are so very like, that by reafon thereof, they are often found to be put one for another, as at for ad; which gives Quintilian occasion to laugh at those who make a Scruple of writing one indifferently for the other, as fer for fed, baut for band, atque for adque are to be met with in Inscriptions, and elsewhere.

In the French Tongue they write voit with a t, tho' it be derived from the Word Vider, and as often as the D is in the End of a Word, and that the fucceeding Word begins with a Vowel, or an H that is not pronounced by way of Afpiration, they found it as a T; for Example, write it us grand Homme. In every Thing elfe, for Augusti, &c. C flood for Caises, he being they, as well as the English, have almost intirely for called from the Joy canceived by his Parents they pronounce it un grant Homme, tho' they alone that faid upificar for unifour ; but the | retained the Pronunciation of the faid two Letters, faving that they foften the T very much when 'sis joined with an I before another Vowel, where they make it to found very near like unto the S of the Ancients, as Pronuntio is founded, as if it were written Pronunfio. The S they call an hiffing Letter, by reason of the Sound it has. The same has been variously received among the Ancients, some having rejected it very much while others did as much affett it: Pindar in a manner lays it afide in all his Verses: Quintilian fays, 'tis harfh, and makes an ill Sound in the Conjunction of Words, whence it came to pass that many times it was entirely rejected: Plausus, Terence, and others using to write in this manner, Dignu' omnibu', and the like: Some of the Latins changed this Letter into a T; in Imitation of the Arbenians, uling Mercare for Merfare: Whereas others on the Contrary affected the Use of it every where, as Casmena was put for Camena, Dufmofa for Dumofa: And Quintilian bears witness, that from Cicero's Time, and so onward, the same Letter was often doubled in the middle of Words, as may be infranced in Caufa, Divissiones, &c. But be it as it will, 'tis certain, that this Letter is harfh, if it be hiffed out too much, or have too great a Train to follow it, and this has obliged the French to foften it to that degree, that when the same happens to fall between two Vowels they pronounce it like an Z.

The X sometimes is put with the C, as in the Words viexis, junexis, and the like; and many times with S, as you fee in Capadoxs. Conjunxs &C. St. Ifidore teftifies, that this Letter was not in use before the Reign of Augustus, and Victorinus lays, Nigidius would never make use of it; and for the Z it was pronounced much more foftly than the X; tho' the faid Pronunciation was not altogether the same as it is at this Day, wherein we give it but one half of an S, as in the Word Merentius. There has been a Dispute among Grammarians, whether the H should be reckoned in the Number of Letters or no; because, say they, 'tis no more than an Aspiration.

It must be confest, the H is no more than an Aspiration, yet that does not hinder it to be a real Letter, which may be feen by what has been faid before concerning the H.

The Romans made use of the Letters of the Alphabet only to denote their proper Names, and to abridge divers Words in their Inscriptions and ancient Monuments. A alone fignified Aulus, from the Verb ale, he having been born Din alentibus: In Judicial Proceedings it flood for absolve; I discharge the Person accused: In the Affemblies for antiquo, I reject the Law proposed to be passed. A stood for Augustus: at his Birth. C was used for Cafar, coming with a Boss made of Bone, Horn, or Ivary, ite from the Verb Cado, because his Mother's Body | a Navel: And from thence came the Word was cut open to bring him forth: C ftood also Volume, from the Verb volvo, and this other Lafor Conful, and C C for Confules, &c. D fignified Decimus or Decias ; that is, one born on a Bufiness finish'd; for the same was closed in the Tenth Day. L ftood for Lucius, the Light, with this Boss or Stud: To write otherwise, was because the first l'erson that bore this Name was born at break of Day. M exprest Marcus, being as much as to fay, one born in the Month of March, and this Letter with an Acute marked thus M' or with a Comma thus M' fignifies Manius, that is, one born in the Morning, Herodotus relates, that the Ionians, who receior rather, one that is all Good; the Contrary whereof is, Immanis, wicked, cruel, &c. N fignifies Nepos, a Grandson. P implies Publins, made use of them sometimes to write upon. from the Word Pubes, or Populus People. Q stands for Quintus. that is, the fifth Son of the Family, or Quafter, a Treasurer, or Quirites, Cittizens of Rome. T stands for Titus, from the Word Tueri, being as much as to fav, the Defender or Preserver of ones Country, and the fame Letters also of the Alphabet turned topsieturvey denoted the proper Names of the Roman Ladies, W being put for Marca, and o for Caia.

Alphabet with the same Design, as A.P. signified on Ivory, as Ulpian informs us, Libris Ekphani-Appius, which is derived from the Sabine Word nis; upon Goat-Ikins, and the Entraits of Animals. Arrius; for Arrius Claudius was the first that was banished out of his Country that came to Rome, and changed his Name from Attius, to that | Constantinople, Homer's Iliads wrote in Gold of Appins Claudius. Cn fightfied as much as Cneus, that is, Navus, from some Mark or Mole | 120 Foot in length. The Lombards, after their upon his Body. M F fignified Marci Filius, Irruption into Italy, wrote upon Wooden Tathe Son of Marck. M N denoted Marci Nepos; bles, or Boards, that were very thin, whereon the Grandson of Marcus. P C fignified Patres they drew Letters, as easily as upon Wax: Conferinti; the Senators of Rome. P Q lignified Populus Romanus; the Romans. R P was Books, Libri lintei, which were so valuable that put for Respublica; the Common-wealth. S C was used for Senatus Consultum, the Order or Decree of the Senate. S P stands for Spurius, deposited in the Temple of Juno Moneta: They which denotes iomewhat that was base in ones at first made use of a Stile to draw the Letters Birth, or that the Person was not legitimate. with; but afterwards Ink came in Fashion and Ti, is put for Tiberius, as having been born the same was of divers Colours, even of Gold near the Tiber. Cof. is put for Conjul. Cofs. for and Enamel. Pliny speaks of a Kind of pecu-Consules in the Plural Number. S.P. Q.R. stands liar Ink for Books, which was mixt with some for Senatus, Populujque Romanus; the Senate Wormwood-Juice to preserve them from Rats. and l'eople of Rome. It is also found that the fame Letter doubled ferves to increase the Sig- feeing a certain Author hath given us an Acnification of a Word, or to fignifie a Superlative | count, that one of Pindar's Odes, which was Degree. Thus B. B. stands for bene bene: F. F. the Seventh, was writ in Gold Characters, and for fortiffime or feliciffime. L. L. for lubentiffime, kept in the Temple of Minerva: Silver was also

The Ancients, before Parchment was invent- perors only. ed, wrote only on one tide, because the Leaves of the Tree, which they called Papyrus, whereon | Molaick-Work, which begun to be in Use in they wrote, were so thin, that the Back-fide Rome in Sylla's Time, who made one thereof could not bear lnk: They did the same Thing, at Prenefte in the Temple of Fortune, about when they began to ale Parchment, and as the 170 Years before our Saviour's Nativity: This Leaves thereof were very long and large, they | Word fignifies only in Greek a Stone Pavement; were obliged to roll them up, and close them but by it must be understood, such Pavements tin Phrase, ad umbilicum opus perductum ; thates fo very contrary to Custom; that when they were minded to ridicule any one, who was tedious, they faid he wrote on both fides, and never made an end. This Invention of Parchment is older than some Authors make it to be; since ved the Use of Letters from the Phanicians, called the Skins of Beafts, Books; because ther and because a Treaty made between the old Remans and the Gabii, a People of Latium, was written in Antique Letters, upon an Ox his Hide, wherewith they covered a Wooden Shield. as Dionylius of Halicarnassus informs us; they made use almost of all forts of Things to write upon, as the Barks of Trees, Boards covered with Wax, or the like: Brass was also used on which the Spartans wrote to Simon, High Prieft of the Jews ; feripferunt ad eum, faith the They sometimes doubled the Letters of their | Scripture, in Tabulis areis: They wrote also upaccording to Herodorus, Cedrenus, and Zonaras; who relate, that there was in the Library at Characters upon the Intestine of a Dragon, an Apuleius, in divers places, speaks of Linnea they made no use of them but to record the Actions of the Roman Emperors; which were

The Custom of using Gold is very ancient, in Use; but Purple was reserved for the Em-

LITHOSTROTON: a Pavement of

as are made of finall Stones joined together and as it were enchased in the Cement, representing different Figures by the Variety of their Cotomrs and Ordering: At last the same came in Fashion in Rooms, and they wainscoted the Walls of Palaces and of Temples therewith: there is at Lyons an old Church dedicated to St. Ireneus, that is all paved with Mosaick-work, where may be still seen Images, of Rhetorick, Logick and Prudence. The Pieces whereof Mofaick-work was made, M. Perrault fays, in his Commentary upon Virravius, should be cubical, or come near unto a cubical Form, that fo they might joyn exactly one with another, and be able to imitate all the Figures, and Shadowings of Painting; every small Stone used therein having but one Colour, as well as the Stitches of Needle-work Tapeftry.

LITUUS; this was a Staff belonging to the Augurs, bending inwardly at Top, somewhat like a Bishop's Crosser, but shorter: It was the Enlign of their Office.

LIVIA; was of the illustrious Family of the Claudii, who by feveral Adoptions had paffed into that of the Livit and Julii; for her Father was adopted into the Family of the Livii, and her felf into that of the Cafars: She was first married to the Emperor Tiberius his Father: But Augustus being imitten with her Beauty would have her for his Wife, and tho' she a Fall: This fort of Combating, and the Prize were then with Child, forced her away from her appointed for the Conqueror, they had in the Husband: By her first Marriage she had Tiberius and Drujus. Historians accuse her of poi- cerning the Exercises of the Body, brings in Afoning Augustus, in order to raise her Son Tiberius to the Throne: She died at a great Age in the Confulship of Rubellius and Fusius surnamed Geminus.

LIXA: a Town in Mauritania, where, acwhere grew the golden Apples that were guarded by a Dragon.

LUCARIA; was a Feast which was celebrated at Rome on the Eighteenth of July, in down upon the Ground, squeezing his Throat Memory of the Flight of the Romans into a great Wood near the River Allia, where they made their Escape: Plutarch says, the Actors were paid that Day, the Money which arose from the Felling of Wood.

LUCINA; Ovid derives her Name from lucus, or rather Lux, because 'twas by her Help they believed Infants were brought forth-Gratia Lucinæ, dedit bæc tibi Nomina Lucus; Aut quia Principium tu Dea Lucis babes.

The Poets attributed to Diana the Functions

Ritè maturos aperire partus Lenia Hisbyia, tuere Matres: Sive tu Lucina probas vocari. Seu Genitalie. Diva. producas Sobolem .-

The Women cried to her, when they were in Labour, because she presided over Lyings-in; Juno Lucina, fer Opem. Ter.

LUCRETIA: the Daughter of Sourius Lucretius, who married Collatinus; her extraordinary Beauty made Sextus Tarquinius, attempt to ravish her in the Absence of her Husband: But this vertuous Lady being not able to bear that Indignity, went to her Father and the People of Rome to have Justice done her, then stabbed her self with a Dagger, that she might not survive the Disgrace: This Sight did so affelt the Romans, that they cried out for Liberty, and drove King Tarquin out of Rome, and erected a Sort of Government that had something both of Ariffocracy and Democracy in it; for which End they created Two Confuls to govern the Commonwealth.

LUCTA; was one of the bodily Exercises u'ed among the Athenians, being an Encounter between Two Men only, for a Trial of Strength, and wherein each endeavoured to give the other Olympick Games. Lucian in his Dialogue connarcarfis, a Scythian, speaking thus to Solon, concerning the faid Exercise, where he determines how it should be done.

Anacarlis. Why do thele young Men give one another the Foyl, and tumble in the Dirt like cording to the Fable, flood the Palace of Ante- | Swine, endeavouring to Stifle, and hinder each us, whom Hercules squeezed to Death between other to take breath? They anointed and shahis Arms; as also the Gardens of the Hesperides, | ved one another at first very friendly; but suddenly flooping their Heads, they butt at each other like Two Rams: Then one of them horsting up his Companion, throws him violently with his Elbow, and pressing his Body with his Knees, infomuch, that I have been afraid he would have choaked him, tho' the other clapp'd him on the Shoulder, to defire him to let him go, as acknowledging himlelf overcome.

LUCULLUS, an illustrious Roman, who defended the Republick, and overcame Misbridates in Two pitch'd Battles: He had the Miffortune to contract the Hatred of his followers and the Soldiery, by his contemptible Usage of them : He received the Honour of Triumph, wherein never was fuch vast Riches seen: Mithridates his Statue all of Gold, and Six Foot in of Lucina, and they thought 'twas she that was Height, was carried before him, with his Buckinvoked under the Name of Lucina: Martial ler all covered over with precious Stones. He confounds the one with the other, and to does had feveral Mnies laden with Ingots of Gold and fairs, and lived the rest of his Days a delicious and voluptuous Life: He built Gardens, and flately Houses, every-where, but more particularly on the Sea-fide: His Magnificence and luxurious Living appear'd by his Table, he having Halls on purpose for the Feafts he made, wherein was expended more or less, according to occasion; but among others, there was one which of Rome, which according to the exactest Chrothey called Apollo's Hall; where the Entertain- nology answers the Year XLIII. before the Coment he made cost Five Thousand Crowns: He ming of our Saviour, that the said City was erected a flately Library, well furnish'd with built, according to an old Inscription, by Lucius Books, that was free for any Body's perulal: Munatius Plancus, Son of Lucius, Grandson of Sometime before his Death he was diffurbed in Lucius, Great Grandson of Lucius, Consul, Cen-Mind, and put under the Care of his Brother; for, and declared General of the Army a second tis thought Califtenes, his Freed-man, gave him time, one of the Seven Officers appointed to Poison, which thus diffempered his Brain.

L U D I. Games or Plays, in the Plural Number; A Term used for the Shows, and publick of Saturn with the Spoils of his Enemies, made 2 Representations made by the Ancients, such as Distribution of the Lands about Benevenum to the Olympick and Pythian Games were among the Greeks; and those of the Circum among the one at Lyons, and the other at Aoft or August. Romans: Aufonius has observed the following Five Leagues from Basil. Difference between the Four famous Games of Greece, that Two of them were dedicated to the Gods, and Two to Heroes: Ancient Authors give an Account of Three forts of Diverfions, which they named Races, Combats and Shows: the First were called Indi Equestres five Curules, which were the Races made in the Cireus, dedicated to the Sun and Nepsune; the Second they called Agonales or Gymnici, which were Combats and Contests, as well of Men as Beafts, performed in the Amphitheater, and dedicated to Mars and Diana the Third were named Scenici, Poesici and Musici; which confifted of Tragedies, Comedies, and Balls, that were acted at the Theaters, dedicated to Venue, Bacchus, Apollo and Minerva. There was an old Decree of the Senate of Rome, that enjoyn'd the publick Plays, should be confecrated and united to the Service of the Gods: Constantine was the first who put down the Sanguinary Plays of the Amphirbeater, after he was baptized : See an Account of these different forts of Plays under their particular Heads in the Alphabet.

LUGUDUNUM, according to Dio, Lugdunus by Corruption, when the Goths, in the Fourth and Fifth Centuries, ravaged the Roman Empire, and Lugdunum by way of Abbreviation; | high Place Dunum, as Clisophon witneffeth, in is the City of Lyons, in Gallia Narbonensis, concerning which, Dio, who wrote the Roman Hitiory in the Reign of Alexander Severus, speaks the Etymology of the Word Lugdunum: Some in this manner: 'The Senators, fays he, when will have it, that the Place was named Lugdus, they understood that Syllanus fided with Mark in Memory of one of the Kings of the Celta; " Antony, and were afraid left Lepidus and Lucius ' Plancus, should take to the same Party, they fent Deputies to them, to let them know, that | wont to winter-quarter in this Country : Bethe Republick had then no occasion for their canus deduces it from a German Word that fig-

Silver, and a great many rich Moveables. After figns, and not begin any hoftile AR. They he had triumphed, he retired from publick Af. ceived the Senate's Orders about building a City for fuch as the Allobroges had before drove out of Vienna (a City in the Province of Narbonne) and who had withdrawn themselves to a Place scituate upon the Confluence of the Rhofne and the Same; so that fixing themselves there. they built Lyons, formerly called Lugudunum.

LUG

It was in the Year, DCCXI, from the Building take Care of the Banquet of the Gods, who triumphed over the Rhetians, built the Temple the Soldiers, and fettled Two Collonies in Gaul,

L. Munatius L. F. L. N. L. P. Plancus. Cof. Cens. Imper. Iter. VII. Vir Epul. Triumph. Ex Rhoetis. Ædem Saturni fecit de Manubiis, Divilit in Italia Beneventi, in Colonias Deduxit, Lugdunum & Rauricam.

Plutarch seems to say, that Lyons is older than Plancus: his Words are thefe: 'Adjoining unto the Some, fays he, there is a Mountain called Lugdunus, which took its Name upon this Occafron; when Momorus and Asepomarus were expelled the Kingdom of Seferone, and were about to build a City upon this Hill, and by Order of the Oracle had laid the Foundation thereof, feveral Ravens appeared unto them all on a fudden, with extended Wings, and covered all the neighbouring Trees, from which Sign, Monorus, being skilled in the Art of Augury, named the Town Lugdunum; because that a Raven in their Dialect was called Lugum, and an L. 13. concerning the Founding of Cities.

Nothing certain can be offered concerning others, in Remembrance of a Legion under Julius Cafar that was called Lugda, and was Arms, that so they might contrive no ill De- nifies Fortune, Glukdunum, being as much as to

Gy, a fortunate Mountain : As for the Word Dunum, it is agreed, that in the ancient Gaulifb Tongue it fignified a Hill or Mountain: Some ancient Authors there are, who fav, the Word In fignified a Raven, in the Language of the Celte; and that because the Mount of Fourviere, which fome have thought to have been once called Corviere, was a Place frequented by Ravens, the City which had been built upon the faid Mountain, retained the Name thereof, after the Roman Eagles had chaled them away : Some there are who fay, that Lugdunum or Lucdunum, as 'tis fometimes found written fignifies as much as Lucii Dunum ; the Prænomen of Plancus. Lastly, Others having read in Eusebius, that at first when Lyons was built, there was a great Steel-mirrour placed upon Mount Fourviere, which by the reflected Rays of the Sun, taught those who came from Savoy, the Way to Lyons, which was not yet become a beaten Road; they have thought it Cause enough to affirm, the Place was so called qual Lucis Dunum: It is true, some others who are not fo credulous, but doubtful of the Truth of this Report, yet retain the same Etymology; tho' they deduce it from Mount Fourviere's being opposite to the Sun-beams, when

As the Romans were the Fathers of this City, they also were the People who from Time to Time took Care for the Beautifying of it; Augustus who saw it begin to flourish in the Time he was projecting to fet up his Monarchical Authority, relided there for Three Years; during which Space, it's Inhabitants received many Faas a Mark of their Acknowledgement built him a Temple at the Joint-charge of Sixty Gaulish Nations, with as many Statues appertaining thereto as bore the Titles of each of the faid Nations; and this Temple, according to Strabo, was scituated before the City of Lyons, at the Place where the two Rivers meet. Three Hundred Augurs, and Sixty Haruspices, or Southfayers served there, as may be gathered from the ancient Inscriptions still remaining: It was the Altar at Lyons to be exceeding great.

Palleat, ut nudis pressit qui calcibus anguem, Aux Lugdunentem Phetor dilturus ad aram.

In this City was established not only the Exchequer of the Gauls, but almost of all the Roman Empire, and there was a Mint for the Coining of Money fet up there, that circulated through the whole Empire.

LUNA, the Moon according to the Fable: Here take what Lucian writes concerning her in one of his Dialogues entituled Icaromenipous; he brings in Menippus, faying, that having been one Day transported into the Globe of the Moon, the called to him with a clear and feminine Voice, and defired him to make a Representation unto Jupiter of the impertinent Curiofity of the Philosophers, who would know all she had within her, and give a Reason for her various Changes: For one faid, She was inhabited, as the Earth was; another, That she hung in the Air, like unto a Mirrour; a third, That all her Light was borrowed from the Sun: Nay, they. were so bold, as to go about to take Measure of her, as if they would make her a Suit of Cloaths. The fame Lucian tells us in another Place, That the Moon is a round and bright Island, hung in the Air, and is inhabited, of which Endymion is King. Apuleius calls the Moon the Sun of the Night, Lunam folis amulam, nodis Decus, and fays, She shines in the midft of the Stars, as their Queen, whence comes that Saying of Horace, Syderum Regina bicornic The Scripture fays, God made Two great Lights or Luminaries; the one to rule the Day, and the other the Night. Arifforle tells us, the People honoured the Moon as if she were another Sun. because she participates and comes most near unto her: And Pliny informs us, that Endymion vours from him, as well as the rest of Gaul, who | spent Part of his Life in observing this Luminary, from whence fprung the Fable of his being enamoured on her. Volleus fets forth at large, that the Moon is the same as Venus Urania, or Venus Caleftis, that was first famous amongst the Allyrians afterwards the Worthipping of her was introduced into Phanicia and Cyprus, from whence it was brought to Greece, Africa, Italy, and the remotest Nations of Europe. Diana was also the Moon; for the Name Diana, seems to have come from Diva Fana. Thus the Sun was calin this Temple that the Emperor Caligula fet up led Janus, and the Moon Jana, according to those Academick Plays, of which Sueronius makes Varro: Nunquam audivisti rure, Ollavo Janam mention, whither so many Orators and Poets Lunam, &c. Et tamen quadam melius fieri post came from feveral Parts of the World, to fet oflavam Janam Lunam: Diana was made to preforth their Eloquence: It was ordered, that he fide over the Exercise of Hunting, because she that did not win the Prize, should be plunged chased away the Night by the Favour of the into the Saone, if he had not rather chuse to Moon's Rays. St. Ferome fays, Diana of Eblot out his Writings with his Tongue. This phefus was pictured with many Breaks, gave Juvenal Occasion to make the Year of an | which is proper enough for the Moon, in or-Orator who went to make an Harangue before der to the common Nurture of Animals: Diana prelided over Child-bearing; because 'tis the Moon that forms the Months, and regulates the Times of Women's Lying-in : Thus Cicero speaks of it, Lib. 2. de Nat. Deor. Albibetur ad partus, quod ij maturefeunt, aut feptem nonnuquam, aut plerumque novem Luna eurfibus. Plusarchiays, The Elizian Fields were the upper were the Priefts of Pun, God of the Arcalians, part of the Moon; that that Part of the Moon furnamed Lyceus, the Son of Mercury and Penewhich looked towards the Earth, was called Pro- lope, and God of Shepherds. Authors do not ferpina and Antichton; that the Genii and Da- agree concerning the Manner of instituting these mons inhabit the Moon, and come down to de- Priests, nor their Sacrifices and Ceremonies onliver Oracles, or to affift at Festival Days; that served at Rome in Honour of God Pan. Some the Moon does upon no other Account inceffant- refer it to Romulus, and others with more Likely turn about in order to rejoyn the Sun, but lihood to Evander King of Arcadia, who having from a Motive of the Love she bears this com- been miserably driven out of his Country, came mon Father of Light; and that undefiled Souls into the Territories of the Latins, where he fly about the Globe of the Moon, which is the was not only favourably entertained by Faunus, fame as Lucina and Diana.

steemed for a God, and usually called Lunus, was free to settle himself towards Mount Palatine, and not Luna. Thus Spartian speaks of it: 'As where he built a small City and Temple, which he we have made mention, fays he, of the God dedicated to Pan the Lycaan, at the Foot of the Lunus, you must know, that the Learned have faid Mountain, with a Statue erected in Honour 'left it to us upon Record, and that the Inhabi- of him, which was covered with a Goat's skin, tants of Caras think to this very Day, that like the Drefs of the Shepherds of those Times: 'fuch as believe the Moon is a Goddess and not 'a God, will be their Wives Slaves as long as they 'live; but that those on the Contrary who e-' freem her to be a God, will ever be Mafters of their Wives, and will never be overcome by 'their Artifices: Wherefore, continues the fame 'Author, tho' the Assyrians and Egyptians call her by a Feminine Name; yet in their Myfteries of Religion, they take Care to reverence her continually as a God. And there are fill re-' maining several Medals of the Nyseans, Magnefians, and other Greek Nations, who represent the Moon to us in the Drefs, and under the "Name of a Man, and covered with an Armenian 6 Bonnet.

The Moon is one of the Seven Planets, and the nigheft to the Earth: She goes round the Zodiack in 27 Days, 7 Hours, and 41 Minutes, Evander. And here note, that in the Solemniand does not overtake the Snn in less than ties used at this Feast, which was celebrated at 29 Days, 12 Hours, and 44 Minutes. The first Rome February 15th, the Priests met together Motion is her Periodical Course; the second is, the Synodical or Course of Conjunction; there is a third they call a Course of Illumination, during which the appears to us, which is for 26 Days and 12 Hours. The Moon is a spherical and dark Body, which has no other Light then they wiped them with Wool fleeped in than what is reflected upon her from the Sun: Milk; after which they provided themselves Her Spots proceed from the Unevenness of her | with Thongs made of these Goat-skins, and run Surface: The Arabians and Egyptians attribu- stark naked about the City, slapping the Woted 28 Houses to her, which are explained in the | men with them, who willingly received them, Oedipus of Father Kircher: The different Ap because they had an Opinion these Blows would pearances of the Moon's Light, according to make them fruitful: Some have held, that the Scituation thercof in respect to the Earth this Ceremony was added by Romulus, because and Sun, are called Phases: She is called the new that finding the Sabin Women which he had Moon, when the proceeds from under the Rays of ravished, became barren, he consulted the Athe Sun, or its Conjunction with it: The old Moon, gurs thereupon, and they made auswer, that in when the is upon the Decline or in the Wain: order to remedy the faid Evil the Woman must the full Moon, when she is in its Opposition. | offer Sacrifice to Juno on a Mountain of Rome The Ancients were superflictiously guilty of ma- called Efquilia, each being covered with a Goatking great Lamentations during the Ecclipse of skin, which is interpreted to be the Skins of the Moon, and the Romans made many mourn- the Goats the Luperes facrificed. ful Noiles upon the faid Occasion.

LUPERCI and Lupercalia: The Luperd who was then King there, but also received The Moon, at Caran in Mesoperamia was e- Part of his Territories from him, so as that he There he appointed Sacrifices to be offered, and conflituted a Number of Priefts called Lineral from Lupus, Lycaus being the same thing as Lupus with the Latins. And this makes it evidently appear that the inftituting of those Priefts and Feftivals, is to be attributed to none but Evender; and notato Romulus: Thus when Numitor's Men seized on Remus, they surprized him, ashe was offering Sacrifice to the God Pan, at the Foot of Mount Palatine, according to the Report of Dienysius of Halicarnassus, and Alius Tubero, L. 1. of the Roman Antiquities; which alfo does suppose, that the said Sacrifices were before inftituted by Evander, unless any should fay, that Romulus increased the Ceremonies and Magnificence of these Feafts (after he had built Rome) the Foundations whereof had been laid by early in the Morning in the Temple of this God; where after they had made the usual Prayers, they facrificed white Goats to him, in whole Blood when they had dipt two Knives, they marked two young Men in their Faces therewith, and of whom afterwards they made Gods.

LUP

LIB

This Feast lasted a long Time among the Romans, and Augustus himself reformed several the Youth of the City that exceeded the Age of Fourteen, to run naked thereat. Lupercalibus vesuit currere imberbes, says Suetonius in the Life of Augustus, and this makes Cicero in his second Philippick to reprove Antony, that when he was Conful he had run about flark naked at this Feaft: Ita eras Lupercus, ut te effe Confulem meminise deberes.

LUSTRATIO; was a Ceremony or Sacrifice made by the Romans, after they had done numbering the People which was performed every Five Years.

LUSTRUM; that is to fay, the Space of Four or Five Years. The Romans numbred their People by Lustra's: The Word comes from Luo, according to Varro, which fignifies, to pay; because that at the Beginning of every fifth Year they paid the Tribute, laid upon them by the Cenfors: Their Charge, which afterwards became Annual, having been established at first for this Space of Time: Servius was the first that pu rified the People in this manner: He put them into Battle-array; and made a Bull and an Hegoat, which he facrificed, to pass round them three Times, and that was the first Lustrum of the Romans, and the first Tax, which was continued from Five Years to Five Years.

LUTETIA; or Paris; fome Authors being not able to difcover the Original Institution of the Arms of Paris, which are a Ship, have gone so far to enquire after the same as Iss. as well as for the Name of this Illustrious City: For many have thought the Name of Paris to have this Tyrant, who being defirous to make Tribeen Greek, and to come from maga "Iris, that is, al whether he were a God, or no, laid Humane near the famous Temple of the Goddess Isis: It Flesh before him at Table, with which Jupiter. must then be supposed, as it has always been being incensed, he transformed him into a thought, that there was a Temple there dedi- Wolf. cated to the faid Goddess, within the Bounds of LYCEUM; a famous Place near Athens, the Ground which belong now to the Abbey of where Ariffoile read Philosophy to his Disciples, St. Germain des Prez: This Temple stood till the as Plato did in his Academy: His Disciples were Time that Cl riftianity was established in France, called Peripateticks, because he taught them and when it was demolished, Curiofity led some | walking. to preferve the Idol of Ihs that had been worfhipped there, and the same was put into a Corner of the Church of Sr. Germain des Prez, to St. Vincent, to ferve as a Trophy that Idola- tes, Virg. 4. Aneid. try was subdued: The said Idol was preserved | LYCURGUS; the great Legislator of the

The Custom of these People's running naked, I stand, some filly Women through Simplicity and came from Pan's running so after his Flocks: Superfitition, had burnt Candles before the said lose Deus nudos jubes ire ministros. Ovid. or ra- Idol, caused the same to be taken away and cut ther for preserving still some Remains of the into Pieces. This City at first bore the Name Savage Life which the first Inhabitants of the of Paris, which it took from its Proximity to Earth led, before some extraordinary Men the Temple of Isis, and communicated it to all were raised up to polish and civilize the Savages the Country round it, whereof it was the Capital City, but received that other Name of Lucotecia or Lutetia, from the Greek Word Asuxons, which fignifies Whiteness, because of the bale Abuses that had crept into it, and forbad | Whiteness of the Plaister the Masons used in the Building thereof; and none ought to wonder why the Name of Paris thould be taken from the Greek, confidering the Affinity there is between the French and the faid Language, of which divers Authors have treated: The Word Paris therefore extended it felf throughout the Country, as it does still to this Day, the same being called Parifis, and the City Lucotecia or Lutetia. Parifiorum: They are Names even to be met with in Cafar's Commentaries, Strabo and Pro-

LYEUS, an Epithet given to Bacchus, from the Greek Word Aver, which fignifies to chase away; because Wine, of which he was the God diffipates the Vexations of Men's Minds.

LYCEUS, a Mountain in Arcadia confecrated to Jupiter and Pan the God of Shepherds, from whence it is, that they have given him the additional Epithet of Lycaan; they folemnized some Festivals there in Honour of Pan, which Evander carried into Italy, and were called Lupercalia.

LYCAON, was a Tyrant of Arcadia, who was thunder-struck by Jupiter, and changed into. a Wolf, because he had facrificed a young Child, upon his Altar, according to the Testimony of, Paufanias in his Arcadicks: Ovid gives another, Account thereof, L. I. Meramorphofis, he relates, that Jupiter being not able any longer to bear with the horrible Cruelties exercised by Lycaon towards his Guests, took upon him Humane Shape, and went into the Palace of

LYCIUS, a Surname of Apollo, who was, worshipped in the City of Patara the Capital of Lycia, where he had a Temple famous for the when it was built by Childebert, and dedicated Oracles delivered there by him: Et Lycia for-

to the Year 1514. when Cardinal Briconnet, who | Lacedamonians, formed his Republick, according was then Abbot of the Place, coming to under- to the Model of the Stars, lays Lucian, and forbad his Citizens, to go forth to Battle before the Full Moon, because then their Bodies were in greater Vigour: That his Laws might obtain the greatest Authority, he pretended to have had them from Apollo at Delphos; he died when he was Fourscore and Five Years old.

LYNCEUS; was one of the Argonauts, who went with Fason to the Conquest of the Golden-fleece; the Poets made him to be lo quick- times in Profe, as 'tis also in Verse, Restitutu iri. fighted, that he could fee through Trees and Walls, and that because he had found out Mines in the Bowels of the Earth.

who would have put Trippolemus (whom Ceres N, because the N had a more pleasing Sound had fent to teach Men the Use of Corn) to Death, tho' it was rare in the Latin Tongue to meet but the Goddess abominating so much Cruelty, changed him into a Lynx which is an Animal Spotted with divers Colours.

Instrument, which we find painted in the Hands a Stroak was drawn above it, it made a Million. of Apollo; 'tis almost of a circular Form, and has a small Number of Strings, which are touched with the Fingers, some have thought the Gresian Live to have been the same with our Cuitarre; others lay, it was an Instrument made Name of Machine has been given in general to of a Tortoile-fiell, which Hereules excavated and every Thing that hath no other Motion but what bored Moles in, and then firung it, as Horne somes by the Art of Men; the Ancients had a bears witness, and to they came to call it Testudo: Multitude of Warlike Machines, confisting of You may fee it bears feveral different Forms on Rams, Slings, Scorpions, Crofs hours, Catathe Monoments and Medals of the Ancients: pultes, &c. for the Beating down Town-walls, Some attribute the Invention of this Inftrument Shooting of Arrows, Flinging of great Pieces of to orpheus; others to Linus, some to Amphion; Stone, and the like. others again to Mercury and Apolio, as may ap-

Schuation whereof makes as it were a kind of ones. Harp: The Fables of the old Aftronomers, Mujes placed it among the Stars. was to be feen on one fide, the Form of his Head, Virtute Puer; Pretty Boy, increase in Vertue. with his Crown on, and two Horns at both ends: Villim in her Right Hand.

ကျော်မေးကို မူထားမှု ကို ညီထိုသိုက်ပြီးတို

Bullenger . The most such in the common be-

A Is a Confonant, and the Twelfth Letter of the Alphabet that has a very doll Sound, and is pronounced with the outermost Part of the Lips, whence it comes to pass that 'tis called Mugiens Littera. It's funk often you meet with in the Law, Saltu for Saltum, in Vet. Gloff. Quintilian lays, That the M often ended Latin Words, but never Greek ones, and LYNCUS; a very cruel King of Scythia, that in such Case the Greeks changed it into an with any Words ending with this Letter.

M alone flands for Manius; Marcus, Manes. Manibus. M being a Numeral Letter, flood for LYRA; a Lyre, or Harp; an old mulical a Thousand among the Ancients; and when

MACHINA, a Machine, or Engine, being no other than the Setting together of feveral Pieces by Mechanical Art, so as to serve for the Increasing of the Force of moving Powers: The MACHINE VERSATILES; They pear by those Dialogues of Lucian concerning are strange Inventions to Change Scenes, the Gods, where he brings in spollo to freak thus : make Flights in the Air ; to move Ani-He hath made an Inftrument of a Torroife-fhell, mals, and for other Artifices, that both furwhereon he plays to that Perfection, as to prize and prove an agreeable Diversion to the make me Jealous, even me who am the God of Spectators: Clocks, Pumps, Mills, Organs, and the like Things which operate by the Help of The Harp is allt a Corlettal Sign, composed Wind and Water, ate Water or Aery Machines, of Ten Stars, that in few the Sign of Libra; the otherwise called Hydraulick or Pneumatick.

MACTUS HOC VINO INFEwould have the same to be orpheus his Harp, RIO ESTO; Twas a form of Speech ue, which he received from Apollo, to whom Mer- fed at the Sacrifices offered by Pagans to eury had made a present thereof, and that the their Gods, being as much as to fay, Magin aulius; may your Glory be increased by the LYSIM ACHUS, was one of the Success powring out of this Wine; and the following Exfors of Alexander the Great; by a Medal of his, prefion also has the same Derivation, Mattenova

MAGIA; Magick; the Scripture it felf. and this he bare, faith Aprian, because he held gives us an Account of the Antiquity of Maa mad Bull by the Horns, that had forced him- gick in Egypt; when it speaks of the Magicifelf loole out of the Hands of the Sacrificers, and ans used by Pharaob, in Opposition to Moses, had killed them; and in Testimony of his Con- who also by their Enchantment, performed quering of him, he bore the faul Horns. Upon fome of the Miracles, which God wrought by his the Reverse of the Medal fits Victory, holding a lown Divine Power: But that is not the first Place, perhaps, wherein the Magick of the Egiptians is spoken of: Tis most certain, that as Egypt was the Mother of Fables, so was she also the Miftress of Magick: Among those Magicians nalized themselves above the rest, to wit, Famnes and Mambres, of whom St. Paul makes mention, according to the Tradition of the fews: pliny had Knowledge of these Two Egyptian Magicians, but he puts Moses, their grandest Adversary, in the same Rank with them. Eft & alia Magices fattio a Mole, & Jamne & Jotape Judæis pendens, fed multis millibus annorum post Zoroaftren. Zoroafter, whom Pliny makes to much ancienter than Moses, was, according to fullin. King of Battra, and the Inventer of Magick. Rex Bactrianorum, Zoroafter, qui primus dicitur Artes Magicas inveniffe. It was against this Zoroafter, Ninus made War : It follows from hence, that Magick, as well as Magicians, took its Origin at Babylon, or in the East, before it was spoken of in Egypt: Suidas also places Zoroester in Media or Persia, and makes him to be the Chief of the Magi or Magicians. Zoroafter Perso-Medus Astronomorum peritiffimus & Princeps Magorum nominis apud ipfos recepti. Divers Authors make Zoroafter to be of a more Modern flanding, and put him no higher than the Times of Darius Histaspes: But 'tislike they may have confounded several Zoroasters together; and that this having been a common Name among the Magi, they attributed to the last of them somewhat that appertained to the first. Varro the learnedst Man in the Roman Empire in his time, and one who had a clearer Sight than any of them, doubted not but all that Homer hath related concerncadians, who in swimming cross a Pond, were changed into Wolves; and if they abstained from the Use of Humane Flesh, they should become Men again in Nine Years time, by once more fwimming over the faid Pond: And 'tis upon this fame Account that Varro thinks Jupiter and Pan were called Lycai, in Arcadia, because they transformed Men into Wolves. St. Augustine fpeaking of Magical Transformation, says, He cannot believe the Devils are able to make any real Change, either in the Minds or Bodies of Men, tho' they may diffurb their Imagination, and by phantaftical Apparitions, make them fee either themselves, or others in the Form of some who withflood Mofes, there were Two who fig- | formed into fuch an Animal, because the appear'd afterwards, and exercised the Office of Diana's Priestess at Tauris, from whence she also fled, and retired with her Brother Orefles to Aricia in Italy.

MAGIA, Magick: Pling describes the Original and Efficacy of all pretended Enchantments thus : He fays, 'That upon all the Occations that had been offered him in this kind, he had discovered, and was convinced of the Vanity of Magick, calling it the most deceitful of all Sciences: He shews how after having its Original from Phylick, it had borrowed Strength from Religion; wherein, faid he, Mankind faw no Relish for to gain the Superfitious by; that the same was supported by the Mathematicks, that is by Aftrology, for attracting the Curious unto it; and that our of those Three Sciences, one was made, which with this Triple Cord bound up the Sences of Men, and she became so much a Mistress over them, that in the East she commanded Kings themselves. The same Author speaking of the Chelony, which is a Stone resembling the Form of an Eye, that is found in the Shell of the Indian Tortoife, he fays. If we will believe the Lyes of the Magicians, it has exceeding. great Vertue, that after you have washed your Mouth with Honey, you shall no sooner put it on your Tongue, but you'll be able to foretel Things to come. Where he treats elsewhere of the Vervein used by the ancient Gauls, when ing Circe, and the Transformation of Ulffes his they were minded to give Answers to such as Companions into Beafts, was no other than the came to consult them; he speaks thus : But the real Effects of Magick: He makes the same | Magicians are still more foolish and mad, in say-Judgment of what was faid concerning the Ar- | ing, that such as rub themselves with the said Herb, obtain all they can defire, expel Fevers, make themselves to be beloved by whom they please, and cure all manner of Diseases.

Aug. L. 26. C. 4. In fetting forth the Vanity of Magicians, speaks of a wonderful Herb: Cast it, says he, into Ponds or Rivers, it drysthem up; make it but to touch the ftrongeft Places, it opens them. He fays of another ; That if it be but thrown into an Army drawn up in Battle-Array, they will be terrified and flic away: At length he concludes with another Herb, which the King of Persia gave his Embassadors, whereby they might be able to find, wherever they passed, Plenty of all Things Animal, in the same Fashion as those Visions necessary for the Furtherance of their Jourare formed in Dreams: It was therefore in this ney; afterwards he grows very pleasant, and Manner that the Arcadians were transformed in asks, Where that Herb was, which put Armies to Wolves, and Utiffes his Companions into other to the Rout, when Rome was preffed upon by the Animals by Circe. As to what relates to Dio- | Cimbri and Teutones? Why did not the Magicimedes his Companions, who were changed into ans of Perfia make use thereof against Lucullus, Birds, without any remedy; It must be said, when the said General cut their Armies in pieces. that the Devils carried them quite away, and without Mercy? It must be a Matter of Wonder, brought strange Birds to stand in their places, in that other Roman Generals, rather than take the same Manner as the Damons substituted a upon them the Care of having so many Com-Hind in the room of Iphigenia, who was not trans- missaries, for providing their Armies with ViAnaly, had not flocked themselves with the Herb, | LORUM; Master of the Requests, the Perwhich had the Vertue to cause their Tables to be | son who represented to the Prince the Requests furnished with all Necessaries for the Support of and Petitions of particular Persons, and recei-Life, where ever they were. Laftly, He quar- ved his Answer, which was reduced into Wrirels with Scipio for having made use of so many Warlike Engines and Soldiers to take Carthage, Number, and were called Libellenfes: This may fince one Herb was able to open its Gates for him; and he reproaches the Senate, that preces Magifter Libellorum trastabat, & Alta Lithey did not make use of the Herb called JEshiopidis, for drying up the Marshes of Italy. In Form of a Perition that was presented to the C. 2. L. 30. He fays, He had learned from Emperor Antoninus Pius, in these Words. one Oftenes, that there were several forts of Magicians, some of which were made so by Water, others by the Spheres, Air, Stars, Lanthorns, or Flambeau's, Basons and Axes. He afterwards speaks of the particular Favour Nero had for Magicians, because they had Power to command the Gods. Tiridates to make his Court to the Emperor, brought him many Magicians, and was rewarded by Nero for it, with the Kingdom of Armenia: And so he ends thus: " We must then absolutely believe, that the Magick Art is not supported by any valuable Testi- | phius the Freed-man of Arria Fadillathe Empemony whatever.

of the Infantry.

of the Horie, or Lieutenant General of the Time as the Place which he had bought to raile Cavalry.

MAGISTER MILITUM UTRI- Answer was given in this Manner. USQUE MILITIÆ; General of the Army: They attribute the Constituting of these | magister subscrips. III Non. Novemb. Officers to Constantine the Great, at the Time that he took away the Command of the Armies | SITIONUM, was the Person who gave the from the Prafedi Pratorio.

RIA; a Secretary and an Officer of the Empire, ces, and who examined them, to fee if they had to whom his Prince gave a golden Girdle at his judged aright or not, and thereupon fent the Creation: His Buliness was to reduce into a Answer to his Prince: He had Courriers appoinfew Words the Answers the Emperor made to ted on purpose to carry these Answers, who the Petitions and Requests made unto him, were called Agentes al. Responsium, and a Fund to and afterwards to enlarge upon them in the pay them called Aurum al Responsum. Letters Parent or Briefs that were granted: called Seriniarii Memoria, or Memoriales : Tis bore him Mercury. thought this Office was inflituted by Augustus, LARUM; the Secretary who wrote the Em- Gemini, and the Plants of the Earth flower: peror's Letters; Augustus writ them himself, This Month was called Maius by Romulus in reand then gave them to Meccenas and Agrippa to spect to the Senators and Nobles of his City. correct, fays Dio; other Emperors usually which were named Majores; as the following dictated them, or told their Secretary what Month was named Junius, in Honour of the they would have writ, and then did no more Youth of Rome, in Honorem Juniorum, who ferthan subscribe them with the Word Vale; un- ved him in the War. Others will have it to less it were that they had a Mind to keep a Bu- have been called thus, from Maia the Mother of fine's fecret: This Secretary had Thirty Four Mercury, to whom they offered Secrifice on that Officers under him which they called Epiflo- Day: This Month was under the Protection of Ares.

ting by his Clerks who were Thirty Four in be feen in the Notitia Imperii. Cognitiones & bellenses scribebant. We have still in being the Cum ante bos dies conjugem & filium amiserim. & preffus necefficate corpora corum fictili farcophage commendaverim, donec quietis locus quem emeram adificaretur, via Flaminia, inter milliare fecundum & tertium euntibus ab Urbe, parte leuf. custodia Monumenti Flam. Thymeles Amelofa M. Signii Orgilii: Rogo, Domine, permistas mihi in codem Loco, in marmoreo farcophago quem mibi medo comparavi, ea corpora colligere, ut quando & ego effe defiero, pariter cum eu ponar.

This was a Petition presented by Arrise Alror's Mother, importing his Defire to have MAGISTER PEDITUM; General Leave given him to gather up his Wife and his Sons Bones to be laid in a Marble-Coffin, which MAGISTER EQUITUM; General | before he had put in an Earthen-Veffel, tifl fuch a Monument for them, was ready; to whom

Decretum fieri placet ; Jubentius Celsus pro-

MAGISTER SCRINII DISPO-Emperor an Account of the Sentences and Judg-MAGISTER SCRINII MEMO- ments past by the Judges of the respective Pla-

MAIA; the Daughter of Ails and the Nymph He had under him other Officers who were Pleione, on whom Jupiter was enamoured, who

MAIUS, May; the fifth Month in the Year, and that the same was exercised by Roman reckoning from the first of Fanuary, and the third in counting the Year to begin with March, MAGISTER SCRINII EPISTO. | as they anciently did: the Sun enters now into ANAGISTER SCRINII LIBEL. of Bona Dea, that of Goblins called Lemuria,

These Lares had a Dog represented at their Feet, because this Animal also took Care of the House. And this is the Reason which ovid gives of it, L. 1. Fast.

As canis ante Pedes faxo fabricatus eodem Stabat, qua standi cum Lare causa fuit? Servat uterque domum, domino quoque fidus Compita grata Deo, compita grata cani.

The Roman Ladies on this same Day, offered Sacrifice to Bona Dea, in the Chief Pontiff's House, whereat it was not lawful for Men to affift; they also covered all Mens Pictures and Statues, as they did those of other Animals of cry. the Male Kind. On the 9th was celebrated the Feaft of Apparitions or Goblins, called Lemuria or Remuria, inflituted by Romulus, for appealing the Ghoft of his Brother Remus, that appeared to him in the Night. See Lemuria. On the 12th came on the Feaft of Mars, furnamed Ulter, or the Avenger, to whom Augustus conferrated a Temple on that Day. On the 15th. er Ides of the Month was performed the Ceremony of the Argians, whereon the Veftal Virgins threw Thirty Figures made of Rushes into fame Day was kept the Feaftof Traders, which they celebrated in Honour of Mercury; they offered unto him a whole Sow, and went to a Foun- granted, in respect to some Lands in Italy, enjoy-Capena, and there sprinkled themselves with a See Regifugium.

because that in that Month they made several and Prerogative. Expiations, with which Marriage did not agree, and the Ceremony of Regifugium, or the Expul- | with Grief, and as it were by Confirmint, which fion of Kings. On the first Day was celebrated is not suitable to Festival Days, an early of rathe Anniversary of the Dedication of an Altar | tio, quam affert Varro, virgines nubere invites & erefted by the Sabines to the Lares or Houshold | triffes, festo autem die nilil agi debet cum moleftid. Gods, prafitibus Laribus; because they took a But as for Widows, they married the rather on faithful Care of whatever was in the House: Festival Days, because they could do it then much more retiredly, the Feaft having drawn all the People thither; and they thereby with Reafon exprest their Shame for their Second Mar-

> MAMURIUS, furnamed Verurian, whole Name is famous in the Hymns of the Saliens, for having made Eleven Shields or Bucklers, fo like unto that which Nums pretended to have fallen down from Heaven, that it could not be diftinguished from them.

MANCEPS, A Farmer of the Publick Re-

MANCEPS, is one who fells an Effate with a Promise of keeping the Party harmless; he is likewise one that buys an Estate by Out-

MANCIPARE, is to fell or diveft one felf of any Possession, and to invest another with it, according to the Roman Law.

MANCIPATIO, is the Selling or Alienating of some Lands by the Ballance, and Five Witnesses, which took no place but among Citizens of Rome, in respect to certain Estates lituate in Italy, or among fuch as were priviledged to be Roman Citizens.

MANCIPIUM, & MANCUPIUM: A Sale, or Alienation which took place among the Tiber, above the Wooden Bridge. The no other than Citizens of Rome only. Mancipium was a peculiar Right of Propriety, which the Citizens of Rome, and those to whom it was tain called Aqua Mercurii, at the Gate named ed alone, wherein were observed some Formalities relating to the Ballance and Tale of Money-Lawrel-branch, praying that God to favour them | Multa funt domm in bac Urbe, atque band feio, an in their Gains, and to pardon the exorbitant pene cunda, jure optimo; fed tamen jure privato, Prizes they fold their Goods at, in the Way of jure bareditario, jure authoritatio, jure mancipe, their Occupations. On the 21st came on the Feast jure nexi. There are divers Houles in Rome, named Secunda Agonia, or Agonalia, whereof I which are, perhaps, Free-hold, but this Franhave spoken under Agonalia. On the 24th was chise is founded upon a particular Right, not a another Ceremony called Regifugium, which same publick One, upon a Right acquired by Succeswas often repeated in the Compass of the Year. Inon of Inheritance, by Way of Prescription, by Right of Purchase; the Sale of such Houses ha-Plurarch asks why the Romans did not marry ving passed with a Clause and Condition that is in the Month of May; and fays, it was either express and formal, in respect to such Franchise

MANDRAGORA, Mandrake; there is or because the Month of May took its Name | a Male and Female of it, and there is another from aged Persons, Majores, for whom Marriage that is a kind of Solatrum Soporiferum, whose was not furtable; but that the Month of June Root is white and hollow, and a Cubit high: deducing its Name from Juniores, Marriages This Plant has strange Properties, for if the were reassumed therein. A little farther he Quantity of a Dram of it be given any one to asks, why Virgins never married on Festival drink, he will presently think himself as handsome Days, or such as the Publick Assembly were held as that Metius we read of in Domitian's Court: on, but that Widows affected to marry at those. And if three times as much of it should be adtimes; He answers, that Virgins are married ministred, it would render such an one as MANES: the Miner, or departed Souls. Strong in his Commencary upon the Third Book of the Eneids, informs us of the various Opinions the Ancients held concerning this Word: The Manes, flays he, are Souls separated from Humane Bodies, which have not yet entred into other Bodies, and delight to do Milchief unto Men, being so called by an Antiphrafit; for Manum in the old Latin fignified Good. Some will have this Word Manes to come from Minare, to flow or come forth, because all the Air between the Earth and Circle of the Moon is full of Mairs, who come out of their Manfions to torment Mankind: Some there are who diftinguish the Menes from the Infernal Gods; others who fay, that the Coeleftial Gods are the Gods of the Living, and the Menes the Gods of the Dead: And Laftly, Many believe the Manes are No-Aurnal Dieties, who reign between Heaven and Earth, and prefide over the Moifture of the Night, which has given occasion to call the Morning Mane.

Apuleim in his Book concerning the God of Socrates, which we have already related under the Word Lemures, tells us, that as 'fis uncertain whether Souls separated from Bodies are of the Number of the Lares or Larva, they have been called by the Name of Manes, and in a Way of Honour they have the Title of Gods gi ven them. Feftm fays, the Mones were invoked by the Roman Augura, because they believed them to be favourable unto Men, and that they were also called Superior and Inferior Gods; and the Etymology of the Word feems to arife from the Verb Miniare, qued it per omnia atharea, zerrenaque manare credebantur.

Thus as the Mases were made to be propitious Dieties, and had this Name given them by way of Honour, if Apuleius may be credited, we may fay with Voffins, and other learned Men that this Word comes fimply from the old Word Michig, which fignified Good: Wherefore 'tis they offered Sacrifice to her at certain Feath cettain, Manes was taken diverily among the called Compitalia, inflittuted by Brutus, wherein Ancients; but in the first place in general, for departed Souls, as appears by an Inscription be-ginning thus, Manibus gensu sua, which was dedicited by some Roman to the Manes of his Family; and in Virgil:

Manesque vocabat Heltoreum ad sumulum.

And in another place :

27723

Id einerem aus Manes credis curare sepultos.

In the second place, the Word Manes is by a Metonomy taken for Hell, that is for those Subterranean places, whither the Souls of Men, both | fo neither Mania, nor the Houshold Gods her extravagantly foolish as can well be thought Good and Bad, were to go, from whence the Good were fent to the Elyfian Fields, and the Wicked to Places of Punishment, called Taxare

Hac Manes verias mibi fama sub imas. hat. . .

And elsewhere:

Manesque profundi.

Which cannot be interpreted in respect to the Souls themselves, but to the Places where they were. Laftly, The Manes are taken for Infernal and Subterranean Gods, and generally for all Deities whatever, that have the Charge of, and do prefide over the Graves of the Dead, in which Sence, the Word Manes, in the old Glofferie, is interpreted in Gr. Daipores, Osoi na lax borne, i. c. Damons or Genij, Subterranean Gods: 'Tis in this Sence that Epitaphs are dedicated to them in these two Words Din Manibus, which are fometimes expreft by halves only Die Mes. and most often by two Letters D. M. and among the Primitive Romans, who made their Epitaphs in Greek, were used O.K. that is, OEOIX KATAXOONIOIE.

The Remans had a great Veneration for these forts of Gods, and they were of Opinion they could ftop the Hands of any one that attempted to commit Sacrilege, by putting him in middof these Gods, in an Epitaph exposed to the View of all the World, whereof take an Example:

> NE TANGITO O MORTALIS. REVERERB MANES DEOS.

That is, have a Care, O Man, do not touch me, and have a Respect for the Dii Manes.

MANIA; was taken by the Ancients to be the Mother of the Leres, or Houshold Gods; the Slaves intermix'd with their Mafters, as in the Sammalia, eat and drank with them, and diverted themselves in the Cross-ways. It was a Cuftom at first to Sacrifice little Children to her for the Prefervation of the whole Family, in Obedience to the Oracle, but Brutus having expelled Tarquin, gave the Oracle of Apollo 2000 ther Interpretation than it had before, and or dered that inflead of Mens Heads, they fhould use those of Poppy and Onions, they also placed as many of the Effigies of Men and Women stuffed with Flax or Chaff, before the Doors of their Houses, and in the Cross-ways, as there were Free Persons in each House, and as many Balls of Wool, as there were Slaves there, that as Feftus informs us:

Quibus tos pila, quot capita fervorum; tot effieiel, quot effent liberi, ponebantur, ut vivu parcerent, & effent bie bilie & fimulachrie contenti.

MANIPULUS, was a small Troop or Company of Soldiers among the Romans; there was for the Word Manipulus properly fignified an Ruine. Handful of Herbs or Hay, which they tied to the End of a Pole for a Cognizance or Flag, before they affumed the Eagles for their Arms; hence comes that Saying, ftill continuing amongst us; An Handful of Men.

MANIPULARES; the Soldiers in the Company.

MANLIUS, furnamed Marcus, and by Pliny, Titus, was a great and generous Captain, who took from him a Chain in Latin called Torques ; into Sylla's Hands. from whence he afterwards took the Surname of Torquarus, which made a Diffinction between his feign to have been born of Juno, without Co-Descendants and the other Manifi. He gave an pulation with any Man, but by the Smell of a Example of inflexible Severity in the Person of lingle Flower, which the Goddels Flora had his own Son, whom he pur to Death, because he shewed her, as Ouid informs us. They make had fought against his Orders, and killed a Gas him to be the God of War, and of Armies, and life Captam that infulted the Romans; from represented him armed with Rage and Fury, whence hath proceeded this Proverb, to denote and with flaming Eyes as well on Horle-back as a fevere Command, Manliana Imperia.

MANLIUS, named Lucius, was a famous Painter, who made infwer to Semilius, that wondered to see so good a Painter have such hardfavoured Children; In luce pingo, in tenebric

MANUBIE, the Spoils of the Enemy, or the Money made of the Booty taken from the MARATHON, a City in the Territory of Aibens, and diffant from it about Ten Miles. Its a Place very famous not only for the Death of King Isarus, and the Overthrow of the Marathonian Bull by Thefens, but more particularly up- pleasant an Adventure ? on account of the famous Victory won by Miltiedes, the Athenian General, over 600000 Perfiens, commanded by Darius.

MARCELLUS, M. CLAUDIUS, af- the Adventure. ter feveral gallant Actions performed by him

Children, might do any Mischief to the Living, in the Wars against Hannibal, was killed waliantly fighting; the Romans, called him, their

MARCUS ANTONIUS, Markida thony, nad a long and full Face, and a double Chin, which was a Sign of his being a Lover of Pleasure and good Cheer: He had an Eagle's a small Maniple, which was a Band or File of Ten | Nose, which denoted Courage; but the Love Soldiers, and the great Maniple, which Elian he bore unto the fair Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt, makes to be 256 Men, and regetius 100 only; fullied his Glory, and was the Caule of his MARCUS AURELIUS. See Aurelin.

MARIUS CAIUS: He brought the War against Jugurtha to an happy Period, and triumph'd: He brought into the publick Treasury 3007 Pound Weight in Gold, and 5775 of Silver in Ingots, without reckoning the vaft Quantity of Gold and Silver Coyn he also got them. He afterwards defeated the Teutones, who in one Battle loft 100000 Men, flain and performed many famous Exploits, and amongst taken Prisoners. Marin, who could not be faother things faved the Capitol, when it was be- tiated with Wars nor Triumphs, follicited for fleged by the Gauls, whereby he obtained the la Commission to make War upon Misbridates, Surname of Capitolinus; he was accused of Aspi and obtained it; but Sylla, who was Consul, and ring after a Tyrannick Power, was convicted concerned at this Commission, could not bear and condemned to be thrown down Head-long the Affront : He came to Rome with an Army, over the fame Rock which he had prevented and obliged the Senate to declare Marin and the Gauls from surprizing: His House was pul- his Adherents Enemies to the People of Rome: led down; and all of his Name were for the He withdrew into Africa, and after having elea-future enjoined not to use the Pranomen of iped a Thousand Dangers, thut himself up in Prenefte, which he defended as well as he could: MANLIUS, furnamed Torquarus, because But seeing no hopes of Relief, and no way of he had killed a Gaul of prodigious Stature, and Escape, he killed himself, for fear he should fall

MARS; the God Mars, which the Poets in a Chariot, drawn by Two Horles, named Ter-ror and Fear, and drove by his Sifter Bellond

Terrorque Pavorque Marsis Equi. Val. Max. L. 3. de Alle

There are some who make him to be accompanied with Terror, Fear and Fame. He was very familiar with Venus, Vulcar's Wife, who lurprized them in the Act; as Lucian fays in his Dialogue of Apollo and Mercury.

Apoll. Mercury; What do you laugh at? Mer. Why should not I laugh, Apolle, at le Apoll. Tell me, that I may laugh in my turn. Mer. Mars has been caught lying with Venas. Apoll. How was that? Give me a Relation of Mer. Pakes has been long jealous of their and be without one. History and the Great Fa.

Pamillarity, and watched his opportunity to furbles tell us, that Mars having killed Hallotte. prize them, for which End he placed Nets round thins. Neptune's Son, for having violated the his Bed, but fo as not to be feen, then went to Chaftity of his Daughter Alcippe, Nepume achis Forge: The Gallant laying hold of the Op-portunity of the Husband's ablence, went to lie where he was acquitted: The Place in Abers. with his Miftress; but the Light discovered where this Judgment was pronounced, has been them, and informed Vulcas how it went, infomuch that he took them both in the Fact, and folded them in his Nets.

What gave occasion to this Fable, of Mars and Venus committing Adultery together, and the Manner how they were discovered, was taken from the Art of Aftrology, where these two Planets are made to be frequently in Conjun-Rion. The Ancients represented the Picture gave the Name of Quirinus to the God Enyaling, of Mers upon their Medals, compleatly armed, being in fome doubt, whether he were God Mers. holding a Javelin in his Hand, called Quirs by the Sabines, from whence he has obtained the Name of Quirinus pater. Augustim Cafar built him a Temple at Rome, of a round Form, which he confecrated under the Name of Mars the Avenger, because he had been Affistant to revenge the Death of Julim Cafar;

Templa feres, & me vittore vocaberis Ultor. Voverat, & fuso lams ab hofte redit.

Its probable the Mars of the Affrians was the most ancient of any, for Diedorm Sicular teftifies, they gave unto him the Name of Mor, who invented the Use of Arms, and first began 2 War : Qui fabulas ad bifteriam referunt, bi Marrem aiunt primum fuife qui universam fabricaria armaturam, ac milites armie inftruxerit, &c. But he who gave a Beginning to Arms and War, (according to the Scriptures) was Ninerod, the fame as Belm of the Heathens, or his Son Ninks, of whose being so Juline bears a Testimony. As the Empire of the Asprians was the first of all the reft, and that Empire has been no otherwife fet up than by Force of Arms; its not to be doubted but the first Kings of Babylon or Affria, were deified by the Name of Mars, in those ancient Times, wherein Kings were fo honoured after their Deaths. Cedrenks also informs us, that Mars and Belus were the fame God of the Allgrians; and fo the Greek Name "Aens is not only derived from the Hebrew Word Aries. which fignifies, forsis, serribilis; but the fame is also common in the Person Tongue.

This is a Summary Account of the Chymerical Divinity of Mars in Affria and Perfia: The Egyptians placed him in the second Degree among the Demi-Gods that reigned with them; and this may be observed from the Dynasties related by Syncellus. Julian the Apostate makes mention of Mars of Edessa, who was called Aziqui. Now all the Nations of the Earth having a fince called Apri G way G, because 'twas an Eminence or a Rock; and the Judges from thence took the Name of Areopagites: This Action of Mars might very well induce the Greeks, to attribute unto him what the most Ancient and Eaftern Nations had already published concerning the God of War. Dionyfius of Halicarnaflus, fays, that the Sabins and the Romani himself, or another God who presided over Military Adventures.

MARS, in Aftrology, is the Fifth Planet, being between the Sun and Jupiter; its a milchievous Planet, which the Aftrologers call Link Misfortune: the finishes her Course in a Revolution of 322 Days, and goes round about the Sun. Fortana has observed a Spot in the middle thereof, which he believes to be a Satellite, as in ‡upiter.

MARTIUS; March, the Third Month in Year, according to our Way of Reckoning. It was formerly the First amongst the Romans, and is ftill fo in use in some Eccleriastical Computations. Its no longer than fince the Edict of Charles IX, in the Year 1564, that they have used in France to reckon the Year from the Beginning of Fanuary; for before it began with March: Aftrologers make it also the first, because tis then that the Sun enters into dries, by which they begin to reckon the Signs of the Zodiac. The Calends of this Month was anciently very remarkable, because of its being the first Day of the Year, whereon divers Ceremonies were performed: They kindled a new Fire upon the Altar of Vefte with the Sun-beams, by the Helpof a Burning-glais, in the same Manner almost as they kindle it in the Populh Church on Eafter-Eve: Hujus diei prima ignem novum Vesta ara accendebant, ut incipiente anno, cura denuò fervandi novati ignis inciperet. Macr. L. 1. C. 12. Saturn. They took away the old Lawrel-branches and Crowns, as well from the Door of the King of the Sacrifices, as from the Courts and Houles of the Flamines, and the Axes of the Confuls, and put new in the room of them; and this was called Mutatio laurearum. And this Macrobius alfo informs us. Tam in Regia, turifque atque Flaminum domibus laurea veteres novis laureis mutabantur. Ovid tells us the same Thing, in Lib. 3. Faft.

Loves

Leurea Flaminibus qua toto perstitit anno Tollitur. & frondes funt in bonore nove: Adde qued arrand fieri novus ignis in ade Dicisur, & vires flamma refelta capit.

The Magistrates took Possession of their Places; which continued, fays Ovid, till the Carthaginian War; for then they altered the Cuftom, and enter'd thereon the First of January : The Roman Ladies celebrated a particular heaft then, which was inflicted by Romulus, and called Matronalia, of which by and by.

On the Calends of this Month of March began the Feaft of Shields or Sacred Bucklers, Ancyliorum dies, which continued Three Days, whereat the Salii carried small Bucklers: This Festival ended with splendid Feafting and great Merriments, which is the Reason of giving the Name of Cana Saliaris to fumptuous Entertainments. See Ancylia.

On the 6th, which is the Day before the Nones, in Latin called Pridie Nonas, there were some Solemnities performed in Honour of Vesta. On the 7th, or Day of the Nones, called Nonis. was celebrated the Anniversary of the Dedication of the Temples confecrated on fuch a Day to Ve-Aupiter, in both the Woods of the Aylum; as also a Feast to Juno, called Junonalia. See fu-

Tiber, or upon Mount Caliur, when that River overflowed. On the 15th, or the Day of the Ides, came on the Feart of Anna Perenna, of which I have spoken in its proper place: This Day was called Particidium, because Julius Cafar was then affaifinated by Brums, and the rest of the Conspirators. On the 16th was another Feaft called Liberalia, for then it was that Children took upon them the Virile Robe. On the fame Day also they made I recessions called Argei, or Argea in tome Places, the which had been confecrated by Nums in Commemoration of some Grecian Princes that had been buried there. See Argei and Argea. On the 19th, or 14th of the Calends of April, began the great Festival of Minerva, called Quinquarria, either because it fell out on the Fifth Day after the Ides of March, or because it lasted Five Days. See Quin-

The 24th was marked with those Letters in the Calender, Q. R. C. F. Quando Rex Comitievit, Fas; it being as much as to fay: Tis lawful for the Prætor to keep his Seat, as foon as the King of the Sacrifices has done his Business in the Assembly and is withdrawn. On the 25th was held the Feaft called Hilaria, which was inflitted in Honour of the Mother of the Gods and of Atys: On the 26th came on the Feaft of Washing the Grand-mother of the Gods, Lavathe Matrie Deum, being instituted in Commemoration of the Day wherein the was brought from Afia, and walhed in the River Almo. Vid. La-

VAtio. There were feveral Feafts kept on the 30th, viz. to James, Concord, Health and to Peace. and next Day there was one to the Moon celebrated on Mount Aventine, to which they facrifised a Bull.

MARSYAS, the Son of Ocagrus, who was a Shepherd, and one of the Satyrs, and having taken up a Flute which Minerva had made of a Deer's-Bone, and thrown away in Anger, he learnt of himself to play upon it, insomuch that he adventured to challenge Apollo, the God of Hermony to play with him: The Muses were the Judges of this Tryal of Skill between them, and they gave the Victory to Apollo, who prefently caused Marsyas to be tied to a Tree, and flead alive by a Scynbian, and cut into Pieces.

MATRIMONIUM, Marriage, there was a formal Betrothing and Contract went before it, as may be feen in Plants and Terence; for he that was minded to have a Virgin in Marriage, made his Application to her Relations, and demanded their Confent to it.

Ouid nunc etiam mibi despondes filiam,illis legibus Cum illa dore quam ribi dixi ; M. Sponden' - ergo,

On the 13th there was an Horse-race near the | Then the Contract was drawn and signed with the Relations Seal, wherein the Terms and Articles of Marriage were writ, which gave Juvenal Occasion to fay, > Si tibi legitimu pallam junt amque tabellia Non es amaurus. Veniet cum fignatoribus Auspex.

The Bridegroom fent to her that was to be his Wife a Ring as a Pledge of their future Marriage; which Terrullian informs us, who calls the faid Ring Annulus pronubus.

Aurum, inquiens, nulla norat prater uno digito quem sponfus oppignerasses pronubo annulo. De cultu faminarum.

And fidorus Hifpalenfis, Lib. 11. de div. off. Cap. 15. Quod in primie, ait, nuptire annulus à spanso sponsa datur, fit nimirum vel propter mutua dilectionis fignum, vel propter id magu, ut codem pignore corum corda jung ancur: unde & quarto annulus digito inseritur, ideò quia in co vena quadam, us fereur, fanguinis ad cor ufque pervenist.

And this is confirmed by Aulm Gellim, Macrobins and Appien, and particularly by these Verses of Juvenal.

Conventum tamen & pallum & sponsalia noftra Tempestate paras, jamque à tonjore magistro. Pelleris, & digito pignm fortaffe dedifts.

The Ring was made of Iron and without any bines, being as much as to fay, a Favelin, w. Stone in the Time of Play the Historian, as wee Spear.

read in L. 33. Nat. Hiff. There were no Constitutions at first made for regulating the Age of fuch as were to be bettothed, and the Articles of Betrothing might have been made by both Parties at the Age of Seven Years: But afterwards Augustus ordered they fhould not be done till Two Years before the Confirmmation of the Marriage, that is, at Ten Years of Age.; Maidens might lawfully contract Marriage at Twelve Years old: See how Dio speaks, L. 54. Quoniam autem, air . Die quidam infantes puelles despondentes, pramits quidem conjugum fruedantur, carerum effettum rei Sconjugum opus non praftabunt, ca sponsalia vires nullas babere conftisuit, poft que duobus tranfactis annis Sponfa duci minime poffer : boc eft ut omnimo decennis virgo delponderesur, duodecimo namque anno virgo matura viro & nubilis existimatur,

The Articles of Agreement being made, there was a Day appointed for folemnizing the Marriage: All the first Days of the Months, as well as the Month of May were accounted unhappy for Marrying. Macrobine L. i. C. 25. males an Enumeration of all the Days whereon the Romans would not marry. Nes hes pretermiferim, ait, quòd nupris copulandis Calendas, Nongs, G Jam religiosas, id est devitandas censuerunt; bi enim dies præter Nonas feriati funt, feriis autem vim cuique fieri pisculare eff.: Ideo, suns vitantur nuptia in quibus fieri vis virginibus videtur.

and receiving good Omens before Marriage, as appears by that Verse in Plautus.

Ultre ibit nuptum, non manebit Auspices.

And Tacirus Lib. 11. speaking of the Wedding of Mellalina, fays, That her Marriage to Silius was performed with all the Ceremonies, Sacrifices, Testimonies, Auspices, Feathings, Killings and Embraces imaginable, nay, with all the nitations Talaffo vulgo acclamitant, que fellier Freedom of Man and Wife: And in L. 15. where he speaks of Nero's Marriage with Pythagora, he makes mention of the Omens: The Marriage was performed with all the usual Geremonies . Money was configned into the Hands of the Augurs: She had the Vail on, which Brides used to wear. There was a Wedding-bed prepared; and the Flambeau's of Hymen were lighted.

The Bride had an old Man's Hair on her Head, favs Sextus Pompeius, which was curled; with the Spear of a Javelin that had fruck in the Body of a Gladiator that had been flain, to the End that in like manner as the Spear had been united to the Body of the Gladiator the might alfo be to her Husband; or else because Women pared, which by the Ancients was called Leaus were under the Protection of Juno Curitis, who or Torus genialis, and then they invoked the Go-

Sive qued bafta Curis prifeis eft dilla Latinis. Ovid. Lib, 11. Faft.

The Bride wore a long Veft which had been wrought by the Hands of Cais Cacilia, according to Pling, L. 7. Hill. Nat. and at her Entrance into her Husband's House, she had the Keys presented to her, whereby the was conflituted Miftrels of the whole House, and the Management of the Family was left to her; whereas on the Contrary, when the Husband divorced his Wife, he took the Keys from her, as may be feen by that Paffage in Cicero, in Anton. Act, 2, Mimam exegit, claves ademit, res Juas fibi babere juffit. When this Ceremony was over, they laid her upon a Shoep-Ikin with the Wool on, to put her in mind that Men were formerly clad with the Skins of Beafts, and farther to intimate it was her Duty to imploy her felf in Spinning After this they fell to Feattings, and other Di-

At the Marriages of the Greeks they lung the Hymenaus, but at those of the Romans they performed the Taleffie, both by Inftrumental and Vocal Mulick : Now this Cuftom of Performing the Talaflio comes, lays Livy, from an Adventure that happen'd when the Romans ravilhed the Sabine Women, for there was one of the most beautiful of them who was forced by They were very follicitous about confulting Talafio's Soldiers, and, who as they were carry ing of her towards their Commander, for fear lest any should take her away from them, they cried that they referved her for Taleflio; and this Word was afterwards found to be a good Omen by the Augurs, and has remained till now.
This Eucour also informs us: Saline, att, 1916 anno ab urbe condité terrio. S' una virginum pul-cherrima cunitorum acclamatione rapientium Talabo duci Romuil decernitur; unde in nupriarum Olem talis nupra fit, que Taleffium babere mercatur.

Varro gives this Word another Interpretation, and will have it to fignifie a Pamier to put Wad in. The Husband threw Nuts to the Boys, Sporge marite, nuces, Virg. Eclog. 8. intimating he gave himself up to all the Diversions of Chidren, and to hinder the Hearing the Bride's Cry, when the loft her Virginity : They fung, wanton and fmutty Songs, called Verfus Fescennini, because the first of the Sort wete made in the City of Fescennia. Fescennium, fays Servius, is a City of Campania, where Songs proper for Weddings were invented : Fescennium est oppidum Campania, ubi nuptialia carmina sunt inventa. Lastly, The Wedding-Bed was prewas called Curis in the Language of the Sa- nius of the Husband, and the Bride was put to him; and both Husband and Wife offered Sacrifices to the Gods. Festus speaks of this Cuttom in the following manner: Regillie, inquit, sunicis iminis causa: There was a Girdle given to the Bride, which the Bridegroom untied at her going to Bed, and this Girdle was made of Sheeps Wool:

Cui mea virginitas avibus libana finistris, Caftaque fallaci zona revinita manu.

funo, who prefided over Marriages, took divers Names according to the divers Actions performed thereat: First from the Conjunction of Man and Wife they gave her the Epithet of Juga from the Conduct of the Bride in her Husband' House, she was called Domiduca and Iterduca: from the Woman's Girdle Cinxia; and from the Perfumes they anointed her with the got the Name of Unxia. St. Aug. Lib. 6. de Civ. Dei. Cap. 11. Laughs at the Superfition of the Gentiles, for introducing fo many Gods into the Ceremony of Marriage: 'The God Jugatinus, fays he, prefides over the Habitation of the Man and Woman: Another God called Domiducus, is required to conduct the Bride to her Husband's House: The God Domicus his Office is to keep ther there, whereunto they also added the Goddels Munsurna, to make her continue to dwell with her Husband. They likewise filled the Room with a Company of Gods, when the Paranymphs came thither: In short, the Goddess Virgo, Father Subiguus, Mother Prima. Parsunda, Venus and Priapus affifted hereat: The Goddels Virgo was to be present to undress the Bride, God Subiguus, in order to put her to Bed; the Goddels Prima, to hinder her from refifting the Carreffes of her Husband. Priagus must bethere also, and in pursuance to a most Civil 'and Religious Cuftom of the Roman Ladies, they made the Bride fit in the Lap of this infamous Diety, under a Pretence of preventing thereby the Power any Charms and Witchcrafts ' might have over her.

House:

Mopfe, novas incide faces, tibi ducttur uxor.

Bed. Next Day the Husband made a Feaft at | was conducted to her Husband's House in a Chahis House called Reports, and had Presents made riot; but among the Romans she was lead by the Hand, and the Doors of the House were adorned with Garlands of Flowers and green Boughs. The Bride's Toilet was carried by a Lad in a albis textis pridie nuptiarum indute subitum ibent | Balket that was covered : And when the came to the Bridegroom's House, the Bride was asked who she was, to which she presently answered Caia, as Val. Maximus informs us; Allufion being thereby made to Caia Cacilia, Tarquinius Prifcus his Wife, who was the Mother of a most exemplary Family, and who fpent her Life in Spining. This being over, the Bride put some Wool at the Door of the Bridegroom's House, and sprinkled it with Oil or Wolf's Greafe; as Pliny observes; Novas nupras adipe lupino postes inungere folitas: And Servius upon the 4th Book of the Eneids writes to this Purpole; Moris erat ut nubentes puella simul ac venissent ad limen marisi, postes ansequam ingrederensur, ornarent laneis vittis & oleo ungerent : When this was done, the jump'd over the Threshold, and was very careful not to touch it; which otherwise would have been a very ill Omen, according to Lucan:

Translatà vitat contingere limina plantà.

Servius upon the 8th Eclogue of Virgil, fays, That the Bride in going into her Husband's House, took care not to touch the Threshold, for fear of becoming guilty of Sacriledge, by touching the Place that was confecrated to Vefta. Ideò Sponsas limen non resigisse, ut ne à sacrilegio inchoarent, fi rem Vestæ calcarint.

MATRONALIA; they were Feafts inflituted by Romulus, and celebrated by the Roman Ladies. Ovid gives divers Reasons why they were inflituted: 1ft, Because the Roman Ladies interpoled between their Husbands and Relations in the Battle with the Sabins, and also terminated the Difference between them for having stole them; in Commemoration of which Action Remulus would have the Day of the faid Pacification, which was the First of March, celebrated as a Festival. 2dly, In order to pray unto Mars that he would fayour them to bring forth Children as happily The Bride had a Flame-coloured Vail, called Flam- as Ilia, on whom he had begot Romulusmenm, on, and under it wore a Crown of Vervein, 3dly, Because in this Month the Earth began to which she had gathered her self: Flammea tex- bring forth and grow fertile. 4thly, Because antur sponfa. And Tacitus, C. 15. Annal. speak- on that Day a Temple had been dedicated to ing of Nero, fays, They vail'd him with fuch a Juno Lucina (upon the Mount called Equilia) Vail as Brides wore. The Hymenean Torches who prefided over Women's Lying-in. 5thly, were lighted; and these were made of white Because Mars was Juno's Son who presided over Thorn or Pine; by the Light whereof the Bride | Marriages: This Feaft was remarkable, upon in the Evening was conducted to her Husband's Account that the Men fent Presents to the Women, as they did again to the Men at the Saturnalia: Sicut Saturnalibus, fays Suctonius, dabat viris apophoreta, ita & Calendis Martii faminis: And inafmuch as the Men treated their Slaves at The Bride amongst the Greeks and the Egyptians | the Samunalian Feasts, and made them their Companions, so the Women did the same thing now in respect to their Slaves, and served them at Table; for which Reason the said Day was called Saturnalia faminarum. Batchellors did not He was the Patron of learned Men, and had a the Calends of March:

Martiis calebs quid agam Calendis, Quid velins flores & accerra turis Plena, miraris, pofitufque carbo in Cefpite vivo.

led Leucosboe by the Greeks.

Queen Artemifia erected a flately Funeral Mopassed for one of the 7 Wonders of the World.

MAXENTIUS. was Maximian's Son: Hercules Villor fays, That Eutropia his Wife had put a suppositious Child upon him: When he understood that Constantine was chosen Emperor; he got himself also declared to at Rome by Asa with her Son Medus, who left his Name to the Pretorian Bands, whom he corrupted with the Country of Media. large Donatives: He was infamous for his Cruelties and Vices, and was defeated by Conftantine, near unto Pons Milvins, or the Milvian Bridge upon the Tiber, which breaking under him, he was drowned, after he had reigned Seven MAXIMINUS was a Person of a mean Birth, but succeeded Alexander Severus in the Empire: He was of a Gigantick Stature, being Eight Foot and a Half high, infomuch that his ding thereof, as Pliny fays; wherein he is mi-Wife's Bracelet ferved him for a Thumb-ring: Aaken, unless he means, that it was not practither Milo, which made every Body dread him, so that Balbinus trembled when he heard but his Name mentioned. Le had a long and fharppointed Chin, which is a common Sign of a fierce and cruel Nature; and fo indeed he was violent and cruel to the highest Degree, that being his Maxim, that he could not maintain himself in the Empire but by Severity. Moreover, as he was a Person of an extraordinary Size, and had a large Mouth, as great Eaters usually have. 'tis the less to be wondered at what Historians write, that he sometimes did eat in one Day Forty Pounds of Victuals, and drunk as many Pints of Wine. He was killed together with his Son by the Soldiery, having reigned only Three Years,

MECOENAS, a Roman Knight descended from the Kings of Evuria, which made Horace, Speaking concerning him, 12y, Mecanas aravis edite Regibus.

affift at these Feafts; which gave Horace occasion fingular Kindness for Virgil and Horace : He was to tell Mecenis, that he would be surprized to la Favourite of the Emperor Angustus, and of a find that he who was not married, celebrated very healthy Conflictution: All the Patrons of learned Men are at this Day called Mean-7746'3.

MEDEA; the Daughter of Acres, King of Colchos, who by her Magical Art affifted Fales to take away the Golden-Fleece; she married him afterwards, and had Two Children by him : MATUTA; Break-of-day, a Goddel's cal- but that did not hinder him from wedding Creula. the Daughter of Creon, King of Corinth, whither MAUSOLUS, was a King of Caria, born had retired. Crem banished Medea, scarce alat Mylafa, who built a stately Palace in Halicar- lowing her a Day's Respite, the which she imnaffus, adorned with Proconnefian Marble. His proved to make enchanted Prefents to Creala. whereby the was deftroyed : Creon afterwards nument for him, and called it according to his died embracing of his Daughter: Medes killed Name Maufoleum, the which in ancient Times her own Children, and in a Charriot drawn by winged Serpents made her Escape to Athens, where the married King Egens, by whom the had a Son named Medus: But going about to poifon Thefeus the eldeft Son of Egeus, her Delign was discovered, and the was forced to fly to MEDICINA, Phylick; it is an Art, ac. cording to Galen, to preserve present Health. and to reftore that which is loft; and according to Hippocrates, 'tis an adding of that which is. wanting, and a retrenching of what is superfluous; in Herophilus his Sence, 'tis a Knowledge of fuch I hings as are conducive to Health, or noxious thereunco. This Art was not introduced to Rome, till about 600 Years after the Buil-He was robustick and strong as if he were ano- fed in Rome by Forreign Physicians till such a Time. The Art is divided into Anatomy, Pathology, Therapeutick, Chymistry, Botanism, and Surgery: Julian the Apostate made a Law concerning Phylicians, which is printed among his Greek Letters, and runs thus in Englifb. 'It being known by Experience, that the Art of Phytick is beneficial to Mankind; 'tis not without Cause that the Philosophers have given out. it came down from Heaven, seeing that by it the Infirmities of Nature, and accidental Sickneffes are removed, wherefore in Pursuance to the Rules of Equity, and the Decrees and Authority of the Emperors our Predecessors, we of our good Will and Pleafure require and command that you who profess Physick be dispenfed with, and discharged of all Offices and Charges laid by the Senate.

MEDICUS, a Physician, is one who pra-Stiles the Art of Phylick in Curing of Diseases and Wounds, for of old, Physicians practifed Chyrurgery; fome Authors pretend, that Phy-

fick was practifed by no other than Slaves and L. Æmilius and M. Livius were Confuls, in the Freedmen; but Canfabon in his Comments upon Year DXXXV, after the Building of Rome; that Sueronius refutes this, and so does Drelincourt, they made him a Citizen, and that the Govern-Professor of Physick at Leylen ; and the same | ment bought him a Shop in the Cross-freet of may be farther justified by old Inscriptions. Dio Acilius: 'Tis said they gave him the Title of scorides, a Grecian of Anagarba, coming to Rome, Healer of Wounds, and that he was at first very was made a Citizen thereof, and became the intimate Iriend of Licinius Bassus, an illustrious rations which went so far, as to the Cutting off Roman. The Physician who view'd the Wounds and Burning of some Parts of the Patient's Body, of Fulius Cafar, was called Antiflius, and confe- procured him the Nickname of Hangman, and quently was a free Citizen of Rome; for Slaves | made the People out of conceit both with Flwhad only a Surname, with out any Name for their fick and Physicians. And to go a little farther Family. Pliny who feems not to treat well of Phylick, fays, That the Quirites, as much as to the Cenfor to his Son; fays he, 'I'll tell thee fav. the Romans, practiled it; and 'tis well known that no Roman Citizens were Slaves: Those who are acquainted with History, must know what Efteem Phylicians were in of old at Rome, and elsewhere, fince Princes themselves disdained not the Study of it. Mitbridates, King of Ponms, did himself prepare a Remedy against Povfon. Fuba, King of Mauritania, writ a Book of Plants; and Evax, King of Arabia, according to the Testimony of Pliny, dedicated a Book to Nero concerning the Medicinal Vertues of Its true, Suetonius in the Life of Caligula freaks of a Slave that was a Phyfician : Mitto tibi præterea cum eo ex fervis meis Medicum; I alfo fend you one of my Slaves, who is a Phylician with him. There might have been fome Slaves banish'd out of Rome in the Time of Care the Practice thereof, non rein, fel arsem.

Reine, was Archagatus, the Son of Infinias, when brings in a discontented Man, who faid, that much made of; but foon after, his cruel Opewith this Matter, take the Words of Marris Cate now, my dear Son Mark, what my Thoughts are of these Greeks, and what. I desire you to learn during your Stay at Atlens: Take care to inform your felf of their Customs, but learn them not: They are a wicked and indocible People, which I cannot endure. Believe it, as if it came from a Prophet, that when this Nation communicates her Sciences to others, the corrupts the whole, and especially if she should fend her Phylicians hither 10 us : They are bound to one another by Oath to kill all Barbarians with their Phylick.... They call us Barbarians, nay, and give us more opprobria ous Names: I forbid you therefore above all Things to have to do with the Physicians.

We ought not to rely upon what Pliny fays, in respect to the Romans having no Physicians who were Phylicians; but it does not follow that | for above 600 Years, feeing he contradicts himthere were no other but Slaves that were Phy. felf, when he fays that Archagams came thither ficians. Its farther pretended, that they were in the Year 535. So that he mifreckons near 100 Years. But to flew you more exactly how Cenfor, according to the Settiments of Agrippa, he is mistaken; we must observe what Dionyfus in his Book concerning the Vanity of Sciences; of Halicarnaffus fays upon the Year CCCI, but for this there is no other Foundation than Hift. Rom. wherein he fhews that a Plague the Millunderstanding of the following Passage breaking out at Rome, it swept away almost all in Pliny: 'This Art of Phylick is subject to a the Slaves and half the Citizens, there being not Thousand Changes, and a Thousand Additions, Physicians enough to attend to many fick Perfolyable are our Minds to thange upon the first lons: So that here is at least a Rebate of 300 Wind that blows from Greece; and there is no. Years in Phys's Account, feeing according to thing more certain among fuch as practife it, the Testimony of the said Dionylus, who was an than that he who abounds most in Words, be Author of good Credit, there had been Physicicomes uncontroulably the Arbiter of Life and ans at Rome from the Year 301. In the seceed-Death, as if there were not a Multitude of ing Age, with in the Year CCCLM, the People who live without Physicians, tho' indeed Plague raged again in the City of Rome, and the they should not be without Physicks, and this Art and Care of the Physicians being notable to may be observed concerning the Romans them- withfrand the Contagion; the Romans sear Dewho lived above coo Years without puties into Grece to fetch Ejeut stutchel God of them; tho otherwife, the were not a People Bow to receive good Art, but manifelied the Inklination they had for Fiyick, till having had Century Archaguus was the first that came from Experence thereof, they condemned it, es Greer, to Rome. Terence adapts is Comedy to Wissi debut and the Year DixxxvIII, where in the Brings Physical Company of the Year DixxxvIII, where in the Brings Physical Company of the Year DixxxvIII, where in the Brings Physical Company of the Year DixxxvIII. undemn the Art of Phylick it felf, but the Male ficians upon the Stage; which he would have Prattice thereof, non rein, fed artem. taken care not to have done, if they had none care not to have done, if they had none care not to have done, if they had been banish'd the first Physician who came from Peloponesus to thence. Plantus before him, in his Mercator;

he would go for fome Poylon to a Phyli-1

Ibo ad Medicum, atque me ibi toxico morti dabo.

Herophilus came in the 7th Century, who, as Pliny fays, refifted the Principles of Eraffirarus, and settled the Differences between Diseases, according to the Rules of Musick. Asclepiades towards the End of the faid Century flourished, and after him his Scholar Themiso; and the famous Craterus, of whom Cicero speaks often in his Epiftles to Atticus, and, indeed, he was a Person of very great Reputation, as Horace witneffeth:

Non est cardiacus, Craterum dixisse putato, Hic Æger.

It is of him Porphyrie speaks, who having a Perfon for his Patient that lay ill of an extraordinary Diftemper, wherein his Flesh fell away from his Bones, he cured him, by feeding him with Vipers dreffed like Fish. In the 8th Age, belides the famous Antonius Musa, Augustus his Physician, and Eudemus ; Celfus, Scribonius Largus, and Charicles flourish'd also at Rome in the Reigns of Augustus, Tiberius, and Caligula; Vellius Valens, and Alco lived under Claudius, and fo.did Cyrus, Livia's Phylician. During the 9th Century there flourish'd at Rome Statius Annaus, Nero's Physician, old Andromachus, the Inventer of the Theriaca Andromacha; Thessalus, who got himself the Name of Intronices, i.e. Conqueror of Phylicians, because he boafted he had overthrown their Principles; | gian, and of Doripe; he was an Augur and a very Crimes of Marfeilles, and Charmin of the faid City, experienced Physician; he had the Art perfectly who being defirous to go beyond their Brethren, condemned the tife of Hot Baths, and made their Patients bath in cold Water, even in Winter vine Honours paid him; Prozus gave him his time. In the 10th Century, after the Building | Daughter Ipbianaffa in Marriage, whom by his of Rome, Galen, a Native of Pergamus, was in Request at Rome, he being Physician to the Emperors Marcus Aurelius and Lucius Verus. In the 11th Century there were divers famous Phylicians in the Empire and at Rome; but the 12th was fertile in them, among whom were Zeno of Cy | a Dolphin, and after he had carried her on his prus, lonicus of Sardis, Maguus of Antioch, and Back for some Time in the Sea, he took her of oriballius of Pergamus, who were his Disciples, and enjoyed her. This was the last Age of the Roman Empire, which according to the Appearance of the 12 Vultures to Romalus, was to laft but fo many that this King had forgot her at a Sacrince, feat was a Measure among the Greeks, containing Six Remont Bushels, which is about lifty English

Quarts tuted in Honour of the Goddels Meditrina, a Medendo, because the Romans then began to killed, and whose Death Althea their Sifter, and drink new Wines, which they mixed with old, the Mother of this Prince, revenged upon him and that lerved them instead of Physick: It was in a very strange Manner: For Alibea percercelebrated on the 30th of September.

MEDUSA, the Daughter of Phoreus, who dwelt in one of the Islands of the Athiopian Sea. with her two Sifters Euryale and Sthenion, who were called Gorgons. Modufa was exceeding beautiful beyond her Sifters, and had the finelt Head of Hair in the World. Neprune enjoy'd her in the Temple of Minerva, who refenting fo bale an Action, turn'd the Hairs of Medufa's Head into fo many Serpents, and made her Afpect fo terrible as to transform all that looked upon her into Stones. Perfeus rid the Earth of fo horrible a Monfter, and by the Help of Mercury's Wings. and Minerva's Shield, cut off her Head, the which Pallas fixed to her Shield, and with which the petrified all her Enemies.

MEGÆRA, was one of the Furies of Hell the Name being derived from the Greek µsyana. Odiofa, and who by Virgil is placed in Hell, with her Head dreft with Serpents, and a frightful Afpect, which punishes the Guilty.

MEGALESIA: they were Feafts inflitteted in Honour of Cybele the Grand-mother of the Gods; and the same was solemnized on the Nones of April, i.e. the Fifth Day, with Plays and Rejoycings: The Priefts of this Goddels, who were called Galli, carried her Image along the City with the Sound of Drums and Wind-mulick, in order to imitate the Noise they made, who were entrufted by this Goddels with the Education of her Son Jupiter, that so they might hinder Satura from hearing the Child's Cry, and not devour him, as he had done his other Children.

MELAMPUS, the Son of Amitbaon the Asto imitate the Volces of all Sorts of Animals: There were Temples erected for him, and Di-Art he had brought to her right Senses.

MELANTHO, the Daughter of Protem; who was wont to divert her felf in the Sea riding upon a Dolphin's Back; but Neptune being taken with her Beauty, affumed the Shape of MELEAGER, the Son of Oenem King of Calydonia, and of Althea: Diana being angry a furious Boar into his Country, which he with MBDIMNUS, or MEDIMNUM; it the Help of Thefens killed; from whence came the Proverb, Non fine, Thefeo: This Victory proved fatal to Meleager, for having made a Prefent of this Animal's Head to his Miftrels, the MEDITRINALIA, were Peafts infti Jealonfie of some Persons who were present, book fioned a Quarrel, wherein his Two Uncles were ving, at the Time that Meleager was born, that the Definies had limitted the Life of the faid Child fo long as a Firebrand should laft, she took are to put the Fire out, and to preferve that Firebrand very carefully: But being now defirous to revenge the Death of her Brothers upon her Son, the threw the Firebrand into the Fire. and presently the unhappy Meleager felt a terrible Burning throughout his whole Body, and died with miserable Torments: His Sifters lamented him, and were transformed into Turky-Hens. Lucian also relates this Fable in his Dialogue concerning Sacrifices: 'All the Evils which formerly fell out in Etolia, and all the Calamities of the Calydoneans with the Murdering of them, and the Death of Meleager, came from the Displeasure of Diana, who was angry fine had been forgotten at a Sacrifice.

MELICER TES, the Son of Athamas and mo, who with his Mother threw himself down headlong over the Rocks called Scironides. and was carried by a Dolphin to Corinth, where he was turned into a Sea-God by the Name of Palemon. They celebrated Games in Honour of him, called the Istbmian-games, near Corintb, with great Expence.

MELPOMENE, one of the Nine Mules, faid to have been the Inventress of Tragedies, Odes and Songs.

MEMNON, the Son of Tithonus and Aurora, who came to the Relief of King Priamus at the Siege of Troy, and was killed by Achilles in a Duell: He was changed into a Bird by his Mother, when his Body was laid upon the Funeral-Pile: The Egyptians erected a Statue for him, which made a Noise at Sun-rising, when | use of Lunar Months; but to avoid all such Frathe Sun darted it's Beams upon it, and the fame in the Evening had a mournful and complaining Tone, as if it were concerned for the Lois of it's Presence: This is the Account Philostratus and Tacitus give thereof.

MENANDER, an Athenean famous for his Comedies, of whom Phedrus speaks in the 5th Book of his Fables: He was courted by the Kings of Egypt, and more particularly in Favour with Demetrius, who admired the Excellency of MENIPPUS, a Cynick Philosopher, whom Lucian in his Dialogue entituled Icaromenippus, makes to take a Journey into Heaven, by the Help of a Couple of Wings, one being a Vuiture's and the other an Eagle's; and the Reason which he makes Menippus give why he undertook fogreat a Journey, is that after he had observed the Frailty and Inconstancy of Humane Things, he began to despise Grandeur, Wealth and Pleasures, and to apply himself to a Contemplation and Search after Truth, for which End he confulted the Philosophers, but that he found fo much Contradiction and Uncertainty in what they faid, that he was refolved to go and enquireafter it into Heaven.

MENOECBUS; the Son of Creon King of Thebes, who was willing to die for the Prefervation of his Country, for when they came to know by the Oracle, that the Thebans should obtain the Victory, if the last of Cadmus his Race devoted himself to the Infernal Gods, he slew himfelf with his own Sword, after he had so devoted himself.

MENSIS, a Month, the Space of Time that the Sun rakes to run through one Sign of the Zodiac, which makes the 12th part of a Year: Cicero derives this Word from Menfura, or Mesior, Qui, quia men a spatia conficiunt, menses nominantur.

Months, properly speaking, are no other than the Time which either the Moon takes to run thro' the Zodiac (called by A ftrologers a Periodical Month) or to return from Sun to Sun, (which is diftinguish'd by the Name of a Synodical Month) but yet this Name has been also given to the Time the Sun is a running through the Twelfth Part of the Zodiac; two Sorts of Months, viz. the Lunar and the Solar being hereby diffinguifhed: The Lunar Synodical Month, which is that alone that People mind, is a little above Twenty Nine Days and an Half: The Solar is usually accounted to consist of some Thirty Days Ten Hours and an Half: The Month is again diftinguished into an Aftronomical and Civil Month; the first is properly the Solar Month, and the Civil is that which is accommodated to the Cuftoms of People and particular Nations, every one in their Way, some using the Lunar, others the Solar Months.

The Fews. Greeks and Romans formerly made Rions in Numbers as would happen, they made them alternatively to confift of Twenty Nine and Thirty Days, calling the former Cavi, and the other Pleni: The Egyptians used Solar Months, and ordered all of them to confift of Thirty Days only, adding to the End of the Year Five Days which were made up of the Supernumerary Hours, and neglecting the Six Hours, or thereabouts, that arole from the Half Hours; and this made their Seatons in the Revolution of every Four Years go backward One Day: We now make use of these Months, tho' we render them unequal, and at the same Time reserve the Six Hours to make up a Day from Four Year to Four Year: and this has been explained under the Word Annus, which may be seen for this Purpole.

Romulus made his Year at first to consist but of Ten Months, the first of which was March, then April, May, June, Quintilu, (July) Sextelis (August) September, Ollober, November, December. But Numa Pompilius who had a very particular Converse with Pythagoras, of whom he had learned divers Things in the Aftronomical Art, of which he made good Use, especially upon this Occasion, added Two Months more to Romulus's

Ddd 2

MEN

Ten Months, by taking a Day off from April, of Trading: But these Weights were only more June, August, September, and December to which Romulus had allowed Thirty Days, leaving Thirty One Days to the rest as they had them; then adding those Six Days to Fifty One that were and strictest Justice. We read in Fannius, that wanting in Romulus his Year which confifted of the Amphora, which was a very ancient Measure, 304 Days, in order to perfect his own of 355 that made 57 Days, the which he divided into Mount Tarpeius, where the Capitol flood: Two other Months, viz. into January which had 29 Days, and February 28. which he placed before March. He was not concerned that the Days in this last Month consisted of an even Number, because he designed it for the Time to offer Sacrifices in to the Infernal Gods, to which this Number, as being unhappy, according to the Egyptians Superstition, seemed to belong. He constituted the Month of January, sures, viz. the Line, the Superficies, and the reckon the Days of their Months by, to wit, the Calends, Nones and Ides: The first Day of every | cial, and confists of Length and Breadth, whose Month was called Calends; the Four following | Lines croffing each other, and the Sides being Days were the Nones (except in March, May, multiplied by one another, flew what the Con-July and October, who had 6 Days of Nones;) then tent of its Compass is, which is commonly called came the Ides, which contained Eight Days: And the rest of the Month was reckoned by the Foot, and the other 4, the Area of the Supersi-Calends of the following Month: We now make cies will be 28 Foot, for 4 times 7 makes 28. By use of the Roman Months, and only reckon the this Way are Acres of Land, Woods, Waters and

MENSORES; Harbingers, whose Business it was to go and fix upon Lodgings for the Emperors, when they were minded to go to any Province; and when they intended to encamp, they marked out the same, and assigned its Post to every Regiment.

for the Vernal Equinox.

MENSURA; Measure, being that which ferves to make known unto us the Greatness, Extent and Quantity of some Body. Fosephus, Rating of Measures, you must know that as the the Fewish Historian, attributes to Cain the Inventing of Measures: Eutropius in the Reginning amongst the Romans, were divided into 12 of his History ascribes it to Sidonius, in the Time that Proces reigned in Alba, some 300 Years after the Destruction of Troy: But the Holy Scriptures fhew us that Measures are much more ancient, fince 'tis faid, Lev. 19. Te shall do no Unrighteousness in Judgment, in Mete yard, in Weight or in Measure. The Ancients had a Custom, and the same is still in being in some Places, to lay up the Original Measure in their Temples, that Recourse might be had thereunto, when they were minded to try whether the others were right or no; and this is that which is to be underftood by the Measures of the Sanctuary so often mentioned in Scripture: For 'tis not to be believed, that these Measures or Weights of the Sanctuary were different from these in common Use, fince this would but confound all manner exact than others, and therefore it is that the Scripture always refers us to them, when it would point out unto us the greatest Exachness. was by the Romans confectated to Jupiter, upon Quam ne violare liceret, Sacravere Jovi Tarpeio in monte Quirites.

And the Emperor Vespasian, after the Civil Wars with Vitellius were ended, having repaired the Capitol, put also the Original Measures therein.

There are Three forts of Geometrical Meawhich he appointed for the Winter-Solftice, to Solid Body. Line-Measure refersonly to Length; be the first Month in the Year, instead of March as a Road is measured by Paces, a Rope by the which was so before, and which Romulus had put Fathom, a Beam, or some other Piece of Wood by the Foot; in the same Manner are measured The Romans made use of Three Words to the Height of a Tower, the Depth of a Pit, or the like. The other Way of Measuring is superfithe Area: As supposing one of the Sides be 7 Days therein by 1, 2, 3, 4, &c. See what has Meadows measured; so likewise Hangings, and been said upon Colenda and Calendarium.

Meadows measured; so likewise Hangings, and Panes of Glass, which ought to be taken as superficial Squares. The Third Way of Measuring is Cubical, or a Solid Body in all the Parts and Dimentions of Length, Breadth and Depth, such as are Feet in Maion's Work, which should be like a Dye 1 1; fo as that having but 6 Feet in Length, it should have 36 in the Area or Superficies, and 216 folid Body.

But for the better Understanding, and exacter As or Pound, which were Synonymous Terms Ounces: these Terms have also been very often applied to a Total divided into 12 Equal parts: and the Name of their Aliquot parts, has been also applied to the Parts of those other Things: Wherefore it will be proper here to fee the Division made under the Word As, and the Names of its Parts; of which take this Abridgment.

As or Libra 12 Ounces, or a Pound, or a Total divided into 12 Parts. Deunx, 11 Ounces, or 11 Parts. Decunx or Dexians, 10 Ounces, or 10 Parts. Dodrans, o Ounces, or o Parts. Bes or Bellis, 8 Ounces, or 8 Parts. Septunx, 7 Ounces, or 7 Parts. Semissis, 6 Ounces, or Half a Pound, or Half the Total.

quincunx, 5 Ounces, or 5 Parts. Triens, 4 Ounces, or 4 Parts. quadrans, 3 Ounces, or 3 Parts. Sextans, 2 Ounces, or 2 Parts.

Selcunx, 12 Ounce, or 1 Part and an Half. Uncia, an Ounce, or one Part of the whole.

Hence it is that the Roman Sestier being divided into Twelve Cyathe, they were marked likewise by the Parts of the As called Aliquots, as you have it in Martial,

Sextantes, Callifte, duos infunde Falerni:

Fill me; Calliflus, Two Sextans of Falernian Wine.

That is Four Cyarba, for the Word Sextans which fignified Two Ounces, or the Sixth Part of an As is taken here for Two Cyatha, which make the Sixth Part of a Roman Seftier, and in another Place.

Poto ego Sextantes ; su potas, Cinna, Deunces.

I drink Two Cyatha, but you, Cinna, drink

And hence also it comes to pass, that the Foot being divided into Twelve Inches, it obtained the Name of a Pound, as each Inch did the Name of an Ounce: And this has been the Cause we meet with such fort of Expressions, Quincuncialis berba in Pliny, a Plant Five Inches high, Unciales littera in St. Ferom, Capital Letters of an Inch high, and in the Holy Scripture it felf Crassitudo trium unciarum, Three Inches

What we are more particularly to diffinguish in this Place are those Two Sorts of Libra we meet with, whereof the one is divided into Twelve Ounces, and the other is a Measure divided into Twelve Inches, that so we may unravel all the Difficulties that may arise upon this Occasion. Now this Distinction of a Libra into Weights and Measure is to be met with in the Pound of Measure which was made use of for Places or Countries you are in. Liquids: The same Author in another Place by certain Lines, and that those Inches were Cubical Foot is a Measure for folid Bodies. called Ounces. 'The Romans, faid he, had a

'they called it a Pound of entire Measure, and the Twelfth Part thereof an Ounce.

This life of the Libra and the Parts thereof for Weights and Measure was formerly to common, that those who made it their Business to give it the clearest Explication, added thereunto the Word Pondo for Pendere, in order to the avoiding of all manner of Equivocation, when they would have it understood they meant Weights: For Example, Planens fays, Laferpitit libram pondo diluunt. They steeped a Pound of Benjamin ; Pifoium nullam unciam pondo cepi, I have not taken this Day an Ounce of Fish, Columella's Expression is, Sextarius aqua cum dodrante pondo mellis, a Pint of Water with Nine Ounces of Honey. Livy also says, Patera aurea fuerunt 176, libres fere omnes Pondo, there were 176 Gold-Cups, that weighed almost each of them a Pound. Its certain that this Equivocation concerning the Pound of Weights, and that of Meafure has often introduced Confusion into Authors, as may be juffified by Galen, who speaking of the Contest there was in his Time concerning Meafures noted by Authors that were not fully explained, informs us, that some thought they ought to take the Term Cotyla according to the Measure of the Atheneans, and others, according to the Italian, which was more.

There were Two Sorts of Measures, one flat or long, and the other round and hollow, for dry Things and Liquids: Long-Measure is a Barley-Corn, which in Geometry makes the 12th part of an Inch, otherwise called a Line. The Inch contains 12 Lines or Barley-Corns; the Romans called it Uncia. Its the 12th part of a Foot, and contains a Fingers, each of which takes up the Breadth of 4 Barley-Corns or Lines. The Foot is 12 Inches; a Geometrical Pace 5 Foot; a Geometrical Perch 10 Feet, and in some Flaces 22; a Spar 8 Inches; a Cubit (a fewifb Measure) a Foot and an half; a Furlong 125 Paces; the Funiculus, an Egyptian Measure, 40 Furlongs; a Mile 8 Furlongs; a Parafange (a Works of Galen; who says, That the same Name | Persian Measure) 30 Furlongs and more; the Ewas given by the Romans to a Pound Weight, giptian Schanas 30, 40, and 120 Furlongs; a whereby folid Bodies were weighed, and to a League 3 Miles, more or less, according to the Measure, in respect to Coelestial Distances, is taking upon him to reprove some Physicians, half the Diameter of the Earth, being 15000 who did not specifie the said Difference, says, Leagues or thereabouts: The Ell is a Measure They would have done better to have noted for Stuffs: The Reed, called Kenech by the Hemore carefully what Ounces and Pounds, they brews, contained 6 Cubits, i. e. 8 Feet, a Digit meant, should be used for Liquid Remedies, and an half. A Rod, Fathorn, &c. differ accordwhether they were those of Weights or Mealing to different Places. As for Surfaces, an Acre fires. And in another Place he informs us, confifts of an 160 Perches Square; a Day's-work that the Inches were marked on those Measures is as much as one can plough in a Day: The Round and hollow Measures are such as serve Measure which they used to sell Oyl by, that to measure Corn and Liquids with: Those used was diffinguish'd by certain Lines, whereby for dry Things are the Litra, Bushel, Minor, the Whole was divided into Twelve Parts, and Seflier, and Muid. For Liquids, a Tun, Muid, Pipe, Calens, Amphora, and Barrel: And for Retail, Hemina, or the Half Seftier, Seftier, Quart, Pottle, Pot, Congius, Cosyla, Cyathus, and ther's Womb. Acetabulum. And for the Measure of Herbs in Physick, that's done by Bundles, Handfuls and Pugils, most of these Terms shall be explained in their proper Places.

MERCATORUM FESTUM; the foiled Cupid: And as the Gods laughed at it, and Feaft of Merchantile People, which fell out May 15, that Venus took him to kis him, he stole away or the Ides of the faid Month, and were kept in her Girdle, and would have deprived Jupiter of Honour of Mercury; for on that Day a Temple his Thunderbolt, if he had not been too hot was dedicated to him in the great Circus, when Appius Claudius, and P. Servilius were Confuls: They facrificed to that Deity a whole Sow, and went to sprinkle themselves with the Water of a Fountain named Aqua Mercurii, which stood near unto the Gate Capena, praying unto Mercury, that he would prosper their Trade, and forgive their Cheating. Thus Ovid describes it.

Sive Deum prudens alium Divamve fefelli; Abstulerine celeres improba dicta Noti: Et pateant veniente die perjuria nobis, Nec cwens Supers fique locusus ero. Da modò lucra mibi, da falto gaudia lucro: Et face ut emtori verba dediffe juvet.

MERCURY, according to the Fable, was Son to Jupiter and Maia, the Daughter of Atlas, who Lay in of him upon Mount Cyllene, near Tegas, in Arcadia: they also called him the Tegean, Cyllenian, and Grandson of Atlas, as fides. In the first place, I must get up at break Horace calls him, Mercuri facunde nepos Atlan- of Day, to clean the Hall where they feaft, and zu. Lucian informs us of his Qualities and Offices, in the Dialogues of the Gods, where he brings in Vulcan and Apollo speaking in this Man-ry them backward and forward. At my return, I

Vulc. Apollo, Have you feen little Mercury? What a fine Fellow he is, and how he laughs at this Office before the Coming of Ganymede: Bur all the World: He discovers plainly, what he what diffurbs me most, is that in the very Night, will be one Day, tho' he be but a Child.

Malice is older than faperus.

Apoll. Ask Neptune, from whom he has taken away his Tridens, and Mars whose Sword he has and that he presided over Trade: He was called got; to say nothing of my self, whom he has Mercurius, a Mercibus, or a Mercium cura; and robbed of my Bow and Arrows.

Vul. What! An Infant do this, who is yet in Swadling-Clouts?

Apoll. Thou will see what he can do, if he comes near thee.

Vul. He has been at my House already. Apoll. And has he taken nothing away?

Vul. Not, that I know off. Apoll. See every-where.

Vul. I cannot fee my Pinchers. Apoll. I'll warrant you, thou wilt find it in his Clouts.

Vul. How! Is this little Thief already foerpert? I believe he hath learnt to feal in his Mo-

Apoll. He has a great many other Qualifies. and you'll fee them when there is occasion; He will in time be a great Orator, and also a good Musician, if I mistake not, for he hath already and eager; but he took his Scepter from him:

Vul. He is a bold little Spark. Apoll. He is also a Musician.

Vul. How fo?

Apoll. He hath made an Inftrument of a Tortoile-fhell, whereon he plays to great Perfedion, infomuch that he makes jealous, of him. who am the God of Harmony: His Mother fays he does not fleep a Nights; and that he goes as far as Hell to get any Booty; for he has a Rod endued with great Vertue, wherewith he brings the Dead to Life again, and conducts the Living to their Graves.

His Offices are also described in another Dialogue, where he brings him in talking with his Mother.

Mer. Is there ever a God in Heaven more unhappy than I?

Maia. Ah! My Son, talk not at this rate.

Mer. Why not? Since I have alone as much Business upon me, as all the reft of the Godsbethe Place of their Affembly: Then I must be at fupiter's Levy to receive his Orders, and to carwait upon the Mafter of the Houshold, and sometimes the Cup-bearer: At leastwife, Idid when every Body is at reft, I must go and con-Apoll. Do you call him a Child? He who in voy the Dead to Hell, and there affift at their Condemnation, as if all the Day were not long Vul. What Harm could he do? He is yet but enough for me to act the Offices of a Sergeant. Champion, Orator, and many more, &c.

He has been taken for the God of Traders. this makes Plaurus in the Prologue of Ampharion bring him in speaking,

Ut vos in volteis voltu mercimoniu Emundis, veridundisque me lætum lucris Alficere.

He is usually painted with Wings at his Sides and Feet, a Caduceus or Rod twifted round with Two Serpents in his Hand, wherewith he performs many Wonders; and a great Cap, called Perajus, on his Head, whence he was named Mer-

rection, which intimates that a Man that Trades | add also another Stone each, it made a Heap at ought to be vigilant, and rife early. He is also last, which they called Acervus Mercurit This the God of Thieves, and the Messenger of the was an ancient Custom, seeing we read of it in Gods, and the Arbiter of Peace; and this made the Proverbs of Solomon; Sicus qui mittit lapidem the Roman Embassadors carry a Caduceus with in acervum Mercurii. Homer also in his Odysses them to proclaim a Peace. Apollo gave him that | speaks of these Mercuries, or Heaps of Stone. Rod, and taught him the Vertue of it: and Mercury first tried it upon Two Serpents that were fighting, between which when he threw it Mercury was he of Egypt, whose Commentaries, they were pacified; from whence forward he Philo Biblos (according to the Relation given us carried those Serpents who twifted themselves by Eusebius) says, were with utmost Care sought about the faid Rod, along with him.

. MERCURY, in the Art of Aftrology, is a Planet, that is hardly ever separated from the logy, as knowing well he was the Person that Sun, and so is rarely seen, as being as it were al- first found out the Use of Letters, and that he ways buried under the Beams thereof, or elfe was called by different Names as Thob, Thoyth, appears like a black Spot upon the Body of the Tautes: Porphyry bears the same Testimony of Sun it felf: 'Tis for that Reason, perhaps, that Taautus, and Sanchuniathon forgets not the Gethe Ancients sometimes consounded it with the nealogy of Tagueus, amongst those of the other Sun, and faid it was the Soul or Understanding profane Deities of the Phanicians and Egyptians. thereof. Thus they made him the Mafter of Wifdom and Knowledge; from whence it came all the Mercuries, and he that was the Inventer to pass that he was to preside over Mens Discourses, which is nothing else but an Bifusion of Thoughts or Wildom. You may fee how Porphyry speaks upon this Occasion, who seems to which regulates Discourse, as he appropriates Hence it appears, that the Pagans looked upon these Stars as living and intelligent Beings, and fuch as communicated their Influences with their Knowledge: For Horace calls learned Men, Mercuriales viri, as being Persons more abundantly furnish'd with the Gifts and Influences of Helychius fays, that the Babilonians called the Star Mercury, Sechez: Mercurii stella Babylonii Sechez: And the People of Edeffa gave Mercury the Name of Monimus, who together with Mars, they would have to be the Two Affistants of the Sun; hence it appears the Eaftern People were much addicted to the Worship of Mercury: The Eaftern Nations were no less of Opinion, that Mercury was the Star that had the Government of him. of Reason and Speech: The Gauls, of whom Cafar speaks in his Commentaries, minded more the fabulous History of Mercury, than the Nature of the Star, that bare his Name: And 'twas for the same Reason that the ancient Representations of Mercury, had neither Legs nor Arms, that we may know, if we believe Plurarch, that a Person by the Application of his Understanding, and a prudent Conduct alone may compass all Things, without the Assistance of the Members of the Body. As Mercury prefided over High-ways, they gave to Mens Heads that were cutupon Square Stones there the Name of Mercu-7; and all Passengers in order to make the Place to all the Parts of the World, and almost fell in-curius Petafatus. The Cock was under his Pro- | yet the more remarkable, taking upon them to

MERCURY (according to Hiftory) the most famous of all those that bore the Name of after by Sanchuniathon, that thereby he might be able to compose his Treatise of Pagan Theo-'Tis not to be doubted but the Ancientest of of Letters, was he of Phanicia, and he passed from thence to Egypt, and fo from Egypt to Greece: Eusebius also proves out of Diodorus Siculus, that the Egyptians presented to their ancient King attribute to the Moon, that Mercury or Genius Oficia a Mercury very like unto him of the Phanicians: Apud eum summo in bonore Mercurium to the Sun that which directs Argumentation and fuife; quod in exceptiandis its que visam bomi-Reasoning: Mercurius oracionem exhibet, &c. num juvarent, ingenii solerciam oftenderet plane fingularem : quippe qui litteras invenerit, Deorum facrificia rite instituerit, lyra cantum invenerit, Gracosque bomines The teunresar, boc eft, elocutionem docuerit: quam ob caufam epizife, id eff. Mercurius ab iisdem fuerit appellatus; denique oliva plantam invenerit. Clemens Alexandrinus speaks of this Agyptian Mercury, as of a Man whom they had deified there after his Death: Cicero would have it, that there were Five diftinct Mercuries, of which Three were Greeks, one the Son of Nilus, and the last he of Egypt: The great Glory of the Agyptian Mercury was, that he was the Inventer of Letters, Sciences and Laws, according to Famblicus his Testimony

It will be some Difficulty to reconcile what Pliny favs with the most received Opinion, That the Invention of Letters was found out in Affria; Listeras arbitror Affyrias fuise: sed alii apud Egyptios à Mercurio, ut Gellins, alti apud Syros repertas volunt. But this Contrariety may be accommodated in this manner: That whereas the Beginning of all Things proceeded from Alfria, other Nations affected to have the Honour thereof: Indeed it may be faid, that Letters were in Use before the Deluge, and Noch preserved the same in his Family, and to his Pofterity, but after the Flood when People began to be scattered into meer Barbarism; there was as it were a Ne I they had been carried into Phanicia: Such a cessity for a new Creation of all Arts and Sciences, to bring them back from the faid Barbarism, Egyptian and Grecian Mercury, that it may be and the profound Ignorance they had plunged easily judged the One is but a Copy of the Othemselves into: Wherefore 'tis true, that Letters were originally the Allyrian's Invention, or rather found among them, fince Woah and his Family dwelt in Affria; but in Process of Time and after the Multiplying of divers Colonies in the World, the Phanicians were the first who received the Use of Letters by the Means of Tasutus; next to them the Egyptians got them, and had their Taautus or Mercury alfo; which gave Sanchuniathon Occasion to say, That Mercury was tle after the Deluge, there was a fecond Mercury ciently. the Son of Vulcan who reigned in Egypt long affirst Mercury, which he found graven upon Pilfor Fear of another Deluge those Secrets which they were delirous to transmit to Posterity were second Mercury that was called Trifmegiffus, according to Syncellus and Manetho: Clemens Alexandrinus makes mention of 42 Books of Mercury, that were carried in Pomp by the Egyptians when they were folemnizing the Mytteries those Accomplishments, wherewith they endued their fabulou. Mercuy: For the Greeks tould not

Likeness was found to have been between the Strabo calls a Child which he faw was born without Arms country's Name. Thus Mercury was usually pictured, to let Men understand, says Festus, that Discourse does every Thing, without the Affistance of the Arms: Cyllenius dictus, quòd omnem rem sermo sine manibus conficiat; quibus partibus corporis qui carent, κυλλοί vocantur: But Paufanias fays, the Abes nians were the first that gave Mercury's Name Saturn's Secretary, paumareus. The Egypto fuch as were lame in their Arms: Primi mutil tians represented their Mercury, with a Dog's os Hermas vocarunt: For before Dadalus his Time Head, and sometimes confounded him with Anu- all their Statues had but one Foot, and either bis, because of the Sagacity of a Dog: See how no Arms at all, or else they were joined to, or Servius speaks of it: Latrator Anubis, Mercurius hung by their Bodies : He was the first that capitocanino pingitur, ideò quia nibil est cane made them with Two Feet, and set the Arms a little off from the Body: The Statues of Mer-But besides this first Mercury, who lived a lit- cury might be lest in the same Posture as and

MERCURY (according to Marrobius) is ter, and wrote Books (which he deposited in the same as the Sun or Apollo, and the Reason their Temples) concerning the Writings of the why Wings are given to Mercury, is to denote: the swift Motion of the Sun. Apollo prefides: lars, and this Manesho faid, according to the Ac- over the Quire of Muses, and Mercury is the Facount Syncellus gives us of it. Exstellis positis in ther of Eloquence and good Literature. The terra Syriadica, & exaratis facra dialello & biero- Sun is the Mind and Understanding of the World glyphicis listeris à Thoth, qui est Mercurius pri- which agrees well with Mercury, whose Name is mus, secundus Mercurius Agarbodemonis filius, therived and TE apunvever ab interpretando : Tati pater, libros traduxit, quos in templorum ady. Mercury is the Meffenger of the Gods, being ris Ægypti reposuit. Ammianus Marcellinus gives often sent by the Coelestial to the Infernal Deia Description of those Subterranean Places, where ties; because the Sun in its Course passes thro' the Superior and Inferior Signs: Mercury killed-Argus, who had 100 Eyes to watch lo, that was writ on the Walls in Hieroglyphicks: It was this transformed into a Cow: That is, that the Sun eccliples the Light of the Stars and the Heavens by its Presence, these Stars having been as fo many Eyes in the Night, to watch and mind the Earth which by the Egyptians was represented by the Symbol of a Cow: Laftly, Mercury's of their Religion, and wherein were contained Caduceus which was befer with Two Serpents all the Divine and Humane Sciences entertained twifted together and kiffing one another, figure by that Nation, as their Hieroglyphicks, Geo- fied the Four Deities that prefided over the Nametry, Colmography, Aftronomy, Laws of tivites of Mankind, viz. the Sun, Moon, Love Sacrificing, and all Divine Worship: Its ma- and Necessity. The Two Serpents are the Sun nifelf, that it was from these Two Egyptian and Moon; the Knot is Necessity, and their Mercuries the Greeks and Romans borrowed all Kiffing denotes Love: Mercury may also be feen piftured fitting upon a Cray-fith, fiolding a Caduceus in his Right hand and one of the Claws deny but that the Egyptian Mercury was the most of the Fish in the other Farther; He is graven tamous of all of them, and theretore they made on Medals, like a beardies. Youth with Wings, it their Bafiness to give out he was a Greek by and holding a Parse in his Left-hand, and a Cock Birth; and whereas it is certain, that the Greeks upon his Fift. He has an He-goat at his Feet; received their Letters from the Phanicians, as with a Scorpion and a Fly. The Germans adored we have already thewed, they endeavoured all- him as the Sovereign of the Gods; and as Taims they could to perswade the World, that they reports, offered Humane Sacrifices to him; Devwere originally found out in Greece, from whence rum maximum Mercurium colunt, cui cereis diebus

Sumanis quoque boftiis litare fas babent. The Greeks and Romans facrificed a Calf unto him; they ly of the Cacilii, from whom were descended made him an Oblation of Milk and Honey, as many illustrious Persons, among the rest L. Ceunto a God of Sweetness, by Reason of his Eloquence. Callistratus and Homer say, it was a tor; who going one Day to his Home, was stop-Cuftom to present him with Neat's-Tongues, by throwing them into the Fire, and fprinkling a little Wine thereon, because he was the God of Speech, whereof the Tongue is the Organ. See Hermes, which is Mercury.

MERCURIUS (Dier is underftood) is Wednesday, the Third Day of the Week, being fo called, because the Planet Mercury reigns in the first Hour thereof, according to the Opinion of those who allow of Planetary Hours.

MERETRIX; a debauched Wife or Maiden. A Bill was wont to be fixed over the Door of Common Women, according to the Testimony of Aurelius Fuscus, and Seneca, Controv. 1. Meretrix vocata es, in communi loco fterifti, fuperpositus est Celle tua titulus, venientes accepisti. Tertullian in his Book de Pudicia, calls thefe Inscriptions the Bills of Lewdness, Libidinum tituli. Portius Latro fays the same Thing; Es in lupanari, accepisti locum, titulus inscriptus est ; you are in an ill Place, you have a Room there, a Bill is fet on the Door. The Cuftom also was for them to change their Names, as foon as they had told the Adiles, that they would lead a diffolute Life; as we are informed by Plaurus, in his Comedy, entituled, Panulus, Act. 5. Sect. 3. Ver. 20.

Namque bodie earum mutarentur nomina. Facerensque indignum genere quastum corpore.

They changed their Names, in order to drive a Trade, which became not their Birth and Condition. But when they for look this infamous Profession; they also laid aside that Name of Reproach they had affumed, and reaffumed that of their own Family.

At the same time says Tacinus in his Ann. L.2. C. 24. 'The Lewdness of Women was restrained by the Senate's Authority, and fuch of them whole Grand-father, Father or Husband had been a Roman Knight, were forbid to make a publick Profession of their Lewdness: For Vefillia, who was of a Pratorian Family, had 'made her Declaration, before the Magistrates, faccording to the Cuftom of our Ancestors, who *thought fuch debauched Practices were fuffici-'ently punith'd with the Difgrace of fuch a Con-

MEROPS, was one of the Gyants, who went about to drive the Gods from Heaven; but this Name ought rather to be given to those who affifted at the Building of the Tower of Ba- upon it. bel, because of the Confusion of Languages that comes from meeil en dividere, and it vox.

METELLUS; the Surname of the Famicilius, a brave Commander, and learned Oraped by Ravens, who flapped him with their Wings; whereat he was amazed, and went back again to Rome, where finding the Temple of Vesta was on fire, he delivered the Image of Pallas, called Palladium, from the Flames; and in so doing became blind, but that Goddess afterwards reffored to him his Sight.

METRA, the Daughter of Erifichthon, who obtained as a Reward from Neptune, for the Lois of her Virginity, a Power to transform her felf into what Shape the pleased; wherefore, in order to supply the Necessities of her Father, she fometimes took upon her one Form, and sometimes another, under which her Father fold her again and again, as he had occasion.

METRETES; it was an Arbenian Meafure, that contained 40 English Quarts, i.e. 72 Seftiers.

MIDAS, King of Phygia, the Son of Gora dius, and the Goddess Cybele, he received into his Court Silenus, one of Bacebus his Captains, that had straggled in his Way to the Indies; in acknowledgment whereof Bacchus gave him his Choice to ask him what Kindness he would. And his Request was, that whatever he touched might be turned into Gold; but having experimented the same divers times, he was surprized to find, when he went to drink or eat, that all was transmuted into Gold; wherefore he had recourse to Baschus again, who bid him go and wash himself in the River Pattolus in Lydia, to which the Property was communicated to remedy him in this Case; and so upon washing therein the Gold Scales presently fell off. Sometime after having adjudged the Victory to God Pass against Apollo, this Deity grew angry thereas, and prefeatly changed his Ears into those of an Als. Midas concealed this Misfortune, and difcovered it to none but his Barber, with a Charge he should let no other know it sthe Barber made a Pit in the Earth, and entring therein, faid, Midas bas Affe's Ears; and so covered the Pit again, as believing he had by that means hid the Secret very well; but Reeds coming to grow up in the faid place, and being shaken by the Wind, repeated the Words, King Midas bas Affe's Ears. Plurarch in his Treatife concerning Superflition, fays, that Mides towards the latter part of his Life, was so extreamly afflicted with Melancholy, occasioned by frightful Dreams that broke his rest, that he could not remedy the same, and that drinking fome Bull's Blood, he died

MILLIARE, and MILLIARIUM; ensued thereupon; seeing the Word Merops Mile; 'twas a certain Space that contained 1000 Paces among the Romans, who diffinguish'd their Miles, Miles by the Marks they fet: The small League | of Oceanus, who invented Charlots with Four in France contains 2000 Paces, the common Wheels. 5th, Was the Daughter of Pallantie

League 2500, and the greatest 3000. MILO. A Crotonian, was a Man of vaft Strength; he carried a Bull of Two Years old upon his Back at the Olympick Games, for the Space of a Purlong, then killed him with his certainty conclude, that the Second of these Fift; and 'twas faid, eat him all in one Day. He | Minerva's, is the ancientest and first of any of held a Pomegranate to firmly in his Hand, that them. Plato in his Timaus, speaking of the City no Body could take it from him: As he was one of Sai, fays, that Minerva was worthipped there. Day in a Wood, and went about to break a Tree and called by the Name of Neith. Syncellus inoff with his Hands, which was a little flit, the timates, that the Name of Queen Niteria. same closed again, and both his Hands were which includes that of Neith, fignified as much catched between, so that he could never pull as Victorious Minerva. Plutarib speaks also of them out, and in that Condition he became a the Minerva of Sai, and fays that some made Prey to the Wolves.

MINA or. MNA, Greek Money worth 100 Drachmas, and is somewhat more than Three Pounds Sterling. Sixty Mina's were required to make up an Attick Talent.

MINERVA; of whose Nativity Lucian gives an Account in his Dialogue of the Gods, where he introduces Vulcan and Jupiter speaking | Minervam; as prior quidem Virgo diem obiit; Miof it in this manner:

What wouldst thou have us do with it? Tao. Cleave my Head in two presently.

Val. I hou shalt see whether I am such a Fool as to attempt it: Tell me feriously, what thou wouldst imploy me in.

54. To cleave my Head in the middle; I am in earnest; and if thou will not obey, thou shall see how it will be taken; strike only with all thy Might, for my Head is split with Pain, afterwards upon the Account of some Milinand I endure the same Misery, as if I were in derstanding between her and her Father, she Labour like a Woman.

Pul. Have a Care that we do not commit fome Folly; for I cannot lay thee to eatily as a

Bup. Strike thou only, and fear not; leave

Val. It must be so in spight of me; But who would doit? I muft obey: O ye Great Gods I do not wonder at thy having a Pain in thy Head, fince thou hadft a Woman within it, and even an Anagon, with a Lance and Shield: 'Tis that which made thee fo impatient.

Cicero, L. 3. de Nas. Deor. Speaks of Five Minerva's: The 1ft, which he fays was the Mother of Apillo: The 2d brought forth by the Nile, which the Egyptian Saites worthipped. Pluearch in his Treatise of Ofiris, fays that the Image of Minerva or Pallas was in the City of Sai, with this Inscription: "Eye' sind mar To אבשטים אל לין על בסינוביים, אל דפי בנולי שבאחים Weis we Bentde arendauler. I am all that was, is, and is to come; and my Vail no Mortal nath hitherto uncovered. 3d, Is she that came out armed from Jupiter's Brain. 4th, Was the Daughter of Jupiter and Corypba, the Daughter whom the killed, because he would have ravished her: This laft they made to have Wings to her Feet, in the same manner as Mercury. Arnobius pursues the same Diftinction: We may with no diffinction between her and Ifis.

The Phanicians, according to the Relation given us by Sanchuniathon, had their Minerva alfo, and they made her to be the Daughter of Saturn, and attributed the Invention of Arts and Arms unto her: This is what Eufebius favs of her : Sasurnus liberos procreavit, Proferpinam & nerva autem Mercurioque auttoribus falcem ex ferro Vul. Lo, I bring thee a very sharp Hatchet; bestamque constavis. It was from the Egminn: or Phunicians, that the Greeks borrowed their Minerva, and Cecrops was the first who taught the Athenians to worthip Minerva and Jupiter, as Eufebius fays. The Conveniency of Neighbourhood made Minerva pals from Egypt into Lybia before Cecrops went over into Greece. Heredorus affures us, the Lybians made her to be the Daughter of Neptune, and the Lake Triton, tho went to Jupiser, who adopted her for his Daughter. Paujanias affures us, the Asbenians were much deveted to the Worship of the Gods, and that they were the first who gave Minerus the Name of segurn, operaria, machinatrix. He says elsewhere, they built a Temple to Minerus, Mayavins, Machinatrix, as being the Goddels that had introduced Arts and Inventions into the World: He speaks moreover of a Statue of Minerva that fell from Heaven. He lays Minerva aided Perfeus in his Conflict against Gargon, near the Lake Triton, for which Reason that Country was confecrated to her. Laftly, The faid Author declares, the Beotiens affected to give the Name of Triton to a Brook that run near Minerva's Temple, from which she had been named Tritonia. As for Minerva, fays St. Augustine, L. 18. C. 9. de Civ. Dei, 'Sheis much more ancient than Mars or Hercules, and they faid she lived in the Days of Ogyges, near. unto the Lake Triton, from whence the was named Tritonia: She was the Inventress of many rare and useful Things; and Men were fo much the more inclined to believe the was a Goddels, because her Original was not known;

an Allegory, than Truth of History.

a Goddels, before Cecrops his Time, in whose the Owl were under her Protection, as may be Days Athens was founded or rebuilt: 'Tis a Name feen by the Athenian Money, on one fide of taken from Minerva, whom the Greeks called which frood the Head of this Goddess armed, Abhru. An Olive-Tree happening all of a fud- and on the other an Owl with these Greek Chaden, in a certain Place, to spring out of the racters AOHNA, and upon the Reverse there Ground, and a Spring of Water in another, thefe was an Owl flying, who held a Lawrel between Prodigies amazed the King, who presently de- her Claws, as a Sign of Victory. puted Persons to go to Apollo at Delphos, in order to know what the same meant: The Oracle made answer, that the Olive-Tree fignified Minerva, and the Water, Neptune, and that it lay mon them to chuse, according to which of the two Deities Names they should call their City; wont to have Votes in their Deliberations: When the Suffrages were taken, all the Men were for Nepsune, but all the Women for Minerva; and because they exceeded the Men by one Voice, Minerua carried it, and Athens was called according to her Name. Phornutse going about to give the Moral and Allegorical Interpretation of Minerva's proceeding from Jupiter's Brain, fays. That the Heathen Philosophers made her to be a Divine Emanation, which they called the Intellect of the great God, that differed nothing from his Wildom, which in him is generated of his Brain, which is the principal Part of the Soul. This St. August. L. 7. C. 28. de Civ. Dei, fays, was the Opinion Varro had of the Poets, that according to their Custom in obscuring Philosophy with Fictions, they meant no other than the Idea or Exemplairs of Things, under the Name of Minerva.

Painters and Statuaries represented her like a beautiful Virgin, armed with a Cwajs, a Sword by her Side, a Helmet on her Head, adorned with Feathers, holding a Javelin in her Right Hand, and a Shield in her Left, whereon Medufa's Head befet with Serpents was represented: This Shield was called Agu, and was covered with a Goat-Ikin, or that of the Monster Ægidie, which the killed. The first who erected Temples and offered Sacrifices to her were the Rhodians, whom the taught to make Coloffus's: But because that at the very first Sacrifice they offered to her, they forgot to make use of Fire, the left them in Anger, and went to the City, which fine called Athens, to whom the Athenians built a ftately Temple, under the Name of wagfir , wherein they fet up her Statue made of Gold and Ivory by the Han is of Phydias, which was 39 Foot high: Upon her Pantourle was graven the Fight between the Lapinba and the Centaurs; upon the fides of the Shield, the Bartle within it the Gods righting against the Gyants. the Twelve Signs, was mightily taken with what for, as to their faying that she came out of There were several Temples and Chappels e-Supiter's Brain, 'tis rather a Poetical Fiction, or rected for her at Rome; whereof the most Ancient and Famous of all was that upon Mount Minerva was worshipped by the Athenians for Aventine, of which Guid speaks: The Olive and

MINERVALIA, or Quinquatria, were Feafts instituted in Honour of Minerva, and celebrated March 19. the same lasting for Five Days: The first Day was spent in Prayers made to this Goddes; the rest in offering Sacrifices, feeing the Gladiators fight, alling Tragedies upon hereupon Cecrops calls all the Citizens, both Men | Mount Alban, and reciting Pieces of Wit, whereand Women together, for the Women were in the Conqueror had a Prize given him, according to the Appointment of the Emperor Domitian: The Scholars had now a Vacation, and carried their Schooling-money, or rather Prefents to their Mafters, which was called Minerval: Hoe mense mercedes expluebant magistric, quas completus annue deberi fecit, fays Macrobius, MINOS, the Son of Jupiter and Europa. was King of Candia after he had outed his Brother Sarpedon. Ariftotle, L. 1. Polit, fays, He was the first that gave Laws to the Candiers : his Wife's Name was Pasiphae, a Daughter of the Sun, by whom he had Three Sons and Two Daughters: He had great Wars with the Athenians, in order to revenge the Death of his Son Androgen, whom they had flain; and he granted them a Peace upon Condition they thould fend him every Year Seven young Men of the best Rank in their City, to be devoured by the Minotaur that his Wife had brought forth, as we shall shew presently: He exercised the Place of a Judge in Hell with Eacm and Rhadamanthus, because he was a very just Prince. Plate informs us, That Jupiser left the Office of passing Judgment upon the Dead to Three of his Sons : Redamanthus was to judge the Afiaticks; Eacus the Europeans; and for Minos, he was to determine any Difficulties that might occur; fo that he was above the other Two.

MINOTAURUS; the Minotaur, was a Monfier, being half Man and half Bull, brought forth by Pasiphae, Minos his Wife, after the had engendred with a Bull, by the fubtle Means of Dedalus, who made a Wooden Heifer, wherein he inclosed her that she might be covered by the Bull: This Monster was put into the Labyrinth, and by Minos his Order fed with Man's Flesh, but he was at last killed by Thefeus, who had been sent thither to be devoured by him. Lucian unravels to us the Fabulous part of this Story ; faying, That Pasiphae hearing Dadalus discoursing concerning laurus, which is one of he faid; which gave the Poets occation to fay, | a Rebellion against him, he out of Despair stabthat the was in Love with a Bull, whom by his bed himself, when he found the Poilon, which means the enjoy'd. Diodorus Siculus fays, that he was wont to take, would not do his Bulmels. Taurus was one of Minos his Captains, who had to do with Pasiphae, and whose Amours were countenanced by Dadalus, that the was brought to Bed of Two Children, one of which refembled Minos, and the other Taurus, and that they were both called by the Name of Minotaur; that from the faid Taurus his using of the Arbenians very severely, in the War which Minos declared against them, to revenge the Death of his Son Androgens, they feigned that he fed upon their Flesh. Philosborus relates that the Minoteur was a very cruel Officer under Minos, who in wreftling overcame all those that came and 'tis to him they sacrificed their own Chilagainst him at those Funeral Games, instituted dren in the Valley of Topbet, which fignifies a by Minos to the Ghost of his Son Androgeus, and that he won the Prize which confifted of some Tribute-Children, from hence came the Fiction of the Poets, that he was fed with the Children sent yearly from Athens to Creet, by he was the God of Liberty, being a Deity that way of Tribute, for killing Androgeus.

MITHRA; this a Name which the Perfians, Parthians, and several other Eastern Nations gave to Apollo, because of the Ornament about his Head, wherewith they represented him: He was also reverenced among the Romans, as appears by feveral Infcriptions:

> Soli invido Misbra. Numini invide feli Mithra.

They celebrated the Ceremonies used at his Worfhip in Caves and Subterranean Places, and they usually sacrificed a Bull to him. Socrates and Sozomen fay, That in the Reign of Fulian the Apostate and Theodosius, the Cave of Mithra, that was at Alexandria, was opened, that they found it full of Mens Sculls, that had been there facrificed unto him: This Worship of Apollo Misbra is one of the ancienteft used among Men, and the Manefe Greeks learnt it of the Phanicians, who before them were Mafters of the Ifland. Euftathius derives the Word Mitre from the Greek wir , which fignifies a Weaver's Woof, being a broad Welt, wherewith they tied his Head : Volfius derives it from uie, which that for One Altar I have, others have an Hunfignifies to tie; because the Mitre was an Or- dred. He found Fault that the Bull's Homs nament which they tied round the Head: But Scaliger deduces it from a Syriack Word, that fig- been before them, that fo he might fee better nifies a Band or Line; and others from the Word | where he ftruck; he reproved Vulcan, for that Mithri, which is Syriac, and is as much as to fay having made a Man, he had not fet a Window Lord: And in Conformity to this Sentiment, in his Breaft, in order to see whether his Thoughts the Mitre was a Sign of Dominion or Royal Ma- | agreed with his words; and he blamed Minerus,

MITHRIDATES; a most potent King | ried whither one would. of Pontin, who was incomparable as well in Respect to the Strength of his Body, as to the En- | marked for the Coin, and with the Arms of a dowmen's of his Mind; but of a cruel and bloo- Prince, or State, who make it to circulate and MNEMOSYNE; the Mother of the Nine Muses, which she bore to Jupiter; and the faid Word among the Greeks fignifies Memory.

MODIUS, a Bushel; being a Measure in use among the Romans for all forts of Grain : It contained about Nine English Quarts.

MOLA SALSA; is a kind of roafted When which was afterwards peeled and fleeped in Water with Salt and Frankincense; and then sprinkled between the Horns of the Sacrifice before he was killed.

MOLOC, was the God of the Ammonites. Drum, for they beat then the Drum, to hinder them from hearing the Cries of the Children. which they threw into the Fire.

MOMUS, was the Son of Sommus and Nox. fpoke his Mind freely, and controul d every thing, even the Actions of the Gods themselves, as may be feen in a Dialogue of Lucian concerning #1piter Tragicus.

MOMUS; I was always afraid of the Miffortune that has befallen us: they do Epicurus and his Disciples an Injury, for what Opinion can Men have of us, when they see how disorderly we manage the Affairs of the World, where Vice triumphs over Vertue, where the Innocent endure the Funishment due to the Guilty, and where nothing can be heard but cheating Oracles, Complaints, Divisions, the Amours of the Gods, and fuch like Things as please the Poets: Jupiter, 1 desire thee to tell me, for one may speak here very freely, whether thou haft ever bethought thy felf of making an exact Search for the Wicked and the Good, in order to punifn the one, and reward the other: - We must go to the Spring-head of the Diforder, and not think so much upon Dettroying our Enemies, 23 to reform such Things as are irregular in our own Conduct: You know, Sirs, I speak without either Paffion or Intereft, feeing my Divinity is acknowledged but by a very few Perfons, and were above his Eyes, faying they ought to have in that the House she had built could not be car-

MONETA; Money; a Piece of Money dy Disposition. Pharnaces his Son, having raised | pass at a common Rate for Things of different a Thing stamped with a publick Coin: Josephus | Side whereof was the Goddels Cybele, and a Lyon feens to attribute the Invention of Money to on the other. The Obolus of the Greeks was a-Cain, because he had found out Weights and bout Five Farthings English: The Drachma was Year of the World 2110. when it speaks of a a Crown. 1000 Pieces of Silver given by Abimelech to Sarah Abrabam's Wife, of 400 Shekels of Silver which Esbron, and of the 100 Lambs, that is, the 100 Pieces of Silver Money, which Facob gave to the Sons of Hemor.

The first Mark put upon Money confisted of Points to denote the Value thereof, and because Exchange for another, Mens greatest Wealth confisted in Cattle: The Shapes of them, or of their Heads only were stamped upon the first Moneys that were made: And Caffiodorus takes Notice that the Latins called Money Pecunia, which was derived from the Word Pecus, that fignified any kind of Beaft; it was a Name they borrowed from the Gauls: Afterwards they flamped on their Money the Heads and Arms of Princes, or some Mark or other that intimated the Origin of States: Julius Cafar was the first whose Head was stamped upon Money by the Order of the Senate.

The Jewish Moneys were the great Cicar, or Talent of the Sanctuary which weighed 100 Miwhich weighed 50 Mina, or 125 Roman Libra. The Maneib or Mina, which was I wo Libra's and an Hali, or 30 Ounces. The Shekel or Sicle of of the Sanctuary, half an Ounce or 20 Gerabs, or oboli. The little Shekel confisting of Two Drachma's, worth near 32 Pence of our Money, and the Gerab or Obolus which consisted of between 14 and 15 Grains.

As for the Grecians, Herodorus in his Clio writes, That the Lydians a People of Asia were the first that made hammer'd Pieces of Gold and Silver: Others attribute the first Invention thereof to Erichthonius the fourth King of Athens: Plusarch affures us, that Thefeus coined Pieces of Silver weighing Two Drachma's, which on the one Side had the l'icture of a Ox, in Memory of the Marathonian Bull or Captain Taurus, and on the other Jupiter or an Owl. He also made some that weighed half an Ounce whereon Minerva and Two Owls were stamped, and these were called Stateres.

The Money in Peloponefus was ftamped with a Tortoile, from whence came this figurative Way of Speaking The agethe को The Goolas vinavtai Xerai ; The Tortoife exceeds both Vertue and Wifdom, that is, that with Money all Things are com-

Value: Paulus the Lawyer defines Money to be | paffed. The Cizycenians coined Money, on one Measures, Money must have been comprehended | worth about Seven Pence English: The Mina atherein, which at first was nothing elfe. The bout Three Pounds: The Talent was in Value holy Scripture makes no mention of any till the about 2031. 135. And the Shekel about Half

As for the Romans, 'cis thought that Fanus was the first who made Brass Money, on one Abraham gave by Weight to the Children of Side of Which stood a Head with Two Faces, and on the other a Ship, as Athenaus informs us: Fanus was the first, as they say, who invented Garlands, and coined Copper-money; and Pliny fays, note ærie ex altera parte fuit Janus geminus, ex alsera roftrum navis. Numa Pompilius made that in the Time when one Thing was given in Wooden and Leather Money and afterwards establish'd a Company of Brasiers called Ererii, who were the Monyers of those Times, for the Romans at first made use of unwrought Brass for Money, from whence came those Forms of Speech as alienum, a Debt, and per as & Libram, because they were put into the Scales to be weighed. Servise Tullius made Brass Money weighing 12 Ounces, and the same had the Figure of a Sheep upon them; and this lafted till the first Punick War : They began to hammer Pieces of Silver 485 Years after the Building of Rome, I mean the Denariss which was worth 10 Affes. They had Half a Denarius called Quinarius, the Quarter Part of a Denarius named Seftertius, and the Teruncius which was the Fourth na's, or 250 Roman Libra; the little Cicar of an As. All these were Silver Moneys, or common Talent, called that of the Assembly, marked on the one Side with a Woman's-Head, which represented Rome, and an X to shew the Value to be 10 Affes, and upon the Reverle were Caftor and Pollux: They had Quinarii whereon Victory was pictured, and these were called Villoriati, and others on which there was a Charriot drawn by Two or Four Horses, which for the said Reason were called Bigati, Quadrigati: Moreover some of these Silver Pieces have been met with, on which instead of Rome, was stamped the Figure of some Genius or Tutelary. God, which upon that Account were called Genisti.

Gold Coin came not in Use till about 62 Years. after Silver Money, in the Year of Rome 546, in the Consulship of Nero and Livius Salinator: They were Pieces whereof 38 went to a Pound, and came near to 2 Drachma's and an Haif, being worth commonly about 23 Shillings.

A RECAPITULATION of ROMAN MONEYS.

Copper Moneys. As, Affis, or Affipondium, weighing 12 Ounces, amounted to above a Half Penny English.

The Third of an As, or Triens, weighing 4 | midft of which there is a moveable Bridge, by Ounces, was worth a Double: The Quarter Part | whose means in the Application of it to the Difor Quadrans, weighed 3 Ounces: The Sixth Part or Sextans, confined of 2 Ounces: The Uncial weighed 1 Ounce.

Silver Moneys.

The Denarius weighing 1 Drahm, was marked with an X that fignified 10 as being 10 Ales, in Value about 7 d. English: The Quinarius, worth Affes: The Sefterrius, or Quarter Part of a Denarius, worth 2 Afes and an Half: The great Seftereius or Seftereium, worth 1000 imali Sefterces, that is about 81, 6s. The Teruncium, weighed the 40th Part of a Silver Denarius, and is in Value one 4th of an As.

Gold Moneys.

Their Gold Money weighed 2 Drams and an had Seven Hills within it. Half: All these Words I thall explain again in their proper Alphabetical Order.

TRIUM-VIRI MONETALES: the Triumvirs of Money were Officers created a little before Cirero's Time, whose Commission was contained in these Five Letters A. A. A. F. F. Are, Auro, Argento, flando, feriundo, for the Coining of Brais, Gold, and Silver Money.

MONETARIUS, a Coiner, twas a Name of Cld for such as made Money, all the Mountain was at first called Sauvainus, because Money of the Romans and old French had the Name of the Perion upon them in full Length. or at least the first Letters thereof: The Triumvirs were formerly Mint-Officers whole Bulinels it was to have Money coined, the Names and Quality of whom may be teen in the Impref-

MONETA; a holy and facred Goddess pictured with a Pair of Scales in one Hand, and a Cornucopia in the other, with their Words, Sacra Moneta, Augustorum & Cafarum nostrorum.

MONETA; this was an Epithet given to Funo, being derived a Monendo, because she gave them Notice when Rome was taken by the Gauls, that they should factifice a whole Sow, or because that during the War against Pyrrbus when the Romans found themselves in great Want of Money, they had Recourse to Juno, who adviled them to be always just in their Actions. and they thould never want. Unto which when they had bound themselves by Oath, they drove Tyrbus out of Italy, and built a Temple to Juno Moneta wherein they laid up the Silver Money of the Commonwealth.

MONOCHORDUM, is an Inftrument wherewith to try the Variety and Proportion of of Mulical Sounds; It was composed of a Rule divided and subdivided into divers Parts, where- Quercetulanus, from the Oak that grew there, in there was a String pretty well extended at and afterwards Calius from one Calius Vibenna, ferent Divisions of the Line, you might find the Sounds were in the fame Proportion to one andther, as the Divitions of the Line cut by the Bridge were: Its also called the Harmonious or Canonick Rule, because it serves to measure the Flats and Sharps of the Sounds: Its held that Pythagoras was the Inventer of the Monochordum.

MONS. A Mountain, 'tis a great Riffing of the Earth above the usual Level of the Ground the most celebrated Mountains in the Poers are Parnassus, called Biceps, or with a double Top. which was the Residence of the Muses: and Mount Olympus, which the Poets took often for Heaven: Mount Atlas was famous among Geographers, whose Name has been borrowed and used for a Collection of the Description of the feveral Parts of the World, as if the Whole had been discovered from the Top thereof. Rome

MONS PALATINUS; Mount Palaine. which was so called either from the Pallemes who with Evander came to dwell thither, or from Palatia Lasinus his Wife, or from Pales the Goddess of Shepherds. Upon this Mountain flood the King's House or Palace, which from thence was called Palasium: Romalus was brought up and looked after Cattle there.

MONS CAPITOLINUS: This Saturn lived there; and afterwards Tarneius from Tarpeia who was there crushed to Death with the Shields of the Sabins; and at laft Capitolinus, à Capite toli, the Head of a Man which was found there as they were digging to lay the Foundation of the Temple of Funiter, furnamed Capitolinus: This was the famonfeit Mountain of them all, because of Jupiter's Temple, which was begun by Tarquinius Priscus, finish'd by Tarquinius Superbus, and dedicated by Horasius Pulvillus: Here it was that they made their Vows and folemn Oaths, where the Citizens ratified the Acts of the Emperors, and where they took the Oath of Allegiance to them, and at last where such as triumphed came to give the Gods Thanks for the Victory they had obtained.

MONS QUIRINALIS, Mount out rival, was at first called Mons Agonius, but after the Alliance that was made between Romalus and Tarius, King of the Sabins, who dwelt there, they named it Quirinalia, from their chief Cary called Cures; and from thence the Citizens of Rome came to be called Quirises, and after the Death of Romulus there was a Temple built here under the same of Quirinus.

MONS CELIUS, was formerly called the Ends thereof upon both the Bridges, in the General of the Tufeans, who posted himself up-line, was so called ab excubin, or Guards which Relations of the Deceased regulated their Joy Remains posted there for fear of the Revolt of the Sabines, of whose Fidelity he was doubtful. It was also called Cespius, Oppius and Septimius, by Reason of some small Hillocks, which it inclosed or hemmed in.

MONS VIMINALIS; took its Name from Oziers that grew uponit; and here was a Temple dedicated to Jupicer Viminalis: It had the Name of Viminem or Faguralia, from a Beech-Tree, which was confecrated to Jupiter Fagutalis.

MONS AVENTINUS, Mount Aventime, took its Name from a King of Alba, named Aventinus, who was buried there as well as Things; Remus and Tailus the Sabine. Diana had a Temple here.

MORBUS: a Difeafe, of whom the Poets make mention as an hurtful Deity, and Virgil places him at the Mouth of Hell;

Pallentes babitant Morbi ----

MORBUS COMITIALIS: the Falling-fickness, when in the Assemblies of the People of Rome, any fell into this Sickness, the Affembly prefently broke up, and therefore it was called Morbus Comitials, because it broke up their Consists or Assemblies.

MORPHEUS; fee after Mortui.

Verse in Virgil,

Multa bonum circa mastantur corpora Morti

Says, that Death is a Goddess, of whom Lucan and Stacius make mention; for which he cites thefe Words of Stacius;

In scopulis Mors arra seder:

And those of Lucan:

Ipfamque vocasam Quam petat à nobis Mortem tibi coge fateri.

black Wings.

their Dead, as being of Opinion, it would be on this Mountain fo, as opportunely to succour | Macrobius, or the Antoninus's: The ancient Per-Romalus in the War he waged against the Sa- fians, as Agashias relates, exposed their Dead to be devoured of Beafts, they believing, that fuch MONS EXQUILINUS, Mount Equi- as continued long entire, were wicked, and the or Sorrow accordingly. See Cadaver, where I have shewed the Way of burying dead Corps, and their Funeral Obsequies; the same may also be feen under Funus.

MORPHEUS; was,according to the Fable, one of the Servants of Steep : Ovid places a Multitude of Dreams under the Empire of Steep, but he makes Three of them to be endued with a much greater Power than the reft, viz. Morpheus, Icelas or Phobeser, and Phantalos: The ift imitates Mankind; the 2d other Animals; and the 3d Mountains, Rivers, and other inanimate

At pater è populo natorum mille suorum Excitat artificem, fimulatoremque figura Morphea, &c.

MOVERE SENATU; is a Phrase to denote one's being turn'd out of the Senate ignominiously, or to be degraded.

MOVERE TRIBU; to remove one from a confiderable Tribe to a meaner.

MOYSES, or Moles; his Father was Ameum, and Mother Focbabed, who put him into an Ark of Bulrushes, that was daubed over with Pitch and Slime, and so exposed him upon the Brink of the Nile, in Compliance with Pharaob's Order, MORS, Death; the Poets made him not in a Place, whither the Daughter of Pharaob, only an existent Being, but also a false Deity, whose Name was Thermutis (according to Fopicturing him like a Skeleton, with Claws, and a | fepbus) was observed to refort to wastr her felf; Sythe in his Hand. Death was honoured by the his Sifter Mary had Orders to flay at a finall di-Lacedemonians, and Servius in explaining that | ftance off, to fee what would become of high the Princess feeing the faid little Cradle floating. caused it to be brought to her, and finding a Child therein of Three Months old, whom the knew to be of a Hebrew Race, by his being circumcifed, the was moved with Compassion, and refolved to fave him: The Sifter coming this ther as by chance, asked her, if the would pleafe to fend her to get a Nurse to suckle him, of that People; to which the Princess agreeing, the immediately ran to the House, and brought his Mother for a Nurle for him. At Three Years end fhe carried him to Thermusia, who adopted him for her Son, and gave him the Name of Mofes, which in the Egyptian Language, fignifies one faved from the Water. Clemens Alexandrinus They make her to be the Daughter of the fays, his Friends had named him foachim, when Night, and Sifter of Sleep; and the fame is he was circumcifed: He was very carefully edudreft in a Robe full of black Stars, as also with cated in Pharaob's Court: and as he was a Perfon of excellent Parts, he became quickly an MORTUI, the Dead; the Romans burnt admirable Proficient in all the Sciences which at that time flourish'd among the Egyptians. The a Benefit to the Soul, to have the Body quickly | Scripture informs us, that he left Pharaob's Court, confumed, and this continued to the Time of when he was Forty Years old, in order to go and

sian abusing an Ifraclise, he killed him, in the Heat of his Zeal: Hereupon fearing the King's chuling rather to be afflicted with the People of ner the holy, great and glorious Name of God Displeasure, he fled into the Desarts of Madian, God, than to possess all the Treasures of Egypt. There he married one of the Daughters of Jethro or Raguel, a Priest, whose Name was Sephora. He lived Forty Years in that Country, and as he was one Day leading his Father-in-Law's Cattle to the Bottom of the Wildernels, towards Mount Horeb, he law a Bush burning with a great Fire, which yet confumed it not and as he was about to draw near unto it, the Lord called him by his Name, and let him know that he had feen the Affliction of his People in Egypt, and that he would by his Means work Deliverance for them : he endeavoured to excule himself upon the Account of his Incapacity and Stuttering; but God to confirm him in it, gave him the Signs of a Rod's being turned into a Serpent, and then re-affuming its former Shape, and of his Hand turning Leprous, and in a moment being reftored to its natural Colour: Then he went to fee for Pharaob, whom he charged from God to let his People go Three Days Tourney into the Wildernels, to offer Sacrifices unto him: But he refused to obey and to let the Hebrews go, notwithstanding, all the Wonders performed by Mofes in his Presence, for he law the Rod which Asron, Mofes his Brother had in his Hand, turned into a Serpent; the Waters of the Nile and all the Springs in Egyps changed into Blood, an innumerable Company of Frogs which covered the Face of the Land, and entred into his very Palace, and the Dust turned into Lice which filled the Air, and extreamly tormented both Men and Beafts: There came Swarms of large Fives thither, which deftroyed whatever they touch'd; a suddain Pelfuence killed all the Cattle of Egypt without hurting those of the Ifraelites; Men and Beafts were ftruck with terrible Boils; a Storm of Hail accompanied with Thunder and Lightning fell over all Egyps which dettroy'd all forts of Beafts and Men that were in the Fields, no other Land being spared but that of Gosben; this Storm was succeeded by the largest Locusts that ever were feen in Egypt, which destroyed all the Grafs, Fruits and Harvest: A thick Darkness covered the whole Land, faving that Part where the Children of Ifrael dwelt; in fhort, a destroying Angel having killed all the First-born of the Egyptians, without sparing Pharach's own Son, the Egyptians profied the Ifraelites to go out of their Country, and to facrifice to their God under the Conduct of Mofes and his Brother

The Rabies affure us, that the Wonders performed by Mofes formerly in Egypt and elfewhere, mere done by means of his Rod, which accord that had lo fad and peculiar a Quality, that it wifit his own Nation, and that finding an Egyp- ing to what they fay, was created by God be. tween the Two Velpers of the Sabbath, that is, on the Evening of the Sixth Day of the World's Creation, and upon which in an wonderful Manwas inscribed, which they call Tetragrammaton, wherefore its faid in the Zoar upon Exodus, which is a Commentary upon the Five Books of Moles. that the Miracles were graven thereon, and that the most holy Name of God was also inscribed: and Fonathan the Son of Uziel in his Targum, that is, in his Paraphrase upon Exodus, relates the same Thing; these are his Words. ' Rebuel (who was feshro himfelf, or his Father, as Rebbi Jonathan feems to take him to be in his 18th Chapter) having understood that Moles had made his Escape from Pharaob, put him in to a deep Ditch, where Sephora his Grand-Daughter fed him for 20 Years, after which he took him out thence. Mofes going one Day into Rebuel's Garden, went to Prayers, and gave God Thanks for defending and delivering him by his own Power, and for having wrought divers Miracles for his fake : And perceiving in the faid Garden a Rod or Staff which God had created between Sun and Sun. that is, on the Eve of the Sabbath, or oth Day of the Creation of the World, whereon the great and glorious Name of God was graved, and by Vertue of which he was one Day to perform great Miracles in Egypt, to divide the Redfea, and to ftrike Water out of the Rock, he presently put forth his Hand, plucked it from the Earth, into which it had been driven, and as it were planted, got it and carried it away with him.

The Sentiments of the Author of this Paraphrase are confirmed from what may be read concerning Aaron's Rod in the Pirke Elieger, which is a Book containing the History of the World to the Time of Gamaliel; and from the Schiffeleib Hakabala which is another History-book or Chronology from the Beginning of the World: But this may be more particularly feen in a very ancient and scarce Commentary, entiruled Medrasch Vaioscha, printed at Constantinople, which clears up what is related in the Chaldee Paraphrase and other Authors whereof I have spoken; for Mojes is there represented giving an Account at large of his Life after this manner.

When I went out of Egypt, I was about 40 Years old and being one Day near unto the Water-pits : Sepbora who was one of Jeibro's Daughters came thither, and finding her to be modest and very handsom, I told her, if she pleafed I would marry her; her Answer confifted of an Account the gave me how her Father used such as sought any of his Daughters in Marriage, which was to carry them to a Tree that was planted in the midst of his Graden presently struck such as came near it dead ; I'is to lay Egypt waste, and to destroy its People; which when I understood, I asked from whence and being thus possest, he all in a Rage took the faid Tree was brought; the answered, That I me and threw me into a deep Pit that was 'God on the very Eve of the first Sabbath after the Creation of the World, created a Rod. which he gave to Adam, Alam left it to Enoch. * Enoch to Noah, Noah to Sem, Sem to Abraham, Abraham to Ifaac, Ifaac to Facob, Facob carried it into Egypt, and gave it his Son Fofeph, after whose Death the Egyptians rifled his House, and finding the faid Rod among the Spoils, they carried it to Pharaob's Court; and Fethro, who was one of the principal Magistrates of Egypt, 'no fooner faw it, but he was defirous to have it, and having stole it away, carried it to his own House: The great Name of God Terragrammaton was graven thereon, with the Explications of it, and the Ten Plagues wherewith 'God afflicted Egypt; and as 'twas all full of Wonders, the same was kept in Ferbro's House, my Father-in-Law, till that going on a Time into his Garden, and holding the Rod in his ' Hand, he fluck it in the Ground, and endeavouring foon after to pull it out, he found it had taken Root, that it bloffomed, and that beides the Flowers, it bore also bitter Al-'monds: He left it there; and by the Means of this Rod, which grew to be a Tree, he tried 'all such as had a Design to marry his Daugh-

'When I was informed of all these Particulars. and found the Shepherds would not let ferbro's Daughters draw Water, I delivered Sephora and her Sifter from the Hands of those rude Fellows, took some Water and gave it their 'Cattle to drink; after which they went towards their Father's House, and I accompanied them. Being come to the House, they went in, and I fraid at the Door, and as they were come back that Day fooner than ordinary, Ferbro asked them the Reason of it; they answered, That a courteous Egyptian had faved them from the Outrages of the Shepherds: When the Daughters had thus acquainted their Father with the Adventure, and told him, that he who had 'delivered them was an Egyptian; he asked 'same time he gave me Money and Sephora, his them, if they had not return'd him Thanks for his Kindness, and bid them call me, saying, make him come in, and let him dine with us. highly efteemed by that People commenting upon The Daughters having performed his Com- the 2d Chapter of Exodus, explains that History 'mand, I went in, cat and drank with him, and in this manner: 'After Moses had been enter-'then with all Submiffion entreated him to give tained by Ferbro, and that he came to know him 'me his Daughter Sephora to Wife; which he to be a Man of much Understanding and deep *promifed to do, provided I could bring to him 'Knowledge, he was defirous to enter into a aRod which was in his Garden; to which I 'agreed, went to fee for the Rod, and when I found it, I plucked it out of the Ground, and 'carried it to him; Jesbro was furprized hereat, and reflecting upon what I had done, he cried 'out and faid, I his is certainly that Prophet, of whom the Seers of Ifract have spoken, who to Sephora, whom he married, but because of

in his Garden.

Sephora was not a little concerned at this Adventure, no more than my felf, and the ftudied at the same time how she might save a 'Man's Life who had obliged her. Hereupon the prayed her Father that he would let her tarry at home to look after the House, and send her Sifters to the Fields, to keep his Cattle: Her Father in answer cold her, Daughter, It shall be so, that thy Sisters shall go and look after the Cattle, but thou shalt tarry here, and take Care of Matters at home. Thus Sephora finding her felf alone, she fed me every Day with the daintieft Victuals, and the same whereof her Father Fethro eat, and that for Seven Years, which was the time I tarried in the faid Pit-But at the End of that time Sephora spoke to her Father in this manner: Father, 'Tis a long time fince you have thrown into this Ditch, that Egyptian who brought the Rod to you from the Place in the Garden, wherein you 'had put it; fuffer now the Pit to be opened, and let us fee what will come of it; for, if he be dead, let his Carcase be taken away, that ' your House may not be polluted, and if he be still alive, he must be a holy Man : Feshro made answer, Daughter, You have spoke well; Can you ftill remember what his Name was? Yes, Father, faid the, his Name was Mofes, the Son of Amram: Jethro at the fame time commanded the Pit to be opened, and called me twice, Moses, Moses; I answered him, and prefently he took me out, kiffed and told me; Bleffed be God, who hath preserved thee for Seven Years in this Pit: I bear him wirness this Day, that he has Power to kill, and Power to make alive: I will teftifie aloud, and everywhere, that thou art a right good Man, that thou shalt one Day lay Egypt waste, that thou art the Person who shall drown the Egyptians in the Sea, and by thy means Pharaob and his Army shall run the same Fate: And at the Daughter, to Wife.

Abarbinel, a fewish Doctor, whose Works are nearer and more particular Alliance with him, because of the great Wisdom he had observed in his Conversation, and gave his Consent he should live with him: And this is that whick Moses lays in Exodus: And Moses consented to ' live with Jethro, not for the Love he bore Fff

"Jetbro's Wisdom. It is, says he, the Opinion | etiam delestum rei militaris cansa babere, ac miliof our Doctors, fince they fay in the Commentary, that the Rod of God was planted in the giofum oft. "Garden, and that no Manicould pull it from thence but Moses, and that for the faid Reason the Myrtle-Tree, which was consecrated to her: ho took Sephora to Wife; for by it they meant! "the Tree of Life, which was in the midft of the Garden, that is, the Wildom of Moles, upon for the Goddels Murtia upon Mount Aventine, the Account of which he was honoured with as to a Goddels of Idlenels, who made People the Gift of Prophecy. Fetbro gave also to idle and lazy. " Mofes his Daughter Sephora to Wife, by reason of his wondrous Wildom. Mofes lead the People of God into the Wilderness, and talked divers times with God: He died upon Mount Nebo, from whence God had shewed him the they called Sminsbeus; because they once gnaw. Land of Promise, he being then 120 Yearsold. The Pagans made him to be their Bacchus, as and this was the Reason why they gave to Apollo you may see under that Word. Numerinus says, the Epithet of Smyntheus: And Strabs speaking. Plato and Pythagoras had drawn their Doftrine of the Statue of this God, fays he had a Rat out of his Books, and that the first of them was at his Feet. The Worshipping of Rats appears the Moses of Athens: He is ancienter than all yet to be more ancient by the Authority of some the Greek Writers, and even than their Mercurim Trismegistus. Tatian, who was one of those Ancients that Apologized for the Christian Redigion, against the Persecutions of the first King of Egypt, and Vulcan's Priest, having not Centuries, tell us, That Moses was before the Heroes, and even the Gods themselves of the Greeks, and that the Grecians wrote nothing Pelusium, where he pitched his Camp, and that good, but what they took from our Scriptures. and that their Defign by partly corrupting them, was no other than that themselves might be entituled Authors. Theodoresus fays, Mojes was ancienter by a Thousand Years than Orpheus, and that he was like the Ocean or Head-spring of

has fet down a Canaanitifb Poet's Song of Victory. MULCIBER, one of the Names given to Vulcan, being derived from Mulceo, because Daughters of Jupiter and Mnemofyne; that some the Fire foftens and qualifies all Things.

Theology, from whence they took their Origin.

as so many Streams, and whereunto the most ancient Philosophers had Recourse: The Learned are agreed, that the Two ancientest Writers of the World, whose Writings are transmitted unto us, are Mojes and Homer, and that Mojes li-

MUNDUS PATENS: The open World; a Solemnity performed in a little Temple or Chappel that was of a round form like the World, and dedicated to Dis and the Infernal Gods: it was opened but thrice a Year, viz. on the Day after the Vulcanalia, the 4th of Odober and the 7th of the Ides of November, during which Days the Romans believed Hell was open; wherefore they never offered Battle on those Days, lifted no Soldiers, never put out to Sea, nor married, according to Varro, as Macrobius witnesses, L. Saturn, C. 16. Mundus cum paset, Deorum tristium atque Inferûm quasi janua pa- dy; to Euterpe the Use of the Flagelet, and other

MURTIA, a Surname of Venus, taken from She was formerly called Myrtea, and corruptly Murtia. Feltus says there was a Temple built

MUS; a Rat, Mouse; the Phrygians held. Rats in great Veneration, according to Clemens Alexandrinus: Polemo relates, fays he, that the Trojans gave Religious Adoration to Rats, which ed to pieces the Bow-strings of their Enemies: Authors: Herodorus relates, that after Senacherib, King of Affyria, had conquered Aha, he made War upon the Egyptians; and that Seibe. Troops enough to defend him, yet putting his Confidence in the Gods, he advanced as far as a dreadful Multitude of Rats, went into the Enemy's Camp by Night, and gnawed their Bows, Arrows, and Shield-Hrings to pieces; infomuch, that next Day finding themselves without Arms. they haftily retreated with the Loss of many of their Soldiers. Herodosus adds, That he had feen the Statue of King Setho, put up in Vulcan's Temple, holding a Rat in his Hand, with this Inscription; Les him that looks upon me, learn to reverence the Gods. The Egyptians in their Hieroglyphicks were wont to point out the Deftruction of somewhat, by a Rat which eats and dewed several Ages before the other; Moses wrote stroys all it can, as may be seen in the first much in Verle, and in the Book of Numbers he Book of Horus Apollo.

MUSA, the Muses; Diodorus Siculus informs us, That the most Famous of the ancient Authors agreed, that the Muses were the reckon'd them to be no more than Three, viz. Mneme, Aade, and Melete; that is, Memory, Singing and Meditation: But that Homer and Hefiod allowed of Nine, whose Names the last Author has also given us, viz.

Clioque, Euterpeque, Thaliaque, Melpomeneque, Terpsichoreque, Eratoque, Polybymniaque, Ura-Calliopeque; bas una alias supereminet omnes.

To Clio they attributed the Invention of History; Tragedy to Melpomene; to Thalia, Comeses, propseres non modo pralium committ, verum | Wind-mulick; to Terpficore, the Harp; the Lyre and Lute, to Erato; to Calliope, Heroick Verse; ans, to whom afterwards great Honours were gito Urania, Aftrology; and Rhetorick to Polybymnia. Diodorus lays afterwards, that the Word Mufe comes from wier, which fignifies to reach hidden Things, and fuch as are above the Capacity of the Vulgar; after which he gives a Reason for the several Names given to the Nine Muses. Its manifest that all these Names are Greek, and that they have all of them a Relationto the Nature and Agreeableness of Musick and Poetry; which has very much inclined Men to believe, that the same is purely a Greek Invention, and that 'tis no other than a Moral Genealogy, like unto that which sometimes they make of Vertues and Vices; and the Name of their Mother, which is Memory, is also a Proof

However, this very same Historian outs Mne-hereof.

molme among the Titanes, and makes the Nine Muses to accompany Ohris in his Military Expedirions, when he gives an Account of the Theology of the Egyptians: Risus amator erat Osiru, & mufica choreifque gaudebat. Ided Muficorum aymen circumducebat, in quo novem erant Virgines, canendi scientia prastantes, &c. erudita, Graci Musas vocant, quarum prases Apollo, unde Musagetes diffus. Thus you see the Origin of the Muses of Greece laid in Egypt, tho' Greece gives them proper Names, and to each a particular Function: Egypt is deprived of them, and they are natural z'd in divers Parts of Greece, whether the same were Fountains, Woods, Mountains or Cities. Diodorus also makes the Muses to accompany Bacchus in his Expeditions. It may be farther conjectured, that the Name of Muse came originally from Phanicia, feeing the Word Moufor fignifies Instruction and Learning. There are fome Criticks who believe there were no more than Three Muses at first, to whom Mount Helicon was confecrated, and that there having been Three Statues erected to each of them, it was given out there were Nine of them; that Pierius, in Baotia, confecrated his Nine Daughters to them, which made their Names to be common to them. Plusarch in his Sympofiaes, a little before the End thereof, treats of the Muses: 'Tis a meer Allegory, wherein he applies the Nine Muses, either to Nine several Sciences, or to as many Coelestial Globes, in order to unite them all into one Harmony. Clemens Alexandrinus read in some pro-phane Authors, that which he relates concerning Macar, King of Libya; who being continually jangling with the Queen his Wife, their Daughter Megaclo bought Nine Maid fervants, put them to learn Musick, and to play upon Infruments, that to by the Melody of their Confort, the might divert the peevish Humour of her Father. This ingenious Piety in her had the defired Success, and the erected Nine Cotumns in Honour of these Nine Female Musici-

ven. The Poets represent the Muses unto us. very beautiful and young, adorned with Garlands of Flowers, and made their Residence to be on Mount Parnassus, and Helicon with Apollo: To them they confectated feveral Pountains, as that called Hippoerene, or the Fountain of the Horse Pegasus; and among Trees, the Palm, and Lawrel.

MUS

MUSCA, a Fly; the Poets feigned this Infect was formerly a Female Musician, and the Moon's Rival, in respect to the Amours of Endymion. but because she came too often to sing and play about him, when he was affeep, the jealous Moon changed her into a Fly; and hence it is, that the always infefts fuch as are afleep, and especially young People, not out of Hatred, but Love to them, to get some Kiffes of them, which fmart a little, as those do of passionate Lovers. There was formerly a Lady of this Name that made very good Verses, and a Courtizan of Athens, who was reproached for having pricked her Lovers till the Blood ran: Lucian, of whom I have had this, has writ a little Treatife, in the Praise of a Fly, which I have inserted in this 'The Fly, says he, in respect to Insects is not fo big, but she is as little in Comparison of a Bee; but it may be said, that for the Delicateness of her Wing she does as much excel that of other Birds, if it be lawful to reckon her of that Number, as Silk does common Thread or

Wool; for her Wing is not covered with Feathers, but with a fine Crape like the Grashoppers, and when you look upon her in the Sun, fhe shines with many Colours, like a Peacock's

Tail, or a Pigeon's Neck, the does not flie by moving her Wings as Birds do, but by sudden Motions or Rebounds like Locusts, but yet is so flexible as to turn about in an infrant; and the Noise she makes in her Flight is not so harsh as that of Wasps, but is like the Musick of a Flutecompared with Hautboys or Trumpets; fhe has a large Eye, and a Flower upon her Head, which is hard and shining, as if it were made of Horn; and her Head is not fixed to her Body. in fuch manner as that of Grashoppers is, but the holds it to by the means of her Neck, and flirs it any way; her Body is of a heap, her Legs long, and not short like those of the waips; her Belly is covered with thining Lames, like unto an Antique Cuirass; she does not prick with a Sting as Bees do, but with a little Trunk that ferves her instead of a Mouth, and which has a kind of Tooth at the end of it, wherewith she bites and sucks both Blood and Milk, without doing much harm: She has fine Legs, whereof the Two fore ones ferve her instead of Hands, for she cleans her self with them, and conveysher Food to her Mouth as a Man does: She accompanies Man all her Life Fff2 time, and taftes of every Thing he eats, except Oil, which is a deadly Poilon to her; her 'Life is not long, but pleasant; 'tis not a little Dexterity will ferve her to avoid the Webs of the Spider, that every where lays Ambuscades for her, into which her Boldness sometimes doth precipitate her. Homer compares her with the most Valiant of his Heroes, and he cannot forbear to praise and magnifie her by the Similies he uses in several Parts of his Poem: Sometimes he describes her Flight when she Vigilancy, wherewith Minerva defended Mene-'laus: In another place he calls her gentle and good, because she has no Sting, and that her Wounds are not dangerous, as those of Wasps and Bees are: Shall I speak of her Power, which is to great, that Men cannot defend themselves from her? her Love is free and heavenly, for ' she flies in the Air coupled with her Male; and 'tis also faid the is of both Sexes, as Hermopbrodites are: She has this Advantage, that having but little to live upon, the always finds the Cloth laid; and it must be said that for her fake, it is that the Cows give Milk, and the

'Tables, and taftes their Victuals.

MUSEA, MUSIA & MUSIVA, Pavements of Mosaick Work, which represented natural Gronos: This Name was given to thole forts of Pavements, because ingenious Works were attributed to the Muses, and that the Muses and Sciences were represented therein; perhaps those publick Buildings which were appointed for the Assemblies of learned Men, called Musea, were adorned with these sorts of Work; and these Musea's were built in divers Places: In Athens there was a famous little Hill of this Name, I the Great; the Spartans banish'd him their City, where the Poet Mulem was buried; and ar Tragen in Peloponnesses there was a Temple dedicated accustomed to use any other than the Diatonick to the Muses, called Musea for that Reason, which was designed for the Use of learned Men, where Pithem had taught Rhetorick, and wrote a Book upon that Subject, which Paujanias fays, he had seen: But one of the most famous Musea's was that at Alexandria, of which Philoftratus and Dio Chrysoftom make mention, and wherein Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian made at the divers learned Men were maintained at the Publick Charge. Charge of the Government: In all Probability it was erested by that curious King of Egypt Pso- Goddess, or Goddess of Silence, who was thought lomy Philadelphus, to whom belonged that admi- to have been the Daughter of the River Alrable Library of which so many Authors make mo, and called Lalaria, because of her much mention, and who caused the Bible to be transla- Babling: This Name she received for discoverted into Greek by the Septuagint. The Empeling to Juno the Amours of Jupiter and Jujurna, ror Claudius who would have himself thought which incensed Jupiser, so that he cut out her to be learned, built also another Musea in the Tongue, to put her for ever in mind of her taid City, which was called the Muses of Claudius, Fault, and ordered Mercuy to carry her into as Suesonius does reftifie.

MUSICA, Musick, a Science which teaches how to affect the Ear with agreeable Notes, and regulates Harmony; or elfe a Science whereby a Disposition is made of grave and sharp Sounds porportionable to one another, and separated by just Intervals, where with Sence and Reason are fatisfied: Some attribute the Invention to Apolle, and others to Mercury: The Ancients made fix forts of Musick, viz. Rhythmical, Metrical, Inftrumental, Poetical and Mimical, which contained the Rules of Dancing, Reciting, Playing upon goes in Company towards some Vessel full of Instruments, Versisying, Gestures of the Actors: Milk, or to some of the spilt Blood of the Sa- and Harmonical, which contained Rules for Vocrifices; another while he makes use of her cal Mutick: These the Things being the Subject Example, when he speaks of the Diligence and of the fix Kinds of Musick according to the Division Porphyrie makes of them upon Ptolomy's Harmonicon.

Ariftoxenus the Philosopher, and Ariftonle's Disciple has left us Three Books concerning the Elements of Harmonical Mulick: These Books made him the Author of a Sect in Musick called from him the Ariftoxenians, who opposed that of the Pribagoreans: They differed in that the laft in Order to judge of Tones had Regard to nothing but the Realons of Proportion, whereas the Former were of Opinion, it was requifite to join the Judgment with the Ear, whole Part it is principally to regulate fuch Things as belong Bees Honey : She fits down the first at Kings to Musick. Aristoxenus divided Harmonical Mufick into Seven Parts, and they are Kinds, Intervals, Sounds, Systems, Tones or Modes, Transpositions and Melopy. The Kinds were Chromatick, Diatonick and Enarmonick: The Chromatick abounds in Tones, and was thus called because the Greeks diftinguished it by such Characters as were of a Colour that they called Chroma: The foft b belonged to this Chromatick Kind, Boatius and Zarlini after him, faid, that this Chromatick Kind was invented by Timotheus the Milesian in the Time of Alexander because this Mulick was too soft, and they not fort; The Diatonick contained but Two Tones, the Greater and the Leffer, and Half the Greater Tone. The Enarmonick is a Way of foftning the Voice, wherewith the Ancients were fo charmed that they neglected the Rest.

MUSIVARII, Mofaick Works, which the

MUTA or TACITA DEA; the dumb Hell, as being unworthy to fee the Light: In tited them in Respect to their Silence by reason bears Myrch: She was the Mother of Admis. ofher Tongue's being cut out, or because she rasthe Mother of the Lares, who were accounted to be the Genii or Guardian Angels of Men during their Lives.

ovid describes a pleasant Ceremony that used m be practifed upon this Occasion for the Preventing of Slanders, and fays, That an old Woman furrounded with a great many young Girls, offered Sacrifice to the Goddels Muta, and put Three Grains of Frankinscence with Three of her Fingers into a little Hole, having at the fame Time Three black Beans in her Mouth: Then the takes the Head of an Image, which the befmears with Pitch, and makes Holes therein with a Brass Needle, then throws it into the Fire and covers it with Mint, pouring some Wine thereon, of which the gives fome to the Girls to wherewith she makes her self drunk, and so fends them Home, faying, She has ftopt the Mouths of Slanderers. Fast. 2. V. 571.

Ecce anus in medi is relidens annofa puellis, Sacra facit Tacita: vix tamen ipfa tacet : Et digitu tria tura tribus fub limine ponit, Quà brevie occultum mus fibi fecit iter. Tum cantata tenet cum rbombo licia fusco, Et septem nigras versat in ore fabas : Quodque pice aftringis, quod acu trajecit abena, Oblutum mentha torret in igne caput: Vina quoque instillat : vini quodiunque relictum est Aut ipsa aut comites, plus temen ipsa bibit. Hoftiles linguas, inimicaque vinximus ora, Dicit discedens, ebriaque exit anus.

MYAGROS, otherwise called Achor and Beelzebuth by the Hebrews, the God of Flies, to whom the Eleans offered Sacrifice that he might drive away the Flies. See Acbor. MYODES, see Acbor.

MYRINUS, an Epithet given to Apollo and taken from the City of Myrina in Eolia where he was worshipped.

MYRMIDONES, the Myrmidons; a People of Thessaly, who followed Achilles to the Ants, which at the Request of King Eacus were changed by Jupiter into Men, because the Greek Word wipung fignifies an Ant.

MYRON, an excellent Statuary, who amongst others of his Pieces made a Cow of Copper fo like unto the Life that the Bulls took her tobe fo; and this has rendered him famous among the Poets and all the Ancients.

anducting of her thither he was charmed with | MYRR'HA; the Daughter of Cinirus King her Beauty, and enjoyed her, to whom the bore of Cyprus, who falling in Love with her Father, Two Children which were named Lares: The deceived him by the Artifice of her Nurse to Amans offered Sacrifice to this Goddel's for the gratifie her Luft: Cinirus coming to know it, en-Prevention of Slanders, and joyned her Festival deavoured to kill her, but she fled into Arabia, with that of the Dead, either because she imi- where she was transformed into that Tree which > MYSTRUM; a kind of Measure among the Greeks that held about a Spoonful.

Is the Thirteenth Letter of the Alphabet, and a Liquid Conforant which is called Tinniens, because of its having a clearer and plainer Sound than others, the same sounding against the Roof of the Mouth: And this appears in that it has the same Pronunciation in Manlius as in the Word An, a Year, in Menses, as in en: Tho' fometimes it lofes much of its Strength in particular Words, and forms a midling Sound bedrink, but referves the best Part for her felf, tween it felf and the G, which gave the Greeks Occasion to change the N into I before these Greek Letters γ, κ, χ, ξ, as αγκλΦ for arykhΦ; tho' many are of Opinion, that this was the Transcriber's Faults in lengthning out the v too much, and making a v of it: The Latins had also somewhat of the like Nature in their Language, for they put Two gg together . as the Greeks did, writing Aggulus for Angulus, &c. The Greeks often changed this Letter into an L in the Midst of Words, as Manal G was put for Manlius, or elfe they left it out altother, as 'Oprior @ for Horsenfius; which made Lambinus fallly believe, that the true Name of that Roman Orator was Horsefius contrary to the Authority of Ancient Books and Infcriptions; besides which we find by agreat many Examples, that it was usual with the Greeks to leave out the N. when it came not in the End of Words.

This Letter was also sometimes loft in the Latin, as when from Abscindo they made the Preterperfect Tenfe abscidi: The N moreover had an Affinity with the R, from whence we find A:neus put for Æreus, Cancer for Carcer, Carmen from Cano, Germen for Genimen according to Fofeeb Scaliger upon Varro: And N was put for S, whence it is that Ceffores was found for Cenfores Trojan War: The Poets feigned that they were in Varro, and Sanguin for Sanguen. Namong the Ancients was a Numeral Letter, fignifying 900, and when a Line was drawn above it, it implied 20000. N and L being put together, with the Lawyers fignified as much as non liquer, the Caufe did not yet appear clear enough for Sentence to

> NAIADES, they were falle Goddesses which the Heathens believed did prefide over

Fountains and Rivers; The Poets often make | ed the Paffage of the Sea, which till then had mention of them. It's a Word that comes from váus so flow.

NAPÆÆ, were false Goddesses which the Pagans believed did prefide over Forests and Hills: In the mean while Servius in explaining this Verse in Virgit.

Faciles venerare Napaus, lays, That the Napaa, or the Naiades were the Nymphs of Fountains; Its plain that the Word is derived from the Hebrew Nouph or Noup. And the faid Servius upon another Line in Virgit, fays, That the Napaa were the Nymphs of Fountains, and the Nereides of the Seas: In the mean time, if the Greek Etymology vann be given this Word, we must say that the Napae are the Nymphs of Forests.

NARCISSUS the Son of Cephifus a River in Baoria, and of Lyriope the Daughter of Oceamus, who was exceeding beautiful; His Parents having one Day consulted the Prophet Tirefias concerning the Fate of their Son, he answered, That if he lived, he ought not to fee his own Face, which they did not at first understand: He was courted by all the Nymphs of the Country because of his handsome and good Mein, but he flighted them all, and even made the Nymph · Escho languish and die for Love of him, insomuch that fhe had nothing left her but a weak Voice, her Body being transformed into a Rock: The Gods were not willing to let fuch dildainful Arrogance go unpunished, and therefore one Day as he returned weary and faint from Hunting, he ftopt upon the Brink of a Well to quench his Thirft, and seeing his own Face in the Water he grew to desparately in Love therewith, that he wafted away upon the Place with Love and Languishment; but the Gods in Compassion to him changed him into a Flower of his Name. Paulanias in his Baorica contradicts this Fable, and fay., That Narciffus was in Love with his Sifter that was born after him, and that when the died, he also pined away and perish'd.

NAVIS, a Ship, its a Veilel built with high Sides in order to fail upon the Sea: Many are of Opinion that Fanus was the first Inventer of Shipping, because the Figure of one was impresfed upon the Reverse of the most ancient Coins of the Greeks of Sicily and Italy, according to Atheneus: And Phadrus, L. 4. F. 6. speaks of the first Ship in this manner, 'I wish to God the Thessa-" lian Ax had never hewn down the lofty Pines growing on the Sides of the Forest of Peleon, and that fubtil Argus who was defirous to trace out a hold Course and such as was exposed to the Dangers of apparent Death upon the Wa-'ters, had not built a Ship by the Art and Di-continued inacceffible, and has been fatal to the Greeks and Barbarians : What think you of this fhort Relation? Doubtless you will tell me. that the same is impertinent and fally ground. ed, because Minos long before the Argonistic had furmounted the Violence of the Egen Sea covering the same with a great Fleet.

The most famous Ships of old are reckoned that of Prolomy Philopator, that was 280 Cubits long, 38 broad, and 48 high, and 54 from the Top of the Poop down to the Water: She carried 400 Rowers, 400 Seamen, and 3000 Soldiers: That which he built to fail upon the Nile. was Half a Furlong long, and 30 Cubits broad: But this was nothing to Hiero's Ship, that was built by the Direction of Archimedes: There was as much Timber used in it, as was designed for 60 Gallies; and the same was so well contrived on the Infide that every Rower, Seaman, Soldier and Passenger had a Cabin for himself: There were in it moreover several Halls to eat in, Rooms, Walks, Galleries, Gardens, Fiftponds, Stables, Kitchins, Mills, a Temple for Venme, Baths and Council-Chambers: Befides which, it had an Iron Rampart, and Towers, Two at the Head and as many in the Stern, the other being on the Sides with Walls and Baffions, whereon might be feen feveral Warlike Engines. and among the rest one that threw a Stone of 200 Pound Weight, or an Arrow of 12 Cubits long to the Distance of 600 Paces; with many other ftrange Things of which Atheneus makes NAVIUS furnamed Accius, was a famous Augur who lived in the Time of Tarquinius Prifcus; its faid of him that being minded in the King's Presence to give Authority to his Predictions, he cut a Stone in two with a Razor. See Accius.

NAULUM, this was Money put into the Mouth of a Person deceased at Rome, to pay Charon the Ferryman for his Passage, and this Piece was to be of the current Coin of the Emperor that then reigned, which gave People afterwards an Opportunity to know when fuch an one died.

NAUMACHIA; Sea-fights, which were the fineft Shews the Ancients had; for Nature and the Elements gave way to the Art and Inventions of Men : Julius Cafar having found out a convenient Place on the Banks of the Tiber, and near enough to the City, called Coderra, as Suetonius fays, caused the same to be cleansed and excavated, wherein he presented the People with the Diversion of a Sea-fight: There Tyrian and Egyptian Ships fought; and this kind of Shew was so new, that it drew Spectators thither from all Parts of the World. Among these Sea-fights may be comprehended the fantaftical Actions of rection of Palles: This Ship, I say, first open- Caligula who built a Bridge upon Two Rows of together, that reached | difagreeable to what the Scripture fays concerne from Baia as far as Putcoli, infomuch that those Two Towns in the Territories of Rome, which by sa and Nature were separated from each other 2600 Paces, were hereby joined together; and richly accounted, rid feveral Times backwards and forwards upon the faid Bridge the first Day. h his Side: Next Day he appear'd in an Habethat was less Warlike, and rode to and fro afew Times in a Chariot drawn by Two state-WHorfes, being followed by a great many Perfors of Quality, who are named in the Hiftory.

As for his Successor, he undertook a real Seaficht upon the Lake Fucinus; he made a Line of a Dozen Ships to fight against as many of the opposite Side, the one being Rhodians and the other Tyrians. They were animated to fight by an Enginearose out of the Water with his Company: He had the Curiofity to make the Comatants pass before him, who faluted him with thefe Words. 'Sir, cried they, receive the Safon, Ave, Imperator, morituri te salutant. To whom he gave no other Answer than, Avete vos. Neto also diverted the People with a Navalfeht, after he had first divided the Mountain which separates the Lake Fucinus from the Riwar Lyra: He fitted out Gallies in Three or Four Lines and put 19000 Men aboard them to fight. they called Arbenians, and the other Party Sy-

NEBO, its a Deity mentioned in Isaiab the Prophet, which prefides over Prophefie, accordthey had made a God.

With: Plate makes her to be the Mother of the NECROMANTIA; Negromancy; an Art by which Communication is held with the Devil and the Dead: The Pythonissa, or Witch d Endor, in the Scripture, made Samuel appar unto Saul by the Art of Negromancy.

NECTAR, the Drink of the Gods, according Nimrod: For he was the first Inventer of War, and of an Empire established by Force of Arms: Thus Nimrod's Hunting ended in War, and the Effect thereof proved the Foundation of the first Empire in the World, that began ap Babylon; which makes the Description given of Nimrod, to be very like unto that of Mars. It laying a Crown on his Head, an Ax upon his was Belus, according to all our prophane Ausiddle-bow, his Shield on his Arm, and a Sword thors, that laid the first Foundation of the Allerrian Empire; and 'twas Nimrod that did it according to a plain Text in Genefis; from whence it follows that Nimrod must be the same with Belus: In short, Mars being no other, according to Diodorus Siculus, than he who first began Wars and Battles, its very probable that Belus or Nimrod was the Person whom the Heathers worshipped by the Name of Mars; and if the Chronicle of Alexandria fays, that Nimrod the Founder of Babylon was transformed into the the Trumpets of a Triton, who by the Help of | Constellation, called Orion; its likely the Reason might be, because Orion was formerly an Hunter as well as Nimrod. Bochartus is of Opinion. That Nimrod was rather the Bacebus of the Babylonians: Nimrod was the Son of Chus; Bar-'hatation of those who come to diefor your Diver- Chus has the same Import as the Son of Chus in Hebrew: The Letter R being often omitted by the Hebrews in the middle of Words. Bacchus might have been formed of Barghus: Nimred comes near to the Word Aimra in Chaldee, which fignifies a Tiger; whence it was that Bacchus was covered with a Tiger's Skin, and had Tigers to draw his Chariot. Bacchus his Victories in the Butthe most remarkable of all the Sea-fights and Indies may represent those of Belus or Nimrod. which is most extolled by Historians and Poets, in the Empire of Babylon and the East. The same withat of Titus and Domitian: For here were Author says elsewhere, That the Fable of Au-3000 Fighting Men on both Sides, one of whom piter may be applied to the History of Nimred. who rebelled against his Father Saturn, that is, Noab: for Nimrod in Hebrew comes from Marad. which fignifies to rebel.

NEMEA; a Forest in Achaia, where the ing to St. Ferom, who has no other Proof for it People of Argos were wont to celebrate their but the Signification of the Word: The Chal- Plays in Honour of Hercules, who had killed a less were much given to Divination, and Gro- Lion in the faid Forest; and this made him take the fays with great Likelihood of Truth, that the Surname of Nemens. There are some Auhe was some Wizzard or Aftrologer, of whom thors who attribute the instituting of these Plays to have been in Honour of Archemorus, the Son NECESSITAS; Necessity; was a Heathen of Lycurgus, who died with the Stinging of a Ser-Deity, which accompanied Man from his very pent: The Crown which was bestowed on the Conquerors at these Games, was made of Ashbranches and the Judges were in Mourning.

NEMESIS; this Goddess was she who particularly affected to punish and humble the Proud; the Persians despising the Greeks, and so having fitted up Marble in order to the Erecting of Trophies of a Victory, which they had not yes won, when the Grecians defeated them at Mang to the Fable.

NEMBROD; Nimrod; Vossius thinks him to be fet up a Monument for the Goddess Namesis, as the Mars of the Pagans; and Diodorus Siculus | Paulanias relates. This Author makes Oceanus represents Mars in such a manner as is not very to be the Father of this Goddess, and he is of Opinion, that it was not the main Ocean, that was meant, but a River of that Name in F. thispia; but 'is more likely that it was the true Ocean, from whence the Poets deduce all the Gods. He makes her also to be the Mother of Helen, by which no other is intimated but the Divine Displeasure, which suffered the extraordinary Beauty of the faid Lady, to be as it were the Torch that kindled the Flames of War between Europe and Afia, with Loffes and incredible Mortifications to both fides. Laftly, He shys, that the Statues of Nemelis at Smyrna had Wings to make her the more like unto Cupid; because she very often made those feel her Severities, whose Obduracy Love could not subdue, and the which proceeded from nothing but Pride. Strabo makes mention of the Temples of Nemefis, who was also called Ramnusia.

The Egyptians painted her having her Throne upon the Moon, that so she might observe the Actions of Men. When the Romans went for the Army, they facrificed to her, and gave the People a Shew of the Gladiators; and when they returned victorious they rendered her Thanks for the Revenge she had taken upon their Enemies. Pleto L. A. de Leg. favs in plain Terms, that Nemefis is the Angel of Revenge, Omnibus prapofita est Nemesis juditit angelus, actionum Omnium consideranix. This Philosopher has faid what the Poets and Historians would fay; that there is an Eternal Justice who severely punishes the Proud, and who has Angels to be the Exe- Complaint. The Lamentations of Ferens areno cutioners of her Wrath; Artemidorus has the thing else but Nenia's upon the Destruction of same Idea of this Goddess as Plato, which is no the Fewish Monarchy, and the City of Jerusalen, thing else but the same Justice, from whom the which he bewails like a Man that is dead. New Good ought to expect all forts of Kindnesses and Favours; and from whom on the Contrary the Wicked can promife to themselves nothing but presently as soon as the Party expired, as it ap-Chaftenings and Punishments: The Romans also worshipped this Goddess, but gave her no Name fundia eft, said the Chief of the Synagogue to the in their Language, as Pliny fars : Nemefis, que Dea Latinum nomen ne in Capitolio quidem invents: and of all their mournful Mulick had already and again elsewhere; Alias Gracam Nemesim in- begun their Lamentations. The Nenia's did not alvocantes cum ob id Roma fimulachrum in Capitolio ways consist of mean Verles; for those made by eft, quamvis Latinum nomen non fit. But no Body has better exprest the Nature and Power, and of feremy upon ferufalem, are compleat Pieces, formed a truer idea of this Goddess than Ammianus Marcellinus, who yet does not give her any Latin Name, tho' he does Two in Creek, viz. Adraftea and Nemefis; of whom he gives a Description rather like a Philosopher, or a Divine than an Historian. L. 14. He informs us Honey: They burnt all forts of Wood upon this that 'vis the who railes up the Just and punishes the Wicked, that the tumbles down the Proud. and makes a just Mixture of Prosperity and Adverilty, gives Specels to our Undertakings or dif-

an Eternal Wildom. But the' the Lains had no proper Name in their Language to express this Goddess by, yet | Calves or by Horses whose nether Parts were the Poets have not forgot to speak of her, as Ifishy: His Wife was Ampbitrite whom he obdoes Claudian :

Sed Dea qua nimiis obstat Rhamnusia vois. Ingemuit flexitque rotam.

Again, it appears by some Verses of the Poets that the Name of Rhamnufia came from the Place where this Goddess was worshipped: The same being Rhamnus in Attica, where there was a Temple erected to her; and as for the Name of Adrastea, Strabo says, it came from King Adraftus, who dedicated a Temple to her: Calliftbenes Adrasteam ab Adrasto rege denominaran ait, qui primus Nemest templum posuit. And for this Purpose he recites the Verles of Antimachus the Poet: Hic facris colitur Dea & Adraftea vocatur, primus illi aram condidit Adraftus ad amnem

NENIA; this Word fometimes fignifies a Toy or Trifle, and other whiles Lamentations and mournful Tunes, fung at the Burying of the Dead: The Word comes from a trifling Play among Children, called Nenia, which was much used by those of Rome, and wherein he that succeeded beft was made King:

Rofcia, die fodes, melior lex, an puerorum Nenia, qua regnum rette facientibus offett. Hor. Ep. I.L. I.

But the Nenia for the Dead is derived from a Hebrew Word, that fignifies Lamentation or is not Greek; for the Greeks called mournful Songs Episedia, or Threni. The Nenia's began pears from the Golpel it felf: Filia mea modb &-Son of God,, and yet the Singers of the Nenies David upon the Death of Saul and Fonsiban, and and very elegant.

NEPHALIA, a Sacrifice and Feaff of the Greeks, called the Feaft of Sober Men, at which the Athenians offered to the Sun and Mooh, to Aurora and Venus, a Lrink made of Water and Occasion, except the Vine and Fig-tree.

NEPTUNUS, Neptune, one of Saturn's Sons and Jupiter's Brother, who for his Share had the Dominion of the Sea affigned him; inappoints our Defigns according to the Counfels of Itead of a Scepter they gave him'a Tritent, and for a Chariot a great Sea-shell, which they make to be drawn either by Whales and Seatimed by the means of a Dolphin, in Acknow- | as Dionyfius of Hallicarnaffue fays, and appointed a Blow of his Trident he made to come out of the Earth, when he was in Dispute with Minerwho should give Name to Cacropia, which as afterwards called Athens from Minerva: Beintengaged in a Conspiracy against his Brother faiter, he was forced to fly with Apollo to Laomelon, where he helped to build the Walls of Iny, tho' he was so unhappy as not to be paid firhis Labour, They make Negtune to be the

Tuque, ô cui prima frementem Endit equum Tellus, magno percussa tridenti, Neptune. Georg. L. 1.

Servin favs, that Neptune was also called Equeller, because he made a Horie come out of the Earth, that he might have the Honour to give Name to the City of Askens, tho' Minerva pre-Horse was nothing but a Ship, the Swiftness whereof a Horse does imitate, and which is under the Protection of Neptune: The Fable also fgaifies perhaps nothing elie but the two Things bated to Nepsune.

the Reverse of the Silver Medalls of Augustus ad Vespatian, on which there are these abbrevia: wd Words Neps. Red. Nepsuno reduci; these Emperors intimating hereby their rendring monthe Sea, holding his Trident in one Hand, alleaning with the other Arm upon such a Vellel as the Gods of the Rivers were wont to b: He is to be seen likewise mounted in a Chanadrawn by two Horses, as he is also sitting a Dolphia, holding Victory in his Rightand, which puts two Crowns upon his Head, and is Trident in the Left: When the Romans and Guest gave Neptune Thanks for the Victories by obtained by Sea; they represented him on the one Side with his Trident, and on the other flood Victory upon the Stern of a Ship. The Romans built a Temple to Nepunus Equefter, ledgement of whose Kindness he placed him a- a Festival for him, called Consualia, wherein mong the Stars near into Capricorn. He taught they crowned some Horses with Garlands of Hen the Art of managing a Horse, which with Flowers, which in this manner were led through the City. The Arcadians gave this Festival the Name of Hippocratia.

The History of Fapher agrees very much with what the Fable relates concerning Neptune: faphet's Share, according to Scripture, was Europe, with all the Isles of the Sea, and the Peninsula's whereof it consists, Eubemerns the Historian, as interpreted by Ennius, and related by Lantantime, bears the same Testimony concerning Nep-Creator of the Horse, for thus Virgil speaks sume, that the Seas and the Islands fell to his Lot: Neptuno maritima omnia cum infulu obvenerunt: Plutarch says, the Egyptians called the Promontories and the utmost rarts of the Earth Nephthyn, which Term has doubtless a great deal of Resemblance to that of Neptune. As for Neptune's other Name called by the Greeks moosed wiv. Bochartus thinks it is derived from the Punick Word Pefat: Herodotse fays also, there were none but the Libyans that gave Neptune the Name of Posidon; to Posidon will be the railed, by making an Olive-tree fuddenly to fame Name as Neptune. Lastantius does not grow up out of the Ground : It's probable this | doubt but that Neptune was Superintendant General of the Seas.

All Nations had also a Neptune of their own, and all these Nepsunes had in like manner something that was very manifestly like and unlike to wherein the City of Athens excelled; viz. Ships one another: Diodorus Siculus speaks of an Aland Olive-trees: Paufanias gives other Reasons tar in Arabia dedicated to Nepsune, standing mythe Invention of the Ule of Horses is attri- upon the Sea-side. Sanchuniathon says, that Ufour was the first who hollowed the Body of a The Medals represented him naked, holding Tree, and in Phanicia durft adventure to trust foretimes a Dolphin in his Left-hand, or under himself with the Waves of the Sea. The Nephis Feet, and his Trident in his Right, as may be tune of the Phanicians is ancienter than him of seen by the Reverse of the Medalls of Marcus A the Greeks and Latins, as they were Navigators gipe: He was represented at other Times with | before the others; and him they made to be the ha Trident in one Hand, and in the other an Son of Ponsus: The Egypsians had also their Nepand or Ornament, which was fastned to tune, and Plutarch affures us, that even the the Prow of Ships; and this is made out to us Name of Neptune was taken from the Egyptian Tongue, and fignified Promontories, and Sea-Coasts: But Plutarch perhaps, confounds the Egyptians with the Libyans, for Herodotus Witneiles that the Word Neptune was proper only Tanks to Neptune for their Expeditions by Sea to the Language of the Libyans who were the while Return : He was represented also lying oldest Worshippers of this Deity. 'None, says he, assumed the Name of Neptune at the Beginning but the Libyans, who always worthipped this God. The same Author says else-, where, that the Sephians had also a Respect for Neptune, and that they called him Thamimafades. Appian relates, that Misbridates threw the Chariots drawn by Four Horles in Honour of Neptune, into the Sea.

NEREUS, is one of the Gods of the Seas. his Name being derived from ragos Fluid, according to Hescychius: But yet 'tis more probably deduced from Nabar, an Hebrew Ferm. fignifying fluere, fluvius: Some make him to be the Son of Neprune, Others of Pontus: Pontus and Iticularly Pilots, which are a long time fail-Neptune being the same; but Neptune is more ing round Peloponesus, and would have very often looked upon as the Genius of the Seas, and much conduced to the Defence and Profit of Oceanus and Pontus as the Body thereof. They Greece, which would have had a better Intermake Nereus to have 50 aughters, called from course with it self in the several Parts of it him Nereides, which are fo many particular Seas, heing Parts of the main Sea it felf. Nereus married Doris by whom he had Theris.

NEREIDES, are Sea-Nymphs and the Daughters of Nereus.

NERO, the 6th i mperor of Rome, was the Son of Domitius Encobarbus and Agrippina and adopted by the Emperor Claudius his Predecessor, to the Empire: The Medals which we have of be crowned at the Olympick Games; for as to the him fhew his natural Inclinations by the Features of his Face: For his Eyes were fmall and beetlebrowed, his Throat and Chin met together, his Neck was thick, his Belly big and Legs small: Take him altogether, he perfectly refembled a Hog, which he did not illy imitate in his fordid Pleasures; his Chin was a little turn'd up, which was a Sign of Cruelty; his Hair light and Legs fmall, as Sueronius observes, and his Face rather Fair than Majeffick, which made him eatily to be adjudged an effeminate Person: So that if in the Beginning of his Reign he shewed much | Example of other great Princes, who had m-Moderation and Clemency, even fo far as to fay he wished he could not write, that he might not fign the Sentence of a Criminal which was brought to him, it was no more than an affected Modesty, which Policy and the Respect that he bore unto his Preceptors, inspired him with. Seneca in his Satyr against Claudius, with a fort of Flattery unbecoming a Philosopher, brings in Apollo speaking of Nero, as being like unto himtelf both in Beauty and Majefty:

Ille mibi fimilis vultu, fimilifque decore, Nec cantu. nec voce minor, &c.

And this doubtless is the Reason why Nero is often seen represented like unto Apollo: To speak the Truth, he had no bad Face, but he could not pass for a very handsome Person, since his Eyes had the Charge thereof, he returned into the were too small, his Neck very thick, and his City, believing that he had by this Action out-Legs fo slender and disproportionate to his done the Labours of Hercules. The Work was Height. Indeed, at the time when Seneca writ, he was handsomer than afterwards, seeing he that part which was easiest, and that was to dig was yet but young, and not so gross and fat as a Canal in the Plain, while the Malefadors, after wards, and this may be observed by the Me- which were taken out of the Prison, in aid do of Nero's undertaking to cut thro' the Isthmus of Corinth, that the Mathematicians should lay Corimb, which I shall recite intire in this place, that one of the seas was much higher than the because it contains some Particulars of the said other, and that if they continued to go on, the Prince his Life.

fomewhat in it of the Air of Greece, which this Prince affects to much?

Merchants and Sailors much Trouble, and par- of the Truth thereof; for he would never have Meneer. Thou will oblige us to give a Relation of what passed upon this Occasion, seeing thou were prefent.

Muson. This I will very willingly do: The Love of Mulick, and an Opinion which New had that the Muses could not ting better than himself, carried him into Greece, that he might Pythian Games, he thought he had a greater Share therein than Apollo himself; and I do not know but that he might believe the faid God would neither dare to fing nor play upon the Harp after him. This Defign therefore had not been premeditated long, but when he found himielf upon the Place, and faw the little Distance there was from one Sea to the other, the same being about Three Quarters of a League, he was taken with a Detire to render himfelf famous by this Undertaking, according to the dertaken the like Detigns. For Agamemnon (as 'tis faid) leparated the Island of Negropont from Baoria. Darius made a Bridge over the Bofphorus, and Xerxes would have cut thre' Mount Athos. Betides, he was mightily pleafed to hear himself praised, for Tyrants are never to cruel nor blind, but they defire to do something for the Benefit of the Publick, or their own Glory; wherefore, after he had fung the Praises of Neprune and Ampbitrite upon the Theatre of Corinth, with another little Poem in Honour of Leucosbea and Melicersus, he went on with a Golden How, which was presented him, and with Songs and publick Acclamations advanced towards the Place, where the Canal was to be made, and there began to dig a little; after which recommending the Builness to those who divided so, that his Army thould be imploy'd in dals which were caft, while he was yet but Cafar. the reft. After they had worked for Twelve . We have a Dialogue in Lucian, which speaks Days, there was a Rumour spread up and down Isle or Egina would be drowned: Bur beides that Menecrates. Did not this Defign feem to have these Rumours were false in themselves, the never had been able to divere the Resolution of a Prince, who affected to do great Things, if all Mulonius. It would doubtless have spared the Mathematicians in the World had affured him shandoned the Undertaking, had he not receiall Things were in Confusion at Rome.

Mufick, and whether he had fo good a Voice as the Contrary.

very good nor very bad. It was a kind of a ri- tence. mg Voice that he does not manage ill, and fuch as agrees very well with his Harp, as well as and that he found he was hated by every Body his Gesture and Countenance; besides which, he for his Cruelty and enormous Debaucheries, he understood the Way of the Theatre exactly well, killed himself, that he might avoid the Punishand better than became a Prince. But when he ments his Crimes deserved. pretended to rival the Masters of the Art, he Meneer. But how do they do to enter the Lifts with him?

Muson. He put a Player to Death at the Istbmian Games, who had the Boldness to dispute the Prize with him; for it is no less Danger to excel him, than 'tis to laugh at his Voice.

who came to contend with him for the Prize, there was a very famous Actor from Epirus, who infifted upon having 10 Talents for vielding the Honour unto him; this made him fwell with Anger, beides, the Actor had already told in private. what it was that hindred Nero to grant him what he asked. But as he faw him acting his Part with great Applause, he caused one of his Servants to tell him, that he ought to yield that which were attended with the loud Acclamations of the People; he ordered his Actors to go Act) who when they had push'd him against a Pil- himself Headlong into the Flames of Mount lar, out his Throat with thin pieces of Ivory, Octawhich they had in their Hands, that were as sharp Meneer. And did he after this Action get the Applause of Greece, and win the Victory?

had killed his own Mother.

Meneor. Indeed, 'tis not ftrange he should go red the News of Vindex his Revolting, and that about to make an Actor hold his Tongue, when he had endeavoured to ftop Apollo's Mouth, by Menter. Tell us now what it was that incli- hindring his Priestels to deliver any more Oned him to have fuch a passionate Love unto racles, because she had placed him in the Number of Parricides, tho' she had still spared him; some have reported; for others have affirmed for orefles and Alomanon, with whom she compared him, had killed their Mother in Revenge Mulon. His Voice was in reality neither to be for their Father, which had some Shadow of admired nor laughed at, because it was neither | Glory in it; but Nero's Crime was without Pre-

When the Provinces had revolted against him,

NERVA, named Cocceius, fucceeded Domade a Fool of himself; whatever Danger might | mitian, and was cholen Emperor by the Senate ensue: For he was too full of Action, and stood with unspeakable Joy; he happily began his a Tip-tocs; befides, he coloured in the Face Reign by putting forth a Proclamation for a gethro'an over Eagernels, and a Defire to perform | neral Pardon to all fuch as were banish'd or in well, the he naturally had a very ruddy Coun- 1 rifon: He was a very just and good Prince; he tenance; and as he had no extraordinary Voice, was represented upon his Coin with a dry and nor good Breath, they fail'd him often at a wrinkled Face, his Eyes funk in his Head, and his Clim tharp: He was very old when he came to the Empire, and was afflicted with a very weak Stomach, which made him lean for want of Digestion; and this altered his Aspect, and hid his Inclinations: Tho' he had a large and Eagle Nose, yet he was not Valiant; 'twas rather a Sign of great Goodnels in him; he had a pretty Meneer. How was that, we know nothing long Vilage: In the mean time they found in him feveral Signs of an Inclination to Paffion Muson. This was done at the Games of all from the Lines of his Face and Habit of his Greece, and was thus: Tho' it were not an usual Body; and among the rest, a lean and thin Face, thing to represent the Divertions of the Theatre | a sharp-pointed Head, a more than ordinary Tallat these Games, no more than to fing at the new of Body, hooked Nose, Beetle-brows, and Olympick Games, yet he was minded to carry a dry and sharp Chin; in short, he died by beaway the Honour of his Tragedy; amongst those ing put into too violent a Passion against Regulus, after he had reigned One Year and Four

NESSUS; the Centaur; a Son of Ixion and a Cloud, with whom Hercules having entrufted his Wife Diani-a, for him to carry her over the River Evenue, he went to ravilh her, which being perceived by Hercules, he shot him with an Arrow: At his Death he bequeathed his Shirt flained with his Blood to Dianira; Honour to his Prince; and because he would not, giving her understand, that if she could get but pernifted inflexible, and doubled his Efforts, Hercules to wear it, he thould for ever love her: This therefore she fent unto him by Lycas, and as foon as he had put it on, he found his Boupon the Stage (as if that were part of the fame | dy leized with fo violent a Fire, that he threw

NESTOR, whom Homer proposed for an Example of Wildom and Prudence, lived about 300 Years, and was found both in Body and Mind; whence it is, that when we would wish a Mujon. This paffed for a Jeft, in a Man that Man a long Life, we wish him the Age of Neltor.

NEUR OBATES: by this Name were a be heard Three Days Journey off, and that the kind of Rope-dancers called, who walked not Waters which spurt therefrom, appear like a upon an extended Cord, but made several Smoak. Alexander consulted the Oracle of The Tours and Leaps, as a Dancer does upon the piter Ammon, in order to know where the Spring Ground at the Sound of Musick.

NICANDER; was a famous Phylician in Nero's Time, who wrote Two Poems concerning venemous Beafts, and Remedies against Poilons, called Theriaca, and Alexipharmaca.

NICETERIUM; the Frize at the Olym-

pick and Circensian Games.

NILUS; the Nile, a River which croffes a great part of Affrica, the Spring-head thereof which fall between the Two Tropicks on the Ift being unknown till the last Age; the same is in a Territory which the Inhabitants call Abain, Weather we enjoy in Europe. When the Nile or Sacabela, that is, the Father of the Waters: rifes up to 16 Degrees, they fear a Famine, but This River runs out of Two Fountains or Eyes, when it comes to 23 'tis a good Year: When to use the Words of the People of that Country, 'tis too high, the Inundation is dangerous: The that are at about Thirty Paces diffance, each of them being about the same Circumference as the Temple of Serapis, and the Emperor Conone of our Pits or a Coach-wheel, whole Bot- stantine caused the same to be carried to the toms are 16 or 17 Foot deep: The Inhabitants, Church of Alexandria. who are Heathens, worship the largest of the Two, and to it offer feveral Cows in Sacrifice, of the Nile, and St. Arbanafim intimates as much: whose Hesh they eat as if it were holy, and leave the Bones in a Place appointed for that Purpose, which at present makes a Mountain: Its above 2000 Years fince Herodorus has made mention of these Cows that were facrificed at lought not to be thought firange that Oficia, which the Sources of the Nile. The Inhabitants call it is the Sun, should be also the Nile: For by the Agaüs, the same being in the Kingdom of Goy- same Reason that the Sun is Ofirit, or the Active an, 12 Degrees North Latitude and 55 Longitude. Its in a Plain about Three Quarters of a which is Ifis, the Passive and Feminine Principle, League long, furrounded with Mountains: At the Nile is also the Active Principle and Author its going out from thence the River enters into of the Fertility of the Land of Egypt, from which a small Lake, then is loft under Ground for about it receives all its Fæcundity; lo the Nile is a Musket-shot; and Three Days Journey from the Source thereof, 'tis fo large and deep as to bear Vessels on't; but in about 100 Paces farther it runs cross some Rocks, so that one may eafily pass over without wetting his Feet: They fail upon it with Boats made of Mat, and well fet together: It receives Three great Rivers into it, viz. the Gema, Linquetil and Brantil, and when it comes out of the Lake of Dambea, which is Fifty Leagues over, it receives into it other large Rivers, viz. the Gamara, Abea, Baixo, and Aquors, and laftly the Tacafus near Egrpt: It hath Two principal Cataracts or Falls. At the Second it falls into a great Abys, and the Notice thereof may be heard at the Diftance of Three Leagues; the Water is forced with fo much Violence, that it forms a kind of an Arch, and leaves fo great a Space between, that a Man may pass it without being wet; and there also are Seats cut in the Rocks, where Travellers may rest themselves: The first Cataract or Waterfall of the Nile is about Fifty Foot, but the fecond is three times as high: Its falle that the Neighbouring People Deaf, tho' the same may premised; 'tis not difficult to believe that the

of this River was. Sefostrie and Protomy sought for it in vain: Cambyses, as Serabo says, spenta whole Year to find it: Lucan witnesseth, that Cafar faid, He would have given over the Purfuit of the Civil War, if he were fure to find it. If aux Voffins hath wrote concerning the Original of the Nile, and other Rivers, and attributes the Rife and Overflowing thereof to the Rains. of June, and which are the Causes of the fine Measure for the Increase of the Nile was kept in Plutarch says-the Egyptians adored the Waters The Nile was the chief Instrument of God's Bleffing bestowed upon Egypt, as the same Author observes; and thus from it have they made their God Ofirm, if we believe Plutarch. And it or Male Principle in respect to all the Earth, Ofiris likewise.

There are some also of Opinion, that the Name of Ofiris comes from the Hebrew Name of the Nile; for in Scripture the Nile is usually called Nabal Mifraim, Fluvius Ægypti, and simply Nabal or Nebel, from whence they made NeiA @: Again, Mela fays, that the Nile at the Springs thereof was called Nuchul, quali Nachal. But the same Scriptures give likewife unto the Nile the Name of Scacbar Niger, because the Waters of the faid River are very often troubled, muddy, and blackish; whence also it is, that Plutarch and other Greek Authors sometimes call it medas. Servins and other Latin Writers name it Melo. From Schachar or Schabar they make Sirie, which is the Name given to the Nike by Dionyfine, in his Description of the World: Sirie ab Athiopibus vocatur. Its also believed, that the Reason why the Dog-star is called Sirius, is, because it hath borrowed its Name from the Nile, with which it hath so much Sympathy, the Overflowings of the faid River being confined to the Dog days. This being the or Siri have been worshipped under the Name of Ofiris. The Overflowings of the Nile at fobeneficial to Egypt, that there is no need of Rain in that Country. Thus the Nile unto them flood instead of Jupiter, who was held to be the Author of Rains. And this Tibullus exmeffes in thefe Verfes:

Te propter nullos Tellus tua postulat imbres. Arida nec pluvio supplicat berba Foui.

and in Athenaus we read this Prayer put up to the Nile, as to the Jupiter of Egypt.

Aizurlie Zeu Neine.

NIMROD. See Nembrod.

NINUS, was the Son of Belus and Founder of the Allyrian Empire; he continued the Buildmade the Seat of his Empire, than founded Nineve, so called from his own Name: He made an of Refuge for all Malefactors, and was the Author of Idolatry.

NIOBE, Tantalus his Daughter, who died miserably through her own Vanity; for she haaway for Grief. The Poets fay, that the Gods | who untied it, should conquer Afia. being touched with Compassion for this un-Tears and Sorrows, changed her into a Marbleof her Mourning.

NISUS, King of Megara, who had an Hair in his Head of a Purple Colour, unto which was limited the Duration of his Reign; which Story is taken from Sampson's Hair, wherein contifted all his Strength:

Cui splendidus ostro Inter honoratos medio sub vertice canos, Crinis inherebat, magni fiducia regni. Ovid. Metam. L 8. v. 8.

solle, a Daughter of this King's, happening to fill in Love with King Minos during the Time d his Besieging Megara, betray'd her Father, and cut off this fatal Hair: The City hereupon was taken, Nisus transformed into a Sea-Eagle, and Stylla being deserted by Minos, was changed moa Bird named Ciris:

An vendebat in auras. Et modo fallus erat futuis Halyaetos alis, &c. Plumis in avem mutata, vocatur Ciris: & a tonfo eft boc nomen adepta capille. Ibid. v. 145.

Here is a double Etymology the one Greek, and the other Hebrew, and as Ovid hints, the Name of Ciris comes from respess tondere; but that of Nifus from the Hebrew Ness which fignifies a Sparhawk.

NOBILITAS, Antonius Geta, Son to the Emperor Severus, has given us the Figure of it in a Medal of his, where the is repretented in a Roman Lady's Drefs, holding a Scepter in her Hand, and upon her Left Arm a small Statue of

NODINUS or NODOSUS, a God ing of the City of Babylon, which at first he that presided over the Knots that are in the

Stalks of Corn. NODUS GORDIUS; the Gordian Knot, Idol of his Father Belus, whom he would have tis a Greek Proverb, which is faid concerning a to be worthipped by his People, made it a Place | Knot that cannot be untied, and figuratively put for a Difficulty that cannot be refolved: It proceeds from an indiffoluble Knot of Leatherthongs, which Gordius King of Phrygia laid up inthe Temple of Apollo, in Commemoration of ving bore a great many Children, was fo rash as his being saluted King, because he was the first to prefer her felf before Latona. At this A- that entred into the faid Temple. Alexander will and Diana growing angry, they killed all cut it with his Sword, because he could not untie her Children with Arrows; which made her pine it, for the Oracle had foretold, that the Person

NOAH, the Son of Lamech, a just and upbriunate Mother, which pined away with right Man, who found Favour with God, and who with his Family only escaped the Deluge, fone, which by a Blaft of Wind was carried as being thut up in an Ark by the Lord's Commandfar Lysia, near unto the City of Sypilus, where ment. Noab's History has been applied to Saher marbled Body continually sweated as a Sign rurn; for Noab was the Father of all Mankind. after the Flood: He was also the King and Author of another Golden Age, while the Earth was peopled with no other than with his Children and Grand-children, whom he had brought up in Innocence and under whose Empire he left them to enjoy an entire Liberty: There were no. Slaves in the first Age after the Deluge; all Mankind making as it were yet but one Family. And whereas Noah, according to the Scripture, was the first that planted a Vineyard and brought up the Use of Wine, the Heathens gave Saturn also the Glory of having taught Men the Art of Agriculture, and especially planting of Vines and the Use of the Sickle.

Athenaus, after Berofus, fays the Saurnalia: were celebrated at Babylon, as well as in Greece and Italy: And these Saturnalia were Days appointed for Debaucheries; as if the Heathens had had a mind to keep up the Remembrance of Noab's Drunkenness, intowhich he unadvisedly fell, . before he had yet had a Tryal of the Strength of Wine. St. Cyrill relates unto us the Testimonies of Alexander Polybiftor and Abydenus, who fay, that Xifurus King of Affria, escaped the own proper and particular Names, as Cales Deluge, which Saturn had foretold thould come, Cacilia, Lucia, Volumnia, and these Names, as by putting himself, according to his Advice in an Quintilian observes, were diftinguish'd by Letters. Ark together with all Kinds of Beafts; that he inverted thus J. 7. W. However, afterwards: failed to Armenia, and that he fent some Birds to they gave them no Names, but if there was onknow if the Waters were gone off the Face of the lly one Girl, they did no more than give her the Earth. It's manifest, that this is the Story of Name of her Family, and sometimes softened Noab counterfeited, and that these Fables had the same by the Way of a Diminution, as Tallis their Origin in Allyria; infomuch that the fabulous Saturn is the true Noah, and his Ark rested one Major, the other Minor; and if more, they on the Mountains of Armenia. Treizes makes Noab one while to go into India, and at another time to Egypt : He lived 350 Years after the | a Diminutive of the fame, as Secandilla, Quartilla, Deluge, and repeopled the Earth according to the Command which God gave him: St. Epiphanius lays, that Noah made a Division of the among the Romans who accompanied those who World between his Three Sons at Rkinocorura a laboured under hand to be made Magistrates, Place upon the Frontiers of Egypt.

Mofes has joyned with Jubal and Tubalcain; Ge- them, and call them by their Names, which nebrard in his Chronicle fays, she invented the was a very civil Custom, and much in use at Art of Spinning and Woollen Manufacturies, and | Rome. fo the was the Minerva of the Heathens, but as the Name of Noema fignifies Beautiful, others have been of Opinion 'twas Venus; hereunto they add | likely the Name came, because that from the farther, that as Noema is in the Book of Genesis | faid Day to the Ides, there were always Nine joined with Tubalsam, fo the Pagans faid, that Days. They computed Six Days in the Nones

Venus was Vulcan's Wife.

one Name, but the Romans had sometimes Three or Four, which they called Pranomen, Nomen, Cognomen, and sometimes Agnomen. The Pranomen is that which belongs to every Person in | in order to know of the Pontiffs, the Time particular; the Name is that which denotes the when the Feafts and other Ceremonies were to House from whence one is descended, and the | be celebrated; and in short, whatever they were Surname is that which belongs to a particular Family or to a Branch of that House.

It was a Cultom among the Romans to give to their Children the Name of the Family, to Boys on the 9th Day after their Birth, and to Girls on the 8th. But according to Festus and Plutarch, the Pranomen was not given them before they put on the Virile Robe, that is, at the Age of 17. Thus Cicero's Children were always called Giceronic pueri till thole Years, after which, they called them Marcus filius, and Quinsus filius: As for the slaves they had no other Name than that of their Mafter, as Luciper, Lucius his Slave, Lucii puer; Marcipor, Marcus his Slave, Marcipuer. But yet afterwards they gave them a Name which generally was that of their Country, as Syrus, Geta, Davus, and when they were made free they took the Pranomen and .Name of their Master, but not the Surname, in the room of which they retained their own Name. Thus that learned Freedman of Cicero was called M. Tullius Tyro; and this was also obferved with Respect to Allies and Strangers, who took upon them the Name of the Perfor by whole | at the Full, or appear'd with a beautiful Face, Favour they had obtained the Priviledge of be the same Word coming from the Greek as O ing Citizens of Rome.

Varro (avs., that the Women formerly had thek or Tulliola: But if they were two, they called were named according to their Age, Prima, Secunda, Tertia, Quarta, Quinta, &c. or they made Quintilla, &c.

NOMENCLATOR; He was a Person and who told them the Names of all the Citi-NOEMA, the Daughter of Lamech, whom | zens they met with, that they might fainte

NONE; the Nones, quasi Nove; being as much as to tay, new Observations, tho its more of May, October, July and March, and in the NOMEN, a Name; the Greeks had but other Months only Four. Some believe that Remulus began the Month on the First Day of the Moon's appearing in the Evening, on which the Country People were obliged to come to Town, to do, or let alone during the whole Month. And as the Sacrificer was on the tame Day wont to cry the Word xaxa with a loud Voice Five times fuccessively, if the Nones contained but Five Days, or Seven times, if they comprehended Seven; fo the Nones perhaps got their Name, in that at first they were called Nono Idus, the 9th of the Ides, as they are put indeed in the place of the IX of the Ides. Bendes, leeing there were Three different Variations, and fuch as are very confiderable in the Course of the Moon; the 1ft, When she is entirely hid by the Sun-beams; 2d, On the first Day of her appearing, when the rifes at Night, and appears with Horns at her coming forth from under the faid Beams; 3d, When the is at the Full; 'tis thought that Romulus from thence took occasion to divide the Days of his Months, which he began always with the Calends, at the time when the Moon, Jub 14diu Solu celaretur, was hid by the sun-beams, and afterwards gave the Name of None or Nova Luna to the Day whereon the New Moon appear'd, and that of the Idus when the was Beams, and was vitible.

the 7th was held the Show of Ornaments: On the 3d of the Ides the Inclosure of the Sea: On the Ides the Feaft called Lestifternia: On the 18th of the Calends, the Trial of Horses: On the 17th of the Calends, the popular Play's in the Circus for Three Days: On the 14th, the Traders Feaft lafting Three Days : On the 13th, 8th, were the Brumalia celebrated, which lafted for Thirty Days: On the 5th, were performed the Moreuary Sacrifices to the frighted Gauls and Greeks.

NOVENSILES; were Heroes newly received into the Number of the Gods, or the Gods of the Provinces and Kingdoms which the Romans had conquered, and to which they facrificed under the Name of Dii Novensiles.

thus, which fignifies as much; from whence they | Pomponius Pompilius: He was born at Cures, gige a Reason for the Inequality of the Days of the Capital City of the Sabines; the Fame of the Nones: For, as it happens by a Composition of his Vertue made the Romans chule him for their the Sun and Moon's Motions, that the Moon King, after Romulus his Death: He revived all comes forth fometimes fooner from under the the Ancient Ceremonies of Religion, and infli-Beams of the other, and sometimes latter, and tuted new Ones; and writ down a whole forth that this Difference is usually confined within of Religious Worthip in Eight Books, which he the Space of Two Days: It's very likely, fay caused to be laid with him in his Tomb after his they, that at the Time when Remulus instituted | Death. But one Terentius, fays Pare, having this Calender, the Moon continued longer hid an Estate haid by the Janiculum, as his Servant by the Sun-beams, in the Months of March, May, was ploughing near unto Numa's Tomb, he July, and Odober, and that upon this Occasion turn'd up the Books wherein the faid Prince Had he allowed Seven Days to the Nones of these let down the Reasons of his instituting such My-Four Months, and only Five to the reft, during fieries. Terentius carried them prefently to the which the Moon got sooner from under the said Prætor, who, when he had read the Beginning of them, thought it was a Matter of that Impor-NOVEMBER; 'twas formerly the 9th tance as deserved to be communicated to the Month of the Year, inflitured by Romalus, which | Senate: The Principal Senators having read omilted of Ten in all; and now tis the 11th. somethings therein, would not meddle with the The Emperor Commodus called it Exuperatorius; Regulations of Nums, but thought it conducive but after his Death it realfumed its former Name: to the Interest of Religion to have the faid Books In this Month the Sun enters into Sigitarius; burnt. Numa had had Recourse to the Art of and it was under the Protection of Dima: On Hydromancy, in order to fee the Images of the the first Day thereof they made a Feast to Jupi- Gods in the Water and to learn of them the Reter, and performed the Circenfian Games: On ligious Mysteries he ought to establish: Vario the Day of the Nones or Fifth were the Neptu- fays, that this kind of Divination was found nalia celebrated, which lasted Eight Days. On out by the Persians, and that King Numa, and after him Pythagoras the Philosopher made use thereof: To which he adds, that they also invoked Mens Souls upon this Occasion by sprinkling of Blood, and this is that which the Greeks called Necromancy; and because Numa made use of Water to perform his Hydromancy, they faid, he married the Nymph Egeria, as the faid Varro the Pontiff's Supper in Honour of Cybele: On explains it: It was therefore by this way of Hythe 11th, the Liberalia: On the 10th, they of dromancy that this inquifite King learnt those fered Sacrifice to Pluto and Proferpina : On the Mysteries which he iet down in the Pontit's Books, and the Caufes of the fame Myfferies, the Knowledge whereof he referved to himfelt alone: He boafted he had very often Converation with the Muses, to whom he added a Tenth, which he named Tacita, and made the Romans worthip her.

He lomewhat rectified the Calender, and added Two Months to the Year, which at first confifted but of 10 Months, and fo made them 12, NOX; the Night, the Daughter of Ierra adding every Two Year one Month confifting of and Chaos, which the Poets represented in the | 22 Days, which he called Mercedinum, and which Form of a Woman in Mourning, crowned with he immediately placed after the Month of Fe-Poppies, and having black Wings, and riding in | bruary; he lived about 80 Years and of them a Chariot drawn by Iwo Hories, surrounded reigned 40. This Numa Pompilius, second King with Stars, which served as her Guides: They of Rome was indeed both a King and a Philofacificed a Cock unto her. Cic. L. 3. de Nat. lopher, who gave himself up so much to the Deor, Says her Children were Love, Deceit, Doctrine which Pysbagoras afterwards publish'd. Fear, Old Age, Mileries, Destinies, &c. The to the World, that many through a grossig-Night is part of the Natural Day, during which | norance of the Time took him to be a Disciple the sun is not above the Horizon; the Ancient of Pythagoras: Dionysius of Hallicarnassus has re-Gauls and Germans divided Time not by the futed this Error, by shewing that Numa was Day, but by Nights, as you may fee in Cafar more ancient than Pythagoras by Four Generations, as having reigned in the 6th Olympiad, NUMA, called Pompilius; the Son of whereas Pythagoras was not famous in that before the soth. The same Historian says, that Numa | sels, and naked down to the Navel; the Nymin pretended his Laws and Maxims were communicated to him by the Nymph Egeria, which others believed to be a Muse; at last the said this Inscription: Historian says, Nums pretended to have that Conversation with a Coelestial Mistress, that so they might believe his Laws were the Ema-

tions of the Eternal Wildom it felf. NUMERUS; a Number, is a Discrete Quantity, being a Collection of several separate Bodies. Euclid defines it to be a Multitude com- That is, Votum folvit libens merito : Maternm posed of many Unites. The perfect Number bas freely and fully discharg'd ber Vow to the Aneftablish'd by the Ancients is Ten, because of the Number of the Ten Fingers of a Man's Hand. Plate believed this Number to be perfect, inafmuch as the Unites, which the Greeks called Monades, compleated the Number of Ten. The Mathematicians who would contradict Plato herein. faid, that Six was the most perfect Number, because that all its Aliquot Parts are equal to the Number Six: And farther, to make the Perfection of the Number Six to appear, they have to the Nymphs of the Place, drink, bathe your selves. observed that the Length of a Man's Foot is and be filent. the 6th Part of his Height. There is an even and an odd Number; the Even is that which may be divided into I wo equal Parts, whereas the odd Number cannot be divided equally without a Fraction, which is more of an Unity than the even Number. The Golden Number is a Period of 19 Years, invented by Metho the Athenian; at the End of which happen the Lunations and the same Epact; tho this Period be not altogether true: Its thought to have been | Omega and Omicron of the Greeks: the Pronunciathus called either because of the Benefit there is tion whereof was very different, says Caninin in the Use of it, or because it was formerly writ- after Terentianus; for the Omega was pronounced ten in Gold Characters. See Arithmetica.

NUPTIÆ, Marriages, from the Verb nabere, which fignifies to vail, because the Bride had a Vail on of the Colour of Fire, wherewith fhe covered her felf: They carried a lighted the French Tongue; the Long o they diftinguish Torch, and fung Hymen or Hymen aus, which was a fabulous Deity of the Pagans, whom they believed to prelide over Marriages: The Poets called him fair Hymenaus. See Matrimonium.

NYMPHA; a Nymph; a falle Deity, believed by the Heathens to prefide over Waters, Rivers and Fountains: some have extended the Signification hereof, and have taken them for the Goddeffes of Mountains, Forests and Trees. The Ancients took the Nymphs to be Bacchus his Nurses, whether it were because the Wine wanted Water to bring its Grapes to Maturity, or because 'tis requisite Water should be mixed with Wine, that it may not diforder the Head. They have been fometimes represented each of them with a Vessel, into which they poured Water, and holding the Leaf of an Herb in their Hands, which grows in Water and Wells; or the A and the O are often joined together in the else another while with that of a Water-Plant same Word, as in Laon, faon, paon, which are called Nymphaa, that took its Name from the pronounced with A Long, as Lan, fan, pan; tho Nymphs; and again, with Shells inflead of Vef- Ramus fays, that in his Time some diffinguished were fometimes honoured with the Title of gult, as other Deities were, which appears by gust Nymphs. This Epithet has been given them by way of Honour, because 'twas believed they watched for the Preservation of the Imnerial Family.

> NYMPHIS AUGUSTIS MATURNUS V. S. L. M.*

NYMPHEA; the Baths which were coulecrated to the Nymphs; and therefore so called from them. Silence was more particularly required there: whence we read in an Inscription of Gruter, NYMPHIS LOCI, BIBE, LAVA, TACE:

Is the Fourteenth Letter in the Alphabet. and the Fourth Vowel: The 0 by its long and fhort Pronounciations represents fully the in the Hollow of the Mouth with a great and full Sound, including two oo; and the Omicron upon the Edge of the Lips with a clearer and smaller Sound. These two Pronounciations they have in by the Addition of an S, as cofte, bofte, motte; or by the Dipthong au, as baute, faute, &c. and the Affinity there is between this Vowel 0 and the Dipthong au, is not without an Example in the Greek Tongue, wherein you have αυλαξ or ώλαξ, sulcus; τραυμα or τρώμα, vulnus, according to the Dorick Dialect, from whence the Lasins have also used caudex and codex; Caurus or Corus, &c. And hence, perhaps, it is, that as this Dipthong au retains much of the A, fo the O has some Affinity with the A; for the Eolians used στροτός for στρατός, exercitus. ove for ave, supra; which was also imitated by the Romans, who took Domo from Sauis and used Fabius for Fovius, according to Festus Farreus for Forreus, &c. And in the French Tongue did perhaps in Imitation of the Greeks who chan-

Again, the O has some Affinity with the E. whence it is that the Greeks from New dico, have made AéAoja dixi, and the like; that the Etotions used reouse for Tpsue, tremo; and the Latins from onivow, made spondeo; from pendeo, pondue; from tego, toga; and they used to for adversum or advorsum: vertex or vortex: accipiter for accipitor, a Bird of Prey; bemo for bo-Pliny in Priscian says the same thing; and thence also he derives the Name of obelish. it comes to pass that buc, illuc, are used for boc, illor, and this Virgil himself does:

Hoc tune ignipotens calo descendit ab alto.

Quintilian also observes, that they used Hecoba, and Norix with an O for an U: and that of Odysseus. the Eolians had made Udylfes, from whence the Romans faid Ulyffes; and that, in short, his Maflers wrote fervom with an O, whereas from his Time forward they wrote the same with two un's, fervum. The two Dipthongs oe and oi come near the Greek Dipthong or: The o among the Latins was very like unto the V; wherefore it often happened that the or was changed into an u, as when from the Word pana they made punire; and thus we may still find in some old Inscriptions oisum or asum put for usum, coiravit or ceravit for curavit; menera for munera; and so also they used Puni for Pani, and bellum Punicum for Panicum. O in Arithmetick stands for a Cypher; it was also made use of for a Numeral Letter that fignified Eleven, and when they put a Bar above it, it stood for 11000.

OBELISCUS, an Obelisk, a very high to some Place, which had often Inscriptions and Hieroglyphicks upon it. The Difference between Pyramids and Obelisks confifted in that the Pyramids have a large Basis, but the Obelisks are very narrow: Pliny lays, the Egyptians cut their Obelishs in the Form of a Sun-beam, and that the Word Obelisk in the Egyptian Tongue fignified a Ray or Beam.

· OBOLUS, a Copper Coin worth a Maille orTwo Mites, which is not above one 3d of a Farthing in our English Money: Some will have it only to be the Quarter Part of a Denier, the

the Long O by these two Letters AO, which they I which were worth II Deniers, and as some would have it a French Penny (less by near 2 ged as or as as well as on in their Contractions | Fourth than the English Penny) and 4 Deniers They had also Gold Oboles. M. Du Cange says, there has been in France Oboles of Gold and Silver, that the white Obolus was worth 3 Deniers, and was called Obole tierce, because it was the third Part of a French Penny. There were also Silver Oboles that weighed a Denier and 15

Obolus in Phylick is a Weight of 10 Grains, or Half a Scruple, and there are a Scruples go to a Dram or Gross. The obolin amongst the no; ambe and ambes for ambo and ambos, in En- | Jews was a kind of a Weight named Gerab, siss. But the o had ftill a greater Affinity with weighing 16 Barley-Corns. The Obolus with the V. whence the Ancients, as Longus fays, ea- the Sicilians was a Pound Weight: It was also fily confounded these two Letters, and the they a fort of Money: They pretend the Romans writ Confol, they pronounced it Conful: Callio- borrowed this Name from them: Borellus dedorus also informs us, they wrote praftu for pra- rives the Word from &sade; because the same flo; poblicum for publicum; colpam for cuipam. was long and small like a Needle, from whence

> OBSEQUIÆ, Obsequies, Funeral Solemnities they are Ceremonies performed at the Burials of Great Persons, the Word being derived from Obsequium, because these Obsequies are the last Devoirs we can render to the Deceased. See

OBSTETRIX, a Midwife, being fuch an one as delivers a Woman in Labour; Hyginus informs us, the Ancients having no Midwives, leveral Women died in Labour, because of their being ashamed to have Recourse to the Physitians for Help, and fince there was a Law among the Athenians which forbad Women to have any thing to do with Phyfick : Hereupon a young Woman called Agnodicia, having a great Inclination to the Science, difguifed her felf in Man's Cloaths and studied it, aud then went to Women in Labour, and for the removing of all Scruples from them, the made her Sex known unto them and then delivered them. The Phyfitians observing that this would make them lofe their Practife among the Women, fued the faid young Woman, and accused her of ill Practiles in Respect to the Female Sex: In short, they got her condemned by the Areopagites, but file gave them Proofs of her Innocence in a Stone fet up perpendicularly for an Ornament | full Affembly : Then the Phylitians had Recourse to the Law which prohibitted Women to profess Physick; upon which the Athenian Ladies interpoled in the Matter, and got the Law repealed; so that Women were left at full Liberty to fludy that Profession.

OCCASIO, Opportunity, an Heathen God, whom Phadrus, L. 5. Fab. 9. represents unto us thus: 'A Man with Wings, and ran fo 'swiftly that he could go upon the Edge of a Razor without hurting himfelf. One that hath Hair before, and is bald behind, with his Body 'ftark naked; one that cannot be poffeft but Half of a Maille : The Greels had Silver Oboles I' by Prevention, and whom Jupiter himself can-which denotes to us, that he that lofes his Op-* portunity meets with it to more.

OCCIDENS; the West, It's one of the Four Cardinal Points of the Heavens and the Earth, the Place where the Sun and other Stars fet in respect to us. The West of the Summer is that Point of the Horizon where the Sun fets, when tis in the Tropick of Canter; the West of the Winter is that where the Son fets, when far as the Ocean, he offered Sacrifice, and pravid 'tis in the Tropick of Capricorn; and this happens when the Sun comes to the Points of the Soffices; each of them is 23 Degrees and an half diffant from the true Point of the West.

OCEANUS; the Ocean, is that main Sea which furrounds all the Earth; this Name, i we believe Hefychius, comes from wy iv, which was the old Name thereof, and 'tis very likely proceeded from that Hebrew Word Choug or Houg, that fignifies a Circle; because it goes round the Earth: This Word Houg is in Scripture often to be met with in this Sence; or i you will, wreards comes from whis, because of the Swiftness of its Motion. Homer in his Iliads makes Oceanus to be the Father of the Gods, and Tesbys their Mother.

'Ωκεανόν τε Θεών γένεσιν, κ' μητίρη. Τηθυν.

that Text in Genefis, where the Chaos leems to thers of the Church, who gave a Literal Explibe represented like unto the Confusion of the Cation of the Waters (which in Scripture are Waters before God reduced them into order, iplaced above the Firmament) and believed there and made a Diffinction between them : In this was a great Quantity of Water above the Region Sence the Ocean and Tethys, that is, that Abyss of the fixed Stars, to allay the Heat of those Cowhich comprehended the Heavens and the Earth. leftial Fires, and hinder them from burning the as an immense Quantity of Waters, before the fame were separated by the Distribution made of the Chaos; this Abyls, I fay, might be called the it be comidered, that the Stars being fiery Globes Father and Mother of all the great Bodies, of of an incredible Bigness, as well as the Sun, it which Nature was composed, and which bore was requitite to separate them from each other the Name of Gods among the Heathens. And by very great Spaces filled with Air, and some where Plato fays, that Oceans was begotten of Liquid Matter, wherewith to allay their Heat, Calum and Terbys, he means nothing elle but and the Earth, as it was upon the Reduction of Matter if the Name of Air or Water has been the Chaos into order.

nothing but the Element of Water, and the and Nereides were such particular Waters, as are Ocean that is continually animated by the Soul either sweet or falt.

not recover, if he has once been left to escape, lof the Universe, which makes its Divinity, according to the Language of the Heathens. Fire git in his Georgicks facrificed to the Ocean.

Oceano libemus, ait:

And he brings in Aness facrificing a Bull to the Gods of the Sea. Justine relates, that when Alexander had subdued and passed thro' Asa, as him to grant him an happy Return into Greece; Oceano libamina dedit, prosperum in patriam reditum precatus.

Diodorus Siculus fays, that the Ancients gave the Name of Ocean to Moisture or the Liquid Element, which is as it were the Nutriment, and consequently the Mother of all Things, and that this is the Meaning of the Verse hefore cited our of Homer; and to clear the Thing fully, we may add what he fays elfewhere concerning Jupiter, and the other Gods or Stars, that they went to Oceanus Habitation, to be entertained at a great Feaft by him. Diodoras has faid Oceanus and Tetbys were the Nutriment of all Things; and Macrobius explains this Feafting of the Gods at Oceanus his House, by the Vapours of the Sea. wherewith the Stars were nourish'd, and whereof they frood in need, for the Qualifying of their Heat, significans bauriri de bumore alimenta fideribus. This was an Opinion commonly enter-This Opinion may have had its Origin from tained by a great many of the Ancient Fa-World, Tho' this Idea may feem odd, yet 'tis certain, the fame is very agreeable to Truth, if and make them more tollerable, which in their the Ocean that was separated from the Heavens own Natures were combustible; but 'tis no great given to this Liquid Substance, wherein, as I The innumerable Mukitude of Petty Deities may fay, all thele Globes or Luminaries, fudi that prefide over the Waters, whether they be as the Stars are, or dark Bodies, as the Planets Fountains, Lakes, Rivers, or Seas, might very and Earth, do swim. Eufebius gives us the well be the Occasion of giving unto the Ocean | Words of Porphyrie, who applies the Fable of the the Quality of the Father of the Gods: But in Poets in this Case entirely to the Collectial or the main, this vaft Number of Water-Gods, and Elementary Bodies, and who fays; that the Ocean their Genealogy, fignifies no more than the Di- was of a Liquid Nature in general; that Teissi stribution of the Waters of the Ocean, which is was the Symbol thereof; that Achelous was done throughout all the Earth, and which by its drinkable Water; Neptune, the Sea-water; that Vapours or Subterranean Conduits supplies all by Amphitrite was meant, such Waters as are the Fountains, Lakes and Livers, infomuch that 'tis Principle of Generation ; Lastly, That the Nymphi

OCTAVIUS CA-SAR, surnamed AU-1 ficult, forasmuch as neither Interpreters nor GUSTUS. See Augustus.

OCTOBER; the Month of October, being ed its first Name in spight of all the different have given it: For the Senate ordered that this Song. Month should be called Faustinus, in Honour of timus, according to his own Name. This Month an Altar was dedicated to Fortune, entituled, Forsuna Reduci, to flatter Augustus at his Return to Rome, after he had pacified Sicily, Greece, Syria, Asia, and Parthia. On the 13th was kept the Feaft of Fountains, called Fontinalia. 15th. they facrificed a Horse to Mars, called Offober equis. 19th was celebrated the Feast called Armilustrium in the Armies. 28th, and following Days, the Plays of Victory were performed, which Sylla instituted. Towards the End of the Month the Vortumnalia, and Sarmatian Games were celebrated.

OC + OBER EQUUS: an Horse which was facrificed to Mars in the Month of Ollober; there was then a Race run with Chariots, drawn each by 2 Horses, and he that run quickest was cause the Horse was a Martial Creature, and ought to be offered in Sacrifice to the God of War.

OCULARIA; Spectacles; its not belie-Stage: It would have been a Wonder that Pliny his Chapter concerning the Inventors of Things: Indeed, there are foine modern Authors who Faber ocularius, and Coulariarius of Tomb-stones, of the Convent of Pila, in the Year 1313.

ODEUM; M. Perrauli upon Vitruvius, fays,

Grammarians do agree about the Use of this Edifice. Suidas, who holds that this Place was the 3th Month of the Year in Romulus his Calen- appointed to rehearfe the Musick that was to der, and 10th in that of Numa, has always retain- be performed on the great Theater, grounds his Opinion upon the Etymology of the Word, Names, the Senate and Roman Emperors would which is taken from Ode, that in Greek fignifies

The Scholisst on Aristophanes is of another O-Fassina, the Wife of Antoninus, the Emperor : pinion, and thinks that the Odeum was a Place Commodus would have had it bear the Name of erected wherein to repeat. Plurareb in the Life Invidus; and Domitian made it be called Domi of Pericles, fays, It was built for those Persons, who heard the Musicians when they disputed for was under the Protection of Mars. On the 4th the Prize; but the Description he gives thereof, Day of it was celebrated the Solemnity of Mun- lets us understand, that the Odeum was built dus Patens. See Mundus Patens. On the 12th Theater-wife; for, he fays, it had Seats and Pillars all round it, and was made with a sharp Top, with Masts and Sail-yards taken from the Perfians. Cratinus the Comick Poet, upon this Occanon fays by way of Raillery, that Pericles had ordered the Form of the odeum of Arbens, according to the Shape of his own Head, which was tharp, infomuch that the Poets of his Time when they were minded to ridicule him in their Plays, intended him under the Name of Fupiter, Scinos Cephalos; that is, one who hath a sharp Head, like a Tooth-picker, which the Ancients made of a Shrub called Scinos, which is the Maftick.

OEDIPUS; the Son of Laius and Focasta; Laius, King of Thebes, having married Focasta, the Daughter of Creon, understood by the Oracle, that they should have a Son born of that Marfacificed to Mars. Plutarch gives Two Reasons riage, who should kill him; which made him for this Ceremony; the first was to punish the command focasta to strangle all the Children Horse for the Taking of Troy; the second, be | she should bear: Oedipus being born, his Mother gave him to a Soldier to kill him, in pursuance to the King's Command, but he contented himtelf to make holes in his Feet, and to run an ved that spectacles were known to the Ancient Ozier Twig thro' them, wherewith he hung him Greek and Latin Poets; for it would be very to a Tree upon Mount Citharon. Phorbas, one ftrange if they had had any knowledge of them, of Polybius his Shepherds, who was King of Cothat they never took an occasion to name them, rinth, finding the Infant hanging in that manand to make any Diversion with them upon the ner, and taking pitty of him, he made a Prefent of him to the Queen, who brought him up should make no manner of mention of them in as her own Child; they gave him the Name of Oedipus, because of the Swelling that remained in his Feet, which had been pierced through. cite certain Fragments out of Plautus; fuch as When he grew up, he went to confult the Oracle, in order to know who was his Father, answer and the Figure graven upon a Marble at Sulmo : was made, That he should find him in Phocus; But Dati, in a 'idertation of his, has thewed upon which he went thither, and meeting with us the Weakness of all these Arguments. M. him in a popular Tumult, he killed his Father Spon, in the 16 Differtation, of his Searches af- Laius, and did not know him, as he endeavoured ter Antiquity, fave, That Speciacles were invent- to appeale them. Juno being an Enemy to the ed in the Time of Alexander Spina, a Dominican Thebans, fent the Monster Sphinx near unto Thebes, that had the Face and Speech of a Virgin, the Body of a Dog, the Tail of a Dragon, and *Ihave been forced to retain the Greek word, the Claws of a Lion, with the Wings of a Bird. for it could not have been rendred into French the proposed some Enigmatical Questions or "(no more can it into English) but by a Peri- Riddles to all Passengers, and if they could not phrasis, which also would have been very dif- resolve the same, she presently devoured them, infomuch that no Body durst come near the flay it took its Name from Oenotrius the Are-City: Hereupon they had Recourse to the Ora- dian, as Pausanias; but Varro will have it from cle, who answered, they could not be freed from Oenorius, King of the Sabines: This Name was this Monster, unless this Riddle were explain- afterwards given to all Italy. ed, viz. What Animal it was that in the Morning went upon Four Feet, at Noon upon Two, from Macedonia, and is famous for the Death of and at Night upon Three. Creon, who had pof- Hercules, who from it was called Octaus: this feft himself of the Kingdom after the Death Mountain abounded in Hellebore. of Laim, caused it to be published throughout all Greece, that he would quit his Kingdom, and Founder of the City of Ibebes about 1500 give Focasta, Lains his Widow, for a Wife to Years before the City of Rome, according to any one that should explain the Riddle: Oedipus Varro, L. 3. de Re rustica, tho' others attridid it, and explained it thus; faying, That it was bute the Founding thereof to Cadmus. St. Aua Man, who in his Infancy crawled upon all Fours guffine relates that a greater Deluge happenlike a Beaft, leaning upon his Hands and Feet; ed in this King's Time, than that of Deuce that at Years of Maturity he went only upon | lion. his Two Feet; and at laft being broken with Age, leaned upon a Stick as he walked. The Phanicia and Syria, famous for the Reidence of Monfter feeing her felf overcome, and trans- Calpple, who there entertained Ulyfles after his ported with Rage, went and knock'd her own Shipwrack, and with whom he stud Seven Years. Brains out against a Rock. Oedipus as his Reward had the Kingdom given him, and ignorantly married his own Mother Jocalta. In the mean time the Gods fent a terrible Plague upon Athens, to revenge the Death of Laius, which, according to the Oracle, whom they consulted Calypsus; and this he seems to say in savour of for that Purpole, was not to cease, but with the Banishment of him who had killed him: Upon this they had Recourse to the Art of Negromancy, for the Discovering of him, and it was from Queen Calypso. Lucian ridicules Homer and found to be oedipus; who then coming to know Ulffer upon this Occasion very pleafantly, his Crimes, put out both his Eyes, and con-demned himself to perpetual Banishment: He withdrew when he was very old to Aibens, to that Hero charg'd him to carry a Letter to Cadie there, according to the Order of the Ora- lypso into the Island of Ogygia; but herein he cle, near the Temple of the terrible Goddeffes, in a Place named Equeltris Colonus, where Nepsune, surnamed Equestrie, was worshipped.

OCTA-

very beautiful Daughter, called Hippodamia; calls Ogyges or Thisbe, and was built by a Prince when he understood by the Oracle, that his Son- of that Country called Ogyges: The Name of in-Law should be the Cause of his Death, he the said Prince gives some Cause to think, that would not give his Daughter in Marriage to any | Fabius Pillor speaks of Gomer under the Name one but he who should outdo him in a Race, or of Ogyges, and that Ogyges, Saturn and Gomer in elfe lose his Life: Pelops, who was in Love with that Age were the same Person: The Reason Hippodamia, accepted of the Offer, and having whereof is, that that Ogyges of Ptolomy reign'd bribed Myrtilus, Oenomaus his Charioteer, he a little after the Deluge, as Paufanias and Berecaused the Chariot to break in the middle of the sassure us. Race, and threw down Oenomaus, who was killed with his Fall; fo that by this means he got cellent Mufician, and Player upon firing'd Inthe Kingdom, and married Hippodamia.

fell in Love with handsome Paris, and foretold of into Greece: He was also the first who at the him the Misfortunes he should one Day bring Obsequies of Pribon play'd a mournful Tune afupon his Country by flealing away Helen. Dillys | ter the Lydian Mode. Cretenfis fays, when the faw the Body of Paris, which was brought to her to be buried, she died of Grief.

O L NOTRIA: that Part of Italy which rene, which made the Poets take it for Heaven; lies towards Sicily, and called so from the they feign'd that Jupiter governed Olympus, that Plenty of Wines it produceth. Some Authors is Heaven.

OETA; a Mountain which divides Theffele

OGYGES, King of the Thebans, and the OGYGIA; an Island between the Seas of There is Reason to believe, that the Island of Cgygig is an imaginary Thing only. Plutarch places it in the Ocean Five Days fail from Britannia towards the West. Pliny puts it in the Mediterranean, near unto Locris, and calls it Homer, and to let us see that that Poet had some Reason to make Ulysses go into the Isle of Ogygia. where that Hero received some secret Favours where he fays in his Caleftial Navigation, that he found Ulyffes in the lile of the Bleffed, and that would not have himself forget that from the very Beginning of his Story he had protested he would not tay a Word of Truth. Prolomy OENOMAUS, King of Elin, who had a speaks of a Town in Boosia in Greece, which he

OLYMPUS: a Phrygian, who was an exstruments, and according to Plutarch, in his OENONE; a Nymph of Mount Ida, who Treasife of Musick, brought the Invention there-

> OLYMPUS: Mount Olympus, scituated in that Part of Theffaly which is towards Macedomia: Its very high, and the Air there always for were fo named. These Games are also called luge pronounced Oracles, bini, because Iphicus instituted them, or at least wile renewed the Solemnities of them. The first Olympiad began in the Year of the World 3938, and of the Julian Period, An. 3208, and But this is to make the Ulage of Oracles to exist impiads.

either because he revived the Ceremonies there- amongst the Gentiles. of that had been neglected, or because he added to the Magnificence of the fame; they were ce- what Homer fays concerning the Oracle of Jupiter City of Elis: They became so solemn that the he might learn of the Oak-Trees the way to get Greeks made them their Epalt to reckon their back to Itbaca: However, Herodorus fays, that Years by, which were called Olympiads, and this the Phanicians having stole away Two Prolafted after the Reform of the Calender even to | pheteffes from Thebes in Egypt; one of them they Apallo after his Victory at Adium.

the Earth, because of its Power to give us Re-, has followed this Opinion. lief: Opis differs from Ops, and is one of the Names of Diana among the Greeks, because she affifted Women in Labour: Its also the Name of one of Diana's Nymphs in the Encids, L. 4. first Gods of the Latins.

ORACULUM, an Oracle; an ambiguous and obscure Answer which the Heathen Gods spoke by their Mouths: The Madness and Blindness of the Heathers in respect to their Oracles cannot be sufficiently admired, the same being captious and obscure, and nothing else but

OLYMPIADES; the Olympiads; a Chro- i the pure Artifice of the Priefts without any. Diamological Term, being the Space of Four Years: bolical Operation: The Custom of Confulting The Greeks reckoned by Olympiads, every one the Oracles was not known in the Golden Age, of which contained the Space of Four whole wherein they lived in Tranquillity of Mind, and Years; and these Olympiads took their Name perfect Innocence, whereas afterwards the infrom the Olympick Games, that were celebrated constant and refiles Humour of Mankind lead war the City of Pija, otherwise called Olympia, them to make Enquiry after Futurity : Ovid inin Peloponesus, from whence the faid Games deed fays, that Themu in the Time of the De-

Fatidicamque Themin que tune Oracla tenebat.

777 Years before Christ's Nativity: The Pelo- in the first Ages against the Judgment of Star wachen War began the first Year of the 87 0- cins, and what we read in the Scripture. For tho' God spoke to Adam and to Noab, yet 'tis OLYMPICI, Ludi is understood; the 0- certain that Divine Apparitions and Predictions, Impick Games: They were famous Games a- Divinations and the Responses of Oracles did mongft the Greeks that confifted of Five forts of not begin to be frequent till the Time of Abra-Exercises, viz. Running, Whorlbat or Quoiting, bam, to whom God began to make Promises of lumping and Wrestling: Pelops was accounted the Land of Canain; that is, that it was not till to be the Instituter of them after the successful, the second Millenium was expired, when Men be-Battle he fought against Ocnoman, whereby he | gan to be engaged to the Service of God by Proobtained Hippodamia. however Hercules depri- miles and frequent Predictions of future Bleived him of Part of the Glory of this Institution, lings: And this the Devil delay'd not to imitate

I do not know of any thing more ancient than tebrated every Fourth Year near unto Olympia a at Dolona, which Ulyffes went to confult, that the Reign of Constantine; those who won the carried to Lybia, and the other to Greece; Prize were so much honoured, that when they and that these set up Two Oracles, the one return'd to their own Country, a Piece of the Jupiter Ammon in Affrica, and the other Jupiter Wall was beat down that they might enter tri- Dodoneus in the Oak-Tree Grove of Dodona; umphantly in a Chariot into the City; Cato thus Oracles had their Beginning in Egypt, and brought these Games to Rome, and Augustus in from thence passed into Lybia and Greece: Oflimted others like them which he dedicated to thers have faid, that they were Two Doves that were brought up at Thebes, which deliver-OPS; the Romans gave the Name of Ops to ed Oracles at Dodona and Ammon: Silius Italicus

In gremio Thekes geminas fedife columbas.

Strabo fays, that the Oracles of Dodona and. And thus Servius speaks concerning this Distincti- of Jupiter Olympius were filent in his Time; he on of Names; Cum Terramdicimus, hec Ops facit, speaks elsewhere at large of the Oracle at Delf Nympham dicamus, bac Opie: si divitias, ba opes phos. Tacitus informs us, that Germanicus conmmero tantum plurali: We have faid before, inlted the Oracle of Apollo at Colopbon in Afia: that Culum and Terra, Saturn and Ops were the The Priest went down to it into a Cave, after having only taken the Names and Number. of fuch as came to confult it, and answered all of them in Verse tho' he had not fludied at all for Priests made to the People concerning Things | it. Lucian in his Treatise de Dea Syria, or the Godto come, by making them to believe that the dess of Syria, speaks of an Oracle of Apollo, wherein that God gave Answers himself, whereas otherwise his Priests did it. When he was about to predict any thing, he shook himfelt: then his Priefts took him upon their Shoulders, and if they did not, he moved himfelfand | were concerned with Oracles; but for the Re-* fweated; when they took him up, he led them where he pleafed, guiding them as a Coach- Chief Prieft asked what he had a mind to know. if otherwise he advanced forwards, and I have feen him once raife himself up and pass thro' the Air: This is the Way they come to know his Will: and they do nothing either in Pub-*lick or Private without having first consulted him: He foretells the Change of Times and Seafons, and even Death it felt.

Cicero obierves that all Nations have taken their Divinations from fuch things as were most familiar to them; the Egyptians and Babilonians from the Stars: The Tulcans, from the Entrails of the Beafts they factificed: The Arabs, Phrygians and Cilicians, who were always in the Fields, from the Flight and Singing of Birds: Ammianus Marcellinus speaks of a singular Way of Divination need among the Scyrbians, with long Staves, (which the Women made Choile of) being that which was called Rhabdomancy, whereof the Scripture gives us an Example in the Af-(yians who made use of it. The Words of Ammianus are thefe; Futura miro prajagiunt modo. Nam rectiores wirgas famina colligentes, enfque cum incantamentu quibusdam secretu prestituto sempore discernentes, aperte quid portendatur norunt. Nebuchodonozer laying Siege to Ferujalem, made u.e. of Three different Ways in order to know the Event of his Enterprize, Commiscens sagittas, interrogavit Idola, exta consuluit; he ufed Rhabdomancy by mixing and unmixing his Arrows; consulted the Idols, that is the Oracles; and inspected the Entrails of Beafts. And thus the Affirians and Babilonians might very well communicate their Superstitions to the Egyptians, who might afterwards fend them from thence into Greece; for in Homer we have neither any Inspection made into the Entrails of Bearts, no Oracles of the Idols confulted, nor any Rhabdomancy; they were the Oak-Trees at Dodona, and not the Idols that delivered Oracles. Herodosus treats at large of the Rhabdomancy of the Scythians, and Strabo speaks concerning that of the Perhans.

There is no Certainty that Damons delivered Oracles, they were the Priests of those false Gods that did it, and who for Money made whatever Aniwer the Enquirer pleased; and upon this Account a little Treatile in Latin writ by Van-Dalen, Doctor of Phylick, may be confulted : Its true, that Mabius pretends to refute Van-Dalen, and one of the greatest Arguments he produces is this; That God forbad the Children of Ifrael to consult Vizzards and Spirits of Divination; from whence he concludes, that

futing hereof, it may be laid, That God speaks of no other than Magick and Negromaner. mandoes his Horses, turning this or that Way, wherewith the Demons without doubt concernand paffing from one to the other, until the cd themselves: I need do no more than relate a Passage out of Lucian's Dialogue concerning If the Thing displeased him he went back, but | Alexander the Quack, to convince People, that the Imposture and Malice of Men had a greater Share in those Oracles than the Damons, unless it may be faid that those who took upon them to deliver Oracles were themselves inspired by the Spirit of the Damon. Lucian's Words are thefe: 'That Impostor finding a favourable Opportunity, delivered Oracles for Money, according to the Example of Amphilocus; who after the Death of his Father Amphiaraus, being driven out of Thebes, withdrew into Afia, where he predicted Things to come for a Half-Penny apiece to the Barbarians: Then he gave them Notice that the God himself in such a Time would give them Answers, and that every one should write his Defire in a Letter sealed: After which, shutting himself up in the Sanctuary of the Temple, he called them all who had given him their Letters, according to their turn by an Herald, and return'd them lealed to them with the God's Answer. It would not be difficult for a Man of Sence to find out the Cheat, but these foolish People did not perceive that he opened every Letter, and after he had inferred what Answer he thought fit, returned them sealed up as before; for there are several ways to open Letters without breaking the Seal; and I will give fome Infrances hereof, that so a piece of Subtilty may not pass for a Miracle: In the first place you may with an hot Needle loofen the Wax that fixes the I hread to the Letter, without breaking the Seal at all, and when you have read what you have a mind it may be closed up in the same manner: There is another Invention for this Purpole, and that confifts of Line and Glew; or is prepared with Maffick compounded with Pitch, Wax and Brin frone, mixed with the Powder of a very transparent Stone, whereof they make a Ball, with which while the same is yet soft they take off the Impression of the Seal, after they have rubbed it with Hogs-greafe, for it hardens pre ently, and ferves to make an impretion as if it were the Seal it felf.

Many have thought that Oracles ceafed upon the Coming of Chrift, as Eufebius for one, who grounds his Opinion upon a Paffage raken out of Porphyrice 'I'll tell thee the I ruth concerning the Oracles of Delphos and Claros, fays Apollo to his Prieft: Formerly there came out of the Bowels of the Earth an infinite Number of Oracles, and from Fountains and Exhalations, which inspired them with Divine Raptures; but the Earth by the continual Changes which Pribon, by which form Damons were meant, Time has introduced; has reaffumed, and cadand Exhalations : There are no more left but the Waters of Mycale in the Plains of Didymus, tandthose of Clavos, and the Oracle of Parnassus. Now this Passage does not say, that Oracles were mafed; and moreover, it excepts Three of them; which is enough to shew us, that Oradesdid not cease at the Coming of Christ, seeing also we have several Proofs to the contrary Ancient Writers, who make it appear, that fo called, because that in the Grecian Theaters, Oracles lafted above 400 Years after Chrift's it was a Place where they kept their Balls from Coming, and that they were not wholly filenced but with the total Deftruction of Paganism. Suemins in Nero's Life, fays, That the Oracle of Delplor forewarn'd him to beware of 73 Years; and that Nero believed he should not die before that time, not dreaming that Old Galba, who was of that Age, should disposses bim of the Empire. Philostrasus in the Life of Apollonius Tyasaus, who law Domitian, tells us, that Apollonim vilited all the Oracles of Greece, and particularly those of Dodona, Delphos, and Amphiaraus. Platarch, who lived in the Reign of Trajan, informs us, that the Oracle at Delphos was still in being, though the was reduced to one ringle Prieffels, whereas the formerly had Two or Three. Dion Chrysoftome under Adrian, relates, That he had confulted the Oracle of Delphos, and had received an Answer, which to him seemed very intricate. In the Days of the Antonimu's, Lucian fays, that a Prieft of Tyana went to enquire of the falle Prophet Alexander, if the Uracles which were delivered at Didimus, Clares, and Delphos were the true Answers of beloor impostures. After the Antonines, Three others contended for the Empire, viz. Severus Semimius, Pefcenninus, Niger, and Clodius Albinus. They confulted the Oracle of Delphos, Lays Spartianus, to know which of the Three was best for the Commonwealth, and the Oracle made Answer in a Verse: The Black is the Best, the African is Good, the White is the Worst. Dion who did not finish his History before the 9th Year of the Emperor Alexander Severus, that is An. Dom. 230. fays, that ftill in his Time Ambilocus delivered Oracles in a Dream: He alfo informs us, that there was an Gracle in the Ciwas delivered as the lire took hold of the in-Reign of Aurelian, about the Year 272, the Revolted Palmirenians confulted the Oracle of Apallo Sarpedonius in Cilicia; and they also confulted that of Venus Aphacits. A Deiry much mknown, named Befa, delivered also Oracles upon Letters at Abida, in the fartheft Part of Thibais, in the Reign of the Emperor Constanin. Laftly, Macrobius, who lived in the Time d'Arcadius and Lionorius, Theodofius his Sons, speaks of a Deity at Heliopolis, in Syria, and or m Oracle: But Theodofius the Younger having Lippus in this Manner.

sed them to re-enter into her felf, Fountains; that up all the Temples of the falle Gods, and rafed that of Serapis in Egypt; all the Oracles became filent, and Paganism was upon Pain of Life forbidden to be publickly practifed; by the Edicts of Valentinian III. and Marsianus in the Year 451.

ORCHESTRA; the lower Part of the Theater, made in the Form of a Semi-Circle, and shut up at the midst of the Steps: It was opyeisar, which fignifies to dence. The orchefira among the Greeks made a Part of the Scene ; but at the Roman Theaters none of the Actors went down to the Orchefira, which was taken up with Seats for the Senators: The Orchestra now adays is the Place where a Confort of Mufick is placed; formerly it was the middle of all the Theater, which confifted of Three Parts, to wit, the Steps or Seats, which we call the Theater; and the Orchestra, which is named the Pit: Among the Romans it was the Place where they placed the Senators; but among the Greeks it was where they danced or kept their Balls that made part of their Plays.

ORCUS; this comes from the Caldee Word Arequa, which fignifies the Earth, in a Text of Fereny, and is but a Dialect of the Hebrew A retfa, and this \\ ord is taken for Hell.

OR ADES, Nymphs of the Mountains, which were fo called from the Greek Word of .

that fignifies a Mountain. ORESTES; the Son of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra, who put her Husband Agamemnon to Death to revenge the Death of her Daughter Polyxena whom he had facrificed. Orestes and Eleara his Sifter killed Clytemneftra, that the Death of their Farner might not go unpunished: Orestes after this Parricide ran mad, and with his Friend Pylades fled into Scythia; he landed at Tauros whither Ephigenia had been transported by Diana, and where the was her Prieffels. to offer all Strangers who landed in that Country in Sacrifice to that Goddels: Orester was taken and he had very like to have been facrificed by his Sifter, who did not know him; but tyof Apollonia, where what flould come to pals at last coming to be acquainted one with another, confe, which was thrown upon the Altar: In the ried with them Diana's Statue, after they had killed Those who was King of that Country: Oreftes returned to Athens, where after the Putifications appointed him by the Oracle, he came to himself again, and went to reside at Orestes a City in Arcadia, where he died with the ftinging of a Serpent: The Scythians adored Pylades and Creftes as Gods, and built them Temples and Altars, as Lucian in his Dialogue of Toxaris or of Friendship, informs us, wherein he brings in Toxaric who was a Scythian, speaking to Mene-

Toxar. Observe how the Barbarians (for so | Orion: Hefied makes Neptune to be his Failer they call us) have better Sentiments of the and Euryale the Daughter of Minos his Mother; Greeks, than the Greeks themselves: We have He tells us, he had obtained a Power of Norther built Temples for those Men, whom you have to walk as lightly upon the Water, as have not as much as erected Funeral Monuments for. did over the Heads of Ears of Corn: Being gone Where will you find a noble Tomb either for one Day from Thebes to Chio, he ravished Mere Orestes or Pylades in Argos and Messena; whereas | Enopian's Daughter, who struck him blind; and they are adored by the Septians? And tho' they were no Strangers, you have not thought them worthy of this Honour: But Vertue is adorable even in Enemies, wherefore what they he went afterwards to ravish Diana, she cantel have done for one another is graven in the him to be flung by a Scorpion, whereof, as PA-Temple of Oreftes upon a Brass-Pillar, and 'tis the first Thing we teach our Children: Their relates, that 'twas Diana her felf that thet him Actions are also set on the Walls of the Tem-! ple, where may be seen on one Side a Ship dash- she had that Aurora was in Love with him: And ing her felf to Pieces against a Rock, and this is confirmed by Plutarch in his Fortune of the those Two Heroes led Prisoners along, and Romens, where he says, that Orion was beloved crowned like Victims that were to be facrificed; of a Goddess: Diana in Compassion made him and on the other they are represented with a Constellation (placing him before the Feet of their Arms in their Hands, breaking their Taurus) which confifts of 17 Stars, in Form like Chains, and defending their Liberty at the Expence of many a Man's Life, and even of King "Thous's, then they carry away Diana and her Prieftels, they are purfued as they begin to 'fail and their Ship attacked, but they make a agallant Reliftance, and at last fave themselves by Swimming, being either wounded themfelves or amazed with the Wounds of others.

ORGIA; a Term made use of by the Heathens, whereby to express the Feafts and Sacririces of Bacchus, which were more particularly celebrated upon Mountains by raving Women called Bacchantes. Servius fays, that at first all forts of Sacrifices were called Orgia in Greece, and the fame at Rome were named Ceremonies.

Four Cardinal Points of the World, where we' fee the Sun and Stars rife: The Point or Tropick of Cancer which interfects the Horizon, is called the Course of Rivers, laid Storms, drew the the Summer-East; and the Winter-East is the the most savage Animals after him, and made -Point of the Horizon that is interfected by Trees and Rocks to move: Having loft his .Capruorn: In Trajan and Adrian's Golden-Coin Wife Eurydice, who shunning the Embraces of the East is found represented by the Sun with this Word Oriens.

sune and Mercury's Urine, who palling through he obtained Leave of Pluto and Profernia the World arrived one Day very late at a poor for her to return, upon Condition he should Countryman's Hutt, whose Name was Hyreus, not look behind him till he got upon Earth, but and who received them very kindly, and in order | being overcome by an amorous impatience, he to entertain them killed the only Ox he had : turned about and loft his Eurydice for ever; up-The Gods to reward his Liberality bid him ask on which he conceived so great an Hatred to what he would for his Reward and he should Women, that he endeavoured to inspire others have it; upon which he prayed them, that he with the fame, and this provoked the Women of might be able to have a Child without being | Thrace to that Degree, that being one Day with drove him from the Island; from whence he went to Lemnos to Vulcan, who brought him to the Sun, that cured him of this Blindness: As lepharus fays, he died. Homer in his Odyfes, L.s. to Death with her Arrows, out of a Jealouse unto a Man armed with a Cutelas: It rifes on the oth of March, bringing Storms and great Rains with it, whence Virgil gave it the Epithet of Orion aquosus; it fets June 21. Lucian in Praise of an House, speaking of the Sculptures which adorn'd the Appartments, favs thus of Orion : 'This next is an old Story of Blind Orio on, which imports, that fome Body shewed him the Way, he ought to follow in order to recover his Eye-fight, and the Sun that appear'd cured him of his Blindness; and this Vulcan contrived in the lile of Lesbos.

ORPHEUS the Son of Oeagrus, or according to others, of Apollo and the Muse Calliope; he was born in Thrace, and was both a ORIENS; the East. The first of the Poet, Philosopher, and an excellent Musican. Mercury having made him a Present of his Harp on which he play'd so exquintely that he flored Aristeus King of Arcadia, trod upon a Serpent, who flung her to Death, he went down to Hell ORION, proceeded from Jupiter, Nep lafter her, where by the Melody of his Mulick married; the faid Gods prefently cauting the Transports of Fury celebrating their Orgis they Ox his Hide which he had killed to be brought fell upon Orpheus, tore him to Pieces, and threw to them, they pilled upon it, and bid him bury his Head unto the River: Lucian writes concemit in the Ground and not trouble himself about ing it in this manner. When the Thracian Woit till Ten Months end: when the Time was ex- 16 men killed Orpheus, 'tis said, his Head which pired he found a Child there, which he called i they threw into the River iwum a long time

Honour of the faid Heroe, and that the Harp rected a Funeral Monument for him, in the Place called a Constellation by its Name. where Bacchus his Temple now stands, but they Thung up his Harp in Apollo's Temple, where the fame was kept a long time till the Son of Pittam having heard fay, that it play'd of it felf, and charmed Woods and Rocks, had a mind to hive it for himfelf; and to bought it for a good Sum of Money of the Sacriffan; but not thinkhing he could play fafely in the City, he went by Night to the Suburbs where as he went athat the Dogs run thither and tore him in Pieces, and fo was attended with the same Fate herein as Orpheus himself. There are some Authers who fay, that the Menules tore Orpheus in Pieces, because he having sung the Genealogy of all the Gods, had faid nothing of Bacchus, and the faid God to be revenged on him caused his Priestelles to kill him. Others fay, this Missorevery one of them being minded to enjoy him, they had in that manner tore him in Pieces.

Cicero fays, that Arifforle thought there never was fuch an one as Orpheus, and that the Poems which were attributed to him, were the Works of a Pythagorean Philosopher. In the mean time, Contrary, time Panjanias makes mention of Orpleus his Tomb, and of the Hynna he had compoled, which he fays, came but little thort or the Elegancy and Beauty of those of Homer, but that his Wit was attended with more Religion and Piety than the others. St. Juffin reports, that travelled into Egyps, that they got there some God: Orpheus, according to this Father, in his Verses tooke very clearly concerning the Unity of Heathen Gods.

h and under the Veil of divers Mytteries and that 160 invented the Sowing and Ufe of Corn, upon his Harp, uttering mournful Tones in | Ceremonies: For the Harp on which he celebrated the Orgia, and fung his Hymns and Songs, being touched by the Winds answered the had Seven Strings which represented the Seven mournful Song; and in this Condition they ar- Planets, for which reason the Greets after his gived at the Ille of Lefbos, where the People e- Death placed the fame in the Firmament and > ORUS or HORUS, King of Egypt; the Son of Ofirie; the Greeks call him Apollo, because perhaps, he divided the Year into Four Seafons, and the Day into Hours. See Horus.

OSIRIS, was a God and King among the Egyptians, to whom they gave also diversother Names: Diodorus Siculus Tays, that some took him for Serapis, others for Bacchus, Pluto, Ammon, Jupiter and Pan. After that Ofirit King bout to touch it; the same made such a dread of Egypt, who was the fifth of the Gods that Iful Noise instead of the Harmony he expected, reigned in that Country, after, I say, Office was killed by his Brother Typhon, it was believed his Soul went into the Body of the Ox Apis, and into all the rest which were successively substituted in his Stead, and this Ox was looked upon as the Image and Soul of Ofiris, according to the Testimony of Diedorus Siculus; and a. there were Two facred Oxen in Egypt, the one named Apis in the City of Memphis, and the other tune befel him by the Resentment of Venus, to called Mnevs in Heliopolis, the same Diedorus whom Calliope Orpheus his Mother had refused to fays, they were both confecrated to Ofris; Tangive Alonin any longer than for 6 Months in the | ros facros tam Apim quam Minevim Ofiride facros & Year, and that to sevenge the same, she made dicatos effe, & pro Diis coli, apud universos proall the Women in Love with Orpheus, and that mifene Agyptios functium eft. Diodorus afterwards fets forth at large how the Worthip and Mysteries of Ofiris were carried from Egypt to Creece under the Name of Bacchus the Son of Semele the Daughter of Cadmus, originally descended from Thebes in Egypt; for the Daughter of Gadmus having had a maftard Child that was very like unto Ofiris, Cadmus to fave the Honour tishard to doubt, there was such an one, after of his Daughter deified her Son after his Death, to many Testimonies of the Ancients to the making him to pass for another ofiris the Son of Jupiter: Orpheus a little after went to Egypt, and in Acknowledgment of the Kindness he had received from Cadmus his family, he publish'd thefe tame Myfteries in Greece but to as to attribute to Semele's Son, all that had been laid of the truc Ofiris leveral Ages before a and fo the Ofiris Orpheus, Homer, Solon, Pythegoras and Plate had of Egypt, and Bucchus, of Creece, the Myfthries of the Egyptian Ofirit, and those of the Grecian Knowledge of the Scriptures, and that afterwards | Bacchus, were one and the lame. | Herodoms atthey retracted what they had before written con- tributes the bringing of this Name, History, cerning the Juperstitious Worship of their falle and Mysteries of Ofiris or the Egyptian Ba-Deities in Favour of the Religion of the true chus into Greece, to Melamous, who was ancienter than : Orpbeus.

The Egyptian Tradition, according to Diato-God, as of him who had been, as it were the rue Siaulus, was, that Giris, His and Typhon were Father of that extravagant Multiplicity of the the sons of Squarn and Rhea, or rather of Jupiter and Juno; that Ofiris is the fame with Bac-The Fable made him after his Death to be chus, and Ifis the fame as Ceres, that Ofris and changed into a Swan, Lucian informs us also in Ifis reigned with extraordinary Mildnels, and his judicial Aftrology, that he gave the Greeks | conferred great Benefits on their Subject, that the first Intight into Astrology, tho' but obicure - they hindred Men to eat one another any more; sind made feveral excellent laws, that office was a points, that was a familus Deity and the brought up at Mys in Whatis Felie, and go reputing, having Miter on its lead, at the ing for one of places sons, they called him to describe the was all Ox's Hom Described in the way and the way have been something to the way and the way have been something the way and the ture, and first taught how to plant Vines. That Hermes or Mercury was his Secretary in facted Things; that he was minded to travel allower the World to teach Mankind the the of Corn and Wine; and in his Absence recommended Mercary to the Service of Ifis, to Hercules the Government of Egypt, to Bufiris that of Phonieta; and Lybia to Antem; that he was accompanied by Apollo his Brother; Anubis, Macedo, Pan and Triprolemus; that having passed over Africa Afia and Europe, he built the City of Nije in the Indies, defeated Lycurgus in Thrace, and at laft returned home; he was killed by his Brother Typhon; that Ifis and Orus his Sons reveng'd his Death , and having flain Typhon, they paid Divine Honours to offre, whole Members if very carefully gathered rogether, which Typhon had divided between the Murderers. Plusarch obferves that the Egyptians took Ofirst for a good Genius, and Typhon for an evil Genius, and the Principle of all Evil. Plutarch wrote a particuhar Treatife concerning Ifis and Ofice, where in an Account is given of the Birth, and great Explores of Ofice, of his Opiquelts, Beliefits to Mankind, the fecret Contrivances of Typhon againft him, his Death, and the Care taken by by writing the Name of him whom they were
The feet his Defication. At lift he pretends minded to banift upon Skelle. Ar filler was Charachis and firs from Body West as they were exiled in this shander, because believe the was too just, became Gods, 352 just regard of their vertue, as Plurarch fays in his Life.

"and that Miss is Thin, and His, Profesional Suches, Sufficiently Providence," who wrote a Treatife ediderating Providence, confines Hillier at most whosly theretil to the Explaining of the Fable or Hifthry of Office File begins with this Reflection, That if the fame be a fable, its ful of Wir, fince the Egyptians were the Authors thereof, and if it be more than a Fable, it delerves our Pains to make a further impection very little Hairt His Peruko may be diffinelly into its he afterwards gives the fame Account observed on his Silver and Gold Medals; and as other Writers have done, of ofiris and Typhon; and fays, that their Father was a King, Prich andia God, because the Egyptims pretended they had been govern it by the Gods before the Kingdom fell into the Hands of Men: After wards he gaves a Derroption of the Reign of other do they do not give to exact a Refemblance of him which was a reign of Juffice; their, the menor, and Libertally a Ref. The inations were conformable to those of News, and banish'd nim, and assuming the Government, reigned in an manner of Pices, and with all imaginable Crueky. But the Patiente of the People being worn out, they recalled ofiris. Typhon was punished by the Gods, and ofirth recovered the Crown. ' M. Spon in his Searches after Antiquity, gives an Account of an Idol of Ofiris: " I remember, Tay's he, that being formerly or procure the Favour of the People: He fluewed both Courage and Bravery against Virellius, his Aaatomy-School, two finall Idols: The first is Competitor for the Empire, and beat him three the Form of an 'Ox, because he had taugh Mankind the Art of Tillage; in his Left Hand he held a Staff Bent at the End, and in his Right a Triangular Instrument: This last was very like unto a Whip with three Cords "Plume favs, that offis commanded over the Dead and might not this Whip be the Enfign of his Authority, as the Furies are represented with a Whip and Torches?

OSSA; & Mountain upon the Prontiers of Theffaly, that is covered all over with Wood and Snow. Seneca fays, that this Mountain was joined to Olympus, But that it was Teparated by the Labour of Hercules : It was a Place of Re-

OST RACISMUS, Oftracijm; it was a kind of Banishment, in tile among the Greek of fuch Perions whole over great Power the People suspected, as fearings least the fame fliguld degenerate into Tyranny . This Banish ment was not accounted different chil, because Lwas not a Pinishiffent inflicted for any Crime: It lafted Ten Years, and in the mean time the exiled Perion capy'd his Effate : it was thus called because the People gave their Suffrages by writing the Name of him whom they were

OTHO ammied M. Simil, was the 8th Emperor, and fucceeded Galba, whom he put to Death: The Medals which we have of his, make him fomewhat 17ke unto Nero, which caused the People to try Ditioni Netoni But yet he was riet to fait the otherwise he had the Mien and Delicacy of a Woman: He was haved every Day, and wore a Peruke, because he had but cwas he that brought the the of Wigs into he-He The Braf Medals of this Prince, which are will of them Ecoprim or Syrian; do not represent him with a Deruke, perhaps, because they did nor know the tale thereof in those Countries; and this Conformity made them contract fo cagire a Friendship, that every Thing was in common between them, even to their Wives, without entertaining the leaft. Jealousie thereupon: However, when Otho became Emperor, he appeared of a better Disposition, and perhaps put a Constraint upon himself, that he might times, but at laft being gulled with Propofals of war and the work of the desired successful Peace, he was defeated; which Mistortune made him refore to kill him etc rathers it free outs in be bettered, out of a sense of live for the Death of to many Men that lost their Lives in endeavouring to import him, than out of an Ef-Minfelf was looked upon as a great Action among the Romans : Suctonius cannot forbear admiring him, faying, That tho' he had the Complexion of a Woman, he being fair, clear-skinned, and without Hair, of a middle Starure, with fmall Feet, yet his Body was not answerable to fo much Resolution as he shewed at his

OVATIO; an Ovation; a leffer Triumph amongst the Romans, which was allowed some Commanders that had won a Victory without the Effusion of much Blood, or for the Defeating of Rebels, Slaves, Pyrates, or other unworthy Enemies of the Republick of Rome. Their Entry was on Foot, and sometimes on Horse-back, but never in a Chariot; and they wore Crowns of Myrtle, which they called Ovales, having all the Senate following of them. This Word Ovagreat. Triumphs they facrificed a Bull; others de-Joy made by the People, in Honour of the So- Afporto. lemnity: Tais fort of leffer Triumph was eftathe Defeating of the Sabines, brought up the Cuftom of it.

at Sulmo, a confiderable Town of the Peligni, in haly, in the Confulthip of Hirtius and Panfa, that is in the Year of Rome 711. He was banish'd Love to Fulia, Augustus his Daughter, or as othe Actin Year of the Reign of Tiberius, and 17th of our Redemption: The Sweetness that is to be met with in feveral Parts of this Poets Works, makes us concerned for those that are loft, as the Six laft Books de Faftis &c. He gives an Account himself of the Cause of his Banishment and Ruine in the following Diftick.

lle ego qui fueram tenerorum lusor amorum, Inger io perii Nafo Poesa meo.

PALICH

and bout serve has been and passeoffed our end believe D is a Conforant, and the 13th Letter in the Alphabet, being a Numeral Letter that nignifies 100, according to Ugurion, but ha onius believes it fignifies a Septenary Number: When a little dash is put over it, it flands for 400000. The Pand B are fo like one another, that Quintilius declares, that in the Word bbtinuir, his Reaton required him to put a b, But that his Ears bould hear nothing but a p, oprimuit For which Reaion we fee in ancient inscriptions and old Gosfes that these two Letters have been often confound ed, as apfens for abfens, obsimus for optimus, pleps tor plebs, poplicus for publicus, &c. Hence alfo we have suppone for subpene, and oppone for obpene; ftill in use. Several Narions'also often pronounce one of these Letters for the other, as the Gerus mans particularly, who fay ponum binum for benum vinum. The Greeks often put them for one: another; and Pluterch fays, that 'twas usual with thole of Delphos, to lay Barely for martin, Buply! tio, according to Servius, is derived from Ovis, for winger: And fo among the Latins, as often because the Conqueror facrificed a sheep only as an s followed, the b was changed into a p, as upon this Occation to Jupiter, whereas in the feribo, feriph: These two Letters have also this in common, that they often dip into Words, rive it from those Acclamations and Shouts of where there is no need of them, as Alporto for PACTOLUS: a River in Lydia, that rifes blished in the Year of Rome 250 or 251, and in Mount Imolus; it brings Golden Sands nown was the Conful Postbumius Tabertus, that after with it: The Poets seigned this Gold Sand proceeded from Midas his having walked himfelf therein, and that he left there the Gift which OVIDIUS NASO; a Latin Poet, born he had received from Bacobus to change all Things." into Gold.

PÆ A N; a Song of Rejoycing, fung in H6pour of Apollo. Io Pean, the Original of this into the Province of Pontus in Afia, for making Word was this: Apollo being grown up, bothought himself of the Injury which his Mother !thers will have it, for writing lalcivious Verses, had received from the Serpent Python, and so touching the Art of Love: He died at Tomos, engaging with her in a Fight, he flew her with January 1st, of the CXCIX Olympiad, that is in his Arrows: During the Combat, these Words. were heard repeated, lo Past; from hence it became a Custom to fing the same at the Publick Games, at Triumphs and Victories both in Reme and Greece: This Song was also made use of af- ; ter a Victory, in Honour of Murs; as it was likewife for the Curing of some Sickness, wherewith any were afflifted ; and then they addressed. themselves to Apollo the God of Physick.

PÆON, Endymion's Son, and the Brother of Eneue, who in a Race being out-done by him, religned the Kingdom to him, according to A. greement : Then he retired towards the River Axes, and gave Name to that Part of the Country of Macedon, which was called Paonin There ? was another Person of this Name, who had great if Skill in Physick, and who cured Plute of the grievous eules.

PALEMON, the Son of Athamas and Ino. called before Melicertus, but took upon him this Greek Name of Palamon, when that being thrown into the Sea with his Mother Ino, they were both deified by Neptune, and reckoned amongst the Gods of the Sea: The Latins gave him the Name of Portumnus, because that they committed the Care of Ports and Havens unto him. Theleus instituted Plays in Honour of him, called the Mibmian Games, where the Victors were crowned with Branches of Pine.

PALÆSTRA; was a publick Building among the Greeks, for the Performing of all forts | Calf they took out of the Cow's Belly, that they of Exerciles, as well of Body as Mind, as confifting of a College and an Academy, in the Sence wherein the Words are modernly taken: Tho the greatest part of Authors take Palastra to be but as an Academy for bodily Exercises, according to the Etymology of the Word, which comes from rahas, that in Greek fignifies Wreftling, which was one of the most famous Exercises among the Ancients: I his was one of the Diverfions at the Olympick Games, and there was a Prize affign'd for it. Foyls are Slights in Wrestling. Philostrum made a Picture of the Palatra, which is represented like a young Nymph till of Vigour and Strength, and he would have her to be Mercury's Daughter, who invented this fort of Exercise in Arcadia.

of the Itle of Eubes, and an irreconcilable Enemy to Unifes; be added Four Letters to the es of Olive, Pine and Lawrel, and threw some Greek Alphabet, E, A, X, O. He also invented Weights and Mealures: He appointed the Watch-word to be given in Armies, and the Way to form a Battallion according to the Flying of Cranes, which for that Realon were called Palamedes his Birds. They make him to be a great Aftrologer, he having regulated the Years according to the Course of the Sun, and the Months according to that of the Moon: He was floned to Death by the Greeians, being falfly accused of holding intelligence with Priamus by PALATINUS: Mount Palatine; one of the Seven Hills of Rome, and so called either from the Palantes, who came and dwelt there with Evander, or from Palantia, Latinus his Wate, or from Pales the Goddels of Shepherds. The King's Palace frood upon this Mountain. and from hence King's Courts came to be cal-1:d Palatia. Romulus was brought up on this Monnt.

PALES: the Goddess of Shepherds, who was beloved of Apollo: There was a Feaft celebrated in Honour of Apollo, April 20 or 21, by offering Sacrifices, and making great Fires of Straw of Hay, which were kindled with great Rejoy-grievous Wounds he had received from Her- | cings, and by Sound of Drums and Trumpets the Country People leaped over these Fire and purified their Cattle therewith, in order in keep them from the Mange, and other Diftern pers. See Palilia.

PALILIA; they were Feafts, and Public Rejoycings made as well in the City as Country April 20th, in Honour of Pales the Goddels of Flocks, to intreat her to make them fruitful: and preferve them from the usual Difeates. Fires were kindled both in City and Country, fuch as are at this Day used in Popish Territories on St. Fobn's Eve: And the fame were made with Bean-ftraw, Horfe-blood and Calves-Afhes, which facrificed on the Day of the Fordicidia, at what time the Chief of the Veftal Virgins' bornt those Calves, and gathering the Ashes very carefully up, they referved the same for a Perfume on the Day of the Palilia, that fo the People and their Cattle might be purified therewith: Twas to her that they went to fetch those Athes, which afterwards they threw into the Fire, as Ovid tells us, Faft. L.4. V.721.

I, pete virgineà populus sustimen ab arà: Velta dabis. Velta numine purus eris. Sanguis equi suffimen erit, vitulique favilla. Tereta res. dura culmen inane faba.

The People danced about the Fire, and purified PALAMEDES; the Son of Nauplins, King | themselves thus: In the Country they lighted a great Fire in the Morning, made of the Branch-Brimftone upon it, then went to fetch their Cattle, which they drove round it, and drew in the Smell that came therefrom: This Ceremony Ovid describes at large :

> Paftor oves faturas ad prima crepuscula luftret. Uda priùs spargat, virgaque verrat bumum. Frondibus & fixis decorentur ovilia ramis, Et tegat ornatas longa corona fores. Carulei fiant puro de julfure fumi, Taltaque fumanti fulfure balet ovis. Ure mares oleas, tedamque, berbasque Sabinas, Es creper in mediis laurus adufta focis.

They afterwards offered Sacrifice to the Goddess which contifted of Milk, boiled Wine and Millet, the tame being accompanied with Vows and Prayers for the Fruitfulnels and Preservation of their Flocks, then they fell to eat and divert themselves, leaping over the lire which they had kindled with Straw or Bean-straw. These Feafts were also performed in Honour of Rome's Original, which was on that Day founded by

PALICI;

PALICI; they were Gods famous in Sicih: Diodorus Siculus fays, the Temple of thefe heiries was much reverenced and very ancient: fome terrible Punishment. Some loft their Evethe most intricate Causes: This Temple was also used as an Asylum, for such Slaves as were opprest by their Masters; the Masters not daring to break the Oath they took there, that they would use them more kindly. Silius Italiou in a Line and an half has exprest all that Diodorus lays.

Et qui prasenti domitant perjura Palici Pedora Supplicio.

Macrobius observes very well that the River Symens being in Sicily, the Temple of the Palici was there also, according to Virgil;

Symetia circum Flumina, pinguis ubi & placabilis ara Palici.

He adds, that the first Poet that mentioned it was Efquilus, a Sicilian; he relates a Fable out ravilled, and who for fear of Juno hid her felt in the Earth: At the Time of her Delivery, the brought forth Two Brothers, which were called Palici, and To maker interface, as being fuch as had entred into the Earth, and came out again. The Word Palici comes from the Hebrew Palidin, that fignifies venerabiles, colendi; and from Pelach, colere, venerari. And Efquilus himfelf feems to intimate as much by this Sentence; Summus Palicos Jupiter venerabiles voluit vocari. Hesychius lays, that the Father of these two Brothers was Adraun, which Name comes from the Hebrew Adir, which is one of God's Eulogies, fignifying, Glorious and Illustrious. The I wo Basons where the Oaths were taken, were called Delli, and from whence Divine Vengeance broke out upon the Periored, as Macrobius fays, and Callias after him; but this is an Arabick Word, and in all likelihood was Phanician; for Dalla in Arabick fignifies as much as indicare; perhaps, it might come from the Hebrew Daal, i. e. baurire; for Aiffeile affures us, that he who swore writ his Oath upon a Note, which he threw into the Water, the Note swam upon the Surface. If he fwore what was true, otherwise it disappeared. ovid gives a natural Description enough of these two Lakes, in his Mer. Lib. 5. V. 405.

Perque lacus altos & olentia sulphure fertur Stagna Palico um, rupta ferventia terra.

.PALILIA, fee next after Pales. PALINURUS: a Companion of Eneas, who being overcome with Sleep, fell with his In it there were two very deep Basons of boil- Helm over-board into the Sea, and being carried ing and (ulphurous Water, which were always as far as Port Velino, the Inhabitants rified him full without ever running over: In this Temple and caft him to the Sea again: But a little after it was that they took the most solemn Oaths, they were afflicted with a severe Plague, which and Perjuries were there presently punished with | made them go and consult the Oracle of Apollo; who answered that they must appeale the Ghost ight, insomuch that those Oaths determined of Palinurus, in Pursuance of which Advice, they confecrated a Grove to him, and erected a Tomb for him upon the next Promontory, which obtained the Name of Palinurus.

PALLA, a fort of Garment long in Use both by Men and Women, which the Kings and ancient Romans wore; and even those who appeared upon the Stage were wont to wear this long Robe, as Plantus fays.

PALLADIUM: the Palladium was a Statue of Pallas, which feil down from Heaven, in the keeping of which confifted the Fate of Troy, Ulyfjes and Diomedes creeping through the Gutters into the Temple that was in Troy, took away the Palladium: Diomedes after the Deftruction of Troy, going into Italy, gave the Palladium to Fneas, in Pursuance to the Commands of the Gods: Eneas deposited the same at Lavinium, where it continued. It was afterwards carried to Rome into the Temple of Vefta; nevertheless, Appian in his History of the Mithriof him, concerning a Nymph whom Jupiter had | datick War, fays, that when Fimbria ruined Ilium he boafted he had there found the Palladium whole among the Ruines : Dionyfius of Halicarnassis of Opinion, there were Two of these Statues of Palles one of which was taken away by Uliffes and Diomedes during the Seige of Troy, and another that was left there. Others affure us, that the Trojans made another Palladium exactly like the true one, and that it was the false one which the Grecians took away: Dionyfius of Halicarnassus his Words are these: 'The Oracle having affured them the Town would be impregnable, and the Kingdom remain unshaken, as long as thole facred Pledges were there: The Romans in all Likelihood feigned that there were Two Palladiums, or that there was one made like unto the other, that they might not be oblig'd to confess that they had loft the Pledge of the Eternity of their Empire.

PALLAS, a Goddess who came out of Jupiter's Brain compleatly armed, by the Help of Valean, who cleft his Head with a very sharp Ax : the was brought up near the Lake Triton, from whence the was called by the Poets Tritonia, they made her to be the Goddels of Arts and Sciences. See Minerva.

PALLIUM; there were Three forts of Garments called by this Name, one which the Romans used to tie about their Heads, when they were not well; another was a fourcornered Robe or Mantle after the manner of the Greeks,

Country, near unto the Temple of Pan, tho' long Robe called by this Name. PALLOR, Palenes; the Ancients made common Name to Ren, to an He goats a Doity of it, to which they offered Sactifice; to a Town, there was kept a facted Hi that according to Clemens Mexandrinus : Remain 1964 upon whole: Death, all the Country with a call mufele min depulfor. & Febri at Pavori facri- Mourning, as others did upon the Death of M fram. Laborius fays, the Tulius Hofilius intro! or Mnevis. Plutureb reckons that the Plut the the Length of the Hand, when it was extended into fogread Confternation, that that was affect as much as it could be; for what we vulgarly now call the Palm of the Mand, was formerly Hebrew figulites Terror : Disdores Sivila Time called Palmuss There were in Former Times Two the Egyptan Priests first confectated themselves forts of them, to wit, the great and little Palm or Span, that divided a Foot unto Two unequal cated the Images of their Pans in the Form of Parts; the Greater confifting of 12 Fingers, and I an He goat; pretending the fame was no more the Leffer of Four.

by the Romans in Time of War: being the Coat of Arms of their principal Men, who for late to know the History of Pan; that Historian that Reason were called Paludati; whereas the says, it was not above 800 Years before his Time. Soldiers had nothing but fhorr Coats, and were and that the Greeks made him to be Mercury and therefore named Sagati: this Garment was open : Penelope's Son: In general he declares, that the on the Sides with thort Sleeves, like unto An- Greeks came but by Degrees to the Knowledge gels Wings and came down no lower than the of the Egyptian Doubles, and that they formed Navel. It was white or red; and Valerius Maxi- their Genealogy, according to the Time they mus fays, it was an ill Omen to Creffus when he came to be acquainted with them: And fother was going to make War against the Parthians, that they gave him a black Paludamentum: Pullum et traditum est paludamentum, cum in pralium cuntibus album aut purpureum dari soleret.

PAN; an Egyptian God who was worthipped under the Shape of a Goat, they called him also Mendes, because that Word signified an Hegoat in the Egyptian Language. Eufebius gives us the Opinion and Words of Perplyrie concerning him, who fays, that Pan was one of the good Genii, engaged in the Service of Buchus, who thew'd himself sometimes to labouring Men, and put them into such terrible Frights, that dia? What makes you bite your Fingers of Itwes many of them died thereof, from whence thele; Frights came to be called Panick Fears. Eufebius very discreetly takes Notice of the Contradictions of the faid Philosophers, that would Feet have Pan to be a good Genius, and yet made it cost them their Lives to whom he appeared; into the Shape of an He-goat that you might Its true that Pan was honoured in Egypt under furprize her. the Form of an He-goat, and that the Damons Merc. I remember it, but I am, asham'd to very often took upon them the Shape of the faid own it. Pan: I will not diffrace you at all, for. Animal: The Damons in Scripture are often belides that I am worshipped in Arcadia, where termed Piloft, He goats: The Hebrew Word: I possess 1000 Flocks, Lain famous for my Sall, Schirim fignifies an He goat, Piloft, Hirci: This in Mufick, and have hewed my Valour in the fort of Idolatry was common even in Moles his Battle of Marathon, infomuch that the Athenians Time, feeing the same had crept in among the for my Reward have given me a Grot under-Ifraelites: Non facrificabunt amplius facrificia fua, their Citadel, whither if you will ever come, Pilofis, poft quos fornicari funt.

Herodows favs, that the People of the Pro- Paulanias favs, that it was in the Reign of vince of Mendes placed Pan among the Gods. Pandion the Second at Athens, that those Plays who were before the 12; that he was reprefented and Combats called Lupercalia Lyces, were infli-

Greeks, and the Roman Women, also were a Ho-goat; the he were believed to be religible unto other Gods, Laftly, that at Menter's duced the Worthip of Fear and Palenel's among Saws happing first og know of the Death PAL MUS, a span, a Measure taken from having spread the News of it, put the People wards called Panich Bears's The Word Plan in to Pan, and that in their Temples they dedithan to give I hanks unto the Gods for the Fer-PALUDAMENTUM; a Garment wore I tility of Nature and of their Nation. 1413

> The Greeks, if we believe Herodorm, came did not know Pan till after the Trojan War, because they make Penelope to be his Mothers and Lucian in his Dialogues of the Gods explains the Matter, where he brings in Pan and Moreny fpeaking thus.

Pan, Good-morrow, Father.

Mere. Good-morrow, Son, but who are you. that call me fo? for to look upon you, you are more like unto an He-goat than a God.

Pan, You reflect upon your self more than I. in faying fo; Do you no longer remember that, pretty Woman whom you ravish'd in Argent Penelope the Daughter of Icarus.

Merc. And how comes it to pass that you are: become horned, with a Beard, Tail, and Goat's

Pan, It is because you were then transformed

you shall see how I am honoured there.

ed with a She-goar's Head and the Legs of ah i tuted in Areadia by Lycaon, who was King of the

they were confessated to Supiter Lycaus. When home went from Arcadia into Italy, he carned the Celebration of the Lupercalia in Honour of Parthither and Dionyfius of Hallicarnaffus pres a Description thereof, as of a Custom which was still in Force in his Time. Paulanias is us, that Lycaon confecrated their Plays to whier Liceus, but Dionyfus of Hallicarnassus tuted by Pyribus. These Games were of two ins, they were consecrated to Pan; which gives forts, the great ones which were performed cration to believe that the Arcadians confound-A Jupiter with Pan, of which the faid Hiftorian gives also a convincing Proof, when he says elsemere, that the greatest and most ancient of he Arcadian Gods was Pan: As Arcadia was a montainous and woody Country, Its not firange of Ausonius of fould make the God of the Mountains and Woods to be the greatest of all the Gods:

Gapripedes mites & nemora Pani dicari. Ovid himself in his Falti tellines, that Pan's Chief Priest was named flamen Dialis, as well as Jufisers. And this Hunting, and often were taken for a Symbol of is dear, that they have either put the Name of For apon Minister himself, or invested Pan with PANDORA, whom Hefod says, was the Majelfy of Jupiter. Those who would make the first Woman in the World, was made by the ancient Fables to be a kind of Philosophy, which under those Disguiles conceal the greatest Secrets of Nature, take Pan which in Greek fignifies All, for the Universe, as Plutarch fays in his Treatile of Ofiris: That Part of Pan which has Humane Shape from the Waft upwards represents Heaven and that Intelligent Being whereby all the World is govern'd. His red and fiery Face denotes the Region of Elementary fire: His Wrinkles and stern Looks the various Changes of the Air and Seasons: His Hairs are the Beams of the Sun; and his Horns denote the Moon which receives all the Influences of the Coelestial Bodies, and disperses the fame again over the Earth: His lower Part is migh and hairy, which denotes the Earth with only Hope left in the Bottom which he kept. the Forests, Herbs and Plants growing thereon, his Two Legs are the Two Hemisphears that compole the World; his Belly is the Sea; and The Panther's Skin which he carries upon his Shoulders, the which is full of round Spots, and is the Spirit of Life which is in these Stars.

PANATHENEA: Feafis, celebrated at Athens in Honour of Minerve, which were infittuted by Thefers, when he brought all the Pear ple of Arrica to coalefce into one Body: The Latins called these Feafis Quinquetries Wreftling was one of the Exercises practifed here, they also danced the Pyrrbick Dance upon the Theater, which was done with Arms, and was inftivery Five Years, and the leffer ones annually. See Quinquatria.

PAN

PANES, the Sayrs, of whom Pan was the Chief, and who for that Reason were often confounded with Pan, which is justified by this Verse

Capripedes agisas cum lata proservia Panes

They were the Gods of Woods, Fields and of Impudence and Unchaftity.

Vulcan of a little moistned Earth, afterwards animated by all the Gods, and endued with their Perfections: For Venus gave her her Beauty Pallar her Wildom; Mercury his Eloquence; Apollo his Mutick, and June her Riches; and this made her to be named Pandora from war and Sweep which fignifies All Cift. Aupiter being angry with Promerbeus because he had made a Man and stolen Fire from Heaven, gave Pandor ra a Box wherein he enclosed all forts of Evils. with Order she should carry it to Epimeibeus, the Brother of Prometheus, who upon the receiving thereof, raffily opened ir, when all the faid Evils flew abroad into the Earth, and there was

PANTHEA, or SIGNA PAN-THEA; Panthean Statues, they were ancient Statues that by the different Figures that were his Horn feet denote the Stability of the Earth. upon them represented all the Gods, or at least a great Part of the most considerable of them. Hay in Greek fignifies All, and Osds God. And appelents the Firmament full of Stars, fays to they called the Temples wherein all the Gods Prom the Grammarian upon Virgil's Georgicks: were worthipped together, Panibea, and where-The Seven Reed-pipes joined together denote in all their Representations might be seen. Of he Seven Planets and their Spears; the Har-this fort was the famous Pantbeum at Rome, built may of the Seven Tones, that of their Courses by Agrippa, and dedicated to Jupiter Vindex, Me Revolutions, fays Cicero in his Somnium Sci- according to Pliny: It was afterwards confethe Breath wherewith he makes them crated by Boniface 3. to the Virgin Mary and all the Saints. It was of a round form, and is at he holds a crooked Staff in his Hand that light this Day called Santa Maria della Rotonda . There the Year; his amourous Complexion, and was one at Athens which Paufaniae calls the com-Laciviousness wherewith he pursues the mon Temple of the Gods, and these sorts, of Nymphs is the Delire of Generation which Temples might be feen in many other Cities: Dreads it felf thro' all the Beings of this World, Lucian fays, that he had observed the Statue of to attract Matter proper for that End from the a Goddels in Syria, which indeed was made for Misture which is represented by the Nymphs. I Juno, but that it had something in it of Pallin, Venni, Lina, Rhea, Diana, Nemefis, and the this Man's Body and Hands floke? Bod befinies. Ruffings in his Ecclefiaftical History are fallen upon this Subject, I'll give you writes, that there was fill at Alexandria, in one, the Testimony of a Barbarian of the Theodofian his Reign, an Idol of Scrapic made of all forts of Mettles, and all kinds of Deities: The Ancients therefore made Statues, which by their different Figures denoted all the Gods. There were Panibean Inscriptions, Panibean Gravings what he fung, yet understood all, and defired in and Panthean Feafts.

PANTHEON, the Pambeon, or a Temple built by M. Agripps, Augustus C.sfar's Son in Law, of a round form in Honour of all the Gods; it was made of Brick on the Out-fide and within was adorned with Marble of various Colours: There were Niches in the Walls wherein were placed the Statues of the Gods, efper cially that of Minerva which was made of Ivory by Phidias the Statuary, and that of Venus at fo as to make neither a Gesture nor Posture that whole Ears hung a very rich Pearl of Queen hath not fome Reference to the Thing that is Cleopatra's, which Augustus ordered to be cut in represented. two, because it could not be matched, which the faid Queen at a Feaft with Mark Antony caufed the Soul, a Bus relieve of Marble might be feen to be diffolved and drunk it up: It weighed Half an Ounce, and was valued at 10000000 in was represented a young Man extended upon Sefterces, which in English Money amounts rous a Bed, and a Butterfly which flew away that bout 76390 h 11 s. The Gates of that Temple feemed to come out of the Money of the Demore made of Brais, the Beams covered mith ceafed, because the Ancients did believe, assume guilt brais, and the Roof made of Silver Plates, of the common People do now, that the Soul which Conftantine carried to Conftantineple. It was dedicated to Junier Vindex. The imperor his 9th Hied thy; That when the Sout has once Advian built one like it at Athens in Honour of paffed the Barrier of the Teeth, it cannot reall the Gods, which he enriched with 26 Columns | turnof Thergian Marble, and there he erefied a Library and an Academy called by his Name, the Manager of Nuptial Solemnities. which he adorned with 100 Pillars of Lybian PARASANGA, was an old Perfin Med Marble.

the Ancients appeared upon the Scage, and by Ancient and Modern; they had, indeed, fine his Signs and Geffures represented all forts of Paralanga that were much greater, and others Actions. A Mimick, fays Lucian, ought to have again far leis. Strabo, L. 2. fays, That the Pethe Art to express the Passions and Motions resongs of the Persians, was accounted by some of the Soul, which Rhetorick teaches us, and to be 60 Furlongs, by others 40, and ugin by Should borrow the various Postures and Faces of fome 30. Agathias in his Gothick Wars makes it Men from Paintings and Sculpture, Us. And to be but 21, which makes me tay, that there a little farther; as the Oracle of Apollo faid, he were Parafanga from 20 to 60 Furlongs. Bureath should make the Spectators to understand with- Furlong contained 125 Paces. out speaking, in the same manner as it one had PARCE; the Definies, the Daughters spoke. This is that whith Demetrius the Cynic Philosopher consesses, who condemned it; but then a celebrated Mimick in Nero's Time defired him not to condemn him, before he faw him; and having ordered the Vocal and Infrumental propos, because all I hings under the Sun, have Musick to cease, he represented before him the their Beginning, Progress and End. at Mega-Adultery of Mars and Venus, wherein he repre- fays Piutarch, in the Temple of Jupiter Olyana fented the Sun that discovered them, Vulcan who might be seen his Statue, made or Gold and ive spread his Nets for them, the Gods who ran to ry by Theofeomus, who upon his Head carried the fee the Sight, Venus all in Confusion, Mars aftonished and supplicant, and the rest of the as well a Command over the Gods as Men, and Pable with fo much Artifice, that the Philoso- whose Orders are inviolable. The Birth, pher cried out, he thought he faw the Thing it | Growth, and : eath of Mankind is attributed to delf and not a Representation of it, and that them, which doubtless gave occasion to the Poets

Times concerning it ; for a Prince of Female ing come to New's Court upon fone and feeing this famous Firce Dancer dance was much Address, the he underflood not a War Emperor in raking his Leave of him, to make him a Prefent of this Man; and as Neres amazed at his Request, he faid, This it is to have Barbarians to my Neighbours, among whom not one understands the Language, and this Perfon will ferve them as an Interpreter, and by his Gestures make them to understand what he means. The Perfection therefore of the Art is to counterfeit fo exactly the Patr one affix

PAPILIO; a Butterfly : the Symbol of in a Manuscript of the late M. de Bagartt, where came out at the Month; which made House in

PARANYMPHUS; he anciently was Marble.

VANTOMIMUS; a Mimick, who among the common Confent of the best Authors, both Erebus and the Night, they were called Parce in way of Antiphrafix, quod nemini parcant, hecause they spare no Body. The Ancients made them Three in Number, viz. Closbo, Lachefis and A Deftinies and the Hours, fays Ejchylus, that had FRion; who tell us, That they spun Mens Lives; & candidatas dici ab Orphes, que fuit partes that Clothe held the Diftaff and fpun the Thread, lucis. Larbefis turned the Wheel, and that Atropos cut Highus attributes unto them the Invention of thele Greek Le ters, A, B, H, T, Y, which made Marrianus Capella call them the Secretaries and Guardians of the Library of Heaven, and that they keep the Archives thereof. Plato ininto us All forts of Times; Clorbo, that which is which is to come; and he places them in Heaven, each of them fitting upon a Throne, clad in White, with Crowns upon their Heads, and whereof pretide over the Actions of Men, and the Productions of the Earth; Clotho represents the Planets, which denote the Deftinies; and Arropos is Saturn, who by his flow Motion, maximum.

frengthens them. The Ancients have represented the Destinies divers ways. Lucian fets them out in the Shape of Three poor old Nomen, having large Locks of Wool mixed with Daffodils on their Heads, one of which held a Diffaif, the other a Wheel and the third a Pair of Sciffars, wherewith the cut off the Thread of Man's Life. Others have given us another fort of an Idea of them. Clothe appearing in a long Robe of divers Colours. wearing a Crown upon her Head, adorned with Seven Stars, and holding a Diffaif in her Hand Lubefis in a Robe full of Stars, with fevera Spindles in her Hands; and Arropos clad in Black, outing the Thread with large Sciffars. Paulawise in his Elegiacs, tays, there was at Olympus an Altar called Megwetes, that is, the Conductor of the Definies; and in Apollo's. Temple there were Two S'acues of the Definies, Jupiter making the Third. What Plutareb adds concerning the Deftinies, is not, perhaps, ill grounded: for, there was a Deftiny which the Ancients placed in the Stars, and which might have a good Meaning, tince 'tis not to be doubted, but All natural Causes form one Concatenation, from whence it comes that all Confequences and Efthe prove necessary and inevitable: This Author lays, that there is one of the Three Defii-Things, that the Second follows the Moon, and that its the which unites and fuftains the Proinclions of the other: Lastiv, that the Third is Varro fays, and we ought to believe him, that formerly they used Parsa, instead of Parca: This Word answers the Greek unieg., and comes a Partiendo, usiper, to divide ; because 'tis Pate that makes a Division and Lot for every Body: But in respect to that Universal Chain of all natural forms us, that the Three Definies represented Causes, which produce all sentible Effects, and form, as I may fay, the Fare of our Bodies; the paft, Lachefis the Time present, and Atropos that Moon without doubt is one of the most considerable and effications of any, as the is also nearest to the Earth. The Moon was one of the Deftinies in the Opinion of thole who gave this Quafinging the Syrens Song, that is, the Mules's, lity to Mithyia, which is known to be the Moon, or that of the Eight Spheres, which they repre- and to prelide over vativities. Paujanias tells fent: That La bests is the Firmament, the Stars us, that Venus Urania was also accounted one of the Destinies, and that she was even the Eldest of the Three Sifters: Epigramma verò indicat Venerem Calestem, earum que Farce vocantur, natu

PARENTALIA; they were Solemnities and Banquets made by the Ancients, at the Obsequies of their Relations and Friends.

PARIS; the Son of Priamus, King of Troy, and of Hecuba: His Mother being with Child of him, faw in her Dream that she was brought to Bed of a Burning-torch, which would fet all Afra on fire: And having confulted the Augurs thereupon; they made answer, That that Child one Day should be the Cause of the Ruine of his Country. Priamus being informed of it, exposed him to be deftroy'd, but his Wife Hecuba being touch'd with Compassion, delivered him privately to the King's Shepherds, to bring him up on Mount Ide, in Phrigia, where he grew up, and became Valiant and expert at all bodily Exercises, wherein he exceeded Hellor, whom he threw in Wreftling. Daves the Phrygian, who had feen Paris, gives us an Account of his Perion, in his Book, concerning the Deftruction of Iroy; where he tays, He was tall, and well proportioned, of a fair Complexion, had very good Eyes, and a sweet Voice; that he was Bold, Couragious, Forward and Ambitious: And this is confirmed by Dion Chrysoftom and Cornelius Nepos, in their Translation of Dares into Verse. Heder upbraids him for his very Beauty, as if thes influenced by the Sun, and gives Birth to all he were fitter for Love than War. Homer gives him the Title of being Valiant, and among others names Diomedes and Machaon's being wounded by him; to which Dares adds Menelaus more like unto the Earth, and 'tis she also that and Palamedes, Antilosbus and Achilles, whom he a most concerned with Fortune: Clemens A- slew. Lyginus relates the Fight he had with his wandrinus tay, there were some who confined Brethren, whom he overcame, while he was a Definy to much to the Moon, that they faid, if Shepherd. As to the Contest between the Three there were Three or them, it was because Goddesses, viz. Juno, Venus and Palles, to know of the Three most remarkable Days of the which was the fairest of them; Dares in his Moon: Pareas allegorice dici partes Lune, tri- Poem concerning the Defruction of Tros. re-Roman, quintam decimam & novam lunam, ideal cites the Words which they fpoke to Paris, in ed not Reasons to gain the Opinion of amorous Paris, and to oblige him to declare in her Pavour; for, as his Reward, she promised him one of the finest Women in the World, which was Helen, Menelaus his Wife; and she was so conflant to her Word, that the favoured him to carry her off; which occasioned the fatal War made by the Gresians against the Trojans.

Some Commentators upon Homer, and Spontence of Paris was not known to Homer. Plu- killed by Thefeus. Servius informs us, that this tarch himself favours this Conjecture, when he Taurus was one of Minos his Captains, who by maintains that the 2 Verses of the 24th Iliad, where he fpeaks of it, are Suppolititious, and inferred by some other; and that 'tis an unbecoming thing to believe the Gods were judged by Men, and that Homer making no mention thereof any other where, there was Reason to believe these Lines were foifted in: But a Medal of Antoninus Pius gives us to understand, that this Action was believed to be true by the Ancients; and we may farther oppole against Plutareb, the ancient Scattle of Paris done by Euphra- | mal; the common Pace is that Space we gain in nor, whereby, as Pliny tays, it might be known, that he was a Judge between the Goddesses, the Lover of Helen, and the Person that killed Ashilles. Other Authors have thought that Paris himself feigned his having been a Judge between the Goddeffes, and that he did this in Opposition to Hercules, who renounced Vice in favour of Vertue, how difficult foever it appeared, fince Paris despited the Riches and Honours | finess it was at Solemn Festivals to carry the promifed him by fino, and the Knowledge prof. | Shrine of the Deity, when they were to pray to ferred him by Palles and abandoned himlelf to him for Rain, fair Weather, or some such like his Pleasures. Eufebin treats of the History, Miracle. Its observable that the Greeks had a and not the Fabrious part; for he writes, that College of this Order of Priefts, in Sylla's Time, the City of Troy was deftroy'd for the Rape of and 'tis certain they carried about the Shrines of Helen, one of the Three Grecian Ladies that the Gods when some Solemn Processions were contended for Beauty.

the Fountains of Cuffalius, Hippocrene, and A wherein dwelt the Priests who were appointed gamppe, so famous in the Poets. At the Foot for this Charge, and which were usually near the of this Mountain flood the City of Oprrba, and Temple, M. le Moine agrees, that the Pafte the Temple of Apollo of Delphos: The Muses aborium was a Cell, and little House adjacent to took their Epithers from these Places; for in the Temple; but he gives the Word another

PARRICIDA; a Parricide, the Murder- Tabernacles. er of his Father of Mothers. The Romans made no Law against Parricides, because they did not think there could be a Man so wicked as to kill biri, or Samosbracian Gods, at leastwise, as to his Parents. L. Offiur was the first that killed his their Figures; for they were little Pigmy Images, Father, 500 Years after Numa's Death, even with which the Phanicians adorned the Prows of after the Time of Hannibal: And then the Pom- their Ships. Herodorus, perhaps, was mistaken peian Law was mide, which ordained, that the when he put these Gods upon the Prow; others Person who was convicted of this Crime, after | place them on the Poop, and Perseus says it was the had been first whipped till the Blood came, the Custom.

Child-bearing. PASIPHAE; the Daughter of the Sun, and Wife to Minos, King of Creet: The Fable tells us, the fell in Love with a Bull, whom the enjoy'd by Dedalus his Contrivance, who by his Skill made a Cow, wherein Pasiphae being inclosed, she conceived by this Bull a Creature that was half Man half Rull, which was shut up in danue among others, believe this pretended Senthe Labyrinth, and with the Affiftance of Ariedne the Procurement of Dadalus enjoy'd Pasiphae, and because the Child she bure was like unto Taurus and Minos, he was called Minoraurus. Lucian fays, that Pafinbae hearing Dadalus difcourling of the Coeleftial Sign Taurus, the became in Love with his Doctrine, which the learnt from > that the fell in Love with a Bull. PASSUS; a Pace; a Measure taken from the Space that is between the two Feet of an Aniwalking; the Geometrical is double to the common Pace: The Common confifts of two Feet and an half, the Geometrical of five Feet; and this Geometrical Pace is the most common Meafure, the exacteft and most certain of all, both among the Ancients and Moderns.

him, and this gave the Poets occasion to feign

PASTOPHORIUM and PASTO-PHORI; the Pallophori were those whose Bumade, and there were certain Persons appoint-PARNASSUS; a Mountain in Phoeis, con- ed for this Office: And hence it may be conclusecrated to Apollo and the Muses; whence arise ded, that the Pastophorium signifies an House, the Poets they are called Parnaffides, and Ca-Origin, pretending it was borrowed from the Flags, which were usually put before these little

PATAICI DII; these Gods, according to Herodorus, were much like unto the Dii Ca-

The Origin of this Word is clearly Hebrew, according to Scaliger; for Parach in that Language is the same as insculpere. Bochartus thinks it may be derived from the Hebrew Word Batac. i.e. confidere; for those Idolaters trufted in these Gods. Selden has treated of these Pataick Gods, and believes all the Phanician Gods bore the same Name.

PATER-PATR ATUS; was the first and principal Person of the Heralds College, that made as it were a Council of War to examine the Differences which arose between Neighbouring People, and who endeavoured amicably to accommodate the fame; they themselves going to the People to induce them to restore what they had taken, and to redrefs the Injury complained of PATERA; an ancient Vessel wherein they received the Blood of the Victim. Patera filicata, was a Cup adorned with Fern-leaves. Pasera bederata, was fuch as was adorned with Ivv. Patera pampinata, Cups on which Vine-Leaves or Branches were carved.

PATRES CONSCRIPTI, were the Senators of Rome, who at first were only called Paires, but afterwards thus named when their Number was increased. Plutarch fays, that Romulus having chosen and established Ten Orders them the Appellation of Patres Conferipti: Thole Will. who were chose from a nong the Knights to be Senators, were called Patres alleli.

PATRICIUS; a Patrician; one descended from the Senators, and first Founders of the Republick of Rome.

only be made liable to pecuniary Mulcis, and Mosaick Pavements. subjected to lose part of their Estates, but also be chaftifed with Corporal Punishments, and fometimes be even recalled to their former State of Servitude, according to the Hainouiness of their Ingratitude, as 'tis fully fet forth under the Title of Jus Patronatus. But hefides thefe Rights which the Patron exercised over the Perion of Freed-men while living, he had also another over their Goods after their decease, being priviledged to inherit when the Freed-man died without having Children born him after his being made free, and intestate: And there were but Two forts of Persons that could exclude the Patron, viz. Children lawfully begotten after his Manumission, and the Heir by Will, whom the Law preferred before the Patron: But as it was an easie thing for the Freed-men to deprive their Patrons of the Benefit of Inheriting; and that many times those who had no Children of their own, got some by Adoption, or else by Will disposed of their Estates in favour of Strangers; the Prætor by his Edist introduced a Remedy for this, by giving the Patrons Possession of half of the Estates of their Freed-men, in opposition to adopted Children and Stranger-Heirs: And foralmuch as by this Edict one lawfully begotten Child of the Freed-man, coming to succeed his Father, entirely excluded the Patron; the Papian Law made an Addition to the Prætor's Edict, and enlarged the Right of the Patron, by enjoining, that if the Freed-man had a confiderable Effate even to 100000 Sefferces, and less than Three Children, the Patron of Senators, writ down their Names on Tables should have a Share equal to one of the Chilof Gold in the Peoples Presence; and this gave dren's, which he could not be deprived of by a > PAVENTIA; a Deity of the Ancients, mentioned by St. Augustine, L. 4. de Civ. Dei, which diverted Childrens Fears.

PAVIMENTUM; a Pavement, of which there were divers forts: Pliny fays, that those PATRONUS; a Patron; the Person un- Pavements which were painted and wrought by der whose Protestion one puts himself; it was Art were brought out of Greece, and among oallo used in respect to a Master who had made thers that of Pergamus, called Afarores, which was his Slave free: The Law of the Twelve Ta- not swept; and this Name was given it, because bles entituled the Patrons to the Effates of their the Crumbs and Offals which fell from the Freed-men, who died without lawful Iffue, born Table were fo well represented in this fort of after their Enfranchifement, and also intestate; Pavement, that they seemed to have been real, for, the by this Manumiffion or Enfranchifement, and the Servants had no need to take care of the Slaves not only obtained their Liberty, but I weeping the Rooms: Then came the Molaick allothe Right of Citizens, and to were made Ci- Pavements in Fashion, which the Greeks called tizens of Rome, and confequently capable to ac- Lithoftrota, and were used at Rome in Sylla's quire and policis all forts of Effates, and had Time, about 170 Years before Christ's Coming: Power to dispese of them, yet they were very It was a Pavement made of small Stones joined, far from the Condition of the Ingenui, who were and as it were united together by Cement, and bomfree; for the Law subjected them to shew by the Ordering, and variety of their Colours great Respect, and to perform confiderable Ser- representing different Figures. See Musea. Vitices and Devoirs to their Patrons; to the Ob- truvius speaks of Pavements, which he calls Pafervation of which they were to rigoroutly tied, vimenta sedilia, or Pavements of pieces made that when they failed therein, they might not like one another, which he diffinguishes from

PAVO; a Peacock; a Bird by the Heathens; PEDANI, or PEDARII SENA. when the Flowers first peep out, spreads abroad espause the Opinion of a Person. his Golden and Azure Feathers in a most mag-'nificent manner, and contends with the Spring "which of them shall produce the most beautiful | Impression of his Hoof made the Fountain Hip-Things; he spreads himself, turns and admires pocrene spring out of Mount Helicon; it was uphis own Beauty, whose Splendor is doubly in- on this Horse Belleropbon was mounted, when *creased by that of the Light, which does not he fought Chimera; its said he flew up to Heaonly embellish the Colours, but multiplies ven, and placed himself amongst the Stars: Its them: This particularly happens to thole also a Coeleftial Conftellation in the Northern Golden Circles, which crown the Enamel of Hemisphere, consisting of 20 Stars. Keepler his Tail, and each of them resemble a Rain- makes it to have 23. Pontanus says, when it bow that changes its Colour according to the riles, it makes a Man a Poet and Ingenious, a divers Reflexions of Light.

PAVOR; Fear, whom the Romans made to be a Deity. Paufanias, in his Corintbiaca, fays, That Mermerus and Pheres, Medea's Children being stoned by the Corintbians, the Ghosts of them did to frighten young Children, that they died therewith: The Oracle commanded they should offer Sacrifice to them every Year, and fet up Two Statues, one to Fear and the other to Palenels.

PAX; Peace; a Deity adored by the Heathens. Paufanias fays, that the Statue of Peace was worshipped at Athens, under the Form of a Woman, who held Pluius the God of Riches by the Hand: The Emperor Claudius began to build her a Temple at Rome, but 'twas not finished and adorned till Vespasian did it, after the | Diseases: He was much beloved of Neptune, who Conquest of Judea, and the Destruction of Ferufalem, as the Gold, Silver, and Brass Money which he coined do teftifie, whereon Peace is graven, holding a lighted Torch in one Hand, wherewith the fets some broken Arms on fire, and in the other an Olive-branch, with this Device, Paci Orbis Terrarum: She is also represented unto us with an Olive-branch, and Mercury's Caduceus. Tisus his Son and Succeffor in the Empire, has given us the Figure of Peace, reprefented like a Goddess, holding a Palm in one Hand, and Scepter in the other, with this Infcription, Pax Aterna.

PECULATUS; it was a Crime in a Perfon that robbed the Publick Treasure, or converted it to his own use, who was the Disposer, Keeper, or Receiver of it; there are divers forts of it, all mentioned under Lex Julia.

of one who is under the Power of another, which | ration. These Gods were honoured within Doors, a Son under a Father or a Slave, may get by his by burning in the nature of First-fruits some of own Industry, without any Furtherance or Aftiftance from his Father, or Mafter, but only his lacrincing a Sow to them, as to those who pre-offered Sacrifice to induce her to make them rich, confecrated to fupiter; they feigned that Argus TORES; young Senators who followed the his Eyes were put into the Peacock's Tail. Lucian | Opinion propoled by the Older, and were alhas left us an Account of him thus: 'The Pea- ways of their nide: And hence is that Saying of cock, fays he, at the Beginning of the Spring, Cicero, Ire pedibus in fententiam alicujus, to PEGASUS. The Horie Pegafus, whom the Poets feigned to have Wings, and who with the Lover of Glory and of Arms; and Firmicius fays, that if it fet with Mars, the Man will perish by Fire.

PLLION: Mount Pelion in Theffaly, which was formerly joined to Mount Octa, and feparated from it by an Earthquake.

PELOPS; the Son of Tantalus, King of Phrygia, and of Taygete, whom his lather Tantalus cut in pieces, and poiled to feaft the Gods withal; there was none but Ceres that eat thereof: The other Gods perceiving it, abhorred the Action, and restored Pelops to Life; for they gathered all his Members together, and fent Mercury to fetch his Soul out of Hell. As Ceres had eaten some of the Shoulder, they gave him an Ivory one in lieu of it, which healed many gave him immortal Hories, with which he ran against Oenomaiis, for the beautiful Hippodamia his Daughter, became Conqueror, and to Polsessor of that admirable Creature. Pelops was for his Beauty, according to Lucian, admitted to eat with the Gods.

PELORIS and PELORUS; one of the Three Capes of Sicily, which is in the North Part of that Island: It was so called from a Pilot whom Hannibal flew, as supposing he berray'd him; but coming afterwards to know his Mistake, he erected a Statue for him in an high Place, near the Sea fide in Sicily, which he called Peloris, according to his Name.

PENATES; a Name given to all the Houshold-Gods, which the Ancients worshipped in their Habitations: There Gods were the Souls or Genti of deceased Perions, to whom PECULIUM; this is the Money or Effate | their particular Families paid some fort of Adothat which was served to the Table, or publickly nded over the Streets and High-ways: They PECUNIA; Money; to whom the Romans | had also the publick Penates of the City or Empire, which Aneas brought from Troy, and whom Varro believed to have been brought before from Samoibracis to Troy. Dionysius of H4 | Oracle, that his Wife Peribes should bear a mans meant by their Penases at Rome, called them brought by An as from Troy to Lavinium, from whence they were carried to Alba, and thence to Rome; he at last asks, what was the Nature and Shape of those Gods, to which he answers that Timeus wrote, that they were Iron and Brais Caduceus's, and Earthen Waremade at Troy; Caduca ferrea & area, Trojanamque testam sidilem ; κ κέραμον τρώικον. He replies in the 2d place, that we must restrain our Curiotity, and out of respect abstain from penetrating too far into the Mysteries of Religion; and in the last place he adds, that they were the same Gods as those of Samothracia; that Dardanus brought them to Troy, from whence Aneas carried them into Italy, viz. the Shapes of those great Gods, and the Image of Minerva; facra magnorum Deorum, & effigies Minerva: This Image of Minerva was twofold. Ulyfies and Diomedes took one away from Iroy, during the Siege, and the other remained there: Others fay, that the Trojans had made another Palladium very like unto the true one, and that it was the Copy, and not the Original which the Grecians took away.

Virgil brings the Houshold-Gods giving their Affiftance at the Battle of Adium, where Augullus defeated Aniony and Cleopatra:

Hinc Augustus agens Italos in pralia Casar. Cum Patribus, populoque, Penatibus & magnis Hereby Virgil acknowledges, that Empires, Cities, particular Houses, and King's Palaces, were as so many Temples, where the Houshold-Gods were present; where a continual Fire was burnt, and where they were honoured by frequent Libations and Incentes upon all occanons. Lucan observes, that in time of Peace, the Arms were fixed in the Place appertaining to the Houshold-Gods, as being entrufted to their keeping,

Diripiunt facris affixa Penatibus arma, Que pax longa dabat.

And that it was eftermed to be abominable Satilege to commit Murder in the Presence of Vela, that is in the Entry, and before the perpenual Fire of the Houthold-Gods.

PENELOPE, the Daughter of Icarus, the latedamonian, and of Peribaa: Its faid this ... ame Was given her from certain Birds called Penelopes or Turkeys, and that she was named Arnea, i. e. difowned and rejected, from the Verbagreio Sar. to Reject : For her Father understanding by the licarnassus, after having said that the Greeks in Daughter, which should one Day be a Shame to order to express in their Language what the Ro- her Sex, he caused her to be exposed upon the Water, shut up in a Cheft; but the said Birds παβρωκς, γενεθλίας, κλησίας, μυγίας, έρκίας : hearing the Cries made by the Infant, they And after having affured us, that they were first drove the Cheft ashoar with their Wings; and having opened it with their Beaks, they fed her for some time: She was Ulyses his Wife, and a Model of Chaftity and Faithfulness to her Husband; for Ulyffes having been absent Twenty Years, the was courted by feveral Princes who were taken with her Beauty; but she to difengage her felt from their Importunities, put off her second Marriage till such time as she had finished a piece of Linnen-Cloth, which she had begun, and the cunningly undid in the Night what the wrought in the Day; and fo the continued in this State till Ulyffer his Return, who entring into his own House, disguised like a Peafant, killed them all. Hereupon you may obferve the different Opinions that have been entertained of Penelope: Some, that is to fay, Homer and many others, who followed him, have represented her as a Model of Chaffity; while others, the Chief of whom are Duris the Samian, Tzetzes, Paujanias and Horace, have taken her for a loofe Woman, and a Proftitute. However, the same Paufanias in his Laconica says, that her Father Icarus erected a Statue of Chaflity Thirty Spartan Stadia's high, in memory of the Conjugal Chaffity of his Daughter Penelope, who had rather, being left to her Choice, to tollow her Husband to itbaca, than to tarry with her Father at La. ademon.

PENTHEUS, the Son of Echion and Agave, who, because he ridiculed the Festivals of Bacchus, called Orgia, and would have them reputed Follies and xtravagancies, was cut in pieces upon Mount Citberon by his own Mother and Sifter, who being transported with Baccbick Fary took him for a wild Boar.

PERILLUS. See Phalaris.

PERIPATELICI; Peripateticks, they were Arbenian Philosophers, and the Followers of Arijiotle, who disputed walking in the Licaum; they were fo called from the Greek περιπατείν, which fignifies to walk; but afterwards they took the same of Academicks, because they studied in the Academy.

PERITIUS, (Mensis is understood) the Peritian Month was a Month among the Macedonians, that answered that of February, and fuch as was adopted by the Syrians, in Memory of Alexander the Great, or rather the Macedonians introduced it amongst them after they had been conquered by them, infomuch that they gave the greatest part of the Cities and Rivers of Syria, the Names of the Cities and Rivers of Macedon.

rifes in Mount Hellom, which was confecrated frologers took occasion to place him among the to Apollo and the Mules.

PERSÆ; the Perfians, the People of the famous Empire of Perfia, who adored the Sun, a great Captain; for the Arms we have spoken and to whom they erected Altars under the of, are as fo many Hieroglyphicks of the ex-Name of Minbra, which was a kind of Dreis for traordinary Qualifications, that are necessary for the Head, like a Bishop's Miter, Soli Invillo a Person, to form great Designs, and to succeed Mithra, and Numini Invide foli Mithra, as you therein; Prudence is figured out unto us by may read in ancient Inscriptions: They also worshipped the Moon, Venas, Fire, Earth, Water Shield; Strength and Greatness of Courage and Wind, yet without any Temples, Statues, or Altars, and offered Sacrifices to them upon fome Hillock, or high Place, as believing themfelves hereby to be nearer unto their Gods. When the Lacedemonians beat the Perfians in the Battle of Places, they erected Statues in Perfian Dreffes, to support the Weight of the Galleries | indued with so many Accomplishments, strikes

Mark of their Servitude. PERSEUS: the Son of Jupiter and Danae, the Daughter of Acrifius, King of Argos, who coming to know by the Oracle, that the Child has left Satyrs behind him that are very obhis Daughter should bring forth, would one Day scure: He flourish'd under Nero, and died at kill him, took a Resolution to shut up his Daugh- 29 Years of Age. ter in a Brass Tower, that hereby the might | PERTINAX, named Publim Helvim, furhave nothing to do with Men: But this Precau- named the Wheel of Fortune because he experition lignified nothing, for Supirer who loved her, enced the Inconftancy thereof. He was a Rewent to see her, and for that End being trans- man Emperor the Son of a Freed-man named formed into a Golden Shower, he begat Perfeus Helvim who kept a Shop of small Wares. His upon her. Acrifius coming to the Knowledge Father brought him up in good Literature, hereof, thut up both Mother and Child in a Co: which afterwards he taught at Rome, but as his fer, and commanded them to be thrown into the Inclinations carried him more unto Arms than Sea; but they were faved by some Fishermen, unto Letters, he quitted his Profession, and folwho found the laid Cheft floating upon the Wa- lowed the Military Art, wherein he fignalized ter, near the Isle of Seriphus, where Perseus was himself in divers Wars, which made the Empebrought up by Didis, the Brother of l'olydettes, ror Marcus Aurelius give him the Government King of that Illand. Perfeus being grown up, was of Afia and Syria; after whose Death his Sucmuch beloved of the Gods; Minerus made him ceffor Commodus banished him from Rome, but a Present of her Miror, to serve him tor a Shield, he recalled him some time after and made him and Mercury gave him the Wings which he wore Governour of the City. Upon the Death of at his Head and Feet, and a Cymeter which Vul. Commodus, Alius Latus Captain of the Guard ean had forged for him, and with which he did went to Persinax his Lodging, and made him a great Exploits: ' For by the Help of this Shield, Tender of the Empire, and obliged him to go wherein as in a Miror he saw the Picture of to the Camp where he was proclaimed Imp 4 Medusa fleeping, with the Gorgens her Sifters, rator Augustus, and the same was joyfully conhe catched hold of her by the Hair, and cut- firmed by the Senate and Leople. At his Ac ting off her Head, afterwards made his Escape; cession to the Imperial Throne he went about to but in his return, upon the Coast of Eshiopia, reform the Extorsions and Violences practiced fleeing Andromede ready to be devoured by a by the Pratorian Bands over the poor Citizens, Sea-monster; and being struck with a compas- but this drew their Harred so far upon him, that fionate Love for that unfortunately fair Creathey adventured to kill him in the Middle of his ture, whom the Nereides, who were incensed Palace, after he had reigned Three Months. By • at her Mother's having despited their Beauty, the Medals which we have of his, it may be ofhad tied to a Rock; he turned the Monster in- served that he had a fortunate Countenance, a to a Stone, with one of the Looks of Medufa, * after he had nirft fturmed him with a Blow with his Sword. Perfeus was not only skillul in Arms, but he also made learning to Flourish in by his Medals and the Paintings of Capitolinus. his Time, having founded a publick School upon All this feemed to promife him a healthful Con-Mount Lielicon, where Youth were instructed in stitution, a large Capacity with the Respect of

PBRMBSSUS; a River in Babeia, that | good Literature; and hence the Poets and A-

We have in the Person of Perseus the Idea of Minerva's Miror, that ferved him instead of a joined with a Forwardness, that must engage him to the Execution of his Defign, was represented by the Sword forged by Vulcan, and what has been faid concerning Medufa's Head, which turns ed Men into Stones with her Looks, imports fo much, that the very Looks of a Person who is and Porticoes which they built, as a perpetual a Dread and Terror into others, and flopsthem so as if they were Stone-statues.

PERSEPHONE. See Proferpina. PERSIUS; a Lain Satyrical Poet, who

handsom Head, large Forehead, curled Hair, a long and venerable Beard; that he was tale, burly, and pretty big-belly'd, as may be known the People, which his venerable Air must gain | feems to refute this Fable, faving, that Phaeton trepid Spirit in the Sedition, wherein he loft his whatever is faid of him is not likely at all. Life; for when he faw the Mutineers enter into emedly spoke to them, with much Courage and Gravity, infomuch that they were all appeaand brought his Companions to cut off fo good PETRONIUS; lived in Nero's Time; the that Emperor loved this Poet very well, yet impossible to break them: It consisted of 5000 he was put to Death by his Command, as Cornelous Tacitus (ays.

of Creet, who fell in Love with Hippolytus her [nian Phalanx. Son in Law: the discovered her Pathon to her Cloaths some Letters wherein she charged Hippolysus with a Crime, of which she her self only was guilty.

PHEDRUS, a Latin Poet and the Freedman of Augustus, who turned the Fables of Esop and several other Things into Jambick Verse.

Nymph Clymene, or of Cephalus and Aurora; plains the Fable to us.

the other, infomuch that had not I struck him had been an End of Mankind.

Tears of a Miftress; but I did not think to much Mischief would have come of it.

Jupit. Did not you know the Fury of your out of the Way, an universal Ruine followed.

Photon into the Chariot my felf, and gave him and I also in his Punishment.

Jupit. In the mean time, give Phaeton's Sihers Order to bury him on the Banks of the fed and put fo many others to Death. Eidanus, where he fell, and as a Recompenie,

The same Lucian in his Judicial Astrology ting your Devotions, I found an Alear on which

him. But his Empire was fo thort, that he had builed himfelf in observing the Sun's Course, and not an Opportunity to make his Inclinations the various Influences thereof, and that he left known. However, he shewed much of an in- this Art imperfect by his Death, adding that PHABTUSA. Phaeton's Sifter and one of his Palace, he went to meet them, and uncon- the Heliades, who according to the Fable, was changed into a Poplar.

Pri A L A N X, a great square Battalion' led, fave one who fittred up the Soldiers anew, formed by the Ancients, which was so compact that the Soldiers had their Feet fet close to one another, with their Shields joined and Pikes turned cross-ways, insomuch that it was almost Men. Livy fays, that this fort of Battalion was invented by the Macedonians, from whence PHEDRA, the Daughter of Minos King came the common Epithet given it of Macedo-

PHALARIS, favs Lucian, was born of a Nurse that was her Confident, who attempted noble Family in the City of Agrigentum in Sicily; to engage Hippolyrus his Consent several times, after he had been brought up in all the genteel but to no purpose ? Phadra out of Shame and Exercises of his Time, and such as were suit-Despair hanged her self, having first tied to her able to his Condition, he was admitted into the Government, as others were, where he behaved himf-if fo well that there was never any Complaints made of his Administration: But as he understood that his Enemies and such as envyed his Prosperity, had laid secret Ambushes for him, and fought all manner of Wavs how they PHAET ON, the Son of Sol and the might make away with him, he was confirmed for his own Safety to make himfelf Mafter of the Lucian in a Dialogue between Aupiter and Sol ex- State, and to exercise Justice very rigorously upon those who would have destroyed him: One Jujis. Wretch, what have you done, to leave Perillus devised with himself, he could not do your Chariot to be guided by a young tool, who him more acceptable Service than to invent some has burnt one Half of the World, and froze up linew fort of Punishment, and as he was an excellent Statuary he made a brazen Bull fo very artilown to the Ground with a Thunder-bolt, there ficially that Phalaris cried out as foon as he faw it. that it was a Present fit for Apollo. But Perillus Sun. I confess, Jupiter, I was mistaken, that taking him up, said, 'If you did but know what I could not manage my Son, nor endure the 'I made it for, you would not talk at that rate. Shut up a Criminal within it; and put Fire underneath, you shall hear the Bull bellow, which is the only Thing it wants to imitate Nature to Hories, and that if they turned never fo little Perfection. Upon which Words Phalirs who detefted so abominable an Invention, caused him Sun, I know it very well, and therefore I put himself to be shut up in his Bull, to make a Trial thereof, and having again taken him out alive. In necessary Instructions, but the Horses not that by his Death he might not pollute a Prehading their Conductor with them, took head, sent which he had a mind to consecrate to the and he became dazzled with the Splendor of the Gods, he gave it to Apollo, and caused this Story Light, and frightned with the Aby's he saw be- to be graven upon it. Suidas represents Phalaris neath him. But he has been sufficiently punish- to us as a very cruel Prince, and will have it. that his Subjects shut him up and tormented him to Death in the fame Bull, wherein he had inclo-

PHALERUS, an ancient Gate of the will change them into Poplar-trees, from City of Athens where Altars were erected to the which Amber shall distil, as a Symbol of their unknown Gods, of whom St. Paul speaks, 'Going along, faid that Apostle, and contemplawas this Inscription, To the unknown God; I same upon Tapistry: Progne deserted to take therefore declare him unto you, whom you Revenge upon her incestuous Husband, till the worship without knowing of him. The Inscripti- Festival of Bacchus, when with a Company of on was not barely the same as St. Paul relates. it; for it was, to the Gods of Afia, Europe and Affrica, fitrong and unknown Gods: But be cause the Apostle had norhing to do with many unknown Deities, and that no more than one unknown 'Jod was for his Purpofe, he makes ufe of the fingular Number. Meurfius affures us, That the People of Athens being converted to the Christian Faith, confecrated the Temple, of Nature and Morality, grounded upon Reawhere this Altar had been erected, to the unknown God. Its certain, that Paulanias, Philostratus and Suidas make use of the Plural Number, when they speak of the Inscription upon der Zeno, Impudent under Diogenes, Intereffee this Altar, and Diogenes Lacruus attributes the Building of alters without a Name to Epimenides : But'tis to e pimenides that they commonly Menippus, Libertinism under Porrho, Litigious attribute the Erelling of the Altar of the unknown Gods. But yet it is true, that Lucian, Theophi-Last, Ifidorus Pelufiosa, Occumenius and St. Chryfoflom make use of the lingular Number, when they speak of this Altar.

PHAROS; it was a famous Tower in Alexandria, on the Top of which they lighted to complain, when you faw the World full of Fires in the Night to guide Ships that came near the Shoar: The Coloffus of Rhodes fer ved inftead of a Pharos.

PHEGOR: is as much as Priapus in Hebrew, according to St. Hierom; from whence came the Word Beelphegor, which fignifies the Idol of Prispus.

PHILOCTETES; the Son of Pean, to whom Hercules at his Death upon Mount Octa, gave his Bow and Arrows, which were dipp'd in Hydra's Gall, after he had engaged him by Oath, to discover his Grave to no Body : But' when they were to go to the Trojan War, and that the Oracle gave an Aniwer, the Town was impregnable, without they had the Athes and Arrows of Hercules with them; he was forced to fliew the Place where he had hid them; and at them only with his Feet, for which he was i of the faid Arrows wounded him in the Foot, wherewith he had discovered Hercules his Ashes: the Son of Afculapias.

PHILOMELA; the Daughter of Pandion, King of Athens, who was ravi. h'd by Tereus, Planicia, who hift married Harpalyce, the Sifter King of Thrace, who had married her sifter of Calau and Zeibes the Children of Boreas; but Prigno He cut out her Tongue, and thut her he was divorced from her and took to Wife Ides up in Prison, that he might enjoy her at his the Daughter of Dardanus King of Seythia, who Pleature: But the had the Lagenuity to let her fallly accused Phineus his Children by the first the Bacchantes, the went to fet her Sitter ar Liberty, and laying hold of Isys, Terem his Son, the dreft his Fielh for him to eat; which he perceiving, endeavoured to kill his Wife; but the Gods changed Terem into a Lapwing, Progne to a Swallow. Philometa to a Nightingale, and lys into a Pheasant. Ovid. Meram. Lib. 6.

PHILOSOPIA, Philotophy. The Study foning and Experience: Its faid of the Ancient Philolophy, that it became impious under Disgoras, Vicious under Epicurus, Hipocritical ununder Demochares, Voluptuous under Metrodorus, Fantaffical under Crater, Buffoonry under under Cleantbes, and Reftless under Arcefiles: The Ancient Philosophers were of divers Setts. viz. Epicureans, Stoicks, Platonicks, Periparesicht. Pyrrbonians, &c. Lucian in his Dialogue of Fugitives brings in Philotophy, theaking to Juniter in this manner; ' father, fee if I have not cause Error and Unjuffice, you had Pirty upon it, and you tent me to bring Men to change their beaftly Lives for a better, for if you do rumember, you told me, My Daughter, thou feeft what a Condition Men are brought to by their Ignorance and Malice, go to them, for thou art alone capable to undeceive and cure them. I did not go at first to Greece, but I began with the most disticult Work, which was that of the Barbarians; afterwards I went towards the Indians who are a great People, and whom I brought down from their Elephants Backs to hear m:; the whole Nation of the Brachmanes, who are Neighbours to the Necreans and Oxrdraci, received my Doctrine and live fill according to my Laws: From the Indians I went in:o Ethiopia, thence to Egypt where I taught that he might not violate his Oath, he pointed the Egyptian Priests and Prophets the Worthin of the Gods, afterwards I pailed to Babilon to feverely punished: For being on his Journey, one inftruct the Caldeans and Magi, then to Sentis; from whence returning by the Way of Thrue 'I conversed with Eumospus and Orpheus, and sent His Wound flunk fo, that it was not to be endu-, them before me into Greece, with Orders that red, which made the Grecians leave him in the 'the first should instruct the Greeks in my Mi Ifle of Lemnos; however find ng that the Siege 'fteries, and the other teach them Munck: of Troy advanced but little, they caused him to "I delay'd not to follow them and they received be brought thither, and he was cured by Macaon 'me there neither well nor ill: However in time 'I won over the seven wife Men.

PHINEUS, the son of Agenor King of Sifter know her Mufortune, by drawing the Venter for attempting to ravish her. Phinque mented him cruelly with Hunger, for as often as he went to eat, the Harpies took away part of his Victuals, and defiled the reft. Others fay, that Phineus having loft his Sight, and PHLEGETHON, one of the Rivers of Hell according to fabulous Antiquity, being derived from the Greek Word cheve, I burn.

PHLEGYAS, the Son of Mars and King of the Lapithe in Thessaly, who to be revenged of Apollo, that had debauched his Daughter, burnt the Temple of that God at Delphos: But he was punish'd for it; for Apollo killed him with his Arrows and thrust him headlong into Hell, where he is in continual Fear of the falling of a Rock which hangs over his Head. There was another of this Name who governed a certain People in Theffaly, that were drowned by Neptune, as a Punishment for their Contempt of the Gods. Virg. Eneids L. 9.

PHOBE TOR; the Son of the God Sleep, who represented to the Imagination all forts and frecies of Animals.

PHOCI, Neptune's Sea-Calves, whose Keepet Protheus was.

PHOEBAS; Apollo's Prieftes at Delphos, that delivered Oracles, to fuch as confulted her, upon a Tripod.

PHOEBE; the Moon which borrows its Light from Phabus her Brother.

PHOEBUS, the Sun or Apollo, the Son of Time with Latona: He is the God of Parnassus and been sometime seen in Egypt. the Muses; being thus called by the Greeks from φως τε βίε, that is, the Light of Life: He was alfo the God of Divination, some remains whereof are still retained, in that upon Twelfth-Night, when they are about to chuic King and Queen, stall be King?

PHOENIX, a Bird taken by the Moderns to be fabulous, and concerning which the Ancients have spoken much, they would have it, that there is but one of the Kind, and that it lives several Ages. They say 'tis as big as an Eagle, with a golden Neck, the Wings of a Fire Colour, intermix'd with Azure, a white Tail interspersed with Carnation Feathers, and having atwinkling Star upon its Head. She erects her own Funeral-Pile of Wood and Aromatick Gums, and to burns her feir: From its Ashes ariles a that of Lucifer, the Shepherds Star. Worm, and from this Worm another Phanix.

believed her, and put his Sons Eyes out, but In the Confulship of Paulus Fabius, and Lucius the Gods revenged the Crime upon the Father Vitellius, the Phanix after a long Series of Years, himself, whom they also struck blind, and tor appear'd in Egypt, and gave ample Occasion to the fine Wits of Greece and Alia to Discourie upon this Wonder: I'll here recount what is receiv'd for Truth; but I shall also add such Things as are proper to be known, tho' they are not fo his Sons being dead, the Harpies his Daughters well attested. Those who have described this wasted his Estate, till Zethes and Calais his Bird, set her out different from others, both in Coulins, the Sons of Boress drove those Women Form and Colour, and say she was consecrated out of the City, and reinvested him in the Pos- to the Sun. As for the Length of her Life, the fession of his Estate, which occasioned the most common Opinion is, That she lives 500 Years, but some have stretched it out even to 14 Ages. They add, There is never but one of them at a time in the World, and that the first appear'd in the Reign of Sefoffris, the fecond in that of Amasis, and third under Prolomy, one of Alexander's Successors, and the third of the Macedonian Race, who reigned in Egypt: They fay also, that she came to Heliopolis, or the City of the Sun, accompanied by a vaft Multitude of other Birds, who admired the Strangeness of her Feathers: There was not 250 Years from Prolomy to Tiberius; and therefore some believe, that this same was not the Phanix of Arabia, nor the true one, fince it had not the Marks' attributed to the others; for 'tis faid, that the Phanix, when the is grown very old, and fees her End draw near, builds a Nest in her own Country, to which the communicates fome fecret Principle of Life; infomuch that another Phanix arises therefrom, whose first Care is to give unto its Parent the Honours of Burial: For which End the makes choice of a great Quantity of Pertumes, which the carries by little and little. because of their great diffance from the Place. and then bears away the Deceafed's Body, and goes to burn it upon the Altar of the Sun: This is uncertain, and intermixed with Fables, but fupiter, and Diana's Brother, born at the same for the rest, 'tis not doubted, but this Bird has PHORBAS; the Chief of the Philegya; a cruel Man, and a Robber, who having leized on an Avenue, by which they went over Land to the Temple of Apollo at Delphos, forced all Paffengers to fight him, in order to exercise them. they cry in some Countries Phabe Domine, Who faid he, that they might act their Part, the better at the Pythian Games: And when he had overcome, he put them to a cruel Death, by tying them by their Heads to Trees ; but Apollo to punish this wicked Fellow, encountring him, knocked him down with his Fift.

PHORCUS and PHORCYS; a Son of Neptune and the Earth (according to Heliod) King of Sardinia; who having been overcome in a Fight by Sea, the Poets faid he was a Sea-God, and the Father of the Gorgones.

PHOSPHORUS, the Planet of Venus: daps it with her Wings, in order to fet it on fire, its a Greek Word, which the Latins turned into · PHRIXUS, the Son of Athamas, who to and Flanders, after different Manners: But half avoid the Anger of Ino his cruel Mother-in-Law, and Rome were the principal Places where this that would have killed him, fled away with his Art Hourish'd in its greatest Perfection, and Sister Helle upon a Ram, who had a Golden where excellent Artifts were brought up from Fleece, and arrived at Colches, where he offered the Ram in Sacrifice to Jupiter, or as some will have it, to Mars, who placed him among the Twelve Signs of the Zodiac: As for the Golden Heece, he left it to the King of the Country, who hung it up in a Temple, consecrated to Mars, under the Keeping of a Dragon.

PICTURA; Painting: Its not to be doubted, but Painting is as ancient as Sculpture, but ris very hard to know the real Time and Place where it first appear'd; the Egyptians and the Greeks, who make themselves to be the Inventors of the best Arts, have not failed to assume and an admirable Advantage: For hereby the the Glory of their being the first Painters also: In the mean time, as tis very difficult to fee clearly into a Matter that is obscured with the Revolution of fo many Years, which conceal its Original, we ought to be content to know in respect to Painting; that after it had had like unto other Things, its faint Beginnings, it was brought to Pertection among the Greeks, and the principal Schools for this illustrious Art were at Sisyone, Rhodes, and Arbens : From Greece it was brought into lealy, where it was in great Request in the Time of the Republick, and under the first Emperors, till at last Luxury and Wars having ruined the Roman Empire, it lay quite buried as well as other Arts and Sciences, and began not to revive in Italy till Cimabue fell to work, and retrieved out of the Hands of some Greeks the deplorable Remains of it: Some Florentines having seconded him, were those who first appear'd and brought it into Reputation; however it was a long time before any one came to excel in it.

Chirlandaio, Michael Angelo's Mafter, acquired the greatest Reputation, tho' his Manner was very dry and Gotbick; but Michael Angelo his Scholar coming up in the Reign of Julius her to be represented in the Dress of a Roman Lathe 2d, obscured all that went before, set up a dy, holding a little Incense Box, named Acerra, School at Florence, and educated several. Pietro in her Hand, and standing before an Altar where Perugino had also Raphaele d' Urbino for his there was a Fire lighted, to offer Incense upon Scholar, who excelled his Mafter very much, it. She may be also seen graven upon the Moand even Michael Angelo himself: He erected a ney of the said Emperor, holding Two Children School at Rome composed of the most excellent in her Arms, and with Two more, one on each Painters. At the same time that in Lombardy was lide: We have also Piety represented divers fet up, and grew famous under Giorgione and Titian, whole first Mafter was Giov Belini: There were also other particular Schools in Italy under in the Dress of a Roman Lady, in a sitting Podifferent Mafters, as that of Leonardo da Vinci at Milan: But the first I hree are reckoned the most Famous, from whence the rest sprung. Befides thefe there were Painters on this fide the Alps, who had no Correspondence with those in Isaly, fuch as Albert Durer in Germany, Holbens in Switzerland, Lucas Van Leiden in Hol- he pulled out of the Flames of Troy. By the Mo-time to time: Raphael's School was succeeded by that of the Carachii, which has continued almost to this time in its Perfection.

Before a Painter in Flanders called John Van-Eyel, but better known by the Name of Fohn de Bruges, had found out the Secret of painting in Oil, all the Painters wrought in Fresco and Diftemper or Water-Colours; and the Invention of Painting in Oil was not known to the Ancients; the Secret not being found out till the Beginning of the 14th Century. We may fav that Painting did then receive great Affistance. Colours of a Picture hold a long time, and receive a Luftre and Union, which the Ancients could not give to their Works, what Varnish foever they used to lay on for that Purpose: This Secret which lay hid fo long, confifts of nothing else but the grinding of the Colours with Nut or Linfeed Oil.

PICUS, King of the Latins, the Son of Saturn, and Father to Faunus, who reigned 57 Years: He married Canens, the Daughter of Fanus and Venilia, according to Ovid: But his Sentiments do not at all agree with Chronology herein; for Canens would have been above 500 Years old, if the had lived in the Time of Picus: The same Poet tells us, that Picus was beloved of Circe, and that not conforming himfelf to comply with her Love, she transformed him into a Bird of the same Name, which is a Wood-Pecker.

PIERIDES; an Fpithet given to the Muses, upon the Account of their having been born in that part of the Country of Macedon which was called Pieria.

PIETAS; Piety, whom the Romans worfhipp'd for a Goddess. Antoninus Pius caused ways, upon the Medals of Marcus Aurelius, Domitian, and Sabina, Adrian's Wife. She appears fture, holding a Javelin without any Spear to it in one Hand, and having little Children at her Feet, which she seems to instruct. As also under the Picture of Marcus Herennius, who carried his Father upon his Shoulders, and of JEnear, who did the same by his Father, whom land, and many others, who painted in France new which Time the Son of Vefpatian coined, Piety

Domitian together, and making them give one another the Right-hand: She was also exprest of Hercules set him free, when he went into holding Two Children in her Arms, with a Stork Hell to bring away Cerberus according to Bury that carries her Parents about in their old Age, and feeds them, which is a Symbol of Piety. At Rome there was a Temple dedicated to Piety by Antilius, in the Place where that Daughter lived, who fuftain'd her Father in Prison with the Milk of her Breafts.

PILADES; take what Lucien has writ of him in his Praise of an House: ' After this comes an illustrious Example of Friendship, which feems to have been taken out of Sophocles and · Euripides ; Pilades and Orestes who were thought to be dead, hid themselves behind Agamen-'non's Palace, they fecretly ftole in, and killed · Ægyftus, for Clytemnestra was already dead, and laid out upon the Bed half naked: You may ' imagine how aftonished the whole Court was at this Affaffination, some wept, others cried a-· loud or feemed to do fo, thefe fame endeavoured to make their Escape, the others resisted in vain; but the Painter has artfully passed oever what was most criminal, and would not represent the Son killing his Mother, but drew him killing the Adulterer and his Father's Mur-

PINARII, the Pinarians; they were Herrules his Priefts and Sacrificers, who offered Sacrifice to that God Morning and Evening; but the Pinarians happening to come last and at the End of the Sacrifice, Hercules ordered they should ferve the Potitii when they facrificed, to him; mivac. à fame.

PINDUS, a Mountain in Thessaly consecrated to Apollo and the Mules.

PIRÆUS, a very fine Port at Atbens, capuble to contain 400 Ships, it was joyned to the City by a Wall 2000 Paces long, and by a great many Buildings that made it the finest Part of Athens; the Piraus had been fortified divers Times, and they built Porticoes and Temples to the Gods there.

PIRENE, a Fountain rising from the Foot of Mount Acrocorinthas confectated to the Mufes, whole Waters are very clear and exceeding pleasant to the Taste.

PIRITHOUS; the Son of Ixion King of the Lapithe a People of Theffaly, who entred into frict Ties of Friendship with Thejeus. He severely punished the Centaurs, who had injured the Lapisha at a leaft whereunto they had been invited on the Day of his riend's Marriage with Hippodamia: He also affisted him to take away Helen, and the other in his turn helped him to fetch Proferpina back from Pluto, but this Undertaking mer with bad Succeis, for Pluto feized them : Some will have it, that Pirishous was devoured by the Dog Cerberus, others, that appears bringing the Two Brothers Titus and the was condemned to endure the same Punishment as Ixion, and that Thefens by the means fleus his Command.

PISISTRATUS, Hippocrates his Son, who in the Absence of Solon seized upon the Government of Athens, by the Favour of the People whom he won to his Interest by his Liberality to them. He made very good Laws which he added to those of Solon; he was a very great Lover of Learning and learned Men, being the first who erected a Library at Athens, which Xerxes, when he took that City, carried into Perfia; he imployed Ariftarchus to put Homer's Books in order, which were before all in Confusion.

PISONES, the Pifo's, an illustrious Family of Rome, so called from Peale, which the first of that Family had taken the Pains to fow.

PITHIA; Apollo's Prieftefs, who delivered the Responses of that Deity to those that consul-

PITHO; the Goddess of Eloquence or Perswasion, being derived from the Greek Word πείθω, to perswade. The Romans called her Swadela or Swada.

PLATO; a famous Philosopher and the Chief of the Academicks: He was called Ariftocles, and named Plato from his great Forehead and broad Shoulders: He was the most famous of all Socrates his Disciples, and ecclipsed the rest with the Splendor of his great Reputation; he was of a good Family in Arbens, and greatly excelled all his Companions in the Vaftness of and thence comes their Name, quafi & 70 70 his Understanding; however, not thinking that was enough to make him perfect in the Study of Philosophy, he resolved to travel and went to all Places where he thought he might improve in any thing, and so he learnt what was most rare and curious among the Egyptians, and from thence went into Italy where the Pythagoreans were in great Effeem; he heard the most Learned amongst them, and easily apprehended what was most valuable in their Doctrine. He divided his Philosophy into Three Parts, viz. Moral, which confifted principally in Action, Phyficks, that related to Speculation, and Logick which ferved to diftinguish Truth from Falshood. Of all the Philosophers his Doctrine comes nearest of any to Christianity: It will surprize you when you read that Plato had Sentiments of God fo conformable to the Truth of our Religion, from whence some have thought that in his Travels to Egypt, he was a Hearer of the Prophet Ferent. or that he had read the Books of the Prophets, And I my felf, fays St. Augustine, have followed this Opinion in some of my Works; but afterwards I came to understand by Cronology, that Plate was not born till about 100 Years after the Prophecies of Feremy, and that the Greek Version of the Septuagint was not done I. 1 1 2

PLE by Prolomy King of Egree's Order till near 60 | ravished them, they prayed to the Gods to preyet translated into the Greek Tongue, unless) ven Stars, which are near together towards the ftrusted therein, as he did in the Egyptian Books | ftormy Stars, and very frightful to Mariners; 'not by getting them translated, but by converfing with the fews viva voce. What favours this Conjecture is that the Book of Genefis begins thus. In the Beginning God created Heaven and Edith, but the Earth was without Form, and void, and Darkness was upon the Face of the Deep and the Spirit of God moved upon the Face of the Waters. And Plato in his Timeas where he | na, was a Minister of State under the Emperor ipeaks of the Creation of the World, fays, "That God did first join the Fire and Earth together: It's clear that by Fire he meant Heaven. But what fully perswades me, continues him to go and deliver the Hebrews, he received this Answer, I am that I am, thou shalt tell in his Works, and I do not know it is to be holy Scriptures. His Writings are almost all his Master Socrates. He died of the Morbus Pedicularic and was burried in the Academy of A- the best of his Works and deserve Commendatheus where he had taught Philosophy. all the Ancients for the Eloquence of his Stile, | ral Knowledge in all Things. he bore the Name of M. Accius, with that of Plantus, because of his splay Feet, as Sextus Pom- nes in a Comedy thus cailed, says, that this God peius fays. He was born in a little Town of Um- having at first a good Eye-fight, stuck to no Bobria called Sarcinas: He was much in Esteem at | dy but to the Just. But Jupiter taking his Sight Rome for the Stage, at the same time that Pub- from him, Riches afterwards tell indifferently to lius Scipio and Marcus Cata were in great Repu- the Share of the Good and Bad: They formed tation for their Politeness; his Comedies are a Design for the recovering of Plutus his Sight, full of Jefts and witty Railleries, for which Ci- but Penia, which is Poverty, opposed it, and cero commends him, and Varro affures us, that made it appear that Poverty was the Miltres of if the Mules would have spoke Latin, they had Arts, Sciences and Vertues which would be in Spoke like Plaurus, and Aulus Gellius in his Nodes Danger of being loft if all Men were rich: They ditice calls him the lather and Prince of the gave her no Credit, or feemed not to believe her, Latin Eloquence: He imitated the Greek Au- to that Plutus recovered his Sight in Afful pius thors in his Comedies, and amongst others Di- his Temple, and from thence forward the Temphilus, Epicharmus and Menander. Horace says, ples and Altars of other Gods, and those of he made Money of his Comedies, and when he Fupiter himself were abandoned, every Body had got a good deal, he with that turn'd Mer- lacrificing to no other than to God Plutus. 14chant, but proving unfuccessful that Way, cran in Timon or Misanthropos brings Jupiter and he was necessitated to turn a Mill, and grind Plutus talking together thus. Corn to ierve a Bakehouse: He died during the

and the Year of Rome 565. PLEIADES, they were the Seven Daughters of Arlas and the Nymph Pleione, who find | Thousand Torments. You faid, that 'twas it ing themselves pursued by Orion that would have | which made you pale and disfigured and was the Years after Plato's Death; insomuch that he serve them from his Insults, which they did could neither see feremy who was dead so long by changing them into Stars, and placing them before, nor read the Scriptures which were not in Heaven: 'Tis a Constellation formed of So 'you will have it said that he took care to be in- 18th Degree of Taurus. They are rainy and they call them in Latin Vergilia, à vere, because they rife about the Vernal Equinox, and fet in Autumn. PLEIONE, the Daughter of Oceanus and Tethys and Atlas his Wife, by whom he had Sc.

ven Daughters called Pleiades.

PLINIUS; Pliny the Elder, born at Vero-Vespasian, he had a very great Knowledge of natural Things, of which he wrote extraordinary Books, but wherein divers Matters areto be met with that are false, which he had by hearthe same St. Augustine, 'That Plato had some say, and took from the Relation of others; he Knowledge of our Books, is that Moles alking was suffocated by the Flames of Mount Vejuvithe Angel the Name of him who commanded us, as he approached too near it to observe that Wonder.

PLINY the Younger, his Nephew, wrote the Children of Ifrael, I am hath sent me to you : | a Book of Epiftles, a Treatise about illustrious But this is that which Plato firmly establishes Men, and a Panegyrick dedicated to Trajan.

PLUTARCHUS, Plutarch of Cheronea found in any Book older than Plato, except the flourished under the Emperor Irajan and gain'd great Reputation by his Books: The Lives of divided into Dialogues, in which he introduces lillustrious Men both among the Greeks and Remans, which he compares with one another, are tion above the reft. Tho' he is every where PLAUTUS, a Comick Poet, admired by agreeably instructive and shews he had a gene-

PLUTUS; the God of Riches; Aristopha-

Fup. I am amazed to find you angry, because Consulfhip of Publius Claudius and Lucius Portius, you are left at Liberty, seeing you formerwhile Cato was Cenfor, in the 149 Olympiad, ly complain'd of Usurers, who thut you up under Lock and Key, without letting you as much as fee the Light, and made you endure a Cause that you did endeavour to make your Efape. You also blamed the Covetous, who Return, fince you do not know the Way? died for Love of you, and in the mean time durst not enjoy you, like the Dog in the Fable, who being tied to the Rack, could not himself eat | than to flee away. Hay, and would not fuffer the Horse to do it: You faid, that they were jealous, and debarred are blind, pale, meager and lame, that you themselves of all Recreations, without consider- have so many Admirers who die for Love of you, Prey of a Thief or some unworthy Heir: Are of you. not you ashamed thus to swerve from your old | Plutus. 'Tis because Love hinders them to see

PLU

Plutus. If you will hear me, you shall find the Lustre which does surround me. I have Reason for what I do. For some let me before they are advantaged by me.

before they have tafted of it.

you lame as well as blind?

but Pluto who is also the God of Riches, as his all Laughter is banished out of Hell. great Riches to pass from one Person to ano- about the Temples of the Ancients. ther, &c....

you are blind?

take one for another.

by the Collar, and who goes to render you Opinion of Horace in his Satyrs. Thanks for his good Fortune, or some other God that shall never think of it.

Mercury. Was not Jupiter therefore mistaken, when he thought you did enrich Men of Merit. Plutus. How could be think that one blind as lam, could find out a meritorious Person which is fo rare a Thing? But as the Wicked are very Minerous, I meet with them fooner than others. Infpiration, and that the Poets were not only

Mercury. Why is it that you run fo fast in your

Plutus. They faid I never faw well but then, and that Fate gave me Legs for no other End

Mercury. Tell me farther, why it is, fince you ing that what they loved would one Day be the and who place their Happiness in the Enjoyment my Deformity, and that they are blinded with

PLUTO, Sanchoniathon makes him to be go through Negligence, and others spare me | Saturn and Rhea's Son: He adds that he was at through Stupidity, for want of knowing that if first called Mouth, which in the Phanician and they used me not I should be of no Benefit to Hebrew Tongue fignified Death, that they made them, and that they will be forced to leave me, a Deity of him after his Death, and that the Phanicians named him fometimes Death and fome-Jupit. They are infliciently punished for their times Pluto, as Eufebius fays, Nee multo post Sa-Fault, without your troubling of me to punish turnus alterumex Rhea filium, nomine Mouth, vita them, feeing the one like Tantalus die of Thirst fundum confectat; quem Phanices mode Mortem, in the midft of the Waters, and the other like modo Plutonem nominant. Diodorus Siculus seems Phineus fee Harpies carrying away their Victuals, to give a Reason why they gave the Name of Death to Pluto, and that was because he was Mercury. Let us go, why do you halt? Are the first that had instituted Funeral Solemnities for the Dead, Plutonem verò funerum & sepultura Plutus. I go always in this manner, when I ac purentationu ritus oftendiffe ferunt. The Greeks am fent to any Body and there I come very late, made a Pluto of a King of the Moloffi, whose Name and many times when there is nothing for me was Aidoneus or Orcus, who was the Person that to do; but when the Bufinels of my Return is ftole Profergina, and whose Dog named Cerberus in Agitation, I go as fast as the Wind, and devoured Pirithous, and had done the same by they are much aftonished that they cannot see Theseus, if Hercules had not come to his Relief. The Greeks called this God Pluto, because all Mercury. That is not always true, for there ! manner of Riches are at length swallowed up by are some People who grow rich while they the Earth from whence they came. Lastantius fays, that Pluto was not only called Orcus, but Plutus. I do not go then upon my Feet, but also Diespiter, being as much as to say Dis pater. Iam carried; and 'tis not Jupiter that fends me, And that they furnamed him Agefilaus, because

Name imports; for he on a fudden makes: PODIUM, Balifters which were fet round

POESIS, Poetry. Cicero confesses that Mercury. That happens frequently, but when Poetry is an heavenly Gift and the Influence of you go alone, how can you find the Way feeing a Divine Spirit, that Mankind is fatisfied of this Truth, and that 'tis agreed that the same is no Plusus. I mistake also sometimes and often other than a Divine Rapture which transports Man's Spirit and raises him above himself, but Mercury. I believe it, but what do you do yet so as that we are not indeed obliged to give the Name of Poetry to such Pieces as are writ Plusse. I turn up and down, to the Right in Verse, but yet in reality are nothing but and Left, till I find some Body that seizes me Prose, for want of this Divine Spirit: 'Tis the > Neque enim concludere versum Dixerim effe fatu.....

Ingenium cui fit, cui mens divinior, atque os Magna Jonaturum, des nominis bujus bonorem.

Plato will have Poetry to be a Divine Gift and Hiftorians.

POET Æ. Poets, they were formerly courted by and lived with great Princes, as their Divines, Philosophers, Historians and Privy Counfellers. Elian upon the Reputation of Plato declares, that Hipparchus, Prince of the Athenians, fent a Gally to fetch Anacreon to him: Hiero of Syracufe, got Pindar and Simonides to live with him. Elian affures us, that Ptolomy Philopator, King of Egypt having built a Temple to Homer, he let him therein upon a I hrone, and pictured all the Cities round about him that contended for his Nativity. Laftly, He fays, that Galato, represented Homer with a Stream running out of his Mouth, whither the rest of the Poets came they are to like? to fetch Water. Plutarch informs us, that Alexander had always Homer's Iliads at his Bed's Blows he received in Wreftling, and dipecially Head, with his Dagger, faying, it was inftru-Elive to him in the Military Art. The Romans, had a particular Esteem for the Poets, Scipio Africanus had Ennius always with him: Cicero made use of Poets either to write their History, other facred Monuments which they dedicated to the Glory of the Gods. When the Government of the Republick fell into the Hands of the Emperors, the famous Latin Poets were much more familiar with them than the Greek Poets had ever been with their Kings. And in what Favour Virgil and Horace were with Augustus is to affist Mariners in a Storm. well known.

There were Poets in the Land of Canaan before Mofes, for Bochart has very well observed, that Mojes in the Book of Numbers hath inserted a victorious Song of a Canaanitish l'oet, after he | because of the Athistance they believed to have had gained the Victory over the Moabites and received from them, in the Battle they fought Ammonites: There is no doubt but that there were Poets in the Eaft, and that there the Springhead was, from whence came all the Greek Poe- for them. They performed a great many fatry. The less civilized Nations of the West mous Actions, as their delivering their Siffer had also Peets, who very often had the Management of their I hilosophical and Theological her, and clearing the Seas of Pyrates; they fa-Schools. Homer lived above 300 Years before crinced pure white Lambs to them; they were Rome was built, and there were no Poets at Rome | translated to Heaven, and made one of the Signs zill 400 Years after the building thereof; fo that of the Zodiac, which is represented by Two Boys. Poetry began not to be cultivated in that City Its the Third from Aries, and in May the Sun entill 700 Years after Homer.

Plutarch affures us, that in the most Ancient Times, Men never expreft great and divine Things any otherwise than in Poetry, making fophy it felf; for the Poets, for 6 or 700 Years before the Philosophers, were the Prefervers of all the Religion and Morality of the Heathens. St. Augustine himself does not deny to the ancient Greek Poets the Title of Divines. much Theological Truth, it has proceeded from their collecting together the Stories that went abroad in the World, which arose from an Intercourse with the Children of Israel, and their POLLUX, the Son of Jupiter and Leda. and the Brother of Caftor and Helen. Lucian explains the Story of Caftor and Pollux in a Dialogue, between Apollo and Mercury.

Apollo. Will not you teach me to know Caffer from Pollux; for I am continually mistaken because of their Likeness to one another?

Mercury. He who was Yesterday with us was Caftor, and this is Pollux.

Apol. How can one diftinguish them, seeing Merc. Pollux has his Face disfigured with the from Bebrix, in the Expedition of the Argonauts; the other is a handsome Fac'd Fellow. without ever a Scar.

Apol. You have obliged me to let me know Ipeaks of many great Roman Commanders who the Particulars of it; for feeing each of them has his half Shell, his white Horse, Dart and Star. or with their Veries to adorn the Temples and I always mistake them; but tell me, why are not they both at the same time with us.

Merc. It is, because it was decreed concerning Leda's Two Sons, that one should be mortal, and the other immortal, they divided the Good and the Evil between them like good Brothers, and fo lived and died by turns, and their Buffness is

Men fwore by Pollux in this manner. Ade-Pol, that is, per adem Pollucis; and the Women by Castor, Ecastor or Mecastor. The Romans more particularly protest to give them Honour, near the Lake of Regillus, against the Latins, and therefore they erected a very fine Temple Helen out of the Hands of Thefeus, who had ftole ters into it. Pollux and Helen were the Children and her Husband Tindarus; it was pretended parfed in the uppermost Room in the House, also slew her felf. which they called of ov.

Diodorus Siculus relates, that the Argonauts being overtaken with a great Storm, Orpheus made a Vow to the Samothracian Gods, theremon the Storm cealed, and Two Coelestial Fires appear'd upon the Heads of Castor and Pollux, from whence came the Custom of invoking the him. Samothracian Gods in a Storm, and giving those Two Coelestial Fires the Name of Castor and Pallux. Lucian in a Dialogue between Apollo and Mercury, observes, that these Two Brothers were also invoked in Storms, because they themfelves had used the Seas, as being in the Company of the Argonauts. Cicero relates a wonderful Piece of Revenge taken upon one Scopas, for fleaking irreverently of those Two Brothers. called Dioscorides also, he having been crushed to pieces by the Fall of his Chamber, while Simonides who had made their Elogy, was called out by Two unknown Persons : The Greek and Roman Histories are full of the wonderful Appantions of these Two Brothers, either to gain a Victory, or to give News thereof, after the obmining of it. But Cicero himself in another Spight. mace tells us, how we are to entertain these Relations: He says, that Homer himself, who lived a little after these Two Brothers, athrmed, that they were buried at Lacedemon, and confequently that they could not come and acquaint Valenus of the Gaining of the Victory; that they should rather have communicated the News to Caso, than to fuch an infignificant Fellow: laftly, That we should believe the Souls of such great Men to be Divine and Eternal Spirits, but that after their Bodies had been burnt and reduced to Ashes, they could neither ride on Horles, nor engage in Battle.

POLYHYMNIA, or POLYMNIA; One of the Nine Muses, who presided over the Hymns and Songs that were play'd upon the Inte and Harp. Hefiod attributes the Art of Geometry to her, and Plutarch History.

POLYNICES, the Son of Oedipus, King of Thebes, and Brother of Execules; Execules at-Polynices of the Kingdom of Thebes, tho' they had agreed to reign by turns; Polynices retired to Argos, married there the Daughter of King Atraffine, and afterwards marched with a formitable Army against Eteocles, to call him to an Account for what he did. Focasta their Mother endeavoured in vain to reconcile them, so both ides made themselves ready to give Battle:

of Supiter and Leds ; Caffor was the Son of Leds , but Menaceus offered himfelf, then the Battle began, wherein Escocles and Polynices killed one they proceeded from an Egg, because they were another, and Josafta finding them to be dead, POLYPHEMUS; one of the Cyclops, the Son of Neptune, and the Nymph Thoofa, according to Homer. Lucian gives a Description of him in his Dialogues of Sea-Gods, where he introduces Doris and Galatea speaking thus.

Doris. They say, Galarea, that Polyphemus is who were of the Number of the Argonauts; in Love with you; you have a fine Lover of > Galatea. Doris do not jear, as mean as you think him to be, he is Neprune's Son.

. Dor. What, tho' he were Jupiter's Son; he is as hairy as a Bear, and has but one Eye.

Galat. Hair is a fign of Strength, and his Eye looks very graceful in the middle of his Forehead; so that he looks as well as if he had had

Dor. It feems to me as if you were enamoured on him, and not he on you.

Galat. Not in the leaft; but I cannot endure your, nor your Companions Jealousie; for while he was feeding his Flocks in the Shade upon Mount Aina, as we were playing on the River fide, he found me more heautiful than you, and that I suppose makes you ready to burst for

Dor. You have Vanity enough to believe that any Body will be jealous of you; what is there in you worth taking notice or, but your clear Skin, from whence you have obtained the Name of Galasea: He took you to be handsome, because your Complexion is just like his Butter and Galat. But for all that, Thave got one of Neptune's Sons to be my Lover: Belides, he is an excellent Mufician.

Dor. Galatea, pray never talk of his Mulick, we heard him the other Day, when he drew near you to fing. Good God, a strange Mulician indeed! A pleatant Harp made or a Deer's Skull, whose Horns served for Pins to it! As great an Imitatrix as Eccho is, she was ashamed to answer him, for his Voice and Inftrument never agreed; and this fine Spark to make him appear the better, carried in his Bosom, a little Bear like himself: I do not envy you upon the to the Death of Oedipus, deprived his Brother Account of this stinking one-eyed Cyclops, who devours his Guests.

As Polyphemus one Evening was gathering his -Flock together, he found Ulyfles and his Companions in a Grott, and taking them to be Robbers, he closed up the Mouth of it with a Rock: but then discerning some of them by the glimmering of the Fire, which they concealed, he devoured them; hereupon Ulyffes to avoid the like The Prophet Tirefias declared, the Thebans would Ulage, gave him some Wine, which he had no get the Victory, if they facrificed Menaceus the Sooner drank, but he thought the Cave turn'd Sm of Crean to Mars; Crean denied his Son, lupide down; and Ulyfes taking Advantage over this his Giddiness, put out his Bye with a Fire- Cestius or Equilinus, the Equiline Bridge. s. Panibrand, and faved himself under the Belly of a Janiculensis and Aurelius built of Marble by Beaft, as he was driving them to Pasture.

POMONA; a Nymph of Latium, reckoned to be the Goddess of Gardens and Fruits.

whom Historians compare with Alexander; he the same is called at this Day, Ponto S. Angele was furnamed the Great, from his great Actions and excellent Endowments: He built a flanding Theater at Rome; for before they erected feized the Ambassadors of the Allobroges, with none but as there was occasion for them: Dio Letters about them, whereby Catiline's Config. accuses him of boundless Ambition, and Envy mixed with Vanity, fince he envyed those Ho- Bridge that Constantine deseated the Emperor nours to Cafar, which he had acquired: He was | Maxentius. defeated by Cafar in the Plains of Pharfalia, and fleeing into Egypt to King Ptolemy, he was affaffinated and killed in a Bark as he was going athoar, his Head was fent to Cafar, who shed Tears at the fight thereof.

dry Things are weighed. As the Weights of Pontiffs had to facrifice; others, as Verio, from the Romans and Greeks agreed very much with Pons, because they built the Sublician Bridge their Money, you may see under the Word Mo- that they might go and offer Sacrifice on the

been faid concerning them.

of them in Rome : The Sublician Bridge, which ritu fiant. was a Bridge of Wood: For the Word Sublica fignified Wooden Piles which were driven under | Families which continued to the Year 454. the Water: It was the first that was built upon when in the Confulship of Apuleius Pansa and the Tiber; Ancus Marsius made it of Pieces of Valerius Corvus, they created Four more of Timber fet together without Iron or Nails, it | Plebeian Race at the Importunity of the Tristood at the Foot of Mount Aventine, and join- bunes of the People, as Livy fays. This Numed the Faniculum to the City: 'Twas that which | ber of Eight lasted till the Dictatorship of Sylla, Horasius Cocles defended against the Tuscan Ar- who added Seven more, and so the Colledge my, but being ruined through length of Time, came to confift of 15 Pontiffs, but with this Diit was rebuilt of Stone by Emilius Lepidus, and Stinction that the first Eight were more honourcalled after his Name: The Emperor Tiberius able, and called Pontifices Majores, whereas the rebuilt it in his Time, it being deftroyed by the others took the Title of Pontifices Minores. trequent Inundations of the Tiber: Happening afterwards to fall down again, Antoninus built it all of Marble, and twas called Fons Marmora- Person and sovereign Judge in Matters of Relisus; Maletactors, Vagabonds and the Argian gion, and to whose Care the Direction of all Ce-Images were thrown off of this Bridge into the remonies both Publick and Private and all the Water. 2. That called the Triumphal otherwise Articles of their Faith was wholly committed; Varican Bridge, that stood upon the Middle of he prescribed the Ceremonies and particular the Tiber, over which those that triumphed pas- | Worship wherewith each God was to be honoursed, and is now ruined. 3. Fons Palatinus, ed, after the same by a Decree of the Senate had which was near Mount Palatine, and otherwise been received at Rome, and to him belonged the named Senasorius. M. Fulvius made the Piles | Composing of the Rituals or Books of Ceremothereof, and L. Mummius finish'd the Arches nies: It was he that approved of the Vestal Virduring the Time of his Cenforship. 4. Pons gins, and appointed them their Habits, that Fabricius, which was divided into two, when corrected, chaftifed and condemned them to be the Island of the Tiber was made, it being fo buried alive, when they violated their Vow of called from him who built it, when he was chief Chastity: All the Orders of Priests and Sacri-Surveyor of the high Ways. It joined the Island ficers were under his Inspection. Anciently he to the City, and it is at this Day named Di qua- took upon him to perform the Functions of an ero capi, from the Four Marble Figures, each of Augur, but C. Servilius, the great Pontiff, bewhich have Four Heads standing at the End of ing one Day about to solemnize the Inauguratithe Bridge in the Island, or the Jews Bridge, on of Cornelius Dolabelia, a Storm fell suddenly

Antoninus Pius; and coming to be ruined, was rebuilt by Pope Sextus IV. and called after his Name di ponte Sixto. 6. Pons Elius, so called: POMPEIUS; Pompey, the Son of Strabo, from the Emperor Elius Adrianus who built it. 7. Pons Milvius, now Milvio, which Elius Scauras built : It was upon this Bridge that Cicero racy was discovered, and it was near unto this

At Three Miles Diffance from Rome flands Salaro Bridge under which runs the Teveron or Anio.

PONTIFEX; Authors differ about the Etymology of this Word, some deriving it from PONDUS; Weights, wherewith liquid and poffe facere, i. e. from the Authority which the neta, or under each particular Coin, what has other Side of the Tiber. Pontifices a ponte arbitror dictos; nam ab iu Sublicius est fallm & re-PONTES, Bridges. There were Eight Stitutus fape, cum ideo facra & uls & cu Tiberim

Numa inflituted Four Pontiffs of Patrician

There was a fovereign Pontiff called Pontifex Maximus inftituted by Numa, who was the chief because they live near it: Others called it Pons and broke up the Assembly, and thereupon as an magnitudine; sed quod eos Pontisex Maximus con- fices an concepto ne dum edito partu rite nuberet.

Father's Place that was dead, and this Suetonius informs us in Nero's Life: Cn. Domitius in Tribunav Pontificibus offensior, quò lalium quàm se in patris sui locum cooptassent, jus sacerdotum subroeandorum à collegiu ad populum transtulit: There are fome who believe with more Likelihood, that the chief Pontiff had been always created in an Affembly of the People held by the Tribune: It being that which Cicero feems to fay in the Agrarian Law. But if the People presented, the Colledge of the Pontiffs had a Right to examine him, whether he were fitly qualified | that Verse in the 12th Eneid of Virgil. for that Dignity, viz. that he were of an unblameable Life, had never fhed Blood, and fkilled in both the Civil and Divine Law.

His Confecration was performed with extrainto a Pit made in the Earth, clad in his Pontiwas full of Holes over him, whereon the Sacrifi- | quum dicimus. cers killed a Bull, whose Blood dropping like Dew dolled him to his House where he treated them | turn. L. 3. C. 2. folendidly: This Prudentius tells us in the Mar-He was the Chief of all the Priefts, and to him to observe good or bad Omens from them. appertained the fovereign Jurisdiction of Reli-Emperor's Palace: They carried him in a Litter to | ing of it. the Capitol: He was not obliged to give any Body effect of their Superstition, it was ordered that an Account of his Actions, and this was the Reathe great Pontiff should not any more inter- son that the Emperors themselves from Julius meddle with the Business of Inauguration, un- | Cafar took the Office of chief Pontiff upon them. lesshe were Augur and grand Pontiff both: He till Gratian, who of himself laid it down. The helt and confectated the Images and Statues of other Pontiffs looked after Matters of Religion the Gods, before they were fet up in the Tem- in Conjunction with the chief Pontiff, and they ples to be adored; he also bleft the Resemblances | consulted them as the Interpreters of the Gods of some of Jupiter's Thunder-bolts, in order to and Divine Mysteries, in Marriages and Adoptipreferve them from Storms: Besides these things ons; and Tacitus tells us, that Nero consulted that related to Religion, it was his Business to the Pontiffs in order to know whether he might digest the Annals or Histories that were kept for marry a Woman who was with Child, before she egery Year, as Festus says, Annales maximi non were delivered; Consulti per ludibrium Ponti-

POPÆ; were fuch Perfons as attended the The Choice of a chief Pontiff was at first in the Sacrifices, whose Business it was to provide Vi-Power of the other Pontiffs, who elected him ctims, and to kill them after they had knocked out of their own Body; but Cn. Domitius Tri- them down: They were half naked, their Shoulbune of the People deprived them of that Right, ders, Arms, and upper Part of their Bodies beand transferred it to the People, because they ing uncovered as far as their Navels, and the would not confer this Dignity upon him in his rest covered to the Mid-leg with a Linnen Apron, or the Skins of the Sacrifices, wearing a Crown upon their Heads which was usually made of Lawrel: Thus they were represented on Trajan's Column: But in the mean time there are other ancient Figures which represent them with a Priest's Albe reaching down from their Armpits and tucked up, to which their facrificing Knife was fastned: This Apron was called Limus, because at the lower End of it, it had a Purple Welt which was fowed in fuch a manner as reprefented a Serpent. And this Servius tells us upon

Velati limo & verbena tempora viniti.

Limus, says he, vestu est quâ ab umbilico usque ordinary Ceremonies, they made him go down | ad pedes teguntur pudibunda Poparum: bac autem vestiu in extremo sui purpuram limam id est flexuofical Habit, and laid a Wooden Trap-door that | sam babet: unde & nomen accepit, nam limum obli-

POPLIFUGIUM; the Flight of the through the faid Holes, wetted the Pontiff all People, which happened according to some Auover the rubbed his Face, Lyes, Mouth, and even | thors, when Romulus was killed as he was haranhis Tongue therewith: That being done, they ging the People, and that an horrible Clap of took up the Trap-door, and the Flamines lifted | Thunder made them fly up and down for Fear, the grand Pontiff out thence, all beimeared with or when after the Defolation of the City oc-Blood, and in this State they faluted him with cationed by the Gauls, the Romans were put to these Words, Salve, Pontifex Maxime, and con- Hight by the Tuscans, according to Macrobius Sa-

PORRICERE; ('twas a Term used at tyrdom of St. Romanus towards the latter End. | ancient Sacrifices) which tignified to throw the Summus Sacerdos nempe fub terram scrobe alla in | Entrails of the Victim into the Fire of the Sapofundum confectandus mergitur mire infulatus: crifice, after they had been inspected, in order

Inter cafa & porrella; between the cutting of gion, and Conferring of fuch Offices as did be- the Victim's Throat and inspecting his Entrails: long to the Worship of the Gods. He was car- the same being a Latin Proverb to denote any ned in a Chair which they called Sella Curulin, Accident which may happen when we are just and his Door was adorned with Lawrel like the finishing of a Thing, and hinders the Compleatcipal was of Old called Flumentana or Flaminia, now del Populo, upon the Banks of the Tiber, towards the Winter-west, according to Marlian'

Description L. 1. C. 8. 2. Was called Collati-

the Hill of Gardens and through which they went to Collatia a City of the Sabines, and the great Road was called via Collatina. 3. Quirinalu, beit is now called porta Salara, because through it they bring Salt into the City. 4. Viminalu, be-made Auvenal call it Madida Capena. By this them, entred, and fo they called it also Triumpha

There were Three Gates in Trans-Tiberina, called Portuenfis and Navalis. 2. Stood on the Aurelia, being so named from the Road, which one Aurelius a Man of Consular Dignity paved:

Through this Gate they went along by the Tufsan Sea as far as Pifa. 3. Septimiana which frood at the Foot of the faniculum, and was so called to private or publick Buildings: The Magnin-cence and Beauty of their Portico's was fomething extraordinary among the Romans. They

PORTICUS, a Portico or Gallery, joined from Septimius Severus who built it.

that entred at it.

POT PORTA; a Gate, Pliny fays, that in his in Summer on the North-fide: These covered Time there were 37 Gates belonging to the Ci- Portico's served for People to walk under, and to ty of Rome: There are still 9 of the ancient recreate themselves without being, exposed to Gates in being befides that on the other Side of the Injuries of the Weather: They were called the Tiber and the Vatican. 1. The first and prin- | Stadiata Portici. The open Portico's which were called Subdiales Ambulationes, served for Places to wrestle in: Of all the Portico's built at Rome, the most conliderable were those of Pompey, Augustus and na being on the Right-hand, leading towards Nero: Pompey built his before his Court, and it was the pleasantest Walk in all the City and the cooleft in Summer, and this made the Poets by way of Excellency call it Pompeia umbra, as ocause through it they went to Mount Quirinal; vid does, cause of Mount Viminal, the same being now called Momentane, or St. Angelo. 5. Esquilina, or Augustus's served for an Ornament to his Taurina and Tiburtina, because they went thro' Palace and Library: The Pillars were of Numiit to go to Tibur. 6. Porta Calimontana, thro' dian Marble, and there were the Statues of Dawhich they went to Mount Calius. 7. Porta Latina or Ferentina, which lead to the Country naus his 50 Daughters, ranged in their proper Order. Nero adorned his Palace with Three of the Latins. 8. Capena and Fontinalis at the Portico's each of 3000 Paces long, and for that Foot of Mount Aventine, and near the Tiber, and there they had divers Fountains, which Reason they were called Porticus milliaria.

> Tu modò Pompeià lentus spatiare sub umbrà, Cum Sol Herculei terga Leonis adit.

The Athenians were also very curious in Por-Gate they entred into the great Road called via lico's, and therein it was that their Philosophers kept their School: The most famous was that Appia; and 'twas through it that fuch as triumphed and the whole Cavalcade that attended which they called Pacile, where they had a Brass Statue of Mercury and the finest Paintings that lis. 9. Oftensis and Trigemina, because of the could be seen, and among the rest that which Three Horatii who killed the Three Curatii, represented the Battle of Marathon: There it was Zeno kept his School, for which Reason he was called the Stoick, and those of his Sect Stocks, 1. Ripa, where the Barks that came from Offia from the Greek Word orod that fignifieth a and the Sea landed, and the same was formerly | Portico.

The Ancients had also Subterranean Portico's Top of the Faniculum, and was formerly called | built like arched Galleries, to cool themselves in in Summer time; they called them Subterrance porticus, or crypto-porticus, POKTORIUM, Cuftom or Impost laid upon the Importation and Exportation of Goods.

PORTUMNUS; a Sea-God called Melicersus and Palamon by the Greeks, the Son of hio who was looked upon as a Deity prending over corts, there were Games celebrated in Jonour of him and certain Combats in Greece called Porsumnales and Isthmian Games, because had private ones for the Conveniency of private they were performed in the Islbmus of Corimb.

POST-SCENIUM, the back Part of the themselves. POST-VORTA; a Goddess worshipped than our Glass.) In Winter time they opened Cacus had Role: He invited Two confiderable them towards the South to let in the Sun, and Families to this Sacrifice, to wit, the Positions and Pinarians. This Prieftly Office was afterwards transferred into the Hands of the publick Slaves, which happened in the Year of Rome 441. when Appius Claudius having corrupted the Potitians with Money they loft this Office which had been appropriated to their Family by Evander. These Priests were clad with the Skins of Beafts. PRÆCIÆ and PRÆCLAMITATO-

RES, Criers; being Officers that went along the Streets of Rome before the Flamen dialu, to cause all People to give over their Work on pub-Work, the Service of the Gods could not be performed.

Officer whole Butiness it was in the Assemblies of the People to call the Classes and Centuries according to their Order, and to cause Silence Sacrificing.

rite, who periwaded him to keep all the Companies of the Guards together, (they being beneighbouring Parts) in a Place near unto the Walls, towards Porta Viminali, which was called Caftra Pratorianorum: his Pretence for it was, that the Soldier, being dispersed in that manner must necessarily be debauched; and if any sudden Accident happened, they would be now more in Readiness to give their Ashfrance. These Companies of the Guards made 10000 effective Men at first, and in time amounted to a compleat Army, which made them formidable to Rome. The Emperor Commodus made Three Prefedi pratorio, according to Lampridius, but afterwards other Emperors made but Two, and this lasted till Constantine's Time. These Pre fects at first were taken out of the Order of Knights only, and 'twas a fundamental Law that could not be dispensed with; whence it was that Mark Antony according to the Relation of Fulius Capitolinus, exprest his Displeasure that he was not able to make Pertinax, who was his Succesfor, Prafedus pratorio, because he was a Senator. Doluit Marcus, quod cum Senator effet, Prafeltu pratorio a fe fieri non poffet. The Emperor Com-Paternus, dexteroully ditappointed him of it by conferring upon him the Honour of the Laticla-cording to Lampridius, and Alexander Severm made use of Senators, which was never practifed before, fays the same Author in his Life, or at leaft very feldom; for except Titus the Son of Vespasian, who was a Senator and a Man of Conular Dignity, that was constituted Prafettus prætorio under his Father, as Suetonius says, or Cremerus Aretinus, according to Tacitus, we do not find in History that any Senator enjoy'd it till this Emperor's Time.

When the Emperor inflituted this Officer. he made a fhort Speech concerning the Dignity lick Holy days, for if they faw any one at of the Charge, and the Duties of the Person entrufted with it, then he presented him with a Sword and Belt, and fometimes put a naked PRÆCO; the Publick Crier, he was an Sword into his Hand, saying as Trajan did to Licinius Sura, 'Receive this Sword, and imploy it for my Service, if I govern well, but if otherwise, make use of it against me. This Dion to be kept in the Temples during the Time of Cassius informs us in Trajan's Life: This Officer was degraded by diverting him of the Sword PRÆFECTUS PRÆTORIO; he and Belt, as Galba did by Tigillinus and Sabinus was the chief Commander of the Pratorian Bands, who were Prafelli pratorio, as we read in Philoand may be called Collonel of the Guards. | stratus. These Officers commanded the Guards The Inflitution of this Office is attributed and all the Armies and administred Justice, to Augustus who according to Dio established the Emperors leaving to them the Management Two of them out of the Order of the Knights: of all Affairs: They may be compared with the Tiberius made but one, viz. Sejanus his Favou- ancient Mayors of the Palace in France, who were the fecond Perfons in the Kingdom, and to whose sole Management the Kings of the first fore dispersed up and down the City and in the | Line left all Things; they thinking it enough to fhew themselves once a Year to the People. But Constantine the Great did a little moderate the Power of the Prafedus pratorio, for to punish him that had declared himself in Favour of the Tyrant Maxentius and demolished the Cittadel at Rome which Sejanus had caused to be built: and having divided the Empire into Four Governments, he constituted Four General Governours or Prafetti pratorio over them, each bearing the Name of their particular Government. These Governments were those of Gaul, Sclavonia called Illiricum, Italy and the Baft, fo that there was a Prafeitus pratorio Galliarum, or a Pratorian Prefect of the Gauls, one of Italy, another of East Sclavonia, called Illiricum Oriensale, who had his Refidence at Theffalonica, and the Fourth of the East, that relided in Syria. These Two last had all the East under their Government, which was divided into 60 Provinces: and the first Two all the West divided into 58. They had Lieutenants under them, whom they commanded in an abiolute manner, and they were called Vicarii. When Conftantine had modus being afraid to confer this Ornice upon leftablished these Four Governours, he deprived them of the Command of the Army which originally did belong to them, and revium and making him a Senator, as Causabon | quired every one of them to administer Justice explains that lassage, Per Lati-clavi bonorem a within his Government with supream Po-Pefedura administratione submovit: Heliogabalus | wer. There are other Authors who attriwaterred this Charge upon his Juglers, ac- bute this Change to the Emperors Valenti-

Houses, and the publick ones served for an Ornament to their Theaters and publick Buildings. Theater, whither the Actors retired and undreft These Portico's were sometimes covered and iometimes open: The covered ones consisted of long Galleries supported usually by one or more, by the Romans, because she foresaw what was Rows of Marble Pillars, and within fide inrich- to come. ed with statues, Painting, and other Orna- POTITII, the Positions, they were Herments, with stately and magnificent Arches. On cules his Priests consecrated by Evander, who the Sides were feveral. Windows that with a were present at the sacrifice offered by Hercules precious Stone, (which was more transparent after he had found his Oxen which the Thief aian, Gratian, and Theodofius, but Zozimus does; Ringuish Brothers one from another, as Peter, it to Constantine,

They had a Tribunal where they administred Juffice, and they passed Sentence by Word of Mouth and not in Writing as other subordinate Magistrates did. Non pronunciabant ex sabella, fed verbo. They had the Priviledge of the Sword which they wore by their Sides, that is, Plutarch, and these Days they called Dies Into pass a final Sentence of Death without further | ftrici, because it was a Ceremony whereby they Appeal. In the Place where they administred Justice there stood a Table covered over with Whereas the Pranomen was not given till they Scarlet Tapistry and Gold Fringe round it, upon which there was a Book shut, on the Cover whereof was the Emperor's Picture, and on each of the 10th Book attributed to Valerius Maxi-Side Two gilded Candlefticks with lighted Wax-Candles; 'twas in this manner he administred | where his Children are always called Ciceronis Justice, that so a greater Solemnity might be pueri till that Age, after which they were called added to the Majesty of the Roman Empire. This Book was that which the Emperors gave to these Governours, when he sent them into their Governments, and therein was contained the Duties of their Office. Lazing tells us that the Marks of the Pratorian Præfect's Dignity, were the Priviledge of the Sword, the Rods, the Curule-Chair, the Scepter or Ivory-Staff, the Pretext-Robe, the Laticlavium and the Trabea; also the Insula or Mitre to wear on their Heads, and a Company of Archers for a Guard: When these Przefects went from Rome to their Governments, they left their Children with the Emperors as a Security of their Fidelity.

PRÆFECTUS URBIS: The Prefect or Governour of the City; he was formerly one of the chief Magistrates of Rome, who governed | Code, and in the Law Penul. codem, where his it in the Absence of the Consuls and Emperors. His Business was to look after the Provision, Civil Government, Buildings and Navigation: his Bed and Cloathing. See Panciroli, Notitia His Power extended to a 1000 Stones Throw without Rome, according to Dion: He was the proper Judge in the Causes of Slaves, Patrons, and Freed-men: He convened the Senate, judged the Senators, and defended their Rights at Rome till the Age of Fifteen; and their and Prerogatives, as Cassiodorus will have it : Daughters till they were married : The Magi-He was obliged on the first Day of the Year | firates, Augurs, Priests and Senators were it on to go and make the Emperor a Prefent in the folemn Days, as Authors inform us. Name of all the People, of some Gold Cups, with Five Pieces of Money, as Symmachus fays, Vobis solemnes pateras cum quinis solidus ut Numinibus integritatis offerimus.

PRÆFERICULUM, a Vase used at the Sacrifices of old, that had a prominent Mouth, like unto some Vessels now used.

PRÆFICÆ MULIERES: They were the Robe edged with the Purple Border, were a fort of mourning Women, who at Funeral Solemnities praised the Deceased, made a Lamentation, beat their Breafts, and ditorted their Faces to incite others to mourn. See Funus and I ftrates.

put before the general Name, and fignified as But afterwards the Generals of the Army, and fobn, fames. This Pranomen was not brought in use till long after the Name; and therefore it was a Custom among the Romans to give to their Children the Name of the Family, on the the 9th Day after their Birth, if they were Boys, and on the 8th to Girls, according to Festus and acknowledged them for their lawful Children: took upon them the Virile Robe, that is, about the Age of 17, as appears by the Epitome mus: This also is manifest by Cicero's Epistles, Marcus filius, Quintus filius. And whereas Cicero in his laft Epiftle of L. 6. calls his Nephew Quintum Ciceronem puerum; its very likely that he milapplies the Word puer, either to diffinguish him from his Father, who was also called guintus, or perhaps, because it was but a very short time fince he had taken the Virile Robe upon him. There was usually Care taken in conferring this Pranomen, to give that of the Father to the Eldert Son, and that of the Grand father and Ancestors to the Second, and so on.

PRÆPOSITUS face i cubiculi ; this Name may be given with us to the Lord Chamberlain, who marched, at the Performance of any Ceremonies, after the Master of the Horse-Guards; as you have it in the last Law of the Charge is inferted, which was to keep himfelf in the Emperor's Chamber, and to take care of Imperii, & Bollanger, L. 3. C. 13.

PRÆTEXTA; a Robe to called, which was a long and white Veft, edged with a Purple Border, the Sons of Persons of Quality wore it

PRÆTEXTATI, were fuch Children as fill wore the Robe called Pratexta. Pratextata verba, and Pratextatus fermo; they were lascivious and wanton Expressions used by Children, when a young Woman was married. Prætextata Comædia; a Comedy, wherein Kings and Magittrates, who had a Right to wear represented upon the Stage. Pratextate actiones, were fuch Things as appertained to the Actions of Kings and Magi-PRÆTOR; a great Magistrate in Rome,

PRENOMEN; it was that which was At first all the Magistrates were called Prators: much as our proper Name which serves to di- even the Emperors themselves were called Prators. Afterwards they conflicted Prators to ad- | ever, Augustus reduced them to 12, and Tibe-

the Prators, it will be proper fully to examine on of the Empire, they were reduced to 3 only, the Reason of their Name, Institution, Num- as we may see by the Laws of the Emperors Vaber, Dignity, and what their Power and Charge leminian and Macrinus, fet forth, L. 2. C. de was. The Word Prator was peculiarly applied Off. Prat. to this new Magistrate, for before it belonged Office of Prator, notwithstanding the Opposition made by the Conful Sulpicius against him. There was no more but one of them from the

Year 388, till 510, according to Lipfius; but Bugreat Number of Citizens and Strangers that and their Business was diffinet; for one admini- Ep. 10. ad Assicum. fired Justice to the Citizens of Rome, and for other took Cognizance of the Suits that happened between the Citizens and Strangers, and he were establish'd by Julius Cafar. was called Prator peregrinus: The first was more honourable than the other, and so he was entit- of the Treasury or Exchequer. led, Prator honoratus, and his Edicts named Fus lity of Governours and Judges; and this was War met. likewise done, when the Spaniards were conquerof them with two more, but the Triumvirs in- who did not for fake him in Battle, qualed them to 64, according to Dion: How-minister Justice to the Citizens, and others to rius being sollicited to increase the Number, re-Strangers: And lastly, there were Prators made | fused it, as Tacitus says, L. 1. Tiberius afterfor the Government of Provinces. His Power wards named 12 Prætors, the Number established was very great, for the Prator could alter Laws, by Augustus, and as the Senate pressed him to inrepeal them, and make new ones; from whence crease them, be swore be would not do it : However you have in the Law mention made often of the he increased them to 15, in the Year 786, according to Dion: The Emperor Claudius enlar-For the better understanding the Dignity of | ged the Number to 18; but upon the Declensi-

The Prætorship was the second Office for Digto the Confuls, and all Persons in Authority, nity in Rome, since twas conferred by the same whether in Civil or Sacred Things; hence it is Auspices as the Consulfhip, and that the Prators that we read in some ancient Epitaphs, Presor were in History called College Conjulum, as Livy Sucrorum, Presor Juveniusie: Which is consirm'd observes, L. 7. Decad 1. The exterior Ensigns by Asconius Pedianus; Non solum veteres omnem of this Office were the Robe called Pratexta, the Magistratum, cui pareret exercitus, Prætorem ap- Curule Chair, and fix Lillors. This Office was pellarunt: Sed quemcunque in re profana five etiam Annual, and he who discharged the same with facra pratectum; The Ancients not only called Honour, and without any Dilgrace, had a Right those Prators who commanded the Armies, but for all his Life-time to wear the Pratexta, and also such as had the Charge either of Sacred or white Trabea, but such as were guilty of Male-Civil Things. The Occasion of creating this Administration were forced to lay it down, as it Magistrate, was a Multiplicity of Business upon happen'd to Bembius Pamphilus. All their Busithe Conful's Hands (and this was Anno 388,) nels in general confifted in Three Things, visand the Necessity the Republick found it felt un- to administer Justice to Citizens and Strangers. der of granting to the People a Conful of their | to prelide over Games, and to take Care of the own Order; for the Senate did not allow it but | Sacrifices: Justice was administred by these mon Condition that a new Magistrate should be Three Words, Do, Dico, Addico; Do fignified treated, that is, the Prator, who was taken out to receive and admit the Plaintiff to commence of the Patrician Order: But in the Year 416, his Sunt; Dico to fummon, or give a Summons upo. Philo, a Plebeian, got himself advanced to the on Oath, or deliver it to the Person in Possession. to dispatch Matters of Adoptions and Emancipations, and to make Edicts as a Supplement to the Civil Law; and Addice to adjudge, condemn, and pronounce Sentence: He was to overfee the finels coming to increase so much by reason of the Games, as Livy has it, L. 8. Decad 1. as also Martial and Fuvenal: They took Care of the ame to live in Rome, and one being not enough, Sacrifices offered to the Goddess called Bona Dea. they thought it proper to conflitute another, as Phuarch fays in Cafar's Life, and Cicero, L. I.

PRATORES CEREALES, or FRU that Reason was called Prator urbanus; and the MENTARII; Prators, whose Business it was to fee that Rome was supplied with Corn: they PRÆTORES ÆRARII; the Officers.

PRÆTORIUM; the Place where the binorarium, as the Lawyers fay. But towards Prator administred Justice; it was also his Pathe Year 520, when Sicily and Sardinia were lace, and sometimes his Pleature-house: Besides reduced into Provinces, they appointed Two which it fignified the Tent or Pavillion of the new Pragers, whom they fent thither in the Qua- General of the Army, where the Council of

PRÆTORIANI; the Soldiers, who were ed, as Livy informs us, who fays they made Six the Emperor's Guards: Scipio Africanus was the Prators for that Year: fex Pratores eo anno pri- first who established a Company of the Brayest. mim creati. Sylla also encreased the Number of his Army, whom he choice for his Guards, and · Sea, is uncertain. with his Sifter Hesione taken Prisoner by Hercules, and ransomed for Money; he ascended his of Vesta when asleep, Silenus's Als bray'd, awaked Father's Throne, and reign'd over the Trojans, and all Afia: He married Hecuba, by whom he had leveral Children; and Paris amongst the reft, who going to Greece, under Pretence of demanding Hesione his Aunt's Liberty, took away Helen from Menelaus, which caused the Gre- | Secreta y of State; who kept a general Register cians to engage in that War against the Trojans, of the whole Empire. Tacitus in the first Book that lafted Ten Years: At last Troy was deftroy'd, of his Annals tells us, that the Emperor Auand Priamus killed by Pyrrbus the Son of Achilles, gustus had made a Journal of the Empire, wherenear un o the A tar of Jupiter Herceius.

Venus and Bacchus's Son; he was not a Man, of the Armies. Kingdoms, Provinces, Impofts, but the Representation of those Parts that Revenues, and at last a State of the Charge; ferve for Generation, which Isis caused to be the whole was writ by Augustus his own Hand: made and worshipped, when after the rest of The Emperors at first len the keeping of this Ofice his Body was found, which had been cut to Journal to their Freed men, which were called pieces by his Enemies, there was none but this Procuratores ab Ephemeride, and afterwards Vir wanting, the Picture whereof he required should | spedabilis Primicerius Notariorum, who had sebe adored: this Worthip spread it self every- veral Secretaries under him called Iribuni Nowhere, and this infamous Figure was to be feen | taris. in most Temples; in Vineyards and Gardens

Strabo speaks of a City in Troas that bore the ed there, and that it abounded with excellent to the other petty Deities of the Athenians: But this Worship could be no where new except in Greece, if according to Diodorus Siculus, it prevailed in Egypt in the Days of Ifis. Strabe oblerves, that even before this Prispus, the Greeks were not without some other the like Representations. Some have thought, that the I nage and Worship of Priapus began to obtain in the World, after Sefoftru, King of Egyps had fubdued a great Part thereof; and left all those immodest Pictures, as an Instance of their Lasciviousness and Victories, in all the Provinces: Venus profittuting herself to Bacchus, and being ready to lie in, the retired to Lampfacus, a City in Phrygia, where the was brought to Bed of Priapus, who was born with a prodigious large Genital : Venus left him in that City, where after he grew up, he was so mightily beloved of the Women, that the Lampfacians banished him out recalled him, and fet up his Statue in their Orchards and Gardens to frighten the birdsaway, Day, but he seen no more; and whether it were they represented him like a Man stark naked that he fell down over the Rocks, or into the | with disheveled Hair, holding a Sickle in one Hand, and his Genital in the other: They fa-PRIAMUS; the Son of Laomedon, he was crificed an Ass to him, because Priapus, according to Ovid, going about to violate the Chaffity her and prevented her being debauched by him. PRIMICERIUS CUBICULI; the first Groom or first Gentleman or the Bed-Chamber.

PRIMICERIUS NOTARIORUM, in was contained the . umber of Roman Sol-PRIAPUS; the Poets made him to be diers and Strangers that were in Service, that turion who had Charge of the Banner; Collonel of the first Legion among the Romans.

PRIMITIÆ; the first Fruits of the Earth, which were offered to the Gods upon an Altar made like a Trivet.

PROBUS, a Roman Emperor, that fucceeded Tacisus; he was a Pefant's Son of Dalmatia, but his Valour, Spirit and other excellent Endowments supplied all the Defects of his a Pheasant, and Tereus to a Lapwing. Birth, in so advantagious a manner, that it protook Revenge upon 400000 Germans, whom he defeated, for the Cruelties they had exercifed towards those that were faithful to the Empire, in divers 1rruptions made by them : God gave him a famous Victory over the Sarmatians in Iland Proculus rebelled against him, one in the Provinces near the Rhine, and the other in that Part of Gaul which is about Lyons. But they both unhappily perished: It's indeed true, that the Inroads made by the Franks into all the Provinces of the Empire, allayed the Joy of his Victories: Death put a Stop to the Triumphs which Probus hoped to have won over the Perfians in the Fifth Year of his Reign, according to Vopifeus, and the Beginning of his Seventh according to Eufebius, Orofus, Caffiodorus, Aurelius, Fiftor and Eutropius. He was killed by his own Soldiers, fearing he should subdue all the Enemies of the Empire, left they should become ufelefs.

PRO-CONSUL; a Magistrate who was fent to govern a Province with a confulary and extraordinary Power: He had all the Enfigns | for us Three to be tied to it; Or are you glad to of a Conful's Power conferred upon him, as the | have Companions in your Mifery, which is a Com-Scepter, but he had no more than Six Lictors: | Hand, Vulcan; tie it fast; and there is the Lett, which confifted in Pavillions, Charging-Horles, | for your excellent Invention. Mules, Clerks, Secretaries, &c. as Cicero in his Oration against Rullus explains it, Deinde ornat aparitoribus, scribu, libratiu, praconibus : praurea mulu, tabernaculu, tentoriu, supellectili, fumptum baurit ex arario. This Office lafted no longer than one Year, but the Person many Times exercised it till the Arrival of his Succeffor, and there were but 30 Days allowed him for his Return to Rome.

PROGNE; the Daughter of Pandion, King of Athens, who was married to Tereus, King of Ibrace, by whom the had a Son named Itys. Tereus going one Day to Athens, the detired him | you much Wrong in punishing you? to bring her Sifter Philomela along with him, which he did, but he ravished her by the Way, up in a dark Prilon, and pretended she died by found out a Way to let her Sifter know the Difa- | neum. I was concerned to fee Jupiter fo vexed,

PRIMIPILUS, chief Captain or first Cen- I fter that had befallen her, by writing to her an Account of it upon a Piece of Linnen with her own Blood; she dissembled her Grief till the Feast of Bacebus, where making one of the Bacchantes the freed her Sifter, and made Tereus eat his own Son Itys, who intending to revenge the same, the lable says, the Gods transformed Progne into a Swallow, and Philomela into a Nightingale; as for Itys, he was changed into

PROMETHEUS, the Son of Japetus and ved to be no Impediment to him! In Gaul he | Clymene and Deucalion's Father; Lucian in a Dialogue, called Prometheus or Caucasus brings in Vulcan, Mercury, and Prometheus speaking in this

Merc. There is Caucasus to which we are to tie the Criminal: Let us feek out some Rock bricum, and over the Goths in Thrace: Bonofus | that has no fnow upon it, that so we may drive the Nails the deeper, and he be exposed every way in order to make his Punishment the more exemplary. Vulc. I fee it; but he must not be put so low, that the Men which he has made can come and unloofe him, nor fo high as not to be feen. It will do very well in my Mind, upon the fide of this Mountain, above that Abysm, we will tie one of his Hands to yonder Rock, and the other to that over against it. Merc. You say well, for they are both freep and unaccessible. Prom. Come hither, that you may not be forced to it, and get up presently, that you may be tied.

Prom. Have pitty upon an unfortunate Man. who is unjustly punished.

Merc. Do not pretend to tell us what to do? Do you think that Caucafus is not big enough Purple-Robe, the Curule-Chair, and the Ivory- fort to the Unfortunate? Here, take his Right His Equipage was provided at the Charge of the | we will tie it also: 'Tis very well. The Vulture Publick, and the same was called Viaticum, will come to tear your Bowels, as a Reward

> Prom. O Earth which haft brought me forth ! And thou Sarurn and Faperus, must I suffer so much for nothing?

> Merc. For nothing, Wretch! Was it nothing to deceive Jupiter at a Feast, and to give him Bones covered with Fat, that you might referve the best part for your felf: Besides, who required you to make a Man, that subtile and wary Animal, and especially Women; and afterwards to fteal Fire from Heaven, which belonged to the God: Nay, after all this, you come to plead your Innocence, and to fay they do

Prom. Have you the Courage, Mercury, to persecute me in this manner, and to revile me and then cutting out her Tongue, he shut her in respect to Things for which I have deserved well: I fwear by the Gods, that I was brought an extraordinary Accident. Philomela having | up at the Charge of the Publick, in the Prytaand out of Humour, because he had not the best | fastum bos detorfere ad fabulam, quod Aquilam Propart in the Feaft; he was going to facrifice, not methei jecur depascentem Hercules confixerit. The a meer Man, but a God, and one of his old Com- fame Historian fays elsewhere, that the Reason rades, who served him in time of need Let | why the Poets feigned Prometheus fiole Fire from us now speak of the Creation of Man; and if any | Heaven and communicated the same to Men. will fay, that he ought not to be made at all, or that he should have been made after another manner; I will examine both the one and the other, and as to the first say, that the Gods have been to far from losing any thing thereby, cules having made his Peace with Jupiter let that they have been great gainers; and that 'tis him free. more to their Advantage that there should be Men, than if there were none at all. To carry | the Matter a little higher, you must know, that | viz. that he was the first that made Statues of at first there were none but Gods in the World, and that the Earth was no more than a vaft Defart covered with thick Woods: Wherefore, as I have been always studious of the publick Bene- Poets from hence feigned that Prometheus was fit and Advantage, I mixed some Earth with the Maker of Men. Appear in his History of Water, as the Poet says, and working them to- the Mitbridatick War, relates, that Pompey when gether, I made a Man like unto us by Minerva's | in Pontus, had the Curiofity to go and fee Mount Help. This is my Crime And now let us | Caucasus, to which, it was said, Prometheus was speak about stealing the lire; and first did not | tied. Arrian reports, that the Macedonians. I fteal it to give it to Men, and is it not the Nature of that Element to communicate it felf without being loft.

The same Lucian in the following Dialogue, makes Prometheus speak to Jupiter in this man- that 'twas the Place where Prometheus had been Jupit. Villain, shall I set you at Liberty? Muft I do it because you have made that Piece of Workmanship, which has occasioned to much Mischief, stole Fire from Heaven, and deceived had past over Caucasus. It may be said, that your Mafter at a Feaft?

Prom. Have not I suffered enough, to have been tied so iong to Caucasus, and to have mine also feigned that a River called the Eagle over-Entrails fed upon by the Cruellest of all the slowing the Country, Prometheus was put in Vultures.

Jupit. That's not the Hundredth Part of what you have deferved; you ought to have been crushed to Pieces by Caucasus and not tied to it, the Person who brought the Worship of the 12 and not only to have your Liver gnawed by 12 Vultures, but also your Eyes and Heart. So much for the Fable, now to the Hiftory.

Diodorus Siculus lays, that Prometheus governed part of Egypt in the Reign of Ofiris: The | Placiades, who wrote Three Books of Mytholo-Nile overflowing, all the Country under Prometheus his Government had been drowned, if ravaged Africa, fays that Prometheus, that is Hercules had not stopt it's Irruptions by the Providence, formed the Body of a Man of Earth, Ditches which he made. The Nile was formerly named Oceanue; but this Inundation gave it is Wildom, he from thence brought Fire to the the Name of Eagle; it was called Egypt in fuc- Earth, i. e. the Souls of Men. Prometheus makes ceeding Times, and Nilus from the Iwo Kings a Man, and a Vulture rend his Heart, bewho bore that Name. Promesbeus his Trouble cause his Mind and Heart were continually enthat the River called the Eagle had spoiled his gaged in the Contemplation and Love of Wif-Country, gave the Poets occasion to feign, that dom: Laftly, Prometheus formed Pandora, which Prometheus his Heart was tore by an Eagle, till is the Soul, and bears the faid Name because of

was because he invented Inftruments to make Fire with: Ignarii repertor est instrumenti, videlicet quo ad eliciendum ignem utimur. Jupiter to punish the Thief put him in Chains, but Her-Lucian gives an Account of the most probable

Way whereby Man was made by Prometheus. Earth with so much Art and Skill, which was attributed to Minerva, that those earthy Men feemed to have both Life and Motion: The who under Alexander conquered Afia, having entred into a Cave in the Country of Paropamifus, they were informed by the Inhabitants of the Neighbourhood, or invented it themselves. chained, and where an Eagle tore his Heart, Prom. Free me, Jupiser, for I cannot do it my till Hercules, having shot the Eagle with his Arrows, came and delivered him. This was a Story invented by Alexander's Flatterers, to transport Caucasus from Ponius to the Eastern Countries, that so they might say, Alexander the Fable of Prometheus was transferred from Egypt into Pontus to Mount Caucasus, where they Chains by his Subjects, and at length fet at Liberty by Hercules.

As they will have Prometheus to have been Gods into Greece, it's more probable he was an Egyptian by Descent, and that the History or Fable appertaining to him, was fuccessively carried into Scythia, Pontus and Greece. Fulgentius gy, at the Time that the Vandals conquered and that going up to Heaven with Minerva, which fuch time as Hercules came to free him from that her being enriched with all the Gifts of Heaven: Punishment. 14co poetarum nonnulli Gracorum Thus it is that Bishop explains the Fable of Simonides fays, After God had made Animals, Proferpins. and created Man, and had nothing more to beflow upon Women, he borrowed the Qualities of each Animal for them: On some he conferred the Nature of a Swine, on others that of the Fox: To one he gave the Stupidity of an Ass. to another the Inclination of a Martern, or a Mare: Others he made like unto Monkeys, and befrowed the Nature of Bees. PRO-PRÆTOR, a Roman Magistrate, who had all the Power of a Prator conferred upon him, and all the Enfigns of Honour belonging to the faid Office. See Prator.

on those, whom he was minded to favour, he

PROSCENIUM; was a raised Place on which the Actors play'd, like that which we call of Two Parts in the Theaters of the Greeks; one was the Profeenium particularly fo called, where the Actors play'd: The other was the Logeion, where the Singers came to rehearle, and the Mimicks acted their Parts. The Projecnium and Palpitum were the same thing in the Theater of the Romans.

PROSERPINA, was formetimes confounded with Diana: Diodorus Siculus relates the Story of her being stole away by Pluto, as a Thing attested not only by the Poets, but also by Hiflorians: He alledges it was in Sicily, and near the City of Enna that Profergina was carried away, and that Ceres going to fearch for her lighted her Torches by the Fire of Mount Etna. Sachuniasbon in the Theology of the Phanicians informs us, that Proferpina was much earlier prior quidem virgo diem obiit.

Death, if we believe St. Cpil, Arch-bishop of ferpina.

prometheur, but it is too remote from the Hi-1 Alexandria speaking of the River Strymon, and of those fine Countries in Macedon and Thrace In the Protagoras of Plato, we have it related, that were watered by it, fays, it was from thence that Prometheus having imploy'd all the Proper- Proferpina was ftole as the was gathering Floties of Nature in the Formation of Animals, and wers: Ubi raptum dicunt Proferpinam, dum flores having nothing more to make but Man, he took legeret. Macrobius fays, the Ancients called the Knowledge from Minerva, Firefrom Vulcan, and upper Hemisphear of the earth by the Name Mercury supplied him with Modesty and Justice. of Venus and the lower Hemisphere by that of

As they are no more than different Appellations, 'tis not necessary we should take the Trouble to find out the exact Rules of Genealogy herein. Rhea was the Mother of Ceres, and Ceres the Mother of Proferpina, and yet all the Three are no other than the Earth: So the Grandmother, Mother and Daughter are nothing but the same Earth. The Truths are real and natural, the Genealogies are Poetical and Figurative: Some consider the Earth in a different manner, and will have Rhea to be the whole Globe of the Earth, that Ceres is no more than the Surface which is fown and mown, and Proferpina no other than the Hemisphere of our Antipodes. 'Tis the Opinion of Vossius. But the Theater or Stage: This Professium consisted that Professions is the same as the Earth, we learn from the very Name thereof, for it comes from the Greek Meesepiresa, and of Perfephone they made Proferpina: Hefychius fays, that Persephone comes from ogpery ovnote, ferre utilitatem & fruitum. Voffius very ingeniously deduces this Word from the Hebrew Peri, that fignifies Frudus, and fapban tegere, because the Earth covers the Seeds fown in it. But as Proserpina is taken for the lower Part of the Earth which is buried in Darkness, hence it is that they take her also for Hell, and the Queen of Hell, as Horace does.

> Quam penè furvæ Regna Proserpinæ, Et judicantem vidimus Aacum. L.2. Od. 12.

known in Phanicia than in Greece or Sicily, he 'Tis upon the same Account that Plutarch also makes her to be Saturn's Daughter, and fays, takes her for the Earth, and Cicero fays, that the died a Virgin and very young. From the Name of Pluto, i. e. Riches, was given her hence it's probable did arife the liction of the by the Greeks; because the Earth is the Trea-Greeks, that she was stole by Pluto: Saturnus sury of all the Riches of Nature all comes liberos procreavit Proferpinam & Minervam, ac from and returns into it. The Romans imitatos the Grecians by giving the Name of Din, which The History of Proferpina passed from Phani- lignifies Rich to Pluto. They offered Dog and tia into Greece near 200 Years after Mofes his black and barren Victimes in Sacrifice to Pro-

Alexandria, who fays, that Adoneus or Orcus, PROTEUS, a Sca-God, the Son of Ocea-King of the Moloffians stole her: Centesimo, & nus and Tethys, who looked after Neptune's Flocks: nonagesimo quinto anno post Mojen ferunt suisse He was an excellent Prophet; and those who Proferpinam virginem rapiam ab Midoneo, id eft, had a mind to confult him about Future Events, Orco Rege Molefforum. Eufebius also says as much must surprize and bind him; for he had the in his Chronicie: And to the Fable or History of Artifice to assume divers Shapes, in order to a-Prejerpina, like all the rest of the Fables, came void giving an Answer to such as came to confrom the East to the West, from Pkanicia to fult him: Lucian pretends that Proseus was no Greece, and from Greece into Sicily: Appian of other than an excellent Dancer, who made 1000

r r k different Postures, and whose active Body and | of the Dead, makes Protestians, Pluto, and Pro-

1 rot. Ah! Pluto, and you the Daughter of luto. Who are you that talk thus?

Prot. The Chief of the Grecians that died at Pluto. And what would you have?

Prot. Leave to go upon Earth a little while. Pluto. They are the fame Requells as all the Dead make, but not one obtains them.

Prot. 'Tis not a Deire of Life that makes me speak, but the Passion I have to see my Mistress. whom I left in her Nuptial Chamber, and hafted ming athoar: The Love which I have for that fair Creature gives me no reft, and I would defire leave once more to fpend a Moment with Pluto. Have not you drunk of the Waters of Letbe, as others have done?

Pros. I have, but the Disease was too strong for the Remedy.

Pluto. She will not be long before the comes. and fo spare you the Pains of going to feek Dialogue of the Sea-Gods, makes Proteus and Prot. I have not Patience to tarry; Pluto, you know the Impatience of Lovers, for your felf has formerly been in Love.

. lut. What good will it do you to see her

Prot. Perhaps I may perswade her to come Men. I know it very well; for I am a Witness along with me, and so I shall thereby increase thine Empire with one Ghost more.

Pluto. That's not juft, Protesilaus, and 'tis never granted.

Prot. 'Tis because you do not recollect your self better; for you did restore his Euridice to St. Augustine by the xample of Proteus his Orpbeus, and Alcesta to Hercules who was my Re-

> Pluto. Would you appear before her in this Condition, which will make her die for very fear? And do you think that she will mind you, or be able to know you? Proferpina. Let us do him this Favour, Pluto, and command Mercury to carry him up, and when he comes upon the Earth, to ftrike him Shape, and become such an one as he was when Pluto. Since Proferpina will have it, I give my Consent. Mercury, take him and conduct him thither; but let him remember that there is but one Day allowed him to tarry. They facrificed to him in Cherjonefus, according to the Testimony of Lucian himself, in his Dialogue of the Affembly of the Gods.

PROVIDENTIA; Providence, which

Lady, holding a Scepter in one Hand, and with the Butterfly is. Fulgentim, Bishop of Carriage, the o her feemed to point at a Globe that was at her Feet, intimating that the governed all the | those I wo Sifters represented the Fleth and Free-World like the good Mother of a Family. 1 he Emperor Titus cauted her to be graven with the Helm of a Ship, and a Globe in her Hands. Maximisnus represented her by Two Ladies, holding Ears of Corn in their Hands, with this Inscripti | rupt it, and hinders it to make use of her Eyes, on, Providentia Deorum, Quies Augustorum. Alexander Severus describes her under the form of a Goddeis, holding an Horn of Plenty, and having a Veffel ful or Ears of Corn at her beer. The Symbol of Providence was an Ant, holding Three pars of Corn in her Mouth.

PRYTANEUM; was a Place in Athens where the Magistrates administred Justice, and where those who had done some tignal Services for the Commonwealth, were maintained at the Publick Charges.

PSECADIS; Chamber Maids, who perfamed their Mistresses Heads, with some Liquid Perfumes, which they poured Drop by Drop upon them : For the Word Pecas comes from Dirt. the Greek Verb Lexder, which fignifies, to im give very pleafant Descriptions of them. We have a Picture wherein this Marriage is reprefented, and where Cupid walks on Plyche's Right | Ancients called the Theater. Hand, with his Head vailed, his Face uncovered, and in his Hand a Turtle-Dove, which was the usual Symbol of Conjugal Love; and Pices, the Temples, at the Time that they save Thanks who was by his Side, is vailed from Head to Foot, this being the Custom among the Ancients, for People that went to be married, and especially for those of the Female Sex : These Two Lovers are fastned together with a strong Chain, to in timate there is no stronger nor more durable Union than that of Marriage; one of them holds the Chain in one Hand, and a Torch in the other. Perronius gives the like Account of the Nuptial Solemnities of these Lovers: They had already, 'faid he, vailed young Psyche's Head; the Conductor already went before her with a Torch, and a Company of Women elevated with the Power of Wine, gave a Hundred joyful Acclamations, and made the Bod of the new married *Couple ready.

Psyche has the Wings of a Butterflye fixed to her Shoulders, as all the ancient Monuments thereof flew: The Reason that may be given for this viction is, because the Ancients reprefented Nature, and the Properties of the Soul, under the Emblem of Psyche; for the Word in Greek figuifies the Soul, of which the Butterfive is also a Symbol, because they looked upon the Soul to be like a Breath, which the Lightness of this little flying Intect very well expresses. We fee in Helychius that Pfych: in Greek fignifies as

Not. Deor. They pictured her like a Roman | much as a Spirit, and a little flying Injett, such as giving a Moral Explication of this Fable, fays, that will, that Plyche who was the youngest, fignified the Soul, because it comes not thither before the Body is formed; that Concupifcence figured out by Cupid, joins it felf to the Soul, in order to corwhich are the Sences and Liberty, in order to know God, of whom the is to much beloved: But being at length illuminated by their Councels, the discovers a Flame, which was before hid in her Heart, and becomes capable of a Hundred avils, like the Oil of the Lamp that difcovers the Mystery of Love, and caused Psiche to much Trouble.

PUGILATUS; an Exercise in use among the the ancient Greeks and Romans, that confifted in

PUGILES; they were those that fought with Hands and Heels, and endeavoured to throw one another down, and to tumble in the

PULPITUM; a Pulpit, Theater, Stage: It was a Place erected on which the Actors acted PSYCHE: The Amours of Cupid and Pfyibe; their Plays, and where Victory was represented: are known to every Body: Apulcius and Fulger. It was that part which we in Brigilly call the Stage, wherein we do not comprehend the Pit nor the Galleries, which are properly what the PULVINARIA; they were Cushions upon which the Statues of the Gods were laid in for fome fignal Victory; whence came that Lain Expression, Ad omnia pulvinaria supplicare , to make general Processions to all the Temples of the Gods, where their Statues were taken down and laid upon Cushions.

PUTEAL LIBONIS: Acron takes it to be a Bank that was near unto the Statue of Fanus with Three Heads ; Porphyry for a Bar, Tribunal, or Court of Judicature; others for a Cover, wherewith they covered Wells or Water-Pits. Vigenere thinks it to be the Brink of a Well: 'Twas a Place much frequented by the Merchants of Rome.

PULICULI, or PUTICULE; they were Dirches, or Holes in the Earth made like Wells, between Mount Esquiline, the Walls of the City, and the Street which lead to the Gate called Querquerulana, where the loor were buried; and which infected all the Neighbouring part of the City: For the removing thereof Augustus gave this Place to Macenas, who built a frately House, and made very fine Gardens there, as Horace informs us:

Nnn 2

quick Intellects knew how to counterteit and imi- | ferpina talk after this manner: tate every thing so admirably well, that he feemed to be the very Thing, which be imita- | Ceres, do not reject the Prayers of a Lover.

ted, which was the Occasion of the Fable. Heroderus does not doubt but that Proteus was an Egyptian King and Deity: He says, 'twas he the Siege of Troy. that received Para and Helen with their Treafures, and who kept Helen during the Seige of Trey, and restored her to Menelaus, when after the Destruction of that City the Greeks came to know that Helen had never been there. Diodorus Siculus agrees with him as to the Reign of Prozeus in Egypt during the Siege of Iroy; but he fays, that the Greek Fable concerning the Trant- away to go along with the Greeians; and was fo formations of Proseus, took its Origin from the unhappy as to be killed by Hellor, as I was codifferent Habits which the faid King affected to wear above other Kings of Egypt, he one while putting on a Lion's Skin, another while he dreft himfelf like a Bull or Dragon, and carried Trees fometimes by way of Ornaments, sometimes Fire or Perfume, which made the Greeks fay, they were fo many different Shapes which he was metamorphosed into; and as this King was much addicted to Aftrology, they feigned also Menelaus ipeak thus. Menel. I do not admire, Proteus, that a Sea-God as you are should transform your self into Water, or even into a Plant; but to become Fire, that I cannot understand; to be turned again for a Moment, and then lote her for einto a Lion, may be better allowed of.

that he foretold Things to come. Lucian in his Prot. Menelaus, 'tis true. of it my felf: But to be plain with you, I believe there is a Cheat in it, and that you are only a meer luggler. Prot. What Cheat can there be in such things as are so manifest and certain?

Fable shews, that the Poets ought not to be re lation. jected by the Lovers of true Philosophy; for the Proteus of the Poets was an excellent Reprefentation of Truth, which escapes from us, and difguiles her self after a thousand different ways, by being concealed under false Appearances, from which it cannot be separated, without great Difficulty: But at length, after these Obstructi ons, the discovers unto us her Beauty and Soli-1 with his Rod, that he may affume his former dity, that we may afterwards relish the Sweetness of her. Orpheus called him the Principle of he went out of her Muptial Chamber. all Things, and the Ancientest of all the Gods, and fays he keeps the Keys of Nature: The Remans named him Versumnus, because of the Variety of Shapes which he atfumed: He was beloved by the Goddess Pomona.

PROTESILAUS; the Son of Iphiclus, and Laodamia's Husband, a Grecian Prince, who was killed by Hedor at the Siege of Troy, as he was coming out of his Ship. Lucian in his Dialogues | the Ancients made to be a Deity, as Cicero fays, Hue priùs angustis e jetta cadavera cellis Conservus vili portanda locabat in arcâ: Hoc misera plebi stabat commune sepulcbrum. Nunc licet Esquiliis babitare salubribus, arque Aggere in aprico spaziari, quo modò triftes Albis informem spellabant offibus agrum.

P.Y.G.M.E.I; Pigmies; they were a People that dwelt in the Mountains of the East-Indies, according to Pling; and according to Strabo, in the utmost Parts of Affrica; the People of that killed with a Dart by Achilles, in a Battle that Country were not above a Cubit high; and hence they gave them the Name of Pigmies: afterwards became a common Name to the Kings They did not live above Eight Years, and the Women were fit for Copulation at Five. As foon as their Children are born, they hid them in Caves, for fear of the Cranes, who swallow'd them down whole like small Turnips: They are very temperate, and 'tis a great deal for one of them to eat the Leg of a Lark; for usually they roaft no more than two or three Bits at a time, or a little more as their Family is larger or smaller: Their Spits are made of the Prickles of an Hedge-hog; but the largest fort on which they roaft their Larks, are the Darts or Quills of a the Brother of Attalus, under the Conduct of Porcupine : They drink out of small Cups made the Consul Licinius Crassu, of whom Orosus peaks; of Cherry stones; and their Drink consists of and in this War Pylamenes, who then reigned two or three Drops of Role-water; which they gather in the Spring, and keep the Liquor in possest of his Kingdom by Mitbridges and Ni-Oftridge Egg-shells, which serves them instead of other Veticls: Their Plates are made of Crab-shells, the finest of which are those which are most gilt; and their Dishes consist of small Acorn-Cups. Its from this Country the Dwarf-Trees come; for all their Forests are but Bulhes, which Nature has made on purpole, that they may not break their Necks in climbing up. They have also Vines growing there, which they love, because they believe they creep upon the Ground only, in Confideration of their Weak- last King of Paphlagonia; and it appears by one neis: They are well proportioned, confidering of Cicero's Orations, that this Caffor was a their low Stature; and laugh at us upon ac Grandion of one Dejorarus, whose Cause he count of the Danger we run when we fall: They pleaded against the unjust Usurpations of Castor, are at an irreconcilable War with the Cranes. who with a Stroak of their Bills pierce to their very Brains; but they break their Legs, which are yery small, and get under them in the Conffict.

PYLADES. See Pilades.

PYLEMENES, whom Homer the Prince of the Greek Poets, makes mention of in the Second Book of his Iliads, was in the famous Trojan War the General of the Paphlagonians.

Hagmayover & Traits HYAAIMENEOS λασιον κίρ.

The brave Pylamenes was General of the Paplilagonians.

He speaks of him also in the 5th Book, and fays he was killed by Menelaus with his Pike Livy and Strabo upon Homer's Authority, make him to be descended from the Heneri, a People of Paphlagonia, and fay that he died under the Walls of Troy. Dillys Cretenfis makes him King of Paphlagonia, the Son of Melius, and related to Priamus, boafting that he was of Agenor's Race, whose Daughter Amalixo, was married to Dardanus, from whom the Trojan Kings were descended. He adds, that this Pylemenes was was fought during the Siege of that City. This of Paphlagonia, fince the first Pylamenes, as that of Prolomy obtained among the Egyptian Kings of Arfaces among the Parthians, and of Cafar and Augustus among the Romans.

Its not to be doubted, but there were feveral Kings of the Name of Pylamenes in Papelagonia. before the Coming of the Romans into Afia; but their famous Actions having not been celebrated by any Historians that have been preferred to our Time, we find no mention of any of them before the War of the Romans against Ariflonicus. affifting the Remans against Aristonicus, was dif-comedes.

Authors do not well agree concerning the Reestablishing of Pylamenes upon his Throne, and the End of the Kingdom of Paphlagonia. Paulus and Rufus say the Kingdom was given him after Misbridates had been conquered and expelled: and that after his Death it was reduced into a Province: Strabo, an Author worthy of Credit, and that lived near that time, relates, that Dejourus, a Son of one Caftor Philadelphus, was the who had dispossest his Grandfather Dejorarus of the Tretrarchy of Galatia. Justin feems to differ from all their Authors; for he fays, that Nicomedes and Mitbridates fetting forth their Pretentions to Capadocia before the Senate, and the Senate differring the Artifice of those Kings, who under false Pretences had seized upon Kingdoms that of Right did not belong to them, took away Capadocia from Mitbridates, and Paphlagonia from Nicomedes; from whence forwards Paphlagonia had no Kings: And this Strabo fays

PYRACMON; one of Vulcan's Smiths, who is always at the Anvil to forge the Iron; and this his Name does imply; for mip in Greek fignifies Fire, and axper an Anvil.

PYRA-

dways rifing up in a taper manner, like a Flame; felf to the People. thence comes the Name, for mue in Greek fignifes Fire: There are some Pyramids of a vast Height; and Pliny speaks of one, for the Building of which 32000 Men were imploy'd for Twenty Years: He fays it took up Eight Acres "Ground. This Author informs us, that the Kings of Egopt, who put themselves to such great Expence, did it for no other End than to keep the People from Idleness, and thereby to prewat the Infurrections that otherwife might have happened. See Obelifeus.

PYRAMUS; a Babylonian, who was paffonately in Love with Thysbe; these Two Lovers having appointed a Meeting under a Mulberry-Tree, Thysbe came thither first, and was fet upon by a Lion, from whom she made her Escape; but happening to let her Vail drop, the Beaft tore and bloodied it; Pyramus coming and finding the Vail of his Miffress bloody, thought she had been devoured, and so in despair killed himself: Thysbe returning and finding her Lover dead, fell also upon the same Sword. ovid L. 4. Mesam. deicribes their Love, and lays, that their Death made the Mulberries know. change Colour, and turn Red from White, which Colour they bore before.

PYRRHICHA; a kind of Dance invented by Pyrrbus, which was performed with Arms, wherewith they struck certain Shields by the Cadency and Sound of Mufical Instru-

PYTHAGORAS; a Philosopher, who intermixed some l'ables, Allegories, or Enigmamitated Numa Pempilius, the Second King of lence? Rome. He was, indeed, both a King and Phiklopher, and was so very much addicted to the sick. Detrine which Pyibagoras published to the World, that many who were goofly ignorant of the Series of Time, took him for one of Pythagom his Disciples: but Dionyfius of Hallican affus has refuted this Error, and thewed that Numa fred Four Generations before Tythagoras, having reigned in the 16th Olympiad, whereas Pythagoandid not teach in Italy till after the iffieth: In order to let you know the Doctrine and Life of Pythagoras, I'll give you what Lucian fays upon this Occasion, in his Dialogue of the Sects or Sale Philosophers.

Jupiter. Let these Seats be put in order, and dean every , lace, as long as there is an Obligation to make Things ready for the Sects, that to they may come and thew themselves.

Mercury. See, here are Buyers enough, we must not let them cool: With whom shall we

Jupit. With the Italian Seft : Let that veneable Old Man with long Hairscome down. Merc. Hos Pythagoras, come down, and walk

PYRAMIS; is an heap of Square Stones, round about the Place, that you may shew your Jupit. Make Proclamation. Merc. Here is a Coeleftial and Divine Life; who will buy it? Who has a mind to be more than a Man? Who is he that would know the Harmony of the Universe, and rise again after Merchant. Here are great Promifes, indeed, and the Person looks with a good Aspett; but what does he chiefly know?

Merc. Arithmetick, Aftronomy, Geometry, Mutick, Magick, and the Knowledge of Prodigies; you have an accomplish'd Prophet here. Merchant. May one ask him a Question?

Merc. Why not? Merchant. Where were you born?

Pythagoras. At Samos. Merchant. Where did you fludy?

Pythag. In Egypt, amongst the Wise Men of that Country.

Merchant. If I become a Chapman, what will you teach me?

Pribag. I'll teach you nothing, but I'll cause you to call to mind again what you did formerly Merchant. How is that?

Pyrbag. By puritying your Soul, and cleanling it from all its Dregs.

Merchant. Suppose it be already purified; how will you instruct me?

Pythag. By Silence: You shall continue Five Years without speaking.

Merchant. Go and teach Crasus his Son; I'll continue to be a Man, and not become a Statue: tial expressions with his Works; wherein he But yet, what will you perform after fo long Si-

Pythag. I'll teach you Geometry and Mu-

Merchant. Its very pleasant, indeed, a Man must be a Fidler before he is a Philosopher: And what will you teach me after that?

Pythag. Arithmetick. Mer. bans. I understand that already. Pythag. How do you reckon?

Merchans. One, Two, Three, Four.

Pythag. You are mistaken; for what you take to be 4 is 10, (that is 1, 2, 3, 4, make 10.) A perfect Triangle; and the Number we iwear

Merchant. By the Great God Four! I never heard any Thing so strange, and so divine as Pyrbag. After this, you shall know that there are Four Elements, Earth, Water, Air, and Fire; and know also their Form, Qualities and

Merchant. How ! Have the Air and Fire any Pythag. Yes, and visible enough; for, if they. had no form they could not move: Then you Merchant. You tell us ftrange Things.

Pythag. Again, vou are another Thing than you appear to be; and there are several Men in | means be received, tho' afterwards it ahous fame Per on that fneaks to you?

Pythag. You are the same new, but you have Cicero, as Quintillian has it, to make Sport with been another formerly, and will pass again into a Cook's Son who fued for a great Imployment, other Persons by a perpetual Revolution.

tal: But enough of these Things: What do you point of Fronunciacion, whether he meant the live upon?

Pythag. I eat nothing that has Life in it, but | quus a Cook. every thing elfe, except Beans.

Merchant. Why will not you eat Beans?

divine in them: 1ft, They resemble the Privy cording to that of Viltorinus, who would never Parts; which you may eafily observe, if you will I make use thereof; for it's always of use, fince take a green one, and pull of the Cod: Belides, it ferves to joyn the Two following Vowels inif they be boiled and exposed to the Moon for to one Syllable, whereas the C imports that they tome Nights, they turn to Blood; but what is are divided; and this is that which makes the most remarkable, is, that they make use of Difference between the Nominative qui, and them at Athens, to chuse their Magistrates by.

PYTHICI; the Pythian Games in Greece, inflituted in Honour of Apollo, because he killed the Serpent Python with his Arrows: The Conquerors were crowned with Fruits confecrated to Apollo. PYTHIUS; an Epithet given to Apollo, upon the Account of his killing the Serpent Pysbon : His Priestesses were also called Pythia.

fprung from the Impurities of the Earth after a Q, when they were minded to divide the the Deluge, and which Apollo fhot to Death with his Arrows.

Is a Confonant, and the 16th Letter of the Alphaber, which is pronounced like to it, that 'tis always followed by an U. There Feet. is so great a Likeness between the C and Q, that many Gramarians have been inclined to reject the Q as a superfluous Letter, pretending that the \vec{C} and \vec{U} would lerve to express what we mean by the Q: And fo we fee the Greeks have rejected this Letter, which is only taken from the Kopb or Kopps of the Syrians, and that in find Examples hereof in some old inscriptions the French it has another Force than the K a- From whence it follows, that the U was enclosed lone would have, and that which the C it left in the Q, and consequently the fame is a double has before A, O, U: Ramus allo affects that Letter, for otherwise the first syllable in aquain the university of Paris, they always pronoun- equus, &c. would be long, whereas the lame is ced it in Laum in the same manner as they do short in Verie. For it was the Custom of the Stablished by Francis I. infomuch that they used Characters which formed the Name of the Letter, shall know that God is Number and Har- | qalis, qantus and qis. And it is observable that every Body at first opposed the other Promotinciation, which was then introduced by the Roral Protesfors as a new Thing, that would by its obtained. However the Q ftill retains the fame Merchant. What fay you, that I am not the Sound as the K or C before O and U, as in quum, which is the same as Cum, and this made tell him by way of Raillery, Ego quoque tibi jure Merchant. I shall then at this rate be immor favebo, because they could not diftinguish in Particle quoque or the Vocative coque, from co-

Some without just Reason have been inclined to reject the Q; as Varro was, according to the Pythag. Because they have something that is Relation of Cenforinus, and Licinius Calvas acthe Dative cui; the Infinitive fequi, and the Preterperfect Tence Jecui from fece. And this is again teftified by Prifeian and Terentianus Maurus whom some place in the Fifth Century, but he could not be higher than the Middle of the Fourth, fince St. Augustine cires him as being already dead in those Books which were writ before 390. And this Difference between the C and Q, is so true, that you may see the Anci-PYTHON; an horrible Serpent, that ent Poets put the C in the Place where we put Words into more Syllables than they really were. Lucretius has used cuires with Three Syllables, for quirer; and fo he makes also acua Three Syllables, being put for aqua. Again Plaurus in! his Ciftell. Alt. 2. Sc. 1. ules it in relicuis.

Quod dedi datum non vellem, quod reticuim non

For if the Trochaick Verse be not read in this K and C before A, O, U, and has this peculiar manner it will not have it's due Number of

As the Q was put in the Place of C and U, to there have been fome Grammarians who would have it to pass for a doui I- Letter, and in mongst the rest Capella, Ditmedes and Longuio Their Reason for it being this, that the Ancients wrote qi, qe, qid without an U, as you may fil now in France, till the Royal Profesiors were e- Ancients often to take a fingle Letter for the

the K for ka, tho' the K for all that was no the Ancients wrote qis, they did perhaps progounce it also qis, as it it had had a K in it, and that the Writing had changed with the Pronuncation, fays Quintilian; and this Reason appeared to much the more true, feeing that in Gruter's Interiptions we find not only the Q but sho the C put alone for qu; Cintus for Quintus, his for figures; as on the Contrary the fingle Q sput for the C; as Quertius for Currius, fequium for feculum, and mequin for mecum; and the qu put for the c alio, as liquebis for licebis or liqebis. was a Numeral Letter among the Ancients, wealth. and fignified 500, when there was a Tittle fet over it, it implyed 500000.

QUESTOR, an Officer among the old

Remans who had the Charge of the Publick Money, as our Treasurers, or Lords Commissioners of the freafury have now a days. Lipfius oppoles the Opinion of those who attribute the Inflituting of this Office to Romulus or Numa or Tullius Hoftilius : It may much more truly be referred to Valerius Publicola, who after the Expulsion of the Kings appointed a Place for the Publick Treasure in Sarurn's Temple, under the Cuffody of Two Officers whom they called Queflus, choien from among the Senators, and were to be created by the People. Livy and Dontfus of Halicarnaflus place the Institution of this Office no higher than about the Year 269. But Tacitus, L. 11. Annal. Speaks very dearly concerning it: 'Under the fame Confuls, Dolabella propoted that those who were 'admitted to the Quæstorship should once a twas free for every Citizen to pretend to this Honour, if he thought himself capable of it: This Office was instituted at first in the Time of their Kings, and this may be feen by the Law which Lucius Brutus introduced, whereby the Rople were obliged to meet together by Parihes or Wards: Then the Confuls took care to supply it, and at last the reople, who chose Iderius Positus and Emilius Mamercus, into it, 6 Years after the Expulsion of the Tarquins. Some think there is a Miftake in the Date.) Impire growing great, there were Iwo new fied. wes created who were to ftay in Rome, the Num-My and the Provinces, infomuch that they aminted to 8 in all. At last Sylla being deil- been ruined by the Usuries exacted from them. wes to fill up the Senate which was exhausted If the Civil Wars, and having given an Acwhereause that Charge was as a kind of an in- ny of Festim, or else from the Sabins themselves

n folge Scaliger fays, for Example they put troduction into that Body: The Quartorffing was always conferred either upon Persons of Merit. double Letter. We may farther fay, that when or Reputation, till it came to be as it were expoled to fale by the Shews they gave: Julius Cafar raifed the Number of them to 40 in order to fill up the Senate; and their Bufiness was to affift the Generals of the Army that went to War, to receive the Money that arose from the Spoils and Booty taken from the Enemy, and to pay the Soldiers. The City Queftors received the Taxes and Impolitions laid upon the People. went to meet Foreign Embassadors, took care to treat them in their Journey, and to furnish them an House at the Charge of the Common-

QUÆSTORES PARRICIDII; they were Queltors sent into the Provinces by Order of the Senate to try criminal Cases; their Power was great, they had Lictors and other Officers to attend them; they were chosen annually, tho' they continued them fometimes longer.

QUERCETULA NA See Porta.

QUINQUATRIA; they were certain Feafts celebrated at Rome in Honour of Pellas, like unto those called Panathenea by the Athenians: This Name was given them because they lasted for Five Days; on the first or which they offered Sacrifices and Oblations without the Effution of Blood; the Second, Third and Fourth were spent in the Fights of the Gladiators, and on the Fifth they went in Procession through the City: These Feast Days began on the 18th of March, and Scholars had a Vacation for all that While, and prefented their Mafters with a Gift which was called Minerval: They alto acted Tragedies now, and there were Dif-Year give a Shew of the Giadiators at their putations held between the learned Poets and own Charge, Formerly this Office was conferred | Orators concerning polite Learning, wherein won none but such as had deserved well, and the Conqueror received a Prize appointed for that Purpose by the Emperor Domitian: Here it was Stacius vauntingly gloried that he had conquered, and received a Present from the Empe-| ror himfelt.

> Lux mibi Romanæ qualu sub collibus Albæ, Cum modo Germanas actes, modo Daca fonantem. Prælia, Palladio tua me manus induit auro.

QUINQUENNALES LUDI; Games celebrated every Five Years, in divers Cities Their first Business was in the Armies; but the in Honour of such Emperors as had been dei-

QUINQUE-VIRI MENSARII; Five by was again augmented after the Conquest of Men appointed extraordinarily by the Consuls, to discharge the Debts of the People that had OUIRINALIS, see Mons.

QUIRINUS; the Surname of Romulus, must to them how Things stood with them in and he was so called from a Javelin, which the Micular, made up the Number of Quartors Sabins named Quiru, according to the Teftimowho were called Cures, to whom he gave a Part | ry Year at Rome, on the 24th of February, 12 of Rome to live in, and this after they had coa- Commemoration of the Expulsion of Tarquinia lesced into one Body with the Sabines, made the Superbus, and the Overthrow of the Monarchy: Romans be called Quirites; or laftly, upon the It was also performed on the 26th of May, when Account of God Mars; from whom Romulus faid the King of the Sacrifices, in the Place where the he was descended, and who was called Quiri, Assemblies were held, offered Bean-flour and because he was pictured holding a Lance in his Bacon; and when the Sacrifice was over, they Hand: Junius Proculus swore he appeared to haited away with all speed, to denote the prehim upon the Via Albina in an august and glori- cipitate Flight of King Tarquin. ous Manner, with glittering Arms, and commanded him to tell the Romans that God Mars lius Hoftilius was the first that divided Rome into his Father had taken him up to Heaven, that Four Parts; the same being called Suburana, Ef they should set up Altars, and worship him as quilina, Collina and Palatina: Things continued a God by the Name of Quirinus. Lastantius in this State till Augustus his Time, who divided gives an Account of the Prayers that were made it into Fourteen Parts, over each of which he to this new Deity, which he has taken out of

O Romule, Romule, dice 6! Qualem te patria cuftodem Di genuerunt, Tu produxisti nos intra luminia auras: O pater, ô genitor, ô sanguen Dis oriundum.

They celebrated a Feaft called Populi-fugium in Memory of his Deification, beause of the Storm which made the People run into their Tents: It was kept on the Fifth of July.

QUIRITES; thus the People of Rome were called, from Cures a City of the Sabines fron, who gave them an Account of all Diforwith whom Romulus made an Alliance and shared his City with them; fo that the faid Two People being united into one Body were called by one common Name Quirites.

ter of the Alphabet, it was formerly a Surveyors, who ferved as Affetfors to the Gover-Numeral Letter and fignified 80, and when there nour of the City. was an Accent above it implied 80000.

RAMNENSES; a Troop of 100 Horse, that took their Name from Romulus.

RATITI; Pieces of Money that weighed Four Ounces, on which was graven the Figure of a round Veffel called Ratis.

RECINUS; was a kind of a square Mantle or Vail wore by Women or their Heads: nificent Work of Sylla, where the Senate met to Salmafius will have it to be a fort of a Gown give Audience to Foreign Embatfadors: New wore by Roman Ladies and tucked up before it was the Stone called Manalis, a manando, bewith a fquare Pin, of a Purple Colour.

RECUPERATORES; Judges delegated by the Prator to take Cognizance of a Fact. REDDIIIO: The Third part of the Sacrifice of the Heathens, when they put in the

REGIFUGIUM; a Feaft celebrated eve- manaret, manalem lapidem dixere: Near unto this

REGIO; a Part of the City of Rome. Talfettled Two Surveyors, called Curatores vierum, who were made annually, and took their Divifions by Lot: They wore a Purple Robe, and had each of them Two Lictors, that walked before them in the Division where they prefided: They had Slaves under them, who were to take care of the Fires that should happen. Their Charge was to provide for the Tranquillity of their respective Divisions, and to keep them clean, to take care that new Buildings did not increase too much, and were not built higher than the Law did prescribe: They had 2 Officers called Denunciators, to affift them in each Dividers that happened; also a Watch to prevent all unlawful Meetings in the Night, and to feize Vagabonds and Rogues. These Fourteen Divifions contained 421 Streets, 31 of which were called Great or Royal Streets, which begun at the gilt Pillar, which flood at the Entry into the open Place, in the Middle of the City; and to each of thele Streets belonged I our Vice-Magitiri, who took care of them, and carried the Orders of the City to each Citizen. Alexander Se-Is a Liquid Consonant and the 17th Let- verus increased the Number to Fourteen more

The first Division began at the Gate Capena, and was 12222 Feet in Cucumference: The lame contained Nine great Streets, over which prefided Two Surveyors called Curatores Viarum, Two Denunciators, and 26 Vico-mapifri: It extended without the City as well as within: RECINIUM, and RECINUM, and There stood the Temple of Mars Gradious that was supported by 100 Pillars, and was the magcause that in the Time of a great Drought they carried it about in a Procession made for Rain, which failed not to fall quickly after, as Feftus tells us. Manalem vocabant lapidem petranque extra portam Capenam juxta cedem Martis, quem Entrails of the Victim, after they had inspected cum propter nimiam ficcitatem in urbem protraterent, sequebatur pluvia flatim, eumque, quod aqua des Pessimuntis was washed at her coming out | with the Tiber, of the Ship which brought her to Rome, over it paffed an Aqueduct which water'd it continually, and made Juvenal call this Gate Madida Caoena: Not far from thence ftood the Temples of Tempests, Hope, and the Mules or Camena, and the Altar of Apollo: In the same Division there were Three little Groves called Luci, that had been confecrated to the Honour of the Gods, viz. Lucus Cuperius Hostiliani, Lucus Egeria, & Lucus Camanarum : Also Four Temples, viz. those of Ifis, Serapis, Fortuna Reduci, and of Mars Quirinus, to diftinguish it from that without the Gate Capena, which was called Martis Gradivi Templum. The First was to denote as we are informed by the same Poet, L. 7. the Peace and Tranquility they expected to enjoy | Epig. 30. in the City, and the Second to flew that they would imploy their Arms without against their Enemies. Ten Adicula, of which we know but the Names of Five only, to wit, Adicula Fortuna objequentis, Honoris, Virtutis, Rediculi & going ones 2 Surveyors, 2 Denunciators, 32 Vico-Herculis: That of Rediculi was built without Magistri, and 8 Streets; it contained the Tribe the Gate Capena, after Hannibal's Retreat. Seven great open Places called Area, viz. those ers, called Summum choragium; the Entry into the of Apollo, Thallus, Gallus, Isis Eliana, Pinaria, Carfura and Mercury. Six Publick Baths or Stoves, viz. those of Vettius Bolanus, Torquatus, Mamertinus, Abafcantianus, Mettianus Secundianus, Antiochianus, with 82 private ones more. 83 Lakes or Ponds, into which the Waters of the Portico of Livia, each were built as an Etertheir Springs ran. 4 Arches, viz. thole of Drufus Nero, Trajan, Verus Partbicus, and Janus Bifrons. 14 borrea publica, Publick Granaries. 16 Bake-houtes or Hand-mills, called Piftrina. rapis, Sangi Fidoni, Minerva, Ifidu, Veneru, Capena, called Mutatorium Calaria, which was a Pleasure house; some famous Sepulchres, as those of the Cornelii, Attilii, Calatini, Servilii, Caciliani, Horatii, &c. 121 Palaces or fine might walk round.

The second Division called Calimontium, was fo named from Mount Calius; and contained 13200 Feet in Circumference, and had 2 Sur-Watches: It contained 12 Streets, 30 private or separate Houses. Baths, to fay nothing of the publick ones, 65 wile Campus Martius where there were Horie- Forum Romanum and Comitia: It was called Sacra,

Gate ran the little River Almo, where the God- | Races, when the Land below was overflow d

Between Mount Cellus and Mount Palatine there was a great Street called Subura, which begun at the open Place in the Middle of the City and ended in the Via Tiburina all along the Exquilia: The greatest Part of the Nobles of Rome lived in this Street, and from hence might be feen divers Barbers and Ropemakers Shops, which made Martial lay, L. 2 Epig. 17.

Tonffrix Subura faucibus sedet primis, Cruenta pendent qua flagella tortorum.

They also sold all forts of Fruits and Fowls there,

The third Division called Is and Serapis Moneta, was 12450 Foot in Circumference: It began near Mount Calius and took up a great Part of the Exquilia: It had as well as the fore-Gratia Awea the high Place, or that of the Play-Via Sacra near the Carina at the End of the Efquilia; the Lucus Cuperius of the Academy where they were instructed in the use of the Catapults; 2 Temples, that of Ifis and Serapis Moneta, and that of Concordia Virilia, near unto which flood nal Monument of the Concord that continually remained between her and Augustus her Husband. 8 Ædicule, vir. Ædicule Bona Spei, Se-The Circus of Caracalla, and the Women's Se- Ejeulapii and Vulcani; the Portico of Claudius naculum; the Mutatory of Casar at the Gate of Marsialis, Vespasian's Amphitheater, other wife called the Colifaum, where Fourscore Thousand People might eatily fee the Plays; the great Games called Ludi Dacici and Mamertini; the Camp of the Soldiers of Miffena, and their old Houses, called Domus. 1250 Insula, or Houses | Camp; the School of the quastors and of Gallius, not contiguous to any others, about which a Man, the Baths of the Emperors Titus, Trajan and Phillip; 70 private Baths, 33 Mills, 29 Granaries, 160 Palaces, among which was Nero's Golden-House and Portico, those of Brutus, Pompey, Titus with the Portico where the Statue of Laocoon veyors, 2 Denunciators, 32 Vico-Magistri, and 5 and his Two Children Rood, beildes 2807 Infule

The fourth Division called Via Sacra or Tem-Lakes or Ponds; 3106 Infula or leparate Houles, plum Pacis, took up 1800 Feet in Circumference, 2 facred Groves; 32 publick Granaries, 23 extending it felf between Mount Palatine and Hand-mills; 133 Noblemens Houses, and a- the Exquilia, and containing no more than 8 mongft others those of Verellianus, Phillip, Late- Streets; It had 2 Surveyors, as many Denunciaranus, Cafar Dittator, Tiberius Claudius Centi- tors, and 32 Vico-Magiffri: The principal Parts malus, and the Poet Stella; 8 Adieula; 5 Tem- thereof were the ViaSacra which began at the Caples, viz. thole of Tullius Hoftilius, Bacebus, rine and paffed by the Exquilia to the Edicula Faunus, the Emperor Claudius, Goddels Carnea Strenia, and extended as far as the Capitol along upon Mount Calius, where flood also the Curia the Colifeum and Titus his triumphal Arch, pai-Hoffilia in which the Senate often met; as like- fing by that of Septimius, and fo made aPart of the

because it was there the Peace was figned be | Stantine: 28 Granaries, 24 Hand-mills, at tween Romalus and Tarius, King of the Sabines: Fulfus Cafar covered it with Cloth from his Palace to the Capitol, as he did by the Forum Romanum, in order to represent the Plays wherewith he prefented the Publick: The Entrance into the Carina was a Place well inhabited and adorned with fine Buildings, and so Virgil calls them Laura Carina: The chief Edifices were Titus his Baths and Palace, where there were Subterranean Halls 137 Foot long, 17 broad, and 12 high, built by Vefaxian for the Colledge of the Pontifices, Pomper's House, and the School of the Freedman Lineus the famous Grammarian: The old House of Cicero, who left it to his Brother Quintus to go live on Mount Palatine; The Aquimelium, which was a round Place before the Temple of Tellus at one of the Ends of the execrable Street, where formerly flood the House of Sep. Melius, a Roman Knight, which was demolished and raied by a Decree of L.Quinrius Cincinnatus the Dictator, because he endeavoured to assume the Sovereign Power. Bufta Gallica, the Burying-place of the Gauls, where they were defeated by Camillus; Tigillum fororium, the Sifter's Rafter, placed upon Two Walls, under which they made Horace pass in order to expiate the Crime he had committed 'in killing his Sifter : Meta sudans, the sweating Goal; near unto Confluntine's Arch ; it was a Pile of Brick-work, made like an Obelisk, from whence Water dropped every way as Sweat does from the Body, and at the Top of which there flood Jupiter's Statue : Ten Temples, viz. that of Peace, of Remus, before which food Two confectated Myrtles, one of which was cal-1-d Pawiels Myreus and the other Plebein; that of Faultha the Wife of Marcus Aurelius the Emperor, of Tellus in the Carina devoted by the Conful T. Sempronius, of Concord, of Ventus Cleating, of the Sun, Moon, Augustus and Nerva in the Paffage to the Forum transitorium : 8 J. divile, viz, those of the Muses, Hope, Mercury, Lucina Taleriana, Juno Lucina, Mavors, Juvenins and Ifis. Vulcanalu, of the Place where Romulus planted that Lotor whole Roots reached as far as Cufar's Forum the fatred Portico, Place of Victory, of Vultar, and the Coloffus of the Sun; the Odeum, which was a Place erected for the Practiling of Mulick, made Theater-ways, with Seats like the Steps of a Ladder covered with a Lantern and Supported by Pillars: There such as played upon Mufick were taught the Art by a Mafter of the Science, and the Actors by a Player before they appeared upon the Stages: Forum Cupedinis or Macellum Cupedinis, the Market of Dainties; the Ancient Bafilica of Paulus lius, and the Senaculum of the Roman Ladies. Amilius, that of Conftantine, the facred Repolitory of the Romans, Daphnis Bath, 79 Lakes or Refervatories of Water: The Arches of Ti-great Houses, and 275 Injula or separate Houses. ..

The fifth Division called Esquilina, contained the Mounts Efquiline and Viminal, and was in Circumference 15950 Feet, containing fifteen Streets, and having Two Surveyors and as many Denunciators; the most considerable. Things in it were thele, viz. Puticuli or Fusicula, Pitsdug in the Earth between Mount Ejquiline, the City Walls and Street which lead to Porta Querquetulana; where poor People were buried. which caused a very ill Stench in all that Part of the City, to that Augustus with the Consent of the Senate and People of Rome, made a Present of it to Macense his tayouties, who built a fine House of Pleasure there, and the best Gardens in Rome, as Horace tells us, L. t. S.t. S.

Huc prius angustis exelta cadavera cellis, Conferous vili portanda lucabatan arca: Hoc mifera plebi ftabas commune sepulcrum.... Nunc licet Efquiliis babitare falubribus, asque Aggere in aprico Spatiari, que modo triftes Albis informem spettabant offibus agrum.

Virgil had a House near this Place, and so had Aquilim the Lawyer, Propertius, Perfem, and Pling the Younger. Here were leveral Temples, fuch as those of Jupiper Vimineus, of Juno Lucina, Minerva, Medicina, Esculapius, Venus Erycina that flood at the Gate Collina, round about which the Plays called Agonalia were celebrated, when the Tiber overflowed: The Amphibeater called Cafirenfe, Aurelian's Circus, with an Obelisk, the Bafilica of Sicinius, the Pratorian Camp, the Park where the wild Beafts were kept, which was called Vivarium, several publick Baths, 180 Great Mens Houses, amongst which were those of Servius Tullius, Q. Lutatius Catulus, and M. Licinius Craffus.

The South Division was called Alta Semita, by reason of the Sciruation thereof, and contained 15600 Feet in Circumterence, began at the Two great Marble Horfes, made by Phidias and Praxitele, and reached to the Gate called Vininalu, it had 14 Streets in it, and 48 Towers, with 2 Surveyors, 2 Denunciators, and 52 Vice-Magiftri: The most noted Place, here was the Execrable Camp near Porsa Collina, 10 Shops where Vermillion was fold, 15 Temples, viz. those of Health , Serapu, Flora, Venus, &c. 2 Portico 1000 Paces long, the Statues of Quirinus 20 Foot high, as also that Leaden one of Mamurius; the Circus of Flore, the Forums of Saluft and Dioclefian, the Baths of Paulus Emi-

The Seventh Divition called Via Lata, reached from the Capitol, as far as the Place called Septa in Campus Martius, even to Trajan's Forum, tus and Vespatian, of Septimius Severus, and Con- land met with the Circus Flaminius, and the great

the Tarpeian Rock, the Gate called Siercoraria, Temples, 30 Adicula, and the Sink of a great and the new Street: It was 14867 Feet in Cir- Kennel that ran into the Tiber. cumference, had 12 Streets in it, 2 Surveyors, as many Denunciators, and 6 Watches: This | na Publica, reached from the greater Circus a-Division took in also the following Places; the long Mount Avenime, as far as Caracalla's Baths, Milliarium aureum, Puteal Libonis, a Place much and was 12000 Feet in Circumference, and confrequented by Merchants; the Curtian Lake, cained 12 Streets. This Publica Pifeina was where Curtius in Armour threw himlelf into a in the City between Monnt Celius and Celiolus; Chaffe of the Earth; the Horatian Pile, to which where the Boys of Rome went to learn to fwim; were fixed the Spoils of the 3 Curatii, and the it was a large Receptacle of Water at the Foot Statue of Marfyas, one of Bacibus his Compani- of Mount Avensine, into which the Appian Water ons, 15 Temples, and among others that of was conveyed, wherein they watered and the Capitol, &c. of Jupiter Ferevius, Juli-us Cefer, where stood an Image of Venus pro-ples and inconsiderable Groves in this Part. ceeding from the Sea, devoted and built by Augustus; those of Concord, Vesta and Janus. Doliola, which were the Veffels wherein they laid up their Sacred Relicts, at the Taking of Rome by the Gauls; the Sepulcher of Romulus, of Acca Lourentia, and many Portico's: Four Courts to Mount Aventine, and began at the Forum Oviawhere the Senate met, viz. Hostilia, Calabra, rium, and reached to the Temple of Juno Regi-Pompiliana or Regia Nume, and the Senaculum gureum; Seven Basilica, and the Gracostasis; the Prison called Tullianum, built by Servius Tullius, 150 Pallaces, attong which were those of Turquinins Superbus, Manlius Capitolinus, Scipio ticular Place where Remus took his Augury by Africanus, T. Annius Milo and Ovid.

The Ninth Division called Circus Flaminius, took in the Sides of the Gardens, the Campus Martius, the Vaulted ftreet, Straight-street, and was 30560 Feet about, containing 30 Streets, who had each of them their particular Officers, as the preceding ones had: They reckoned eight Temples here, and among the rest the Panibeon, and that of Janus near the Theater of Marcel-Martius, 4 Theaters and Amphitheaters, and the Stables belonging to the 4Companies of Cour-Centumviri, and Lucullus and Agrippa's Gar-

The Tenth Division was called Palatium, be-Quie it begun on Mount Palatine, and was 11600 fus the Orator, Horsenfius, Catiline, Julius Ca-

Street, from which the whole Division took its | the Valley which lay between Mount Avenine Name: It contained 23700 Feet in Circumfe- and the Tiber, as far as the Gate called Rips, and mice, and 40 Streets, had 2 Surveyors, and Saline on one fide, and on the other the Herbas many Denunciators. Marial's House stood | Market, and the Foot of the Capitol, the Temple of Piety, and Columna Lattaria, whither they The Eighth Division called Forum Romanum, carried their Bastard Children; besides these was the finest and most famous of all of them it had 8 Streets, that Place called Argiletum, Is contained the Forum Romanum, the Capitol, where there were some Bookiellers Shops, 4

The Tweifth Divition which was called Pifci-

The Thirteenth Division was called Avensinus, and in Circumference contained 163 Feet, and 30 Streets, with the same Officers as the other Divisions had: The chief Places which it included were Clious Publici, by which they went up na: Scala Gemonia, to which they tied Malefactors, from whence they were thrust down into the Tiber; the End of the Armiluftrium; The Doliolum on Mount Teffaceus ; Remuria, or the parthe Flight of Birds, and where he was buried.

The Fourteenth Divition was called Trans-Tiberim, and beginning at the faniculum contained the Vatican, the Isle of the Tiber, and that which they called Navalia; it was 3489 Feet in circuit, and had 28 Streets.

The City of Rome in general contained these following Things, 700 Temples or Edicule under the Names of Templum, Ades, Fanum, Delus: The Circus Flaminius, that of Alexander lubrum, Sacellum, Adicula; a great Number of Severus; the Obelish with the Dial in Campus | Altarsonly comprized under these Words, Ara and Altare: The Differences of thele Words will be found in their respective Alphabetical tiers: The Septa, Ovile, or Place where the Order: Three Senaculum's, which were the People gave their Suffrages; the Prison of the Places where the Senate met; the first was in the Temple of Concord, the second near the Gate called Capena, and the third in the Temple of Bellona. Several Courts under the Word Curia, the Chief whereof were the Hofilia, Julia, Pom-Feet round, containing 7 Streets; 10 Temples, peia, &c. where the Senate fometimes met: and among others that of spollo Palatinus; 21 Easilica, which were stately Ediffices, where-190 Nohlemens Houles, such as those of Hosti. of I have spoken in their proper order: 12 or line, Annus Merius, Velerius Publicola, L. Cras. 15 Nymphea, from the Word Nymphea, which such the Orator, Horsensius, Catiline, Julius Ca. were Halls to marry in; 1780 Great Mens Houses, comprized under the Word Donner, and a The Eleventh Division was called Circus Maxi- vast Number of private Houses under the World ms, and besides the Great Circus took in all Infule: 144 Jakes of Privies, which were free for every Body to use: An Hospital in the Island of a Trident in one Hand, and a Net in the others the Tiber, where the Temple of Esculapius stood, wherein they endeavoured to entangle them called Nofocemium; as also an Hospital where superannuated and inferior Soldiers, who had ferved in the Army, were taken care of; they called it Taberna meritoria: 22 famous Portico's to shelter People from the Rain; divers Arfenals, where they laid up Arms and Warlike Machines called Armamentaria: 29 publick Libraries; 5 Colleges and Publick Schools for the Breeding up of Youth: 254 Hand-mills, and 227 Granaries, where they had Magazines of Corn, in order to supply the Peoples Wants at reasonable Rates, in the Time of Scarcity; 39 Brais Coloffus's, and 51 of Marble; 6 great by Minos, he took occasion to make them the Obelisks, and 42 leffer ones, with divers Pyra- Judges of all Mankind, in a Place where they mids: Several fine Gardens, and 32 Sacred all met, i. e. in the other World, and called Groves, 23 Water-Pools for Horses to drink of, them Jupiter's Sons, because that they, in order whitening of Linnen, and quenching Fires; to give a greater Sanction to their Laws, gave 14 Aqueduds; 105 Fountains, 1352 Lakes or out, that they were dictated by Jupiter. Plate, Pools of flanding Water, brought from feveral with admirable Dexterity, unfolds unto us the Springs; 17 great open Places, comprized un- Truths concealed under these Poetical Fistions. der the Word Forum; 117 publick Baths, and when he makes Jupiter to lay, that he was weary 909 private ones.

RELIQUIÆ; the Relicks, were the Ashes and Bones of the Dead that remain'd after the Burning of their Bodies, and which the Ancients the Time of their Death, and passing no Senkept very religiously in Urns, and afterwards laid them up in Tombs.

REMURIA; the Place where Remus took his Augury from the Flight of Birds, and where he was buried.

REMUS, the Son of Rhea Silvia, and Romulus his Brother, they were Twins, and ordered by the Command of their Uncle Amulius Silvius to be thrown into the Tiber; but they were taken up and faved by Faustulus, who was Nu- to the same Place places Minos above his Two mitor's Shepherd, who carried them to his Wife, by whom they were carefully nurfed: Some faid that while the Cradle was upon the Brink of the River, a She-Wolf brought thither by the Crying of the Infants, gave them fuck: Others have been of Opinion, that the Wantonness of Laurentia, Fafiulus his Wife gave Occasion to this Fable, because such Women were called She-Wolves, Authors vary in their Opinions concerning the Death of Remus; some saying, that Ro mulus flew his Brother, because he ridiculed him upon the Account of the Fortifications he had made to his new City; while others will have him to have been killed by the Soldiery; but be it as it will, 'tis certain Remus cemented the Walls of Rome with his own Blood.

REPETUNDARUM CRIMEN, or DE REPETUNDIS; Bribes taken by the in Execution that were made against the Ve-Magistrates from the Allies and Subjects of the Romans, as also from the Citizens; this Crime was not at first made Capital, but became afterwards to be fo, as may be feen by the Example of Verres.

RETIARII: Gladiators, who fought with Adversary.

RADAMANTHUS; was feigned by the Poets to be the Judge of departed Souls in Hell.

Cnossus bic Rhadamanthus babet durissima regna. Caffigatque auditque dolos, cogitque fateri, &c.

Strabo tells us, that Homer understanding that Radamanthus, an ancient King of Creet, had formerly made very good Laws in his Country, wherein fometime after he had been imitated of the Complaints made him concerning the unrighteous Sentences pronounced upon Earth. which he would remedy by concealing from Men tence upon them till after their decease, and that even by departed Souls themselves, that so neither Favour nor falle Witnesses, Relations nor Interests might take place any more, as they did whilft they were alive: That he entrufted three of his Sons with the faid Judicial Office, giving Rhadamanthus Power over the Afiaticks, Eacus over the Europeans, and for Minos he was to terminate any Difficulties that might happen: And Brothers, and represents him with a Golden Scepter in his Hand, whereas he makes the other Two to carry a Rod only: Minos autem confiderans fedet folus aureum babens fceptrum, xeusur ธหมิสใeov.

RHAMNUSIA; Ultrix Dea; a Name given to the Goddess Nemesis, and taken from the Town of Rhamnus in Attica-

RHEA, Numitor's Daughter, whom Amulius Silvius made a Vestal; some call her Ilia; but most Authors name her Rbea and Silvia; this Veftal was got with Child in a Wood dedicated to Mars, wherein the offered Sacrifice by her felf, and where an armed Man enjoy'd her: She was delivered of Two Children, whom Anulius exposed to be deftroy'd, and put those Laws stals, who prostituted their Virginity.

Rhea was called also Aftarte, Ops, Pessmuntia,&C. as Apuleius says, who confounds several Goddeffes in the Person of Rhea; 'twas thereforerather a Multitude of Names, than a Multiplication of Deities, according to his Opinion, and munia, Cybele. But how ancient foever Rhea to Romus, the Son of Aneas. might have been in Phrygia, the was much more | Plutarth speaks of another Foundress of Rome, that Serum and Rhea his Wife were the Children of Oceanus and Tethys.

RICA; a Vail wherewith the Roman Ladies covered their Heads.

RICULA; a little Vail for the same use. RIDICULUS, and ÆDICULA RI-DICULI; the Temple of Laughter, built at Rome 2000 Paces without the Gate Capena, in Commemoration of Hannibal's Flight from before that City, because of the Rains and Storms that fell during his belieging of it, which made the Romans laugh and fall to ridicule him: The Romans were not the first who deified Laughter, feeing we are informed by Plutarch in the Life of Lycurgus, that the Lacedamonians erected him a Statue, and the Hypateans of Theffaly annually offered Sacrifice to him, as also the Romans did in the Spring, accompanied with loud Laughter: Paufanias mentions Osis yener O, a God of Laughter.

ROBIGO, or ROBIGUS; a Deity worshipped by the Romans for driving away the Blaft which happened to the Corn in the Ear, occasioned thro' too much Drought. Numa Pompilius inftituted a Feaft in Honour of him about the Month of April, called Robigalia.

ROGATIO LEGIS; the Proposing of a Law to pass, which was made to the Romans for their Approbation thereof; from whence came those Expressions so frequent in Cicero, Rogationem ferre ad populum, to propole a Law to the People, and Rogasor legis, he that proposes the

ROMA; Rome; tho' the Founding of this City be attributed to Romulus, because he enmay be proved by divers Authorities, that there | ced, that Porta Romana did not take its Name was in reality Ists, Queen of Egypt, on was a City in Italy called Roma, before Romular mom all these Names were conferred at divers was born. Solinus will have this City to have times, and in divers Countries, and whom they been founded near Mount Esquiline by Rome the represented under the Notion of so many Dei- Daughter of Kittim, to which she gave her ies. Strabo also mentions this multiplying of Name; but other Authors there are who attri-Names : Et Beresynthes & omnes Phryges, & qui , bute the Foundation thereof to Roma, the Daughllam accolunt Troes, Rheam colunt, eique orgia ter of Afcanius : Sabellicus confirms this Propoliukbrant. Vocatur ab eis Mater Deorum, & mag- tion of Plutareb by a Quotation out of one Cephon na Dea; à loris autem Ilaa, Dindymene, Peffi- Gergetius, who attributed the Founding of Rome to in Egypt, where Diodorus Siculus makes Ofiri named Roms; and fays, that after Aneas had and Iss to descend from her and Saturn; or more landed at Laurentum, a Trojan Lady, whose Name immediately Jupiter and Juno, and from them was Roma, took the Opportunity in the Absence Ofri and Iss. We have an Account in the of Aness, and the other Trojans to perswade Phanician Theology of Sanchuniathon, who was the Women to burn the Ships, that to they might more ancient, that Saturn having married his be no longer exposed to the Dangers of the Sea; Two Sisters Aftarre and Rhea, he had Seven and this necessitated them to build a City at the Daughters by the first, and as many Sons by the | Poot of Mount Palatine, which from the Nanie other: And thus you fee from whence it is, the of the faid Lady they called Roma. Caius Sem-Greeks have derived the whole Fable of Rhea' provius in his Division of Isaly, proves that Romuor Cybele. Livy gives us the History at large of lus was not the Founder of Rome, but that it was the Transportation of the Goddels Rbea, from the Daughter of Italus; for he says, that he was Pellinunia to Rome: Plato in his Timaus fays, called Rumulus, and his Brother Rumus, and not Romulus and Remus, as is commonly thought. Rome when built or enlarged by Romulus, was divided into Four Parts; one called Roma, the fecond Germalia, the third Velia, and the fourth comprehended Romulus his House. It is plain that Roma was that little City built by Italus his Daughter; Velia was that Part of Mount Palatine, that looked towards that Place called Locus Romanus, and was so named from Vellus, a Fleece, because the Shepherds were wont to shear their Sheep there; Germalia was a low Place that looked towards the Capitol, where the Twins Cradle was found under a Fig-Tree called Ruminal, from the Word Rumo, to give tuck, because it was under this Tree the She-Woif gave fuck to Romulus and Remus: From the House of Romulus, who was first King of Rome, built upon Mount Palatine, they call Princes Houses Pa-

Romulus made Three Gates to his New City, viz. Carmentalis, Remana and Pandana; to which fome have added Janualis. The Gate Carmentalis took its Name from Carmenta, Evander's Wife, who was buried there; the same was since called Porta Scelerata, because the Fabii went out at it, when they were defeated at Cremera: Porta Romana took its Name from Romulus, fays Livy, but I rather believe it came from the Village Roma; it was also named Mugonia, because of the Lowing of the Cattle fold at this Gate, and Trigonia, for being fortified with Three Angles: Pandana came from the Verb Pando, because it lay open to let in the Provisions that were continually brought into the City; the fame was also called Libera and Romulida; and. larged it, and founded a Monarchy there; yet it this confirms the Opinion which I have advanfrom Romulus; for 'tis not very likely that of dals of Maxensius represent Eternal Rome fitting but Four Gates, Romulus would have called Two upon Military Enfigns, armed with an Helmer according to his own Name: Porta Fanualis was and holding a Scepter in one Hand, and a Globe so named from the Temple of Janus that stood in the other, which she presents the Emperor, near it.

Rome was founded in the 3961. Year of the that he was the Mafter and Preserver of the Fulian Period, Anno Mund. 3301. 753. Years | whole World, with this Inscription; Conservebefore our Saviour's Nativity; in the third Year tori Urbis aterna. The Medals of Vefpatian reof the fixth Olympiad, on the 11th and 12th present her with an Helmet on her Head, and of May, the Day after the Feast of Pales, be- lying upon the Seven Hills of Rome, with a Sceptween the second and third Hour of the Day, ter in her Hand, and the Tiber in the Form of the Sun being in Taurus, the Moon in Libra, an old Man at her Feet; but upon the Medals Saturn, Mars, Venus and Mercury in Scorpio, and of Adrian she holds a Lawrel-branch in her Left-Fupiter in Pisces, according to the Testimony of hand, and Victory upon a Globe in the Right, Solinus, Pliny, and Eutropius. Titus Terentius as being victorious over all the World. The Firmianus, a learned Aftrologer, rejects the People of Smyrns were the first who erected a foresaid Time and according to his Computation | Temple to the City of Rome under the Confulmakes it to be on the 21st of April, at full Moon, thip of Caso Major, when she was not yet come and when the Sun, Mercury and Venus were in to that Pitch of Grandeur (fhe afterwards at-Taurus, Jupiter in Pisces, Sasurn and Mars in tained to) before the Destruction of Carthage and Cancer, about the third Hour, and Plutarch ob- the Conquest of Asia. See Regio. ferves, that the Moon on the faid Day suffered a great Ecclipse.

into Three Tribes or Classes, under Tribunes in the curious Sciences of the Chaldeans, having or Collonels, and each Tribe into Ten Curia exactly observed the Life and Death of Romalus, or Parithes, and each Curia into Ten Decuria; fays, He was born the 21ft Day of Thorb, which the first being under the Command of an Officer is our August, at Sun-rising, and that he was named Curio, as the other was under one called | begot the 23d of Cheac, which is our November, Decurio; he picked out of all the Tribes fuch Persons, whose Birth, Age and Vertue made them remarkable, and called them Patricii or Patres. and the reft of the People Plebeians.

This City was governed by Seven Kings for the Space of 243 Years, and became afterwards a Republick, which was sometimes governed by Confuls, and other whiles by Decemviri, Tribunes, Dictators, and laftly, by Emperors: The lius his Command exposed to be drowned in the Ancients represented Rome in the Form of a Goddess clad like Pallas, with a youthful Air, to intimate that Rome was always in the Vigour they were both nurfed by his Wife: The Story of her Youth, and did not grow old: They put is, that they were fuckled by a She-wolf, because an Helmet on her Head and a Pike in her Hand, of the Leudness of Laurentia, Faustulus his Wife, with a long Robe, to denote that the was alike which gave occasion to the Fable; but the Thing prepared for War and Peace, fince the was dreft like Pallas, whom they represented with a Helmet and Pike, and like Minerva who was habited with a long Robe: This Head of Rome is very often found on the Confulary Medals, and even on some Greek ones; the Inscriptions that are on the Greek Medals for Rome and the Senate, are, ΘEA PΩMH, the Goddess Rome, and ΘΕΟΣ ΣΥΓΚΛΗΤΟΥ or IEPA ΣΥΓ-KAHTOE: The God of the Senate, or the Sacred Senate: They also crected Temples throughout the Empire to the Honour of the Goddels Rome, and at last the meanest flattering Titles they used were Roma Villrix, Victorious Rome; Roma invilla, Invincible Rome ; Roma Aterna, Eternal Rome, and Roma-Sacra, Sacred Rome. The Me-who is crowned with Lawrel, to let him know

ROMULUS, the Son of Mars and the Vestal Rhea, otherwise called Silvia and Ilia; Lu-Romulus divided the Inhabitants of his City cius Terentius Firmianus, a Person well skilled at Three in the Afternoon, in the first Year of the fecond Olympiad: Plutarch fays, that the Sun, on the Day of his Conception suffered a great Eccliple from Eight to Nine in the Morning: Ant. Consius will have him to be born in the first Year of the first Olympiad, and Fucius afferts he was born in the 3d Year of the second Olympiad. He with his Brother were by Amu-Tiber, but Faustulus, who was Numitor's Shepherd, faved him and his Brother Remus, and has been even to represented on the Confulary Medals, where you have a She wolf and Two Twins fucking her: Romulus traced out the Plan of his new City and prescribed Laws to his People, who coalefeed together from all Parts into a Body, for he made an Afylum of a Valelying at the Foot of Mons Capitolinus, for all those that came thither; which increased the Number of his Subjects in a very little time: He regulated Matters of Religion, dividing his People into Three Tribes, and each Tribe into Curia or Parishes: Each Curia chose it's own Priests, Priestesses, Augurs, and Camilla, who were to supply what was requirite for the Charge of the Sacrifices and facred Feafts that were folemnized throughout a Curia at certain Times. Pliny speaks of a Society instituted by Romulus, some-

Ammulus was the Sovereign or Grand-mafter of fighting any more; they were also called Ruthe Order, the Enfigns of which was a Crown | diarii. of Ears of Corn tied with a white Riband, and in a Scuffile, others will have it that he was cut in Pieces by the Senate, who gave out that the Gods had carried him into Heaven; of Quirinus, according to the Relation of Procuus: Dionyfius of Hallicarnassus fays, 'he lived 55 Years, and Plutarch 54, and that he reigned 37. Pius where Romulus is represented habited like Mers with a Javilin in one Hand, and with the other holding a 1 rophy on his Shoulders with this Inscription Romulo Augusto.

Gronovius excepts against all that has been hid by fuch a Multitude of Authors concerning the Origin of Romulus for near 2500 Years. He precends that a Greeck named Diocles was the first who invented the Fable of the She-wolf's suckling Remulus and Remus, who were exposed by Amulius his order to be destroyed, and begotten by Mars upon Rhea Silvia a Vestal; and he is so affored that there is no need to refute this Fable. that he lays it down as an established Principle that Romulus was not born in Italy, but that he came thither from another Country; and the Proof he gives for it is, That no People of Italy would supply the first Inhabitants of Rome with Wives. But tis by no means to be thought, in case Remulus was owned to be the Grandson of Numitor, after his expelling of the Usurper Amilius, and re-establishing his Grandfather unon the Throne, but that he would have found the Albans inclined to make an Alliance with him, and to supply him and his People with Wives. Whereas it is supposed he had Recourse w the Sabines or some other People; who haring refused him, he resolved upon the entire Extirpation of them. Other Authors will have Romulus to be a Greek by Birth; for this his Name implies, as Salmafius fays, who thought the Word Romulus to be a Diminitive of iouG. that in the Eolick Dialett fignifies Strength: Growins is of Opinion, that Romulus was neither Gaulnor Affrican, but a Syrian, fince fojephus and Nicephorus translate the Name by vies Poplexis, the Son of Romelia, of whom mention a made in Scripture.

ROSTRA; Stages or raifed and spacious Theaters which were adorned with the Prows of the Ships that were taken from the Antiata in the first Sea-fight obtained by the Romans It was the Place from whence Orations were made to the People.

Pixtor gave the Giadiators as a Mark of their prized within the Number of Fitty, and then all that like unto the Knights of the French King's Freedom, whence the Latin Phrase Rude donare, Order, and they were called Fraires Arvales; to make a Gladiator free, to discharge him from

RUDUSCULANA PORTA; an Anthis Dignity they held for Life: He was killed | cient Gate of Rome, built after a ruftick clumfie manner, or called to because it was adorned with Brass, according to Valerius Maximus. ..

RUMA or RUMINA; this Goddess he was deified and worshipped under the Name | presided over the Nutting of Children at the Breaft; there was a little Temple built her at Rome wherein they offered Milk unto her.

RUTUMENIA; an Ancient Gate of We have Medals of the Emperor Antoninus Rome, so called from a Charjoteer of that Name, who proving victorious in a Horle-race from Veii to Rome, entred through this Gate into the City.

S Is a Confonant, and the 18th Letter in the Alphabet; it was a Numeral amongst the Ancients, which fignified Seven. It's called a hiffing Letter by reason of its Sound, and has met with a different Reception from the Ancients, some having been much for rejecting it. while others affected the Use of it. Pinder calls it xi33nhor, adulterinam, and has avoided the Uie of it almost in all his Verses; Quintilian favs. tis rough and makes an ill Sound in the Conjun-Rion of Words, which made it be often totally rejected, as dignu' omnibu' and the like are to be met with in Plautus and Terence. Some of the Latins also chang'd it into a T in Imitation of the Arbeneans, laying Mercare for merfare, pultare for pulfare, &c. But others on the Contrary affected the Use of it every where, as Caimana for Camena, dusmofa for dumofa. And Quintilian says, that from Cicero's Time and so onward, they often doubled it in the Middle of Words, as in Caufa, Divissiones, &c.

SABAZIA; the Feafts of Bacchus; fee Bacchanalia.

SABAZIUS; Baccbus, or according to fome, the Son of Baccbus. See Baccbus.

SABATHUM; the Sabbath; the Jews reckoned their Years by Weeks, the Seventh whereof was the Sabbathick Year, wherein it was not lawful to till the Ground, and their Slaves then were made free: They had also their Year of Jubilee or Remission, which was every 50th Year, or as some will have 40th; infomuch that every Jubilee was also a Sabbathick Year, but more famous than the other, and the Years comprehending their Two Terms, i.e. the pro-RUDIS; a knotty rough Stick, which the ceeding and following Jubilee were always comEstates, and whatever had been alienated, re-striking upon them musically. This was avery heturned to the Pollession of the first Owner.

SACERDOS; a Heathen-Prieft, whereof | chiefeft Men in the Empire. Augustales, 25 Priefts there were different Orders consecrated to the inftituted by the Emperor Tiberius, in Honourof Service of feveral Deities: There was a Society of Priests named Luperci, who were engag'd in Altars, and instituted Sacrifices: The same was also the Worthip of Pan Lycaus, and on his Festival- done for other Emperors, who came afterwards to Day, ran ftark naked through the City, with be deified thro' Flattery, for we find there were Thongs in their Hands, which were made of the fuch as they called Sodales Flavii, Adriandes, Skin of a Goat, that they had facrificed to their Aliani, Antonini, &c. God, and with which they lash'd the Women, who willingly received the Blows out of a fuper- anciently facrifice Animals, if we believe Porter ficious Belief they had, that the same contribu- 17, but the Fruits of the Earth, or Perfume ted to make them fruitful. Hercules his Priefts, which were altogether bloodless Sacrifices, Percalled Potitii and Pinarii, were inftituted by phyry in his Books concerning Abstinence, treas Hercules, they being taken out of those Two of this Matter at large; he says, upon the Re-Noble Families in Evander's Time, because they lation of Theophrastus, that the Egyptians were had affished Hercules at a Sacrifice which he offe- the first who made an Offering of the First fruits red to Jupiter, of the best Cow he had in his to their Deity, and not of Incense and Persume. Herd. Fratres Arvales to the Number of 12 were appointed by Romulus to facrifice to Ceres and Bacchin, and to pray to them to make the first Sacrifices were consumed by Fire, and thence Earth fruitful; Romulus was their Institutor. Curiones, they were Priests establish'd with Supream Power, as to Spiritual Matters, in the Curia, to the Number of 30, into which the Three Tribes of the People of Rome were at first divided: Numa added Two Priests more in every Parish, to affist the Curiones, and these he called Sacerdotes publici: The Curiones had the Tenths and Parish-Offerings allowed them for their Maintenance; and this was called, as Curionum, quod dabatur Curioni ob facerdotium curionatus, lays Festus. Titii Sodales, the Titian Priests, to the Number of 25, whom Titus Tatizs introduced formerly to Rome, in order to retain somewhat of the Sabines Religion, as Tacitus fays, L. I. Annal. C. 7. However this Author feems to contradict himfelf when he attributes the Instituting of this Priesthood to Romulus, Titii Sodales faces Augustales subdidere, quod Jacerdonium ut Romulus Tatio Regi, ita Cafar Tiberius Julie genti facravit. It may be faid if Tatius instituted this Priesthood; Romulus, after his Death, having made the Sabines and Romans coale ce into one Body, ordered these Priests to offer an Yearly Sacrifice in Honour of Taxius, King of the Sabines. Varro will have these Priests to have been called Tivii from some Birds Ovid adds a fabulous Narration to this Historical or that Name, from which they took Auguries: Truth, viz. that Ceres was the first that facts Titie aves quas in auguriu certis Sodales Titii ob ficed a Hog, because he had spoiled the Com: fervare folebant. They dweit without the City | The fame Poet in another Place brings in Prise of Rome, from whence they observed the Au- goras speaking against this Slaughtering of gury of the faid Birds. Flamines, Priests con Beafts, whether the same were designed for fecrated to the Worthip of each particular Deity, Food or Sacrifice, he makes him fay, that it every one of which bore the Name of his God, might be very pardonable to facrifice a Hog to as Flamen Dialis, Martialis and Quirinalu, the Ceres, and a Goat to Baccbus, because of the Ha-Priests of Jupiter, Mars and Romulus. See Flamen. vock, made by those Animals in the Corn and Salii, an Order of Priests instituted by Numa, Vineyards, but it must be extream Cruelty to who danced a Secred Dance in Honour of Mars, offer innocent Sheep, and Oxen that are fo uleful carrying the Sacred Shields, named Ancilia, and for Tillage, though Men endeavoured to con-nourable Priefthood at Rome, and held by the Augustus, for whom they erected Temples and SACRIFICIA; Sacrifices; they did not much less of Animals, but of plain Herbs, which are the first Productions of the Earth. These come thoic Greek Words Dueiv, Dueia, Dunia-Tuprov, which fignifie to facrifice, &c. They afterwards burnt Perfumes called appeara, from the Greek apaoplas, to pray. They did not begin to facrifice Animals till they had first eaten some Herbs or Fruits, that ought to be offered upon the Altar. Theophrasius adds, that before the facrincing of Beatts, besides the Offerings made of Herbs and Fruits of the Earth; the Sacrifices of Libations were very common when they poured out Water, Honey, Oyl and Wine; and these were called Nephalia, Melitosponda, Eleosponda, and Oenosponda. Ovid fays, that the very Name of Villim imported, that the same was not killed till Victories were obtained over the Enemy; and that that of Hollis denoted that Hostilities had been committed: In short, while Men yet lived upon Pulle, they minded not the offering of Beafts in Sacrifice, fince the Law of Sacrificing required that some Part of them should be eaten, Ante Deos bomini quod conciliare valeret, Far erat, & puri lucida mica Salie.

the Worship of the Gods.

Nec satis est quod tale ne sas committitur, ipsos Inscripsere D:os sceleri ; Numenque supernum Cade laboriferi credunt gaudere juvenci.

Horace also gives us to understand that the pureft and plaineft Way of appealing the Gods, was to offer them Flower and Salt, and some Odoriferous Herbs.

> Te nihil attinet Tentare multà cæde bidentium... Mollibit aversos Penates Farre pio & faliente mica.

servius observes they threw Flower and Salt upon the Victims, the Fire and the Knives; for they | mane Flesh; who to punish him for the faid roafted the Corn, and then mixed Salt there- | Crime, transformed him into aWolf. Porphyry fays, with, reducing the whole into falted Flower that these Humane Immolations continued in overspread with Idolatry, and 'tis very probable very common even before the Deluge. And thus it was convenient to offer Sanguinary Sadoing the same to Idols or worshipping Beafts.

Temples to be built within the City.

cal their Fault in vain, under a Pretence of | an Hind to Diana, and the Arabians Dogs; and that an Ass was sacrificed to Priapus: He then goes on to Birds, which he fays were offered in Sacrifice to the Gods, in Revenge for the Injuries they fometimes did them, or the Displeasure they conceived at their Discovering their Secrets by divers forts of Auguries: Amongst the Birds that were facrificed, there are no other mentioned than Doves: Gollings and Cocks were offered in Sacrifice to none but Nox, and that even in the Night-time.

The most remarkable of all the Pagan Sacrifices were those wherein Men were offered. Paufanias fays, that Lycaon, the second of that Name King of Arcadia, built the first City in Greece, which he called Lycofura, that he there facrificed Men to Jupiter; and that from thence they took occasion to say, that he made that God eat Huor Meal and this anciently was Mens Food, and Arcadia till the Time of Theophrastus, that they the Matter of the ancient Sacrifices, which they also spread themselves into Peloponesus, and that fometimes continued to celebrate apart after the they were abolished by Lycurgus at Sparta who Inflituting of Sanguinary Sactifices, which was changed this barbarous Custom, and brought never used by the Ancients. Not but that Noab the People to be content with the Blood of factificed animals at his coming out of the Ark, fome young Men, that were whipped for this as Moses ordered Sanguinary Sacrifices to be Purpole. Pausunius speaks of an annual Sacrimade at the Promulgation of the Law; but when fice made to Diana Triclaria of a young Boy and Mojes published the Law, all the World was Girl by the Oracle's Command in order to expiate the incestuous Familiarity that passed bethat the Worthip of falle Deities was grown tween a Virgin Priestels of this Temple and a young Man. Strabo gives an Account of the several Ways used by the Gauls in Respect to crifices to God, in order to hinder Men from Humane Sacrifices, and fays, that at Leucadia, in order to expiate the publick Sins, and avert The Example of Abel may be objected here- the Misfortunes wherewith they were menaced, in, of whom the Scripture feems to fay, that he they every Year threw some Body down headfacrificed the best and fattest of his Lambs unto long from an high Rock, after they had first tied God from the Beginning of the World, but 'tis a great many Feathers and live Birds to him to much more probable that he only offered his keep him up in the Air, and that they received Lambs to God, without killing them; and Gro- him below as gently as could be, for which End tius has made it appear, that fince Sacrifices they made a Ring with their small Boats: Diowere offered only of such things as were in use nysius of Hallicarnassus says, that there were among Men, it is by no means probable, that Humane Sacrifices offered to Saturn in the first Abel offered unto God the Flesh of Animals, Ages, not only at Tyre and Caribage, but also which Men did not yet make uie of for their in Italy; that Hercules abolished the laid Custom, Food. That which Flutareb calls Immolation by perswading the People to substitute the Eswas the Ceremony of throwing the falted figies of Men instead of real Men, which they Flower, called Mola Salfa, and Wine upon the were wont to tie together to the Number of Victim before he was flain; Macrobius fays, 30 and throw into the Tiber: And this was that the first Sacrifices of the Egyptians had no- done afterwards on the Ides of May. Plutarib thing that was bloody in them, and that when in his Book of Superfition treats of these Sacrithey were even necessitated to receive the Wor- fices offered to Saturn: The Fathers and the thip of Serapu and Saturn, to whom Victims were | Mothers facrificed their own Children and those to be facrificed, they would not allow their that had none bought some: They imposed a Fine upon fuch as could not forbear shedding The most common Victims were Sheep, Tears at so horrible a Sight, piay'd upon Flutes Lamo, Oxen, Cows and Bulls, because these and beat Drums, that so the Cries of those inwere Meas most usual Food: Ovil observes that nocent Victims might not be heard: The same Perjeus facrificed Horses to the Sun; the Greeks Historian in his Questiones Romane, asks, why

Totidem lellas de more bidente s.

uel, ne babeant caudam aculeatam, nec linguam ngram, nec aurem fiffam: And those Bulls were not to be such as had drawn in the Yoak. When the Victim was pitched upon, they gilded his forehead and Horns, especially if they were Bulls, Heifers and Cows:

Et flatuam ante aras aurata fronte juvencum.

Macrobius, L. 1. Saturn. recites an Order of the Senate, whereby the Decemviri at the Sotofacrifice an Ox with gilded Horns, and Two white Goats with gilded forms likewise to Apollo, and a Cow also with gilt Horns to Larona: They adorned their Heads with a Woollen Infula, from whence hung down two Rows of Chaplets with twifted Ribands; and in the middle of the Body a kind of a Stole, that was pretty large, and hung down on both tides : The leffer Victims were only adorned with Bundles of Flowers and andiacroi, &c. Garlands, together with white Tufts or Garlands. The Victims being thus made ready, were brought before the Altar, and this Action Gods in theie Verses, L. 2. Fast. was exprest by the Greek Word a zer, exar, agere, ducere: The Victim was called Agonia, and those that conducted it Agones. The leffer Victims were not lead in a String, but were only conducted to the Place by driving them gently before them; whereas the greater ones were brought in an Halter to the Place of Sacrifice: The Victim was not to ftruggle, or refule to go, for the Refistance made by it, was taken for an ill Augury, the Sacrifice being required to be free: The Victim being brought before the Altar, was examined again and view'd very circumspectly, in order to see whether there was bidden to affift at Sacrifices, viz. The Prophane, any defect in it; and this Action was called Probatio hostiarum & exploratio. Then the Priest being clad in his Sacerdotal Habit, and accompanied with the Sacrificers and other Attendants, Ceremonies preicribed them, of which we have already (poken, began the Sacrifice with making a loud Contession of his Unworthiness, acknowledging himfelf to be guilty of divers Sins, for they would be pleased to grant him his Re-

The Hebrews made also a like general Confession, with this difference, that the Pagans confessed the Frailty of Mankind, and owned their in Battle must not come: The Roman Ladies Faults: but the others confifted in a Confession of the Greatness of God, which was accompanied with Hymns play'd upon Muncal Instruments; Cum Dominum laudare capiffent, & dicere : Confitemini Domino quoniam bonus, quoniam in faculum mijericordia ejus, Paralipom. 2. C. 5.

This Confession being over, the Priest cried aloud, Hoc age, compole your felves and mind your Sacrifice; and presently a kind of an Usher holding a Rod in his Hand, called Commentaculum, went thro the Temple, and made all those withdraw who were not instructed in the Myfteries of R-ligion, or fuch as were excommunicated: For the Cuftom of the Greeks, from whom the Remans borrowed theirs, was that the Prieft coming to the Altar should ask aloud, Tis red n, Who u bere? The People answered, πολλος κ, αγαθοί, Many good Persons. Then the lemnizing of the Ludi spollinares, were ordered Usher or Verger went thro' the Temple, crying, Freds, ends erre Begraot; that is, Away with the Wickell; or elfe, Fras, sads iodi dairpos. Away with the Prophane. The Romans commonly made wie of these Words, Nocentes, profani abfeedite. All those who were driven out of the Temples among the Greeks, were comprehended under these general Words, Bienau, duvintos,

> Ovid comprizes a great many of those who were forbidden to affift at the Mysteries of the Innocui veniant : procul binc, procul impius efto Frater, & in parsus mater acerba fuos : Cui pater est vivax : qui matris digerit annos, Que premit invisam socrus amica nurum. Tantalida fratres abfint, & Jafonn uxor, Et que ruricolu femina rofta dedit : Et foror & Progne, Tereufque duabus iniques, Et quicunque suas per scelus auget opes,

We understand by these Verses in general, that there were two forts of Persons, who were forthat is, such as were not yet instructed in the Worthip of their falle Deities, and those who had committed some enormous Crime, as to kill or firike a Father or Mother : They had fome and being walhed and purified according to the kind of Sacrifices in Greece, whereat it was not allowed Virgins and Slaves to be prefent. The Priest at Cheronea with a Whip in his Hand, flood at the Gate of the Temple of Maruta, and with a loud Voice forbad the Etolian Slaves to which he begged Pardon of the Gods, hoping enter in: Those among the Magi, who had Red that without their having regard thereunto, Spots in their Faces, must never draw near the Altars, as Pliny fays, L. 30. C. 2. no more than those must do among the ancient Germans, who had loft their Shield in a Conflict; fo also among the Sysbians, he that had not killed an Enemy were to affift at the Sacrifices with Vails on.

When prophane and excommunicated Persons were withdrawn, they cried, Favete linguis, or animis, and pascite linguam, to require Silence Ppp2

the Romans had forbid the People of Blatona to offer Humane Sacrifices any more, feeing they had themselves but a few Years before buried two Men and two Women alive, viz. Two I bave got a good Inberitance without being obliged Greeks and as many Gauls? To which he answers, to go the Charge of a private Sacrifice. Foreign Sa-'tis not allowable to facrifice Men to God; but crifices were to named when the Tutelary Gods that it was not the same Thing in respect to the of Cities and conquered Provinces were brought Genii or Damons, whose evil Defigns they thought to avert by fuch Sacrifices. Plutarch remonies. They were offered either for the fays, when Gelon, King of Sicily, had overcome the Caribaginians, he would not grant them a Peace, but upon Condition that they should no longer offer their Children in Sacrifice to Saturn: This barbarous Cuftom was not disused at Rome, according to Pliny, till the Year 657, from the Building thereof. Porphyry in his Second Book concerning Abstinence, makes a long Enumeration of the Places where they formerly offered Humane Sacrifices, viz. Rhodes, Cyprus, Egypt Phanicia, Arabia, Thrace, Asbens, and Megalopolu: And he adds upon the Credit of Pallas the Historian, that the Emperor Adrian did almost abolish these abominable Sacrifices throughout the Empire; and he affures us, that as to Egypt King Amalis was the first who forbad Humane Sacrifices, according to Manetho, and that the Representations of Men made in Wax were subflituted in the room of them. Macrobius fays, that at the Feafts called Compitalia, they facrificed Children to the Lares, and their Mother Mania, because Apollo had commanded that Heads should be offered to them; and that Brutus the Conful, after the Expulsion of the Tarquins, offered the Heads of Garleek and Poppy inftead of those of Children unto them: He says also, that the Pelasgi arriving in Italy, introduced a Cuftom thither of offering Humane Sacrifices to Pluto and Saturn, till fuch time as Hercules prevailed with their Descendants to sacrifice the Effigies of Men made of Clay, called

The Pagans, fays Vigenere, had Three forts of Sacrifices, viz. Publick, Private and Foreign: The Publick ones were performed at the Charge of the Publick for the Good of the State, to render Thanks unto the Gods for some signal Favour, or to pray unto them for averting the Misfortunes and other Calamities wherewith a Feople or City were menaced or afflicted: The Private Sacrifices were made by each Family; of fuch fort were those of the Family of Clodia done for fome particular Persons of it, and at their Charge, whereunto they many times obliged their Heirs. Plautes also makes a Servant named Ergafilm, who had found a Kettle full of Gold, to fay, that Jupiter had fent him so much Riches, without obliging him to offer any Sa-

Ofcilla, Sigilla, to Pluto, and Wax-Tapers to Saturn, inftead of Men; for the Word que fignifies

a Man and a lighted Taper.

crifice.

Sine facris bereditatem fum adeptus effertiffimam.

to Rome, together with their Mysteries and Ce. Benefit of the Living, or Good of the Dead; these last, according to Festus, were called, Hu. mana facra, or bumanum farificium quod mortui causa fiebat: For the Ancients, as the Papifts do now, had their Feaft of the Dead in February, as Cicero fays; Februario menfe, qui tunc extremus anni mensis erat, mortuu parentari volue-

The Matter of which the Sacrifices confifted. were, as before faid, the Fruits of the Earth. or Animals, whose Fiesh and Entrails they sometimes presented to the Gods, and at other times contented themselves to offer them only the Animal Power of the Victims, as Virgil makes Entellus do, who facrificed a Bull to Eryx for the Death of Dares, and to gave Soul for Soul,

(Daretia Hanc tibi, Eryx, meliorem animam pro morte

The Sacrifices varied according to the Diversity of Gods, worshipped by the Ancients; for there were those that were offered to the Cœleftial, Infernal, Marine, Aerial and Terrestrial Gods. to the first of which they facrificed white Victims of an odd Number; to the second, black ones, with a Libation or pure Wine and warm Milk, which were poured into the Gutters with the Victim's Blood; to the third they facrificed black and white ones on the Sca-fide, and threw their Entrails as far as they could into the Water, and poured fome Wine on ;

.... Candensem in littore taurum Constituam ante aras voti reus, extaque salfos Porriciam in fluctus. G vina liquentia fundam:

Fo the fourth they facrificed white Victims, and raifed Atars to them in the fame Manner as to the Cœleftial Gods: To the fifth they only offered Wine and Honey. As for the Gods of the Air, they kindled a Fire upon their Altars where the Body of the Victim was burnt, the same being powder'd with falt Pafte and Incenfe.

In chuing of the Victim, it was required it fhould be found and whole, without any blemish or Imperfection, his Tail was not to be too small at the end, his Tongue not black, nor Ears cleft, as Servius observes upon those Verses in the

Totidem

and Attention during the Sacrifice: The Egyp- Reader. Tu quidem sanda & bumani generis of the same End were wont to expose the pitatrix perpetua, semper fovendis mortalibus mani-Statue of Harpocrates, the God of Silence, whom fica, dulcem marris affellionem miserorum caffin they called Zijahewra. As for the Romans, they tribuis, nec dies, nec quies ulla, ac ne momentes placed the Statue of the Goddels Angeronia upon quidem tenue tuis transcurris beneficiis otiofun; the Altar of Volupia, the said Goddels having qua mari, terraque protegas bommes, & depulsi her Mouth sealed up, to intimate that Men ought with procellis salutarem porrigas dexteram, quasito be attentive both in Body and Mind at the torum etiam inextricabiliter contorta retraffas lieis. Mysteries of Religion, and submit thereunto : In & forsuna tempestates mitigus, & stellarum varies the mean time the Prieft bleft the Water, in or- meatus cobibes. Te superi colunt, observant inferi, der to sprinkle it with the ordinary Ceremonies, tu rotas orbem, luminas Solem, regis Mundum, eal. either to throw the Wood-Ashes into it, that cas Tartarum, tibi respondent fidera, redeunt temhad been used in burning the Sacrifice, or to ex- pora, gaudent Numina, serviunt elementa, tuo nuta tinguish the Tada or Sacrificial Torch therein. Spirant flamina, nutriunt nubila, germinant seni-He first sprinkled the Altars, and then all the Peo. na, crefcunt gramina. Tuam Majestatem perborwith this Luftral Water, while the Chorus of rescunt aves calo meantes, fera montibus errantes Muficians fung Hymns in Honour of the Gods: ferpentes folo launtes, bellue ponto natantes. At epo Then they perfumed the Altars, Statues of the referendu tandibus tuis exilu ingenio, & adhiben-Gods and Victims with Incense, and the Priest die Sacrificies tenuis patrimonio: Nec mibi vocio turning his Face to the East, and laying hold on

The Emperor Antoninus, furnamed Heliogabalus, ordered that the Preface of those Prayers should be addrest to the God Heliogabalus, as Lampridius says in his Life. Domitian would also have them begin with addressing themselves to Pallas, whose Son he called himself, as Philostratus fays: Nevertheless the Romans restored this Honour to Janus and Vesta, which was allowed them from all Antiquity. After this Preface addreft to Fanus and Vefta, the Person that officiated began a long Prayer, which he directed to the God to whom the Sacrifice was made; and afterwards to all the rest of the Gods, whose chief Vertues he recounted, and whom he pray'd to be propitious and favourable to those for whom the Sacrifice was offered, according to the Inftitution of Orpheus, who ordered that in all Prayers they should summarily touch upon the principal Vertues of the Gods, and that at last they flould be entreated to affirt the Empire, Emperors, thief Ministers, particular Persons, and generally to relieve all the Necessities of the Publick. This is that which Virgil, L. 8. Epeid. has religiously observed in the Prayer.

polition: They also offered them Wine and Incense before all the reft.

adding after having recounted his glorious Salve, vera Jouis proles, decus addite Divis, Et nos & tua dexter adi pede facra fecundo.

Actions,

which he makes the Salii put up to Hercules,

Apuleius makes a Prayer to the Goddess Isis. confifting of Thanksgiving, for her having restored unto him his former Shape, and which I shall relate here for the Benefit of the curious ubertas ad dicenda que de tua Majeftate fentio. the Horns of the Altar, read the Prayers out of Jufficit; nec or a mille, linguague totidem, vel indethe Book of Ceremonies, and began them with fift fermonis aterna feries. Ergo quod jolum poteft. Fanus and Vefta, as believing there could be no religiofus quidem, fed proper, alioquin efficere curaaccess had to the other Gods but by their Inter- bo, divinos tuos vultus numenque sandissimum intra pelloris mei secreta conditum perpetuo custodiens imaginabor.

These Prayers were usually made standing, fometimes with a low, and fometimes with a loud Voice, unless it were at the Sacrifices of the Dead, when they were performed fitting:

Multis dum precibus Jovem falutat Stans summos resupinus usque in ungues. Mart. L. 12. Epigr. 78.

And Virgil, L. 9. Eneid.

---- Luco tum fortè parentis Pilumni Turnus sacratá valle fedebat.

There was a kind of an Oration made with the Prayers for the Prosperity of the Emperor and Government, as Apuleius L. 11. of his Golden As informs us, 'Arter, fays he, the Procession was come back to the Temple of the Goddess Is, one of the Priests, called Grammateus, standing up before the Door of the Quire, brought together all the Paffopbori, and getting up to a high Place like a Pulpit, took his Book and read leveral Orations aloud, and made Prayers for the Emperor, Senate, Roman Knights and People, adding some Things by way of Instruction in Religion: Tune ex iis, quem cundi Grammateum vocabant, pro foibus affiftens, cœtu Pajtopborum (qued facro-fanti Collegii nomen est) velut in concionem vocato, ' indidem de sublimi suggestu, de libro, de litteru faustâ voce præfatus Principi magno, Senatuique, Equiti, totique populo, nauticu navibus, &c.

Thefe

Complement, as we find Homer makes Ulyffes 'non my Mafter's Name, who gives his Daughter a Sacrifice to Apollo, whose Displeasure the Greeks have but too much felt, in order to appease him. These Words being over, he delitered her into his Hands, and Chryfes received her: We have also such another Speech in Luden, which he makes Phalaris his Embassador deliver to the Priests at Delphi, as he made them a Preient from him of a brasen Bull, that for Workmanship was a Marter-piece.

As every one came to present his Offering, he went to wash his Hand, in a Place appointed in the Temple for that Purpole, that he might He then commanded the Sacrificer, who asked the better orepare himfelf for the Sacrifice he was to make, and to thank the Gods for being pleafed to accept of the Victims. Laftly, When Hammer or Ax; and prefently another of the the Offering was made the Priest that officiated, Affistants named Popa, thrust a Knife into his perfumed the Victims with Incenfe, and fprinkled them with Luftral Water; and having washed his Hands, and got up again to the Altar, Priest sprinkled the Altar. he prayed to the God whom he presented the Sacrifice to, with a loud Voice, that he would accept of those Offerings, and be pleased with the Villims he went to facrifice to him, for the publick Good, and for fuch and fuch Things in particular : Thus the Prieft Chryfes, in Homer, L.1. Miad, when he had received libigenia, and the other Sacrifices, lift up his Hands to Heaven, and made loud Prayers to Appillo, earnestly befeeching him to pardon the Greeks, and accept of his Petitions.

In the close of the Offertory and Prayer made by the Priefts to the Gods, he came down the Steps of the Altar, and from the Hand of that Paffage in Cicero against Pijo: Ecquil recorone of his Affiftants received the Sacred Pafte | daris cum omni totius provincia pecore compulfo, peltake from Æneid. 2.

Famque dies infanda aderas mihi sacra parari. Et falfa fruges, & circam tempora vitta.

Upon which Servius fays, that the Priest scattered little bits of this Paste upon the Head of the

These Ceremonies being ended the chief Sa- Victim, the Altars where the Sacred Fire burnt, affer being fet down, and the reft of them and Knives, as by way of Confectation. The miding, the Magistrates or private Persons Priest having scattered the Crumbs of this saltnoffered Sacrifice, came before him and pre- ed Paste upon the Head of the Victim, which goted him with the first Fruits and Victime, made the first part of the Consecration; he took and made formetimes a fhort Diffourfe or kind fome Wine in a Veffel called Simpulum, which was a kind of a Cruet; and having tafted it himto, when he presented the High Priest Chrys feif first, and then made his Assistants do the with Iphigenia Agamemnon's Daughter to be ia- fame, to show that they partaked of the Sacrigificed. 'I come to you, said he, in Agamem- fice, he poured it between the Horns of the Vi-Etim, pronouncing these Words of Consecration, Mailus boc vino inferio efto ; that is, Let this Villim be improved and bonoured by this Wine, that is may be the more pleasing to the Gods: I have explained the Word Madus elsewhere, which you may see: This done, they pulled off the Hair from between the Horns of the Victim, and threw them into the Fire, as Virgil fays, > Et summas carpens media inter cornua fetas, Ignibus imponit facris.

him Agon', Shall I strike? To knock down the Victim with a great Blow on the Head with a Throat, while another received the Blood of the Animal, that gushed out, wherewith the Supponunt alii cultros, tepidumque cruorem Sufcipiunt pateru.

Virg.

When the Victim was flain, they flead him, if the same were not a Burnt offering, which was burnt Skin and all: They took the Flesh off of the Head, and then adorning it with Garlands and Flower, faften's it to the Pillars of the Temples, as well as the Skins, as Entigns of Religion, which they carried about in Procession in some publick Calamity; and this we learn from called Mola sasa, that was made of Barley or lium nomine, omnem quasium illum domesticum pa-Wheat Flour, mixed with Salt and Water, which ternunque renovalit? And again from this other he threw upon the Head of the Victim, iprink- in Festus : Pellem habere Hercules fingirur, ur boling a little Wine upon it, and this was called mines cultus antiqui admoneanto: Lugentes quo-Immolatio, quasi mole illatio, being as it were the que diebus ludius in pellibus funt. Not but that Diffusion of this Paste: Mola alfa, says Festus, the Priests oftentimes were the Skins of the vocaur far rollum & fale fparsum, quad co molito Victims, and that others went to fleep upon befite afterganur. Virgit has exprest this Cere-them in the Temples of Afrikapius and Faunus, mony in several parts of his foem; one of which that they might receive favourable Responses in as Virgil Says, L. 7. An. v. 87.

> Et cæsarum ovium sub notte silensi Pellibus incubuit ftratis, fomnofque petivit : Multa modis simulacra videt volitantia miris, Et varias audit voces, fruiturque Deorum

Hic & tum pater ipfe petens responsa Latinus, Centum lanigeras madabat rite bidentes. Atque barum effultus terpo, stratifque jacebat Velleribus.

And Capadox, a Merchant that dealt in Slaves complains in that Comedy of Plauens, entituled, Curculio, that having lain in Afculapius his Temple, he faw that God in his Dream remove far from him, which made him refolve to leave it, as having no hopes left of a Cure, Migrare certu'lt jam nunc è fano foras, Quando A feulapi ita fentio fententiam : Ut qui me nibili faciat, nec falvum velit.

They opened the Victim's Entrails, and after they had circumfreetly view'd them in order to draw good or bad Prelages therefrom, according Litatio, when the Sacrifice was perfected and to the Art of the Annulpices; they floured them accomplished, without any Fault: Among the with Meal, and sprinkled them with Wine, and publick Sacrifices, there was one fort called Stata. made a Present of them to the Gods, reddebant fixed, immovable, which was annually performed ext. Diis, by throwing them into the Fire in on the same Day, and other extraordinary ones fmall bits boiled or parboiled. Thus Alexander named Indida, because they were appointed ex-Neapolitanus, L. 4. C. 17. speaks of it: 'As traordinarily upon some important Occasion: floon as the Entrails were floured over, he put! You'll find thefe Sacrifice defcibed in their Althem into Basons upon the Altars of the Gods, phabetical order or under the Months of the Year. fprinkling them with Wine, and perfuming them with Incense, and then threw them into an Ounce, worth Seven Denarit. the Fire that was upon the Altar. And this made the Entrails to be called Porricie, que in diers, which the Greeks and Romans used, and ara foco ponebantur, Disque porrigebantur: Info- was peculiar to the Gauls, according to the Temuch, that this ancient Form of Speech, porrici- filmony of Varro and Diodorus Siculus: It was as inferre fignified to prefent the Entrails: Ignis, made of Wool, and of a Square Form; they had Tays Solinus, in hanc congeriem adponitur, cum poricias inculerint. They often also sprinkled the Entrails with Oil, as we read, An. 6.

Et solida imponit taurorum viscera flammis, Pingue super oleum fundens ardentibus extis;

And fometimes with Milk and the Blood of the Victim, particularly in the Sacrifices of the Dead; which we learn from Stacius, Theb. L. 6.

Spumantesque mero pateræ verguntur, & atri Sanguinis. & rapti gratiffima cymbia lactts.

The Entrails being burnt, and all the other Ceremonies finished, they believed the Gods to be fully fatisfied, and that they could not fail to and their Vows accomplished, which they exprest by this Verb Litare, that is, all is finish'd, and well done; whereas non Litare on the contrary intimated there was something wanting for the Perfection of the Sacrifice, and that the Gods were not appealed. Suetonius fpeaking of Julius Cafar, says he could not sacrifice one favourable Victim on the Day he was flain in the Senate; Cafar viclimis cafis litare non posuit, that Colloquio, arque imis Acheronta affatur Avernis. (is, says Macrobius, sacrificio fallo placare numen-The Priest afterwards dismift the People with these Words, I lices, which were also made use of at the End of Funeral Solemnities and Come. dies for difmitting the People, as you may fee in Terence and Plausus: The Greeks made use of this Expression upon the same account A acis a prose. and the People answered feliciter: Then they made a Sacred Feath of the Flesh of the offered Victims; an Account of which is given under the Word Epulum.

From what has been faid, you may fee, that the Sacrifices confifted of Four principal Parts; the first of which was called Libatio, or the pouring a little Wine upon the Victim; the fecond Immolatio, when after they had scattered the Crumbs of falted Pafte thereon, they killed it: the third Redditio, when they offered the Entrails to the Gods; and the fourth was called SACROS; Arabian Weights conlifting of SAGUM; a fort of Coat or Habit for Solone for Winter and another for Snmmer.

SALACIA; the Wife of Neptune, the God of the Sea, according to the Poets.

SALAPITIUM; Die magni Salicipplum difertum, Catul. Epigr. 54. Some faid it ought to have been called Jalaputium, others Salpiticium, and some Saliipueum. Vossius in his Comment upon Pomponius M. la, declares himself in favour of Salicippium; but he fortakes it for Sa-Lapicium, and thereupon informs us that Salappita, in the best Glostaries fignifies a Blow or Buffet; and hence it was that the Buffoons, who received a thousand Blows upon their Heads and Faces, in order to divert the Company, were called Salpitones, fulvitones, and falutiones : He took there Words to be derived from the Greek Verb oux mitles, which fignifies to found a Trumper, and that the Buffoons who fuffered themlelves to be buffetted as aforefaid, were called Salpittones, i. e. Trumpeters, because that like Trumpeters they blew out their Cheeks as much as they could, that fo the Blows they received might make the more noise, and afford greater Divertion; from this Remark he deduces the Etymology of Buffoon; for he pretends that the Tide of Buffoon was not given to those, who to ake others laugh, acted and faid a thousand foleries, but upon account among other things, that they furfered themselves to be ftruck on the nce; and to the end that the Blow might make the more noise, they blew out their Cheeks as much as they could.

SALARIA; one of the Gates of old Rome, becalled because Salt was brought thro' it into the City; it was named also Quirinalu, Agonalis and Collina. SALII; they were the Priests of Mars; they wore round Bonnets on their Heads, with Two Corners standing up, and a particoloured Tunick: They also wore a kind of a Coat of Arms, of which nothing could be seen but the Edges, which was a Purple-coloured Band fastned with Copper Buckles, carrying a finall Rod in the Right-hand, and a little Buckler in the Left: These Salii confifted of young Noble Men, of whom there were Two very ancient Colleges in Rome: They began their Ceremonies with Sacrifices, and lo we find a Trivet placed near a Salian upon a Medal, which Trivet was commonly made use of at Sacrifices.

When the Sacrifices were over, they walked along the Streets, one while dancing together, other whiles separately at the Sound of some Wind-mufick; they used a great many Gestures and fet Postures, striking musically upon one anothers Bucklers with their Rods, and finging Hymns in Honour of Janus, Mars, June and Minerua, who were answered by a Chorus of Virgins dreft like themselves, that were made thoile of to affift at that Solemni:y.

Authors give divers Originals to this Word, those who are for having the same to have been inflituted before Romulus, fay, that the Salis were fo called from one Salius of Arcadia whom Æness brought from Mantines into Italy; where he taught the Youth of the Country a fort of Dance which they performed in Arms, called by the Greeks crowners: Critolaus will have it to proceed from one Saon, who transported the Dii Penates from Samothracia to Lavinium, and inflitted this facred Dance; but Varro fays, that the Salii took their Name a Saliando and Saliendo, from the Dances and Capers they made: There Were Two forts of Salii, viz. Selii Palatini, and Collini: The Institution of the first is owing to Numa, according to Livy and Dionysius of Hallicarraffus, who appointed Twelve or them to attend the Service of Mars upon Mount Palarine; the Occasion of this Institution was that the City of Rome being afflicted with a great Plague in Numa's Reign, he made his People believe, that a Brass-shield was sent him from Heaven, as a fure Pledge of the Gods Protection, and Af-Edion to the Romans. He affured them that the Nymph Egeriz and the Muies advised him to keep it carefully, the Fate of the Empire depending upon it; and to the end that it might not be stolen, he caused Vesurius Mammurius to make Eleven more so like it, that the sacred Shield could never be diffinguished from the reft. Thus Numa erected a Colledge of Twelve Priefts taken out of the Patritian Order, to whom he entrusted the Care of those Bucklers, which he laid up in Mars his Temple, and which were carried yearly with Dancing and Capering thro' the City at the Feaft of Mars. This Priefthood was very august in Rome, and officiated by the chief Persons in the Empire, who were assumed into the Number of the Twelve: For we read in History that several Great Captains among the Romans made themselves of the Order of the Salii, such as Appius Claudius, the Emperor Titus, Antoninus and Scipio Africanus, who, Livy lays, left the Army because he was of the Order of the Salii, and that their Festival Day drew near; and this was the Reason that the Army continued for 'ome time incamped at the Hellespons, till the Return of Scipio who staied in some Place in order to perform his Devotion on the Day of the faid Feast. Stativa deinde ad Heliespontum aliquandiu babuerunt, quia dies forte quibus Ancylia movensur, religiosi ad iter inciderant : iidem dies P. Scipionem propiore etiam religione, quia Salius erat, disjunxerant ab exercitu, caufaque & is ipfe moræ erat dum confequeretur.

The Salians called Collini were also to the Number of Twelve instituted by Tullius Hostilius, and all of the Patrician Order; for the faid King fighting against the Fidenates, as Livy fays, and finding he had the Worst of it, made a Vow to Mars that he would increase the Number of the Salii, if he won the Victory, who when he had so done, created Twelve Salians

SALINÆ, Salt houses. Fling says, that Ancus Martius was the first that erected Salthouses near Ostia towards the Tiber's Mouth; Rex Ancus Salinas primus instituit. There were Granaries of Salt at Rome which flood near the Gate called Trigemina.

SALTATIO; a Dance; Lucian in his Dialogue concerning Dancing, lays, 'tis as ancient as the World, and took it's Original with Love; witness, adds he, the various Motions of the Stars and the different Conjunctions of those fixed and wandring Bodies; 'tis from the Motion of the Heavens and their Harmony that this Divine Art took it's Origin, which has been improved in Time: It's laid, that Rbea was the first who took Delight in this Exercise, and that she taught it her Priests both in Creek. and Phrygia; and this Invention was not uteless to them, for by Leaping and Dancing they faved Jupiter's Life, whom his Father intended to. devour, insomuch, that the King of the Heavens owed his Safety to Dancing; but in those Times it was a Military Exercise, which consisted in | since the Time of Augustus. I have not spoken Ariking their Swords and Javelins upon their of the Phrygian Dance, which was done for Shields: Pyrrbus invented the Pyrrbica, which Debauchery, where you might see the Pealants was a Dance performed in Arms: The Lacede- jumping and tumbling about while the Flute monians, after they had learnt this Art of Castor | 'play'd, and the same is a painful and laboriand Pollux; improved it with that Care, that cous Dance, ftill practifed in the Country. they never went to War without dancing to the | SALUS, Livy mentions the Goddess Salus; Flute, insomuch, that it may be said they owed by it was meant the Publick Weal : Ades, Cepart of their Glory to Dancing; and their reris Salutis, de calo talla. Youth accustomed themselves as much to the SANCTUS or SANCUS and SAN Exercise of Dancing as they did to that of Arms, GUS, and SEMO-SANCTUS and FI for a Player upon the Flute fixing himself in DIUS. Ovid informs us, that all these Names the Midft of them, began the Motion with meant one Thing, and that this was a God pecu-Piping and Dancing, and they followed him ma liar to the Sabines, which they communicated king a Thousand warlike Postures, in good order: to the Romans: The same Thing was practised at the Dance called Hormus, which was a Mixture composed of Boys and Girls, wherein the Boys lead the Dance with manly and warlike Postures, and the Girls followed with a gentler and more modeft Pace, with a Delign to compose a Harmony of Strength and Moderation: They had also another Dance which they performed bare-foot, to fav nothing of that which Homer represents in Achilles his Shield, wherein Delalus instructed | ved that he was the first King of the Sabines, the fair Ariadne, nor of the Caperers and great who was communicated to the Romans, he ha-Dancers that went before, who cut dangerous ving been defined after his Death. Varro and Capers: The Thessalians esteemed it so much, Festus believed the Contrary, and that he was that their chief Magistrates borrowed the Name | the same God as Hercules: These are Vario's from it, and called themselves Proorquestres, that | Words: Putabant bunc else Sanstum à Sabina linis, those who lead the Dance, for this Inscripti gua, & Herculem a Graca; and for Festur be on was to be met with under their Statues, as lays: Fit sacrescium Herculi aur Santo, quistiwell as that, To the Honour of fub an one, for licet idem eft Deus. This Contradiction may been valliant in Battel.

Dance, and here they had young Boys, the Chief | very Names of the Gods; and io Stercetius was whereof lead a Dance by the Sound of the Flute called Saturn, and Sanchus Hercules, as Encu and Harp: But what need we speak of the Greeks | was also named Jupiter: Dionysius of Halicarnssince the Indians themselves worship the Sun, Jus shews how the Sabines were originally denot by killing their Hands, but dancing, as if | scended from the Lacedemonians: The Name thereby they meant to imitate the Motion of also of Sabines came from the Greek of Georgia, that admirable Planet, and they have no other colere: Livy likewife mentions the God Sancus: Divine Worship, since that same is performed In old Inscriptions these Words are to be met at Sun-fetting and Riling: The Esbiopians went with, Semoni Sanco Deo Fidio Sacrum. dancing to Battle, and before they let fly their Arrows, which were let in order about their a rich kind of Wear for the Feet made of Heads in the Form of Sun-beams, they leaped Gold, Silk, or some valuable Stuff, and partiand danced to terrifie the Enemy; let us now cularly used by Ladies, confifting of a Sole, go into Egyps, where the Story of Proseus repre- and hollow above the Foot; Terence speaks of fents an excellent Dancer, making a Thousand this Sandal, Usinam tibi commisigari videam sandifferent Postures, and who with his supple Body dalio capus, I wish fhe would firike thee with ber and imitate every thing.

The Three Sorts of noblest Dances, are the of Rome, where Sandals were made. Cordacismus, Syncinnis, and Emmalia, who took their Names from the Satyrs. 'I'll pass by se- the Bodies of poor People, and such as were exeveral other forts of Dances with their Names cuted to be buried, and those who carried the and Authors, fays Lucian, my Design being no other than to shew the Pleasure and Benefit that may be got by this Exercise, especially, Quærebam Nonas Sancto, Fidio-ne referrem, An tibi, Semo Pater; tunc mibi Santtus git Cuicumque ex istis dederis, ego munus babebo; Numina terna fero, sic voluere Cures: Hunc igitur veteres donarunt ade Sabini. Inque Quirinali conftssuere jugo.

St. Augustine L. 18. de Civ. Dei. C.9. beliehaving danced well in Fight, that is, for having be removed in the same manner as that concerning the Father of Picus, which some said They offered no Sacrifice at Delos without a | was Stereetius: They often gave unto Kings the

SANDALIUM, a Sandal, being and Ingenuity of Mind knew how to counterfeit | Sandal. Aulus Gellius call Apollo Sandalarium, because he had a Temple in one of the Streets

SANDAPILA; a Bier, or Coffin to bear Corps were also called Sandapilarii.

SANGUS. See Sandus.

SANITAS; Health, of which the Anci-! ents made a Deity: Paufanias shews us, that the fented like a Roman Lady holding a Serpent cut off in Honour of her; her Temple, as Publius Villor fays, stood in the Sixth Division of the City of Rome, and Domitian crected a little Temple for her (after he had been freed from to Rome) with this Inscription:

SALUTI AUGUSTI.

made to Afculapius under the Form of a Serpent by Minerva, who holds a Cup covered with an Olive-Tree in her Hand, and before her appears Victory, holding a Basket full of Fruit. SARCOPHAGUS and SARCO-PHAGUM: It was a Stone-Tomb, wherein! those Dead were laid, they had no mind to burn. The Word Sarcophagus, which is derived from tus Flish, because at first they used a fort of Stones for the making of Tombs, which quickly confumed the Bodies: The Quarries from whence they dug them were in a City of Troas, named Body to nothing, lave the Teeth, in Forty Days: This Stone was like unto a reddish Pumice-stone, and had, a faltish taste; they made Veisels of it to cure the Gout, into which they put the Feet, not fuffering them to continue there too;

D. M. CUSPIA ÆGLA-LIS HOC SARCO PHAG. APERIRI N. LIC.

To the Manes; Cuspia Æg'alis rests bere ; its not lawful to open this Coffin.

SATURNALIA. See after Sasurnus. SATURNUS; Saturn; all idolacrous Na-Worshipping of the Goddels of Health was very tions in general had a Saturn of their own, as common in Greece. Polita Sunt Deorum signa they had also their Jupiter: Its certain in rethgia, quam filiam Afeulapii fuiffe dicunt: & ipeet to Saturn as well as Jupiter, that the first Minerva, cui itidem Hygia, id eff, Solpita cogno- of all of them was he of Babylon, or Affyria, who mentum. by the first was plainly meant the was no other than Noah, as we shall shew, whole Health of the Body, and by the other that of Son they made to be Jupiter Belus. The Egypthe Mind: He says elsewhere, that there was rians and Phanicians receiving their Religion an Altar for Iason, Venus, Panacer, Health, and as well as their Colonies, and peopling from Aj-Minerva in the Temple of Amphiaraus: lason syria, dignified also their Countries with a Saomes from Iagis Sanatio; and Panacea in turn and Jupiter of their own: The Religion and Greek is the same as Sanatio: They also make Worship of Saturn passed from Egypt and Phaniber to be Afeulapius his Daughter: Pliny in ciainto Greece; and the Greeks likewile framed like manner lays very well, that the Name of a Saturn and Jupiter to themselves, in Imitation Penaces implies the Cure of all Diftempers : of thole of the Eaftern People : At laft the fame The Pagans herein pretended to no more than to Superfitition was carried from Greece into Italy; worthip the Deity that beflowed and preferved and this is that which Terrullian calls post multas Health. The Romans worshipped Health upon expeditiones, post Artica bospitia: For these Mili-Mount Quirinal; by her Statue fine is repre- tary Expeditions confifted in no more, than that Progress made by the Worlhip of Saturn, which crowned with medicinal Herbs in her Right- fuccessively ran thro' all the Provinces from the hand: She was covered with Hair which Women East to the West; and by that Hospitia or Entertainment which Greece gave to Saturn, is meant the long abode which that Religion had in Greece, before it was carried into Italy. Tertullian adds, that the Reason, upon Saturn's landthe Danger he was in upon Vitelius his coming ing in Italy, why he was taken there for the Son of Heaven and Earth, was because they did not know his Descent: As Noab was the Saturn of the Allyrians, and the Original from which all the other Saturns were copied, its not to be wondered that those Things which appertained There is a Medalion in Relidro of Maran Aurelius, whereon is represented a Sacrifice more peculiarly to him, have been attributed to others; for he with the Ark coming out of the Waters of the Deluge, that had drown'd all his Predecessors, gave Men some Pretence to believe, that he had no other Father nor Mother, belides the Heaven and the Earth.

Lastantius was of Opinion, that Saturn being a very potent King, did in order to eternize the Memory and Glory of his Father and Mother, the Greek, lignifies in firsteness of Sence, one that give their Names to the Heaven and Earth as many others did theirs to Rivers and Mountains, from which afterwards they feigned themselves to be descended : Hence 'tis, that Trismegistus makes Saturn to be the Son of Uranus, who was Aum: They had the Virtue to wafte away a a Man that had the same Name as that of Heaven. The same Lastantius, after having refuted the Allegorical xplication given by the Stoicks, concerning the maining of Calum, by his Son Saturn, concludes they were the real Enterprizes of Men against one another; and as to what he favs concerning Saturn's devouring his own Children; he relates out of Eubemerus his History how that Men in Saturn's Days, fed indifferently upon Humane Flesh, which came afterwards to be forbidden by an Edict of Jupiter: The same Sacred miltory of Eubemerus, as recited by La-Stantius, imports that Uranus was the first King upon Earth; and that Titan his Eldeft Son pretending to the Crown after his Death, was how- ! Noah's History has been also applied to Sa. ever perswaded by his Mother and Sisters, to turn; for Noah was the Father of all Manking yield the Empire to Saturn, on Condition that after the Deluge; he was also the King and Au. all Saturn's Male Children should be put to thor of another Golden Age: There were no Death, that so the Empire might return to Tiran | Slaves in the first Age after the Deluge; all the and his Children: They killed Saturn's eldeft Race of Men that were in the World making yet Son, but Jupiter, Neptune and Pluto, and fuch as it were but one numerous Family: As Noab. as were born afterwards, were deliver'd from according to Scripture, was the first who plant-Titan's Cruelty, and brought up in remote ed a Vineyard, and began the Use of Wine: places. Titan coming to understand the News, the Pagans also gave unto Saturn the Glory of took up Arms with his Children the Titanes, made having taught Men the Way to cultivate Vine-War upon Saturn, took him with his Wife Ops, yards and the Earth, and the Uie of the Sickle. and put them in Prison. Jupiter in the mean Plutarch says, Saturn taught Icarus the Use of time was brought up in Crete, from whence Wine, and dreffing the Vineyards. Atheneus, with an Army he came and defeated Titan, de after Berofus, fays, that the Saturnalia were ce. liver'd his Father out of Prison, re-establish'd lebrated at Babylon, as well as in Greece and hahim on his Throne, and then returned again in- ly: In short, all the Ancients observe, that the to Crete: Saturn understanding that his Son had | Saturnalia were Days appointed for Debauchery a mind to dethrone him, was willing to prevent and Drunkenness; as if the Pagans had had a it, and so laid Ambushes for him: Jupiter per- mind to keep in Remembrance the Crunkenness ceiving the Defign, made himself Master of the of Noah, which he unadvitedly fell into, he ha-Empire, by the Expulsion of his Father Saturn, ving not yet tried the Strength of Wine; of who fled, and went and reigned in Italy. This which the Babylonians, as being nigheft, might is the Story as Lactantine has borrowed it from he best informed. Eubemerus. Diodorus Siculus recounts the ancient Tradition of the Egyptians, who would have Sa- his Wife proceeded from the Ocean and Teibrs: zurn to have been married to Rhea his Sifter, and and fo Saturn's Symbol at Rome was a Ship: They to have Ofirm and Ilis by her; or elfe Jupiter and feigned the Ocean to be the Father, and Teibris Juno, of whom Ofiris, Ifis, Typhon, Apollo and Ve- the Mother of Saturn, because he came out of nus were born.

Saturn, according to the Poets, was the Fa- no other than Noab's Ark. ther and King of the Golden Age; that was the Age of Blis wherein Adam lived in the Delights of a Terrestrial Paradice: The Name of Poets have imitated the mistory herein, by fav-Saturn agrees admirably well with the first Man, ing that Saturn had devoured all his Children. who for his Sin went to hide himself, as not da- but Three. ring to appear before God; for Satar in Hebrew fignifies to bide ones felf; whence also tis, that speaking to God Saturn in this manner: the Poets having made Saturn to pass into Italy, gave the Name of Latium to the Country where | fay is true, that you devoured your Children, he landed, and reigned, according to their Relation: And io Saturnalia Tellus and Latium was Wife had not convey'd him away, and put a but the fame Country, these two Names bearing | Stone in his room, which you swallow'd down like the same Signification, tho' the one was Hebrew | a Pill: But when he grew up he dethroned you, and the other Latin. The Poets make Saturn and threw you Head-long into Heli, with all to be the Son of Heaven and Earth; fo Adam was formed of the Earth, and the God of Heaven was he that made him: The Empire of Saturn and the Golden Age ended together; after which out being choaked, or breaking my Teeth? Nei-Saturn applied himself to Agriculture: Adam also, ther did Jupiter disposses me at all, but I have after he had finned, was driven out of the Terreftrial Paradice, and from a King as he was, was reduced to the Condition of a Labourer: Laftly, All prophane Authors, as well Hiftorians as Poets, have recorded, that all Men lived free in the Reign of Saturn, without any mention yet made amongft them of Vaffalage or Servitude. And so during the Saturnalia, or Feasts | incapable to take care of every thing, and to puof Saturn, Servants and Matters eat together; nish the Wicked, whole Number increases daily. and this was a Resemblance of the first Age un- - Benides, I thought it the Duty of a good der Alam.

Plato in his Timaus fays, that Saturn and Rhea the Waters of the Deluge; and this Ship was

As Noab left all Mankind to perish in the Waters of the Deluge, except his Three Sons, the

Lucian in his Saturnalia brings in a Minister

Minister. Do but tell me whether what they and would have done as much by Jupiter, if your those who took your part.

Saturn. Tho' I should have been so cruel as to devour my Children, could I eat a Stone withvoluntarily refigned him the Throne, and am not in Hell, as you fee.

Minister. But what moved you to relinquish your Dominion ?

Saturn. It was because I was Old and Gouty, which has given them occasion to fay, that my Feet were put into Irons; infomuch, that I was Father to part with his Estate to his Children in I'll live at Ease, without having my Head tor- pens upon Earth; its two Houses are Caprimented with a thouland importunate Petitions corn and Aquarius, and its Exaltation is in that are contradictory to each other, to fay no- | Libra. thing of the Trouble I was continually put to by cauting Thunder, Rain, Wind and Hail: Now I live early, and folace my felf with Nettar and Ambrofia, in the Company of Faperus and other Old Men like my felf; without being incumbred with the Affairs of the World, as Jupiter is; for he has no rest any longer than while my Feast lafts, when I re-affume the Empire for some Days, to the End I may not be despised, and to put Men in mind of the Gentleness of my Reign, when Corn grew without fowing, Rivers flowed with Milk, and Fountains with Wine and Honey: All Things were then in common; there were neither Rich nor Poor, none cheated nor betrayed; in flort, it was the Golden Age. Saturn was represented like an old Man grown crooked with Age, pale, fad, and with his Head covered; in his Right Hand he held a Sickle, and a Serpent biting her Tail, and a Child which he endeavoured to devour in his Left. The first Temple that was built to him at Rome, was that of Tarius, King of the Sabines, upon Mons Capitolinus; the lecond was confectated by Tullius Hostilius; and the third dedicated by the Confuls A. Sempronius Atratinus and M. Minutius. Valerius Publicola made it to be the Place where the publick Treasure was kept, and 'twas in this Names to be writ down in the publick Registers they kept the Minutes and Registers of Contracts, and all fuch Actions as Parents did. Those who had recovered their Freedom, were of their Enemies, went to consecrate their himself wore Chains made of A ool, in Commemoration of those which Jupiter his Son put upon him; which Chains at the Saturnalia were joy'd at that time. They facrificed anciently a Man to him ; but Hercules abolished this cruel Cuftom, and instead thereof appointed them to offer little Statues made of Plaister unto him.

Saturn is also one of the Seven Planets, and the farthest from the Earth, who appears to move flower than the rest: Its placed between the Firmament, and the Orbit of Jupiter; and tho' it appears to be the leaft of the Planets, vet 'tis the greatest, for its Diameter contains 97 times that of the Earth : It performs its Revolution in the Zodiac in 29 Years, 157 Days, and 22 rlours. It has two Smellites about it; there is foreething new daily difcovered concerning it: The Attrologers call it the Great Infortune: Its Nature is cold and dry; and its accuhis Life-time, to avoid Quarrels after his Death: | fed of being the Cause of all the Evil that hap-

SATURNALIA; they were Solemn Feafts instituted in Honour of Sasurn, and kept at Rome Decemb. 17, or on the 16 Calends of January, the same lafting a Week: This Feast was inftituted long before the Foundation of Rome. Macrobius, L. 1. Saturn. relates Three Opinions concerning the Original thereof: Some fay, that fanus appointed it by way of Acknowledgment for the Art of Agriculture, which he had learnt of Saturn: Others attribute the Origin thereof to Hercules his Companions, for their having been kept from Robbers by Samon, to whom they put up their Prayers for that Purpose: And lastly, Others maintain that the Pelafgi of Greece landing in the Isle of Delos, learnt of the Oracle that they ought to erect an Altar to Saturn, and celebrate a Feast in Honour of him: This Feaft was therefore inflituted at Rome, according to the Relation of the faid Author, in the Reign of Tullus Hoftilius, after ho had triumphed over the Albans. This Opinion is opposed by Varro, who says Tarquinius Superbus built Saturn a Temple, and that T. Largius the Dictator dedicated the same to the Saturnalia. Livy shews us, that they dedicated a Temple to Saturn, and instituted Saturnalia, Three Years after the Victory which Postbumius Temple that Foreign Embalfadors caused their the Dictator won over the Latins, near the Lake Regillium, which happen'd in the Year 257, in by the general Treasurers: Here also it was that the Consulfhip of Aulus Sempronius, and M. Minutius Augurinus: His consulibus, fays he, Ades Saturno dedicata : Saturnalia, institutus festus dies. This Feast lasted but for one Day at first, dicharg'd out of Prison, or freed from the Hands | and this continued to the Reign of Augustus, who ordered it to continue for three; and afterwards Chains in that Place: The Statue even of Saturn they intermixed the Saturnalia with the Sigillaria, which made the Feaft laft sometimes five, and sometimes seven Days, as Martial says.

Lucian in his Saturnalia brings in Saturn himtaken off, to denote the great Liberty Men en- felf speaking in this manner concerning the said Feaft. 'During my whole Reign, which lafts but for one Week, no publick nor private Bulinels is to be done, but only to drink, ling, play, create imaginary Kings, place Servants with their Mafters at Table, imut them with Soot, or make them leap into the Water with Head foremost, when they do not perform their Duty well. He afterwards recites the Laws of the Saturnalia. They shall do no publick nor private Bunnels during my whole keign; and of all Trades, none but common Cooks, Pastry-Cooks, and the like shall follow their Occupation : All Exercises of Body and Mind shall be banish'd, faving fuch as are for Recreation, and nothing shall be read or recited but what is conformable to the Time and Place: The Rich, Poor, Mafters, Slaves, all fhall be equal; there shall be Q q q 2

neither Disputes, nor Quarrels, Reproaches, In- | C. 10. Satira quidem tota nostra est; for which count of all such as they are minded to treat, their Satyrs ought to be read with Precaution. or ought to fend Prefents to, and for that End lay afide the Tenth part of their Income, withis of nouse to them, in order to make a Prefent of the same to their necessitous Friends. ' After they have on the Eve before cleared the 4 House of all Pollution, and expelled Pride, Ambition, and Covetouineis from thence, in order to facrifice to Sweetness of Temper, Courtesie 'and Liberality, they shall read over the List they have made, and having laid every ones Portion by it felf; they shall towards Night fend their Presents to them by the Hands of I fome trufty Persons, with Orders to take nothing of them, unless a Cup of Drink; and for the furer delivery of the faid Present, mention I shall be made thereof in a Letter writ for that · Purpose: When the Master of the House shall treat his People according to Cuftom, his Friends shall serve at Table with him, and Liberty shall be given them to jeft, provided the Raillery be neatly done, and that he who is Raillied laughs firft.

Thus Slaves had Liberty to fay what they would at this Feaft, and to ridicule their Mafters to their Faces for their Faults, as Horace | Satyrical is adorned with Groves, Caverns, Mounfays, Sat. 7. L. 2.

Age libertate Decembri, Quando ita majores voluerunt, utere, narra.

They facrificed at the Saturnalia bare-headed, contrary to the Cuftom of other Sacrifices.

SATYRI; Satyrs; they were fabulous Demi-Gods among the Pagans, who with the Faunt dancer, who tumbled about a Rope as a Wheel and Sylvani prefide over Forests. They were re. | does round the Axle-tree, and hung by the Feet presented with Horns on their Heads, erected or Neck. Nicephorus Gregoras says, that these Ears, a Tail, Goat's Feet, and hairy all over, forts of Tumblers or Rope-dancers lived in his and the Hair standing an end in their Foreheads: | time at Constantinople. Its thought this Word comes from Sathen, which

SATYRA, or rather SATIRA; a Satyr; in Matters of Law. its a Word that fignifies all manner of Discourse, wherein any Person is reprehended: But a Satyr appertaining to the Publick or Magistrate, that is commonly a Poem that wittily reproves Mens | wrote Acts or Decrees, and gave out Dispatches. Vices. Cafaubon makes a Distinction between Every Magistrate had his Secretary, so that there the Satyrical Poetry of the Greeks, and the Satyr of the Romans, which was peculiar to them- litii, Pratorii, Quafforii: They were not admitfelves only; and this is justified by Quintilian, L.1. Led to the Management of the principal Offices juries, nor Menaces, nay, Men shall not be al- Reason Horace calls it, Gracis intathum carmen. lowed to be fo much as angry: No Accompt a fort of Poetry unknown to the Greeks. See Can-'shall be kept of Income or Expence; no Inven- fabon upon the Word: A Satyr ought to be tory taken of Moveables and Plate used at my lively, pleasant, moral and full of variety; Feaft. The Rich before hand shall take an Ac- wherein Juvenal and Horace excelled, though SCABILLA, SCABELLA, SCA-MILLA, and SCAMELLA; a fort of out being permitted to apply it to any other Castianets, which were like a little Joint-stool. "use under any Pretence whatsoever: They or Foot fool, and which they beat after diffefhall alfolay by their Superfluities, whether the rent ways, with Wooden or Iron Shoes: It was fame be Moveables or Cloaths, and that which a kind of Sandal made of two Soles, between which a Castianet was tied.

SCALE GEMONIE; to which they fastned the Bodies of Criminals after their Execution, and from whence they dragged them with Hooks into the Tiber, after they had expofed them for fome time.

SCELERATA; Porta is underftood : otherwise called the execrable Gate, was one of the Gates of Rome; being fo named from the Misfortune which befell the Three hundred and fix Fabii there.

SCENA; a Scene; the Theater whereon were represented the Dramma, and other publick Shews : According to Visruvius, L. 5. C. 8. there are Three forts of Scenes, viz. the Tragical, Comick and Satyrical: Their Decorations vary, in that the Tragical Scene hath Columns, raised Cornishes, Statues, and such other Ornaments as appertain to a King's Palace: In the Decoration of the Comick Scene are represented private Houses, with their Balconies and cross Bars, like common and ordinary Buildings: The tains, and whatever is represented in Land-

SCENE; by this Word is also meant the Parts of a Drammatick Poem, when a fresh Actor enters upon the Stage, or that one that was thereon, goes off: A Drammatick Poem is divided into Acts, and Acts into Scenes.

SCHOENOBATES; a kind of a Rope-

SCHOLASTICI; those who affifted the in the old Greek fignified a Man's Genital; be- Governours and Intendants of Provinces in the cause the Satyrs were naturally very lascivi- Exercise of their Office, and were as Councelous: They were usually Bacchus his Companions. | lors, who drew up Petitions, and inftrusted them upon it, as Livy fays, before he was first obliged fus Promagister subscrips. by Oath to exercise the Profession of Secretary Notes in writing, infomuch that they writ as fast as one could speak, of which Martial informs us, L. 14. Epigr. 208.

SCRIBA; a Secretary, who was an Officer were Secretaries, whom they called Scribe JEdi-.

Currant verba licet, manus est velocior illu : Nondum lingua, suum dextra peregit opus.

SCRINIUM; it was a Desk or Cubboard to put Papers in, but we may call it an Office or Chamber.

SCRINIUM MEMORIÆ; a Place where Minutes were kept, to put a Person in remembrance of the Prince's Order, to the End he might afterwards dispatch Letters Patents at large for the same: There were 62 Secretaries. who were called Scriniarii Memoria and Memoriales, belonging to this Office; 12 of whom ferved the Chancery; and 7 more named Antiquarii, whose Bunnels it was to transcribe old Books, in order to transmit them to Posterity: The first of these Officers was called Magister Scrinii Memoria, and received a Golden Belt from his Prince at the Time of his Creation.

SCRINIUM EPISTOLARUM; the Office of those who wrote the Emperor's Letters; Augustus Cafar wrote his own Letters, and gave them atterwards to Macenas and Agrippa to correft them, as Dio fays, L. 35. Other Emperors commonly made use of Secretaries, to whom they diffated, or only contented themselves to tell them the Substance of such Things as they should write, and only subscribed underneath Vale with their own Hand.

SCRINIUM LIBELLORUM; the Office of Requests, where the Petitions presentd to the Emperor to beg fome Favour of him, Were kept : In Pancirolus his Notitia Imperii, C.96. we have the Copy of a Petition presented to the Emperor Antoninus Pius, by Arrius Alphius, the Freedman of Arria Fadilla, the Emperor's Mother, importing his begging leave to lay up the Bones of his Wife and Son in a Marble-Coffin, which before he had laid in an Earthen one, till such time as the Place which he had bought to erect a Monument for them, was ready: The Words are these: Cum ante bos dies conjugem & fliem amiferim, & pressus necessitate corpora eorum forcopbago filili commendaverim, donec quietu loem quem emeram adificaretur via Flaminia inter miliare fecundum & vertium euntibus ab urbe parte of the Republick, unless they relinquished their lava, sustodia monumenti Flam. Tymeles Amelosa Profession, as we have an Instance of it in the M. Signii Orgili. Rogo, Domine, permittes mibi Person of Cn. Flavius, a Libertine's Son, who in eodem loco, in marmoreo sarcophago quem mibi was Secretary to an Adilu Curulu, who ha- modo comparavi, ea corpora colligere, ut quando & ving fued for and obtain'd the Office of Adile, ego effe defiero, pariter cum in ponar. The Auswer was opposed therein, and not allowed to enter below was: Decretum fieri placet. Jubentius Cel-

SCRINIUM DISPOSITIONUM, no more: They were called by other Names in was the Office or Chamber where the Orders the Time of the Emperors, viz. Notarii, be and Commands of the Emperor were dispatched, cause they made use of Abbreviations, and short and he that was the chief Officer here was called Comes dispositionum.

SCRINIUM VESTIMENTO-RUM; the Wardrobe where the Emperor's Cloaths were kept.

SCRIPTURA; a Tribute paid for Wood and Pafturage, and secured to him that bid

SCRUPULUS; a Scruple; the leaft of the Weights used by the Ancients, and among the Romans was the 24th part of an Ounce.

SCULPTURA; Sculpture; its an Art, whereby in taking from or adding to some Matter, are form'd all forts of Figures, made of Earth, or Wax, or elfe of Wood, Stones or Mettals. Its very difficult, by reason of the Obscurity of former Ages to find out who were the first Inventors of Sculpture; the Antiquity whereof is apparent to us from the Holy Scriptures, by the Idols of Laban, which Rachel Stole, and the Golden Calf made by the Children of Ijrael in the Wilderness: As to prophane Authors who have written hereof, some will have it, that a Potter of Sicyone, whose Name was Dubitadus, was the first Sculptor; and that his Daughter first began Portraiture, by drawing her Lover's Picture upon the Shadow, which the Light of a Lamp marked upon a Wall: Others maintain that this Art had its Origin in the Isle of Samos, where Ideocus and Theodorus who were the Inventors of it, made some Pieces long before any mention was made of Dibutadus; that Demaratus, the Father of Tarquinius Priscus, was he that brought it into Italy, upon his retiring thither; for having brought Euctrapus and Eusigrammus, who were excellent Artists in this kind, along with him, they communicated the fame more especially to the Tuscans, who applied themselves to it, and went on with it to Perfection; that Tarquin caused one Taurianus afterwards to come thither, who was one of the most famous of them, to make an Earthen Statue of Jupiter, and Four Horses of the same Matter to be placed in the Frontispiece of that God's. Temple: Its also thought, the same Sculptor made a Figure of Hercules, which was for a long time to be seen at Rome, and named upon account of the Matter whereof it was made Hercules of baked Earth.

There

There were several Sculptors in those Times, 1 at this Day there are but very few remaining. both in Greece and Italy, who wrought in Earth : especially of any value. In the Time that Mar-There is mention made of Cakoftenes, an Aibe- cus Scaurus was Edile, as he was obliged by his nian, who made his Name and House famous, Place to provide for what was requisite towards upon account of the many Earthen Figures the publick Rojoycings, he adorned the flately wherewith he adorned it; of Demophiles and Theater, which he erected with 3000 brazen Gorjanus, who were also Painters, and beautified the Temple of the Goddeis Ceres with Pictures and Earthen Images; and fo the Representations of all the Heathen Gods, were at first no otherwife than in Earth and Wood; and 'twas not so much because of the Brittleness of the Matter, and the little Value thereof, as from the Luxury and Riches of People, that they proceeded to | which Lucullus caused to be transported to Rome. make of Marble, and the most precious Mettals: In the mean time how rich foever the Matter was which Sculptors nied, they never laid Earth afide, which they always used to make their | Statue made by Xenoderus after that of Mercu-Models of; and whether they went about to make ry, was also of an extraordinary fize, as being them Statues of Marble, or cast them in Met- 110 Feet high. In the mean time 'tis to be tal, they never undertook these laborious Works, before they had first made a Model of Earth of them; and this without doubt gave Praxiteles about 150 Years, and that then it began infenoccasion to say, that the Art of making Earthen ship to decline; not but that after the said time Figures, was the Mother that as it were brought | there were still some fine Pieces of Workmanship forth the Art of making Marble and Brass Figures; which began not to appear in its Perfecti- fo great a Fancy and exquitite Beauty : Beon, till about 300 Years after the Building of lides the Greek Statues are more effeemed for

Phidias of Athens, who lived at that time, excelled all those that went before him, either in working in Marble, Ivory, or Mettals; but almost always naked, like those who wrestle or quickly after there came up a great Number of perform some other bodily Exercise, wherein excellent Artiffs, who advanced Sculpture to the the Youth of those Times placed all their Glohighest Pitch, it arrived to: For in Sicyone ap- ry, whereas the others are clad or armed, partipear'd Polycletus, whose Figures were admired cularly have the Toga on, which was the greatby all the World, and a Model for all those that eft Mark of Honour among the Romans. fludied the Art. Afterwards Myron came on, who was inimitable in all he did; Lyfippus, whole i they killed the Victims appointed for Sacrifices. Name will live as long as Alexander's, and who alone had the Reputation to cast that Prince his is often used comprehends the Space of 100 Statue in Brass; Praxiteles and Scopes, who made Years compleat, according to Festus. Servins admirable Figures, and the Horfes which are ftill observes that an Age is alto taken for the to be seen at Rome before the Pope's Palace at Space of 30 Years, sometimes for 110 and Monte-Cavallo: This Scopus had Briaxis, Timo- immertimes for 1000: The Ancients divided theus and Leochares for Competitors, who wrought Time into Four Ages, which they called the at the famous Tomb of Maufolus, King of Ca- Golden Age, that is attributed to Samun's ris: Fisodorus, Canachus, Dedalus, Bushireus, Reign, the Silver Age, to that of Jupiter, and Myro's Disciple, Nyceratus, Euphranor, Theodo. the Brazen and Iron Ages, under which they rus. Xenocrates, Phytomachus and Stratonicus Anti- comprehend that of the prefent Time. gonus, who wrote a Treatile concerning his Art. Those excellent Persons, who made the Laccoon, were formerly one of the most solemn Feasts viz. Agefander, Polydorus and Asbenoderus, are all kept at Rome: Several ancient Authors have Three worthy of immortal Praise for such curi- writ concerning it; but their Works being lok, ous Workmanship; and an infinite Number more, we should have remained ignorant of the chief the Names of some of whom have been trans- | Ceremonies thereof, if Zozimus, who lived tomitted to Posterity, and others have perish'd wards the End of the fourth Century, had not with their Works. For, tho' there were fo great taken Care to give us an abridged Account a Number of Statues in Afia, Greece and Italy, thereof, in the Econd Book of his History, and and that in Rome alone, there were more, as was | what he ays thereupon, we find confirmed and exreported, than there were living Persons; yet | plained by some Medals of those Secular Plays still

Statues; and the' L. Mummius and Lucullus brought away a great Number out of Afia and Greece, yet there were ftill above 3000 remaining in Rhodes, as many at Athens, and more at Delphi; but what is most strange, is the Big. nels of the Figures, which those ancient Artiffs had the Courage to undertake: Amongst those there was a Statue of Apollo 30 Cubits high; the Colleffus of Rhodes, made by Gares of Lundos. the Disciple of Lycippus, far exceeded it. Nero's observed, that Sculpture, after Phidias his Time, continued not in any great Perfection but for both in Greece and Italy, tho' not performed with the Excellency of the Work: I-here is a special Difference between them and those of the Romans; in that the greatest part of the first are in being, especially by those of Domisian: The O-1 celebrated being come, they began with a Proriginal therefore of the faid Phys take as follows.

SECESPITA, was the Knife wherewith SECULUM; an Age. This Word which

SECULARES LUDI; Secular Games,

The City of Rome being afflicted with a great plague, the very same Year wherein they expelled the Tarquins, Valerius Publicola, who was crowned with Flowers, and every one having a then Conful, in order to appeale the Wrath of the Gods, ordered them to celebrate this Solemnity, the Ceremonies whereof were found for this Feaft, and as they went into the Temin the Oracles of the Sibylls, which they kept with great Care; 'twas the Year after the Foundation of Rome 245. according to the Calculation of Varro, which is the best and most followed, that is 500 Years before our Saviour's Nativity. These Plays were called Secular, because they were obliged to renew them from Age to Age; that is every 100 Years, according to the most received Opinion; or every 110 Years, as the 15 Officers, called Quindecim-viri, pretended in Auguflus his Time, who at Rome were to look after the Ceremonies of Religion, and by the faid Exquie found a Way to clear themselves before that Emperor, who accused them for not having celebrated the faid Plays at the Time appointed, as you may fee in Father Taffin the lemite's Treatife concerning the Secular Plays: Auguitus other than black Victims offered to them, and having celebrated them under the Confulthip of that in the Night Time, which was then illu-Furnius and Silanus in the Year of Rome 737. the Emperor Claudius would renew them Anno an infinite Number of Lamps lighted upon that 800, because it was the Beginning of a Century : But Domitian without any Respect to Claudius, conformed himself to what Augustus had done, and celebrated them 103 Years after that Prince had done them, that is, in the Year of June. And this we learn from a Medal of Do-Rome 840. Some time before it was published mirian, where the faid imperor powers a Cup over all the Empire, according to ancient Cuftom, That every one might come and fee those Plats, which he never had feen nor never should Harp, and the other upon Two Flutes; a Man again. They opened those Games thus. Towards the Beginning of Harvest, the Emperor, Capitol, and exhorted them to prepare themfelves for fo folemn a Feaft, by purifying both their Bodies and Minds. The like Exhortations were made at the great Feafts, and partimarly at the Mysteries of Ceres Eleusina, who e Plays, as Herodian observes: The Emperor being feated on a Tribunal before a Temple, which was that of Jupiter Capitolinus, gave some Perfumes to be distributed to the People, and thefe Perfumes confifted of Sulphur and Bitumen; the and afterwards distributed them among the People, adding thereunto a little Piece of Fir-wood, him, in order to purific himself: They also Years of Understanding.

. The Days whereon these Plays were to be much Faith, that Julius Casar himself, as Macroceffion, whereat the Priefts of all the Colleges affifted; the Senate and all the Magifirates were present, the People being clad in White, Lawrel in his Hand. As they went along the Streets they fung fome Verses made on Purpose ples and Cross-ways worthipped the Statues of the Gods, which were expoled to view upon Beds of State, and these were called Lettisternia Deorum. They mee in the Temples on the Three following Nights to watch there, and put up their Prayers and Sacrifices, and this was called Pervigilium; and to the end that nothing that was undecent might be committed in these publick Assemblies, the Youth of both Sexes assisted hereat under the Inspection of their Parents, or fome Person at Years of Discretion of their Family, who might be responsible for their Behaviour, as Angustus had ordered it; and because this Feast was chiefly instituted to appeale the Gods of Darkness, that is, Pluto, Proferning, Ceres, the Destinies and Lucina; there were no minated by the Fires made in the Streets and Occasion. They then facrificed a black Bull to Pluto, and a black Cow to Projerpina. On the Morrow during Day-light they offered the like Victims, but fuch as were white, to Jupiter and of Wine upon the Ashes of the Altar: Here you have Two Musitians also, one playing upon the upon his Knees holding a Bull, to which, he that was to facrifice him, whom they called the Viassovereign Pontiff, haranged the People in the ctimary, seemed to give a Blow on the Head with an Ax.

At these Sacrifices they brought the Victims washed and drest with Garlands of Howers, to the Altar, then Orders were given that all prophane Perions should withdraw, and others be Ceremonies were very like those of the Secular lilent, and attentive to what was done. After. this the Pontiff, who was the Emperor himfelf, out a little Flower mixed with Salt upon the Victim's Head and then poured a little Wine on, which he gave to the Affiftants to tafte: Then the Sacrificer presently gave the Victim a great Quindecim-viri received them of the Emperor, Blow on the Head with his Ax, and his Throat being cut at the same Time by the other Officers, they presented his Blood to the grand called Tada: they-lighted it at one End, and Pontiff, who immediately powred it upon the threw some of the said Persume upon it, the Fire of the Altar: This being done, they nar-Smoak whereof every one caused to go round rowly observed the Entrails of the Animal, from the different Disposition and Colour of which gave of the same to Children, who were at the Arufpices drew good or bad Omens; wherein the Romans were so circumspect, and had so

bius fays, at least writ Sixteen Books upon that | which is to be found in the End of his Book of Subject. They afterwards burnt the same En- Epods. It was undoubtedly, the same Day that trails, when they had taken Three Turns round was appointed for the Mystick Dance of the Sali, the Altar, offering this Sacrifice to the God or inflict ted formerly by Numa, econd King of Rome Goddess for whom the same was designed; and we should not have known that this Dance made this they never did but they invoked all the one of the chief Ceremonies of the Secular Plays. other Gods at the same Time, as if they could if we had not learnt it from two Medals, one of do nothing but altogether; they usually refer- Augustus, and the other of Domisian, which were ved the Victim for the Feast which was made; stamped on purpose for these Plays, and upon after the People were difinissed, with these which may be icen the Figure of a Salian, as re-Words, Ilicet, that is, you miy withdraw: These presented by the Ancients: He has a round Bon-Sacrifices being over, they affifted at the pub | net on his Head, ending with two very long lick Plays, which were more particularly confe- Corners; upon his particoloured Tunick, he crated to Apollo and Diana, and went to the wears a kind of a Coat of Arms, of which nothing Theater where Comedies were afted; and to but the Edges is to be ieen, which confifted of the Circus, where they were entertained with Purple Bands faffned with Brass Buckles; he Foot, Horse and Chariot Races: The Athletes holds a small Rod in his Right Hand, and a Buckalso fignalized themselves at Wrestling and o- ler in the Left, in the midst whereof Mineral's ther Exercises: In the Amphitheater they saw Head is to be seen, she being the Goddess chosen the Combats of the Gladiators, and wild Beafts by Domitian to be his Protectres: I hey affifted fight, the last of which were brought thither on the same Day at the Shews, in the same manner purpose from all Parts.

the fecond Night, which they addrest to the Deftinies, and to whom they facrificed a Sheep nies, who diffributed part of the same amongst and a Goat, both black: Next Day such Women as were free and no Slaves, went to the Capitol and other Temples, where they made them on Marble. their Prayers to Jupiter and the other Gods before mentioned: There they fung Hymns, to intreat them to prosper the Empire and People | and the other of them had the same Extent as of Rome, they also prayed for what related to the longest Life of Man, which is that called their own particular Occasions, and among o die's by the Greeks, but Seculum by the Romans. ther things for Ease in Child bearing: The rest In short, this Solemnity contributed very much of the Day was spent in publick Rejoycings, to the Diverting of the Plague, Morality, and

ing Day. Earth, which the Ancients effected as one of among the Sabines was defcended, having a their chief Goddeffes, and adored under diffe- Wood before his Houfe, the tall Trees whereof rent Names; they believed this Animal to be were reduced to Ashes by Thunder, he was the most pleasing Victim they could offer her, troupled that he could not understand the Reaas well because it always looked towards the son of such a Prodigy. In a short Time after, Earth, as by reason, they said, a log former- his Children happening to fail sick of a dangely eat the first Corn that was fowed: This Sacrifice was offered upon the Banks of the Tiber | Remedies could prevail, he had Recourse to the at a Place in Campus Martius, called Terentum, Aruspices, who telling him, that the manner of from the Verb Tero, to uje, because the Bank of the Thunder denoted that the Gods were very the River was there worn away, and as it were angry, he went in the Way of his Duty to apconformed by the Water. On the Day following peale them by Sacrifices; and being both himwhich was the third and laft of the Secular Games, fell and his Wife extreamly concerned for the they had I'wo Conforts of Mutick, one confift. Safety of his Children, or which they had no ing of Boys, and the other of Girls, all of them Hopes, he proftrated himself at the feet of a of the best Families in Rome, and whose Parents Statue of Vesta, making a Tender to that Godwere yet alive; a Circumstance observed, that dets of his own, and their Mother's Life to rethere might be no Occasion administred for deem theirs; then turning his Eyes towards the Mourning and Sadnels at a Feaft, where there Wood that had been burnt, he thought he had should be nothing sound but Joy: They sung an heard a Voice commanding him to go to Taren-Hymn composed on Purpose for the Secular rum, and there give them some of the Water of Plays, we have that extant which was fung in the liber to drink, after he had warmed it upon as on the preceding Days. This Feast being o-They relumed their Prayers and Sacrifices ver, the Emperor gave the Offerings to such Officers, as were to take care of these Ceremothe People. They afterwards recorded these Plays in the publick Registries, and inscribed

SEC

They were called Secular Games, because the Time prescribed between the Celebration of one and much the same as those used the preced- other Epidemical Distempers; and now we will give you the Occasion of the Institution of them. The third Night they facrificed a Hog to the Valefius, from whom the Family of the Valefi rous Diftemper, against which no medicinal Augustus his Time, and composed by Horace, the tire of Pluto and Proferpina's Altar: At these Words he despaired still the more of the I Internal Gods called Manes by the Latins, Valewas a little Town scituated in the farther Part | where he had offered Sacrifices. of lealy; befides he took it for an ill Augury; no longer because of its excessive Heat, he caused the Men to row toward a Place on the Shore, where the Stream was not fo rapid, and having stopped near a Shepherd's Cottage; he came to know of the faid Shepherd that the Name of the Place was Tarentum or Terentum. as well as the City scituate in the Promontory of lapyx: He gave God Thanks for this good News, caused the Water of the Tiber to be warmed upon the Fire he had lighted, and no looner gave it his Children to drink but they fell afleep; and when they a wike, found them- Rome being after that afflifted with Wars and fcription:

TO PLUTO AND PROSERPINA.

found it, after he had offered Victims thereon, der the Confulfhip of Chilo and Libo. and spent the Nights in the Rejoycings prescri-

Lives of his fick Children; for how should he rius from the Word vales which fignifies to be in find the Water of the Tiber at Tarensum, which | Bealth, and Terensinus, in respect to the Place

Sometime after this Adventure, that is, the for him to heat that Water upon the Altar of first Year after the Expulsion of the Tarquins, the Internal Gods: The Arufpices had no better | the City of Rome being afflifted with the Plagne, Opinion of it than he, however they advised Publins Valerius Publicola, who was then Conhim to obey, wherefore he embarked with his ful, freed the People from this Evil, by offer-Children upon the Tiber, and took care to carry | ing in the fame Place a black Ox to Pluto, and Fire along with him, but finding he could do it a black Cow to Proferping, and he caused this Inscript ion to be graven on the same Altar;

> Publius Valerius Publicola bath confe-. crated a Fire to Pluto and Proferpina in Campus Martius; and celebrated Games in Honour of the faid. Gods, for the Deliverance of the People of Rome.

felves well. They told their Father, that while Peftilence in the Fourth Confulfhip of Marcine they were afleep, a Man of an extraordinary Positus, 352 Years after the Foundation there-Size appeared to them, who had an Air all Di- of, the Senate ordered the sibyll's Books to be vice, and commanded them to offer black. Vi- confulted by those whose Business it was: They Stims to Pluto and Projerpina, and to spend answered, that those Evils would be at an end. Three Nights fuccessively in imging and dancing if they did but offer Sacrifices to Pluto and Proto the Honour of those Deities in a Place in Jerpina: They presently fought out the Place Campus Marius, appointed for the exerciting of where the Altar of these Gods was buried, Hories: Vaiefus going about to lay the Foun-found it, and confectated it anew, and they had dations of an Aliar there, had not dug very no fooner finish'd their Sacrifices thereon, but far, but he found one to his Hand with this In- the Romans found themselves freed from the Evils they laboured under: after which they buried the faid Altar again, and the fame is in a certain Place at the End of Campus Martins; but there Sacrifices having been neglected from the Confuithip of Lucius Cenforinus, and Manli-And having then his Doubts fully cleared to us Puelius, and new Misfortunes befalling them him, he facrificed black Victims on the faid Al- in Avgufius his Reign, the faid Prince renew'd tar, and thent Three Nights in this Place as those Plays under the Confulfhip of Lucius Centwas ordered him to do: Now this har had formus, and Caius Sabinus, after Arcius Capito had keen erceled for those Gods upon a remarkable informed them of the Ceremonies they were to Occasion during the War of the Romans against observe thereat, and that the Quindecim-viri, the Albans; when their Armies were just going in whole Custody the Sibyll's Books were, had to engage, all on a sudden there appeared a found out the Place where the Sacrifices and Man with a monftrous Afpect and clad in black Shews ought to be performed. The Emperor Skins, crying out with a loud Voice, I hat Fluto Claudius, after Augustus caused the same Games and Proferpina commanded them before they en- to be celebrated, without any regard had to gged, to fact fice to them under Ground, after the Law, that required they flouid not be perwhich he vanished: The Remans being assoni- formed, but once every Age. Afterwards Drhed at this Apparition, immediately built an mitian not minding what Claudius had done, Altar 20 Foot deep under Ground, and after celebrated them at the full Revolution of ans having facrificed according to Order, they co- Age from the time of Augustus his folemnizing vered ir, to the end no Body but themselves of them: Laftly, Severus affifted by his Sonsi might have Knowledge of it: Valefius having Caracalla and Geta, renewed the fame Games un-bed by the Gods, he was called Manius Valerius are let down in the publick Registers; the He-Torninus: Manius in Commemoration of the ralds went about to invite the People to a Shew tee again but this once : Harvest-time being come a few Days before this Feaft, the Quindecim-viri, whole Bulmels it was to look after the Ceremonies of Religion, fate upon a Tribunal before the Capitol and Apollo's Temple, from whence they distributed Torches of Sulpbur, and Bitumen, to the People which every one used to purific himself with: They gave none to the Slaves, but only to fuch as were free: Afterwards all the People went to the Temples we have mentioned, and to that of Diana upon Mount Aventine; every one of which carried fome Wheat, Barley and Beans thither, and kept the facred Eve there all Night in Honour of the Destinies with a great deal of Company: Lastly, They folemnized this Veaft for Three Days and Three Nights, beginning with offering Sacrifices in Campus Martins upon the Banks of the Tiber in a Place named Terenium: The Gods to whom they offered, were Jupiter, Juno, Apollo, Latona and Diana, as also the Destinies, Lucina, Cores, Physo and Proferpina. The first Night Two Hours after San-let, the Emperor being affifted by the Quidecim-viri, of whom before, facrificed Three Lambs upon Three Altars raifed upon the Banks of the Tiber, and when he had firmikled the Altars with the Victims Blood, he burnt them all whole, during which Time the Muficians who were fet upon an advanced Place, fung an Hymn made for that Purpole: They lighted Fires and Lamps every where, and gave Shews that agreed with those Sacrifices: Those who were to provide for Ceremonies, by way of Recompence receiv'd the first Fruits of the Earth; after some of them had been distributed to all the People : In the Morning they met fate, when they were taking their Augury. in the Capitol, from whence after they had tagrificed the usual Victims, they went to the Theater to celebrate Games there in Honour of the great Magistrates of Romb had a Right to fit Apollo and Diana: On the second Day the Wo- and to be carried. men of Quality went to the Capitol, at the Hour affigned them in the sibyll's Books, and of Thebes, with whom Jupiter was in Love; Juno there facrificed to fupiter, and fung Hymns in being jealous perswaded Semele, whom fupiter his Praife. Laftly, On the third Day, a Com- loved, to lie with him in all his Glory; infomuch pany of Youths of good Birth, to the Num- that the lire of his Thunderholt catching hold ther of 27, and as many young Girls, all whole on the Wainfcot of her Chamber, burnt her: Farents were alive, in fix Chorus's, fung Hymns | All that could be done upon this Occasion, was to in Greek and Latin, and Sacred Songs, for the fave the Child, for the was big, and to take him obtaining all manner of Prosperity to the Cities | hot out of his Mother's Womb, and put him in of Rome. There were moreover many other Jupiter's Thigh, where he flaid his time, and Things done according to the Prescription of was called Bacchus. the Gods, and as long as these Ceremonies were observed, the Roman Empire remained entire; fittuted in Seed-time, in order to pray unto the but to the end you may know the Truth of what | Gods to vouchfafe them a plentiful Harveft. has been faid, I'll here recite the Oracle of | SEMONES; Demi-Gods: Fulgenitus in which they had never seen, and should never I the Tiber. When the Night is come, and that the Sun is fet, then offer Goats and Sheep th the Deftinies 1 afterwards offer proper Sacrifices to Lucina, who prefides over Child-bearing: next facrifice a Hog and a black Sow to the Earth; and this done, offer white Oxen on Fr. piter's Altar : and this must be performed in the Day-time, and not by Night; for those Sacrifices that are made in the Day-time please the Coeleftial Gods; by the same Reason thou 'shall offer to Funo a young Cow that has a good Hide; the like Sacrifices thou shall make to Phabus-Apolio, the Son of Latona, who is also called the Sun; and let the Roman Boys, accompanied with Girls, fing Hymns with a loud Voice in the Sacred Temples, but so that the Girls sing on one fide, and the Boys on the other, and the Parents both of the one and the other must be then alive; let married Women fall upon their Knees before Juno's Altar, and pray that Goddess to give Ear to the publick Vows, and theirs in particular; let every one according to his Ability offer first Fruits to the Gods, to render them propitious, and thefe first Fruits ought to be kept with Care, and they must not forget to distribute some of them to every one that affifts at the Sacrifices; let there be a great Number of People Night and Day at the Hesting-places of the Gods, and there let ferious and diverting Things be agreeably intermix'd : See therefore, O Roman, that these Injunctions be always kept in mind by thee; and thus the Country of Italy, and that of the Latins will always be subject to thy Power.

"immortal Gods, in the Field, that is watered by I quest semi-bonines.

SELLA SOLIDA; a Chair or Seat made of a piece of Wood, wherein the Augurs

SELLA GURUEIS; the Curule Chair, which was adorned with ivory, and on which

SEMELE; the Daughter of Cadmus, King

SEMENTINE FERIÆ; Feafts in-

the Sibylle her left, as others have already done. his Treatife of ancient Words, fays, that the Roman, remember every 110th Year, which | Ancients would have the Semones to be the cer-'is the longest Time of the Duration of a Man's tain Gods, who were not of the Number of the Life; I tay, remember to offer Sacrifice to the | Coeleftial Deiries, but fuch as were Demi-Gods, SENACULA; they were Places where | cheffra; as also at publick Feasts, which were so-

Senator, a Man must be a Citizen of Rome, or of nate. one of the Municipal Cities that had the fame Privileges or Freedom: Refpelt was had to their Manners, Birth and Effate: for a Senator ought to have a Revenue of 4000 Pounds for the Maintenance of his Dignity; but Augustus required he should have 300000 Crowns : Senatorum censum ampliavit, lays Suetonius, ac pro octingintorum millium summa, duodecies H. S. taxavit, supplevirque non babentibus. He was to be at least Thirty Years old before he was made a Sefranchized, and of Persons vet of a meaner Conat the Dignity of Senators; but this was brought about either by Intreague, or the Emperor's at first to the Kings; the Consuls afterwards were invefted with this Power; and laftly, the Cenfors being obliged every five Years to take an Account of them, substituted others in the room of those that were dead, or had been degraded: But in the decaying Time of the Republick, the Emperors arrogated this Power to out a Tongue, themselves, and made as many Senators, and of what Quality they pleafed.

The Number of Senators varied according to various Times: Romulus at first created a Hun- Hence it is that when the Consuls would have dred of them, which he called Patres; and after the Senate meet, they must say, Senatores, quithe Alliance made with the Sabines, increased | bufque in Senatu fententiam dicere licer; and this their Number to a Hundred more. Tarquinius shews the Difference between sensiam verbis Prifcus, according to Livy, or as others will have dicere, and fententiam pedibus ferre, or dicere, it, King Servius added alfoan Hundred, which which appertained to none but the Senatores he named Patres minorum gentium, because they Pedarit. davium, and allowed them the Priviledge to Cenfor, did many times re establish him. affift at the Plays with other Senators in the Or-the Senate of Rome met, of which there were lemnized with Plays and Triumphs. And so of the 300 Senators, the 200 created by Romulus were SENATOR; a Senator. Romulus institu- called Patritii majorum gentium, and the other ted the first Hundred Senators at Rome, which 100 Adletti, or Conscripti, a Name which aftermade up the King's Council: In order to be a wards continued to be given to the whole Se-

Among these Senators, there was some who had a decifive Vote, and spoke their Sentiments in the Matters that were proposed; and others who did no more than follow those Sentiments which to them appear'd most reasonable; and this made them be called Pediarii Senatores, who did not declare their own Opinions, but fided with those whose Opinions they approved of: Qui sensentiam in Senatu non verbis dicerent, fed in alienam sententiam pedibus irent. Aulus Gellius rejects this Interpretation, and feems to follow that of We are not without Inftances of Children af | Q. Baffus, who says in his Commentaries, that those of the Senators who had never bore the dition, and even Strangers, who have arrived Office of Curule-Magistrate, went a foot to the Senate; and for that Reason were called Pedarii Senatores: But Varro pretends, that the Advice Authority. The Choice of Senators belonged of fuch Senators as were last admitted, was not asked, and that they were obliged to espoule some others Opinion: Et qui in postremis scripti erant, he ipeaks of the Lift of Cenfors, non rogabantur fententias, fed quas principes duxerant, in eas descendebant : For which reason Laberius fays, that a Pedarian Senator's Vote was a Head with-

Caput sine linguâ pedaria sententia est.

were not of so noble an Extract as the former. The Senators wore a very large Purple Tu-This Number of 300 senators continued to the nick, with broad Edges called Lati-clavium; from Time of C. Gracebus, Tribune of the People; which the Senators were called Lati-clavii, they who opposing the Nobles, made the Peo- had a Right to fit or be carried in the Curuleple add 300 Roman Knights to the rest, in Chair, to affist at Plays and Shews in the Ororder to counterballance the Number of the 300 chefra, and likewife at leafts and the Banquet Senators: Thus the Number of 600 Senators | confectated to Jupiter in the Capitol. The Cenlafted to the Time of Juliu: Cafar, who being fors took an Account of them every five Years, willing to gratifie a great many brave Men, calling them with a loud Voice; and those whom who had faithfully ferved him in his Wars a- they passed over, were degraded from the Order gainst Pompey; increased the Number to 1000 of Senators, which was called Praterire: But if of all forts of People, without diffinction. But the Person who was passed over was minded to Augustus to purge this Bedy that was in an ill oblige the Censor to tell the Reason of it, he was habit, reduced it to the former Number of 600, under an Obligation to do it, fays Liphus, and and expelled fuch as were most unfit for the then he was degraded with the greater Ignomi-Dignity; and this he did with fo much Mode- ny and Shame; this being called ejicere Senatu. ration, that in order to make those easie whom he | He who was thus degraded had the Remedy of thus reduced, he granted them to wear the Lati- appealing to the People, who in spight of the

SENATUS; the Senate; a Body confift | People, but they were afterwards admitted in: ing of Councellors of State, commonly called The Confuls, Dictators, Tribunes of the Peo-Senators, conftituted to give Advice to those ple, and the Governour of Rome in the Conful's who had the Sovereign Authority vested in Abience, had a Right to call the Senate togethem; they called them Senators, that is, Old ther; which they did in these Words, Quantifau-Men, wherein the Romans imitated the Greets, flum felixque fit, P. Cornel. Cof. edicit fic Senswho called their Senate yepsoize, that is, An tores, quibufque in Senatu fententiam dicere licet, Assembly of Old Men : So when the Athenians conveniant ad XIII. Cal. Jan. They notified the attembled the People to confult about the Place and Day, which was pitched upon some-Affairs of the Publick, the Officers fummoned none but fuch as were Fifty Years old: The E-Esprians and Perfians followed the fame Example after the Hebrews. The Lacedamonians and to Suetonius; and thi stated Assembly was called Carthaginians received none but fuch as were legitimus Senatus; and all the Senators were obli-Sixty Years of Age.

The Senate's Authority in the Republick of Rome was very confiderable; they decided concerning what was to be done in Matters of Peace and War, without faying any thing to the People, to whom the Sentiments of the faid Body were communicated in these Terms, Senatus decrevit, populus juffit. It was the Senace's Right to give the first sudience to Foreign Embassadors, to dispote of Provinces, appoint Triumphs, and receive Letters from the Generals of their Armies concerning the Success of the Republick's Arms. Their Power came fomewhat to be leffened under the Emperors; for Augustus conflituted to himself a Privy-Council, consisting of a certain Number of Senators, with whom he confulted concerning the most important Affairs of State. Tiberius endeavoured by little and little to affirme the Power into his own Hands. Nero on the contrary ordered, that the Senate thould retain their ancient Rights and Priviledges; but we may fay with Tacitus, that all this was but a specious Pretence, wherewith informs us. After which he was obliged to take he was minded to colour his Usurpations. All an Oath, by touching the Altar, and calling the Authors are agreed, that the Senate of Rome, Gods to witness it, that he would give his Opiwas of great Dignity and Authority, but had not nion with Sincerity, and without Flattery: This a full Power, nor an absolute Dominion, they Ceremony was exprest by these Words, Jurehaving none to command, and much less to exe. jurando obstringere Senatum, and from thence cute their Orders, as Dionyfius of Hallicarnassus Came Juratus Senatus, as we read in Tacitus, has well observed; and so we meet with divers Lib. 4. Annal. This being done, the Senators Paffages in Livy to this Purpole; Senatus decre- took their Places when the Conful, or he who vie, populus justir, that is, the Senate bave thought fate as Prefident, proposed both the publick and it good, and the People commanded it : And, in private Affairs, which they were to confult athort, the least Tribune, that opposed the Se- bout, and ended with these Word: P. Conscripti, nate, could obstruct all their Decrees, and the quid fieri places? Senate gave out their Orders to the Confuls and Prætors, no otherwise than if it pleased them, ter into the Senate, but not to give their Opi. | manner: Referimus ad vos P. C. quod fape renions there, unless they were Senators: The Se- tulimus. Imperator est deligendus. Exercisus sine nators Children had also the same Right that Principe diucius stare non potest; and concluded, they might betimes use themselves to the Af- Quare agite P.C. & Printipim dicite: Aut actifairs of the Republick : The Tribunes of the pret exercitus quem elegeriti ; aut fi refutaverit, People at first stood at the Door of the Senate alterum facier. He asked their Opinion, and to know their Deliberations, and to oppose them began with the Highest, and so on to the Low-

f en ita videtur.

times in one, and iometimes in another Place.

The Senate usually met three times a Month. viz. on the Calends, Nones and Ides, according ged to be refent under the Penalty of a Fine: They might be extraordinarily called together any Day in each Month, and this they called Senatus indictus or edictus. These Atlemblies might be held from Morning to Evening in three places in the City appointed for this Purpose, viz. in the Temple of Concord, between that Place and the Capitol, at the Gate Cipena, and in the Temple of Bellona, where they gave Foreign Embaffadors Audience, before they were introduced into the City: There were also a great many more places appointed for this Purpole, as Curia Hoffilia, Pompeia, and Julia, which the Augurs first consecrated, according to Aulus-Gellius and Varro.

The Affembly of the Senate began with a Sacrifice offered to the Gods, but Augustus altered this Custom, and ordered every Senator, to offer a Sacrifice of Wine and Incense upon the Altar of the God, in whose Temple the Senate met, before he took his Seat, or could confult about any Bufinets, as Sueronius in his Life, C.35.

When the Queftion was put about the choosing of an Emperor to succeed Aurelian, the Senate having met in Curia Pompilia, Cornificius Gorall the great Magistrates had a Right to en- dianus the Consul proposed the Thing in this in case they were contrary to the Rights of the left: This Method was not always observed; for sometimes they asked the Opinion of one the Year, if you reckon from the Vernal Equiconditum est Senarûs consultum.

which required feveral Opinions to be given, they debated each of them in particular, dividebatur fententia: When any Butiness was determined by a Plurality of Voices; the Conful pronounced the Decree of the Senate in thele Words:

S. C. A.

By these Three Letters they meant Senzius-Confulti Authoritates, the usual Title of all the Decrees of the Senate. Pridie Kalend. Odobru in ale Apolinia scribendo adfuerunt L. Domitius, Cn. filius, Anobarbus, Q. Cacilius, Qu. F. Metellus, Pius Scipio, &c. Quod Marcellus Conful. V. F. (i. e. verba fecit) de Provincia Consularibus. D. E. R. I. C. (that is, de ea re its censuerunt) uti L. Paulus, C. Marcellus Coff. cum Magiad Senatum referrent, &c. and after having ex-Name underneath; Huic Sen nûs-confulto interwas ordered in the Contul hip of L. Valerius and brated a Feast catted Meditrinalia. M. Horatius, that the Senate's Decrees should them up in the Armories called Tabularia.

SENECA; a Philotoper, Nero's Præceptor | Ufe. and Governour of the ampire during his Minority: This Emperor put him to Death, as fuspetting him to have a Hand in Pilo's Conspiracy. He died by opening his Veins and bleeding to SENTINUS DEUS; a God who gives Thought to an Infant in his Mother's Womb. according to the Fable.

SEPTA; Inclosures or Rails made of Boards thro' which they went in to give their Votes in the Affemblies of the Romans.

and then of another, without any regard had nox, and the Ninth, if you begin with Fanuary; to their Quality; these Votes were given either they celebrated divers Feafts at Rome in this Viva voce, or only by holding up the Hand, or Month, such as the Dionysiaqui or the Vintages; elfe by separating into two Parties; and this is the great Circenfian Games, the Dedication of comprehended by Flavius Vopifeus in a fingle the Capitol, Ge. See Calendarium. They would Paffage of Aurelian's Life: Polt bec, fays he, in- have given the Names of divers Roman Empeterrogati plerique Senatores sententias dixerunt; rors to this Month, the Senate would have had deinde aliu minus porrigentibus, aliu pedibus in it called Tiberius in Honour of the Emperor Ti-Cententias cuntibus : plerifque verbo confentientibus berius, as Suetonius in his Lite informs us, C. 26. Domitian named it Germanicus, according to the When the Debate contained feveral Heads, Authority of the same Author. They gave it the Name of Antoninus, in Honour of the Memory of Antoninus Pius, as Julius Capitolinus relates in his Life: The Emperor Commodus named it Herculeus or Hercules, as Herodian favs: And laftly, the Emperor Tacisus would have it called Tacirus after his own Name, as Vopifcus fays; but for all thefe, it has always retained the Name of September, given it by Numa. This Month was under Vulcan's Protection: On the 1st Day of it there was a Feast celebrated in Honour of Neptune; the 2d Day was remarkable for Augustus his Victory over Aniony and Cleopatra in the Fight of Adium. On the 4th the Roman Games were celebrated, which lafted Eight Days. The Eighth was remarkable for the taking of Ferufalem by Vespatian. The 13th stratum inissent, &c. de Consularibus Provincia the Prætor drove the Nail into the Wall of Minerva's femple, thereby to denote the Numplained the Matter in Debate, and the Senate's ber of the Years of the Roman Empire, Writing Resolution, he adds, Si qui buic Senatus-consulto being not frequently used; but afterwards the Ceimercesferit, Senatui placere audoritatem perferibi, remony of driving the Nail was applied to other & de care ad Senasum populum ne referri. After Uses, especially to make the Plague cease, and which if any one opposed it, they wrote his for that end they constituted a Dictator. On the 14th there was a Cavalcade of Horses, in order effittalu. Austoritatem or austoritates perferibere, to try them, which they called Equiria. On is to register the Names of those who have a the 20th Romulus his Birth-day was celebrated. greed to the Decree, and caused it to be regi- On the 23d that of Augustus by the Roman fred: The Confuls at first carried the Minutes | Knights, and the same latted Two whole Days: of the Decrees to their own Houses, but because I he 25th was dedicated to Venus: The 20th of the Alterations fometimes made therein, it they prepared a Banquet for Minerva, and cele-

SEPTIMIANA PORTA; it was one be laid up in the Temple of Ceres under the Cu- of the Gates of Rome between the Tiber and the flody of the Adiles; and at last the Censors car | fanitulum, being so named from Septimius Seried them into the Temple of Liberty, putting verus, according to Spartian in his Life, where he caused Baths to be built for the Publick:

> SEPTIMONTIUM, the Seven Mountains of the City of Rome, whereon they celebrated a Feaft called Septimontium.

SEPTIZONIUM; They were Baths built by Septimius Severus on the other Side of the Tiber, on Seven Rows of Pillars.

SEPTUNX; Seven Ounces of the Weights or a Roman Pound.

SEPULLCRA. See Sepulturas

SEPULTUR E; Burvings; the Pagans always had a Regard to the Care that was taken SEPTEMBER. The Seventh Month of or Sepulcres, as a Religious Duty grounded upon the Fear of God, and the Belief of the Soul's 1 of those who had suffered Punishment by Death. Immortality; and the Ancients accounted the the Romans being of Opinion, that the Souls of Buryings of the Dead to be a Thing to holy fuch Bodies as were not buried, wandered up and inviolable that they attributed the original and down for an Hundred Years, as not being Invention thereof to one of the Gods, viz. to able to get into the Elifean Fields: Hecoming him whom the Greeks called Pluto, and the Ro- quam cernis, inops, inhumataque turba eft. Virg. mans Du or Summanus. Priam in Homer's I- An. 6. In the mean time, Suctonius in the liads asks and obtains a Cessation of Arms for Life of Augustus says the Contrary: Uni sepultuburying the Dead on both Sides; and in ano- ram precanti respondisse dicitur, jam illum in voluther Place Jupiter interposed and sent Apollo to crum potestatem fore: When a Prisoner of War procure Sarpedon to be buried : Iris also is ient | pray'd for Leave that he might be buried ; the by the Gods to ftir up Achilles to fight, and to Answer made him was, that he should quickly pay this Duty to Patroclus: There promifed become Birds Food; and Horace fays, Non bo-Achilles the would take care his Body should not minem occidifti, non passes in cruce corvos; thou corrupt, though he lay unburied a whole Year. has killed no Man, therefore thou shall not be Homer grounds this upon the Ceremonies of the Egyptians; for the People of Memphis did not bury their Dead till after they had examined ral Monuments. They were Piaces appointed into the Deceased's Lite, and if they found him to have been an ill Liver, Burial was denied the Bones and Ashes of the Bodies which they him: This Refusal was the Cause why they would not allow the Bodies of the Wicked to be carried to the other Side of the River and Marish, near unto which lay the Graves of the Just. And hence it was, that to be deprived of a Burial, was a kind of an Excommunication by which the Soul was excluded from the Elifian Fields, and loaded with Infamy: In speaking of these Burials I make use of the Terms in Fashion now-a-days, and fuch as have been used long before Homer; for in those ancient Times they put the Bodies into the Earth, after they had inhalmed them, as we do now. The most ancient Books of the Hiftory of the Old Testament bear witness hereof, and furnish us with divers Examples in the Persons of Abraham, Isac, 31cob and Joseph; but in the Book of Kings it It was not enough that the most famous Per-Bodies. It was about Homer's Time: Thus in his Iliads and Odysses you find all the Bodies of the Dead confumed with Fire: The Terms of Interring and Burying have been always commonly used, either because the same could not be abolished, or because there was still something remaining either of Bones or Ashes which the Fire confumed not, and which they interred in Urns. The Places appointed for Burvings grew to be facred, and were reckoned in the Number of holy and unalienable Things: They anciently rected for him. allowed a Burial to thole who were put to Death for their Offences. Josephus, L. a. C. 6. of the Antiquities of the Jews, against Appian L. 2. fays, that Moses commanded those to be Crows Meat.

SEPULCRA; Sepulchres, Tombs, Funewherein to bury the Bodies of the Deceased, or burned. The Pyramids were built for Sepulcres to the Kings of Egypt: Those who violated the Sepulcres of the Dead, or fearched them, were hated by all Nations, and very feverly punifhed: It was in order to comfort themselves upon Account of their Mortal State, that the Egyptians built them Eternal Houses, as they were wont to call those Sepulchres, whereas they honoured their Pallaces and Mantion Houses only with the Title of Inns, in Regard to the fhort Time we dwell here on Earth in Comparison of the Stay we make in the Grave.

Perpetuas fine fine domos mors incolit atra. Aternosque levis possidet umbra Lares.

feems as if there were fome Examples of a con- fons among the Heathens bore witness by their trary Custom that was introduced of burning the | Conduct, that Vanity was the chief Spring of their Actions, without they also made the fame to survive after their Deaths; the Mausoleums, Obelifques, and stately Monuments erefted by them are Eternal Proofs thereof; 'It was a fine Thing, faid a Queen, in Herodorus his Hiftory, to be honoured after her Death with a magnificent Monument which should be a Testimony of our Glory to Posterity. Varro speaks of a Barber whose Name was Licinus, that had the Ambition to have a Marble Tombe-

> Marmoreo, Licinus tumulo jacet; & Cato, parvo; Pompeius nullo: Credimus effe Deos.

buried who had suffered Death according to the Cestius his Pyramid which is still in being at Laws. The Romans practifed the same Thing: Rome, and which had within it a Room painted Pilne gave Leave to take down the Body of by a very good Master among the Ancients, is the Son of God, and to lay it in a Tomo, tho' only the Tomb of a private Person. Persons he were put to Death as a Person guilty of Trea- of Quality had their burying Vaults, wherein ton. The Emperors Dioclesian and Maximinian they placed the Ashes of their Ancestors, and sordered that they should not hinder the burying formerly there was such an one at Nismes with no longer bury their Dead within the City, the | who were put to Death by the I mperors. fame being expresly forbidden by the Law of the by a particular Order granted Liberty to be bu a burning Torch over the Burying place, which was prejently taken off, in order to shew they had a Priviledge to bury there, but they voluntarily diverted themselves of that Honour, and carried their dead Bodies to the Burying-place they had in the Country of Velia; those Persons also enjoy'd the same Priviledge, who had done any considerable Service for the Commonwealth, or triumphed over the Enemies of the Empire: The Vertal Virgins, as well as the Emperors, had a Right to be buried there; but otherwise besides the Three forts of Persons now mentioned, we do not find in History that any other was buried in the City. The Emperor Adrian laid a Fine of Four Pieces of Gold upon those that buried within the City, and extended the Penalty to the very Magistrates that did allow it; he did moreover injoin, as Ulpian the Lawyer lays, that the Burying-place thould be forfeited and held prophane, and that the Body or A hes of him that was buried there should be taken up. I his Edict was renewed by the Emperors Dioclesian and Maximinian in the Year of Rome 1012. and of our Redemption 290. on the 28th of Sep-

They built Burying-places upon the most fre quented High-ways, as upon the Road to Brun dufium, called via Appia; upon via Flaminia or Latina, whereon frood the Burying-places of the Calarini, Scipio's, Servilii and Marcelli; and this with an Intent to put Paffengers in mind of their Mortal State, and to excite them to imitate the Vertues of those great Men, who were reprefented upon those stately Tombs, or in the In-Eriptions on them. Agenu Urbious mentions after his Death: Wherefore 'tis very probable

a rich Pavement of inlaid Work, that had Ni- | fome other Places in the Suburbs, that were used thes round its Walls, in each of which there were for Sepulcres, one of which was named Culina, Rows of Utns of gilt Glass full of Ashes. The wherein the Poor and Slaves were buried, ano-Romans after the Expulsion of their Kings did ther Seftertium, where their Bodies were laid

There were some Burying-places belonging 12 Tables, In urbe ne sepelito ne-ve urito, in or- to certain Families, and others Hereditary : der to prevent an Infection which the buried | Those belonging to certain Families were such Corps might occasion in so hot a Climate as Italy, as a Person caused to be built for himself and all and also to avoid Fires, as it happened at the Fu- his Family, that is, his Children and near Relaneral Solemnities of Clodius, who was burnt in the tions, and also his Freed men: Hereditary Se-Place of the Rollra, for the Fire carched hold or pulcres were those which the Testator appointthe Palace, and burnt all the Front looking to- ed for himfelf and his Heirs, or acquired by wards the Place with leveral neighbouring Right of Inheritance: Persons might reserve Houses. Altho' the Laws of the 12 Tables for unto themselves a particular Burying-place, bad the burying of any Body within the City where no other had been laid; they could also Walls, yet there were some Romans who had that by Will hinder any of their Heirs to be interred Priviledge both before and after the making in the Burying-place belonging to their Family; of the faid Law, as the Family of the Claudii, and when they were minded to fhew that it was who had a Burying-place in the Capitol, fo had not allowed an Heir to be buried in a Sepulchre, also Valerius Publicola and Postbumius Tuberius, to they interibed these Letters upon it, which are whom and their Descendants the People of Rome Still to be met with in a great many Places. H. M. H. N. S. that is, Hoc monumensum beried within the City: Indeed Plutarch writes, redes non fequitur, or thefe, H. M. ad H. N. that in his Time they interred none there of TRANS. that is, Hoc monumentum ad beredes Publicola's Race, they thinking it enough to put non transit: The Right of Burying here does not descend unto the Heir: They had also another fort of a Burying place which they called by a Greek Word zeroragior, which fignifies a Sepulchre made in Honour of fome Person, and wherein his Body is not laid, the Use of these empty Sepulchres came up from a Superfitious Opinion the Ancients entertained, that the Souls of those whose Bodies were not buried, wandered by the Sides of the Rivers of Hell for an Hundred Years, and could not pass over. They first made a Tomb of Turf, which they called Injectio gleba: After which they practifed the fame Ceremonies, as if the Corps were actually there. Thus Virgil, in L. 6. makes the Soul of Deiphobus pais over to Charon, tho' Aneas had erected him no more than a Centraphium, or empty Tomb. Succonius in the Life of the Emperor Claudius calls them Honorary Tombs; and they were inscribed with these Words, Ob Honorem, or Memoria; whereas on others where they depolited their Ashes, these Letters were put, D. M. S. in order to shew they were dedicated to the Manes: When the Words Tacito nomine were added, it was to intimate that the Ashes which were inclosed in it, were declared infamous for some Crime or other, and buried in a By-place, by the Emperor or chief Magistrate's

SERAPIS; the God of the Egyptians: Some derive the Word from Sara and Apis, as Julius Masernas: Its not likely it should come from the Greek gupes, Apis, i. e. Loculus Apis, as if it were the Tomb wherein the Ox Opis was embalmed the Word must be derived from Ofirapie, by cut- | because it was believed Scrapis taught Men the ting off the first Letter : For the Learned are | Use of Measures, or because he afforded Men Aalmost agreed, that Ofiris and Apis were but one bundance of Fruit by the Help of the Nile, whose and the same Deity; or else Serapis comes from Sor Apis; for Sor fignifies an Ox; as if they should say, Joseph the Father of Egypt; which is fymbolically fignified by an Ox: Sor or Sar does also fignifie a Prince: Sara is the same as Dominari: Nothing agrees better with fofeph's Character, than to be the Father, Nourisher, and Ruler of Egypt. Tacitus, L. 4. Hift. fays, truly enough, that Ptolomy the Son of Lagus was he who fent to feek for the Statue of Scrapis to Synope, a City in Pontus, in order to fet it up in Alexandria; from which Scaliger concludes that Serapis was a Foreign Deity. Clemens Alexandrinus repeats what Tacitus ia: 3, with some Variation of Circumstances; but he adds, that the Statue which was fent by the People of Synope, was placed by Ptolomy upon the Promontory of Rucois, where a Temple of Serapis stood before; from whence 'tis concluded against Vollius, that if there was a Temple of Serapis before in the faid Place, it was not then the first Time that they began to worthip him in Egypt; Tacitus himfelt agrees thereunto by giving the same Testimony as Clemens Alexandrinus does, that there flood a Temple of Serapis and Isis in the same Place where they built one for the new-brought

Alrian in his Return from Alexandria brought to Rome the Worship of Serapis and Iss, who were celebrated Deities among the Egyptians, to whom doubtle's he promised to erect Altars when he arrived at Rome; In a Medal we have of his, Serapis holds out his Hand to him and promifes him his Protection; and Ifis iwears by the Brazen Timbrel, that the would accomplish his De-

Microbius fays, the Egyptians ever excluded Smun and Serapis from their Temples, because ones own Hand, or of Merchants who dealt in they offered no other to them than bloody Sacri- them, and fold them in Fairs and Markets. They fices, to which they had a ftrange Avertion in all | used | three forts of Ceremonies in the Sale of their Religious Worthin; but that after Alexan- them, for they fold them either fub baff & fub der's Death, their King Prolomy forced them to corona, or fub Pileo: Sub bafta, to the highest receive those Two Deities in Imitation of the and last Bidder, by sticking a Spear in the Earth; People of Alexandria; the Egyptians yielded to jub corma, when they put a Garland or Crown Necessary; but they fill retained Marks of their of Flowers upon their Heads like a Nosegay upold Avertion, tince they would not allow of thefe on the Ear; fub Pileo, when they put a Capon new Temples and new Worthip, within the Walls their Heads, that Notice might be taken of of their City: Paufanias tays, it was King Pto- them, and the Sellers not be colliged to warrant long that periwaded the Athenians, to erect a them. They wore a Writing about their Necks, Temple to Serapis, who had a very magnificent | wherein their good and bad Qualities were conone at Alexandria, but the most ancient stood at I tain'd, also their State of Health, or Infirmities, Memphis, into which the Priefts themselves never their Unefulness and Faults, according to Aulus entred, uniels it were when they buried the Gellius. Titulus fervorum fingulorum ut feriprus Ox Apis.

The God Serapis was usually represented by vitigue cuique fiet. a kind of a Batket upon the Head, which Macrobius fays, tignified the Highth of the Sun. Sui- Crowns upon their Heads, and thence comes the Overflowings made Egrpt fruitful. Some are of Opinion that the Buildel was attributed to this God, in Commemoration of Joseph, who faved Egypt from Famine, by the Stores of Corn he took care to lay up during the Seven Years Plenty, as the holy Scriptures inform us.

SERPENS, a Serpent, an Animal worthipped by the Heathens; they kept Serpents in Baskers made or Bullrushes or Ozier Twigs. which they confectated to Bacchus, Ceres and Proferpina: Epiphanius in his first Book contra Herefes, speaks of a fort of Hereticks called Ophita, who in their Temples kept a Serpent in a Cheft. worthipped and killed it, and ted it with Bread: The Egyptians kept one of them in their Temples, and especially in those or Serapis and Ifis: Ajaulapius, the God of Phytick was worthinged under the Form of a great Serpent, and Fustin Martyr, who had been a Pagan, upbraiding them with their Superstitions, fays, You represent next unto those whom you account Gods a Serpent, as a Thing that is very mysterious. Ckmens Alexandrinus in the Celebration of the Bacchanalia lays, that thote who affifted thereat. placed Serpents round their Bodies, and beimeared their Faces with the Blood of the Hegoats which were facrificed to that unclean

SERVUS, a Slave, one that is brought under his Mafter's Power whether by Bi. th or War. The Riches of the Romans counfied in Slaves: There were Three Ways of having Slaves, either when they bought them with the Booty, taken from the Enemy, diffinct from the Share referved for the Publick, or of those who took them Priioners in War, whom they properly called Mancipia, quasi manu capta, taken with sies curato; ita us intelligi recle possis quis morbi,

Thole who were taken in War and fold, wore de and Rufinus call it a Buihel or Corn-measure, | Phrase, jub coronis venere. Those Siaves which were brought from beyond Sea to be fold, had their Feet rubbed with Chalk, and so they called them Cretati. The Slaves were fo entirely fubreled to their Mafters, that they had Power of carzorres. Life and Death over them, might kill them and make them fuffer all imaginable Torments. In the mean time Succonius gives us an Account of the Edicts of some Emperors, which leffened this Power in Masters over their flouck bim on the Head, whom he made free, fay-Slaves, as that of Claudius, who ordered that in ing, we do declare this Man bere prefent to be free, case Slaves falling fick, came to be fortaken by their Masters in the Isle of Esculapius, they were be the Master, who taking his Slave by the declared free if they recovered; and that of the Hand, faid thele Words, Hunc bominem liberum Emperor Adrian, which prohibited Mafters to effe volo. They also give us an Account of anokill their Slaves any more.

Slaveswere madefree, and obtained their Liberty divers ways: Their Mafters many times granted them Freedom, and many affranchised them, when they had affectionately and faithfully ferved them ; as Simon does in Terence, ___ Feci è servout esses libertus mibi, Propierea quod ferviebas liberaliter.

They sometimes purchased their Liberty with the Money they faved or got by their Labour, for they had a Peculium apart; and this is also juflified by Terence;

Quod ille unciatim vix demenso de suo Suum defraudans genium, comparsit mifer, Id illa univerfum abriptet,

All that which a poor Slave took the Pains to gather Penny by Penny, by sparing it out of his Belly, and from what was allowed him for his daily Suftenance, this Women ftole at once. Slaves had formerly Four Bushels of Corn alloweda Month for their Subliftance, of which they were allowed to spare as much as they pleased, and make it their own, and this was called Peculium. When the Mafters had committed any Crime that was punishable by Law, they granteitheir Slaves their Liberty, and io made them Citizens of Rome, for Fear they should be tortured, and brought Witnesses against them. For itwas not lawful to put a Roman Citizen upon the Wrack: There were tome who affranchifed their Slaves out of Covetouineis in the Time of the Emperors, that to they might participate of the Prince's Liberality, who bestowed somethat upon every one of the People; this Freedom was usually granted them before the Prætor at Rome, and before the Procontul in the Provinces with a certain form of Speech and a Switch alled Vindid: wherewith they struck them. Cir. L. 3. of his Topicks, speaks of it in this manner: The Vindida is a small Switch which the Prater lays upon the Head of the Slave he is about to make free, and pronounces certain Words, which are to be teen in a Greek Manuknpt, in the French King's Library.

Berdinta n jacd @ uso is à appur no πραίτως την τε έλευθερεμένε κεραλήν έπαιον

PAMEN TON HAPONTA ANO-POHON EINAI EAET OEPON KAI HOAITHN POMAION.

Vindicta is a Rod with which the Magistrate and a Citizen of Rome. Festus will have it to ther Form used by the Prator, who said, Aio te jure Quirisium liberum effe; and in pronouncing of the faid Words he ftruck the Slave with a Switch, and gave him a turn round, which vas called Versigo, from whence Perfeustays, Una Quirisem versigo facit.

They also affranchized Slaves by Will, or upon fome fudden and fevere War, when they were necessitated to arm their Slaves for the Defence of the Commonwealth: But this Freedom they did not obtain till they had fignalized themselves by some considerable Action; this was called fervos ad pileum vocare: Those who were made free, were called Liberti, and their Children Libertini: The Slaves were commonly skilled in Arts and Sciences, and they conferred divers Imploys on them, as the Tutoring of Children. &c.

SÉRVUS AB EPHEMERIDE; a Shave, whose Business it was to consult the Roman Calendar, and acquaint his Mafter with the Days of the Calends, Nones and Ides.

SERVUS AB EPISTOLIS; was one who wrote his Mafter's Letters, who dictated

SERVUS à MANU, or AMANUEN-SIS, and SERVUS AD MANUM; a Slave that was ready to do, and undertake any

SERVUS à PEDIBUS; a Footman or Lacquey, who a foot carried his Mafter's Or-

ACTORES SERVI; Stewards of the PROCURATOR SERVUS; he who had the Care of his Mafter's Business upon

CELLARIUS SERVUS; the But-

DISPENSATOR SERVUS; the Home-Steward, that buys and pays-NEGOTIATORES SERVI; those who traded or trafficked.

NUTRITII SERVI; those whose Buness it was to nurse the Children of a Family in their Infancy.

MEDICI SERVI: Slaves who underflood and practifed Phytick, according to Suetonius in Caligula's Life : Mitto tibi prætereà unum è servis meis medicum; I also send you one of my Coursers, or others who end-avoured to injure Slaves who is a Phytician.

SILENTIARII SERVI; those who caused Silence to be kept among the Slaves, as Senece fays. Procopius tells us, they were in the emperor's Palaces, to keep every Body filent, and carry themselves with due Respect. They in for some great Office in the Commonwere also the Prince his Confidents; and were wealth. called Ministri ad ea que suns quiesis.

CUBICULARIUS SERVUS; a Slave who made use of small Stones to reckon by, inwho was in the Emperor's Chamber, like a Vales de Chambre.

VILLICUS SER VUS; a Slave, whose scribed Books by way of Abbreviations. Business it was to look after the Country-houses and Lands of his Mafter.

ATRIENSIS SERVUS, or ad Limina cuffes; a Slave who kept the Arrium or Porch of who called the Affemblies of the People toge. his Mafter's House, where flood the Waxen ther by Curia and Centuria, or the other Affem-Images of the Ancestors of the Family, and the blies of the Priests and Pontists. Moveables: The House keeper, as Columella informs us: Tum infiftere Atrienfibm ut supellestilem | Slaves who went before their Mafters to make exponant. O ferramenta deterfa nitidentur atque rubigine liberentur. This was the chiefest of the Slaves.

LECTICARII SERVI; Slaves Who in their Names. carry'd their Mafter's Litter, like unto our Chair-men, Marsianus says, they were also those who made Litters.

whose Business it was to wash, anoint and trim med them into the Shapes of divers Animals. the Bodies of the Dead.

the Baths looked after the Cloaths of those who | Greens. bathed themselves; they were also Slaves who waited upon Persons of Qualities Children, when they went to the Schools, and carried their or Foreflers. Books: as likewise those who were Merchants, and Bankers Cash-keepers; and again, such as made Desks and Chefts to keep Money in: They were also called Arcarii Servi.

SACCULARII SERVI; Slaves who could convey Money out of a Bag by their Slight and Dexterity, of whom Ulpian speaks.

VESTISPICI: Slaves who looked after | Summer-time. their Mafters Cloaths: They were also called Servi a vefte and ad veftem; as may be feen by these ancient Inscriptions:

CATULINO ET APRO, COSS. DULCISSIMÆ MEMORIÆ.

EJUS. VALENS. AUG. LIB. PHE-LIANUS. A VESTE, BEN. MER. FLCIT.

And this other,

T. STATILIUS. MALCHIO. AD VESTEM.

EMISSARII SERVI; Procurers, Horfe, and trick every Body.

NOMENCLATORES SERVI, or NOMENCULATORES; Slaves who accompanied their Mafters, and told them the Names of those that passed by, when they put CALCULATORES SERVI; those ftead of Counters.

LIBRARII SERVI; Slaves who tran-

TABELLARIUS SERVUS; he that carries his Mafter's Letters .

CALATORES SERVI; those Slaves

ANTE-AMBULONES SERVI: way for them to go along.

SALUTI-GERULI SERVI; Slaves who came to complement their Mafters Friends

CURSORES SERVI; Couriers who ran to carry News.

TOPIARII SERVI; those who pro-POLLING FOR SERVUS; a Slave, ned the Flower-Garden, Orchard, &c. and for-

VIRIDIARII SERVI; were those CAPSARII SERVI; Slaves, who at who looked after Orchards and Bowling-

> PASTORES SERVI; Shepherds. SALTUARII SERVI: Wood-Wards,

> VENATORES; Hunters. AUCUPES SERVI; Fowlers or Fal-

> VESTIGATORES; those who hunted Beafts by their tract.

> DIÆTARII SERVI; those who were to look after the Halls, wherein they eat in

> AQUARII SERVI; Water-Carriers. ANALECTÆ; Slaves, whole Bufinels it was to gather up what fell down at a Feaft, and to sweep the Floor and Hall where they

> POCILLATORES, or AD CYA-THOS SERVI; Cup-bearers, or those who ferved with Drink.

> PRÆGUSTATOR SERVUS; hethat tafted the Wine as he served his Mafter.

OBSONATORES; those who bought | Sestertii Deni and Sestertia Dena, were the same Provision for the Family.

waited at Table, and fet the Difhes in order. vite Perions to Dinner.

duced Persons into the Emperor's Presence.

fore Mills were invented.

fhut it.

the Privies, and Close-stools.

PENICULI; those who were to clean the Table with a Spunge.

the Furnace of their Baths.

BALNEATORES; Bathers; and UN-and an half; as if one should say an half taken from three; infomuch that the Greek fav, τείτον ημιτάλατον, Tertium semitalentum, τος two Talents and an half. It may be asked whether the two forts of Seftertii, viz. the greater or leffer must be diffinguished.

There are Two Opinions concerning this Point, one is Budens's, and the most received of the two, who diffinguishes the Seffertii into two forts, viz. the leffer called Seftertius, which, as we have faid, was a little piece of Silver Money, worth two Ales and an half; and the greater alled Seftersium in the Neuter Gender, which was a Word relating to Accounts, and imported a thousand finall Seftertii: The other Opinion is that of Agricola, who fays, that the Word the most easie, and came first to obtain. And, Seffertium is the fame as Seffertius, infomuch that | indeed, if we do but confider what Sandius fays, thing: But the Difference, fays he, confifts in STRUCTORES SERV ; those who the Way of Reckoning ; for when you find Dena Seftertium for Seftertiorum in the Genitive VOCATORES; those who went to in- | Ca.e., Millia is understood; and the Transcribers, adds he, not understanding this Sence, ADMISSIONALES; those that intro- have put Selleriiz inftead of Selferium, when they faw the Mark of the Sefterius, as you have PISTORES and MOLITORES; it in this Example of Cicero against Verres, H.S. those that pounded Corn to make Meal of it, be- Ducenta & quinquaginta. But whether upon these Occasions we read Sestertium ducenta, with OSTIARII and JANITORES; millia understood, or Sesteria ducenta, as taking Porters who attended at the Gate, to open and the Word Seffertium in the Neuter Gender for a thousand small Sestertii; there is no Body but SCOPARII; Sweepers, who were to clean must be satisfied in the main, that it always comes to the fame Number.

The only Difficulty that remains, confifts in an Objection that may be made concerning the FOR NACATOR; was he that kindled Force of these Words Sesserius and Sesterium, which being Adjectives, as well as Semisterius and Semistertium, require a Substantive: For this CTORES were those who with perfumed Substantive can be no other than Affis nummus, Oil anointed" the Bodies of those who were for Seffertius, (two Asses and an half) and Asses pondo for Sestersium: As Masculine, and Pondo SESTERTIUS; the Ancients marked Neuter, being the same with the Romans, for their Sefferces with their Two Letters H. S. the the As was a Pound weight. I know Scioppins Seffertive was a Piece of Silver Money, worth answers, that Mine pondo is understood with about the 4th part of a Roman Denarius; and Seftertium, insomuch that the great Seftertius, in English Money 1 d. For the Romans ha- may in respect to the Greeian Mina be the lesser ving for a long time made use of Brass Mo- one in regard to the Roman As: But is there any ney, which they called As, quafi As, or Libra likelihood that the Romans should invent Money, and Pondo, because it weighed a Pound, begun that had no other Foundation for it than that of at last with the Denarius to coin Silver Money, the Greeks, and not that which was peculiar to in the Year of Rome 585. This Denarius was themselves? To which we may add, if it were marked with an X, because it was worth Ten so, the Mina must of necessity answer exactly to Affer, and divided into two Quinarii, marked with the Roman Pound, or the Drachma to the Denaan V, because each of them was worth five Astes; rius; to the End, that as the Mina was worth and the Quinarius was again divided into two 100 Drachma's, this also must be worth 100 De-Seflerces, marked L-L-S, because they were each marii, that is, 1000 Asses, in the same manner as of them worth two Affer: But the Transcribers the great Seffertium is worth 1000 leffer ones: at last for their own Conveniency have given But this we can never be sure of; at least wife usan H for the two L-L-, which fignified Pounds, Agricola, Manucius, Andreas Scotus, and Capella and always retained the S, which is Half; info do not in the least agree about it. But whereas much that Seftertius is put for Semiftertius, two we find in Historians, that the Greeks wie the Word Drachma, or the Latins that of Denarius; that, lays Manucius, comes to pass, because they had not a more proper and nearer Word to express themselves by; or else because the Emperors of latter Times, did really reduce the Denarius to be of the same Weight with the Drachma, that is, to a matter of eight to the Ounce; whereas formerly 'tis certain from the Testimonies of Pliny and Livy, it was heavier, fix of them only at first, and afterwards seven going to the Ounce. Hence its manifest, that what has given way to Budeus his Opinion, whether in respect to the great Sesterium, or in Comparison of the Denarius with the Drachma, was no more than because it was found to be that of old almost all Nouns ending in as ended. This Author in his 14th Letter endeavours to also in um, with the same Signification; and prove, that the Word Res or Negotium must be that befides this, the Expressions of the Romans were always concife, infomuch that there was nothing so common amongst them as the Figure Ellipsis, whereby they did not speak so little as two Words together, but somewhat was under. Here quantum being an Adjective must necessaflood, and whereby they also regulated their other Terms of Accompts; we shall find Agricola's Opinion is much better grounded than the others, which either came from the Ignorance of the Transcribers, who upon a thousand Occasions have corrupted those Words, that were written with fingle Letters, or by way of Abridgment; or from the Error of those, who not observing that Seftertium was the Genitive Cale, and put for Seftertiorum, have taken it to be the Accufative or Nominative of the Neuter Gender.

If with H. S. the Mark of a Seftertim we find a Noun of Number which is declined, and is of the Masculine Gender: It denotes the Sum it simply expresses and no more: For Example, pose centena millia understood: Again, An accepto H. S. deni fignifies Ten small Sesterces; if it be of the Neuter Gender, as H. S. dena, denotes 1000 finall Sefferces; fo that whether you | um; farther, you have in Plantus, Trapezine read Sesteriia dena, according to Budeus, or Se- mille Drachmarum sunt reddita, put for res mille stertium dens, subaudi millia, according to Agricola, Drachmarum eft reddita: But as the Ancients H. S. dena tignifies 10000 fmall Sefterces. But used decies Sefterzium, or decies centena millia Seif with H. S. the Mark of a Sestersius, you find stersium, so they also said, decres aru, for decies an indeclinable Noun of Number, or one that in the declining of it may be taken for Masculine and Neuter; you cannot find out the Signification of it but by the Confequence, Subject and Sence: Thus when Cicero, L. s. contra Verrem, faid, Ad fingula medimna multi H. S. duorum, multi H. S. quinque accessionem cogebantur dare, you cannot judge but by what follows what Sum he nieans; for his Expression may suit with simple | Money; the Roman Denarius 10 As's being 7 Numbers and with 1000, but the Consequence Pence of English; the little Sesterius 1d. ob. qa. discovers that he speaks only of single sesterces, | q. but the great Sestertium contains 1000 Sesterfor should they be taken for Thousands, the same ces, which in our Money is 7 1. 16 s. 3 d. and would be ridiculous for that Occasion. Care in Latin they use unum Sestertium, duo Semuit be had to observe that the Words Sesterius Stert, &c. or nummus fignific often imes the same thing; infomuch that mille nummum, mille Seftersium, or they cut the Throat of the Victims. mille mummûm Seftertiûm may be indifferently uled for one another; but there are various Opi- Affrica, and of a fierce and cruel Disposition, he nions concerning the Reason that is given for was cruel to the highest Degree against his this Construction and these Expressions; for to Competitors to the Empire, the Nobility, and fay nothing of that of Nonius and some of the those who sided with his Enemies; he grosly a-Ancients, who thought without any Grounds, bused the famous Ciry Bizantium, and subjected that these Genetives mummum and Sestertium it to Heraclea, because she took the Part of Pe-(put by a Syncope for nummorum and Sestertio- Scennius Niger; he also used the City of Lyons rum) were Acculatives, they usually take the after an inhumane manner, putting it to Fire Word mille for a Noun Substantive, that governs the Genetive nummûm and Seffertium; however, it we believe Scioppius, Mille is ever | Frugality and Modesty in Apparel, which were an Adjective, as well as other Nouns of Number, and therefore we must suppose a Nomina- couragious, valunt, indefatigable, and very use-understood so as when fuvenal says,

Quantum quifque fua nummorum poffides erca.

rily suppose Negotium understood, insomuch that if we should say, Res or Negotium mille nummorum, the Syntax would be plain and very regular, but if it should be said, Mille nummorum est in arca; the same will be figurative and the Word Res still understood, which will govern the Genetive mille mummorum (which are the Adjective and the Substantive.) But Res mille nummorum is the same thing as mille nummi, just as Phædrus favs, Res cibi for cibus.

Where we meet with Sestersium decies numeratum esse in Cicero, 'tis a Syllepsis numeri, where numeratum, which refers to negotium, is put for Numerata which should have been so exprest, as 'tis indeed in some Editions, because they supcenties Seftertium fecerit, in Velleius Paterculus, is put for acceptie centies centenie millibus Sefterticentena millia æris. Authors often omit the Word Seftertium by an Ellipfis, as Suetonius does in Cafar's Life; Promissumque jus annulorum cum millibus C C C C diffulit; and the same he does in Vespatian's Life, Primus è fisco Latinis Gracisque Rhetoribus annus centena constituit, that is, centena millia Sestertiûm.

The Roman As was worth 3 Farthings of our

SEVA, a Knife used at Sacrifices wherewith

SEVERUS, a Roman Emperor, born in and Sword, because she stuck to the Interest of Albinus. He is commended for his Sobriety, Vertues common enough in Africa: He was tive Case of which this Genetive is governed : ful to the Commonwealth, infomuch that the Senate being sensible both of the good and bad | Erophile of Troy, the Daughter of the Maryefus; redounded to the Benefit of the Empire, either that he had never been born, or never died.

SEXAGENARIUM DE PONTE DETICERE: It fignified to deprive an old the People went over a little Bridge in order to

SEXTANS; the Romans divided their As, which was a Pound of Brass into 12 Ounces The Ounce was called uncia, from the Word unum; and 2 Ounces fextans, being the fixth part of 12 Ounces, which made the Aror Pound: It was also a Measure which contained 2 Ounces of Liquor:

Sextantes, Calliste, duos infunde Falerni:

Fill me two Sextans, or 2 Ounces of Falernian

SEXTARIUS; a Measure which held 24 Ounces of Wine, but according to Weight contained no more than a Pound and 8 Ounces; it held about a Pint English Measure.

SEXTILIS; the Month of August, or fixth in the Year, if you begin it as the Romans did with March, and the 8th, to reckon as we do: This Month was under the Protection of Ceres and had several Feasts in it. See Calendarium.

SI VOBIS VIDETUR, DISCE DITE, QUIRITES; Citizens, if you please, you may depart : It was an ancient Form of Speech among the Romans, for dismiffing the Allembly of the People.

SI SCIENS FALLO, ME DIE-SPITER SALVA URBE ARCEQUE BONIS EJICIAT, UTI EGO HUNC LAPIDEM. If I have not an Intention to observe this Treaty and Alliance, may Jupiter throw me out of my Estate, with as much Violence as I do this Stone, without any Harm done to the City. It was the Form of an Oath used at the making of Treaties and Alliances, which imported an Imprecation against him who did not act fincerely in the faid Treaty; for 'twas a Cuftom to throw a Stone at the Victim, and to wish the Gods served them so, if they used any Cheat or Deceit in the Matter.

SIBYLLÆ; the Sibylls, Virgin-Prophesses fo called from Gide, which in the Laconic Tongue was the Genitive of the Word Zev's, and from Bunn Deliberation : Others derive it from the Hebrew Kibel and Kabala. Authors differ about the Number of the Sibylls, and concerning the Martianus Capella reckons but two Sibylls, viz-

Qualities of this Prince, thought it might have whom he confounds with the Phrygian and Cumaan Sibylis; and Symachia born at Erithraa, a City of the Lower Afia, who came to Cuma, and there pronounced Oracles. Pliny, L.3 4. C.5. speaks of Three Statues of the Sibylis at Rome, Man of 60 Years of Age, of his Right to give near the Rostra, one erected by Pacuvius Taurus, his Vote in the Elections made at Rome; because the Adile of the People; and the other I wo by Meffala, whom Solinus calls Sibylla Cumea, throw their Ballot into an Urn, for the chusing Delphice and Erithite. Elian L. 12. Hift. makes of Magistrates; and old Men of sixty were them to be Four, viz. Those of Erithrea, Samos, Egypt and Sardu, some have increased their Number even to Ten, as Varro does in his Six Books concerning Divine Things, dedicated to Julius Cafar, the Pontifex Maximus. The Persian Sibyll, of whom Nicanor speaks, was born according to Suidas at Noa, a City near the Red-Sea, which they would have to be same as the Chaldean and Hebrew Sibyll, properly called Sambetha, who fore:old divers Things concerning the Meffias, his Birth, Life, Circumstances of his Death, and second Coming. The Libyan Sibyll, of whom Euripides the Poet speaks in his Prologue to Lamia, who was the Daughter of Jupiter and Lamia, Neptune's Daughter, as Paujanias writes in his Phocica: The Grecians, fays. he, make her to be the Daughter of Jupiter and Lamia, Neptune's Daughter; the first of Womankind that delivered Oracles, and was called Sibylla by the Lybians: She Spent a great part of her Life in the Isle of Samos, at Claros, a City of the Colopbonians, at Delos and Delphi; the died in Troas. The Sibyll of Delphi, of whom Cryfippus makes mention in his Book of Divination. Diodorus, L. 4. C. 6. calls her Dapbne, the Daughter of Tirefias, whom the Argians, after the Destruction of Thebes, sent to Delphi, where the delivered Oracles, being inspired by Apollo, and fate upon the Tripod. Virgil, L. 6. An. speaks of her, where he introduces Aneas entring into the Sibyll's Cave, and praying to unfold unto him the Will of the Gods viva voce, and not as the fometimes did upon the Leaves of Trees, which the Wind carried thither, and promiting withal to build a magnificent Temple for Apollo, and to recommend his Oracles to his Posterity. Sibylla Cumaa, which was born at Cuma in lona. Lastangius fays, 'twas the that carried the Nine Books to Tarquinius Priscus. Sibylla Erytbraa, Apollodorus will have her to be his Fellow-Citizen, and that when the Grecians went to the Siege of Troy, she prophefied to them, that they should take it: Eufebius placesher above 450 Years after the Siege of Trey, in the Reign of Romulus. Strabo speaks of several Sibylls of the same Name, one before and another after the Time of Alexander, whose Name was Arbenais: Lastantius makes Babylon to be the Place of her Nativity, and calls her Places where they uttered their Predictions : | Erysbraa, because she was born in the Country of the Erysbreans, in a Place called Basa, where the City Erysbras was afterwards built: There! Stone-Trough: They were burnt with the Caare some Authors who make Sardin to be the pitol in the Year 670. The Senate Seven Years Place of her Birth, others Sicily; some again, after sent Deputies to all the Cities of Asia and Rhodes, Lybia and Samos. She composed odes Italy, to collect and transcribe the Verses of the and Oracles, and invented a kind of a Triangu- Sibylls that might be yet in being. Tacitus also lar Lyre; the is the most Famous of all the Si- relates, that Angustus finding the Verses and bylls. The Senate sent to Erythraa for the Verses, Predictions of these Sibylis passed through the and they were laid up in the Capitol. The Si- Hands of several Persons, ordered an exact of whom Virgil speaks:

Huic ubi delatus Cumaam accesseris urbem.

And again in Eclogue 4.

Ultima Cumai venit jam carminis atas.

And Ovid de Faftis,

Cumaam veteres consuluistis anum.

The Sibyll of Hellespont, born at Troy, that li-Tiburtina, or of Tibur, a Country Five or Six Leagues from Rome, upon the River Anio.

These are the Names of the Ten Sibylls spohis Daughter.

wherein the Predictions of the Sibylls were writconsulting of them: They committed them to the Custody of two Persons of the Patrician Or., ried the Labarum were called Labariferi. der, who were called Duumviri sacrorum, who SIGNUM RUGNÆ; the Signal of Bathad leave to confult them by an Order of the tle; it was a Coat of Arms of a Purple Colour, Senate. Tarquin, who was the first that insti- set upon the General's Pavillion. tuted this Sacerdoral Office, threw one of the SILENTIUM; the God of Silence; who Keepers of these Books, whose Name was M. was represented with his Finger in his Mouth: Attilius, into the Sea, sowed up in a Leathern- Ammianus Marcellinus says, they also worshipped Bag, because he had given a Copy of them to this God of Silence, Silentii quoque colitur numen. Petronius Sabinus; and this fort of Punishment The Egyptians called him Harpocrates, and made was afterwards appointed for Particides. This him to be the Son of Ofiris and Ifis. Aufonius Priesthood was exercised by Two Persons only calls him Sigateon, An tua Sigateon Agyptius oftill the Year 384, when they were increased to cula signet: The Name comes from Gryan the Number of Ten, half of them Patricians, filere: The Angerona of the Romans was also a and the other half Plebeians; and Sylla made Goddess of Silence, and her Mouth was sealthem Fifteen; and at last they amounted to ed up. Sixty, but still retained the Name of Quindesim- SILENUS, a Phrygian living in the Reign viri.

tire above 450 Years, till the War with the dullo, ingentes aures suas tradidit: It's also likely byll of Samos, of which mention is made in the Search to be made for them at Samos, Erythras, Samian Annals; her Name was Pitbo.

Iroy, in Affrica, and throughout the Colonies of The Cumaan Sibyll, or the of Cuma in Italy, Italy, and to put them into the Hands of the respective Governours, that so by the Advice of the Quindecim-viri, they might retain those that were Genuine, and reject the reft; and this is also witnessed by Suetonius.

SIGILLARIA: Feafts celebrated after the Saturnalia, wherein they offered little Statues of Gold, Silver, and other Mettals to $4turn, instead of Men which before were facrificed to him: Hercules changed this cruel Cufrom, by giving a favourable Interpretation to the Oracle.

SIGNA, Roman Enfigns, whereof there were different forts, on some of them the Ived in Solon and Cyrus his Time. The Phrygian mage of the Emperor was represented, and they Sibyll, that propheted at Ancyra. The Sibylla that carried them were called Imaginiferi; others had an Hand stretched out as a Symbol of Concord, and these Entign-bearers were called Signiferi; some had a Silver-Eagle which made those ken of by Vuro; besides which, there were also that carried them he called Aquiliferi, Eaglethe Sibyll of Collopbon, whose Name was Lam- bearers; others had a Dragon with a Silver head, pufia, the Daughter of the Prophet Colchas; al- and the rest of his Body of Taffety, which was to the of The flaty, called Mantha, the Daughter blown by the Wind as if he were a real Dragon, of Tirefias of Thebes, and Cassandra, King Priamus and these Dragon-bearers were named Draconarii; laftly, the Emperor's Enfign was called SIBYLLINI LIBRI; the Sibilis Books, Labarum which they carried out when he went into the Field: It was of a Purple Colour befet ten; these Books were had in so great Autho. with Gold Fringe, and adorned with precious rity among the Romans, that they did nothing of Stones: All their Enligns were sustained by a moment, either in Peace or War, without hift Halfpike sharp at the End that it might the more early be fixed in the Ground: Those who car-of Midas, who, as Terrullian lay, gave him his These Books of the Sibylls were preserved en- great Ears: Silenum I brygem, cui a pastoribus per-Marsi, in a Vault of the Capitol, shut up in a he might have been one of the Princes of Caria, who was famous for his Wifdom and Learning: Diodorus Siculus speaks of him in this manner: Primum enim omnium Nyle aiunt imperasse Silenum, cujus genus ignoratur ob temporis longinquitatem: The Fable of Midas his lending him his long Ears only denoted the great Knowledge he had in all Things, Cicero in his Quaftiones Tufculina, fays, that Midas having seized upon the Person of Silenus, he paid his Ransom, and Juvenal we read Simpuvium. bought his Liberty with this excellent Sentence; That it was beft not to be born, but the second Degree of Happiness to die betimes. And now we may believe, that the Drunkenness in which Midas surprized Silenus, was a mysterious Drunkenness of superabounding Wisdom: So Bochart of Doors, the tiouse fell and crushed the Guests following the Steps of Justin Martyr, thinks, that the Name and Fable of Silenus, imported the Prophecy of Jacob under a Difguise, when he promised the Meffiss to Judah. Bochart will have the Name of Silenus to come from Silo, which is the Meffias Name in the faid Prophely: And Director of Bacchus his Studies and his Guide, this is because the Doctrine of the Messias in the ed to by all Nations; again, the Poets making Silenus to ride upon an Als, to be tied to Bacchus, with their feeming to drown him in Wine tend only to express these Words of the Prophecy concerning the Messias; Ligans ad vinam pullum fuum, Sad vitem afinam fuam. Lavabit in vino stolam suam, & in sanguine uvæpallium suum. pulchriores funt oculi ejus vino. Diodorus Siculus made Silenus to be Bacchus his Master, in respect learned Discourse concerning the Creation of the World, when he was scarce recovered out of his Drunkenness. Paufanias says, they shew'd the Stone in Attica where Silenus refted, when he accompanied Bacebus thither; that in short, they gave Silenus his Name to all the Sayrs when they began to grow a little old. They used to represent Silenus with a bald Pate, large Physiognomy of a Man given to Wine and infolent, as Silenus was faid to be: He was alfo known by a Pot which he carried in one Hand.

Bounds, as well as Mercury,

Et te pater Silvane, susor finium.

See Sylvanus.

SIMPULUM: a Veffel with a long Handle. and made like a Cruet; In some Editions of SIMONIDES; a Lyrick Poet of the Isle of Ceos: Being at Supper with Scopus the Statuary, he was told there were Two young Men (who were Caftor and Pollux) that wanted to fpeak with him; and as foon as he was gone out to pieces. Phed. L. 4. Fab. 22.

SIRENES; Syrens; the Pagans feigned they were Sea-monfters, with Womens Faces and Fishes Tails. They were thought to be the Three Daughters of the River Achelous, whose Names were Parebenope, Ligea and Leucofia, whereas Diodorus Siculus makes Silenus to be the dwelling upon the Shoar of Sicily, they fung admirably well, and threw themselves into the Sea for having been flighted by Ulyffes, or Grief for same Prophecy ought to be admired and attend- the Loss of Proferpina their Companion; but the Gods transformed them into those Monsters, who drew Paffengers to the Rocks, where they loft their Lives, and were devoured by them. The Syrens, of whom Homer in his Odysses makes so long a Discourse, had in all appearance no other Foundation, than the Likeness there is between She-Tritons and Women. People have experienced in their Course of Sailing, that there are some Sea-shoars and Promontoto the Whole of his Education and Exercises: ries, where the Winds by the various Reverbe-Virgil makes Silenus make a very ferious and rations they make there, cause a kind of Harmony, that surprizes and stops Passengers: This, perhaps, was the Ground of the Syrens Song, and was the Cause of giving the Name of Syrens to these Rocks.

The Syrens are undoubtedly an Invention of the Phanicians; they were Three Female Muficians, hair Birds and half Virgins, of whom Servius gives this Description: Sirenes secundum Forehead, and flat Nose, which denoted the fabulamires, in parte virgines fuerunt, in parte volucres; Achelos fluminis & Calliopes Mufa filia. Harum una voce, altera tibiis, altera hra canebat: C primò juxta Pelorum, post in Capreis insula babiand a Balket of Fruits in the other. Paulanias Larunt, A. L. S. Near unto the Isle of Caprea says, Silenus had Temples built him, wherein food the Isles called Sirenusa, the City and Drunkenness presented him with a Cup full of Promontory of Sorento, where there was a Temple dedicated to the Syrens, according to Strabo; SILVANUS; the God of Fields and laftly, the City of Naples, where flood the Fu-Cattle, whom they were wont to represent with ineral Monument of Partienope, one of the Syhis Right Hand firetched out, and holding a rens. Tho' the Syrens by these Authorities, and Cyprefs branch in his Left, or that or tome o- divers Testimonies of the Poets, seem to be conther Tree; he was crowned with the Leaves of fined either to Sicily, or the Coafts of Italy; yet Trees, because he was more especially worthin- i'tis very certain their Name is Hebrew, Sir, ped in the Country; Horace calls him the God of Sirum, Canticum, Cantica, and that they were the Phanicians who peopled these Islands and Sea Coasts, that left there some Footsteps of their SISTRUM; an Infrument of the Goddess Is, adored by a particular fort of Worship in Egypt: The form of it was Oval, like a Racket with three Sticks, which croffed the Breadth thereof, and moved freely, that so they might thereby make a Sound, which the Ancients found 78 70 3ew, because of the Corruption which alvery melodious: One of these Sistra made all of Copper is to be feen in the Library of Genevieve at Paris; it was the usual Mettal they were brought to Bed of Apollo and Diana, Juno sent made of, as Apuleius informs us, who gives a a Serpent to devour them in the Cradle, but Description of it. Several Authors have spoke Apollo, as little as he was, killed her with his of this Siftrum, and Ferom Bofius among others, Arrows. Now the natural Signification of this who has writ a Treatife on Purpose, entituled, Fable is, that the Sun and Moon being come Iliacus de Siltro.

SISYPHUS; the Son of Folus, a famous Robber, flain by Thefeus: The Poets feigned that he rolled up a great Mill-stone in Hell to the Top of a Mountain, from whence it presently fell down again, and oblieg'd him to begin again, and to eternally perperuated his Punish ment.

SITICENES; were those who founded upon a kind of a Trumpet that had a very forrowful and mournful Tone, at the Burying of during Day-light, and that they called it Liber

the ancient Romans. SOCCUS and SOCCULUS; a fort of Shooe used by the Greeks, the same was also in use among the Roman Ladies: It was a kind of Covering for the Feet among the Ancients who came upon the Theater, to represent Comedies, and was opposed to the Corburnus, which was a kind of Snooe or Busk in acting Trage-

SOCRATES; a Philosopher of Asbens, who by the Oracle of Apollo, was called the wifest Man in Greece. This Philosopher applied himfelf very much to Morality; but being accufed by divers I erfons of having spoke ill concerning the Gods, he was fentenced to poifon himself, which he did with Hemlock.

SOL; the Sun. Macrobius endeavours to fhew, that all the Deitics of the Poets were only the Sun under a Difguile, which being the Ruler of the other Stars, whose Influences reached unto all this lower World, it is by Conquence the Governour of the Universe. The Poets agree, that Apollo is the Sun : In fhort, Apollo's Name being composed of the Negative Particle, and monnie, multus, it bears the same Signification as Sol or Solus; and this Macrobius fays, whereunto he adds, that Plato gave it another Greek Etymology, tending to the same purpole: PlatoSolem' Απέλλωνα, cognominatum scribit, बेम्रे रहे वेही म्बंश्रिकाण रवेड बेसर्राण्यह, व jadu radiorum. The same Author says, that as for Apollo's was transformed into a Cow; that is, the Sun being called inreds, Medicus, a Phylician; the eccliples the Light of the Stars and the Hea-Reason is, because the Sun is the Preserver of vens by its Presence, these Stars during the Health: But as 'tis formetimes also the Cause of Night having been as so many Eyes, to watch

Language, as they did also of their History and Diseases, it has likewise been called mude, Destroyer, and To mairie, à feriendo. They have called the Sun Delius, quod illuminando omnia clara Juna demonstrat. The Name of poil & has been given it, από τε φοιζαν βία, quod vi fertur: As alfo Phinera, and To paireir; and midio, and ways proceeds from Heat, or from the Serpent Python; for the Fable fays, that Latona being out of the Chaos, the Earth remaining yet moist produced Serpents, or rather thick Vapours, wherewith Juno, that is, the Air, would darken the Light of the Sun and Moon, but the Force of the Sun-beams did at length diffipate thefe Fogs.

The Sun is also the same as Bacchus, or Liber, according to Macrobius; he fays that the Sun in their mysterious Prayers was called Apollo, while it continued in the upper Hemisphere, or Pater, in the Night, when it ran thro' the lower Hemisphere. Orpheus calls it alfoΔιονύσιον, φάνητα. The Name of Dionyjius comes from die vis. according to Macrobius, quia folem mundi memem effe dixeruns : Others deduce the Name and 72 Svelodat zi meptospeodat, qued circumferatur in ambitum. Macrobius pretends that it was to the Sun, the Oracle of Apollo gave the Name of ide, faying he was the greatest of all the Goods: φεαζέω τον πάντων υπαθον εμμεν ίας.

The faid Macrobius endeavours also to prove that Mars is the same as the Sun, because 'tis the same Principle of Martial Heat and Fire that inflames Mens Hearts and animates them to fight. Mercury also according to the faid Author is the Sun or Apollo, and this is the Reason why they represent Mercury with Wings to intimate the swift Course of the Sun.

Apollo prefides over the Quire of Muses, and Mercury is the Father of Eloquence and polite Learning, the Sun is the Soul and Understanding of the World, and this agrees with Mercury whose Name is derived and To spunreusen, ab interpretando.

Mercury is the Messenger of the Gods, being often fent by the Coeleftial to the Infernal Dei ties: because the Sun by Turns passes through the Superior and the Interior Signs: Mercury flew Argus, who had 100 Eyes to watch to that fignines the Four Gods that prefide over Mens Nativities, viz. the Sun, Moon, Love and Ne-

Again, the Sun is Afeulapius, which imports nothing elle but the wholfeme Influences of the Body of the Sun, and hence it is that they have made him to be Apollo's Son, the Father of Phyfick and Health: They also place at the Feet of these Statues the Image of a Serpent that grows young by casting off her old Skin, as the Sun annually reassumes Vigor and as is were a fresh Youth in the Spring. They make Afrula- Sun. pius to prefide over Divinations as well as Apollo, because 'tis requisite a Physician should foresee marry Things to come.

Hercules was also confounded with the Sun, not Hercules of Ibebes, but he of Egypt, who was the ancientest of all of them, and was Sun it felf, to whom they owed the Victory obtained over the Giants; for 'twas this Sun that had the Power and Vertue of the Heavens, that flew those Sons of the arth who role up in Arms against to fay, that Bacchus, Apollo, Musageres and Afthe Gods. Farther; the Sun is the Serapu or Oficis of the ancient Egyptians, on whole Head different Vertues of the Sun. they represented the Head of a Lyon, Dog or Wolf, to denote the Three Parts of Time, viz. by his Fawnings fignified the vain Hopes Men mans, as you may fee by these Verses of Statius. entertain concerning Futurity. Tho the sun also is Adonu, who while in the fix Superior Signs of the Summer continues with Venus, that is, with this Hemisphear of the Earth wherein we dwell, and And by several Inscriptions at Nismes and for the other nx inferior Signs of the Winter, elsewhere. flays with Proferpina, that is, our Antipodes : The Egyptians also took Apollo and Horus for the Sun, from whence the Four and Twenty Hours of the Day and the Four Seafons of the Year affumed their Names.

Aupiter Ammon in like manner is taken for the fetting Sun by the Lybians, and that is the Reafon why they represent him with Rams-horns, which denote the Beams of the Sun.

It need no longer to be doubted but that the Sun is Jupiter himself, that 'tis the Opinion of Homer, when he fays, that Jupiter went to Oceanus his House in Ethiopia to a least, where all the Gods followed him, and that he returned to Heaven Twelve Days after: For the Ocean of the Western Ethiopians is the Place where the Sun fets, and whither he is followed by all the Stars, who let there also, and find Aliment to over and observe the Earth, which the Egyptians | ve Hours, or till after they have run through the represented under the Symbol of a Cow. Laft- Twelve Houses or Signs of the Zodiac. Macroly, The Caduceus of Mercury composed of Two bius farther adds, that the Affrians worshipped Serpents tied together and kiffing each other, | Jupiter, as being but the same Deity with the Sun, and they called him Jupiter Heliopolitanus, because he was chiefly worshipped in the City cessity; the Two Serpents are the Sun and Moon, of Heliopolis in Assria. Lastly, Macrobius says, . the Knot is Necessity, and their kissing imports that the Assyrians worshipped the Sun as their only and fovereign Deity, and hence it is, that they called his Name Adad that is only: Adad was represented by the Beams of the Sun, that came down from on high, whereas Adargatu, which was the Earth, was on the Contrary pictured with reversed Rays, with the Points turning upon herfelf, to fhew, that all was done by the Influences which the Sun had on the Earth, and that the Earth received the same from the Fulian the Apoftate observes, that the People of the life of Cyprus erected Altars to the Sun and Jupiter, pretending they were the same Deities whom the Sovereign God of the Universe constituted to govern this visible World: He adds, that Homer and Hefiod were of the same Opinion, when they made the Sun to be Hypercon and Ibea's Son. For these Two Names do plainly denote a Supream Deity: They feem culapius are no other than the Emanations and

The Mithra of the Perfians was the Sun likewife, to whom the Parthians and feveral Baftern the Times present, past and to come: The Lyon | Nations give this Epithet, because of the Headand the Wolf intimated the time present and dress wherewith he was represented: He was paft, because of their Switters, and the Dog also worshipped by this Name among the Ro-

Indignata sequi torquentem cornua Mithram.

Deo Invicto Mithra L. Calphurnius Piso Cn. Paulinus Volusius D. D. S. D.

And at Rome this other Inscription may be seen.

Numini invicto Soli Mithra. M. Aurelius Aug. L. Euprepes una cum filiis piis. D. D.

M. Aurelius Aug. Lib. Euprepes Soli Invicto Mithra aram ex viso posuit.

'These Two Roman Inscriptions were those upallay their Eternal Fires, without returning to on the Two Altars, which Marcus Aurelius Elthe Place from whence they parted under Twel- preper the Emperor's Freedman had dedicated to this God, who appeared to him in a Dream. of Ariffarchus of Samos was an Horizontal Dial, Mithra was an Epithet given to the Sun and used whose Edges were a little elevated in order to in the East, from whence it was brought to Rome, remedy the Inconveniency of the Stile, being and Lastantius fays in the forecited Verses of Sta- | straight and railed up prependicularly upon the tius, that Apollo was represented by the Persians | Horizon, for these Edges thus raised up, himwith a Lyon's Face and a kind of Tiara on his dred the Shadows from extending too far. Head, because the Sun is in its Vigour when he comes to the Sign Leo; the Phanicians worshipped no other Deity than the Sun, which they called Beelfamen, that is, the King of the Heavens. nian Circus: Scopus of Syracuse made that called The Lybians as well as the Messageres facrificed a Prostabistoroumena; Cifaranus believes this Name Horse to him. The Emperor Galienus, after his was given it, because the Figures of the Coele-Expedition into the East, represented Apollo like | Stial Signs were represented thereon. Parmenio a Centaur, holding his Lyre in his Right-hand, was the Inventor of the Prospanclima, that is, such and a Globe in the other with this Infcription, Apollini Comiti.

ting on his Chariot and crowned with the Sun- Middle and open towards the Sides, which makes beams and with this Title Soli Invido. Other them be of the Shape of an Ax on both Sides, Emperors, such as Constantine, Aurelian and Crippus, fet him forth under the Form o'a naked Man, crowned with Sun-beams, and holding a Vertical, which being long, and polited in an Globe in his Right-hand, and a Whip in the oblique manner represent a Quiver. Left with these Words:

Soli invido comiti.

Lucius Plautius caused a Medal to be coined. whereon was represented the Head of Apello with Two Serpents kiffing him: There was a made of Gold and Silk with Leather Soles only, Temple built him at Rome of a Spherical, i. e. | tied with Thongs on the back part of the Foot. a round Form.

fcribes feveral forts of Sundials in L. g. C. g. of his Architecture. The Hemicycle or half Cir- the Luftrum or numbred and taxed the Citizens cle hollowed fquare-wife and cut fo as to incline of Rome. in the same manner as the Equinox, was the Invention of Berofus the Chaldean: It's likely that into an Hemicycle, or Concave Demicircle, at the Top of a high Place looking northwards, and that there was a Stile or Pin coming out of the Middle of the Hemicycle whose Point an-Iwering to the Center of the Hemicycle reprefented the Center of the Earth; and its Shadow falling upon the Concavity of the Hemicy- & a great Cave dug in a Mountain, where stupicle, which represented the Space between one I fied Sleep dwelt, the Sun-beams never enlight-Tropick and another, marked out not only the Declinations of the Sun, that is, the Days of the fa very thick Mift: The Birds never ting there Months, but also the Hours of each Day, for that might be done by dividing the Line every Day into Twelve equal Parts; by which must be meant the Days that are between the Autumnal and Vernal Equinox; it being necessary Poppies and Mandrakes, Plants that create Stuto increase the Hemicycle for the other Days, which contain above Twelve Equinoxial Hours. The Hemisphear of Aristarchus his Dial was Midst of the Cave there is a Bed of Ebonyall Sperical and Concave, and not Oval. The Difem of one Colour, where the God sleep lies down

The Aftrologer Eudoxus found out the Araneus fome fay, Apollonius invented the Plimbis or figuare Dial, which was also set up in the Flamian one as might ferve torall forts of Climates. Theodosius and Andreas Patrocles found out the Pelecinum which is a Dial made Ax-wife, wherein the Lines which crofs one another mark our Probus represented him like a Charioteer, fit- the Signs and Months; being close towards the Dionyfiodorus invented the Cone, Apolionius the Quiver Dial; these Two last Dials are plainly

> SOLARIUM, was a Piece of Ground levell'd, or Place raifed up and expoled to the Sun, where People walked, as Isidorus and Cyrill's Gloffary informs us.

> SOLE Æ, Sandals; among the Ancients it was a rich Wear or Covering for the Feet

SOLITAURILIA; a Sacrifice confifting SOLARIUM, a Sundial; Vitruvius de- of a Sow, Bull and Sheep, which the Cenfors offered every Live Years, when they performed

SOLON, one of the Seven wife Men of Greece, born at Salamu, and Law-giver to the Ferojus his Dial was a floaped Plinthis, like the Athenians, They attribute the Erecting of the Equinox, and that this Plinthis was intersected | Court of the Areopagites to him: This wife Man faid, no Man could be called happy before his

SOMNUS, the God of Sleep, according to the Poets, was the Sun of Nox and Erebus. Ovid, L. 11. Metamorph. describes him thus: 'Near unto the Cimmerians, fays he, there was ened that Place, the same being covered with at Break of Day, neither do the Dogs difturb the Silence of the Nights by their Barkings: A profound Silence reigns continually there; at the Cave's Mouth there grows a great many pidity, whose Juice the Night extracts in order to throw it into the Eyes of Men. In the 'ny Dreams who skip up and down round about him.

Seneca the Tragedian gives an admirable Defcription of Sleep, whom he represents in the same manner as Ovid does, to be a favourable God that gives Rest to the Mind, and puts an End to our Labours. The Greeks, as Paufanias fays, facrificed on the same Altar to Sleep and to the Muses, pretending that Sleep was the best Soul of the Muses: Sleep is a good old Man, King of a certain Palace, whose Masters were Taraxion and Plutocles; the fovereign Lord of the Fountain Careotis, great Master of the Temple of Imposture and Truth, and Possessor Time out of Mind of a Sanctuary or Oracle taken away by Antipho; he is Death's younger Brother; who is an old Carcafe as ancient as all Ages, fays Coluthus. M. Tollius pretends that Sleep is a young Man, and this he grounds upon the Infcription wherein Sleep is represented much like unto a Youth. This Sleep appeared indeed young, but according to M. Cuper, it was Somnus aternalu, because of the Forch that was thrown down which was a true Representation of a Life extinct; or by reason of this Torch being thrown down it was necelfary for keeping of the Children harmless, to light one for them in Hell,

His datum folis minus ut timerent, Igne pralato relevare noctem.

M. Tollius infifts upon it and inflances in Euelids Two Sleeps, one of which was easie to be perfwaded and driven away from the Soul, and the fame belonged to young People, and the other was perfectly gray with Age, and appertained to old Men. But the Moral is very good, Euclid would hereby flow that young People were easily brought of from their idle Fancies, but that 'tis hard to bring old Men from their Opinions: Euclid did not pretend they were Two

SOMNIUM; a Dream. Ovid puts an infinite Number of Dreams under the Empire of Sleep, but he takes notice of Three who were much more potent than the rest; viz. Morpheus, helus or Phobetor and Phontajos: The first imi d' rich, and clad in Gold and Purple, like Kings tated Men, the fecond Animals, and the third in a Play, and the others poor, beggerly and Mountains, Rivers and other inanimate Things: All these Names were taken from the Greek, and they very well fignifie what they intimate to us: Hereby we may know that the Grecians were those who formed both the Names of and as they are now rare, and so they made a Part made Distinctions between Dreams, as well as of and were an Ornament to Nistory, both sathe God of Sleep. Lucian tells us, Dreams were cred and prophane. God threatened King Apainted with Wings, because they flew away in bimelech in a Dream, and made him release Sarah an Instant; Homer mentions Two Gates thro' Abrabam's Wife: It was in a Dream that $2.06 which Dreams come to us; the one made of faw the mysterious Ladder: The Angel appear-Ivory from whence proceeded doubtful and ed to Jacob in Mesopotamia, and told him in a

foft and takes his Rest; there are a great ma- troublesome Dreams, the other of Horn through which clear and certain Dreams passed: Vingil in these Verses borrowed the Thought from

> Sunt gemin Somni portæ, quarum altera fertur Cornea, quâ veru facilis datur exitus umbris: Altera candenti perfecta nitens elephante, Sed falfa ad colum mittunt infomnia Manes.

Lucian describes the Island of Dreams unto us in this manner. 'We had not failed long before we saw the Isle of Dreams, but obscurely, as Dreams are wont to be; for she seemed to remove farther off as we drew nearer to her; at last having reached the Island we entred into the Haven of Sleep, and there went ashoar: The Island was encompassed with a Forest of Poppies and Mandrakes, full of Owls and Bats, for there were no other Birds upon it : It had a River whose Waters did not run but in the Night, and Two Fountains of flanding Water; the Wall of the City was very high and of a changeable Colour, like the Rainbow: It had Four Gates, though Homer makes it to have but Two, the first looked towards the Plain of Negligence, the one being made of Iron and the other of Earth through which frightful and melancholy Dreams passed; the other Two look towards the Harbour, the one being made of 'Horn and the other of Ivory, which is that through which we enter : Sleep is the King of the Island, and his Falace stands on the Lefthand as you go in: On his Right-hand is the Temple of Night, which the Goddess worthipped there, and afterwards that of the Cock: Sleep has Two Lieutenants under him, viz. Taraxion and Plutocles, who were begotten of Fancy and Norbing: In the Midft of the Place flands the Fountain of Sence, which has Two 'Temples by the Sides of it; the one of Fal-· shood, and the other of Truth: There is the Oracle and Sanctuary of that God, to whom Antipho, the Interpreter of Dreams, is Prophet, and has obtained this Favour of Sleep: All the Inhabitants of the Island differ from one another, some are handsome and tall, others little and ugly, these appear to be 'all in Rags. We met with feveral of our Acquaintance who carried us to their Houses and ' treated us nobly.

Prophetick Dreams were formerly as frequent

Dream that he was the God who appeared to him in Betbel: Joseph's Dreams are well known, his Brothers Sheafs of Corn which worshipped his, and the Sun, Moon and Eleven Stars which they adored, have in a manner no need of In thele Two Gates, by which Dreams come to us: terpretation: The Dreams of Pharab's Two The Horn-Gate was very small, but transparent, Eunuchs, and the Interpretation given them by the Ivory was not so. And so they are the true Foseph, and Pharaob's Two Dreams after that, Dreams, when the Soul being disengaged from which were so happily interpreted by the said the Body pierces and penetrates thro' that Vail Holeph, were the Steps by which he was advan- which hides the Sight of Truth from it; and ced to the Height of Honour and Fower: Gi- Dreams have nothing that is real in them when deon was also instructed what he should do by a this Vail is not transparent; the Soul then con-Soldier's Dream: Saul answered Samuel who was i tinues involved with the Obscurity of Matter. conjured up by the Witch of Endor, that he | SORTES; Lots; Lot is the Effect of Hazmade his Application to her, because God would | zard, and as it were the Decision or Oracle of neither answer him, by the Mouths of the Pro- Fortune; but Lots were the Instruments made phets, nor by Dreams; for they were the Two lufe of in order to know what this Dec. fion would under the Old Testament.

and made it a Piece of the wicked Superstition course to Tables made for that Purpose. The of the Heathens: Nebuchodonogor told Daniel Use of Lots was various; in some Temples the Dream he had had, and he gave him the they threw themselves, in others they took them Interpretation thereof, that he thould be de- out of a Box, which gave occation to this Form throned and be for Seven Years fent to dwell a- of Speech among the Grecians: The Lot is fallen. mong the Beafts of the Field: There were a Sacrifices and many other Ceremonies always vaft many People who made it their Butiness to preceded this Dice-playing: The Priests in all interpret Dreams, especially in Great Mens appearance knew how to manage the Dice; but Courts. Virgil represents unto us how the O- if they had no mind to be at that Pains, they had racle of Faunus was consulted by all the People no more to do than to let them go, for they of Italy, and the Answers were given them by were always Mafters of the Explication given. Dreams: for the Priests after they had offered! The Lacedamonians went one Day to consult Sacrifice, spent the Night lying upon the Skins the Lots of Dodona concerning some War they of the Viftims, and there received those Prophe-; were engaged in : For bendes, the speaking tick Visions in a Dream.

.... Et cafarum ovium sub noste silenti Pellibus incubuit ftratu, somnosque petivit, Multa modis simulachra videt volitantia miris, Et varias audit voces, fruiturque Deorum Colloquio....

It was the Cuftom of the Ancients to fleep upon Skins, and the Latin Word dormire comes from thence, being derived from the Creek Siepua, received a more fatal Prefage. The most Fapellis: And when they fought for Prophetick mous of all Lots were those of Prenefie and An-Dreams, they affected to fleep upon the Skins of tium, two small Cities in Italy; Fortune was at Victims: Lucan makes Julia Pompey's first Wife | Pranefle, and the Fortunes at Antium: The Forforctell him in a Dream all the Evils of the Civil tunes moved of themselves, as Macrobius says, War, wherein he should be engaged: Pompey and their different Motions, either served for despifed this Dream; but it came to him thro' an Answer, or intimated whether they could the Horn-gate; the Effect followed, and the confult the Lots or no. Cicero, L. 2. de Divin. Dream came to pass; but some time after when says, they consulted the Lots of Pranefle, with Pompey dream'd, that is, on the Day before the the Confent of Fortune; and this gave occasion fatal Battle of Pharsalia, that he was admired to believe, that this Fortune also knew how to and applauded in his Amphitheater at Rome; it | move its Head, or give some other Sign of its was a Dream that came to him thro' the Ivory- Will. Gate, and had nothing but a falle Light in it. Juvenal speaks of the base Practices or shameful the Turks and Arabs make use of them in the Trade drove by some Jews, who for Money same manner. Ezekiel says, that Nebuchadner fold such Dreams as were denred of them;

Qualiacumque voles Julai somnia vendune:

Macrobius gives the Reason of the Difference of usual Ways they had to learn the Will of God be. Lots were very often a kind of Dice, on which certain Characters were graven, or some The Devil imitated these Prophetick Dreams, Words for the Explication of which they had re-

> Oak-Trees, Doves, Baions, and the Oracle; there were Lois at Dodona: ' After all the other *Ceremonies that were performed with much Veneration and Respect, there went a Mon-'key belonging to the King of the Moloff into the Temple, and threw down the Loss and 'Urn: The Priestes in a Fright told the Lacedamonians, that they must not think of over-'coming, but only of faving themselves: And all Authors affure us, the Lacedamonians never

In the East Arrows were their Lots, and still gar mixed his Arrows against Ammon and Jeru-

refalent: That was the prety Way they had of designing to be revenged on him, for having marresolving on which of those two Nations they ried another, retired with some Troops to the (hould make War. In Greece and Italy they often drew the Lots from some samous Poet, as sengers, and put them to death: These Amfrom Homer and Euripides; and that which pre- | buthes were Riddles, Cedipus escaped them, and finied it felf first to view at the opening of the slew Sphinx. Book, was the Decree of Heaven: History furnishes us with a thousand Examples of this kind: which with Wine and Bread was distributed at We also find that about 200 Years after Virgit's certain Feasts, or other solumn Days in the Year. Death, they valued his Veries io much, as to Thefe Presents often comiffed of Silver Medals. believe them to be prophetical, and to use them instead of the ancient Lots of Preneste : For Alexander Severas, who was yet but a private Man, and at a time when the Emperor Heliogabalus | dals: Thus Trebellius Pollio speaking of the small had a Kindneis for him, received for Antwer in Presents made by the Emperor Gallienus in his the Temple of Praneste, that Passage out of Vir- | Consulthip, says he gave a Sportula to every Segil, that fignifies thus much; If thou canst jur- nator, and one of his Gold Medals to every Romount the contrary Destinies, thou shalt be Mar-

Lots continued even to the Time of Chriflianity; they took them out of the Scriptures, whereas the Pagans did it from their Poets, St. Aufeem to disapprove of this Custom, unless pradifed in fecular Affairs. Gregory of Tours does fire & benori tuo debeo, bane in folido mifi. himself inform us, that it was his own Practise; went to St. Martin's Tomb, where he opened what Book of Scripture he had a Mind to, and took the first Passage he saw for God's Answer; he speaks of the Consulfhip of Justin the Emperors but if the faid Patlage was nothing to the Purpole, he opened another Book of Scripture: Others took the first 1 hing they heard sung as they entied the Church for a Divine Lot. The Emperor Heraclius being follicitous about the Place he should Winter-quarter with his Army, was refolved by this kind of Lot: He caused the Army to be purified for Three Days, then he opened the Book of the Gospels, and found his Winter-Quarters affigned him in Albania.

SOTERIA; a Sacrifice for Health; being the Games and Solemnities made by the People for the Health and Preservation of the Emperor, especially when he recovered of any fick-

SPHINX; a fabulous Monster, feigned by Dog. He ravaged the Country very much about Mount Sphingio, and could never be deftroy'd till Oedipus had explained the Riddle propoled by him; from which they have fince been wont to fay concerning Riddles hard to be refolan Oedipus. Diodorus fays, there were real Sphinx's, which were a fort of Monkeys, with long Hair, Bys Palephatus in a little Treatife concerning in | the other farther End of the Hail, are pushed for(alem, and that his Arrow went forth against Fe-1 credible Stories, was Cadmus his first Wife, who istountains, where the laid Ambushes for Pas-

SPORTULA; a small present of Money. and Denarii were used upon this Occasion: But when the Emperors or other great Men bestowed these Presents, they confilted of Gold Meman Lady . Senatui sportulam sedens erogavit, Matronas al confulatum fuum rogavit, isi denique manum fibi ofculantibus, quaternos aureos fui nominie deslit. It was also a Custom for those who entred upon the Office of Conful to fend their gulline, Epist. 119. ad Januarium, does not Friends these Presents, of which Symmachus speaks thus; Sportulam Confulatus mei, & amicitia no-

The Name of Sportula, which fignified small he ipent many Days in Fasting and Prayer, then Baskers, was given those Presents because they were fent in Baskets; and herein we are confirmed by these Verses of Corious, L.4. wherein > Dona Calendarum, quorum est ea cura, parabant Officia, & turmis implent felicibus aulam, Convellant rutilum sportis capacibus aurum.

And for this Reason the Greek Gloffaries in the Explication of the Word Sportula, Tay they were Prefents fent in Baskets; the Confuls with thefe Sportulæ beftowed also small Pocket-books made of Silver or Ivory, wherein their Names were written, and thele were those that they called Fasti. Sidonius, L. 8. E. 6. speaking of the Consulfhip of Afterius, mentions the Sportula and Falli that were given.

STADIUM; a Furlong; it was a Space of 125 Paces, and the Word is derived from the the Poets to have been begotten by Typhon, to | Verb Sto, which fignifies to flop; for 'tis faid have a Woman's Face, the Wings of a Bird, Hercules run over fuch a Space of Ground at one Claws of a Lion, and the rest of his Body like a Breath, and stopt at the end of it: This fort of Measure was peculiar to the Grecians: Eight of them goes to an Italian Mile: There were Stadia of different Measures, according to the Difference of Times and Places.

STATERA; a kind of Ballance, otherwise ved, that it was Sphinx his Riddle, and wanted called the Roman Ballance. Vierweius, L. 10. C.8. describes it in this manner: The Handle which is as the Center of the Flail, being faftened, as great Teats, and for the rest of their Bodies like it is, near unto the End to which the Scale is unto the Representations made of them. Sphinx, hung; the more the Weights, which run along ward upon the Points marked thereon, the Time of Tatius, King of the Sabines, who was the more Power it will have to equalize a great first that received Vervein gathered from the Weight according as the Weight's di-/confectated Wood of the Goddes Strenia, for a flance from the Center, shall put the Flail into good Augury of the New-year, much like the an Aquilibrium; and so the Weights which Gaulish Druids who held the Misses in so much were weak when they were too near the Center, cou'd in a Moment gain a great Power, and year's Day with a Golden Bill, or elfe they did given to make Statues increased the Number of ther'd the Vervein, and the Word Strenuut, Temples and Heathens: We do not know (fays | which fignifies Valiant and Generous; and fo the Cicero) the Gods by their Faces, but because it Word Strena, which fignifies a New-year's Gift, has pleased the Painters and Statuaries to repre- is sometimes found written Strenua by the Anfent them fountous: Deos ea facie novimus qua cients, as you have it in the Gloffory of Philoxe. pillores & fillores voluerunt. Statues at first were nus: And so this Present was properly to be no more than shapeless Stones; but Dadalus was made to Persons of Valour and Merit, and to the first who lest the Custom of imitating the Egyptians, and separated the Feet and other by their Vigilancy, than the Instinct of an happy Parts of the Statues, which he made fo as to be Augury, Strenam, fays Feffus, vocamus qua datur diftinguished from the rest, and for that Reason | die religioso, ominis beni gratia. After that they were called Moving Parts, as Palephatus fays: Time they came to make Prejents of Figs, Dates Thus Aristophanes calls Statuaries Ocomores, Makers of Gods; and Julius Pollux names a Statuary. Sammer of Gods.

The Romans were 170 Years before they had either Statuaries or Painters, as were the Perfians, Scythians, and Lacedemonians for a long time: Constantine, as Eusebius says, forbad Statues to be let up in the Temples of the Heathens, for Fear they should give them Divine Honours, which before was very common; for Tatius (lays Ladansius) confecrated the Image of the Goddess Cloacina, whom he took out of a Gutter and gave it the Name of the Place from whence he had it: They also dedicated (continued he) and confecrated Kings Statues after their Deceale, and represented them as they pleated; and Valerius Maximus fays, the Rhodians gave the Statues of Harmodius and Ariftogito the Procal Testimonics of Friendship to each other: same Honours as they did to the Gods. The And as they prevailed as much in their Religion Statues, faid he, being come to Rhodes, the as they did in the State, they were not wanting Citizens received them in a Body and having placed them in an Inn, they exposed them upon facred Beds to the View of the People.

were four forts of them; the greatest were the looking upon the Year past and present: They Coloffus's which were made only for the Gods: There were leffer ones made for Heroes; those for Kings and Princes somewhat bigger than the Life, and for other Men who for tome special Defert were allowed this Honour, they were one too, fince it was also dedicated to Juno, unmade of the Bigness of the Life.

Roman Ladies; they put a large Mantle or brated the Dedication of the Temples of Jupiter Cloack called Palla, and iometimes Pallium, over this Robe when they wore their ceremoni- ber; yet, I fay, notwithstanding, all these Conous Habits.

them is almost as ancient as the Building of Rome. I thing in the Way of his Profession, that so he Symmachus says, these were brought up in the | might not be southful the rest of the Year.

Veneration, that they went to gather it on Newraife up a very heavy Burden with little trouble. herein make an Allusion between the Name of STATUÆ; Statues; the Use and Liberty the Goddess Strenia, in whose Wood they gathose whose Divine Minds promised them more and Honey, by which they did as it were, wifh nothing might befal their Friends but what was fweet and agreeable for the rest of the Year: The Romans afterwards rejecting their primitive Simplicity, and changing their Wooden Gods into Gold and Silver ones, began to be also more magnificent in their Prefents, and on that Day to fend feveral forts of Things and of greater Value to one another, but more particularly Silver Medals, as finding they were very filly in the foregoing Ages, to believe that Honey was fweeter than Silver, as Ovid brings in Fanus pleafantly talking of it. Wherefore Dio speaking of New years Gifts, plainly calls them agyupor, Silver. With these Presents they sent to wish one another all manner of Profperity and Happiness for the rest of the Year, and gave recito enact Laws relating to them, and made that Day a Festival, dedicated and particularly confecrated to Janus, who was represented with As to the Bigness of the Ancients Statues there | Two Faces, one before and another behind, as offered Sacrifices to him on that Day, and the People in Crowds and all new clad went to Mount Tarpeius where Janus had an Altar: However though the same were a Feast and solemn der whose Protection the first Days of this Month STOLA, a long Robe in use among the were, and that on the said Day they also celeand Affeulapius, that stood in the Isle of the Tifiderations, the People did not remain idle, bu: STRENÆ, New-years Gifts; the Use of on the Contrary every one began to do someDegrees became to common in the Time of the to have obtained Admission of the others for the Emperors, that all the People went to wish him | rest of the Year, If they made fanus to be their ahappy Year, and each Man carried his Present | Friend at the Beginning of it: And as he preof Money according to his Ability; that being | fided over the Beginning of the Year, they holooked upon as a Mark of the Veneration and | ped for his Favour to themselves and their Efteem they had for their Princes; whereas Friends, if they could draw this God to espouse pow the Method is altered, and they are rather their Interest: They facrificed Hower and Wine the Great ones who bestow New-years Gists to him, which undoubtedly gave Occasion to upon meaner Persons. Augustus received so the Merriments and Debauches of that Day. much of it, that he was wont to buy and dedirate Gold and Silver Idols for it, as being unwilling to apply the Liberality of his Subjects to the Romans, had no particular Word to fignific his own private tile. Tiberius his successor, who | Strenz; for the Word Evapy 15 uds, which is to be did not love a Crowd, purposely absented himfelf on the first Day of the Year, that he might not used by ancient Authors, fignifies only agood avoid the Inconveniencies of the Peoples Vints, Beginning; that of garrow, in general a Prefent; who would have run in Shoals to with him a hapby New-year, and he disapproved of Augustus his receiving these Presents, for the same was not convenient, and must have put him to Charge to make his Acknowledgments to the People by other Liberalities: The People were fo taken up with these Ceremonies for the first fix or feven Days of the Year, that he was oblito make New-years Gifts any longer than for the fuft Day: Caligula who immediately succeeded Tiberius in the Empire, let the People underfland by an Edict, that he would receive the Newyears Gifts on the Calends of finuary, which had been refused by his Predecessor, and for this end he flaid every Day in the Porch of his Palace, where he readily received the Money and the Presents made him by the Crowd. Claudius his Successor disamulled what he had done, and by an Order forbad them to come and prefent him with any New-years Gifts. From thence forwards the Custom continued still among the People, as Herodian observes, under the Emperor Commodus; and Trebellius Pollio makes mention of it in the Life of Claudius Gothicus, who also attained to the Imperial Dignity.

why the Romans were wont to make Presents to and mutual Vows for one another, on the first It's the Question which ovid puts to Janus, who by the Noise of Cymbals. answers with a Gravity becoming himsels: It is, fays he, because all Things are contained in their Beginnings; and it is for that Reason, adds he, they drew Auguries from the first Bird they faw. In thort, the Romans thought there was fomething Divine in the Beginnings of Things: The was, as a Man may fay, the Beginning of the Body. They began their Wars with Auguries, Sacrifices and publick Vows; and to the Reaton the Year, and would make him propitious to knowledgment ordered the Gods to iwear by them, was because that he being Door-keeper lits Water, and that if they perjured themselves,

In short, the Custom of New years Gifts by to the Gods, they were in Hopes by this means

The Greeians amongst whom New-years Gifts were not in Ute, before they received them from met with in ancient Gloffaries, and which was Sannes in Philoxenus his Gloffary, is rendered Verbena, Strenua, because the faid Word fignifies a Branch, a Plant, such as Vervein was, of which at first, as we have told you, their Newyears Gifts confifted. Athenaus brings in Cynuleus reproving Ulpian for calling a New year's Gift emirouis, in all likelihood because that ged to make an Edict, whereby they were forbid | fignifies no other than a Thing that is given above a Gratification: The Way of fending New-years Gifts to Magistrates and Emperors did not cease in the first Ages of Christianity, after the Destruction of Paganism, as you may fee by these Verses of Ceripus already mentioned,

> Dona Calendarum, quorum est ea cura, parabant Officia, & turmis implent felicibus aulam : Conveil ant sutilum sportis capacibus aurum.

This Custom of solemnizing the first Day of the Year by Gifts and Rejoycings having paffed from Paganism unto Christianity, the Councils and lathers declaimed against the Abuse made thereof, as you may fee in. Tertullian and the fixth Council in Trullo.

STYMPHALIDES AVES; Birds of And here we might take Occasion to enquire an extraordinary Seize, which, they said, in their Flight obscured the Light of the Sun. They fed only upon Humane Fleih, but Hercules by Day of the Year rather than any other Time? the Helpof Minerva, drove them out of Arcadia

STYX, a River in Arcadia near Nonacris, its Water was of so cold and killing a Nature, it was present Poilon, wherewith Historians say, Alexander the Great was poisoned: Pausanias speaks at large of the Grecian Styx, and cites the Places in Homer and Hefod wherein it is mention-Head was accounted a Divine Thing, because it ed: The Poets made it to be a River in Hell, the folemn Oaths of the Gods were made by the Water of Siyx: The Fable fays, that Victory the Daughter of Siyx, having given Jupiter Why they facrificed to Janus on the first Day of Ashistance against the Giants, he by way of Acthey should be deprived of Life and Feeling | Nature of the Business in hand: For Example, for 9000 Years: Servius gives us the Reason of it they were about to choose a Magistrate; they this Fable, and fays, that the Gods being pof- wrote down the first Letters of the Candidates feft of all Blifs and Immortal, swore by Syx, Names, and gave as many of them to every one which is a River of Grief and Sorrow, as by a as there were Competitors for the Place. In the Thing that was quite contrary to them; and the Affemblies held for Receiving of a Law, they gave Oath was taken by way of Execration. Hefiod every one two, one of which was marked with thefe in his Theognis says, that when one of the Gods two Letters U. R. fignifying as much as uti rolyed, Jupiter sent Iris to fetch some of the Water gas, and the other only with an A, which denoof Sign in a Gold Cup, by which the Lyar was ted Antiquo, I rejelt the Law. In Matters of to swear, and if he perjured himself, he was to Judgments or Sentences to pass, they gave three be for a Year without Life or Motion, but it of them, one marked with an A, and fignified must have been a great Year that continued fe- Abfolvo, I acquit the Persons accused; the other veral Millions of Years.

of Perfwaiion, owned by the Romans, and called ment cannot pais, the Matter is not clear enough. Pirbo by the Grecians.

Secretary to the Emperor Adrian; his History they were given was named Diribitorium: They reaches to the Year of our Redemption 98, and went up to the Tribunal of the Conful, or of comprehends 144 Years.

the Romans either at the Choosing of Magistrates thought fit into the Urn and then the Centuria or cers of the Tribes, called Rogstores, who after- | Matter related to the Enacling of a Law : Prewith the Sentiments of their Tribes: This Method continued to the Year 615, after the Building of Rome, under the Consulfhip of Q. Calpurnius Pilo, and M. Popilius Lengs; when Gabinot a furticient Number of Suffrages for the enof Ballotting for the Chooling or Magistrates, that enjoyned the Feople from thence forward no longer to give their Suffrages viva voce, but that they should throw a Ballot into a Box or Urn, whereon the Name of the Person they gave Pluto, being as much as to say Summus Mawere minded to choose should be written. This nium, the Chief of the Manes. Law they called Tabellaria, because their Ballots Judges by a Law to give their Votes by Ballots the lowie Dileafe. in Matters of Judgments. All these Laws were SYLVANUS or SILVANUS. A God very good for the Commonalty, who before whom the Poets faid did preside over Forests and durit not give their Votes freely, for fear of Land-marks: Some made him to be the Son of offending the Great ones: And this Cicero tells Faunus; but Plutarch in his Parallels will have him us in his Oration pro Plancio: Grata est tabella to have been begotten incestuously by Valerius que frontes aperit, hominum mentes tegit, datque on his Daughter Valeria. Fenestella says, that eam libertatem ut quod velint faciant: And tis al- Pan, Faunus and Sylvanus were the same Deity: fo in the Agrarian Law called Vindex libertatu; The Luperci were their Privits, and their Feafts and in the Cornelius, Principium juftiffima liber- the Lupercalia. See Lupercalia, &c. tatu. Now thele Ballots were little pieces of SILVIUS POSTHUMUS, King of

with a C. Condemno, I condemn him; and the SUADA and SUADELA; the Goddeis third with these two Letters L.N. non liquet, Judg-

The Ballots were delivered at the Entry of SUETONIUS, named Tranquillus, Wrote a Bridge by the Distributors of them, who were the Lives of the first Twelve Emperors, and was called Diribitores, and the Place or Office where him who fate as Prefident of the Affembly, qui SUFFRAGIUM; a Suffrage, given by ciftellam deferebas, and threw what Ballot they for the Receiving of Laws, or in Judgments: Tribe whose Right it was first to draw the Lots The People for a long time gave their Suffrages gave its Suffrage, having done, they told the by Word of Mouth in Matters relating to the Suffrages; and the Crier faid with a loud Voice: Commonwealth, which were taken by the Offi- Prærogativa renunciat talem Consulem: If the wards acquainted the Prefident of the Affembly regativa legem jubet, or non accipit: The Magistrates afterwards ordered the Centuria of the first Class to be called; those of the Cavalry first and the Infantry next: When there were nius, Tribune of the People passed the first Law tituling of a Person to an Osfice, the People might chuse whom they pleased, and this in Latin they called, Non conficere legitima Suffragia, & non explere tribus.

SUMMANUS, an Epithet which the Poets

SYLLA, furnamed Lucius Cornelius, a Rowere named Tabella. Papyrius Carbo, who was man General of a Patrician Race; he was chosen also Tribune of the People, got another Law Quafter, and had a great Quarrel with Marius passed called Papyria in the Year 625, whereby the Consul, which proved small to the Commonthe People were required to give their Suffrages wealth of Rome, tor he banished divers Illustrious by Ballots in enacting of Laws: And Caffus, Citizens, and filled Rome with Blood and Slaugh-Tribune of the People likewife obliged the ter: He was furnamed the Happy. He died of Word, or other Stuff, made very narrow, and Alba, the Son of Afranius and Grandson to marked with feveral Letters, according to the Anew; he was named Sylvius because he was Birth happened to be after his Father's Death. SYRE ES. Sec Sirenes.

or Reeds of a different Length, joined together, by give the greater Authority to his Actions, wherein they blew, as Tinkers and Boors do and obtain more Eiteem for his Laws : It's now-a-days, who are the Inheritors of the easie to find the Moral of these Two Fables, wretched Mulick of the Satyrs. Pan was the lines the Names themiclyes lead us to it. By the Inventor of this instrument, who running like Nymph Egeria Necessity is only meant, which a hair-brained Fellow after the Nymph Syringa, doubtlefs is an ingenious Councellor and a very whom he was desperately in Love with, could bold Executioner of all forts of Deligns; and catch nothing but Reeds, into which the was the Mufe Izeira or Silence is necessary to the transformed: To comfort himself for his Lofs, he | Counfels of a wife Prince, whose Bengns ought made Mu cal Inftruments of those Reeds join'd to be kept secret. together, which bore the came of his Nymph, and were in Request with Shepherds: Ovid gives the Story of it in thefe Veries.

Panaque, eim prenfam fibi jam Syringe putaret, Corpora pro Symphie alamos tenuiffe paluitres : Dumque ibi fufpo at, motos in arundine ventos Effecisse sonua tenuem, similemque querenti; Arte nova vocijque Deum dulcedine captum, Hoc mibi concilium tecum dixife manebit : Atque ita dijparibus calamis compagine ceræ Inter se junctis nomen tenuisse puelle.

SYRTES, Two Gulphs in the farthest Part of Africa, full of quick Sands, and so called from the Word occave, to draw, because Ships at tracted to it, by the Current of these Gulphs are there swallowed up and ouried. The Poets represent them to us as if they were Moniters.

T.

Is a Confonant, and the 19th Letter in the D; and for that Reason they are often taught the Tustans the Art of Divination, as found put one for the other a attor at; which Cicero fays, L. 2. de Div. Ovid makes him to made Cuintilian railly those who scrupled to be the Son of the Earth; a Ploughman, faid he, write one indulerently for another, as fer for jed, ploughing his Field, and the Coulter-Iron of his haut for hand. I among the Ancients was a Nu- Plough happening to fink deeper than ordinary meral Letter, that fignified 16 .; but if a Tittle was put over it rignified 160000 .

Hospital; was a Place in Rome where disabled plied himfelf to teach the Tujcans the Way to Soldiers were maintained at the Charge of the know Things to come, wherein they became Government.

TABERNAE TRES. Cir. Epift. 12. ad Art, and particularly the Romans. Aniours. The Timee Laverns. It was a blace Alt of the Apollo, C. 25.

bom in a Forest, and Posibumus by reason his | Pompilius added to the Nine, and cansed to be worthipped at Rome: The King pretended he hal frequent Conversation with the Nymph Ege-SYRINX and SYRINGA, were Pipes ria, and the Mule Tacita, that he might there-

> TACITUS. See Cornelius Tacitus. TACITUS, a Roman Emperor, chosen by the Senate; he was a wife Prince and made good Laws: He was killed by the Soldiery after he had reigned Six Months: or as others will have it, died of a Leaver at Tarjus, in the Year of our Lord 274.

I ADA, a Torch, Pliny fays, they used Torches made of a kind of a Thorn, or as Dalechamp tays, of white Thorn, at Weddings. By the Description which Aristanetus gives of the Marriage of Acontius and Cydippe, he fays, there was Incense in their Torches, that so with their Light they might also afford a fragrant Smell-They likewise made use of Pine-branches, and other Trees which produce Pitch and Rofin, which made them call the Pine and Fir from the Word Tada, which tignines a Torch.

T - NARUS, a Cape in Laconia, near unto which there was a Cave by which the Poets feigned there was a Descent into fiell: There flood here, as Suidas says, a Temple dedicated to Neptune, where the Lacedemonians killed the Pilots who offered Sacrifices therein: Near unto it was the Place where Hercules pulled the Dog

Cerberus out of Hell.

TAGES, was the Son of Genius, according the Alphabet, which is very like unto to Festus, and the Grandson of Jupiter, who into the Ground, he faw a Child come out of a Clod of Earth, which the Coulter-Iron had turned TABERNA MERITORIA, Mars's up, who was called Tages and who prefently apfo skillful, that they taught several Nations this

TALARIUS LUD IS; Dice-playing; between Rome and Caput, topon the great Road Indeed, we have no proper Term whereby to called Via Appla, which was that that lead from express this Play in English; but 'tis certain, it Brandafton to Green, where resollers willing was performed with a fort of Gold or Ivory ly flogreat: There is men ion made of it in the Dice, which they shook as we do in a kind of a 1 Box, before they threw them: There was this TACITA, the Fenda M. Je, which Muna difference between them and ours, that whereas our Dice have fix Squares, because they are Cu-1 Mine in value, and the greater 80, that is the bical, those had but four, for they had but two greater in English Money was worth about 2331. opposite sides for the six which they ought to 6. 8 d. or as some 1331. and odd Money, and have, and they were conically shap'd. They the other 165 1. as some 100 1. as others 120 1. made use of them for Divination, as well as and after some 180. When you find nothing Playing; and they concluded on a good or evil added to the Word Talentum, then the common Augury, according to what came up. As they ufu- Attick or leffer Talent is meant : The Hebren ally threw four of them at a time, the best Talent was worth two of the Greeks; so that Chance was when four different Sides came up, twenty Grecian Talents amounted only to ten for these Squares they called by the Name of of the Hebrens; its the same thing in respect to fome Animals, as the Dog, Vulture, Bafilisk, Ge. the Drachma's, and Greek Mina; for two Greek or of some Deity, as Venus, Hercules, &c. Some Drachma's go to make one Hebrew, and two Gre-Authors have been of Opinion, that they were cian Mine the fame. marked with the Forms of Animals, or the Images of those Gods, and not with Numbers or piter's Son, who treating the Gods with a Sup-Dots as our Dice are: But if that be true, per, dreft his own Son Pelops for them, in orthose Figures or Images must have been applied der to try whether they could perceive it or each of them to fignifie some particular Num- no; there were none of them deceived but the ber; for 'tis certain, that if two of the opposite Goddes Ceres, who eat some of the Shoulder: Sides fignified one, and the other fix; and that the Gods conceived fuch a Horror at this Cruel. also of the two other opposite ones, one was ac- ty, that they condemned Tantalm to be tormentcounted three, and the other four : This Game ed with Hunger and Thirst in the midft of Wawas very ancient, feeing the Lovers of Penelope ters, and plenty of all forts of Fruits, in Hell. play'd at it in the Temple of Minerva, for where all of them vanished as soon as ever it was a Custom to play in the Temples; 'twas a he put forth his Hand to reach them. Lucian in Game used by old Men at Rome, as Augustus him- his Dialogue of the Dead makes him speak to Mefelf fays, but among the Grecians Childrens nippus in this manner: Play, as appears by the Description of an excellent Picture of Policlesus, by Apollodorus in Pliny, who there makes Cupid play with Ganimede; and by Diogenes Laertins, who fays, the Epbestans laughed at Heraclius, because he play'd with the Children.

TALASSUS, and TALASIO, and TA- the Hollow of your Hand? LASSIUS: a God whom the Romans made to prefide over Marriages, as Hymenaus was with ir, and when I fancy I have taken some in my the Greeks: They invoked him at Weddings, Hand, it prefently glides away. that they might prove happy; and here take! Men. That is strange! But what occasion have Livy's Account of the Origin of this Superstiti-I you to drink, since you have now no Body left on, when the Romans ravifn'd the Daughters of you; for that which was capable of Hunger and the Sabines, who came to Rome to fee the Plays Thirft was buried in Lydia, and the Soul hath no given there by Romulus, there was one very need of drinking and eating. beautiful Virgin amongst them, who was designed for Talaffius, a young Roman, that was mighti- Soul should undergo the same Chinge, as my ly beloved by his Fellow-Citizens, and to the Body. End she might not be forced out of the Hands of thole who designed her for him, they be- what is it you fear? Are you arraid to die of thought themselves to cry out, à Talajio, à Ta- Thirst, as if there were another Death after laffio; for u for Talathus. In fhort, the was pre- this? fented to him, and because it proved to be a. Tant. No, but that is part of my Punishment, very happy Marriage, the Romans called upon to be thirfty and yet have no need to be for

TALENTUM; a Talent; this Word with Thirst, and not Water. the Ancients one time fignified Weights, ano- | Tant. I do not refuse to drink, provided any ther time a Sum of Money, and fometimes a be given me. Piece of Money; the e were several forts there-, Men. Tantalus, be satisfied, you are not the of; that which Authors speak ofteneft of is the only one of the Dead that does not drink; for Attick lalent, of which there were two forts, all of them, who ever they be, having no Bodies,

TANTALUS, King of Phrygia, and Tu-

Menippus. Tantalus, why do you weep, and what Torment do you endure in this Lake where vou dwell?

Tantalus. Menippus, I die with Thirft.

Men. Are you to lazy, that you cannot ftoop to drink, or as much as take up some Water in

Tant. The Water disappears when I draw near

Tant. 'Tis my Punishment, Menippus, that my

Men. I believe it, fince you fay it, but tell me him at their Weddings, that so they might have Men. Tantalus, you rave, and if you have any as much Content in their Marriage as he had need to drink, 'tis of Hellebore, to cure you of an Evil contrary to the Madness of feeling the greater and the leffer; the leffer was 60 cannot drink; but all of them are not fo ex-

to quench ir. the was one Day upon the Walls of the Capitol, and beheld the Sabines going by, the was much taken with the rich Bracelets, which those People wore on their Left Arms; and this made her treat with Tatius, King of the Sabines, about delivering the Capitol up to him, upon Condition they gave her their Bracelets: Tarpeia gave up the Capitol, but the Sabines crushed her to Death with the Weight of their Shields: Some Authors impuse the Surrendring of the faid Place to Spurius Tarpeius, who was Governour, and affirm, that Romulus caused him to be thrown down headlong over that famous Work, which fince bore his Name, and wascalled the Tarpeian TARQUINIUS PRISCUS, before Rock.

was called Lucumon, who with all his Family came and fettled at Rome; and as he drew near the away his Cap, with which he play'd for some riod 4205,509 before Christ's Nativity; after the time in the Air, and then put it upon his Head Building of Rome 214 Years, in the 67 Olympiad. again: Tanaquilla his ite, who was a Tidian by Deicent and well skilled in the Art of Augury, gave her Husband a favourable Interpretation of Bapalpor. this Prodigy, and affured him he should be King, which came to pass accordingly; for he succeeded Ancus Marrius: He deteated the Sabines and Tuscans, the last of which submitted to him, and as a Mark of their nift Homage made him a Prefent of a Gold Crown, and a Scepter, at the Top of which there was an Eugle in Relievo, an Ivory emandered with Figures of various Colours, lays, There flood a Temple of Diana, in the Ille and 12 Lidors, acknowledging him for their King, and rightful Lord of the Twelve Divinons of the Infrant: When he had consulted the Augur, Actus Navius, in order to know of him whether what he thought of might be put in Execution, and the Augur having affured him of the fulfilling of it, ook a Razor, and cut a Stone with it in two: He died when he was Eighty Years or ge by a Blow given him on the Head with an Ax, by the Heirs of Ancus

TARQUINIUS LUCIUS; Tarquinius furnamed superbus, the Son of Tarquinius Prijeus, and King of Rome. As the Toundations of the Capitol were a digging up by his Order, they found a Man's Heat there newly out off. This Accident was taken for a Prodigy that prognofficated the City of Rome should one Day be the Mistress of the World; another Prodigy also happened, which was a firange Woman who came to Tarquin, and pretented him with Nine Volumes, which the offered to fell him for a very great Sum of Money; Tarquin returning them at that them in no Preferice, and asked him is he would is the Bull that carried Europa from Pkanicia in-treamly thirfly as you are, to as not to be able take the fix that remained at the same Price she had asked for the Nine: Tarquin looked upon TARPEIA; the Daughter of Terpeius. As this Proposal to be ridiculous, but the Woman then applying her self to the King, asked him ftill the same Price for the three that were left, which she had done for the Nine. Tarquin having consulted the Pontiffs thereupon, paid her the whole Sum. Those Books were found to be full of Predictions in Verse, which were thought to have been composed by Sibylla Cumaa, and were so much esteemed at Rome, that they created two Magistrates, whose Business alone it was to keep these Books, and to consult them as occasion required: They were called Duumviri: They had no recourse to these Books, but when the Affairs of the Commonwealth were very urgent, and that in order to find out a Way to expiate the Profigies, and avert publick Calamities. To quin was expelled Rome, after he had reigned 25 Years, and they let up a popular Government in the Year of the World 3545, of the Julian Pe-

TARTARA; by this Name Hell was called by the Ancients, and Homer names it

TAUROPOLIUM, or TAUROPO-LIO : Sacrifices of Bulls, which were offered to Cybele, the Mother of the Gods, to render Thanks to the Goddess of the Earth, for her teaching Men the Art to tame those Animals, and fit them for Labour: They also sacrificed black Bulls to Neptune, to denote the Fury of the Sea. Strabo, L. 14. Of bis Hiftory of the World, of Icaria, named ταυροπόλυ; and Livy, L. 4. Dec. 5. calls this Temple Tauropolum; and the Sacrifices offered therein to Diana Tauropolia: In the mean time Dioryfius in his Book de fitu orbu fays, That Diana was not called Tauropola from the People, but from the Multitude of the Bulls in that Country, and over whom the faid Goddels prefided, which was the Occasion of giving her the Name of Taurica. Diodorus Siculus, L. 3. Hift. relates that the Queen of the Amazons, who trained up her Daughters to Hunting and Arms, inflituted a Sacrifice called Taupononior. The Silver Medal of Aulus Toftbumus represents this handsomly enough; for you have Diana on one nde with her Crescent, flow and Quiver, and on the other a Bull facti-

TAURUS; a Bull; which anciently confifted of the great Sacrifices appertaining to the Pagan Religion: Its also the lecond Sign in the Zodiac, into which the Sun enters on the 21st of April: It confifts of 14 Stars: Those who have writ of tabulous Afronomy, fay, that this Sign to Candia: Others will have it to be Io, whom the Gods whom they adored, for fear of confi-Jupiter chang'd into a Cow, and afterwards ning them within too narrow Limits: Thus the placed in the Heavens among the Stars. There Persians who worshipped the Sun believed they are divers Mountains of this Name, and among should wrong his Power to go about to enclose the reft, one in Afa, that is extraordinary large him within the Walls of a Temple, who had the and high, they gave it several Names, because whole world for his Habitation: And therefore 'tis composed of many other Mountains; and when they ravaged the Territories of Greece, and Pleione, and one of the Pleiales, by whom Heaven and the Earth for his Habitation. Net Jupiter had Lacedamon, who was the Founder fequor, favs Cicero, leg. fecun. Magos Perfarum, of the City Lacedemon. There was a Moun- quibus audoribus Xerxes inflammaffe templa Gracia tain of this Name in Laconia, near Sparta, con- dicitur, quod parietibus includerent Deos, quibas which they were born, as Homer fays.

TEGEA; a City of Arcadia; Statius fays, that Pan and Mercuy, who were much honoured here, from hence took the Name of Ie-this Name that which the Greeks named Atlas, Temple to their Goddels Coronia, nor the Abewhich were the Figures of Men supporting the mians erect a Statue to Clemency, because they Out jettings of Cornishes in Architecture: An said, the ought to dwell in the Hearts of Men, Author who lived in these last Ages, thinks that and not in Places not capable to contain her, the Word Tlemon, which in Greek is TANLEY, as Statius fays; a Wretch that bears Misfortune with Patience, does not disagree with those Statues which in Architesture fustain the Cornishes of Buildings.

TELCHINES, the Sons of Minerva and Sol, or of Saturn and Aliepe: There are some Authors who lay, they were very wicked Persons, who bewitched People with their Looks only, and made it rain and hail when they pleafed; wherefore Ovid fays, Jupiter turned them into Rocks because of their Wickedness: Some there

Corybantes. See Corybantes.

ped the Earth under the Name of Tellus and lays, that Deucalion was the first who founded Tellumo, of whom Tellus was the Female and the Cities and erefted Temples for the Gods: Viother the Male; and so there was both a God and truvius says, that the Architect Pribits was the Goddeis of them: St. Augustine recites Varro's first who built a Temple at Priene; but Herodorus Words hereupon; Una easem terra habet gemi- and Strabo are for the Egyptians having been the nam vim, & maj ulmam, quod semina producat; & People who first built Temples and Altars to femininam, quod recipiat arque nutriat, unde a vi the Gods, and appointed Sacrifices. Livy infeminina diela est Tellus, Cavi masculina Tellumo: forms us, that Romnius was the first who built The lane I arth hath a double Virtue, viz. a a Temple at Rome to Jupiter Fereirius. Malculine for the Production of Seeds, and a Fe | Temples were built after a different Manner: minine for the receiving and nourishing of them: There was one fort of Temples called Ames or From this last it came to be named Tellus, and Parastates, because there were no Pillars or Pedifrom the other Tellumo.

Place in The flaty watered by the River Peneus: which was a temple of Fortune, the Particulars The Agreeableness of this Place has been the Oc. of which are not known. The fecond kind of of Pleature.

Nation to harbarous as not to acknowledge and lo: The littory which is in Bas-relievo in the worthip fome Deity; but there have been many Gable End of the Front, is recounted by Panjathe Greeks call it altogether by the Name of their Magi perswaded Nerves to destroy all the Temples he met with, for they feemed to con-TAYGETE; the Daughter of Atlas fine the Divine Majesty to Bounds, who had the fectated to Caftor and Pollux, at the Foot of omnia deberent effe patintia & libera, quorumque bie mundus omnis templum effet & domus. Zeno and and all the Scoicks would have no Temples built to the God, Diogenes fays, this World ferred them for a Temple; the Birbynians went up to Mountains when they were about worthipping I ELAMONES; the Romans called by of Jupiser; the Sicyonians would never build a > Nulla autom effigies, nulli commissa metallo Forma De.e, mentes babitare ac pedora gaudet.

The Ancient Germans worshipped the Gods in Woods only, as did also a great many other

There are fome Authors who attribute the Original of Temples to Janus, others to Faunus fome to Jupiter King of Crete, and many to Meare who confound them with the Curetes and rops or Eacus Jupiter's Son: There are some who will have the Egyptians or Arcadians to have TELLUS, the Earth, the Romans worship- built Temples to the Gods. spollonius Tyaneus

ments, but only iquare Pilasters, cailed Antes by TEMPE; a very pleasant and delightful the Ancients: Virruvius gives us a Model thereof, cation of giving the Name of Tempe to all Houses | Temple was called Profillus, because it had no Pillars but in the Front, fuch was the Temple of TEMPLUM, a Temple; there was no Ceres Elufina begun by Idinus and finish'd by Phi-People who would not build any Temples to nias, who lays, that near the Temple of Ceres

Top of the other, from between which the ble and enriched with fuch fine Ornaments that Priests went every Year to tike a Writing, they rendred their Names famous who built wherein was contained the Ceremonies that were them. The Defign of these Four 1 emples was to be performed at their Sacrifices during the fo well contrived, that the same was even ad-Year; and because the Ancients were went to mired in the Council of the Gods. The first of represent the particular Methods they used in these was the Temple of Diana begun by Creoffering Sacrifices in the Front of their Temples, lipton a Native of Crete and his Son Metagenes, and that the same in Respect to the Sacrifices at Epbesus of the Ionick Order, and which Deoffered in the Temple could not be done, be- metrius Diana's Slave and P.c. nius the Ephefian cause they varied every Year, it was thought fit finished: The second was that which the same to give this Account here, which shews one of Paonius and Daphnis the Milesian built to Apollo the main Particulars relating to these Ceremo- in the City Miletus, and which was also built nies, which was to take a Writing from between according to the Ioni. I Order. The third was those Stones wherein the Method was prescribed the Temple of Ceres and Proserpina at Eleusis, that ought to be observed at the Sacrifices offered during this Year. The third fort of Tem- of a Prodigious Bignels, without any Pillars on ple they called Ampkiproflylus, that is a double the Out-fide, that so there might be the more Profishes having Columns behind as well as be- room for Sacrifices, and to which Philo afterfore, fuch as the Temple of Concord was. The wards on the Time that Demetrius Philereus Fourth was called Periptere, because it had Pillars round it, and of this kind was a Temple built to Honour and Vertue by Mutius the Archines: Pliny fays, they went to the Top of the Water of the River of Alphans mixed together. Temple by a Pair of Stairs made of Vine-wood only. The feventh was a Temple called Hypa-offering of Sacrifices: The Temples of the Ancients were either round or iquare, the round confifted of two forts, viz. the round Peripters, and the Monopiers; the iquare were also twofold, one had no Pallars, or it any they were enhad Columns without fide. There were Four for with four Faces, was built in the Ox-Market,

Elufina there were Two great Stones one on the | Temples, tays Vitruvius, in Greece built of Marwhich Idinus built according to the Dorick Order commanded at Aikens, made a Proplus by fetting Pillars before it, to render the Building more Maj-frick, and also make more room for tect. The fifth fort of Temple they named those who were not yet admitted to the Myste-Fjeudodipterus, that is, a falie Dipterus; because ries appertaining to the Sacrifices of those Godit had not those Two Rows of Pillers which the defles. The Fourth was the Temple of Jupiter Dipterus has, and of this fort was the Temple of Olympius begun by Coffutius at Atbens, of the Co-Diana in the City of Magnifia built by Hermoge- | rinthian Order, very large and magnificent: Paunes Alabandinus the first and most famou. Archi- [fanias fays it had Pillars within, that made a Petect among the Ancients, who was the Inventor | riffilm; he also mentions a Ceremony represented of this kind of Temple. The fixth they called on the Front thereef, which was, that the Priefts Dipterus, because it had Two Rows of Pillars every Year on the 19th of February beforeared round it, and of this fort was the Temple of the Altar of Jupiter Olympius with Stuff made of Diana at Ephefus built by Cufiphon and Merage- Afnes, brought from the Protaneum, and the

The Romans built feveral Temple, at Rome, which was all of one Piece and made of one Vine and in other Parts of the Roman Empire to their Gods, fince Numa's Time; before, tays Tertulthrum, it was open at Top and exposed to the In- lian, the Romans worthipped their Gods without juries of the Air, of which fort was the Temple any Temples and Images, and practited their of Jupiter Olympius built at Athens by Coffutius, Religion without Ceremonies: They had Three a Roman Architect: Paulanias fays, the Altar Temples at Rome in Honour of Janus; the first was raifed, and there were leveral Steps to go was built by Remulus after he had made Peace with the Sabines, wherein he put Janus his The Temples of the Gods ought to be fo con- Statue with two Faces, inclinating that the Kotrived, that provided nothing were in the Way, mins and Sabines were united into one People, the Image which was in the Temple should look and that the two Kings Romulus and Tatius made towards the West, that so those who were to but one Head to govern them. This Temple offer Sacrifice, might turn towards the East and had but two Gates, which were only open in time the Image; and that in making their Prayers of War, and flut in time of Peace. Into this they might fee all at once, both the Temple and Temple the Confuls, after the Declaring War, that part of the Heavens lying to the East, and went accompanied with the Senate and Soldiery, that the Images feemed to rise with the Sun, to and opened the Gates thereof; here also they look upon those who prayed unto them at the took Possession of their Office, and for that Reafon it was faid they opened the Year. Janus his fecond Temple was built by Cn. Duillius in the Pear Market, after the fieft Funick War ; but being half ruined by time, it was rebuilt by the Emperor liberius, as l'acitus lavs, L. 2. Annal. cloted within the Walls of the Porch; the others | The third under the Name of Janus Quadrifrons, in a little Valley called the Velabrum, between to them, that was represented by a thick shape-Mount Palatine and the Capitol, and the Oc- less rough Stone. M. Valerius, one of the De. casion of it was : . The Romans, says Servius, puties, being come to Terracina with this Stone. at first represented Janus with two Faces, but after the Taking of Faleria in Tufcany, having met with a Statue of Fanus that had four Faces, they were defirous to have one like it at Rome, and to honour him the more, they built him a I emple with four Faces, each having 12 Niches in it, with a great Gate, which denoted the four Sealons of the Year, and the 12 Months: Varro upon Mount Palatine: Next Year M. Livius fays there were Twelve Altars dedicated to Ja and Claudian the Centors built a Temple on purnus, each of which represented a Month of the pose for her, and M. Junius Brutus dedicated Year. But besides these Three Temples, there the same 13 Years after. was also a Chappel, known by the Name of A des fani Curiatii, dedicated to fanus by that Horatius, who deteated the three Curiatii: There is also mention made of fanus Septimianus, tho' it was believed to have been an open Bu ld- a Medal of Aurelia Quirina, a Vestal Virgin.

over the Sabines, and twice over the Albans: and Triumphant Chariots represented. Histori-The third was dedicated by the Confuls A. Sem- | ing of this Temple above 2000 I. Sterl. Herethe provius Arrainus, and M. Minutius: Tho' others | Statue of that God was fet up of maily Gold 10 lay it was Tarquinius Superbus that built it, and that Foot high, with feveral Veffels of Emeralds, according to the Advice of Valerius Publicola, he and other precious Stones: The Sibylls Books made it the Place wherein the publick Treasure | were kept in this Temple. They built him also was kept: It was in this 1 emple Foreign Em | other Temples under various Names, as that of batladors were first received by the publick Jupiter Vindex, which 1. Papyrius Curfor vowed I reasurers, who set down their Names in the Re- to build him in a Fight against the Samnies; and gifters of the Treatury, and defray'd their Expences: There it was they kept the Minutes of Marriage-Contracts, and all Acts made by Parents; as also the Names of all the Citizens of and that of Jupiter Ultor, or Vindex, which M. Rome, writ upon Ivory-books: Those also who | Agripa dedicated to him. had obtained their ireedom went thither to hang up their Chains, and confectate them, according to the Testimony of Marrial:

Severus.

Hus curt geminà compede dedicat catenus, Saturne, tibi Zoilus annulos prtores.

of Cybele, the Mother of the Gods. The Ro- he erected a fine and spacious Portico for a Greek mans had no knowledge of this Deity till to- and Latin Library; the Daughters of Danaus wards the Year 548, in the Confulthip of Cor- were placed according to their Order in this nelius S. pio, furnamed Apricanus and P. Livinus, Portico, and over against them the Statues of when a Shower of Stones rell during the fecond Egyptus his Sons a : orfe-back; in the Court be-Funi. War. They had recourse to the Books tore the Temple were Four brazen Cows, which or the Silylls, and found that in order to drive were made by Myron; and by Propertius are the Carthaginians out of Italy, they must bring called Armenta Myronu, The Flock of Myron, the Mother of the Gods from Pesinuntia to Rome; which represented the Daughters of Piatus, wherefore they presently dispatched Ambaifa- King of signs, who were transformed into Cows dors to King disalus, who delivered the Goddels for preferring themselves before Juno. The ient Advice to the Senate of it, and told them it was necessary, together with the Ladies, to fend the richeft Man in all the City to receive her. The Senate pitched upon P. Cornelius Scipio Nafi. ca, who with the Roman Ladies went to receive her to the Port of Oflia, and brought her to Rome. where they placed her in the Temple of Victory,

TEM

TEMPLUM JOVIS; Jupiter's Temple; the most famous was that of fupiter Opt. Max. built at the Capitol, who from the Capitol was furnamed Capitolinus, as may be feen by ing for all comers and goers, built by Septimius where Jupiter is represented litting in the middle of his Temple, that was of a Square Form; he TEMPLUM SATURNI; the Temple holds his Thunderbolt in one Hand and his Scepof Saturn. The first Temple built to Saturn ter in the other, with this Title, Jupiter Optiwas that erected by Tatius, King of the Sabines, mus Maximus Capitolinus. This Temple was at the Capitol, after the Peace made between hift devoted by Tarquinius Priscus, and afterhim and Romulus; the second was consecrated by wards built by Tarquinius Superbus. Upon the Tullus Hoffilius, after he had triumphed 3 times Frontispiece of it were the Trophies of Arms He dedicated it and inflituted the Saturnalia. anstay Tarquinius Superbus expended in the Buildwhich Fabrus built after the Defeat of that People: That of Ve-Foun, or Jupiter Ionans, which Augustus caused to be boilt on Mons Capitolinus, > TEMPLUM JUNONIS; the Temple of Juno, which Camilla dedicated upon Mount Aventine after the taking of Veit.

TEMPLUM APOLLINIS; Apollo's Temple; that doubtless was the chiefest and most Famous of all, which was built by Augustus upon Mount Palatine, after his Victory over An-TEMPLUM CYBELES; the Temple tony and Cleopatra, at Actium : In this Temple fell off the Capitol; and on the other the People that built Temples to Minerva for having Fourteen Children of Niobe, the Daughter of taught them the Art to make Coloffus's; but Intalus, who died miferably for the Pride of having not prepared Fire for a Sacrifice they their Mother, who had incurred the Displeasure made to her, she in Spight withdrew to Albent, of Latons and Apollo. Upon the top of the Tem- where the was worthipped under the Name of ple the Sun appear'd fitting in a Charlot of mal- mapling, that is, a Virgin. They built a very is Gold, that gave to lively and bright a Light, magnificent Temple for her, and got her Statue that Men could not bear the Splendor of it. to be made by Phidias, all of Gold and Ivory 39 Feet Properties gives a Description of this Temple, high: They graved upon her Buskins the Fight L2. Eleg. 31. where he speak to Conthia: In between the Centaurs and Lapitha, round her this Temple there was a Bras Candleftick of Shield was represented the Battel fought by the wonderful Workmanship: It resembled a Tree Amazons against the Albenians, and on the inside and its Branches, to which there hung lighted the Battel of the Giants with the Gods: She had Lamps instead of Fruit; to these Branches the also several Temples and Chappels at Rome, but Poets fastned their Works, after they had got the most famous was that which stood upon them approved by the Publick.

TEMPLUM DIANE; the Temple of Diana; the first Temple built her at Rome was upon Mount Aventine, in the Reign of Servius Tul- Mercury in great Veneration, and the Germans lius, by whole Perswasion the Romans and the worshipped him as the Sovereign of the Gods, Lains erected her a Temple at a common as we are informed by Tacirus, to whom they of-Charge, and there met every Year to offer Sacrince in the Name of all the People, and to curium colunt, cui bumanis quoque bostiu litare fas terminate all their Differences; and to the End they might have an eternal Monument of this they placed before their Houses, as the Romans Confederacy, they graved the Conditions of this fet them in the Cross-ways and great Roads: Alliance upon a Pillar of Brass, with the Names | These Statues they called Herma, which rad of all the Cities comprized therein, and of the neither Arms nor Legs, and were only a great Deputies that had figued them. This Temple shapeless Lump of Matter, except the Head. was adorned with Cows-horns, the Reafon whereof Plutarch and Liey relate unto us. They Mars; Augustus built a Temple to Mars upon fay, that a certain Sabine, whole Name was Auto Corasius, having an extraordinary heautiful the Avenger; he had vowed to do it in the Phil-Cow, an Augur told him, if he offer'd the lippict War, to revenge his lather's Death, acfaid Cow to Diana in her Temple upon Mount acording to Ovid. Aventine, he should never want, and that his City should bring all Italy under Subjection: Autro upon this Occasion coming to Rome, one of his Servants acquainted King Servius with the Augur's Prediction, who confulting the Pontiff Cornelius thereupon, Auro was ordered to crificed the Cow, and in the mean time King litary Cognizances were purup; and the Senate Servius offered the same in Sacrifice, and affixed ordered that the Charlot wherein Cafar had triher Horns to the Walls of the Temple. Augufus built her a Temple in Sicily after the De Commenciation of his Victories. Sicily; on the Frontispiece of the faid Temple of Venus; Cafar Augustus built a Temple to Vehe caused three Legs to be graven, as a Symbol mus Generix, which flood in the publick Place of Trinacria or Steils, with this Inscription, Im- that Julius Cafar made in Reme. Person Cafer. Strabo, L. 14. o his Description TEMPLUM VESTÆ, the Temple of of the World, says there was a Temple of Diana Vefia; the Romans built it round as supposing that Diana was not named Laurepola from the Palladium, by conveying it through the Midtt People, but from the Bulls, which were very null of the Via facra, and carrying it into the 1 slipements in that Country. merous in that Country.

Gates of this Temple were made of Ivory, up- | TEMPLUM MINERVE; the Temon one of which might be seen the Gauls, who ple of Minerus: The Rhodians were the first Mount Aventine, mentioned by Ovid, L.G. Fast.

TEMPLUM MERCURII, the Temple of Mercury, the Greeks and the Romans had fered Humane Sacrifices; Deorum maximum Merbabens. The Grecians erected Statues to him, which

TEMPLUM MARTIS; the Temple of Mons Capitolinus, inscribed Marti Ultori, to Mars

Templa feres, Emevillore vocaberis Ulior : Voverat, & fuso latus ab tofte redit.

Dio, L. 50. of his Roman History, fays, that Augustus built to Mars the Avenger a Temple on the Capitol, where their Enfigns and other Mi-

TEMPLUM VENERIS; the Temple

Livy, L.4. Dec. 5. calls the faid Temple Tauro- into this Temple, and the Goddess was served polium, and the Sacrifices offered there Truropolia; by the Vertal Virgins: The Palladium brought however. Diomitius in his Book de fitu Orbis. taxs. by Aneas from Try was deposited here, and when however, Dionyfius in his Book de fitu Orbis, [ass,] by A neas from Troy was deposited here, and when the Temple was burnt, the Veftals faved the that Diana was not named Taurepola from the pass, time by conveying it through the Midfle ror's Palace, the Figure of this was to be seen on Lording to the Order he received from his Mo. the Reverse of the Medals of Vespatian and Julia ther Livia, Augustus his Wife. Pia, which was only a finall Statue of Pallas hold- TEMPLUM PIETATIS, the Temple the Temple of Ceres Elufina of the Dorick Or- Breafts, lived. der, which was begun by Idinus and finished by Pillars in the Front thereof.

NORIS; the Temple of Vertue and Honour built him, and a Statue made of Gold and Ivobuilt by the Architect Murius by Marius his Or- ry by Trasimedes the Parian: They built him a der, this Temple might have been reckoned of Temple at Rome in a little Illand formed by the Number of the most excellent Buildings, the Tiber after his Image had been brought had it been made of Marble, and that the Mag- thither from Epidaurus under the Form of a nincence of the Matter had been answerable to | Serpent. the Greatness of the Defign. St. Augustine speaks | The Temples of the Tutelary Gods, says of this Temple, and lets us know that the first Vitruvius, as well as those of Jupiter, Juno and Fart of it was dedicated to Vertue, and the o- Minerva, were scituated in a high Place, that ther to Honour, as a Toundation of good Mo- fo from thence they might fee the Walls of the rality, which Vierucius also intimates by some- City, those of Mercury, Isis and Serapis were in thing particularly related by him, which St. Au. the Market-place, those of Apollo and Bacchus gujine does not mention, and that is, that the near the Theater; that of Hercules in the Cir-Temple had no Posticum or Back-door as most out, if there be no Place particularly tet aside to of the rest had; for that does intimate, that we perform their Exercises in, nor any Amphimust not only pass through Vertue to attain to theater; that of Mars in the Field without the Monour, but that Honour is also obliged to re- City, as well as that of Venus which ought to pais through Vertue, that is, to persevere be near the Gates: The Reason hereof might therein, and acquire more of it.

STRIS, was built by Sigila at Preneste, where and Mars to stand without the City, to the end the Figure of the Goddels was gilt: the Pave- that they might deprive young People and the inlaid A ork.

TEMPLUM HERCULIS, the Temple of Hercules built near the Circus Magnus. LUCIS, the Temple of Cafter and Tollax by might caule, who presided over Fire, and also that food in the Circus Haminius.

the ma, which the Phanicians in their Language zens, and fecure them against the Attempts of called II-liegabalus: He was worthipped at Rome their lenemies. The Temple of Ceres thould by zinioninus from him furnamed Heliogabalus, also be built without the City in a remote Place, who bast rim a Temple on Mount Palatine, and whither they were not obliged to go but with ner, a Lampridus fays, he would not only when they offered Sacrifice, because that Place alour + + 7 mi.

ple of the rev. which Clodius built upon Mount observed at Rome, for the Temple of Mars the zwinting, or riched with Brass-pillars and beau- Avenge, flood in that called Augurus hi Place, tined with everal curious Stat les made by the and that of Venus in the Place of Julius Cafar:

Temple of H.p. ine's, to whom the R mans bris, Valean. Mala Fortuga and All nefs. built a Tempural dan A ton, and got the Statue | T | KMINALIA, the healt of Landof that Goodes to be made by Archetia furna- marks, No. 18th no. 18th Effices, to prevent med Pettes or Seatuary, that coit Lucalus Sixty Men from encreache, upon their Neighbours

ing her Spear in one Hand and her Shield in of Piety dedicated by Attitius in the Place called Locus Romanus, where that Woman who nourith-TEMPLUM CERERIS ELUSINÆ; ed her Father in Prison with the Milk of her

TEMPLUM ÆSCULAPII, the Tem-Philo, who made it a Prollylus, having added ple of Afculapius, the God of Phylick; He was at first worshipped at Epidaurus a City of TEMPLUM VIRTUTIS & HO-Stavonia, where he had a magnificent Temple be found in the Writings of the Turan Arufpices, TEMPLUM FORTUNE EQUE- who would have the Temples of Venus, Vuican ment of the faid Temple comifted of Mosaick or Mothers of Families or many Opportunities to debauch themielves, by the Romoteness of Venus Temple, and free Houses from the Danger of Fires by drawing out of the City (in offering TEMPLUM CASTORIS & POL- Sacrifices to Vulcan) all the evil and cts, that Defby placing Mars his Temple wi hone the Walis, T. MPLUM SOLIS, the Temple of prevent Morders and Quarrels among the Citihave releaved the Sacrifices of the Romans but ought to be used with much Respect and great Purity of Mann as. In the mean time we do not TEM. LUM LIBERTATIS; the Tem- and thete Precipies of the fullan Analysis were Nay, there were feveral temples of the mui-T. M. LUM FOE IC! TATIS, the chievous perties within the City, as table of Fe-

[Land , and for the end he inflireded weatly TEM. LUM CONCORDIÆ; the Sacrofices agon there Landonicks, that to Re-Temple of Concord, dedicated by Tiberius ac- ligion might be conjoined with Juffice, and that were accounted as so many Gods, they having her Hersbe, they believed she walked up and no other Representations of the God Terminus. They facrificed Wheat-cakes with the first Fruits of the Field to him, but no Animal, for they ted to her in one of the Illes of the Ocean, where would not have the Stones blooded, because the of Blood: However, this Appointment of Numa bloody Sacrifices, for we find by Cvid and Horace Arrival was celebrated with Leftivals and pub-Terminus, Spargitur & caso communis Terminus agno, Nec queritur lactens cum fibi porca datur.

TERMINUS, a God confifting of square Stones, to which the Ancients sometimes added a Head, which they perfumed, and whereon they fet Crowns, which they wrapped up in Linnen, and were made use of to diffinguish the Bounds of Fields and every Man's Estate: Terminus on the Revers of a Silver Medal of Augustus is represented over a Thunder-bolt to express the Device of that Emperor, Festina lente: Terminus which should not be removed from his Place not illy denoting Slowness, but a Thunder-bolt on the Contrary Swiftness, with which it ought to be joined. Numa Pompilius dedicated a Temple to him upon Mons Tarpeius, which was open at Top. His Feafts which were celebrated in February were called Terminalia. It was forbidden both by the Greek and Roman Laws to take away thefe Land-marks, as also by the Law of Mofes. in Deuteronomy; Thou shalt not remove thy Neighlour's Land-mark.

TERPSICORE, one of the 9 Mules, to whom theyattribute the Invention of Dancing and Balls. TERRA, the Earth, a Sublunary Globe looked upon by the Philosophers to be a simple, cold and dry Element; modern Aftrologers maintain that the Earth moves round the Sun; Alexander lent Diogenettus and Beso to measure the Earth; the Romans also fent Zenodorus, Theo-Encomium upon the Earth, where he fays, that we have with Reaton given it the Name of Mother, and that God has bestowed it upon us for our Palace, as Heaven is his. The Pagans called it the Mother of the Gods, because they meant those Gods who had been Men, and they worshipped it under the Name of Rhea, Cybele, Ceres, Atergatis, Ijis, Tellus, Ops, Vejta and Proferpina: . he Temple of Vefta at Rome was of a round Ferm, to denote the Rotundity of the Name of Mata, which tignified a Nurte or Mo. Children could not make a Will before they erery Year they might refresh their Memories ther. The Germans, says Tacinus, worthipped the Earth as our Common Mother, and called down the World, and intermedled with the Affairs of Men; they had also a Forest conjecta-'fhe had a covered Chariot, that none durft draw nigh to but her Sacrificer: He took notice of Agreement, and not by Force with the Effution the Time when the went into it, and very respectfully accompanied her Charlot which was did not continue always, as to the Point of un- | drawn by two Heifers: where ever the came her that they factifieed Swine and Lambs to the God lick Rejoicings: It was not then lawful for them to wage War, every Man locked up his Arms, and Peace and Reft reigned every-where: Then the Sacrificer brought her back to her Temple, wearied with the Conversation of Men, after which the Chariot-Covering and even the Goddels her felf, if we must believe them, plunged down into a Lake, where she was washed by the Slaves, whom they presently drowned. TESTAMENTUM, a Testament or

Will, was a folemn and authentick Act, whereby a Man at his Death exprest his Will concerning the Disposal of his Eftate: The Laws which gave Men Power to make Wills, and to extend the same even beyond their Lives, thought these Wills ought to be exprest with Care, and for that end feveral Effential Solemnities accompanied them to make them valid. That of the Twelve Tables, was the most ancient Law we hear mentioned among the Romans, and the first that introduced the conferring of this lower upon the Father of the Family, that is, upon him that was the Master and Fossessor of his Priviledges, and not in the Power of another, from whence it follows that the Children of the Family who were under the Authority of their Fathers, could not make a Will; but herein Soldiers were excepted, tho' the Sons of a Family, the Imperial Constitutions impowered them to dispose by Will the Goods obtained in War, which were called Bona caftrenfia aut quafi caftrenfia, and over which the Father had no Power. Slaves could not make a Will, because they had nothing of their own which they could dispose of, nay, they could not do it with the Consent of their Mafters: All fuch as were condemned to die or to the Authority of Julius Cafur. Pliny makes an the Gallies, could make no Will after their of Punishment, but even their Wills that preceded were not valid, for they, by being con demned to undergo a Capital Punishment, Ceased to be Citizens: It was the fame thing in respect to those who were condemned to perpetual Banishment and to Strangers, for the one lost the Right of Citizens, and the other had never got it of the Emperor, Those who were given for Hoftages could make no Will, at leastwife unless the same were made before their Captivity, became of Age, that is, Boys must be full Four-| whereon Actors appear and act, whereas the teen and Girls Twelve.

Veffa, and Saturn's Sifter, she was Neptune's Wife, Cators were contained: Their ancient Theaters and the Mother of all the Nymphs and Rivers were only built of Wood, and served but once, according to Hefiod in his Theogram. See under just as the Stages or Scaffoldings we now erect try and Agriculture.

ing failing near unto certain Islands in the Egean | but Scipio Nafica did to vigoroutly oppose it, that Sea, they were suddenly becalmed, when a their Design miscarried. Voice was heard which came from the Islands, and called Thamus; he suffered himself to be cal- carried to Rome the Vessels appertaining to a faled twice without answering, but answered the mous Theater there, and they were made use third time: Then the Voice commanded him, of at the Plays atted at his Triumph, some will that when he arrived at such a Place, to cry have him to have been the first Author of Woodthat the Great Pan was dead : All the Men in the en Theaters at Rome. M. Scaurus, fays Solinus, Ship were much frightened therewith; they con- undertook to build a very coftly Theater, en-Julted whether Thamus ought to obey the Voice, riched with extraordinary Ornaments: It had but Thamus concluded that if when they were 360 Pillars in Three Rows one upon another, come to the Place appointed they had Wind e- whereof the first was Marble, the second Chrinough to pass by, he should say nothing, but if stal, and the third was of gilt Pillars; there were they were there becalmed, he must pursue the 3000 Brais Statues between the Pillars. Curio Order he had received: They were surprized built a Kind of a suspended and folding Theawith a Calm in the faid Place, when presently ter, which might be divided into two at Pleahe cried out aloud that Great Pan was dead; he lure. Pompey built a Stone Theater with fo had scarce done speaking, when they heard solid a boundation, that it seemed to have been Groans and Complaints round about them, as if built to last for ever. There was a kind of an a great many People were surprized at and af- Aqueduct made here, to convey Water into all flicted with this News: All the People in the the Rows of the Theater, either to cool the Ship were Witnesses of what happened; the Place, or to quench the Thirst of the Spectators. Noise whereof in a short time reached as far as Julius Casur crected one of Stone near the Ca-Rome; and the Emperor Tiberius being defirous pitol, and Marcellus built another at the farther to fee Thamus himself, appointed a Meeting of all End of a Piece of Ground called Argiletum at those learned in Pagan Theology, that he might the End of the Tujcan-Street by the Foot of the know of them who this Great Pan was, and they Capitol in the second Division of the City. It concluded he was Mercury and Penelope's Son. was confectated by Augulius. There were no Thus it is Cleombrosus relates this Hiftoryin a leis than Four Theaters in Campus Flaminius Dialogue where Plutarch treats of Oracles; and only; Trajan built a pompous and magnificent he fays, he had it of Epitherses his Grammar one, which was ruined by Adrian. Mafter, who was in Thamus his Snip when the The principal Parts of the Ancients Thea-Thing happened. We may fay this Great Pan ters were the Scene or Building which reparated who died in Tiberius his Reign was Christ, whose between the Prosenium and Postscenium, or Place Death caused a general Grief and Consternation whither the Actors withdrew, and where they among the Demons, who could not now as had their Paintings, Tapiftry-works, Curtains formerly exercise their Tiranny over Men.

nitying a Reward to be conferred on him who first Actors, who contented themselves with the had shew'd some wonderful Thing to the People: Shade of Trees, to divert the Spectators with It was a Gut confifting of Denarii, which they and so the meanest at first confisted of no other were to pay who were present to see it; and this than Trees set together and well matched was like unto the Prize called Niceterium at the Greens: They made them sometimes of plain Clympick and Circonfian Games, and to the Bra- | Linnen Cloth, or shapeless Boards, till Mens Leia, a Prize among the Ancients, given to those Luxury caused them to be adorned with the that acted on their Theaters, Dancers, Panto- best Paintings, and made use of the richest Hangmimes or Jumpers.

entended it faither than the Sence we take it his Time they rested satisfied with Diversity o in; for hereby we mean no more than a Stage, Columns and Statues without any other Orna

Ancients by it meant the whole Circumference TETHYS, the Daughter of Calum and of the Place within which the Actors and Speupon some extraordinary Occasions. M. vales THALIA; one of the Nine Muses whom rives Messals and Calfins Longinus when Centurs the Poets made to be the Inventreis of Geome- took the Freedom to far as to begin a Stone Theater upon Mount Palatine, near the She-THAMUS, a Pilot whose Ship one Even- wolt's Picture that suckled Romulus and Remus,

L. Mummius after he had deftroved Corinth.

deligned for Machines and Mulick. The Scene THAUMAIRON, a Greek Word fig- took its original from the Simplicity of the ings to fet them out. C. Puleber was the firft THEAIRUM; the Theater, the Remans who adorned the Scene with Paintings, for till the Scene with Silver: One Petreius gilt it, Catulus The Orchestra among the Grecians made a part covered it with Ebony, and Nero to entertain Ti- of the Scene; but in the Roman Theaters none ridates gilt the whole Theater. As for the Curtains, Hangings, &c. the one served only to diflinguish and adorn the Scene, the other were Doors of the Theaters called Hofpitalia, were for the Conveniency of the Spectators: Those those by which they made firange Actors enter, of the Scene represented somewhat of the Fable that is, those who were to appear to be of anothat was acted: They had a kind of Versatile Scene, which was a juspended Triangle, and fuch as could eafily turn about, and on whose elie it was the Place whereby they entred into Curtains some things were painted, that had a the Scene, as from another Place than that relation either to the Subject of the Fable, or Chorus, or Interludes. The Sails served instead of Coverings, and they made use of the same for the Conveniency of the Spectators only, wherewith they were shaded from the Heat of the Sun. Casulus was the first Inventer of this of Calphurnius, who mentions Chairs for Women Conveniency; for he caused the whole Theater and Amphitheather to be covered with Sails, extended with Lines tied to the Masts of Ships, or pieces of Trees fastned in the Walls. Lentulus Spinther made them of such fine Linnen as was never before known: Nero not only dyed them Purple, but also added Gold Stars thereunto, in the midft whereof he was painted in a as were fet above them, on the top of the Thea-Chariot, all of it wrought with Needle work, ter, between the Pillars of the Portico, which with so much Art and Judgment, that he appear'd like an Apollo in a Serene Heaven, who moderating his Beams form'd a Day in respect to its Light, which was agreeable to a fine Night. The Machines were very ingenious; with them they drew Heroes up to Heaven, made the Gods deicend upon Earth, and repreboth Vocal and Instrumental Musick.

The Scene in the Theater of the Ancients generally comprehended all that belonged to the Actors: It consisted of four Parts, viz. Profeenium, Scena, Posiscenium and Hyposcenium. The Profeenium was a raited Place where the Actors play'd; and is that which we call the Theater upon the Seats of the Theater, whether the or Stage; and this Profeenium confifted of two fame were Pillows, or somewhat else to fit on. Parts in the Grecian Theaters, the one was the Profeenium purely to called where the Actors acted, the other was the Legeion or Thymele, or in Baoria, built by Cadmas, and famous for the Bomos, where the Chorus came to rehearte, Birth of Bacchus, and Death of Oedipus; they called Bomos and Ara, because of its square Form that was like an Altar : Scena was the Front of the Building, by which the Profeenium was separated from the Postfeenium, which was the Attiringnium, according to Poliux, was before the Profeenium, and reached from the lowest part of the the Projectium was railed 12 Foot high, for that convenient in Winter, because of the Rivers

ment: Aniony to appear extraordinary adorned; of the Romans was too low to admit of Pillars: of the Actors went down to the Orchestra, which was taken up with Seats for the Senators. The ther Scene than the common one, wherein they entered by a Door that was in the middle, or where the principal Actors were. Pollux fays, that one of these Doors which was the Left, was the Door of a Prison: Lipsius will not allow that they fate any where elfe but upon the gradual Seats of the Theater, and explaining these Verses to fit on,

> Venimus ad sedes ubi pullà sordida veste Inter famineas fpedabat turba cathedras,

He thinks they ought not to be taken for Chairs placed upon the Steps of the Theater, but such crowned the Theater; which he proves by Suetonius, who fays, that Augustus made a Law that torbad Women to fit upon the raifed Seats of the Theater, and were allowed to place themselves no were but above among the common People. Propertius also intimates the same thing, when he tays in order to express the Prohibition of his fented Hell, Palaces and Prifons: They used Miffress, that he should not look upon her, when fhe was at the Play, Colla cave inflectas ad summum obliqua Theatrum.

But for all this Vinuvius informs us, that in Augustus his Time, and so on, they laid some thing

THEBÆ; Thebes; there were several Cities of this Name, the Chief of which was that and the Pantonimes atted their Parts. It was will have it to have been thus named from the Syriac Theba, which fignifies an Ox, because this Animal conducted Cadmus thither: Varro affures us, that Thebes is a Baoric Word, fignifying Hillocks, and that the same was still used in his time place behind the Stage, whither the Actors among the Sabines, who were descended from withdrew and dreft them.elves. The Hypofee- | a Greek Colony: But Paufanias fays, this Name was given it by a Daughter of Afopus, whose Name was Thebæ. In the mean time all thefe Orchestra, to the Level of the Profeenium: This Opinions are ill grounded fince the Word Thebes Author tays it was adorned with Pillars and Sta- is Phanician, and fignifies Dire, and this Name tues, which shews that the said Hyposcenium could | was given it, because it was really a dirty City. be no where but in the Greek Theaters, where | Diexwebus speaks thus of it; Thebes is very in-wherewith 'tis watered, the Winds that blow | her Father Laban's Idols ; Rathel furata eft Idola upon it, and Snow and Dirt wherewith 'tis patrie fui: The Hebrew Text has Theraphim inniled.

whom Clemens Alexandrinus does not diftinguish | furatus es Deos meos? Eth Elohai: Its not withmuch from Ceres, in the fearful Account he out Reason that the vulgar I ranslation, and the gives of her obscene Mysteries: But Diodorus | Septuagint have taken Theraphim for Laban's Idols, Si ulus in the Relation he gives us of the Theo- which Rachel hid in the Baggage and fat upon logy of the Cresians, represents her quite other- them. When Michal faved David when he wile, for he makes her to be Sifter to the Titans, was purfued, she put the Theraphins in his room and Miffrels of Oracles, Laws and Sacred Ce- in the Bed, to amule those who looked for him; remonies: Themu vaticinandi artem, Jacrorum ri- Hofea fays, the Children of Ifrael were during a tus, & leges Deum cultui servientes princeps informavit, & qua ad bonam jurisdictionem ac pacisstu- and Theraphims. We find in Ezekiel the King dia pertinent, edocuit. Quin & ipfum Apollinem, quando responsum editurus est, Semioreveir, his Idols, that he might know of them what was Themidu munus obire dicimus: quot Themis nimi- to come: And this made St. Augustine believe oum inventrix oraculorum extiterit. This Por- that Rachel ftole her Father Lagan's Theraphins traiture feems to represent unto us a Moral Dei. for no other end than to learn of them the Way ty, rather like Vertue, Juffice and Wildom than | Jacob should take in his I light. an Hiftorical Goddeis; and hereof the Readers may be farther convinced, if they do but take the Athens, who was Cotemporary with Hercules, Pains to examine Hefiod's Verses upon the same and related to him, and so was the frequent Ibemis; Postea duxit Jupiter splendidam Themin, &c. Its no more than an Allegory of Ju- He let upon one named Sciron, who took Deftice, which produced Laws, Rules, Rights, light to drown all Paffengers he met with in the Peace, and at last fixed Mens Fortunes, punishing their Vices, and rewarding their Vertues.

The Word Themu in all probability comes from the Hebrew Ibam, perfectum & integrum effe. It might also come from the famous Thummim, illustrious Exploit was the killing of the Minowhich was one of those precious and mysterious Stones were by the Mofaick High-Prieft, whole Luttre ierved the Ifraelises for Oracles when they consulted God, as Fosephus has explained the Scripture, and Tradition of the Synagogue. Ovid speaking of the Time of Deucalion's Deluge, lays, Themu then pronounced Oracles:

Fatidicamque Themin, quatune oracla tenebat.

Lucian speaking of the same Subject, says, Cum regna Themis Tripodasque teneret.

The Poets will have the Earth to have been the first that delivered Oracles, then Themis, and lastly Apollo: Ammianus Marcellinus gives us another Etymology of the Word Themis, deducing it from the Greeck Tedeinera; The Marriage of Aupiter and Themis according to this Author was nothing but the Divine Wildom and Prescience which lie in the same Bed, and reign upon the fame Throne as he. Plutarch in his Roman Que ftions fays, that Carmenta was named Ikemis, and adds the was furnamed Carmenta quali carens mente, because the Divine pirit of Prophetie took place of Man's Spirit.

THERAPHIM, an Idol; when Jacob with his Family withdrew in order to return to flead of Idola. Laban purined Facob, and com-I'HEMIS; a Goddels of the Ancients, plained of his being robbed of his Gods: Car long Captivity without Altar, Sacrifices, Enbod. of Babylon consulted his Theraphims which were THESEUS; the Son of Egaus, King of Companion of his Adventures and greatCourage: Sea, he revenged the Cruelties of Procruftus. who miferably quartered the Bodies of those that fell into his Hands: He vanquished the Marathonian Bull, and Caledonian Boar; but his moft taur, who was that up in the Labyrinth of Crete: As he went with Pirithous to Hell to fetch back Proferpina, he was there detained by Pluto, and could not get out but by the Favour of Hercules: He retired into the Island of Serros, where he was flain by King Lycomedes.

THESMOPHORIA; Feafts instituted in Honour of the Goddel's Ceres, otherwise called Cerealia. See Cerealia.

THETIS, a Sea-Goddels, the Daughter of Chiron, or rather according to Homer, of Nereus and Doris, who was beloved of Fupiter, but being informed by Prometheus, that if he enjoy'd her, he should get a Child that should disposses him of the Kingdom of Heaven, he gave over the Intreague: And this we are informed of by Lucian, in a Dialogue between Prometheus and Ju-Prometheus. If I tell you whither you are going, will you believe me?

Jupiter. Why not? Prom. You go to lie with a Nercid. Jup. Suppole it should be so?

Prom. You will get a Child who shall dethrone you, as you have done your Father, at leaftwife the Destinies threaten it; and therefore you will do well not to go.

Fup. I'll believe you for once. fupiter gave Theris to Pelæus; and this Wedat a lather have in Palefline, Racket privately ftole I ding was celebrated by the Golden Apple, which which was written, It is for the most beautiful. The Word Tethys comes from Tingn, Nutrix, because it nourishes all Sublunary Bodies, and even the Stars themselves with its Moisture. Some took Tethys for the Earth, because the Ocean embraces it, as if the were his Wife: Now if Tethys be taken for the Earth, the Name might be as well deduced as that of the Titans from the Phxnicians or Hebrew Word Tis, Lutum: But yet 'tis much more common to take Techys for the Sea it felf: There was another Thetis, to whom Tethys was Grand-mother, for Dorn who married Nereus, and had Theris by her, was the Daughter of Oceanus and Teslys; and fo Teshys was the Grand-mother of Theria, who married Peleus, and bare Achilles to him.

THYESTES; the Son of Pelops and Hippodamia, Father of Egiftus, and Atreus his Brother, who made him eat the Children he got on his Sifter-in-Law. In Seneca's Tragedies you have the Sun disappearing and obscured with Darkness, when Aireus tore Threstes his Brother's Children in pieces and made him eat them; and Thyestes on his part, who had committed a Crime no otherwise than thro' a Surprize and Ignorance, by having to do with his own Daughter, without knowing her to be fo, conceived such an Horrour for the Fact, that he pray'd Juniter to dart all his Thunderbolts at his Head.

> Faculare flammas, lumen ereptum polo Fulminibus exple.

THYMELE, a certain noted Dancer, whom Domitian took Delight in: Some Songs made in Honour of Bacchus were called Thymelia from his Name: And all the Perfons belonging to the Stage, who danced and fung in the Interludes were also called Thymelici, and the Place where they performed their Parts Thymele.

TIBERIUS, a Roman Emperor, Son to the Empreis Livia, who was adopted and made Partner in the Empire and Tribunicial Power by Augustus: By his Medals we and he was fat and tall and had also large Eyes: Suetonius observes fomewhat very extraordinary in Respect to this Prince's wes, that he could fee as well in the Dark when he awoke, as at Noon-day, which shews there was a great deal of Fire and Subtilty in his Nature: The same Author says, that besides this he had a fixed Look, and extended his Neck fo as he walked, and was oftentimes fo thoughtful, that 'twas a hard Matter to get a Word from him: Augustus taking Notice of Hell, and a Revenger of Murders, as her Name his Air and Deportment, took him to be arrogant, though he endeavoured to excule him, of the Mind; he had a finall Chin that was a I his Father, but he quitted it in Favour of Saturn

Differed threw into the Hall, and fell as on purpose | a little turned up which was a Sign of Cruelat the Feet of Venus, Pallas and Juno; and about ty, and indeed he was cruel, for he put his Wife Julia to Death, and flew Sempronius : Tiberius was smoothered with the Bed-cloaths at the Age of 78. He was very famous as long as he continued a private Man, or commanded under Augustus, having the Art to conceal his Vices and discover his Virtues.

TIBIA, a Pipe, used among the Ancients in their Comedies: The Title of their ancient Comedies ran thus, Egerunt L. Ambivius Turpio L. Attilius Praneflinus : Modos fecit Flaccus tibiis, paribus dextris & sinistris: This Comedy was acted by the Company of L. Ambivius Turpio and L. Attilius of Prenefte: Flaccus invented the Mulick, wherein he made ute of equal Pipes on the Right and Left: There is nothing about which the Ancients differed so much as about the Pipes which they called Right and Left, equal and unequal: The Pipers always play'd upon two Pipes at once in their Comedies : That which they touched with the Righthand was called the Right for that Reason, and that with the Left must consequently be termed the Left. The first had but a few Holes and made the Base, the other had more and a clearer and fharper Sound: Now when the Musicians play'd upon these two Instruments of a different Sound, they faid the Part was play'd Tibis imparibus, with unequal Pipes, or Tibiu dextru & sinistru, with Right and Left ones; and when they play'd with two Pipes of the same Sound, with two Rights or two Lefts, they faid, that Part was play'd with Tibiu paribus dextru, with equal Right-pipes, if they used the Base; or Tibiu paribus sinistru, with equal Left pipes, if they used the Treble. Donatus lays, if the Subject was grave and ferious, they only made use of equal Right-pipes which they also called Lydian Pipes, and made a Base; buc that when it was a merry Subject; they used no other than the Left-pipes, which were named Tyrian Pipes or Sarrane, that performed the Treble, and consequently were fitter for the Occasion: Laftly, when the Subject was an Intermixture of Things merry and ferious, they used the unequal Pipes, that is the Right and the Left; which were called Phrygian Pipes.

TIRESIAS, the Gods took him to be a Judge of their Differences, and June took his Sight from him, but Jupiter in way of Recompence gave him the Gift of Prophelie, he had been both a Man and a Woman, and faid, the Woman's Pleature was greater than that of a Man's, he having tried both of them.

TISIPHONE, one of the three Furies of

TITAN, the Son of Calum and Vefta, and laying, it was rather a Defect of Nature than Saturn's Brother, whole Right it was to fucceed 2,33.3

TITANES, the Titans were the Sons of Uranus and Tisea, who gave them her Name, and who her felt was called the Earth: This Name comes from the Earth or Mud called Tit by the Hebrews. See Gigantes.

TITHONUS, the Son of Laomedon, whom Aurora ftole away for his Beauty, and by whom the had Memnon: Jupiter at Aurora's Request he that advanced the magnificent and noble made him immortal: He forgot to ask of him that he might not grow old, therefore when he became very aged, and took no more Pleasure in worldly Things, he was transformed into a Grashopper.

TITUS, a Roman Emperor and Vespatian's Son; he proved quite contrary to other Prince's who grew more wicked when they became Emperors, than they appeared before to be in a private State; for he grew better, and by his wife Conduct effaced all the evil Impreffions that had the Chorus; Thefpis added a Comedian thereto. been entertained of him fo far that he was ftiled in order to give the Chorus Leafure to take The Delight of Mankind; being of a tweet Dispo- Breath: Eschylus added a second, and Sophocles ition, liberal and benificent to every Body, a third, and to Tragedy came to its Perfection; which made him utter these excellent Words to his Domefticks, who put him in mind he should not promise more than he could perform, No Man, faid he, ought to return with Diffatufadion from bis Prince.

TITYUS, the Son of Jupiter and Terra; this Giant was killed by Apollo, or as others will ed the Throne of Rome: His Head was like a have it, Thunder-struck, for endeavouring to en- Mallet, broad at Top and with very considerable joy Latons, the Poets feigned he was racked Eminences before and benind, his Forehead in Hell, and that a Vulture tore his Heart with | broad, and Neck thick, which was an infallible out killing him.

without any Sleeves, very large, and nied both by Men and Women; but in Process of time none wore them but leud Women hence that of Horace,

In matrona, peccefue togata:

If you commit Sin with a Woman of Quality or a Courtizan: The Toga was of divers Colours, and admitted of various Ornaments: There was that called Toga domestica, wore within Doors. Togs forenfis, abroad, Togs militaris, used by Soldiers, and tucked up after the Gabinian Fashion; and Togs pits or triumpbalu, wherewith the Victorious triumphed, with imbroidered Palms, that which had no Ornaments was called Toga bura.

upon Condition he should put all his Male Chil- who began by making his Actors ride in a Chr. dren to Death; but Rhea his Mother privately riot, painting their Faces with Wine-lees ig orconvey'd Jupiter away, which coming to be der to disguite them, for Masks were not yet known by Titan, he made War upon Saturn, invented: Horsce de arte Poetica gives us all these Particulars.

> Ignotum Tragica genus invenisse Camana Dicitur, & plauftris vexiffe poemata Thefpis Qui canerent, agerentque perundi fecibus ora.

Eschylus was the first who invented Masks and Habits to disguise the Actors, and in short, 'twas Character of Tragedy to the highest Pitch.

Post banc persona pallaque repertor bonesta Afchylus, & modicis inftravit pulpita tignis. Et docuit magnumque loqui, nitique cothurno.

Diogenes Laertius in Plato's Life, and Ariffotle in his Ars Poetica fay, that at first there was but one Person in a Tragedy, who alone made he that won the Prize in a Tragedy received a He goat which he was to facrifice to Bacebus, from whence came the Name of Tragedy reaves. Hircus, fignifying a He goat.

TRAJANUS, Trajan; a Spaniar 1 by Birth. and the first Emperor of a Stranger that mount-Sign of a prudent, vigorous Man and one that was TOGA, It was a great Woollen Mantle, Iteady in his Deligne rather than of a lively and brick Wit; and to indeed he performed great Things, having extended the Bounds of the Roman Empire much beyond any of his Predeceffors; Armenia and Mejopotamia being fallen under the Yoke of the Roman Power: He had a Fit of an Apoplexy, which turned into a Palie in some Part of his Body, but he died of a Droptie, aged 64, when he had reigned full 20 Years, and most juilly acquired the Title of an excellent Prince. TRIBUNI PLEBIS, Tribunes of the People, being Magnitrates taken from among the People and choien of the People themselves. to Withstand whatever the Senate might attempt against their Liberty and Sovereignty, infornuch that no other Power could do any thing if they opposed it: he Occasion of creating them was this. The People finding themselves oppreft TRAGOEDIA, a Tragedy; a Dramma- by the great Ones, by the Initigation of Sicinius tick Poem which upon the Theater represents withdrew to a Mountain Three Miles off from some fignal Action performed by illustrious Per- Rome, which afterwards was called Mons Sacer, fons, and has often a tatal End. Suidas tays, and would not return to Rome but by the Perthat Thespie was the first Author of Tragedy, swaion of Menenius Agripps, and being allowed pressions of the great Ones, and this happened in the Year 266, and the two Tribunes were Sicinius Bellutus and L. Junius. The Law for creating them was called Sacred, and the same | Chief over a Body of Soldiers, being the Master declared the Tribunes to be facred and inviolable de camp of a Roman Legion. Perions, who must not be injured upon Pain of Death, and the Mountain whither the People the People for allowing this Magistrate to them: | peror. These two Tribunes took in three more, and their Number increased to ten-

They had a Right to withfrand the Deliberations of the Senate, and the Orders of the very Confuls; there being nothing to be concluded mong the People, who kept the Money design'd on without their Confent, which they exprest by for the Uie of the War, in order to distribute putting a Tunder the Order, and if the same the same, as Occasion required, to the Quariors did not please them, they hindred it to be put of the Army; They choice the richeft Perious in Execution by fubicribing the Word Vero without giving any Reason for it: They wore a PurpleRobe, and they were the only Persons be managed. whose Ornce did not cease upon the nominating of a Dictator: They could banish or imprison such as they thought criminal: They summoned leveral Divisions: Romulus divided his People a Conful and a Dictator to be tried before the into three Tribes or Regiments, whole Collo-People, when they were out of their Offices, nels were called Tribunes, but different both and they could not tarry above one Day out of from the Tribunes of the People and Military the City: The coors of their Houses were o- Tribunes: These three first Tribes were thus pen Night and Day, that fo the People might called; viz. the first Ramnensium, from Romulus, have Recourse to them at all times; they had no Tatiensium, from Tatius, and Lucerum, for which Curule Chair, nor a Seat at first in the Senate; we can give no Reason: Livy confesses he was ignobut their Seats were at the Door, where they rant of it, Varro lays, they were to called from the examined the Deliberations of that Body: They had no Lictors to walk before them, but only one Uther: By the division Law they were ad- or Parishes: Servius Julius, the fixth King of mitted into the Senate, and had a Right to give Rome, finding its Inhabitants much increased adtheir Advice there; but their Authority was ded more Tribes to the reft, and affigned them much lessened by the Cornelian Law, in point of several Parts of the City to Eve in: He therefore publishing of Laws and haranging the People, divided all the Inhabitants of the City into Four and the same also supprest Appeals to the People; but afterwards the Conful Q. Aurelius Corra and L. Odavius in the Year of Rome 678 admitted them to the Exercise of the highest Offices in the Republick, and allowed them the Honour of having the Faices carried before them, and the same was confirmed to them by Pompey. The viz. the Mounts Palatine and Capitoline, with Quality of Tribunes upon themselves; Augustus all the Quirinal and Viminal. began it and held the Power of Tribune for 37 Years; A Quality, fays Tacins, that was invent- to Fifteen Tribes which by one general Name ed for preferving of the Sovereign Authority were called Tribus Ruftice, of which this is the above the other Magistrates, without taking Lift, viz. Romulia, Lemonia, Pupinia, Galeria; that of King or Dictator upon them. Tiberius Poliia, Voltinia, Claudia, Amilia, Cornelia, Faalso held this Office for live Years, and so did bia, Horaiia, Menenia, Pappria, Sergia, Veturia, all the succeeding Emperors to Constantine the whose Names were either taken from the Places Great: It'strue, they annually created Tribunes of their Aboad, or from those who were the of the People, but this was only nominal, the Authors of them. Sigonius informs us, there Ulpian places the Tribunes among those who ad- entine in the Year of Rome 258; and in 366 two Tribunes to protest them against the Op-1 ministred Justice at Rome, as they sate upon little Benches in Subfellis.

TRIBUNUS MILITUM, a Military Tribune, was an Officer who commanded in

TRIBUNUS COHORTIUM PRA-TORIANARUM; the Tribune of the Prahad retired was called Mons Sacer, because of the torian Cohorts, much like our Captains of the Oath which the Deputies of the Senate made to Guard, whose Business it was to guard the Em-

TRIBUNI CELERUM, The Captains of the Guards.

TRIBUNI ÆRA EII, Tribunes of the Treasury; they were Ornicers taken from athey could into this Office, for 'twas an Imployment where a great deal of Money was to

TRIBUS, a Tribe: a certain Number of the People of Rome, which were distributed into Lucumones or Tulcans who ainsted Romulus againft Tatius: Each Tribe was divided into ten Curia Tribes, for that reason called Tribus Urbana, to whom he gave particular Names according to the Divitions they lived in, viz. Suburana, Palatina, Esquilina and Collina. The first inhabited Mount Calius and the Vallies round about to the Eastward; the second almost all the old City, Office of Tribune became yet more considerable that Part called Locus Komanus; the third the and illustrious under the Emperors, who took the whole Mountain cailed Efquilia, and the fourth

He divided the Inhabitants of the Country in-Emperors Carried all the Power from them. were two more added, viz. Cruftumina and Uci-

Four others were also added, viz. Stellatina, between Terracina and the Sea. 31. Falerina, Tormentina, Sabatina, Arnienfis or Narnienfis; from the City Falerii belonging to the Falifei. neither did they end with this Number, for in | 32. Aniensis from the River Anio. 33. Teren. the Year 421 there were two new ones appoint- tina, from a Place called Terentum in Campus ed, called Maria and Scaptia; in the Year 435 Martius. 34. Velina, from the Lake Velina in those called Ufentina and Falerina; in 454 Ani- the Country of the Sabines. 35. Quirina from ensis and Terensina, and lastly, in the Year 512 Cures a City of the Sabines. Velina and Quirina, infomuch that there were | TRIPTOLEMUS, the Son of Elufius, or 35 added at leveral Times and upon leveral Oc- Calaus King of Elufis, who, according to Paufacations which continued fo till the War called nias, was the first that brought the Invention Bellum Sociale, when there were ten more ad- of Tillage into Greece. Ceres took an Affection ded in order to pacifie them : But they were to Triptolemus while he was yet but a Child, tatometime atterwards incorporated into the old king care in the Day-time to feed him with Diones by the Cenfors, L. Martius Philippus and vine Milk, and by Night to hide him under the M. Perpenna.

Here follows the Reason of the Names given Varro, Quod fub terreo muro Carinarum effet. 2. Ef Acknowledgment for the Kindness she had shewquilina, which comprehended the Esquilia, from ed him. whence it took its Name. 3. Collina the Quirinal and Viminal that were two little Hills. 4. Pa- Romans, as the Grecians named it Trinacria; belatina that took in the Mounts Palatine and Ca- | cause the Island is of a Triangular Form, whose pitoline, with that called Locus Romanus. 5. Ro- three Promontories form three Points or Capes. mulia or Romilia, which was the first of the Country Tribes and contained all the ancient Territhe Lains. 8. 9. 10. Galeria, Pollia and Volli- he put in his Mouth; he was carried by grey miz, the Original of these three Tribes is not Horses. known. 11. Claudia, from appius Claudius, who retired to Rome from the Country of the Sabines. 12. Amilia, from one Amilius from whom many illustrious Families descended. Cornelia, from the Family of the Cornelli. 14. Fabia and Eagles, of Neptune by Sea-horses; of Pluto from Fabius. 15. Horaria, from the Family of by black ones; of Mars by Horses; of the Sun the Horarii. 16. Menenia, from Menenius. by Horles vomiting Fire; of Bacchus by Lynxes 17. Papyria, from Papyrius of whom Livy speaks and Tigres; of Juno by Peacocks; of Theris by in his first Decad. 18. Sergis, from Sergius. Dolphins; of Venus by Swans; of Diana by Deer; 19. Vesuria, from the Vesurian Family. 20. Cru- of Ceres by Dragons; of Cybele by Lyons; of Itumina, from a City of the Sabines called Cru- the Moon by Horses full of Stars; of Aurora by Stuminum. 21. Veienting, took in part of the Rose-coloured Horses, Uc. Territory of the Vesentes in Iujeany. 22. Stellatina, from the Territory of Stellata in Tuscany. 23. Tormentina, from the Terrivory of Tormentum. 24. Sabatina, from a Lake of the same there were two forts of it, the first which was Name in Tufcany. Arniensis or Narniensis, from the lesser, was simply called Ovatio, whereas the the River Arnus that runs by Florence. 26. Pomp | greater was known only by that great and pomtina, from a Territory to called three Leagues | pour Name of Triumph. The Origin of these from Terracina, Seven or Eight Miles from Rome two Names is more intricate than the Knowon the Road to Naples. 27. Popilia, whole Ori- ledge thereof is necessary; the Ovatio seems to ginal is not known. 28. Meria, from a Caftle be of Roman Original, if we regard Plutarch herenamed Matium. 29. Scapita, from the City of in, for the Name was given it because they only Scaptia. 30. Uf. ntina or Oufentina, from the facrificed white Sheep upon this Occasion, where-

Fire, which made him grow mightily: She also gave him a Charriot drawn by a Couple of Drato the 35 Tribes, as taken out of Gruchius and gons, that to he might go into all Parts of the Vigenere: Subwana, which was the first Tribe Earth to fettle the Art of Agriculture: He was of the City and took in Mount Calius and the the first that instituted the Feast called Thesmoadjacent Vallies, and was so named, according to | phoria at Athens in clonour of Ceres, by way of

> TRIOUETRA, Sicily, fo called by the TRISMEGISTUS. See Mercurius.

TRITON, the Son of Neptune and Ampbitory of Romulus, from whom it had its Name, or trite, or according to others, of Oceanus and Tebecause it was near Rome. 6. Lemonia so called thys. The Poets made him to be the Trumpefrom the Village Lemonius by which they paffed ter of Neptune, under the Form of a Man down through the Gate Capena along the great Road to his Navel, with Arms like a Dolphin's Tail, called Via Latina. 7. Pupinia, from the Pupinian and his Fore-feet like the Fore-feet of a Horse, Territory beyond the Tiber in the Country of and carrying a hollow Shell in his Hand which TRIUMPHALIS CURRUS. See Triumphus.

As to the Chariots of the Gods, the Poets tell us, that that of Jupiter was drawn by Horses

TRIUMPHATOR. See Triumphus.

TRIUMPHUS, a Triumph; 'twas doubtless the most magnificent Show the Romans had; Baver Oufens in the Country of the Privernates, as at the Triumph they offered white Oxen. tained in its Name, which is Greek, and was gi- publick of Rome bad its Beginnings, and so great ven to Bacchus, because he was the first that in- an Increase, be at length pleased with it, and favented this way of rewarding Vertue by these vourably protest it. Festivals and publick Magnintence: But there are more folid Reasons to be given for the Differences between these two Triumphs; for the vory and Gold Plates, and that they might con-Ovation confifted of very little Pomp: The tinually intermix fomething that was Warlike Conqueror wore his usual Cloaths, and walked with a Ceremony that was purely Civil, they a Foot at the Head of his Troops, without any sprinkled Drops of Blood upon the Gold of the other Mark of his Success, than the Acclamations of the People, some Myrtle-Crowns, and part of his Army to march before him with Mufick playing, and they offered nothing but white Sheep in Sacrifice to the Gods upon this Occasion: The Ovation was decreed to those that had waged an ill-grounded War, or fuch as was not of Deer, Nero of Hermophrodite Mares, and Severy honourable; and those that fought against | fostri was drawn by the Kings whom he had con-Pyrates, Slaves or pittiful Enemies were reward | quered: The Triumpher was alone in his Chaed with this leffer Triumph, or the Ovario; but the Triumph was allowed to those who had per- at his Feet; for we read in Cicero, that Triumformed Martial or Brave Actions: For when a pher's Children were mounted upon the Cha-Victory was won, the Conqueror dispatch'd riot-Horses; and Tiberius and Marcellus had the Couriers with Letters containing the Particu | Honour, one of them to ride upon the Lettlars of the Fight, and the Success thereof: The Horse, and the other upon the Right, that Senate at first met in Belloni's Temple, which drew Augustus his Triumphant Chariot after flood without the City; Augustus afterward; the Battle of Astium. Pliny to this Pomp of a chole that of Mars for this Occasion. The Se- | Chariot adds a kind of a Deity called Falcinus, nate being mer, the General and Officers Let- out of an Opinion they had, that this God was ters were read, and these Letters were wrap- very powerful against the Stings and Perplexiped up in Lawrel-Leaves; but when the Roman ties of Envy. Most Authors say, that the pub-Army was worfted, they made use of a Feather lick Executioner was behind the Conqueror, to instead of a Lawrel, to notifie, that they must remind him from time to time that these Honours be diligent. They prefently fent to the Con- were transitory, and would not secure him from queror the Title of Imperator, with Orders for the Severity of the Laws. his return, and to bring his victorious Troops back to Rome, there to triumph. When he was mity, were the Trumpeters, Fluters and Hautcome near Rome, the General and chief Officers boys, with Crowns on their Heads; then fevetook an Oath without the City, that the Victo- ral Chariots, wherein were Plans of the Cities ry was true; after which they appointed the which the Conqueror had taken, done in Relievo, Day of Triumph: The Senate went in a Body and made of several forts of Things. Scipio's to meet the Conqueror without the City-Gate, Triumph was adorned with a 137 Representaby which the Triumpher was to enter, and tions of Countries or Cities which he had redu-Conqueror to the Capitol: He was coad in a Machines, and generally all other Warlike Pomp Purple Robe full of Gold Stars, or embroidered and Enfigns of Honour. na, tandem placati preprintique servate. O ye Enemy made part of the Solemnity, it was car-

The Etymology of the greater Triumph is con- Gods, under whose Protection and Conduct the Re-

When this Prayer was over he went into a Triumphal Chariot, that was adorned with I-Chariot, and even upon the Spectators; this Chariot was usually drawn by two white Horses, but fometimes by extraordinary Animals, as by Elephants, as Pompey's was when he triumphed over Africa; by Lions, as Mark Antony's was; by Tigers, as Heliogabalus did: Aurelian made ufe riot, only he had his Children before him, or

Thole who went foremost of all at this Solemwhich was called Porta Capena or Triumphales: ced under the Power of the Roman Empire; There after the Complements were over, the then came leveral Charlots laden with the Spoils Senate marched in order and accompanied the of the Enemy, their Horfes, Arms, Riches, Tents,

Cypners, which fet forth his glorious Actions: If they triumphed for a Naval Victory, they This Robe was called Toga pida, a painted Robe, carried along the Masts of Ships, Sail-yards, and or Tunics ralmata, and Sometimes by the fingle the moft confiderable Things belonging to a Name of Tubea: His Shoes were a kind of Buf Veffel: Inculus caused 110 of them to be carkins embroi lered and belet with Pearls; upon ried in Pomp, and a Gold Statue of Mitbidates his Head he were a Crown which at first was of hix Foot high, with a Shield, enriched with pre-Lawrel, but afterwards a Golden one; in one cious Stones. Pompey the Great at his Triumph Hand he carried a Lawrel branch, and in the o- had Fharnaces his Statue that was made of Silther a Scepter or Trancheon, which was made ver, another which he had got made of himlelf, of Lory, with an Eagle at rop: Before he fet corriched with Pearl, 3 little Gold Idols, some out he made his Prayers in their Words: Dii, Myrtle ones, and 33 Crowns adorned with prenutu & Laperio quorum nata & auda eft res Rema- cicus Stones: The Silver Coin taken from the

Yуу

ried in Waggons, with a Specification in wri- be offered, before they had taken a full Revenge ting, of the Sums contained therein. Scipio Afri- on their Enemies. When the Victims were of canus brought 400000 Pound Weight of Silver fered, the Triumpher drew near unto the Al-Money from Carthage, and Gold Veffels to the tars, and pray'd thus: Weight of 200000 Pound. Paulus Amilius took fo great a Booty of Gold and Silver in Macedonia, as was enough to defray the Charges of the Republick: All thele Waggons were followed you have vouchfafed to this very Day and Hour, to by another, wherein was the Statue of Hercules preferve and increase the Republick by my means, I adorned with his Club and Lion's Skin: Next | carneftly pray you to be always favourable unto it. came the Kings, Princes and Captains that had and continually to keep, aggrandize and proted it. been vanquished, laden with Chains: It was not the leaft illuftrious part of Pompey's Triumph, Junoni Regina, & cateru bujus cuftodibus babito have Tigranes and Aristobulus to attend it, tatoribusque Arcis Diis, lubens latusque Ago; re who were powerful Kings in the East, the one of Armenia and the other of Judea: The Captives were followed by Buffoons and Mimicks, vate, ut facitis, fovete, protegite propitiati, supwho infulted over them in their Misfortunes, with a thousand Buffooneries: Next to them came the Officers of the victorious Troops, richly clad with Crowns on their Heads : Spoils of the Enemy, especially those that were Laftly, The triumphant Chariot appear'd, before which, as it passed, they all along strewed had taken with his own Hand from the Enemy; Flowers, the Confort of Musick play'd on in There were but Three, among to great a Num-Praise of the Triumpher, amidst the Acclama- ber of Roman Conquerors, who took these Spoils tions of the People, who often repeated these called opima spolia, and presented them to Jupi-Word: lo triumpha, lo triumpha: The Senate ter Feretrius: The First was Romulus who concame next after the Chariot, the Senators being | quered Acron, King of the Ceninenfians; the Seclad in white Robes, and were followed by those cond, Collus, that slew King Tolomnius; and Mar-Citizens who had been fet at Liberty, or ranformed. Flaminius had a thousand ransomed from Viridomarus: When all these holy Duties Persons to follow his Chariot, who had their were performed to the several Deities, the Heads shaved, and on which they wore a kind Triumpher treated the People, as most Authors of a Bonner, to let People know that they were bear Witness, in the Capitol under the Portico's, freed from Slavery: The Sacrificers with their and sometimes in Hercules's his Temple. A-Officers cloted up this numerous Company, each lexander ab Alexandro tays, Cafar made a pubof them being in his Ministerial Dress, with lick teast, wherein 22000 Tables were spread their Veffels, and other Inftruments appertain- and furnished with all imaginable Plenty, and ing to the Sacrifice, and bringing a white Ox all in good Order. The Triumpher was allowalong, which was to be offered as the chief ed to wear his Triumphal Crowns and Robes in Victim. This whole Company of Conquerors the publick Affemblies; they also erected Triand Conquered proceeded in this Order thro' umphal Arches, Statues, and all other Monuthe Triumphal Gate by the covered Market- ments for him, whereby the Memory of his place, and along the Via Sacra to the Capitol; Victories and Triumph might be perpetuawhere they offered the Victims appointed for | ted. this End, and by a thousand Sacrifices gave Ju- TROCHUS; it was properly a Circle of publick. ty were open, and all the Altars laden with a Wooden Handle to it: The Grecians called Offerings and Incente; all the Streets were full this Rod page , and the Romans Radius: There of the People of Rome and Strangers: They ce- was Strength and Skill required to roll this Circle lebrated Games and Combats in the publick well, and the Rings by the Noile they made Places, and Rejoycings appear'd every where; gave the People Notice to give way and rebut what was most horrible and cruel amidst so tire. much follity, was the maffacting of the Conque- IROPHONIUS, had a Cave in Lebared, whom, when they came to the End of the dia a Country of Baotia, where he delivered Market place, they carried back and lead into Oracles; but he died there of Hunger; an evil Prison, where they were ftrangled; for twas a Genius possessed himself of this Cave, and there Point and Mystery of the Superstition of these also pronounced Oracles; he did so frighten those

Most great and good Jupiter, and thou Queen Juno, with all the other Gods, who guard this bole Place, I give you Thanks with all my Heart, thee

Gratias tibi, Jupiter optume, Maxume, tibique Romana in banc diem & boram, per manus quod voluiftis meas, servata bene gestaque; eandem & serplex oro.

These Vows being put up aloud, the Conqueror made Jupiter a Present of a Crown with the called opima spolia, which the General himself cellus was the Third, after the Victory he won

piter Thanks for the good Success of the Re- Five or Six Feet in Diameter, adorned every where on the Infide with Iron Rings; the Chil-In the mean time all the Temples of the Ci- dren rolled it along with an Iron Rod that had

Great Men, not to dare to touch the Victim to who came to confulr him, by horrible Apparicame the Proverb concerning mournful and me- had a Frolick to make Perions play upon Flutes, lancholy Persons, that they had consulted the Oracle and beat Drums in his Presence, as if he were of Trophonius. They shewed a thousand apish celebrating the Bacchanalia. Tricks as they entered into his Cave, which they did, covered with a Linnen Cloth, holding against the Gods, and was buried alive under a Cake in one Hand, as Lucian tells us in his the Mountains. Apollonius in his Argonauticon, Dialogue of the Dead.

TUBAL-CAIN, the Son of Lamech, and one of Cain's Descendants, whom the Scripture Waters of the Lake Serbonis, which is between makes to be the Master and Father of Smiths, Egypt and Palestine. Plurarch in the Life of

was the Vulcan of the Pagans.

ceffor, and the third King of Rome, who made War upon the Albans, which was ended by the Victory of the three Horatii over the three Curatii, he died in the Fire that burnt his Palace, and was kindled by chance, or by his Domestick Enemies. Some will have it, that he was killed with Thunder; the Reason whereof Pliny says, was because Tullus had neglected some Ceremonies instituted by Nums, and so for that Impiety was Thunder-firuck by Numa.

TUNICA, an under Garment formerly wore by the Ancients, both at Rome and the East: It was put under the Togs, and that worn W which is thus distinguished by Grammarians, V. by the Women was to be long and with Sleeves; U is often changed into O, as in this Word volt whereas the Men wore it before a little below the Knee, and behind as low as the middle of the I eg; for to have it any longer was efteemed effeminate, and shorter, looked like a Sol-

TYCHE, a Sea-Nymph, Daughter of Oceanus and Tethys: This was the Name of Fortune, perhaps given it upon account of the Dangers particularly prefides.

TYMPANA; 'twas a thin piece of Skin or Leather extended upon a Wooden or Iron Circle, which was beat with the Hand. Some Authors fay this Word comes from KTUTEIV, which in Greek fignifies to firike : But Voffize in the Janteulum, where the Pope's Palace is, it his Etymology of the Laun Tongue, derives it from a Hebrew Word, that fignifies a Drum, called in Latin Vaticinia, which the Romans rewhich is not ill grounded, tince the Invention of thele Drums came from Syria, as Juvenal ob-

Fam pridem Syrus in Tyberim defluxit Orontes, Et linguam & mores & cum tibicine chordas Obliquas, nec non gentilia tympana fecum Verit.

of Bacchus and Cybele, as appears by thele Verles to let it flie. of Carnins, Cyb:les Phrygia ad nemora Dea. Thi cymbalum jonat, ubi tympana reboant.

tions, that they could never laugh after, whence Herodian speaking of Heliogabalus, says he often

TYPHON; one of the Gyants that fought fays, that Typhon was defeated near Mount Nysa, and afterwards thrown down Headlong into the and all those that worked in Iron and Steel: He Mark Antony, tells us, the Egyptians faid that the Vapours of the Lake Serbonis were caused TULLUS HOSTILIUS, Numa's Suc- by the Breath of Typhon. Homer makes his Death to have happened in Arimit, that is, according to Strabo, in Syria, which the Scriptures and prophane Authors call Aramea from

Is the 20th Letter in the Alphabet, and fifth Vowel: There is also a Consonant put for vult. The V is also a Numeral Letter, fignifying five; and when it has a Tittle above it, five thousand. VACUNA; this Goddess was worshipped by Plough-men, and her Feaft celebrated in Winter. VADARI ALIQUEM; 'tis a Law-Term, fignifying to oblige a Person to give Secuand Hazards of the Seas, over which she more rity, that promiles he shall on a certain Day appear in Court: If he fails, his Surety has actionem vadimonii defersi againft him, i. e. an Action for leaving his Bail.

VATICANUS, the Vatican, one of the fmall Hills of Rome, near the Tiber, adjoining to was thus called from the Responses and Oracles, ceived here, according to Varro. There was alfo a Deity fo named in the fame Place, who was believed to be the Author of the first Speech of Children, which was Va; from whence comes the Word Vatican, and among the Latins Vagire, to cry like an Infant.

VE-JOVIS, a hurtful Deity, to whom the Romans erected Temples, and offered Sacrifices, that he might do them no Mischief: He was They were much in use at the Dances and Feasts | pictured with a Bow and Arrow in his Hand ready

> VELABRUM; was a Place full of Tradefmens Shops, and especially of Oil-men; it was divided into two parts by the Fish-Market, and flood near to the Tulcan Division.

V E-

VENILIA; a Nymph, and the Mother of fo we have Reason to believe, that as the Wor. Faunus; the was also reputed to be Neptune's thipping of the Winds as well as that of other Wife, otherwise called Salacia. Venilia, says Var- parts of Nature, passed from the East to the 70, is the Water that washes the Shoar, and Sa- West, so the Grecians, Sicilians, and Italians lacia, that which returns into the Bottom of the took occasion from the Nature of those Islands,

Flux of Air agitated by an unequal and violent pours, Winds and Fire to proceed from thence. Motion; which is done, fays Virruvius, when Strabo relates unto us the Observations of the Heat working upon the Moisture, by its Acti- Polybius upon the Ille of Lipara, which is the on produces a great Quantity of new Air, that greatest of Jolus his Seven Illand, viz. that violently drives on the other: Those who were when the South Wind blew, it was covered with the Worshippers of the Wind in all likelihood so thick a Cloud, that those who were but a little believed they worshipped the Air in the Agita- way off, could not see 'Sicily; but when the tion thereof: from whence it is the Perhans wor. North Wind blev, the Island fent forth purer shipped the Stars and Earth, Water, Fire and Flames, and made a greater Noise and Concus-Winds. Herodotus tells us, that the Grecians fion; and this gave occasion to fay, that the being in a Confternation, because of Xerxes his King of these Illands was King of the Winds. formidable Army, that came to fall upon them, Heffod openly declares for the Doctrine of Phythe Oracle of Delphos commanded them to offer follogy, when he gives us the Genealogy of Sacrifice to the Winds, from whom they were the Winds, and makes them to be the Chilto expect their greatest Relief. Aneas facri- dren of Astraus and Aurora; for this is plainly fixed to the Winds; Pecudem Zebrris felicibus to make those Winds to proceed from the Stars albam. Augustus erected a Temple for the Wind and Aurora, or the Horizon, or rather from the Circius of the Gauls, because they were incom- Stars and Vapours that are always in the Horimoded therewith, and had their Houses blow'd 3m in a very great quantity, in order to form down by it. The Poets made Lolus to be King Aurora and the Winds therein. We know 'tis of the Winds; and Servius fays, they were Nine the Opinion of Naturalists and Aftrologers that Islands in the Sicilian Sea, of which Lolus, ac- the Stars have a great Induence in the Generacording Varro, was King; from whence they tion of the Winds: He fays a little farther, that feigned he had the Winds under his Dominion, except those three Winds that are pfeful to because he foretold the Storms that should hap. Mankind, all the rest were the Children of Typen by observing the Vapours and Steams that phon, the famous Gyant, whom victorious fuarose from those Islands, and especially from that piter Thunder-struck, and buried under the called after Vulcan's Name: Ut Varro dixis, Rex Mountains, thro' which he grouned, fighed and fuit infularum, ex quarum nebulis, & fumo Vul- vomited up Flames, Winds and Tempests. The cania infula, pradicens ventura flabra ventorum, Poet therefore diffinguishes between two forts ab imperitie vifus oft ventos fua potestate retinere. Of Winds, the one which are moderate and use-Pliny fays, that Strongylus was one of those burnt ful, the other violent and dangerous; the first and imoaking Islands; and that the Inhabitants are the Children of the Stars and Aurora, and this Reason they feigned Holm was Master of whence come Fires, Whirl-winds and Storms; venti in triduum pradicere incola traduntur: unde were Gyants who breathed out these Winds tis certain, the Worshipping of the Winds is burned. ancienter than Jolus his Reign, whom they Paufanias fays, there was no Deity at Megalopretend to have lived in the Time of the Tro- polis in Greece, more honoured than the Wind fwore by the Wind and Sword, per ventum & lant; ibidemque adolent, ut corum flatu cinis eius to make them to be the Kingdom of the Winds. VENTUS, the Wind, is nothing elfe but a because they often found Whirl-winds, Vafrom the Fames thereof predicted what Winds the last those Winds which proceed from the should follow three Days before; and that for Caverns of Mountains, or Burning-Islands, from the Winds: E cujus fumo, quinam flaturi fint and this gave occasion to the Fiction, that they ventos Folo paruisse existimatum. Nevertheleis from those Mountains where they continually jan War. The Persians, who, according to Stra- Boreas, for they had been powerfully affifted by bo and Herodorus, worshipped the Winds, never him in the Enterprize made upon them by the heard of the King of these little Islands, and Lacedemonians: They sacrificed a Horse with twas not to him they addreft their Worthip: I erfumes to the Winds, to the End that his As much may be faid in respect to the Scytbians, Ashes might be dispersed abroad, says Festus: of whom Lucian in his Toxaris, fays, that they Lacedemonii in monte largeto equum Ventis immoacinacem. When Solomon in his Proverbs, fays, per fines deferatur. And whereas Homer fays, there were Men fo mad as to adore the Winds; that the Wind Boreas was transformed into a he little thought of Zolus in the Matter. Ail Horse, which covered very fine Mares, that foalthose Eastern Idolaters worthipped the Winds ed twelve Colts, whose Lightness and Swiftness before the Fable of Lolm was invented: And was fo wonderful, that they could run over the Blades of Corn without bending them, and Temples of this Goddess; the Temples of Venus upon the Waves without linking; there was no other reason for it, but that People really believed, there were tome Mares that conceived by the Wind. Virgil tells that as a true Story concerning Zephyrus, which Homer relates of Boreas for a Fable. Vollius al'o refers to the Winds the Fight of the Titans with Jupiter, which he pretends to be no more than the War of the Winds in the Air, for which he cites Hefiod, Number of the Winds, who were also Ti-

The Winds according to some Mens Opinion, are no more than Four in Number, viz. Solaand Septentrio from the North. But those who have peen more curious Enquirers into the Nature of Winds, have made them to be Eight, and especially Andronicus Cyrrbestes, who for Ologone Figure, which on every fide had the and at the Top of the Tower which ended pyramidically, he placed a Brass Triton with a Rod | in his Hand; and the Machine was to contrived, that the Triton turning about, and always being opposite to the Wind that blew, with its Red flewed in what Corner it then was. The other Four Winds are Eurus, between Solanus and Aufler to the Winter-Eaft; Africus between Aufter and Favonius to the Winter-Weft; Caurus or Corus between Favonius and Septentrio; and Aquilo between Septentrio and Solanus: We call them South-Laft, South-West, North-West and North-Eaft.

VENUS, the Goddess of Beauty, that was always accumpanied by the Graces. Cicero, L.2. de Nat. Deor. Thews there were Four feveral Vemus's: The first, the Laughter of Calum; the fecond fhe, that fprung from the Foam of the Sea and Cupid's Mother; the third, was Jupiter and Dione's Daughter, who was married to Vulcan, and on whom Mars begot Anteros; the fourth Tyr, called Aftarte, who was married to Adonis. The first and fourth were in all likelibood the fame as the Venus of Allyria, which was called Urania or Calefiis, as being the Daughter of Heaven, whole Worship passed from Asturn's Wife, and the Mother of Seven Daugh-Phanicia, which was the Ancientest of all the lince we find, besides the Name of Urania or in Crorus, and at Cribera or Cerigo were much in request; but they were built by the Phanicians according to the Model of that at Ascalon. The Worship of Venus passed to Arabia; from whence 'tis that Herodotus himself says, the Arabians worshipped but two Deities, viz. Dionysius and Urania: The Perlians, in Imitation of the Allyrians, did also worthip Venus Urania, and called her Misra. There were the Cities of Parbos. who places Gyges, Briareus and Cottus in the Amathus, and Urania in the Isle of Cyprus, and all these were famous for the Worship of Venus: and as 'twas but a fhort Paffage from Phanicia to Cyprus, the Wo: ship of this Goddess was easily carried thither; and as Venus was transported mus, which blows from the South-East: Aufter thither by Sea, they feigned she was produced of from the South; Favonius from the South-Weft; the Foam of the Sea; fo Horace calls her Marina Venus. Lucitus speaking of the Temple of Venus at Paphos, ules the following Words, that clearly thew that the Forming of Venus of the Foam of the Sea, was nothing elfe but that fhe was this End built a Marble Tower at Athens, of an brought thither by Sea : Fama recentior tradit, a Cinyra sacratum Templum, Deamque ipsam con-Picture of one of the Winds, over-against that ceptam mari buc appulsam. This Historian, L. 2. Quarter from which they were wont to blow; Hift. speaks also or that Temple in this manner: 'The Ancients, fays he, made King Aerias to be the Founder of it, altho' fome were of Opinion, it was the Name of the Goddess; but modern Authors will have the Temple to have been built by Cinyra, when Venus coming by Sea landed in that Country; he adds, that he fent for the Prophet Thamprus into Cilicia, and agreed that their Descendants should divide the Priefthood between them : But those of Thamyrus his Race did afterwards refign it to the King's Posterity, as a Point of Prerogative yielded to the Royal Family, infomuch that no other were confulted there but the Successors of Cinyra. All forts of Victims were allowed of, provided they were of the Male kind, but the He-goat was accounted the best; they shed none of the Blood upon the Altar: for they oftered nothing there but Prayers and pure Fire, which no Rain could put out, tho' the fame were open to the Air: The Goddess was represented in the Form of a Globe, ending pyramidically, without any other resemblance, and the Reason is not known.

Paufanias acknowledges that Venus of Cythera came also from Phanicia: He elsewhere describes her bearing Arms: Helychius favs as much, and frie or Babylon into Syria. Sanchuniathon makes in another place speaks of a Temple of Venus. Attarte to be the Daughter of Calum, and Sa- into which none but the Sacriftan ever entred, (and the same Person was forbid to marry) and a ters called Titanides. Lucian speaks of Venus Virgin that exercised the Priesthood here for that was worshipped at Biblos in Phanicia, and one Year only. This Author takes notice of of Adonis with whom she was in Love, and whose | several Places in Greece, where Venus Urania was Death the bewailed after he had been killed by worshipped, and wherein there was nothing a wild Boar. Herodorus makes the Temple of practifed like thole Effeminacies and Impurities, Venus Urania to be in the City of Afcalon in which were attributed to the Common Venus ; Cakellis, that her Priestesses were Virgins, and to be drawn by Swans and two flying Capital that she her self was represented armed. Pau- They represented her like a beautiful Godden Janias in another place diffinguishes between litting in a Chariot drawn by two Swans and as Venus Urania, whose Statue was made of Gold or many Doves, crowned with Myrtle, and having Ivory by Phidias, and Venus Popularis, Tay Ing. , a burning Torch in her Bosom. Paufanias also that was made of Brass; he hath not forgot that | peaks of a Statue of Venus made of Ivory and place in Arcadia, where there were three Statues Gold by Phidias, with one Foot upon a Torfet up for Venus, one for Caleffie, the other for toile, and likewise another of Venus, riding Popularu, and the third without any Surname, upon a He-Goat, and made by Scopas; the which diftinguished it from the rest. Xenophon makes a Diffinction between Venus Caledia and Marble, and half opened her Lips as if the Populari, and attributes to the first a Love of smiled. Venus the Mother of Love, and the Knowledge and Vertue, as he does to the other Goddess of Pleasures would by no means comply the Love of Corporeal Pleasures. This Name to make Vulcan her Husband, but as he could not of Venus Caleffu comes either from her being compass his Delign in Heaven, and that he was represented upon a Lion's Back, and afcending weary with her Coines, Jupiter advised him to up to Heaven, or from her being the Daughter give her some Poppy in her Drink, which out of Heaven; from whence the Greeks called her her unto fuch a Love-fit, that without think-Urania, or because the ancient and true Urania ing any more of the Persons that so entirely was very different from that which they called loved her, she took up with what fell in her the Common one, and inspired Men with no- Way, and make that forry Smith her Husband. thing but pure and chafte Love, which raifed up the Heart to Heaven. Apuleius also in his Apology bears the fame Testimony, wherein he thews, that that Venus Caleffis, which is diffinguished from the Common Venus, allows us to love no other Beauty than that which can rein our Souls. Plusarch speaks of Venus at Rome.

Discedo, ac ducente Deo flammam inter & bostes Expedior.

furnamed Libitina, in whose Temple they sold that those of Delphos, had also their Venus Sepulchralis, where they conjured up the Dead by Ma-

An. 2.

Some Criticks who have not perhaps made this Observation, would correct this place, and put Dea instead of Deo, contrary to the Authority of the Manuscripts. Levinus speaking of this Deity, tays; having worthipped Venus, whether Female or Male, which is the same as the Moon. Ariftophanes calls her azcishtor in the Neuter Gender, and Helychius acolder G., as Salmatius has corrected it. Theophrastus, says he, assures impure and unlawful Love. us, that Afteroditos or Venus is an Hermophrodite; and that her Statue with a Beard on like a Gardens; he was also an Emblem of the Year: Man was to be seen in the Island of Cyprus, near This God was woshipped under a Thousand Amathufa. Venus Viltrix was represented some- Forms, for which region Horace says, Vertumnis times carrying Victory in her Right Hand, and | natus iniquis, as if there were as many different a Scepter in her Lefe, and leaning her Arm up- Vertumnus's, as there were different Forms by on a great Shield; and another time with a Mu- which this Deity was represented: He was in rion or Steal-piece in her Hand instead of Victo- Love with Pomona; the Greeks called him Prory, and the Apple which Paris adjudged to her teus. as the Reward or her Beauty, which she gor from | VERUS, a Roman Emperor that reigned Pallas and Juno: The Poets make her Chaziot with Marcus Aurelius, and who by his Beard af

Venus of Praxiteles at Cnidos was made of white

Cum primum cupido Venus est deducta marito. Hoc bibit; ex illo tempore nupta fuit.

But she reassumed her disdainful Carriage again when her Love-fit was over, and the always lived vive the Idea and Love of Heavenly Beauties at Variance with her wretched Cripple. Augustus Casar dedicated the Temple of Venus Genetrix to Julius Cafar, whose Statue was made all things belonging to Burials: He likewise adds. by Archesilaus.

VERBENA Vervein; an Herb used by the Pagans at their Sacrifices, and which they thought to have fomething that was Divine in gick Spells. Calous the Poet calls Venus a God. Pollentemque Deum Venerem, as well as Virgil, in it: The Romans in the Beginning of the Year made a Prefent of this Herb to their Friends.

> VERGILIÆ, Conftellations whose Appearance denote the Approach of the Spring: They were the Daughters of Atlas, according to the Poets, and by the Greeks were called Pleiades, but the Romans named them Vergilia.

> VERITAS, Truth, of whom the Ancients made a Deity and called her the Daughter of Saturn and Time, and the Mother of Vertue; they painted her like a handsome and modest Woman clad very plain, but shining with Splendor and Majesty.

> VERTICORDIA, a Surname given to Venus, who diverted the Minds of Men from

VERTUMNUS, a God of Change and had no Inclination nor Disposition to Learning: retained the Name of Vestibulum. He was much addicted to the Vices of Drunkenper Face by which they readily concluded he loved Wine, which he drunk to that Excess, that at his Return from Syria, he appointed an Apartment in his Pallace, which he called the Emperor's Tavern : He died of an Apoplexy at the Age of 42.

VESPATIAN, a Roman Emperor that fucceeded Vitellius, the Lineaments of this Emperor's Face, as Sueronius has described them, are very well exprest on his Medals; for he had and good-natured Prince, and was guilty of no other Vice but Covetousness, which he shewed by the Taxes he laid upon his Subjects: In the mean time he was very liberal to poor Senators, learned Men and ruined Cities: He was much addicted to Raillery and continued it to his dying Day, for being upon the Point of Expiring, he faid to those that were about him, I perceive I begin to become a God, and thereby ridiculed the Cuftom of the Romans deitying their Emperors after their Deceale.

VESPER, the Evening-Star. VESPERUGO; the Planet Venus when

t appears in the Evening. like unto that of Sanchuniarbon, faving that he but without any good Authority for it. alls the Earth the Wife of Uranus, which we lefted to appear like a Philosopher, though he at the Entry of their Houses which from thence

VESTALES, Vestal Virgins, either for nels, Gaming and Women: So that what was called from Vesta the Foundrels of them, or bemost remarkable in his Physiogmony was, that cause they were consecrated to the Service of he resembled the Portraitures made of the Sayrs the Goddess Vesta. They hold, that this Order by the Ancients, who were faid to be very le- and the Ceremonies they used came from Troy, cherous. Authors fay, he had a ruby and Cop- Eneas having carried that facred Fire into Italy, which represented Vesta, with the Image of Pallas and the Houshold Gods. Ascanius the Son of Aneas, and the other Kings his Succesfors highly nonoured the Vestal Virgins, because Rhea Silvia who was a King's Grand-daughrer took upon her the folemn Profession of a

Live will have Nums to have been the Inftitutor of this Order at Rome and that he built a Temple there for the Goddess Vesta, with a the Mien of a coffive Person, he was a valiant | House for the Virgins consecrated to her Service: The Divinity of Vofta was taken for the facred Fire that was kept in her Temple or for the Earth which conceals a Fire within it's Bowels; and for this Reason that Temple was round as the Earth is, and the facred Fire kindled within it, to represent that which is hid in its Bowels: They had no Representation of Velta there, because the Fire has none.

> Nec tu aliud Vestam quam vivam intellige flammam..... Ignis inextinctus templo celatur in illo, Effigiem nullam Vefta nec ignis babent.

VESTA, a Heathen Goddess; Lastaneius Numa instituted no more than Four Vestals, calrelates the Words of Enaius or Eubemerus, who led in History Gegamia or Gegania, Berenia, Camakes Vesta to be the Wife of Uranus, the Fa. milia or Gamilia, and Tarpeia. Servius Tullus adther of Saturn, the first that reigned in the ded two more, if we believe Plutarch, and this World, and after having spoken of the Contest made the Number Six, which continued during between Titan the eldeli Son of Uranus and Sa- | the whole Roman Empire, according to the Tewen the younger about the Kingdom, he fays, stimony of Plutarch and Dionysius of Hallicarthat their Mother Vesta advised Saturn not to nassus; nevertheless, St. Ambrose makes them suit the Sovereignty: This Genealogy is very to be Seven and Alexander Neapolitanus Twenty,

They were to be Virgins, and for that Reabrow has been confounded with Vesta. Vesta fon they were received into the Order at the paffed from Phanicia into Greece, where Diodo- | Age of Six Years, and their Parents were then rus Siculus ays, they made her to be the Daugh- to be living, and not of a Servile Condition. The ter of Saturn and Rhea, and the first In- Papian Law required that upon the Death of a Ventress of Architecture. Nevertheless it's Vertal they should take Twenty Virgins, whom not to be doubted, but Vesta was every-where | before the People they conducted to the Pontiff's efferather taken for a Goddess of Nature, un-Presence, who of the Twenty took one by der whole Name they worshipped the Earth Lot, and ordering her to kneel, said these and Fire, than an historical Goddel's. Ovid fays, Words over her: Sacerdotalem Vestalem, que that Vesta being the Daughter of Saturn and Sacrafaciat, que juss & Sacerdotalem Vestalem fa-Mea, as well as Juno and Ceres, these last Two cere pro populo Romano Quiritibus, uti quod opriwere married, but Vesta concinued a Virgin and ma lege flut, tra te amara capio. This Ceremobarren, as the Fire is pure and barren : The ny was called Captio Virginia, and Capere Veftalem; ame Poet adds, that the perpetual Fire was the they afterwards shaved their Heads and hung only Representation they had of Vesta, the true the Hair to a certain Tree, which the Greeks Representation of Fire being not to be given ; and Romans called Lotos, the Lore-tree, as Pling that formerly it was a Custom to keep a Fire lays; Antiquior illa lotos que capillata dicitur, quoniam virginum Vestalium ad eam capillus defertur. They affigned them a particular habit, that confifted of a Head-dreis called Infula, Goddels for 20 Years, after which time they were and to buried her alive. As for the Person free to go out and be married; but if other- that deflowred a Vestal Virgin, he was whipwife, they continued in the House and without ped to Death, as Caso tells us, Vir qui eam inceany other Bufineis, than to be affistant only in faviffet, verberibus necaretur. gain by the Help of Burning-glaffes and Sun- Flames. beams and no otherwife: This Order was very

they had the Priviledge to be carried in a Chariot through the City and as far as the Capitol, and if they happened to meet with the Confels most fecret Acts were usually committed to their Suetonius: Testamentum factum ab eo depositumque apud fex virgines Veffales; and the Articles of the Treaty made between the Trium-virs were likewife put into the Hands of these Virgins, as Dio fays. They had a particular Place af-Goddels Felia.

When a Vestal was convicted of Unchastity, the Possiff ordered her to be brought before Games in Honour of her. The Athenians also ham, prohibited her to exercise her Functions, built her Statue without Wings that so she to go among the other Veftals, and to make her Slaves free, for they were to be examined in order to prove the Crime: When the Crime cotion Day bring come, the Pontiff degraded in one Hand and a Palm in the other: Domitian Monping, as Valerius Flaceus fays, which fat close to their Heads, and from whence | She was carried upon a Bier or in a Litter enclohung some Hair-laces called Vitta; they wore lied on all Sides, and croffing the great Place, another white Veft uppermoft with a Purple when they came to the Place of Execution, they Border to it, they had a Surplice or Rochet of took the Criminal out of the Litter, and then white Linnen, called Suparum linteum, and over the Pontist pray'd to the Gods with his Head that a great Purple Mantle with a long Train covered, and afterwards withdrew; which done, to it, which they tucked up when they facri- they made her go down into the Pit, wherein they had put a lighted Lamp, a little Water They were confecrated to the Service of this and Milk, and then covered the Pit with Earth, point of Advise to the other Vestals: Their | VESUVIUS or VISEVUS, a Mounchief Functions were to facrifice to Vesta, to keep tain in Campania near Naples, of a very fruitful the facred Fire in her Temple and not fuffer it Soil, yet from whose Top proceed Flames of to go out; but if through their Neglect that Fire. Pliny the younger lays, that Plinius fe-Misfortune happened, they were whipped by the cundus being delirous to find out the Cause Pontifex maximus, and the Fire was kindled a- thereof was swallowed up and stiffled by the

Ultima virgineu tum flens dedit ofcula vini.

VIÆ, Streets and Roads: They reckoned rich as well upon the Account of the Allowances | there were 424 Streets in Rome in all the Diviwhich the Kings and Emperors, and especially lions of the City, whereof there were but 31 Augustus, made them for their Maintenance, as that were considerable, which all began at a also other Gifts and Legacies left them by Will. gilt Pillar, for that reason called Milliarium au-When they went abroad, there was an Lisher ream, that was fet up at the Entrance into the with a Bundle of Rods walked before them; great Place below the Temple of Saturn, and lead to as many Gates and to made the like Number of great Roads, that pailed through all Italy. These great Streets were called Vie reor some great Magistrate, they turned ande, gia, militares & publica, of which the three most or elfe were obliged to kils the Bundle of Rods famous were Appia, the Road of Appius, which that were carried before them. Wills and the was made and pared by him, Flammia that of Flaminius, made by a Conful of that Name, Custody,, as Julius Cafar did, according to and reach'd from Porta Flamentananear Campus Martius as far as kimini upon the Adriatick Sea. and Via Emilia, Amilius his Road.

VICTORIA, Victory, a Deity adored by. the Ancients, and made by Varro to be the Daughter of Calum and Terra, for whom the righed them at the Games and Shews made in Romans built a Temple during their War with come; they were priviledged to be buried in the Samnites in the Confulfhip of L. Postbumius the City, and they twore by no other than the and M. Applius Regulus, and dedicated to her a Temple of Fupiter Optimus, after the Overthrow at Canna, according to Livy: L. Sylla inftituted might not fly away from their City, in the same manner as the Lacedemonians represented Mars with Chains, that fo he might continue with was proved, the was condemned to be buried a- them, according to Paulanias. She was usually live in a Pit dug for that purpo e without Porta represented like a young Goddels winged, and Colling in a Flace called Campus Sceleratus: Exe- Itanding upon a Globe, with a Lawrel Crown and theips her of her Habit, which the killed represented her with a Horn of Plenty, to intimate that Victory brought Plenty of all 1 hings with it. On the Reverte of the Silver Medal of L. Hoftilius, Victory is repreferred with a Caduverse of a Gold Medal of Augustus, with her Feet upon a Globe, and extended Wings as if the flew, a Lawrel Crown in her Right-Hand and a Labarum or Emperor's Banner in the Left: She is also represented fitting upon the Spoils of the Enemy, with a Trophy fet before her, and carrying a Crown with these Words Victoria Augufti.

VINDICTA, the Rod or Switch wherehe was affranchised.

raised from the Dead, and was surnamed so, as led through the Clouds. being born twice.

VIRGA, the Rod of Mofer, which, according to the Rabins, God made between the two tua, and named Publius Maro. The Romans ad-Vespers of the Sabbath, that is, on the Evening of the fixth Day of the Creation of the World, and on which the Holy, Great and Glorious Name of God, called Tetragrammaton was inscribed after a wonderful Manner; and therefore tis faid in the Zoar upon Exodus, that the Miracles were graven and the most holy Name of God inscribed upon it. Galitinus writ a great deal concerning this Rod, and he relates some Things remarkable out of a Ferrish Book entitu- Romans, whose Temple was joined to that of Holed Gale refaia, i. e. Revelans arcana. It's to be nour, to that you must first pass through the observed, according to the Sentiments of the Temple of Honour to it. fews, that this Rod by reason of the particular and divine Vertue it had to work Miracles, was never given to any other but Mofes; that Jo- People at the burying of great Men in Rome. fush himself, though his Disciple and most worthy Successor, never made use of it, but only of a Lance and Javelin: It's true, when other fa- when he fays, that Neftor was cotemporary with cred Things as Asron's Rod, the Pot of Manna, the Men of the Two preceding Ages, and haand Vessel of facred incense were laid up in the ving survived them, did also then live with those Ark by Josush, we could never learn what became of the third Age, and he told them, that the of Mojes his Rod; and we do not find either in former leople with whom he had converted were the holy Scriptures, or Books of the Rabbins any mention made of it: And Abarbinel inferrs to that they were not airaid to encounter wild from Mofes his going up to the Mount Abarin Beafts; Hefiod gives us a compleat Description to die there, that he took Gods Rod in his Hand, of the Terreftrial Happiness of those People that and that it was buried with the Body of that lived in the first Age; but he has not given an Prophet in the same Grave, God being unwilling Account of the Duration of their Lives, which that any other Man should make use of it after he makes to end in a sweet Sleep, Moriebantur him; for as there never was a Man in Ifrael like ceu fomno obruit; but he clearly intimates that unto Mojes, either in respect to the Heighth of this Lite must have been very long, when he faye, Prophetic or Signs and Wonders done by him, that those of the succeeding Age, who came far so no other but himself made ute of that Rod for short of the other, were a Hundred Years in a working all those Miracles: As Mofes was the State of Infancy: We cannot truly determine Conductor of the People of God into the promit how many Years an Age confifted of; by what fed Land, the Pagans also ascribe unto Mercury is faid concerning Neftor that he lived Three, the Charge of conducting souls into Hell: They lome believe an Age was Thirty Years, others likewise endue him with a Rod twifted round with more Reason take it to be an Hundred. Ovid with Serpents, called Caducem, in Imitation of was of this Opinion, when he made Neftor lay, Mofes his Rod that was changed into a Serpent, and was to famous amongst them, that what-lears, which was Mercurie's Rod of Peace, in lever miraculous and strange Thing was perone Hand and a Trophy of the Enemies Spoils in formed by him, it was attributed to that Rod. the other. Victory is represented upon the Re- Virgil describes the Vertue of that Rod in his Aneids.

> Tum virgam capit, hac animas ille evocat orce Pallenses, alias fub triffia tartara mittit, Dat fomnos, adimitque, & lumina morte refignat : Illa fretus agit ventos, & turbida tranat Nubila :

He therefore used his Rod as well when he fetch'd. with the Prætor touched a Slave's Head when Souls from Hell as when he carried them thither: By the Help of this Rod he made the one fleep, VIRBIUS, furnamed Hippolysus, the Son and awaked the other, and made whom he of Thefeus, whom Afeulapius at Diana's Request would to die: He expelled the Winds, and pal-

VIRGILIUS, Virgil, the Prince of the Latin Poets, born at Andes near the City of Manmired him for the Excellency of his Works, and honoured him as much as the Emperor himfelf; and his Modefty acquired him the Name of Parthenius : He has left us his Bucolicks, Four-Books of Georgicks, and Twelve of the Ancids, wherein he has imitated the Iliads and Odyffes of Homer: The Emperor Augustus hindered this last Piece to be burnt, as Virgil had ordered it by his Will.

VIRTUS, Vertue, a Goddess among the VISCERATIONES, a Gift confifting of the Entrails of Animals conferred upon the

VI IA, Life; Homer leems to allude to the long Lives of Men in the first Ages of the World, a great deal stronger than those born afterwards;

The same Poet in another place feigned that Sybills Cumas was 700 Years old, when Aness their Writings acknowledged and bore Testimocame to confult her, and that the was to live 300 my to the Truth of the Length of Mens Lives Years longer.

Nam jam mibi secula septem Alta vides ; supereft, numeros us pulveris aquem, Tercentum meffes, tercentum mufta videre.

It was a Request she had made and obtained, that the Observations of several Ages to make it perthe should live as many Years as the held Grains of Sand in her Hand. We do not know from whence ovid had this Fable, but he allows her which made up the first Mens long Lives, conabove 1000 Years to live. In the Argonauticon | fifted of no more than One Month or at the most attributed to Orpheus we have an Account given | Three; but the most convincing Proof of any of a People called Macrobii that comes near unto is, that the Year of the Deluge is so well circumthat of our Age of Innocence and Terrestrial Pa- stanciated in the Book of Genesis, that the 12 radice: The Length of their Lives from which Months and 365 Days are there exprest. they derive their Names is no less than 1000

Omnique ex parte beatos Macrobios, facilem qui visam in longa trabentes Secula, millenos implent feliciter annos.

Horace attributes the shortening of Men's Lives only to Promethem his flealing Fire from Heaven, in order to facilitate the Understanding of a and the Vengeance of God that has poured an | Truth that was fo univerfally received, he in-Infinity of Evilupon us, called Argansbonius who lived 300 Years: Hero- if a violent Death had not shortened his Life dorus speaks of the Ethiopians of Africa who as well as his continual Debaucheries: Of the were called Macrobit, and fays, they commonly most sumptuous Feasts, wherewith he was treatlived 120 Years, and 'twas believed the Length ed, that which his Brother Lucius made for him of their Lives proceeded from the Water they is taken Notice of, where there were 2000 Fishes drank, which was lighter than Wood it self: and 7000 Fowls served to the Table: He made Lucian gives the Title of Macrobii, that is, of one Feast wherein he was not so profuie, but Long livers, to one of his Dialogues: He does not more dainty, and wherein one Courte confifted only make an Enumeration of particular Persons, of the Livers of a sort of rare Fishes called Scari, but also of Nations famous for their being long- Pheasants and Peacocks Brains, the Tengues of lived; he fays, it was reported that some People Phanicopteri, Which are very rare Birds, and the in the Country of Seres, that is China, lived Rows of Lamprey's: All these Dainties were aco Years.

Post ignem æsbereå domo Subductum, macies, & nova febrium Terris incubuit cobors: Semotique priùs tarda necessitas Lethi corripuit gradum.

volutions, and to that they are rather Aftrono- he had been dragged through the Streets of Rome

mical Computations which they have made, than the Dynasties and historical Successions of their Kings. Eulebius relates a Paffage out of Folephus. which flews, that prophane Authors have in in the first Ages: Fosephus fays, that the first Men were permitted to live thus so extraordinarily long, not only upon the Account of their Piety, but out of a Necessity that the Earth fhould be peopled in a fhort time, and Arts invented, especially Aftronomy, which required feet. These Two Reasons discover the Falsity of their Opinion, who thought that the Years

Neither would Mofes in Five or Six Chapters fuccessively have given such different Significations to this Term Year: St. Augustine has very vigorously pushed on this Argument concerning the Year of the Deluge. Lastantius tells us. that Varro was to confident that Men in ancient Days lived even to be a Toufand Years old, that flanced in the lunar Years that confifted of one Month only, in which time the Moon ran thro'

the Twelve Signs of the the Zodiac.

VITELLIUS, a Roman Emperor that fucceeded Otho: Fobannes Baptifta Porta in his Treatife of Physiognomy, observes, he had an Owl's Face: His thick short Neck, reddish Complexion and a great Belly, as Suetonius de-Silius Italicus tells us of an ancient King of Spain icribes him, threatned him with an Apoplexy. brought from the Carpathian Sea, Straights of Diodorus Siculus relates the Account given by Gibraltar and other remote Parts of the World. the Egyptians of their Gods, or rather Kings, In short, his whole Reign was but one continued fome of whom had reigned 300 Years, and o- Debauch and Profuseness, which made Vibius thers 112, but 'tis believed their Years were lu- Crifpus lay, who had the good Fortune to fall fick par, and no more than a Month: Others are of at that Time, and so to avoid those Excesses, that Opinion that they confounded their Hoftory with had it no been for his Illness he must infallibly Aftronomy, and attributed to their Kings the have burft. Vitellius was flain by the Soldiers Names of the Stars, and the Length of their Re- who advanced Vefpafian to the Throne, and after with a Rope about his Neck and his Body run | devoured two of his Companions; but Unfer through in leveral Parts, he was with his Bro was revenged on him by putting out his only ther and Son thrown into the Tiber, having reign- Eye with a Firebrand, after he had made him ed but Eight Months.

is very ancient, and 'tis long ago fince they have rus put up in an He goat's Skin: His Companimade very fine Things of it, nevertheless, the ons thinking it to be some hid Gold, opened the Art of making Glass for Windows did not come Skin while Ulyffer was afleen, and the Wind in use till a long time after, and the same may be looked upon as an Invention of latter Ages: Indeed Marcus Scaurus in Pompey's Time made time, and this made him fail away and land in part of the Scene of that stately Theater, which the Country of the Lestingons; where near unto was built at Rome for the Peoples Diversion, of a Fountain they found the Daughters of King Glass; but in the mean time they had then no Antiphates, who were come thither to draw Wa-Glass Windows to their Houses, and it any great ter; the Cruelty of that King and People ha-Men, and of the richeft fort had a mind to have | ving forced them to flee away hastily. Lastly, ang Cole Cooms in their Houses, and to which After they had loft Eleven of their Ships they the Light might come, they closed up the arrived at an Island where Circe was Queen, who Paffage with Transparent Stones such as Agares, was the Daughter of the Sun, and a cunning Alabafter, and Marble finely polifhed; but Sorcerefs: She prefently changed his Compawhen they came afterwards to know the Use of nions, whom he had fent to view the Country, Glass for that Purpole, they used it inftead of into Swine: Mercury prevented him from runthele forts of Stones.

uLYSSES; Prince of Itbaca, and the Son of Laertes and Anticlea; he had Penelope to Wite, whom he loved so entirely, that to the end he might not leave her and not be obliged to go to the Trojan war, he pretended himself mad, and tied his Plough the wrong way to Two Animals of a different Kind, with which he ploughed; but Palamedes making a Shew as if he went about to kill his Son, or rather laying him in the Furrow, that fo the Coulter of the Plough might kill him, as twas drawn along, Ulyfes that knew the Danger stopt, and in fo doing discovered he was not really what he pretended to be: He was a very wife and cunning Prince, and performed a great many brave | Scylla and Carybdis, which he had much ado to Actions both in point of Valour and Prudence escape, by being tied to the Mart of his Ship, at the Siege of Troy: After the taking of the City, he embarked in order to return home; his Companions : He landed in Sicily, which but he wandered up and down a long time through Neptune's Hatred to him, that he might be revenged on him for the Death of his Son Polyphemus. Homer in the ninth Book of his o- with a dreadful Tempest, which drove Unfles by makes him begin the Story of his Voyages and his Company to the Ille of Ogygia, where and Misfortunes, laying, that Jupiter at his the Nymph Califie received and entertained him leaving of Iroy, cast him upon the Country of seven Years, and promised to make him immorthe Cicones , which he pillaged; but those Peo- tal, if he would consent to tarry with her. But ple getting together, flew feveral of his Men. He went afterwards to the Country of the Lotobagi, who gave him a very kind Reception ; detained only by force, went on board : Neptune but after tome of he People had eaten of the role a great Storm, and dath'd his Ship to pieces, Herb called Loros, which was the Food of the but Ino the Goddels of the Sea faved him from and Love they had for their Country, infomuch that they were, oblig'd to carry them away by Gods, who were the Protectors of Hospitality, I known by his Dogs; but the Great Men of Ilbara drunk: He landed at the life of Folus, King VITRUM; Glas. The Invention of Glass of the Winds, who presented him with a Zephydrove him back to the Island from whence he came. Folus would not receive him a fecond ing the tame Danger, and gave him the Herb called Moly, as a fure Preservative against Circe's Enchantments, and told him at the same time, that when Circe ftruck him with her Rod, he should draw his Sword and threaten to kill her, till fuch time as the made an Offer of her Friendfhip and Bed unto him, and fwear by the great Oath of the Gods, to do him no manner of hurt. Ulyffes punctually followed Mercury's Advice, and Circe restored his Companions to him in their former Shape: She foretold him his Descent into Hell, and order'd what Sacrifice he should first offer to Pluto, Proferpina, and the Prophet Tirefius. Circe allo foretold him the Accidents he ought to avoid, as the Sirens, and the Rocks and ftopping his Ears. Scylla swallowed fix of with her Flocks was confecrated to the Sun; but while he was afleep, his Companions killed some of thole Oxen: This Sacriledge was revenged Jupiter deputed Mercury to go and command Calypso to let Ulyses depart, who having been Natives, they wholly loft the Remembrance of, Shipwrack, gave him a Scarf which could keep him from being drowned, and Minerva fent a favourable Wind which carried him to the Coun-Force, and tie them fast till they went aboard. try of the Pheaces to Alcinous, who fent him From thence he went to the file of Cyclops, where home to Ithaca. When he was come to his Pa-Polyphemus in Contempt of Jupiter and other lace in the Habit of a poor Traveller, he was

who eat Uhffes his Bread, and courted his Wife. having conspired the Death of his Son Telemachus, used Ulyses very scornfully. Penelope entertained him without knowing him, then commanded his Feet to be washed, and that he should be put to Bed : Old Euryclea in washing his Feet, found he was Ulyfes by the Scar of a Wound When these Vows were accomplished, they ewhich he had received in Hunting a wild Boar, rected Altars, kindled Fires, and offered Sacribut he would not allow her to discover him : Pe- fices, and feasted in the Streets and publick nelope having promifed to marry that Perion who . Places. could bend Ulyffes his Bow, all the Great Men I URANIA, which fignifies as much as Cadid it, they being unworthy of it : He after- over Astronomy. wards made himself known to his Son, and the | UR NA, an Urn, was a Vale made of diffe-Shepherd Eumaus, and by Minerva's Help killed rent Matter, and made use of to draw out of it all his Wife's Suitors with Arrows, beginning the Names of those who were first to entage with Antinous.

The Navel is the Middle of a Man; Ad umbili- Rome and Courts of Judicature; as also to keep cum ducere opus, in Horace, tignifies to finish a the Ashes of Mens Bodies after they had been Thing; for the Romans writing their Works up- | burn'd, according to ancient Custom: The Anon Parchment, or the Barks of Trees long ways, cients placed these Urns either under the Stones they rolled them up when all was writ, and clo- on which their Epitaphs were cut, or under parted them with little Studs or Boffes made of Horn ticular Monuments, or elfe they kept them in or Ivory, in the Form of a Navel, to keep them their Houles. Trajan would have his Ashes laid

tily dreft, and treading upon Vertue.

Year after the Calends of January for the Eter- the Bones which were half burnt took up also nity of their Empire, and Health of the Empe- more room, or elfe they many times ferved for ror and Citizens; and this was called Nuncupare the Ashes of the whole Family, at leastwise, for vora. We find by the Emperor's Moneys that there thole of Husband and Wife, as we are informwere Vows called Quinquennalia, Decennalia, Vi- ed by the first Verse of this Antique Inscripcennalia, Tricennalia, and Quadricennalia: The tion: Magistrates ordered these Vows to be graven upon Brais Plates and Marble, which denoted the Number of Years they pray'd for, as 5, 10, 20, 30, and 40 Years: We find these Words on Maxentius and Decentius's Money, Voru Quinquen- As to the Shape of the Ursis, the Earthen ones nalibus, multir Decennalibus. By the Medals of were made very near like to our common Earantoninus Pius and Marcus Aurelius, we find then Pots, faving that they were taller and Vows made for twenty Years, Vota suscepta Vi- fraighter about the Neck: There were several cennalia; which are thus inferibed:

VOT. XXX MULTIS XXXX.

endeavoured to do it in vain, but Uliffer himself leftial, was one of the Nine Muses; she presided at the publick Plays, or to throw in the Notes. UMBILICUS, the Middle of a Thing: and give their Votes in the Atlemblies held at up in a Golden Urn, and put upon that noble VOLUMEN; the winding and folding of Pillar of his that is still standing. That of King a Serpent; it was likewise a Volume, or Book; Demetrius was also made of Gold, as Plutareh for the ancient Romans before Paper was invent- fays; and the Great Marcellus, who took Syraed, wrote at first upon Table-Books covered cuje, had a Silver Urn. Sparsian says, the Ashes over with Wax; and when they had put the fi- of the Emperor Severus were carried to Rome in nithing Stroak to their Works, they neatly laid a Golden Urn: But Dio, who is of better Authothem long-ways upon Parchments, or Barks of rity, fays, it was only made of Porphyry; and He-Trees, and afterwards rolled them up; from rodian affures us, it was Alabafter. Glass-Urns whence Evolvere librum fignifies to read a Book, are a little more common. Marcus Varro would because the Volume must be unrolled to read have his Ashes put up in an Earthen Vessel, with Myrtle, Olive and Poplar Leaves, being that VOLUPIA, the Goddess of Pleasure, to which Pliny calls the Pythagorean Fashion, bewhom the Romans built a Temple, and repre- cause they were the meanest and most ordinary tented her like a young handsome Woman, pret- of any: Earthen Urns that were used by the Vulgar were commonly larger, for as there was VOTA, Vows made by the Romans every less Care taken to reduce them entirely to Ashes, of them whole root was fharp at the End, fome that had Handles and others none: They have no Fathion nor base Relievo, saving that there are fome that have the Figures of Men or Animals u pon them.

Urna brevie geminum quamvie tenet ista Ca-

as they were defigned for Persons of Quality; in the City for Persons of Quality. The comthere were few of them which had not some fort mon People were burnt upon Mount Esquiline. of Sculpture and base Relievo round them, as we For this Purpose they erected a Heap of Wood, find by feveral Authors who have given us the which they called a Pile, filled on the milde with Forms of them. There were some Egyptian Urns dry and combustible Matter, and with Cypress made of baked Earth, full of Hieroglyphicks and and Pine branches without. They were not spa-Mummy, which is remarkable enough, fince the ring of the rarest Persumes upon this Occasion, Egyptians being accustomed to embalm the Bodies whole, the Urns were not big enough to tarch tells us, that they burnt 210 Handfuls at hold them. Among the greater Number of the Funeral Obsequies of Syllathe Dictator: But those that were to be seen at some, some were at the Funerals of meaner Citizens they contentround, others square, some great, others small, ed themselves with Pitch, as appears by this some again all over plain, and others done in Antique Inscription: base Relievo: Some were to be met with that had Epitaphs on them, while others bare only the Names of the Persons to whom they belonged; but there were no other Characters upon iome befides the two Letters D. M. or the Name of the Potter only that made them upon the Handle, or at the Bottom.

The Ancients had a Way to preserve their Urns, and to hinder the Ashes from mixing with the Earth ; in the first place they often placed the Urn on the Top of those imall square lillars on which their Epitaphs were inscribed, and which upon the account of the Shape of them we call Cippi or Grave-Stones. They also put them up in Stone or Marble Coffins : The following Inscriptions indicate both the said Cuftoms.

Te lapis obseftor, leviser super offa quiesce : Et nostro cineri ne gravu eje velu.

In the next place, Perfons of Quality had their Burying-Vaults, where they laid up the Ashes of their Ancestors; and there was one like this formerly found at Nifmes, with a rich inlaid Pave- his Satyrs, Comnes composus, that is, Ibave buried ment, with Niches round about in the Wall, in each of which guilded Glass Urns full of Alhes Eyes of the Deceased at his Departure, opened were let in order. The Urnalio was of uie to cast the Lots of Praneste, and this is noted by Horace, Divina mota anus Una; The Priefiefs to burn the Bodies, and were called Uffarit, baving ftirred the inchanted Um. Horace in that place speaks of the Divination used by the Urn the Deceased with rich Purple Tapiftry, and and Lots which was practifed thus: They put a great many Letters and whole Words into an Urn, which they ftirred together, and when thole Letters were well mixed, they turned them; and that which Change effected in the on Fire at the mournful sound of Trumpets place of those Letters, made the Divination: This is that which they called the Lots of Pranelle, because they were found in that place: This fort of Divination in Cicero's Time was little regarded, there being none but the combeen much in vogue among the Grecians.

the Dead : It was commonly Campus Marsius, or leeared in these Words; Salve aternum & vale a-

But for those made of Brass or other Mettals, | some other place in the Suburbs, and sometimes which they threw lavishly upon the Pile. Plu-

> М. P. Attilio Rufo & Actilia Beronica Uxor. Vixer. A. XXIIII. fed Pub. Menf. X. Ante Natus Eft & Eadem Hora Fungor. Elu Ambo Mortui Sunt. Ille Acu, Ista Lanificio Vitam Agebant. Nec ex Eorum Bonis Plus Inventum est quam quod Sufficeret ad Emendam Pyram & Picem quibus Corpora Cremarentur... Et Prafica Conducta, & Urna Empta.

When the Wood-pile was thus ordered and made ready, the kelations and Children of the Deceased helped to lay the Body upon the Pile, whence that Latin Exprelsion in Horace in one of all my Relations; then the Perion who closed the them that he might look up to Heaven as the Place of his abode; thole whole Bufineis it was finithed the reft of the Ceremony, by adorning conferring on him the Entigns of his Dignity. Then the next of Kin taking a Torch in his Hand, and turning his Head afide, to intimate he did that Office with Regret, he fet the Pile and Hautboys: Then the Relations and Friends of the Deceased offered Sacrifices, cut the Throats of Animals, and served the Manes with feveral Meffes to appeale them, praying to the Winds to blow through the Pile to fet it more mon People that made any account of it: It had on Fire and confume it, according to the Custom of the Grecians. When the Flame decreated and USTRINA, or USTRINUM; the that the Body seemed to have been burnt, the Place at Rome where they burnt the Bodies of Relations gave their last Farewell to the DeURN

who eat Uhffes his Bread, and courted his Wife, having conspired the Death of his Son Telemachus, used Vlyfes very scornfully. Penelope entertained him without knowing him, then commanded his Feet to be washed, and that he should be put to Bed : Old Euryclea in washing his Feet, found he was Ulyses by the Scar of a Wound When these Vows were accomplished, they ewhich he had received in Hunting a wild Boar, rected Altars, kindled Fires, and offered Sacribut he would not allow her to discover him : Pe- fices, and feasted in the Streets and publick nelope having promised to marry that Person who . Places. could bend Ulyses his Bow, all the Great Men URANIA, which fignifies as much as Caendeavoured to do it in vain, but Ulyfer himself Isfial, was one of the Nine Muses; she presided did it, they being unworthy of it : He after- over Aftronomy. wards made himself known to his Son, and the | UR NA, an Urn, was a Vale made of diffe-Shepherd Eumaus, and by Minerva's Help killed rent Matter, and made use of to draw out of it

The Navel is the Middle of a Man; Ad umbili- Rome and Courts of Judicature; as also to keep cum ducere opus, in Horace, tignifies to finish a the Ashes of Mens Bodies after they had been Thing; for the Romans writing their Works up- burn'd, according to ancient Custom: The Anon Parchment, or the Barks of Trees long ways, cients placed their Urns either under the Stones they rolled them up when all was writ, and clo- on which their Epitaphs were cut, or under parted them with little Studs or Boffes made of Horn ticular Monuments, or elfe they kept them in or Ivory, in the Form of a Navel, to keep them their Houles. Trajan would have his Ashes laid

tily dreft, and treading upon Vertue.

Year after the Calends of January for the Eter- the Bones which were half burnt took up also nity of their Empire, and Health of the Empe- more room, or elle they many times served for ror and Citizens; and this was called Nuncupare the Ashes of the whole Family, at leastwise, for vota. We find by the Emperors Moneys that there thole of Husband and Wife, as we are informwere Vows called Luinquennalia, Decennalia, Vi- ed by the first Verle of this Antique Inscripcennalia, Tricennalia, and Quadricennalia: The tion : Magistrates ordered these Vows to be graven upon Brais Plates and Marble, which denoted the Number of Years they pray'd for, as 5, 10, 20, 30, and 40 Years: We find these Words on Maxentius and Decentius's Money, Votu Quinquen- As to the Shape of the Ups, the Earthen ones nalibus, multis Decennalibus. By the Medals of were made very near like to our common Earantoninus Pius and Marcus Aurelius, we find then Pots, faving that they were taller and Vows made for twenty Years, Vota Juscepta Vi- fraighter about the Neck: There were several cennalia; which are thus inscribed;

VOT. XXX MULTIS XXXX.

all his Wife's Suitors with Arrows, beginning the Names of those who were first to engage at the publick Plays, or to throw in the Notes, UMBILICUS, the Middle of a Thing: and give their Votes in the Affemblies held at up in a Golden Urn, and put upon that noble VOLUMEN; the winding and folding of Pillar of his that is still standing. That of King a Serpent; it was likewise a Volume, or Book; Demetrius was also made of Gold, as Plutarch for the ancient Romans before Paper was invent- fays; and the Great Marcellus, who took Syraed, wrote at first upon Table-Books covered cuje, had a Silver Urn. Spartian says, the Ashes over with Wax; and when they had put the fi- of the Emperor Severus were carried to Rome in nishing Stroak to their Works, they neatly laid a Golden Urn : But Dio, who is of better Authothem long-ways upon Parchments, or Barks of rity, fays, it was only made of Porphyry; and He-Trees, and afterwards rolled them up; from rodian affures us, it was Alabafter. Glass-Urns whence Evolvere librum fignifies to read a Book, are a little more common. Marcus Varro would because the Volume must be unrolled to read have his Ashes put up in an Earthen Vessel, with Myrtle, Olive and Poplar Leaves, being that VOLUPIA, the Goddess of Pleasure, to which Pliny calls the Pythagorean Fashion, bewhom the Romans built a Temple, and repre- cause they were the meanest and most ordinary fented her like a young handsome Woman, pret- of any: Earthen Urns that were used by the Vulgar were commonly larger, for as there was VOTA, Vows made by the Romans every less Care taken to reduce them entirely to Ashes, of them whole Foot was tharp at the End, fome that had Handles and others none: They have no Fathion nor base Relievo, saving that there are fome that have the Figures of Men or Animals u pon them.

Urna brevis geminum quamvis tenet ista Ca-

as they were defigned for Persons of Quality; in the City for Persons of Quality. The comthere were few of them which had not some fort mon People were burnt upon Mount Esquiline. of Sculpture and base Relievo round them, as we For this Purpose they erected a Heap of Wood, find by feveral Authors who have given us the which they called a Pile, filled on the infide with Forms of them. There were some Egyptian Urns dry and combustible Matter, and with Cypress made of baked Earth, full of Hieroglyphicks and and Pine branches without. They were not spa-Mummy, which is remarkable enough, fince the ring of the rarest Personnes upon this Occasion, Egyptians being accustomed to embalm the Bo- which they threw lavishly upon the Pile. Pludies whole, the Urns were not big enough to tarch tells us, that they burnt 210 Handfuls at hold them. Among the greater Number of the Funeral Obsequies of Syllathe Dictator: But those that were to be seen at Rome, some were at the Funerals of meaner Citizens they contentround, others square, some great, others small, ed themselves with Pitch, as appears by this fome again all over plain, and others done in Antique Inscription: base Relievo: Some were to be met with that had Epitaphs on them, while others bare only the Names of the Persons to whom they belonged; but there were no other Characters upon tome befides the two Letters D. M. or the Name of the Potter only that made them upon the Handle, or at the Bottom.

The Ancients had a Way to preserve their Urns, and to hinder the Ashes from mixing with the Earth; in the first place they often placed the Urn on the Top of those small square billars on which their Epitaphs were infcribed, and which upon the account of the Shape of them we call Cippi or Grave-Rones. They also put them up in Stone or Marble Coffins : The following Inscriptions indicate both the faid Cu-

Te lapis obtestor, leviter super offa quiesce: Et nostro cineri ne gravu ejje velu.

In the next place, Perfons of Quality had their Burying-Vaults, where they laid up the Ashes of their Ancestors; and there was one like this for- whence that Latin Expression in Horace in one of merly found at Nifmes, with a rich inlaid Pave- his Satyrs, Cmnes composui, that is, Ibave buried ment, with Niches round about in the Wall, in | all my Relations; then the Perion who closed the each of which guilded Glais Urns toll or Alhes Eyes of the Deceafed at his Departure, opened were fet in order. The Um allo was of use to cast the Lots of Praneste, and this is noted by Place of his abode; those whose Business it was Horace, Divina mota anus Uina; The Prinfiefs to burn the Bodies, and were called Uftarii, baving flirred the inchanted Urn. Horace in that finished the rest of the Ceremony, by adorning place speaks of the Divination used by the Urn the Deceased with rich Purple Tapiffry, and and Lots which was practifed thus: They put a conferring on him the Entigns of his Dignity. great many Letters and whole Words into an Then the next of Kin taking a Torch in his Urn, which they flirred together, and when Hand, and turning his Head atide, to intimate those Letters were well mixed, they turned he did that Office with Regret, he for the Pile them; and that which Change effected in the on Fire at the mournful sound of Trumpets place of those Letters, made the Divination: and Hautboys: Then the Relations and Friends This is that which they called the Lots of Pra- of the Deceased offered Sacrifices, cut the nefte, because they were found in that place: Throats of Animals, and served the Manes with This fort of Divination in Cicero's Time was feveral Meffes to appeale them, praying to the little regarded, there being none but the com- Winds to blow through the Pile to fet it more mon People that made any account of it : It had on Fire and confume it, according to the Cuftom been much in vogue among the Grecians.

Place at Rome where they burnt the Bodies of Relations gave their last Farewell to the De-

But for those made of Brass or other Mettals, I some other place in the Suburbs, and sometimes

P. Attilio Rufo & Actilia Beronica Uxor. Vixer. A. XXIIII. Sed Pub. Menf. X. Ante Natus Eft & Eadem Hora Fungor. Elu Ambo Mortus Sunt. Ille Acu, Ista Lanisicio Vitam Agebant. Nec ex Eorum Bonis Plus Inventum est quam quod Sufficeret ad Emendam Pyram & Picem quibus Corpora Cremarentur, Et Prafica Conducta, & Urna Empta.

When the Wood-pile was thus ordered and made ready, the Relations and Children of the Deceased helped to lay the Body upon the Pile; them that he might look up to Heaven as the of the Grecians. When the Flame decreated and USTRINA, or HSTRINUM; the that the Body feemed to have been burnt, the the Dead : It was commonly Campus Martius, or I ceased in these Words; Salve aternum & vale aternum, nos eo ordine, quo Natura dederis, te Ithem, for which end he beset his Bed with invi-

∫equemur. 'in Italy; and the Advantage of particular Per- to fee if his Words agreed with his Thoughts. tions made the Publick Good to be neglected: So much concerning the Fable of Vulcan, now 'new Ways to elude them.

VULCANUS, Vulcan, whom they commonly make to be the Son of Tuno, of whom the conceived without the Help of Jupiter her Hufvented him from running the Fate of Alianax; it, and so preserved the Use of Fire. They attribu-Leg broke, which made him always go lame. occasion to lay, he made Jupiter's Thunder-bolts, Gods, where he introduces Jupiter and Vulcan which vomit out Flames, because they suppospeaking, that after the latter had cleft the o. sed that the Cyclops or Smiths wrought there thers Head with an Ax, there came an Amazon according to Vulcan's Directions; or laftly, they forth, who was Pallas, armed with a Lance and attributed to him the Fire made use of for all Shield, and he as his Reward for so happily deli- Arts and especially for Smithing; for Vulcan bevering him defired he might have her to Wife: ing the Tubal-cain of the Pagans, he prefided Jupiter agreed to it, but he could not perswade over all those Arts that concerned the Working her to marry him, because the was resolved to of Mertals. live a Virgin all her Life-time: So he married Venus who proved falle to his Bed, prostituting alone, however, Homer gives him also Jupiter her self to God Mars, which being suspected by for his Father: Now Jupiter who is the Coele-fible Nets and then went to his Forge : The Gal-USURA CENTESIMIS, tifury; In- lant laying hold on the Opportunity of the Hufterest at One per Cent. They paid Interest by band's Absence went to enjoy his Mistress, but the Month, and not by the Year, as we do; the Sun discovered them and informed Vulcan of and so this implies the Hundredth Part of the it, who took them both in the Fact, and wrapped Sum every Month, and consequently Twelve them up in his Nets. Then he called all the per Cent. per Ann. This fort of ulury was looked Gods to be Witnesses of his Disgrace: They upon as exorbitant; and therefore the Law of made him to be the Smith of the Gods, and gave the I welve Tables, confirmed long after by the him the Islands of Lesbos and Lipara for his for-Tribunes, regulated Usury to One per Cent. ging Places, in the Company of the Cyclops. per Ann. and this was called Unciarium fanus, The Poets tell us, that Vulcan had once a Connay, and the same was regulated one Time at test with Neptune and Minerva about the Excelone Half less. Tacitus, L. 5. Ann. speaks of Usu- lency of their Arts; Neptune as his Mafter-piece rers thus; 'For, fays he, they had publickly acted made a Bull, Minerva a House, and Vulcan. a 'contrary to the Law which Cafar had enacted Man; when they came before Momus whom they for regulating the Interest of Money and Mat- chose for Judge, he blamed Vulcan because he ters relating to the Estates that were possess, had not made a Window in the Man's Heart,

'Usury doubtless is one of the oldest Evils of we come to the History, and so Vulcan is found to the Republick, and the most usual Cause of be the first in the Dynasties of the Egyptian 'Seditions, and that is the Realon why fo many Kings, who were Gods, as they have been trans-Laws have been made to restrain ir, even in mitted down to us by Syncellus: He is also called a Time when Mens Manners were not fo cor- the Father of the Gods in the proud Inscriptions 'rupt; for first it was forbid by the Laws of the of the Kings of Egypt, Et Vulcanus Deorum pater. 'Twelve Tables to lend Money at an higher Herodotus Ipeaks of a magnificent Temple of Interest than the Eighth Denarius, whereas be- Vulcan's, whose Porch on the North-side was fore, all kinds of Interests were allowed of : Af- built by Marie King of Egypt, and Ramsinitus terwards it was at the Defire of the Tribunes erected that to the West: It's faid, it was King e reduced to Sixteen Denati, and some time after Menes who built that stately and magnificent 'forbidden altogether: The People afterwards, Temple of Vulsan's at Thebes, from whom the 'made feveral Orders for the Prevention of the | Prieffs reckoned 360 Kings in Egypt; he speaks ' Cheats practiled in this Respect, but notwith- in another Place of a Colossus of Vulcan's which ftanding any Regulations that they could make, was 75 Foot high, and stood before his Temple. the Covetoulnels of Men always found out | Sanchuniathon does also place Vulcan among the Phanician Gods, and calls him Chryfor and gives him a far greater Extent of Power than that attributed to Vulcan by the Greeks: Diodorus Siculus also assures us, the Egyptian Priests reband, the threw him down from Heaven, and ckoned Vulcan among the Kings of Egypt, and he fell into the Isle of Lemnos, where he had said, he was the first of them all; lattly, they broke his Neck, fays Lucian, had not the Inha- attributed the Invention of Fire to him, for a bitants of the Country received him in their Thunder-bolt happening to tall upon a Tree Arms as he tumbled through the Air, and pre- and fetting it on Fire, he brought more Wood to however, this could not prevent his having his ted the Lightning to Vulcan, which gave Men The same Lucian says in his Dialogue of the so they did those fiery Irruptions in Mountains

The Poets made Vulcan to be the Son of Juno Vulcan he watched an Opportunity to surprize stial Fire might very well give Being to the Teralone work that Agitation in the Clouds, that the Enemy together, and to make a Sacrifice of forms Thunder. Laftly, if Juno be the Earth, them to Vulcan in the Field of Battle. it's also not to be doubted but that she alone forces out of her Bosom, those Fires which some Mountains fend forth, and which they call Vulcanoes: Servius fays fomething like this: In Lemnum infulam decidit Vulcanus, à Junone propter deformitatem dejectus, quam aerem esse constat, ex quo fulmina procreantur. Ideò autem Vulcanus de femore Junonis fingitur natus, quòd fulmina de imo aere nascuntur. One might in my Opinion, says Father Thomassin, from hence draw a Proof that could give some Weight to the Physiological in the Genitive; and so it is with gs, as Rex for Meaning of Fables, and shew that Fable upon Regs, whence comes Regu in the Genitive Case. fome Occasions has been invented only for the vailing of natural Truths, and thereby giving them a new Grace; wherefore after they had anade Juno to be the Sifter and only Wife of Jupiter, and Queen of all the World, why should the have no other Son but Vulcan only; or when Vulcan is made to be her Son, why should he have such and such Functions and Qualifications? But the Thunder-bolts being, as it were, Productions of the Air, which is Juno, or of the Air which is Jupiter, and of Juno that is the Earth, the Fable must have been accommodated to the thy Bolom to quench the Flame that devours Nature of those Things; and the Reason why | me. they fhould fay, that Vulcan at his Birth was thrown down from Heaven to the Earth, and made a Cripple by the Fall, was because the Thunder never falls directly: Servius adds, that the Reason why the Poets say, that Vulcan fell in the Isle of Lesbos, was because it thundered often in that Island: Lastly, the same Author fays, that as to their Poets Fiction in respect to gry, he vomited so many I lames upon me, as Vulsan's marrying of Venus, 'twas because the dryed up all the Plants growing upon my Banks, getting of Children proceeded from Heat only: and killed all my Fish; and I had much ado to And this is confirmed by St. Augustine, L. 7. de escape in the Condition you see me. Civ. Dei. C. 16.

Now we are to speak of the Fable of Mars and chilles? Venus being taken in Adultery, and wrapped up in invilible Nets by Vulcan, who at the Intercelfion of Neptune fet them free, according to Homer in his odyffes. Varro gives us the Etymology of the Word Vulcan, ab ignis majori vi ac violentia Vulcanus dillus : The Greek Name "paioTOcomes from hobai anterbai, succendi. Tzetzes will have it to have been the Name of an Egyptian, that found out the Use of Fire in Noab's Time, and afterwards invented the Art of Smithing; the Greeks having attributed to him what lodge with them: The Custom was, that when they had learned of the Egyptians. Bochart derives they had treated them the first Day only, they the Name of Vulcan from the Hebrew Words Af efto, Pater ignis; and that with great likelihood of fruth, fince Vulcan is reckoned to be of the Number of those who made up the ancient Dynafties of the Gods or Kings of Egypt: The Egyptians according to Elian confectated Lions to him: And Servius Cays, it was a Custom after refirial, and Juno who is the Air, might also all the Gaining of a Victory, to gather the Arms of

Is a double Letter in the Latin Tongue, valent to cs, as Due put for Ducs, whence duciu The X is sometime put with the C, as vicxit, junexit, and iometimes with the S. as Cappadoxs. St. Isidore says, it was not in use before Augustus his Time; and Victorinus affirms, Nigidius would never make use of it.

XAIPE, a Greek Word used in Epitaphs, fignifying as much as Salve. Good-morrow.

XANTHUS, a River of Troy: Lucian in a Dialogue of the Sea-Gods introduces this River fpeaking to the Sea thus:

Xanthus. Mother of Rivers, receive me into

Sea. Poor Xanthus, who has abused thee in this manner.

Xant. Vulcan, because I defended the poor Trojans from the Fury of Achilles, who flew them upon my Banks; for the Multitude of the dead Bodies having caused me to overflow, I could not fwallow them, wherewith Vulcan growing an-

Sea. But why would you meddle with A-

Xant. Would you have me betray the People that revered me?

Sea. And would you on your part have Vulcan forfake the Son of a Goddess he is in Love

XENIA, Presents made by the Greeks to their Guests for the Renewal of Friendship and a Token of Hospitality; for such of the Grecians as were rich and magnificent, had Apartments to spare furnished with all Conveniencies, wherein they received those who came from afar to afterwards every Day sent them some Presents of such Things as were brought them from the Country, as Fullets, Eggs, Herbs and Fruits; and hence it was, that the Painters, who reprefented thole Things which every one lent to their Guests, called them Xenia, and that we that entertains Pilgrims and Strangers.

XPH ETO E, Best; it was also used in ancient Epitaphs, in respect to the Dead.

X YSTOS; it was a large and spacious Portico among the Greeks, wherein the Wrestlers practifed in Winter-time.

XYSTUS; it fignified among the Romans an open Walking-place, where People entertained from the Greek; 'tis the Upfilon of the Grecians, tos, celerem Zephyrum, Boreamque rapidum & Nowhich is one of the Three Vowels that they call tum, in amore cum Deo Dea congrella. common. We make use of the Letter I very often in the End of Words in the English Tongue, though we have loft the Sound of it and pronounce it always like an I; and have also passed the tame Pronunciation into the Latin, which in fome measure must be allowed of because of Cuftom, though it would by no means be received into the Greek Tongue, where the Upfilon fhould always be pronounced like our Vowel U, according to the Opinion both of ancient and and conceived by the Power of it without a modern Grammarians.

Y.

Z.

wen as the Z of the Greeks: Its Pronunciation is Eight Days before the rifing of the Dog-star: Hymuch more ioft than the X, which makes Quinti- ginus fays, he was buried, and that his Grave-stone lian call it molliffimum and suavissimum: Never-trembled when the Wind Boreas blew. theless, this Pronunciation was not always the fame as it is this Day, to which we allow it but and the Brother of Amphion, whom he helped to Half that of an S. Moreover it had fomething build the City of Thebes. in it of the D, but such as sounded very imoothly as Megentius was pronounced as if it had in Antiquity; Tresses makes him to be a Native been Medfentius, &c. The Z had also an Affi- of Ephelus, and Civero, Pliny and Elian would nity with the G, as Capella lays: Z. faid he, a have it, that he was born at Heraclea near Cro-Græcis venit, licet etiam ipsi primo G Græca ute tonia in Italy: He flourished in the 29th Olympiad peror Gallienus, and maintained a vigorous War lings; against the Romans, wherein the Emperor Aure-give the Name of Xenodochsum to an Hospital lian after many Battles vanquished and carried her in Triumph to Rome : In Confequence to that famous Victory Aurelian built a Temple at Rome dedicated to the Sun, and enriched with the Spoils of the Palmyrenians, and the Statues of the Sun and Bacchus, which were brought from Palmyra thither, as Herodotus affures us.

ZEPHYRUS, the Wind which blows from the Cardinal Point of the Horizon in the Weit. It's also called Favonius, and some confound it with Africus, which blows from the Winter west because of the Nearness thereof. Virgil makes them facrifice a white Beaft to the Wind Ze-Pecudem Zephyris felicibus albam.

Is the 22th Letter in the Alphabet and Hesiod makes him to be the Son of Astrag and the Sixth Vowel, used in Words derived Aurora: Aftrao verd Aurora Ventis peperit violen-

What Homer fays by way of Fable concerning Boreas, Virgit relates as a true Story of Zephyrus, in speaking concerning Mares.

Ore omnes versa in Zephyrum stant rapibus altis, Exceptant que leves auras, & Jape sine ullis Conjugiu vento gravida. Georg. L. 3.

They turned up their Mouths to the West-wind

ZETES, one of the Sons of the Wind Boreas and Nymph Orithya, whom he stole away from Athens; he was engaged with the Argonauts in the Expedition to Colchos; and being descended from King Phineus the Son of Agenor, who was perfecuted by his own Daughters the Harptes, he expelled them and purfued them as far as the Illes Is the 23d and last Letter in the Alphabet, of Stropbades; he was afterwards but to Death by and a double one among the Latins, as Hercules, and changed into a Wind that blew

ZEIHUS, the Son of Jupiter and Antiope,

ZEUXIS, an ancient Painter very famous towards the Year of Rome 355, and about 400 ZENOBIA, Queen of Palmyra, and a Years before our Saviour's Nativity. Having Prince's who periectly understood the Oriental found the Art of Painting in the Infancy of its Tongues, and the Greek and Latin in their Pu- Luftre, he raifed it, from the Beginning of the rity: Trebellius Polito faid, the was the handfo- Glory Apollodorus had brought it, to great Perment and bravest of Women: She made all the section. Quintilian lays, it was he that found East tremble, beat the Lieutenants of the Em- out the Way of ordering Lights and Shadow-his Painting, that Manners and Pallions were not Crotonians, and he does not fay whose Picture it exprest therein, however, Pliny witnesses quite was: We find he does in a manner tell the same the Contrary in respect to Penelope's Picture, Story as Cicero. We must not forget that Zenza wherein, fay, he, it leems as it Zeuxis had paint having disputed with Parrhasus which of them ed her Manners. He got a great isftate, and was the best Painter, Zeuxu lost it: the Story once appeared very gay during the Celebration of the Olympick Games, with his Cloak embroi-Name, Jays Pliny; and after he grew to rich, Zenxis taking it for a real Curtain which hid he would lell no more of his Works, but gave his Antagonill's Work, he very confidently dethem away, faying plainly, he did not know how lired that Curtain might be quickly drawn, that to fet a Price upon them equal to their Value: so he might see what Parthifius had done, but Before he made People pay for the Sight of coming to know his miftake, he acknowledged them, and none were admitted to fee his Helen he was outdone, fince he had deceived none but without Money in hand, and hence by way of Birds, but Parthafius had deceived the Mafters Raillery the Picture was called Helen the Cour- even of the Art it felf: Another time he painted tizan, Etian, L. 4. C. 22.

the Iliads under this Picture, wherein Homer fays, that good King Priamus and the venerable nough, feeing it he had drawn the Boy as well Senators of his Council agreed, that the Grecians and Trojans were not to be blamed for expoling themselves for so long a Time to so many Evils for the Love of Helen, whole Beauty was equal to that of the Goddesses: Val. Max. L. 3. C.7. We cannot well fay whether this Helen of Zeuxu was the fame as that at Rome in Pliny's Time, or that which he made for the People of fence, but he valued his Champion more than Crossmato be fer up in Juno's Temple. Valerius any of the reft, under which he put a Verfe that Maximus says, Marsyss bound painted by Zeuxu afterward became famous. It's said, that hawas to be feen in the Temple of Concord.

It will not be impertinent in this Place to take Notice of what Zeuxu required of the Inhabitants of Crotona for this Picture, they had got him to come thither by the Power of Money, that they might be furnished with a good Quantity of Pictures by his Hand, wherewith to adorn that emple; and when he told them, he had Thoughts of painting Helen, they were very well latisfied, because they knew his Talent lay in painting of Women. He afterwards afked them what fine young Women they had in their City, and they brought him to the Place where their Boys performed their Exercifes, and he had all the Conveniency imagina- in a Year's Space; it's interfested into Two eble to differn whether they were handfome, for qual Parts by the Equator, one of which contains tished therewith, they gave him to understand and the other the Six Southern Signs towards by that, that they had handlome Girls in the City, fince those Boys whom he most admired Life-bearer, by reason of the Figure of the Anihad Sifters: He then deired he might fee the mals in it that represent the Twelve Signs, 0/2. prettielt of them, and the Council of the City Aries, Taurus and Gemini, for the Spring; Carhaving ordered all of them to attemble in one cer, Leo and Virgo, for Summer; Libra, Scorpto Place, that Zeukh might take his Choice, he and Saginarius, for Autumn; Capricornus, Aquapirch'd upon tive of them and taking what was | rius and Pifies, for Winter: In Verie thus.

most beautiful from each of them, he made the Luminum umbrarumque rationem invenisse tra. Picture of Helen by that. Cicero and Pliny rell (ditur us all this. Inspexerit corum nudas virgines, & quinque elegerit, ut quod in quaque laudatiffimum And 'tis agreed on all hands that he was excel- effer pidura redderer. Pliny will have it, that he lent at Colours. Ariffule found this Fault with wrought for the Agrigentines, and not for the is this; Zeuxu had painted some Grapes so well, that the Birds alighted upon them to peck them: Parrhasius painted a Curtain so ingenuously, that He scrupied not to put those Three Veries of that Picture, which made him angry, and ingenuoufly confess, his Work was not compleat eaffraid of him: It's faid, he rubbed out the Grapes, and that he referved nothing but the Figure wherein he had the leaft Success. Sen. Controv. 5. L. 5. The best Picture made by this Painter was an Hercules in a Cradle, who killed the Snakes in his frightened Mother's Preving painted an old Woman, the Sight of that Picture put him into such a Fit of Laughter that he died with it. 'Tis Verrius Flaccus who relates this, with these Two Verses that allude to this Accident.

> Nam quid modi fasturus rifu denique, Ni pictor fieri vult, qui rifu mortuus eft.

We have the Description of a Picture of Zeuxis in Lucian, that deserves Commendation.

ZODIACUS, the Zodiac, an imaginary Circle in the Heavens containing the Twelve Signs or Constellations, which the Sun runs thro

ZONÆ, the Zones, are the Five Circles which divide the World and Sphear into Five Parts; one is called the Torrid Zone, because of its great Heat, Two more temperate, and the other Two Frigid Zones. Virg. in L. 1. Georg. gives a Description of these Zones, as Ovid does alfo, L. 1. Met. Those Five Circles have obtained this Name because the Word Zona in Latin fignifies a Girdle. The Torrid Zone is under the Equator, included between the Two Tropicks; the Two Temperate Zones lie between the Tropicks and Polar Circles, and the Frigid Zones reach from the Polar Circles to the Poles. The Ancients thought the Torrid Zone World know the Contrary, and that it is ren-Night: They also find it very cold there in the the others that came after. Months of fune, July and August; as to the

Sunt Arles, Taurus, Gemini; Cancer, Lec, Virgo; 75 Degrees: In the mean time the Lapland Hi-Libraque, Scorpius, Arcinenens; Caper, Ampho Rory informs us, that the Heat is sometimes so great there, that they cannot let their bare Feet rest a Minute upon a Stone, without burn-

ZOROASTER, whom Pliny makes to be so much ancienter than Moses, is believed by Clemens in his Recognitions to he Cham, and to have been worshipped for a Deity: Justine fays positively, that Zoroaster was King of the Ballrians, and the Inventor of Magick. Rex Ballrianorum Zoroaster, qui primus dicisur artes magicas invenisse: It was the same Zoroafter against whom Ninus made War: Suidas also places · Zoroafter in Media or Perfia, and makes him to be the Chief of the Migi and Magicians: Several Authors make Zorosfter to have lived more lately, was altogether uninhabitable, but now all the rius Hillaspes, but its like they might confound and place him no higher than the Time of Dadered very temperate by an Intermixture of common Name to feveral Magi, they attribu-Heat in the Day-time, and of Coolness in the ted something of what appertained to the first to

I N I

BOOKS Printed for, and Sold by John Nicholson, at the King's-Arms, in Little-Britain; where may be had all forts of School-Books, and most Chymical-Books.

THE Characters or Manners of the Age. By Monf. de la Bruyere, with the Characters of Theophrastus. Translated from the Greek. The Second Edition corrected and enlarged, with a Key in the Margent. Printed for F. Bullord; and fold by J. Nicholfon, and Tho. Newborough.

Index Villaris, or an Alphabetical Register of all Cities, Market-Towns, Parishes, Villages, the Hundred, Lath, Wapentake, or other Division of each County. The Valuations of the Livings, with the Seats of the Nobility and Gentry; and a List of the Lords to this Time. Folio. Price 16 s.

The whole Comical Works of Monf. Scarron. Containing his Comical Romance. Compleat in Three Parts. All his Novels and Hiltories. His Letters, Characters, &c. Translated by Mr. Tho. Brown, Mr. Savage, and others. Illustrated with Cutts. In Octavo. Price 6s.

The whole Works of the Reverend Divine Dr. Isaac Barrow, in Three Vol.

Folio. Price 21. 103.

The Hiltory of the Old and New Testament; with a large Historical Chronology. Illustrates with Two Hundred and Forty large Cutts and Five Maps: Printed upon Royal Paper. Folio. Price 31. 10 s.

The history of the Old and New Testament, &c. Illustrated with Two Hundred and Forty Cutts and Maps. Quarto. 15 s.

The History of the Buccaniers of America, from their first Original down to this Time Written in feveral Languages, and now collected into one Volume. Illustrated with Twenty Six Copper Cutts. Price 6s.

A Compleat Hiltory of Europe, or a View of the Affairs thereof, Civil and Military, from the Treaty of Nimequen to this present Time, intermixt with above One Hundred Original Papers, as Declarations, Letters, Memoirs, &c. Octavo. Price 6 s.

The new est and best French Grammar. Written for the Use of his Highness the Duke of Glonceffer. By Mr. Boyer, Author of the Royal Dictionary. The Second Edition. Price 2 s.

The Gazetteer or Newsman's Interpreter, being a Geographical Index of all the confiderable Cities, Patriarchships, Bishopricks, Univerlities, Dukedoms, Earldoms, and fuch like: Imperial and Hans Towns, Ports, Forts, Caftles, &c. in trurope, shewing in what Kingdoms, Provinces and Counties they are; what Prince they are now fublect to; upon or nigh what Rivers, Bays, Seas, Mountains, &c. they stand; their Distances in English Miles, with their Longitude and Latitude, according to the best approved Maps. The Fourth Edition enlarg'd.

A most compleat Compendium of Geography, General and Special, describing all the Empires, Kingdoms and Dominions in the whole World. The Fifth Edition corrected. Price 1 s. 6 d. Both written by Lawrence Echard, M. A.

Mr. William Oughtrea's Key of the Mathematicks. Newly translated from the best Edition, with Notes rendring it easie and intelligible to the less skilful Reader; abfolutely necessary for all Gaugers, Surveyors, Gunners, Military Officers, Mariners, &c. Recommended by Mr. Halley, Fellow of the Royal Society. Price 2 s. 6 d.

Tullii Orationes Selectæ in usum Delphini. In Octavo.

SCHO OL-

School-Books fold by Tho. Newborough, at the Golden-Ball, in St. Paul's Church-yard.

P. Ovidii Nasonis Fastorum, Libri VI. Cum notis selectissimis Variorum accurante C. Schrevelio. Ostavo.

C. Julii Cæsarisquæ extant Interpretatione & notis Illustravit Joannes Godvinus, Profellor Regis in usum Delphini juxta Editionem Parisiensem. Octavo.

Phædri Fabulæ. Interpretatione & notis illustravit Petrus Danet, in usum serenissimi Delphini. Octavo.

Novum Jesu Christi Testamentum è Schastiano Castalione Latine reditum in usum Scholarum. Editio Novissima prioribus longe immaculatior. Ostavo.

Mythologia Esopica in qua continentur Esopi Fabulæ, Græco Latinæ. 298. Secundum Editionem Gabrielis Braëtii omnium antiquissimam cum variis Lectionibus in usum Scholæ Etoneniis. Octavo.

Electa ex Ovidio Tibullo & Propertio usui Scholæ Etonensis. Octavo.

Decerpta ex Ovidio, Tibullo, Propertio & Pedone ad Scholarum Grammati-carum usus. Editio secunda. Octavo.

Phrafeologia Generalis; or, a Full, Large and General Phrafe-Book, comprehending whatfoever is necessary and useful in all other Phraseological Books (hitherto published) and methodically digested for the more speedy and proferous Progress of Students in their Humanity Studies. By William Robert-fom, A.M. Ottavo.

Idiomatologia Anglo-Latina, five Dictionarium Idiomaticum Anglo-Latinum: in quo Phrases tam Latinæ quam Anglicanæ Linguæ sibi mutuo respondentes, sib certis quibussdam Capitibus secundum Alphabeti ordinem e regione collocantur. In usum tam Peregrinorum, qui Sermonem nostrum Anglicanum, quam Nostratium, qui Latinum Idioma callere student. Sexta Editio. Cui accessit istinsmodi Phrasium & Idiomatum additio in Utraque Lingua ad minus trium Millium. Opera, Studio, & Industria Gulielmi Walker, S. T. B. Ottavo.

Some Improvements to the Art of Teaching, especially in the first grounding of a young Scholar in Grammar-Learning, being a short, sure and easie way to bring a Scholar to Variety and Excellency in writing Latin. Written for the Helpand Easie of all Uthers of Schools, and for the Use and Profit of all young Scholars. By William Walker, B. D.

L. Annsi Seneca Philosophi Sontentiæ Morales præcipuæ: Ex omnibus ejus, quæ extant, operibus diligenter excerpæ: In certa capita, seu locos communes summa cura digestæ: In modum brevium orationum variis argumentis ac rationibus amplificatæ; exemplis preclaris, summam prudentiam, summamque utilitatem large in lectorem fundentibus, ex ipso Authore totidem verbis illustratæ: Omni Christiano homine, tam sene quam juvene dignissimæ. Nunc primnin ussum Scholarum accommodatæ. Studio & Opera Georgii Sylvani Pannonii Medici. Editio Secunda.

Xenophon de lyri Institutione Libri duo juxta Exemplar Etonense cum Latina Interpretatione Johannis Leunclavii, Gr. & Lat. Oltavo.

Eachard's, Kenner's, Potter's, Codwin's and Brown's Roman and Greek Au-siquities.